Election Feud Flares At Governors' Meet

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A feud between easterners and westerners over the Democratic scramble flared along the sidelines Monday at the 51st annual governor's conference.

Connecticut Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff, who is plugging U.S. Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts for the Democratic nomination next year, was pitted against Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown of California.

Brown wants to be at least a favorite son candidate for the nomination — and maybe more. He is making motions toward trying to line up a bloc of support built around Democratic governors from the Far West.

In the Republican political arena it is known that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York now intends to decide by Nov. 1 whether to challenge Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the GOP presidential nomination in 1960.

Rockefeller, Ribicoff and the other governors split the day up among work, play and formalities.

At the first formal conference session they heard Governor Luis Munoz Maria of Puerto Rico, in a welcoming address, call on the United States to take the lead in bringing about some new inventive kind of political federation in the Americas to make them a "tightly knit, a formidable bulwark of strength for the free world."

The state officials heard and applauded word that President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev will trade visits this fall.

They wound up their first conference meeting at noon and hurried 20 miles down the coast to a beach as guests of Governor and Mrs. Rockefeller. They were back to town at night for their formal state dinner.

The governors voted at their initial session to make their operating rules more democratic with a small "d". From now on their chairman will be elected by a vote of the entire conference, not of its executive committee.

At a midway news conference, Brown told questioners he will be California's favorite son at the Democratic National Convention next year. He declared this would be at the request of the state's Democratic members in the Senate and House and 80 per cent of those in the state Legislature.

At a news conference Sunday, Ribicoff criticized the favorite son device as a means of ganging up on a leader — as he says Senator Kennedy clearly is.

Ribicoff said he didn't consider Brown or any other Democratic governor a serious candidate for the Democratic political prize in 1960.

Brown cracked at one point, with reference to Ribicoff and the support offered Kennedy by the Connecticut state Democratic Committee: "I would say they've picked their candidate in a smoke-filled room in the state of Connecticut."

Brown said the western governors will meet next month at Sun Valley, Idaho, and he intends to talk with them "about the presidential situation and who they think is the best candidate the party can put up."

Joint Geography Field Stations To Be Considered At Meeting

The establishment of cooperative field stations for Geography Departments of the Big Ten universities and the University of Chicago will be considered at a conference to be sponsored this fall by the Committee on Institutional Cooperation, SUI Provost Harvey H. Davis announced Monday. Davis is SUI's representative on the committee.

The cooperative field stations would provide a center to which students from the cooperating institutions could go during the summer to receive instruction in mapping and field methods, Harold H. McCarty, professor and head of the SUI Department of Geography, explained.

Individual universities have tried to support field camps, but this

Steel Strike Negotiations Stepped Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiations in the 20-day-old steel strike were stepped up Monday, but it was not clear whether pressure from Washington prompted the acceleration.

A joint meeting of industry and the United Steelworkers Union was held without any appreciable progress toward a settlement. Another joint session was scheduled for today by Federal Mediation Chief Joseph F. Finnegan.

The only prior face-to-face peace talks since the strike of 500,000 steelworkers began at midnight July 14 was a week ago.

In Washington over the weekend, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell publicly rebuked both sides for their failure to sit down together and try to work out a settlement formula.

"This is no way to bargain," he said. "They cannot reach agreement unless they talk to each other."

Mitchell is serving as President Eisenhower's fact-finder in the strike.

The steelworkers struck in quest of a 15-cent-an-hour wage and benefits package. Pre-strike wages averaged $3.10 per hour. The union argued the increase could come out of industry profits without the necessity of a price rise in steel.

The company refused the demands on grounds a wage boost would force a price increase, and thus contribute to inflation.

In a delayed reaction to Mitchell's criticism, industry and the union each blamed the other during the day for prolonging the strike.

R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, said: "It will take more than mere meetings and discussions to end this strike. It will take the emergence of a real desire by the union to end the strike."

President David J. McDonald of the union said it has been "seeking genuine collective bargaining from the very start of negotiations."

GIFTS FOR ROYALTY

OTTAWA (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip received more than 90 personal gifts during their 45-day tour of Canada. The gifts ranged from paintings and sweaters to snowshoes and lacrosse sticks.

Maurice Hindus To Speak On Russia At SUI Tonight

Maurice Hindus, noted expert on Russian life, will give an eye-witness report of Russia's bid to overtake the United States in industry, science, agriculture and education in a free lecture at 8 this evening in Macbride Auditorium.

The last lecture in the series featured during the summer-long Fine Arts Festival here, the noted writer's talk will also include on-the-spot reports of Siberia — which Hindus calls Russia's Great Wild West.

The talk will be open to the public and no tickets are needed, according to Orville A. Hitchcock, series chairman.

Hindus, who has published 12 books on Russia, was born in a small Russian village and has returned to his homeland many times since he came to live in America in 1905.

FORMOSA FIGHT

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The Nationalists and Communists traded artillery fire at the northern end of the Formosa Strait Monday but apparently on only a minor scale.

A Defense Ministry communique said the exchange of gunfire was sparked when patrolling Nationalist warships sighted several Communist warships in the vicinity of the Matsus.

Nixon Greets Leaders After 5-Hour Talk

Discussions Were Full, Frank, And Friendly

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon, cheered by the Polish people at every turn, won the applause of Polish officials and foreign diplomats Monday night with a toast to peace.

The occasion was President Aleksandr Zawadzki's official reception for the vice president and Mrs. Nixon.

The reception came at the end of a day in which Nixon and Dr. Milton Eisenhower sat across a table from Poland's government and Communist party leaders and talked for 5 hours and 20 minutes, largely about their differences on international questions.

In offering a toast to Nixon, Zawadzki said the United States and Poland together had fought German militarism. He charged that "forces of revenge" still exist in West Germany.

Nixon reported during the day's talks there were many differences frankly discussed, then added: "There was complete agreement on this one issue: What happened to Poland in the last war, to Poland that suffered in two wars, must not happen again either to Poland or any other country on earth."

The crowded hall burst into applause as his remark went home. "I propose your health, prosperity and happiness and peace for the people of Poland and all the peoples of the earth."

Then he raised his glass and proclaimed in Polish: "No zdoroyeh," the classical greeting "to health," in this part of the world.

The Nixons go sightseeing Tuesday and are scheduled to fly home Wednesday morning.

Cries of "Nixon, Nixon," "Vive America" and "Live 100 years" met the vice president as he drove through the streets. It was an echo of the huge and friendly welcome the Polish people gave Nixon Sunday on his arrival from Moscow.

The vice president discussed with Wladyslaw Gomulka, leader of the Polish Workers Communist party, a wide range of world issues, including the forthcoming trip to the United States of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and a return visit by President Eisenhower.

Nixon told newsmen later he thought Khrushchev would go to the United States about Sept. 15. He said Eisenhower himself initiated the invitation to Khrushchev.

The talk with Gomulka, who was restored to party leadership three years ago in an independence-from-Moscow movement that swept over Poland, stretched far beyond its allotted time.

Also present were Premier Jozef Cyrankiewicz and Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki, author of a Soviet-backed plan for an atom-free zone in central Europe which the United States rejects.

The vice president would say only that the talk was full and frank and covered international matters as well as Polish-American issues.

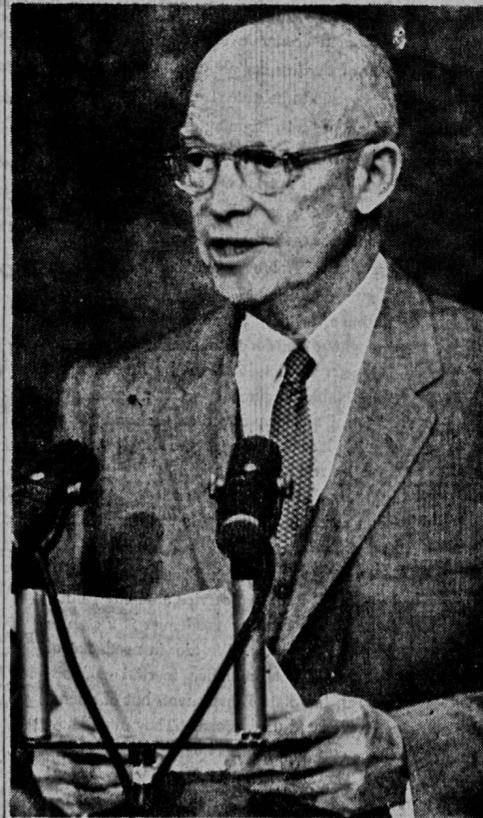

It was reported, however, that the Polish leaders had cautioned against rearming West Germany. Nixon had what were described as very friendly talks earlier with President Aleksandr Zawadzki in Belvedere Palace and with Parliament Speaker Czelaw Wycech.

On a visit to the Tomb of Poland's Unknown Soldier, where he laid a wreath honoring Polish war dead, Nixon was surrounded by a crowd of about 5,000.

Many gave the traditional Polish cheer "Live 100 years."

Family Expected To Join Khrushchev On U.S. Tour

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev, one of the Soviet Union's most traveled men, will take to America an earthly charm that partly masks the fact he is one of the toughest and mightiest men alive.

He also is expected to take along his wife, son and daughter.

The announcement of Khrushchev's decision to go to America was made at a Soviet Foreign Ministry news conference that lasted only 10 minutes. No questions were allowed.

The news caught the diplomatic corps in Moscow by surprise except for a few people who evidently had been tipped off a few hours earlier.

Although President Eisenhower pointed out the visit is not displacing a summit conference, it looked to some observers here as though it would be a meeting at the crest of the summit.

His success in bringing off the visit after so much restraint expressed by Eisenhower at earlier news conferences was looked upon here as a great coup for the pudgy Soviet leader.

To many it looked like a recovery from a somewhat troubled diplomatic year for Khrushchev.

A Scandinavian summer tour was called off because of mounting opposition in those countries.

His proposals on Berlin were not accepted by the West.

A visit to American would act as an excellent antidote as seen in diplomatic circles here.

In the three years since the Hungarian revolution, Khrushchev has traveled from one end of the Communist-run world to the other — and beyond.

He can charm farmers with his homey knowledge, ranging from fertilizer to fences.

Khrushchev is a Communist through and through but can treat it gaily as well as seriously.

Hope Visitor's Tour Will End Misconception

No Dates For Swap Set; Might Be This Fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an historic step pointed toward world peace, President Eisenhower announced Monday that he is going to visit the Soviet Union and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is coming to America.

Eisenhower officially broke the news — unprecedented in some respects and carrying potentialities that can only be guessed at — to a hurriedly called news conference.

Moscow radio, in a rare example of East-West cooperation, already was telling the world the same thing.

"This is a personal visit," Eisenhower said, "with the hope that it will do something to promote understanding and possibly progress toward peace in the world."

He spoke, too, of his hope to "melt a little bit of the ice that seems to freeze our relationships."

No dates were set, but Vice President Richard M. Nixon, homebound from the Soviet Union, said at Warsaw he expects the Red Premier to arrive in the United States around Sept. 15.

Eisenhower plans to return the visit later in the fall.

The President disclosed in passing that early in July he started the correspondence which led to the announcement.

The President gave his news in a casual manner, businesslike, without being abrupt.

In something of an understatement, he said: "I think there may be enough special interest in the matter as to justify you people taking your time to come here this morning."

He read the joint statement of the two Governments.

The statement said Khrushchev will visit Washington two or three days, having informal talks with Eisenhower. He will spend 10 days or so traveling about the country.

But before Khrushchev comes, Eisenhower will go to Europe later this month to talk things over with the French and British.

He noted in this connection: "Since I am to see the other member of the four powers that undertook the control of Germany after the war, I thought it would probably be a good thing to see the other two."

He'll also see the West German leaders, caught in the middle of the bitter battle between East and West over the future of Berlin and all Germany.

The President stressed that his trips abroad have no direct connection with any summit meeting.

Eisenhower set the time for his visit to the Soviet Union only as "later this fall" and noted specifically that fall isn't over until Dec. 22.

The chief Western Allies acclaimed the news of the exchange of visits. Diplomats at Geneva, about to end another fruitless conference over Germany, saw the visits as encouraging to peace.

The reaction in Congress was mixed, but mostly favorable.

Some typica locumtenens: Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Senate Democratic leader — "This is a type of exchange which could do much for the whole world."

Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.) — "It looks like we're again being taken in by the Russians."

Never before has a top leader of the Soviet Union come to the United States, Eisenhower, as Gen. Eisenhower was in Moscow in 1946 and got a hero's welcome.

What will happen when Khrushchev shows up poses a question of many parts, worrying members of Congress and the security officers among others.

Will what Khrushchev sees in America serve to quiet his beligerence?

Should Congress, if it is still in session, invite Khrushchev to speak to a joint session of the Senate and House?

What sort of a reception will Khrushchev get from the American people?

Eisenhower said incidents are a possibility.

"Now, we do have these uncontrolled individuals, and of course we talked about that, and they know it. We have not failed to point out this fact to the U.S.S.R. representatives, and I am certain, however, that we can control this matter," he said.

A Foreign Service Academy?

We do not need the horde of 1,500,000 Americans - mostly amateurs - who are now working for the United States overseas.

In a recent article in This Week Magazine, Sen. Stuart Symington (D. Missouri) spoke out on the same problem - that of the ineffectiveness of our diplomats in many foreign nations.

Symington points out that since the end of World War II the United States has spent nearly $60 billion in its fight to contain the growth of Communism.

There seems to be little question that the majority of our representatives abroad are sadly lacking in the ability to understand the peoples of the nations in which they are working.

Symington's move to promote the establishment of a foreign service academy similar to our three military academies is a step in the right direction.

Save Boston Common

By STEPHEN TODOR Staff Writer

The following item appeared in Friday's papers, and is quoted in its entirety. The dateline is Boston.

"The Massachusetts parking authority has seized about one-third of Boston Common by eminent domain and will break ground August 15 for a 5,000-car garage.

"The move changed title to the history-hallowed ground for the first time since December 1834, when it was purchased by the town fathers for 30 pounds."

What is this? Progress? Small-minded, petty-bureaucratic officialdom has found an answer to a parking problem.

Boston Common is now a park of roughly half a square mile, located in the heart of its venerable city. It slopes gently down from the Statehouse on Beason Hill to Charles Street.

There is not space here to review 325 years of events which have made the Common a treasury of American history.

Why should an Iowan be concerned about a Boston problem, especially if he has never been to Massachusetts?

Humphrey-No Candidate, But In 3 Primaries

MINNEAPOLIS, (AP) - Sen. Hubert Humphrey, (D-Minn.), is planning to enter presidential primaries in Wisconsin, Oregon and South Dakota in an effort to build support for the Democratic nomination, an aide said Monday.

Herb Waters said Humphrey's name would be entered in those three states.

Humphrey still refuses to declare himself openly a candidate despite formation of campaign committees in his behalf.

He said he has no thought of bypassing a primary fight in Wisconsin if he elects to run for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960.

"I'd like very much to campaign in this state in the old tradition-people-to-people, town-to-town," he told newsmen at the start of a one-day visit in Madison, Wis., Monday.

Humphrey's remarks were in reply to Gov. Gaylord Nelson's announced position that he favors a favorite son campaign to avoid a possible party split.

Humphrey said he and Nelson are good personal friends. "I assured him in politics I never get personal. I've been defeated and I've won. I'll work for a liberal Democratic platform. I'll support the party's nominee. So there'll be no danger of the party's being hurt. There may be some personal feeling, but that's the price you pay in politics."

"My decision," he said, "would be predicated upon acceptance not only here, but in areas beyond Wisconsin and Minnesota."

DES MOINES (AP) - The State Safety Department Monday renewed its request for $60,000 a year from state emergency funds to cover the cost of operating business machines which compile various statistics used by the department.

Deputy Safety Commissioner Richard Tow told the Iowa Legislative Interim Committee the money is needed because of an oversight during the 1959 Legislative session.

The statistics are used in a variety of ways by the department. The machines sort out data regarding the number of points to be assessed against individual drivers under the state's traffic point system; issue cards notifying drivers of the number of points assessed; compile monthly accident and law enforcement reports and carry out a number of other functions.

Tow explained the department had asked $205,100 for setting up a research and safety division and $241,100 for basic functions of the division of safety responsibility.

The governor lumped these two requests together, he said, and recommended a total appropriation of $362,600 annually. The Legislature gave the safety responsibility division a total appropriation of only $210,000.

Tow, contending the problem probably was the department's fault for not making its needs clearly known to the Legislature, said this left the division with virtually no funds to carry out statistical functions required by law.

No appropriation for this purpose was included in the safety responsibility askings because the department had counted on getting funds for a separate division of research and statistics, Tow said.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) - David Joseph Butler, 19, died Sunday of burns suffered July 24 in a flash fire at his parents' home.

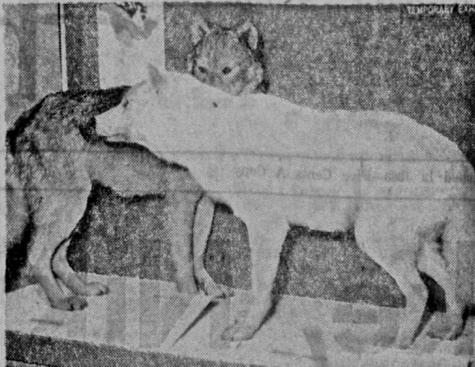

Police said his death left unanswered many puzzling questions about the fire that destroyed a storage room containing his amateur radio transmitting station.

Capt. Robert Ross, fire department arson investigator, said he believed the fire was started when the pilot light of a central heating system ignited fumes from a container of gasoline in the storage room.

But officers were unable to determine why Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Butler, was so severely burned since such flash fires do not usually surround the entire body.

Butler, clad only in shorts, stepped out of the house to investigate a noise. He said the storage room "exploded in my face" when he opened the door.

THE WHITE WOLF on the right once roamed barren prairies on Ellesmere Island in the frozen far North. Its companion in the temporary exhibition case on the ground floor of Macbride Hall is a gray wolf which was snared in northern Minnesota.

Wolves Now 'Roam' Case On Macbride Ground Floor

Live wolves have rarely been seen in Johnson County since the middle 1800s. But two powerful looking mounted specimens now dominate the main corridor of the ground floor of Macbride Hall.

On display in the temporary exhibits case of the SUI Museum, the two animals present a striking contrast in color, fur of the "gray" wolf being actually dark brown, tan and black and that of the arctic wolf a creamy white.

The large golden brown cougar which has been shown in the temporary exhibits case will be placed permanently in Mammal Hall on the third floor of Macbride Hall, according to Walter Thietje, curator of the SUI Museum.

The gray wolf, which once occupied almost the whole of North America, has been exterminated in all but the more remote areas. The SUI specimen was caught by use of a snare in northern Minnesota. Gray wolves make their home in caves, large hollow logs or holes in the ground. The average litter has six pups, which are born in March or April. Both parents, which are thought to mate for life, share in the task of rearing the young.

The Arctic wolf, which lives on the rugged prairies between the northernmost trees on the North American continent and the Arctic Sea, has smaller ears and fur lighter in color than its cousins of the more temperate zones.

SUI's Arctic wolf was shot by a hunter on Ellesmere Island, which is in the Arctic Ocean far north of Hudson Bay. Skins of both the gray wolf and its Arctic cousin were obtained for SUI through exchange with other museums and were mounted here in the Museum laboratory by the staff of the SUI Department of Museum Training.

These true wolves are distinguished from the coyote, commonly called the "brush" or "prairie" wolf, by their much larger size. A large coyote weighs about 40 pounds, while a large wolf weighs four times as much.

The SUI Museum, housed in sections of all four floors of Macbride Hall, is open to visitors from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays and holidays.

Macbride Auditorium is an exception to the "research and teaching" areas. The auditorium was remodeled with funds appropriated by the legislature and was a "package deal," said Davis, including air-conditioning as well as seats and stage.

Most SUI air-conditioning units have been paid for by grants, privately donated funds and equipment money, said Davis. Cooling units in the dormitories and the Iowa Memorial Union are exempt from university regulations because they are self-liquidating.

The most recently installed unit is the one in East Hall for research animals used by the Psychology Department.

British Palace Coldstream Guard In Hot Water LONDON (AP) - The redcoat sentry at Buckingham Palace jerked to attention, advanced three paces and planted a polished boot on the tender rear portion of a young woman tourist.

To his comrades in arms on the palace sentry - the most hated job in the British army - this made him a hero in the highest traditions of the crack regiments.

His colonel, however, decided it was conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, not to mention unchivalrous.

And the result is that the unnamed, coldstream guardsman who kicked out is confined to his barracks for the next 10 days.

The soldiers are supposed to stand still as statues before their sentry boxes, unflinchingly immobile.

This one, however, flinched with his foot.

Pedestrians Get Jaywalking Right TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) - Thousands of potted plants, trees and shrubs were moved into a four-block area of downtown Toledo Monday. Automobiles were blocked out.

The newly created "mall" is intended to test during a 45-day period the extent to which downtown traffic snarls are hurting the business of merchants.

Within the mall area which runs for two blocks on Adams Street and Madison Avenue, bounded by St. Clair and Huron, the pedestrian will be king. Because of the greenery and flowers, jaywalking will be a joy, and without automobile traffic, will hold no hazards.

Through eight archway entrances, pedestrians will enter the mall area. Promoting the project is the Downtown Toledo Associates, a merchant group.

Old Gold Development Fund Gives $28,117 For Projects

Mid-year allocations totaling $28,117 have been made by the Old Gold Development Fund to support research and special projects at SUI, officers of the fund announced Monday.

The most recent contributions bring to $131,890 the total given to SUI by alumni during the three years of the fund operation. Allocations from the fund are used to support various projects that ordinarily would not be accomplished through state-appropriated funds. Allocations are made twice a year so that gift funds may be immediately useful in the various programs involved.

The Psychology Department was awarded $1,500 to complete the second phase of a study on the nature of special ability. The study now being conducted deals with the problem of formulating test-situations and developing test-formats in order that individual variations in creative ability may be measured scientifically.

The College of Business Administration was allocated $1,500 to assist in bringing a well-known Danish educator to SUI for one semester. The educator will inform SUI staff members on the ways Scandinavian nations introduce general education courses into programs for labor and management.

A total of $11,000 was allocated for the publication of two volumes of the best writing done in the last 20 years by SUI students in the Writers Workshop, under the direction of Paul Engle, professor of English. The funds allocated were from gifts restricted to the forthcoming publication of these anthologies of poetry and fiction.

Old Gold Development Fund Scholarship funds for deserving students who do not qualify for help from other scholarships were augmented through a gift of $1,208.

An additional $1,006 was given by alumni for five other scholarship funds, including those in honor of James A. Van Allen, professor and head of the Department of Physics; Francis M. Dawson, dean of the College of Engineering; two former deans of SUI colleges—Chester A. Phillips, Commerce, and Wilbur J. Teeters, Pharmacy; and the late Hawkeye basketball coach, Frank (Bucky) O'Connor.

A special allocation of $1,800 will be used by the Department of Sociology and Anthropology to further archaeological field studies in northwest Iowa, at the site of a prehistoric Indian village some 20 miles north of Cherokee.

An award of $1,500 was given to the Graduate College to assist the special activities of leading University scholars.

The Department of Home Economics will use $1,000 to purchase equipment to establish a modern textile-testing laboratory.

The University Library was awarded $1,000 for the purchase of special and unusual books and collections.

An allocation of $1,070 was made to the President's contingency fund for the administration's use in meeting emergencies and special problems which arise in the University's operations.

Several other grants were made for miscellaneous projects at SUI. Acceptance of the fund is subject to the approval of the finance committee of the State Board of Regents.

Reasons for increased costs in addition to generally higher building costs were presented by Englehart to the eighth annual school building conference held here since World War II.

"In the Thirties we used to plan for 16 square feet of space per pupil in the elementary school. Now it's between 25 and 30 feet," Englehart said. He also pointed out that plant expansion and thus higher costs have been upped by teaching more things and by services such as cafeterias and health facilities. Englehart cautioned that planning boards should take many factors into consideration at the planning stage, including educational needs, health and safety considerations, design, site and construction factors, as well as the factor of equipment.

Speaking earlier Monday on the need for functional school plants, S. J. Knezevich, associate professor of education at SUI and co-chairman of the conference, said that not one line should be drawn for a blueprint until the space needs of the educational program are clearly defined.

School Plant Needs Listed By Official

"If school buildings don't meet the Community's educational needs fully they're expensive at any cost," George D. Englehart, president of the National Council on Schoolhouse Construction, told a two-day school building conference at SUI Monday.

Speaking on "How Much Should a Good School Building Cost?," Englehart told more than 100 school officials and architects from all parts of Iowa that economy in school buildings is achieved only by first taking the educational needs and then transferring them by careful architectural planning into the physical structure.

Englehart, director of School Building Services for the state of Missouri, listed several "musts" for good school buildings. Included were: adequate space for program and services; a sound structure whose design is attractive, interesting and pleasing; comfortable heating, lighting and sound conditions; construction of good quality material previously tried and tested; and a building that is both flexible and expandable.

Reasons for increased costs in addition to generally higher building costs were presented by Englehart to the eighth annual school building conference held here since World War II.

Charco's Damaged By $1,200 Fire

Grease was blamed for a fire at Charco's Drive-In restaurant on Highway 6 west that caused about $1,200 damage to the interior early Sunday morning.

Coraville Fire Chief Bryce Wolford said the blaze rose into a ventilating hood over one open pit burner. The fire damaged a grease filter in the hood as well as the hood. Considerable smoke damage occurred to the interior.

Officials at Charco's said the fire will force them to close for about 5 days.

Soldier Of Future Shown; Ready For Atomic War

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army put in a claim Monday to a major role in any nuclear war and showed off a futuristic soldier and electronic brain equipment as evidence.

At the opening of the annual convention of the Association of the United States Army, speakers and officials sought to counter any belief that the foot soldier is obsolete. This, they said, is a modern army.

Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Army Chief of Staff, contended a modern Army "is capable of conquering without destroying, of defending without reducing the defended area to radioactive waste."

He said armed men on the ground can exert more control than the threat of millions of tons of firepower. The Army long has been critical of the mass destruction features of the Air Force's strategic air war plans.

On hand was a soldier in the battle dress designed for a nuclear battleground and for the still more advanced era beyond 1965.

Some of this equipment already is in standard use by the Army, including clothing protection against radioactive contamination. But some of it is still in the development stage.

Among other things, the soldier wore a belt of rockets which, the Army hopes, will make it possible for him to leap from precipices and to take giant jumps over streams and trees.

Humphrey Plans New Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, (D-Minn.), plans to offer a new farm bill this week. He says it will answer Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson's complaint that Congress has never adopted a farm program he could administer properly.

"This farm bill has the support of the democratic leadership," Humphrey said in a statement over the weekend. "It will give Secretary Benson everything he needs to do the job he ought to be doing in behalf of America's farm families."

The principal parts of his bill, as Humphrey outlined them, include a plan whereby the secretary of agriculture would provide a system of marketing quotas that would be in effect when approval is voted by two-thirds of the farmers who produce each commodity.

Will Study Iowa Firms

Reasons why small manufacturers succeed or fail in Iowa businesses will be studied in a 2-year research project outlined in the current issue of the Iowa Business Digest by Clifford M. Baumback, research associate in the SUI Bureau of Business and Economic Research.

In a three-fold approach, the research project will detail the growth or decline of various small manufacturers in Iowa between 1954 and 1959, analyze the success or failure of firms in similar industries, and develop models for improved managerial decision making, the article said. The research will be done by the SUI bureau, with cooperation of economic and sociology staff members at Iowa State University, Ames.

Bus Strike Settled After 13 Months

OMAHA (AP)—A union officer said Monday that American Buslines drivers will go back to work for the same pay they were getting before a 13-month strike which idled 1,500.

Settlement of the dispute was announced Saturday by the company and the Amalgamated Association of Street, Motor Coach and Electric Railway Operators. D.E. Shreve, Omaha, president of official 1465, said drivers will return for 7.15 cents a mile, the same figure provided previously.

However, the new agreement provides for periodic increases up to 7.85 cents for the last six months of the three-year contract. The union had sought a nine-cent rate.

Shreve said mechanics will get $1.96 an hour, an increase of nine cents, and hourly employes will get three cents more.

3 Home Runs Give American League 5-3 Win

Berra Blast Pins Defeat On Drysdale

Colavito, Malzone Add Circuit Clouts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Yogi Berra's two-run homer powered the American League to a 5-3 victory over the National League Monday in the 27th All-Star game featured by five four-baggers.

Rocky Colavito, Cleveland's slugging outfielder, and Frank Malzone, Boston third baseman, also hit home runs for the Americans while Frank Robinson of Cincinnati and Junior Gilliam of Los Angeles connected for the Nationals.

A paid attendance of 54,982 highly partisan fans sat silently throughout most of the two hour and 42 minute game, an unprecedented second All-Star contest in the same season. They had a chance to cheer in the last half of the ninth when Robinson opened with a single, his third hit, and Wally Moon coaxed a walk from Cal McLish. The veteran Cleveland right-hander, however, choked off the last threat by disposing of the next three batters without a ball leaving the infield.

Jerry Walker, first of five American League pitchers who limited the National League sluggers to half a dozen hits, was credited with the victory the first time he ever appeared in an All-Star classic.

The 20-year-old Baltimore right-hander hurled the first three innings, allowing two hits and one run. He walked one and struck out one.

The defeat was charged to Don Drysdale, one of the National heroes in its 5-4 triumph over the Americans in the first All-Star contest in Pittsburgh, July 7. The big Dodger righthander was rapped for four hits in this three-inning tenure, when the Americans picked up their first three runs on homers by Malzone and Berra, the latter's in the third giving the Americans a lead they never lost.

Veteran right-handers Early Wynn of Chicago, Hoyt Wilhelm of Baltimore, and Billy O'Dell, young Oriole southpaw, shared pitching honors with Walker and McLish. Each gave up only one hit as the Nationals were unable to collect more than one in any inning.

Aside from Drysdale, the National League pitchers acquitted themselves nobly. Philadelphia's Gene Conley, who hurled the fourth and fifth innings, retired six of the seven batters he faced, with only a walk to Pete Runnels to mar his work. Sam Jones of San Francisco yielded an unearned run in his two inning stint. Elroy Face of the Pittsburgh Pirates allowed the other American League run, this one coming on a tremendous eighth inning home run by Colavito.

DRYSDALE'S FEARS were well grounded as Mantle stroked for second on the next pitch. Del Crandall's toss to shortstop Ernie Banks was right on the bag, nailing Mantle at second. The American Leaguers used the home run ball to edge the National League 5-3.—AP Wirephoto.

six hits were made by southpaw swingers. Nellie Fox of Chicago had two, and the Yankees' Mickey Mantle and Berra had one each. The other two, of course, were the home runs by the right-handed hitting Malzone and Colavito.

Unlike the first All-Star game when he shuffled 22 players around like chess men, Stengel employed only two pinch hitters and permitted shortstop Luis Aparicio, Fox and Malzone to play the entire game.

They distinguished themselves on defense with Malzone particularly outstanding at third base. He handled seven chances as the Americans played flawless ball. The Nationals on the other hand, were guilty of three errors, all in the seventh to furnish the winners with an important run.

Manager Fred Haney of the Nationals used 20 players to Casey's 19, five of them as pinch hitters and one as a pinch runner. Only Gilliam, who walked in the fifth, was successful.

Ellis Wins At Waterloo

WATERLOO (AP) — It took Jack Ellis of Oklahoma State University just three weeks to win his first golf tournament as a professional. Ellis, a 21-year-old collegian, fired a 69-66-135, to finish 9-under par, and three strokes in front of Bob Stone of Kansas City in the Waterloo Open Golf Tournament Monday.

Rain forced postponement of Sunday's activities, so the professional side of the tournament was shortened to 36 holes. Ellis and his college golf coach, Labron Harris, were tied at 69-apiece going into the final 18 holes.

While Ellis was busy carding birdies, his coach could do no better than a one-under par 71. Harris only managed a tie for third place, as Stone added a 69 to his earlier 69 for a 6-under par 138 and second prize money of $425. Ellis collected $700 in his first purse.

Rosensohn Announces Resignation

NEW YORK (AP) — Bitterness remained the keynote as Bill Rosensohn Monday severed all connection with Rosensohn Enterprises, Inc., which promoted the first Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson heavyweight title fight and held a contract for the rematch.

"I am resigning as president and director and hope to dispose of my one-third stock interest before the end of the week," the promoter announced at a press conference Monday.

Rosensohn said that last Friday, when his feud with New York attorney Vincent Vellela flared in public, he offered to sell his one-third interest to Vellela for $75,000, or buy Vellela's two-thirds interest for $150,000.

He said he set the deadline for acceptance of his proposal as noon Monday, and that Vellela "did not favor me with even the courtesy of a reply."

Vellela said he had tried to get in touch with Rosensohn, but circumstances prevented him from contacting the promoter. In any circumstances, he said, he would not buy without first having an opportunity to go over the firm's books.

The bitterness between the two partners came to light at a press conference last Friday following a meeting of the directors, meaning Rosensohn and Vellela, during which Vellela's vote elected Irving Kahn as a third director.

Kahn is president of Telemotor, Inc., which had the ancillary rights to radio, TV and movies to the first fight and has them for the second. He and Rosensohn were not on friendly terms, and Rosensohn had said he would handle the ancillary rights for the second fight himself.

Rosensohn said he hoped to remain in the boxing picture in some capacity, but he was vague as to his plans.

Hitting Crown Out Of Reach For Francona, .417 Slugger

NEW YORK (AP) — Although he owns the highest average among the regulars and has been one of the outstanding surprises of the 1959 season, Tito Francona of Cleveland has virtually no chance of winning the American League batting championship.

Francona shows a .417 percentage in 74 games. He had seven hits in Sunday's double-header against Baltimore.

However, the 25-year-old outfielder, who was acquired from Detroit last March 21 in a trade for Larry Doby, has had only 216 official at bats. This coupled with 16 bases on balls, four sacrifices and one hit by pitcher gives him 237 total appearances. To qualify for the title with the required 477 total appearances, Francona would have to collect 240 additional appearances in the Indian's remaining 50 games.

The actual batting leaders are Harvey Kuenn of Detroit in the American League and Hank Aaron of Milwaukee, in the National.

Kuenn's average is .343. He took over the top spot as Roger Maris of Kansas City slumped to fourth place at .326. Gene Woodling of Baltimore is second at .341. Nellie Fox of Chicago is third with a .332 average. Aaron moved up three points to .366. Runner-up Joe Cunningham of St. Louis is hitting .342. Bill White of St. Louis holds third place at .330.

Aaron hit five home runs putting him in a tie with Ernie Banks of Chicago at 29. Each is one behind Eddie Mathews of Milwaukee. Harmon Killebrew of Washington continues to lead the American League in circuit blows with 33. Rocky Colavito of Cleveland, who also had one, is next with 31.

Webb Wins N.W. Golf With 210

SPENCER (AP) — Jack Webb, 35, recently appointed Atlantic High School basketball coach, fired a six-under par 210 to take the 54-hole Northwest Iowa Amateur tournament in Spencer Monday.

Webb put together rounds of 72-68 — 70 to top the field by one stroke.

In a deadlock for second place at 211 were Jim English of Denver, Colorado and formerly of Red Oak, Bob Astelford of Omaha, and Sarg Fontanini of Des Moines.

Bob Leahy, defending champion and medalist, lost his touch on the last 18 holes when he needed 76 strokes, four over par, to finish in fourth place with a disappointing 213.

Jack Rule, the State Amateur champion, had putter trouble Monday, but still managed to finish with a 214.

Rule rushed to Spencer from the Waterloo Open. He never recovered from an out of bounds two-stroke penalty shot on the eighth hole in the morning rounds.

Stengel Thinks Yankee Pennant Still Possible

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Casey Stengel is putting his hopes for another American League pennant for his New York Yankees in the chance Chicago and Cleveland run into trouble.

The Yankees are now in the second division, 12 games out of first place. Cleveland is three games back of league-leading Chicago.

Casey said in an interview Sunday "What we have to do now is try and hang in there and hope that the two top clubs run into trouble. You can't tell about Cleveland. With those ball players they got they might all start fighting each other and General Manager Frank Lane might wind up fighting with Manager Joe Gordon. The White Sox have been hot but it doesn't seem they can go on that way forever."

Boston Paper Reports Jensen Will Retire

BOSTON (AP) — The Globe said Jackie Jensen will retire from baseball at the end of the season. Monday Boston Red Sox outfielder Jensen, the American League's Most Valuable Player last year, often has threatened to quit, but this time he means it, the paper quoted an informant as saying. Jensen was not available for comment.
