Meeting Today To Attempt Steel Deadlock Settlement

Talks Requested By Both Parties

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Steel workers and the steel industry's four-man negotiating team agreed Friday night to resume contract talks today at 2 p.m. (EDT) in efforts to end the 101-day nationwide steel strike.

The new round of talks were scheduled in rapid fire developments that saw both sides requesting meetings.

The union asked the industry to meet Monday. The industry replied it would like to get started today.

Both parties are under directive from the U.S. Third Circuit Court of Appeals to resume bargaining quickly.

While the negotiations were being scheduled, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell urged negotiations "around the clock until an agreement is reached."

USW President David J. McDonald sent invitations to 96 steel companies to meet with the union in Pittsburgh Monday. All were named as defendants in a government request for a Taft-Hartley injunction.

Today's talks will bring together the union's four-man negotiating team and a four-member team that has represented industry in most of the talks since they began last May.

The union's invitation Friday called for separate meetings with each of the 96 companies closed by the strike. McDonald said he still hopes to hold individual meetings with each firm Monday.

Neither the industry nor the union had any comment on a possible new proposal being submitted Friday.

The U.S. Third Circuit Court in Philadelphia directed that bargaining be resumed at the same time it stayed enforcement of a Taft-Hartley 80-day injunction. The injunction was issued in Pittsburgh last Wednesday.

The federal government requested the injunction, claiming the strike is threatening the nation's economic health and safety. The appellate court issued the directive in delaying enforcement of a Taft-Hartley injunction ordering the Steelworkers back to the mills.

A ruling on the union's appeal seeking to overthrow the injunction is expected sometime early next week.

The Philadelphia court must decide if the strike constitutes a national crisis and if that section of the Taft-Hartley Act permitting a ban on strikes is constitutional.

At issue in the strike are union demands for wage and fringe benefit improvements, and industry demands for changes in local plant work rules to effect production economies.

Steelworkers earned an average of $3.11 an hour before the strike. The walkout has shut down nearly 90 per cent of the country's steelmaking capacity. In addition to the striker's an estimated 275,000 workers in allied industries have been idled.

England's 'Beautiful' Bull Sold To London Mirror

LONDON (AP) — Farmer Will Titcomb sold his bull Friday. London's biggest daily newspaper, the Mirror, paid about $1,000 for 13-month-old Brook Mandore.

"It's wonderful news," said Mrs. Titcomb. "They came with a wagon and they've taken him away to a safe place. They are trying to get him into Luxembourg."

The Ayrshire bull was condemned by Britain's Ministry of Agriculture on the ground that he lacked the proper appearance to carry on the line. Plans to sell him in the United States ran afoul of regulations against importation of animals from areas suspected of harboring the foot-and-mouth disease.

The charge is in connection with an incident involving two girls, 9 and 11, last Saturday in Coralville. The incident occurred as Donat was working on a construction project. Ralph L. Neuzil, county attorney, said.

Charlie's Story Changed After Chat With D.A.

Original Statement Admittedly Incorrect

NEW YORK (AP) — Two big-money winners, Charles Van Doren and Hank Bloomgarden, Friday changed their original stories about their television quiz show activities. The discrepancies they admitted were not revealed.

Both men at one time claimed they were not involved in any rigging of NBC's now defunct "Twenty-One" quiz. Van Doren won $129,000 on the show and Bloomgarden $98,500.

They voluntarily returned Friday to the district attorney's office where they first made statements a year ago. Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said they made "substantial changes" in their original statements.

Hogan was asked if their amended statements indicated they had lied to his office a year ago.

"I wouldn't want to answer that question," he replied.

Asked if the two had come in to purge themselves, Hogan said: "I don't want to adopt that language."

Hogan said Bloomgarden, a 30-year-old public relations consultant, signed a statement correcting answers he gave to the district attorney's office some months ago prior to his appearance before a Manhattan grand jury.

Van Doren, Hogan added, admitted also that his original statement was not correct. As for Friday's conference, arranged by Van Doren presumably upon advice of his lawyer, Hogan said: "I think he gave truthful answers."

It was after his 1958 conference in Hogan's office that Van Doren complained: "It's silly and distressing to think that people don't have more faith in quiz shows."

Hogan would not say whether he intended to bring Van Doren and Bloomgarden back before a grand jury, for a review of their original testimony in the light of their amended statements.

"On objectives," Hogan continued, "this is a search for the truth. You remember the grand jury could not find any violation of law. There was nothing in their contracts which represented them (the TV shows) to be bona fide contests. It was in terms of entertainment."

After two hours in the district attorney's office, Bloomgarden told newsmen: "Several weeks ago I got in touch with the district attorney's office and came down and made certain statements. Today, I came back to sign the statement and to make certain typographical and grammatical corrections. I am under instructions not to reveal what I said at either time. Whatever I said must remain a secret of the district attorney's office."

Van Doren, himself, declined to discuss the matter with newsmen after emerging from Hogan's office, telling them: "I've got nothing to say."

Later Van Doren said: "I have not said I gave false answers. I will tell the whole story when I appear before the congressional committee at Washington, Nov. 2."

Tass Says Soviets Want Summit Meet, 'The Sooner The Better'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union insisted Friday the job of easing world tensions is one for the heads of Government, and announced it wants a summit meeting quickly — the sooner the better.

The Kremlin position was made plain in a statement issued by the official Soviet news agency Tass. It came at a moment when international developments in the West indicated a summit meeting might be delayed until spring.

The timing of the Tass announcement left the impression that Premier Nikita Khrushchev urgently wants a summit meeting, but that if he cannot get it this year he will take it later on.

The agency also announced Khrushchev has accepted an invitation from French President Charles de Gaulle to visit Paris. It said the date of the trip will be decided later.

Tass mentioned no proposed date for the gathering of the Government chiefs of the United States, the U.S.S.R., Great Britain and France.

The Tass statement followed by 16 hours another dispatch of the agency distributed here and then canceled, with the explanation only that it had been distributed by mistake. The earlier statement had said Khrushchev told President Eisenhower in the United States last month the Soviet Government "deems it necessary that a summit conference be convened before the end of the year."

"Conflicting reports have appeared in the foreign press concerning the Soviet Government's position as to the time of the convocation of a meeting of the heads of Government to consider urgent problems with a view of relaxing the international situation and strengthening world peace," the new statement said.

"In this connection, Tass has been authorized to state that the Soviet Government's repeatedly stated position on this matter remains unchanged. The Government of the U.S.S.R. regards a meeting as necessary and is ready for such a meeting."

"It also holds the view, expressed by other states as well, that the earlier the summit meeting is called, the better it will be for the cause of peace."

New Border Clash Erupts Between China And India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Red China's troops killed 17 Indian border policemen in a new strike in a disputed border area in north Kashmir, Prime Minister Nehru's government charged Friday night.

Three other Indians were reported wounded and an undetermined number missing from a patrol surprised by sudden, heavy fire Wednesday 40 miles or more inside India's traditional frontier.

A stronger Chinese force, entrenched on a hilltop, supplemented its rifle fire with grenades and mortar shells, but the Indians fought back, the government said, only to be overwhelmed. A few survivors have returned to their base camp.

There was no estimate of the Chinese casualties.

The Indian and Chinese government exchanged protests. While the Indian government was suppressing the story to assemble facts for a note to Peiping, the Chinese fired a note here Thursday charging the Indians with responsibility.

The action was by far the fiercest in a series of border clashes that reached crisis stage two months ago, with each side accusing the other.

Lanz Admits Action Under FBI Quizzing

No Indication Yet On Legal Proceeding

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Pedro Diaz Lanz, former head of Fidel Castro's air force, was the man who dropped leaflets from a plane over Havana, it was learned from the FBI Friday night.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation was asked whether it had made any inquiry in connection with complaints by the Cuban government that the plane which flew over Cuba had come from U.S. territory.

An FBI spokesman said Diaz Lanz was questioned in Miami Friday afternoon.

"He admitted to the FBI that he headed the flight," the spokesman said.

Diaz Lanz, the FBI said, told investigators he flew the plane and dropped the leaflets.

"He was the instigator of the whole idea," the FBI spokesman said.

The FBI quizzing of Diaz Lanz was made in connection with an investigation by various agencies of the United States government to see whether there had been any violation of federal law.

There was no immediate indication whether any legal action would be taken against Diaz Lanz.

The anti-Castro leaflets which were dropped on Cuba Wednesday bore the signature of Diaz Lanz.

He was branded a traitor by Castro after he quit as air force chief and fled to Florida.

Diaz Lanz has repeatedly described Castro as a Communist.

Diaz Lanz said at Miami during the day that he had definite information Fidel Castro "will order some bombings in different places so he can blame the United States."

The former Cuban air force chief made that statement in an interview with newsmen Dick Lobo of Miami television station WCKT.

Castro said in a lengthy television broadcast which ended early Friday that the United States allowed planes to fly from its territory to bomb Havana.

There is some question as to whether bombs actually fell from planes which showered Havana Wednesday with anti-Castro leaflets bearing the signature of Diaz Lanz.

Diaz Lanz himself would make no comment on his possible connection with the leaflets but said he had reports from Havana that no bombs were dropped.

In Havana, meanwhile, Castro appealed to the Cuban people to help him through his regime's darkest hours.

In the wake of the first bloodshed in Havana since the bearded revolutionary leader took over in January and the shakeup of the army in Camaguey, Castro called for a mass demonstration Monday by the people to show support of the revolution.

Castro made his appeal in a marathon TV appearance which drove another wedge in the widening gap of Cuban-U.S. relations. He made an impassioned accusation that the United States allowed planes to fly from its territory to bomb Cuba.

Says Housewives Can Write If They Try

DES MOINES (AP) — An Urbana, Ill., housewife who is the author of 10 successful children's books, gave some advice Friday to fellow housewives who have a yen to write.

Speaking at the Iowa Library Assn. convention, Mrs. James Ayers, who writes under the name of Rebecca Caudill, observed:

"There are thousands of housewives who want to write and can, but never do."

She suggested that they do as she did: Since 1941 she has budgeted her time, developed her talents, and produced a series of books for children.

REDS TO HEAR GERSHWIN
MOSCOW (AP) — A series of recitals of American music has been arranged by the Georgian State Philharmonic Society in Tiflis, Tass reports. The program, featuring both vocal and instrumental selections by American composers, will include excerpts from Gershwin's "Porgie and Bess."

V. I. Lenin, in "A Letter To American Workers," said, "The American workers will not follow the bourgeoisie. They will be with us for civil war against the bourgeoisie. The whole history of the world and the American labour movement strengthens my conviction. I also recall the words of one of the most beloved leaders of the American proletariat, Eugene Debs, who wrote in The Appeal to Reason, I believe towards the end of 1915, in the article "In Whose War I will Fight" (I quoted that article at the beginning of 1916 at a public meeting of workers in Berne, Switzerland) that he, Debs, would rather be shot than vote for loans for the present criminal and reactionary imperialist war; that he, Debs, knows of only one holy and, from the standpoint of the proletariat, legal, war namely: the war against the capitalists, the war for the liberation of mankind from wage slavery!

"I am not at all surprised that Wilson, the head of the American-billionaires and servant of the capitalist sharks, has thrown Debs into prison. Let the bourgeoisie be brutal to the true internationalists, the true representatives of the revolutionary proletariat! The more obduracy and bestiality it displays, the nearer comes the day of the victorious proletarian revolution."

Next we quote from an "Interview With the German Writer Emil Ludwig," (1931), which was printed in Joseph Stalin's pamphlet, "On Lenin."

"Ludwig: Marxism denies that individuals play an outstanding role in history. Do you not see a contradiction between the materialist conception of history and the fact that you do, after all, admit that historical personalities play an outstanding role?"

"Stalin: No, there is no contradiction here. Marxism does not at all deny the role played by outstanding personalities, or that men make history. In "The Poverty of Philosophy," and in other works of Marx, you will find it stated that it is men who make history. But of course, men do not make history according to the promptings of their imagination, or to whatever enters their heads. Every new generation encounters definite conditions already existing, ready-made, when that generation was born. And if great men are worth anything, it is only to the extent that they correctly understand these conditions, know how to change them. If they fail to understand these conditions and want to change them according to the promptings of their imaginations, they find themselves in the position of Don Quixote. Thus, precisely according to Marx it is wrong to contrast men to conditions. It is men who make history, but only to the extent that they correctly understand the conditions they found ready-made, and only to the extent that they know how to change those conditions. That, at least, is how we Russian Bolsheviks understand Marx. And we have been studying Marx for more than one decade."

These passages have been printed to satisfy those critics like Mr. Stern who think that this paper is censored by some bogymen from the administration. It is a pity that we cannot satisfy these critics further by insisting that we ourselves belong to the socialist party. We do not. We agree with the constitution makers that government ought to be based on the self-interest of the citizens. We think it is naive to believe that the interest of the state can generally replace the interest of the self in the citizen's mind. Furthermore, we do not subscribe to the materialist interpretation of history, and we have never observed such a thing as a purely materialist society.

At the same time, we will protect any citizen's right to say what he believes. We think that it would be a healthy thing for this campus to have an active socialist group to act as gaddy to the rest of us. But we have not come across anyone with the initiative, the strength of belief, or the 'guts' to lead such a group. If there were such an individual, we should welcome him.

To the Editor:

H. L. Mencken once characterized American journalism as being "pathetically feeble and vulgar and... generally disreputable." A daily diet of your literary meanderings has led me to the conclusion that there is scant hope of finding any Browns or Lippmanns lurking around your offices who will someday venture forth to alleviate this situation.

Of course I recognize that one must not expect too much in the way of excellence from mere college students. I suppose you must be forgiven for the generally poor literary quality of your news coverage, for the trivia and gossip with which you fill up your campus columns, for the political analyses by patriotic co-eds who equate freedom with "Coca Cola and Lux soap" and so on ad nauseum. The university is a large institution, serving many functions, the least important of which may very well be the academic. So be it.

It is highly doubtful, however, whether, when the time for reckoning comes, at the gates to the journalist's heaven, you will be absolved for the ingenious manner in which you have managed to emasculate the traditional role of editorial comment in an independent newspaper.

The writing of an editorial is, I take it, a serious business. Your editorial policy unfortunately seems predicated on the notion that intelligence is a liability. From purely pragmatic criteria alone I am unable to comprehend the utility of your running controversies over such subjects as the social perversions of law students and your added accolades to Saturday's heroics.

These journalistic sins are magnified one hundred fold on that rare occasion when you make some feeble attempt at a discussion of a serious idea.

Your recent editorial entitled "Political Party" is a case in point. Having been the host in question I am in a position to know of what and whom I speak. One would have thought that the discussion of Socialism would have been a self-justifying endeavor. It is an unfortunate but illuminating commentary on your own conception of your role here that you found it necessary to manufacture an imaginary conversation in order to justify your treatment of this issue.

More fundamentally, once having the opportunity for serious intellectual effort, you exhibited your usual inability to say something, anything, intelligent about one of the most significant issues of our time. The slightly veiled chic cynicism with which you dress up your intellectual failings is another mistake. I had always thought that cynicism was properly reserved for those who had engaged in some sort of serious intellectual or political activity. Your hands apparently have never been soiled and as a result you wear your cynical garb a little shabbily.

Since criticism should in the last analysis attempt to be constructive let me suggest a three point plan to revitalize your newspaper.

- 1. Discard all non-essential news items such as gossip columns and fraternity romances.
2. Utilize your editorial pages to develop principled positions on the major university, national and world issues.
3. Open up your pages to extended and intelligent commentaries by your readers on these positions.

I realize that the program I suggest is a drastic one but that the heavy hand of the bureaucracy is ever ready and present to slap down all attempts at independence, but until you at least make that effort your claim to serious consideration as university journalists is questionable.

Sol Stern, G 12 1/2 S. Dubuque St.

AAUN Holds Membership Campaign

Purpose Is To Inform Community About U.N.
By RAY BURDICK
Assistant City Editor

"A good United Nations is just like a good government or a good school system: the more people behind it, the better it will work," Mrs. Jean Loyd-Jones, 160 Oak Ridge, membership chairman for the Iowa City chapter of the American Association of the United Nations (AAUN) said as United Nations week drew to a close today.

"If enough of the people are aware of the issues in the UN, they can rise up and influence its actions through their opinions."

"That is why," she explained, "all the local chapters of the AAUN are emphasizing a drive for more members during this U.N. week rather than speeches and other projects."

The membership drive, which actually started Oct. 15 and will continue through Nov. 15, is headed by ex-President Harry S. Truman.

Mrs. Loyd-Jones said the main purpose of the chapters is to spread information about the UN throughout the local community, and with an informed citizenry to influence action at the UN.

She outlined the influencing process in this way: The national headquarters of the AAUN is located across the street from the UN Building in New York. The national headquarters, headed by National Executive Director Clark Eichelberger and other directors, including Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, sends information about the current issues in the UN to the various local chapters.

The chapters discuss these issues at their meetings. They try to form a definite opinion on every issue. For example, Mrs. Loyd-Jones said that at a recent meeting the Iowa City club decided that armistice talks should be carried on inside the UN rather than outside. Then, the chapter sent its decision back to the headquarters.

On the basis of all the opinions of the various local chapters, the National Headquarters formulates a statement of policy and lets UN officials know of its feelings.

Mrs. Loyd-Jones said the AAUN is very close to U.N. officials. "In fact," she said, "Mr. Eichelberger often has lunch with Henry Cabot Lodge, the U.S. delegate to the United Nations."

When asked how much influence she thought the AAUN actually had, Mrs. Loyd-Jones said a statement made by Mr. Eichelberger at a recent regional meeting best summed up her feelings.

"He said, 'We can't actually put our finger on one thing and say that on such-and-such a date we influenced such-and-such a decision, but the AAUN definitely does have an influence.'"

Mrs. Loyd-Jones said that only through expanded membership can the influence become greater.

She said she would like to see more students interested in the organization. "Many colleges have affiliate chapters of the AAUN, called the College Council for the United Nations (CCUN), which are very active. SUU has none," she said, "but one could be started very easily."

A student can obtain a regular membership in the AAUN by sending a $1 yearly membership fee to Mrs. C. M. Cos, 1 Knollwood Lane, treasurer of the organization. Non-student memberships cost $5 per year.

The Iowa City AAUN has about 100 members. They meet once a month at the Catholic Student Center. All meetings are public, and everyone interested is invited to attend.

The next scheduled meeting is Tuesday, Sol Stern, G. Brooklyn, N.Y., will speak of his experiences at the Vienna Youth Festival this summer.

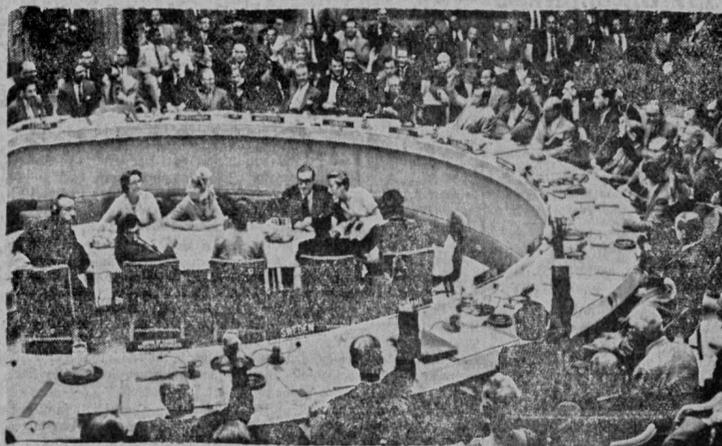

Many other events have dotted the calendar of the AAUN this UN week, including an official proclamation by Mayor Phillip Morgan, radio programs, and speakers at various Iowa City organization meetings.

James Murray, assistant professor of political science at SUU and the club's program chairman, said they had originally planned to have a major speaker during the week, but decided to wait until SUI President Virgil Hancher returns from the U.N. and ask him to speak.

Officers of the Iowa City chapter are: Willard Boyd, associate professor of law at SUI, president; Samuel Hays, associate professor of history, director; Mrs. Anthony Konstantine, director; Murray, program director; Mrs. Edna Mahan, publicity chairman; Mrs. W. W. McCrory, secretary; Mrs. C. M. Cos, treasurer; and Mrs. Jean Loyd-Jones, membership chairman.

Not Preparing For Agreement England, U.S. Ails Steel Strike, Cold War

By J.M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

Projection of President Eisenhower's picture of steel strike effects onto the world screen produces the clear implication that the nation's chief weapon in the cold war is being dulled.

Not because of its interference with construction of missiles and their bases, or for any direct effect on military defense, which is serious enough, but because it is damaging the national economy.

The Soviet Union, having the initiative in the cold war, chooses the weapons. In the beginning she chose an aggressive territorial expansionist policy backed by military strength. Now she has switched to economic warfare. Her twin objectives are to rival the United States in economic ca-

Drinkable Water Hard To Get From Muddy Mo

OMAHA — Water treatment plants along the Missouri are finding it more and more difficult to produce palatable drinking water, Dr. D. W. Ryckman of St. Louis, said Friday.

Dr. Ryckman, who is affiliated with the Washington University sanitary engineering laboratories, made this report to the Missouri River Pollution Monitoring Committee meeting in Omaha.

He told the water experts his studies showed that plants along the Missouri are not removing significant quantities of taste-and-odor causing organic materials. In fact, he said, tap water turned out by these plants in most cases contains more of these organisms than the raw river water.

In Omaha, for instance, during 1958 the average concentration of such organisms in raw river water was 33 parts per billion, but in tap water it was 38 parts per billion. Similar findings were made at six other Missouri River plants. Only at Kansas City did treatment reduce the organic concentration.

Dr. Ryckman said the increasing smell-taste problem is caused by removal of heavy solids by the new upstream dams, plus increased domestic and industrial pollution of the river.

The experts were admittedly puzzled by the findings. They had some theories to explain them but said these had not been tested.

England, U.S. May Contest Summit Delay

LONDON — Authorized informants reported Friday the British — and possibly the Americans, too — intend to contest a French inclination to delay an East-West summit meeting.

These sources said British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan intends to press strongly for a summit meeting before the end of this year, so that the momentum of East-West conciliation, the British believe to be in existence now, is not lost.

Diplomatic informants in West Germany reported French President Charles de Gaulle issued bids for a Western summit meeting in Paris. This report, along with other developments, seemed to cast doubt on the likelihood of a summit meeting before the end of 1959.

De Gaulle is pictured in Paris as holding out for a delay of the Big Four conference until spring. In the interim, as well as meeting with Western leaders, he will have talked with Premier Khrushchev, whom he has invited to visit Paris this fall.

SHIPBUILDING REVOLUTION

LIVERPOOL, England — Adm. Sir William Davis, commander-in-chief of NATO East Atlantic forces, predicts the world is on the threshold of a ship building revolution. "Definitely," he told interviewing reports, "all warships will become nuclear propelled. The strategic advantages are so staggering that it is bound to come."

Mrs. Deyo To Go Back To Face Missouri Charge

DES MOINES — Gov. Herschel Loveless has signed extradition papers for the return of Mrs. Grace Deyo, 43, to Missouri to face a murder charge, his office said Friday.

The governor's office said Missouri authorities are to come to Iowa Monday to get Mrs. Deyo, who is being held in the Cerro Gordo County jail at Mason City.

Mrs. Deyo, formerly of Ozark, Mo., is charged with conspiring with Virgil Fred Schindler, 40, of Almartha, Mo., to poison her husband, Kenneth, 42.

Mrs. Deyo came to Iowa after her husband's death last summer. She was living near Clear Lake when arrested.

Pres. Hancher Busy At U.N.

While the world observes United Nations Day today, SUI President Virgil M. Hancher is in New York as a member of the U. S. delegation to the United Nations.

Hancher's one-year appointment to the 10-member delegation was confirmed by the Senate early last month. Since that time he and his wife have been living at the Vanderbilt Hotel, where the State Department provides quarters for the U. S. delegation.

In addition to attending the sessions of the General Assembly, Hancher has been assigned to the U.N. Economic and Financial Committee. Another U.S. delegate, George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, is also a member of this committee.

The U.S. delegation is headed by Henry Cabot Lodge. Other members include Walter S. Robertson, recent assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, Rep. James G. Fulton (R-Pa.), and Rep. Clement J. Zablocki (D-Wis.).

Mrs. Oswald B. Lord, New York attorney; Charles W. Anderson, Louisville, Ky., attorney; and Erle Coker Jr., of Georgia, former national commander of the American Legion, complete the U.S. delegation.

Since the opening of the United Nations session this fall, the Hanchers have been able to return to Iowa City only during Homecoming weekend. During Hancher's absence from the campus, Provost Harvey S. Davis is serving as acting president of the University.

The Hanchers are expected to return to Iowa City in mid-December at the close of the session. Hancher will resume his duties with the University at that time but would return to New York in case an emergency session of the United Nations is called.

Schwengel: Steel Workers, Manager Not Statesmen

CEDAR RAPIDS — Rep. Fred Schwengel (R-Iowa) Friday charged both labor and management with a lack of statesmanship in attempting to settle the steel strike.

"Whenever a basic industry is given or has monopoly control, that business and all of the people associated with it, including labor, need to recognize that the public welfare must be served," Schwengel said. "That calls for a statesmanship that is apparently lacking."

The congressman from Davenport spoke to the Cedar Rapids Association of Life Underwriters. His topic was "Inflation and Our Future," which he tied in with the steel strike.

"Secretary of Labor James Mitchell, in a preliminary investigation, showed that there has been a substantial reduction in the cost of steel production in the last few years."

"This should be reflected in the cost of steel for thousands of industries that use it. They should pass reductions on to customers who use steel," Schwengel said.

WILL GIVE IT A TRY!

LONDON — A young British couple Friday won a free weekend in a nudist camp — top prize in a contest run by a local movie house.

Denis Daines, 28, a laboratory technician, and his wife, Eileen, 27, plan to take baby Angela along. "We'll certainly go," said Mrs. Daines. "In the spring I think."

"I'm not a nudist," said her husband. "I'm Church of England. But I'll try it with pleasure."

U.S. Activities In U.N. Start In 'Mission' In New York City

Most of the 82 members of the United Nations maintain separate delegation offices or "missions" in various parts of New York City which serve as base offices for their representatives in the U.N.

In these more private quarters, an individual country can map out its strategy, maintaining close touch with its home Government for instructions as things develop in the U.N. meetings.

It is in these delegations offices, rather than at the U.N. headquarters itself, that the spade work is done in preparing a nation's speeches and plans of action.

The United States Mission to the U.N. is located on two and one-half floors of a big commercial building at 2 Park Avenue. Although the mission could be termed our "Embassy to the World," it is far from being the imposing establishment one usually finds in U.S. embassies abroad.

As a New York Times reporter once said, "There are no white-gloved marines guarding the entrance, no iron gates or imposing marble columns. . . Ambassadors, assistant secretaries of state and other dignitaries must wait their turns on the crowded elevators."

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., head of the U.S. delegation to the U.N., is chief of the U.S. Mission.

Virtually everything important that happens anywhere on the international scene must be communicated not only to the State Department, but to the U.S. Mission as well. There are telephone tie-lines and telegraphic and courier services between the mission and Washington.

The U.S. Mission is in continuous contact with the U.N. Secretariat and the representatives and staffs of the other 81 member nations.

At the mission are the offices of the U.S. representatives to the Security Council, Economic and

Ratification Of Charter Brought Hope

United Nations Day today marks the 14th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations.

Desiring to officially mark that date, the U.N. General Assembly in 1947 passed an American-sponsored resolution which declared that Oct. 24 "shall henceforth be officially called 'United Nations Day' and shall be devoted to making known to the people of the United Nations and to gaining their support for the work of the United Nations."

Two historic dates are associated with the founding of the U.N. The representatives of 51 nations concluded their deliberations and signed the U.N. Charter in San Francisco on June 26, 1945.

The U.N. came into legal existence Oct. 24 of that year when the required number of ratifications had been filed with the State Department.

Thus the document which embodied the hopes and plans of people sickened and ruined by the most destructive war in history became a visible part of the organized hopes of mankind for a world which might in time achieve permanent peace.

President Eisenhower has said that the U.N. "represents man's best organized hope to substitute the conference table for the battlefield."

Low Taxes, Few Rises In Rate, Utopia? No! Nikita's Russia

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW
HTNS — London Observer Service
LONDON — The Soviet laws governing private property and inheritance have always puzzled many people. They are surprised that in a Communist land anybody is free to accumulate property and cash, and transmit them to his children. But so it is.

Furthermore, income tax is low, death duties are negligible and there is no steep rise in tax, as in the United States, Britain and elsewhere in the West, for the more successful acquisitive.

The only thing forbidden to the Soviet citizen on the make is the exploitation of private individuals of the labor of other individuals. There is no effective law about employing personal servants, or even personal dressmakers and tailors. But nobody is legally entitled to set up a dressmaking business, employing others on a wage basis and taking the profits for himself. Only the State can do this.

Until fairly recently, the absence of legislation forbidding the accumulation of private property, or its inheritance, presented no problem. There was next to no property to accumulate. Although in theory a successful man could build his own house, or houses, stuff his rooms with valuable objects and furniture, and leave the lot to his children — together with an unlimited bank balance — in practice this was not often done. Only the highest party leaders, the most successful authors, actors, dancers, scientists and engineers had the chance to accumulate, for the simple reason that there was so little to be bought.

A great many people amassed large numbers of rubles in the war years, when there was literally nothing at all to be bought; but after the postwar devaluation of the ruble those little fortunes were no more.

Today, however, with prosperity steadily increasing and embracing more and more individuals, the problem is real. One of Premier Khrushchev's growing worries is the number of young people living on their inheritances, or supported by their fathers' earnings, who will not go out and work where they are wanted. Until lately these were chocking the universities and technical colleges, and then, having their free education at the expense of the State, simply went away and offered nothing in return.

Last year's educational reform was designed to curtail this particular abuse. Now the party is turning its attention to the problem of inheritance, and particularly house ownership and the buying and selling of houses.

Two official papers, one of them Izvestia, have recently published articles written around excerpts from "readers' letters" demanding changes in the law of property and inheritance. This display of "spontaneous" indignation is a sure sign that the Government is preparing to act.

Other papers have been publishing supporting stories. The humorous weekly, Krokodil, for instance, lately printed a satirical piece about a real-life case — a Soviet speculator in property who possessed an apartment in Grozny in the Caucasus, a luxury home worth 300,000 rubles in Alma Ata, and nine other houses, also in Alma Ata, all built by him, but registered in the names of sons, daughters and other members of the family. He then made a killing, sold all these properties at a handsome profit, and quietly vanished from the scene — presumably to start up again elsewhere.

Izvestia wants — or says its readers want — more arrests and trials of property speculators. Some readers have even agreed with the proposal of a militia officer that relatives should be made to share the responsibility for crimes of the individual against public property. Others insist that private houses should not be allowed to change hands except in accordance with a uniform tariff imposed by the State.

These suggestions are wild, as any Soviet official who has ever tried to stop speculation in the Soviet Union knows very well. The real point of the letters is that they are preparing a climate of opinion for Governmental action against the unrestricted accumulation, use and inheritance of private property. That action should come soon.

Steel Strike Has A Silver Lining—If You're Optimistic

By JOSEPH R. SLEVIN
Herald Tribune News Service

WASHINGTON (HTNS) — There seems to be a bright side to every calamity — even the steel strike. It's a little like trying to salvage what you can from the ruins of a tornado-hit house, but the silver lining seekers are finding some good things to say.

They don't contend that the good effects of the steel strike outweigh the bad or that it's all for the best that there has been a strike. But they do point to a small handful of favorable consequences.

Perhaps the most important is a growing conviction among Government economists that the business upturn will last longer than would have been the case if there had been no strike.

The experts reason that demands for steel products that would have been satisfied during the summer and fall now will not be met until the first half of 1960. The result is that the boom has been stretched out.

Some automobiles and appliances that would have been sold this year, for example, will not be sold until 1960.

Business men have had to slash their inventories of steel and steel products and the cuts have released funds for other uses.

Similarly, short-term interest rates have not climbed as steeply as they would have if loan demands had been greater and the available supply of funds had been smaller. Home buyers, business men, consumers and other borrowers — including notably the United States Treasury — have benefited from the more moderate money costs.

Profits have been cut this year, but there is an excellent prospect that 1960 earnings have been enhanced.

The happiest development in the view of both the Administration and the Federal Reserve System has been a heightened public awareness of the danger of big industry granting outsized wage increases that lead to higher prices

President Eisenhower began a vigorous campaign to awaken the public to the menace of a wage-cost-price spiral last winter, but it took the 98-day strike to drive the lesson home.

If the producers and the union ultimately agree to a non-inflationary settlement, the agreement will set an important precedent that may smash the postwar pattern of an unending series of inflationary wage increases.

The silver lining seekers don't argue that the good developments will offset the lost wages, lost production, lost taxes, damaged steelown businesses and other hurtful consequences of the failure of giant business and giant labor to reach agreement through free collective bargaining.

But they think that even the collapse of collective bargaining and the demonstrated uselessness of a Taft-Hartley Act injunction threat may have a salutary effect if Congress and the country get angry enough to devise labor dispute procedures that will keep the same thing from happening again.

Loveless Plans Investigation Of School Affairs

DES MOINES (AP) — Gov. Herschel Loveless said Friday he will investigate questions raised by Austin F. McCoy and others in Centerville about a grand jury investigation of school affairs in Centerville.

McCoy presented a petition to Loveless and to Atty. Gen. Norman Erbe's office. The grand jury investigation had to do with the legality of certain school board purchases.

THE market was overdue for a technical snapback after four straight days of decline. Buyers were in the market at the start.

The market held gains until late in the day when some precautionary pre-weekend selling cut prices below their best. But later news that the steelworkers union had alerted its negotiators to stand by for possible resumption of negotiations spurred a heavy wave of buying which put the ticker tape as much as two minutes behind trading in the final nine minutes. This last drive sent prices to about their best of the day.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 7.48 to 633.07. The AP 60-stock average advanced $2.30 to $221.30 with the industrials up $4.10, the rails up $1.70 and the utilities up 20 cents. The rise was the biggest since Sept. 24 when the average gained $3.40.

Volume slipped to 2,880,000 shares from 3,060,000 Thursday. Of 1,183 issues traded, 657 advanced and 321 declined. There were 12 new highs for the year and 33 new lows.

The breadth of the advance was indicated by the presence of space age stocks, motors, oils and rails in the most-active list. American Stock Exchange prices rose on volume of 880,000 shares compared with 920,000 Thursday.

U.S. government bonds advanced while the corporate market closed mixed in routine trading. Trading totaled $5,590,000 par value on the New York Stock Exchange compared with $5,640,000 Thursday.

Another 'Evy' On TV, Talks Football—Little League Style

By MARCIA BOLTON
Staff Writer

John Evashevski, 9-year-old son of SUI's football coach Forest Evashevski, talked informally with CBS sports commentator Chris Schenkel Wednesday about football—little league style—and about his hopes to someday play quarterback for Iowa.

The conversation, taped in New York, will be used to narrate films taken several weeks ago of the Evashevski family at home in Iowa City. The films are to be shown on TV before the Iowa-Purdue game today.

John, a fourth grader at Longfellow school, worked with the TV people for about three hours. "This thing on the side of the camera showed the questions that Mr. Schenkel asked me," John said about the teleprompter. "I just answered the questions. Mother helped me with some of them," he added.

The boy had no script, so he just talked about the pictures that had been taken earlier. "Some of them show me and my dad throwing a football around in the back yard."

John said he also told about playing Little League football with the Finkbine team where he is getting an early start at quarterbacking.

The trip to New York was not John's first flying experience. He also flew to the Rose Bowl game in California last winter.

Of the sights John saw in New York, he seemed most impressed by the United Nations building which he called beautiful, but not as big as "the biggest one in town, the Empire State Building."

"One thing that did not turn out to be as much fun as I thought it would be was climbing the Statue of Liberty," he said. "I thought it would have nice big stairs, but they're only as wide as I am and they wind around and around. We climbed up as far as you could go, clear to the head."

Mrs. Evashevski, a friend of the

Rickover Gets Copyright O.K. For Speeches

WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal judge Friday upheld the right of Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover to copyright public speeches and thereby prevent their publication without his permission.

The ruling was handed down by U. S. Dist. Judge Alexander Holtzoff in dismissing a suit brought by Public Affairs Associates Inc., of Washington, D. C.

The suit was brought after Rickover said permission to quote from the admiral's speeches could not be granted because they were to be published in a book.

M. B. Schnapper, executive director of Public Affairs Press, the trade name of the corporation, told reporters Holtzoff's decision will be appealed.

Holtzoff said the admiral's speeches were not a part of the admiral's official duties. Accordingly, he said, they were his literary property and not in the public domain.

Schnapper contended that Rickover had no property rights in his speeches and that they were not subject to copyright.

KWAD To Host Dormitory Women

Radio station KWAD, the voice of Quadrangle Dormitory, will hold an open house for Burge and Currier Hall residents Sunday from noon to 10:30.

As soon as technical arrangements are completed, the station will start piping its programs to the two women's dorms.

The new station program will also feature residents of Burge and Currier as disk jockeys. Bob Erickson, program director, said the station hopes that by the weekend of Oct. 31, some of the women can be worked into rotation and serve their turn at the turntables.

Cinema: 'South Pacific' Impersonal Splendor

By ROBERT B. KREIS
Staff Reviewer

SOUTH PACIFIC. After a home run, what do you do for an encore? This show was a Broadway smash hit that ran for years, and for good reason. The book and score are among the best ever turned out by Rodgers and Hammerstein, Mary Martin and Ezio Pinza were captivating in the leading roles, and the production was stunning in virtually every respect.

In this movie version the effect is, sadly, often that of a filmed stage play. All the singing is dubbed, which is common practice in Hollywood musicals, but it is painfully obvious here because director Joshua Logan's camera is continually flush with the singer's faces.

In addition, the action is trying to slow (there is no plot development for the first hour) and the cast (except the ravishingly beautiful France Nuyen) is awkward and lacking in sparkle. The constant use of filtering does nothing for Mitzl Gaynor and Rosanno Brazzi family, and John's younger brother Tom, made the trip with him. They left early Tuesday morning, arrived in New York that afternoon, made the tape Wednesday and returned to Iowa City Thursday evening. They stayed at the Roosevelt Hotel which John described as "a very nice place."

Pediatricians Meet Here Next Week

The newly formed Central Society for Pediatric Research, composed of pediatricians from medical schools in 12 Midwestern states and in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, Canada, will meet Monday and Tuesday at SUI.

The conference will be the group's first annual meeting. More than 140 physicians are expected to attend. The Society meeting, which will begin Monday afternoon, will be preceded Monday morning by a sectional meeting of the American Academy of Pediatrics. The Academy meeting will deal with various aspects of pediatric education. Many of the new Society's members are members also of the Academy.

Dr. Samuel J. Fomon, associate professor of pediatrics at SUI and program chairman for the new group's meeting, said the Society was formed to provide a forum at which members may report on their own research and hear results of studies being conducted by their colleagues at other schools.

Members and guests will attend the Society meeting from medical colleges in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Michigan, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Iowa, and from the Universities of Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Among the 85 charter members of the Society are Drs. W.W. McCrory, C.H. Read, H.G. Cramblett, R.E. Carter and Fomon, all of SUI.

Dr. Read will present one of the 20 research papers scheduled for the scientific portion of the meeting. His paper will deal with his continuing studies of human growth hormone. The group also will conduct a business session during which the Society's first board of officers will be elected.

Speakers for the Academy meeting Monday morning will be Dean E.T. Peterson, dean of SUI's College of Education; Dr. Lee Forrest Hill, chief of pediatrics at the Raymond Blank Memorial Hospital in Des Moines; Dr. John C. MacQueen, professor of pediatrics at SUI, and Dr. Herbert C. Miller, professor and head of pediatrics at the University of Kansas. The Academy group will be welcomed by Dr. Norman B. Nelson, dean of the SUI College of Medicine.

Lions Club Meet Set For Sunday

Some 200 Lions Club members and their wives are expected to attend the annual conference of District 9-B of the Lions to be held at the Iowa Memorial Union Sunday.

District 9-B includes 49 local Lions Clubs located in communities in southeastern Iowa. The Iowa City Lions Club will be host to the conference.

A. Garland Hardy, Muncie, Ind., director of the Lions International, will deliver the main address. Scott Wegler, Bloomfield, governor of District 9-B, will also speak. Lawrence T. Wade, president of the Iowa City Lions Club, will give the welcoming address.

Wives of the Lions Club members will tour the SUI Home Economics Department, Old Capitol, and Burge Hall.

Nation's Economy Dives; First Time In 18 Months

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's output of goods and services, held down by the steel strike, dropped a bit less than one percent in the third quarter.

President Eisenhower's economic advisers estimated Friday the gross national product fell to an annual rate of 481 billion dollars in the July-September period. This was 3 1/2 billions below the second quarter rate.

It was the first downturn since the economy began its recovery from recession 18 months ago.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department said national income and corporation profits jumped to record highs in the second quarter. It noted that the steel walkout interrupted the rise in the statistics in the third quarter.

and much of the picture's color is garish and distorted.

The main fault lies with producer Buddy Adler and Director Logan in attempting to make "art" out of an essentially earthy story. The resultant lack of intimacy on the screen forcibly carries to the audience.

However, South Pacific, film version, is not without its virtues. John Kerr and France Nuyen make the Lt. Cable-Liat love story touchingly believable, and Juanita Hall as Bloody Mary repeats her stage triumph verbatim.

Cites Need For More Research On Causes Of Heart Attacks

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—What causes heart attacks?

The answer, said Dr. Irving S. Wright Friday, is not as simple as some people would have you believe.

Wright spoke at a symposium on heart disease on the closing day of the 87th annual meeting of the American Public Health Assn., summarizing reports delivered by five doctors.

He noted there is a "strong presumption" that a high level of cholesterol—a fatty substance—in the blood has something to do with heart trouble.

But some individuals have high cholesterol and do not come down with a heart attack, added the doctor.

Another area in which Wright feels more research is necessary is smoking.

The tense kind of life may have a great deal more to do with an eventual heart attack than the smoking itself, Wright suggested.

Despite far-flung individual exceptions to the rule, however, Wright and the other panelists emphasized that there does seem to be a connection between heart disease and overeating of fatty foods, excessive smoking, a tense mode of living and high blood pressure.

Graham Shuns Money Troubles In Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Local sponsors put a blackout Friday on finances of Billy Graham's evangelistic crusade just a day after asking extra gifts to bolster sagging funds.

A call for $50,000 in special gifts was asked Thursday because night collections in the Fairgrounds Coliseum have been averaging only $6,000, and the crusade budget "has been trimmed to the bone."

But shortly after the appeal for extra funds, Willis G. Haymaker, crusade director, drew the curtain on more talk about money, complaining: "There has been an over-emphasis in Indianapolis on the financial end of the crusade, and it's crowding out Billy's messages."

The executive committee, in conjunction with the crusade team, has voted unanimously to release no more figures until after the crusade ends. After the crusade ends, there will be an audit by some fine Indianapolis auditors, and every penny will be accounted for.

Meanwhile, plans were canceled for a dinner at which Graham was to have spoken to civic and business leaders Monday night.

The Billy Graham Evangelistic Assn. in Charlotte, N.C., issued a statement Thursday that it is not facing any "financial crisis." That statement issued in Graham's name, called finances of the Indianapolis crusade "encouraging," adding, "By the time we leave, all bills will be paid."

tor. Obviously, he said, there are other, unknown factors in the makeup of these persons that tend to neutralize the cholesterol.

High blood pressure is still an other example. Most medical men will agree that hypertension is a contributory factor in cases of heart disease.

But Wright, a professor of medicine at Cornell Medical School, told of one of his patients who has had 240/130 for the past 15 years.

Moscow Line On Offensive In Fashions

HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—May Paris tremble—Moscow is on the offensive on the fashion front.

Six beautiful, shapely Russian models appeared Friday, dazzling Finns and outshining full-size polished Sputnik models.

A fashion show from Moscow's cooperative department stores was the hit of the opening of the fourth Soviet industrial exhibition here.

Rarely has the Western world seen such Soviet beauty at an official exhibit of this type. The models themselves seemed quite surprised at the success of the fashion show.

The favorite was a petite model named Tamara. She wore a low-cut, snow white dress studded with pearls.

A tall, slim girl named Mila was appealing in a steel-gray sheath evening gown with a short Persian fur cape to match.

Another favorite, named Marina wore a frilled evening gown called "The Waterfall."

The models also showed Soviet sports fashions.

After the fashion show, guards had to surround the models to protect them from swarms of enthusiastic Finns.

Little attention was paid to the Sputnik models or to the new nine-seater Ziz sedan.

The exhibition was opened by Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan in the presence of Finnish President Urho Kekkonen.

Everything was white—symbolic of the innocence of the five tiny girls who lived less than a day.

The doll-size white caskets were lowered into separate graves on the breeze-swept church cemetery just outside this small central Texas City.

On each side was a tiny spray of white flowers with the girls' names—Deborah Lynn, Janet Lee, Karen Denise, Melissa Jane and Suzanne Kay.

They were born at Lackland Air Force Base Hospital, San Antonio, Tuesday afternoon, the daughters of Lt. and Mrs. Charles G. Hannan, natives of this area.

The babies died within 18 hours. They were three months premature and too undeveloped to survive.

Dr. Moeller Gives Nurse Home Advice

The patient in a nursing home should be given the opportunity to maintain his individuality even while participating in group activities. This is one of the points made in an article giving advice to nursing home operators in a recent issue of the bulletin "Adding Life to Years."

By Dr. William S. Moeller, SUI associate professor of psychiatry and supervisor of out-patient service at the SUI Psychopathic Hospital, the article appears in a supplement to the bulletin, which is published by the SUI Institute of Gerontology.

In discussing the physical surroundings of the patient, Dr. Moeller suggested treatment in a nursing home in preference to a hospital, when possible, because nursing homes can theoretically approximate normal surroundings more closely.

To insure good medical care, Dr. Moeller said he believed the home must have a physician, either for the group or for individuals, who comes regularly for interviews and examinations. He advised nursing-home supervisors to take advantage of consultation through the SUI Psychopathic Hospital or other institutions if needed and possibly to retain a specialist to collaborate with the home's general physician.

Other suggestions he offered relative to the physical surroundings of the patient included providing an opportunity for occupational and recreational projects, continuing spiritual contacts for the individual, putting him in a home in his own community, and keeping the home small. Patients should be selected to provide a good spread and a high degree of compatibility with one another, Dr. Moeller explained.

When patients find themselves helping in meeting each other's needs, they tend to become more compatible, he added.

He explained that an intensive, thorough study of the patient's past and personal life should be made, in order to understand his likes, needs and fears.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The consumer's dollar lost about a third of a penny's worth of buying power last month as the cost of living mounted to another record peak.

The Labor Department's index for September, made public Friday, showed a rise of three-tenths of one percent in consumer prices. It was the fifth increase in six months.

All major costs of city families rose except transportation, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said. The index stands at 125.2 per cent of the 1947-49 average. The previous high was 124.9 in July.

Some 1.2 million workers gained pay boosts under self-adjusting wage contracts intended to keep pay in line with changing prices.

These included 850,000 railroad workers who will get a three-cent hourly increase under contracts adjusted semiannually; 370,000 electrical equipment and aircraft workers whose quarterly adjustment is worth about one cent an hour on the average; and 16,000 others who will receive two cents an hour more.

The bureau's price chief, Hersey S. Riley, said part of the price rise was seasonal. He rejected a reporter's suggestion that inflation was creeping again.

But there seemed to be at least an even chance that the index for October would show another increase. This report will be completed a month from now.

Auto and fuel prices are due to be higher. The Oct. 1 increase in the federal gasoline tax alone is sufficient to raise the entire index by one-tenth of one percent.

On the other hand, food prices—representing about 30 per cent of the average city family's budget—are due for a seasonal decrease. In September they went up three-tenths of one percent.

Transportation costs were down two-tenths of one percent because of bigger discounts on 1959 model cars. However, the price of used cars rose 1.1 per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Extreme turbulence during a thunderstorm was blamed by the Civil Aeronautics Board Friday for the crash of a Capital Airlines plane in Maryland last May 12, killing 31 persons.

The board's report criticized Capital radio dispatchers for not passing along storm warning data to pilot William C. Paddock and his crew, who died with 27 passengers.

The airline said in a statement issued Friday, however, that it considers its dispatcher used sound judgment in view of prevailing conditions.

Dispatchers were quoted as saying they thought the storm was abating and that Paddock would have no trouble finding a path through the line of scattered thunderstorms.

The board said its investigation showed no evidence of fire or explosion aboard the New York-Maryland Viscount turboprop before it fell in flaming pieces near Chase, Md., northeast of Baltimore. There also was no evidence of mechanical failure.

The report said that while the airliner may have been struck by lightning "it was conclusively established that there was no significant damage to the aircraft as a result of a lightning strike."

PRaise BRITISH MISSILE BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—Britain's ground-to-air Bloodhound missile is "better than anything of the type developed in the United States," Air Chief Marshal Sir Thomas Pike said Friday.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's output of goods and services, held down by the steel strike, dropped a bit less than one percent in the third quarter.

President Eisenhower's economic advisers estimated Friday the gross national product fell to an annual rate of 481 billion dollars in the July-September period. This was 3 1/2 billions below the second quarter rate.

It was the first downturn since the economy began its recovery from recession 18 months ago.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department said national income and corporation profits jumped to record highs in the second quarter. It noted that the steel walkout interrupted the rise in the statistics in the third quarter.

New Annual Indicates More Job Opportunities Available

The recruiting picture for 1959-60 promises opportunities for more people in more varied fields than ever before, according to the new edition of the College Placement Annual, being released at this time by Helen M. Barnes, director of the SUI Business and Industrial Placement Office.

The annual is an official, non-profit publication listing the job opportunities normally made available by the more than 1,700 participating companies. SUI is one of nearly 600 colleges and universities throughout the United States and Canada where the publication is distributed.

Copies of the annual are available at the Business Industrial Placement Office, 107 University Hall.

In 1959-60, as in most recent years, engineers are in greatest demand among the recruiters. About two-thirds of the companies listed in the annual are interested in hiring some type of engineer, and cumulative totals show more than 3,600 company openings for engineers of various types.

Mechanical engineers, for the third year in a row, are most requested, with approximately 800 companies listing openings for them. The twin specialties of electrical and electronic engineering are close behind and the third most requested is the chemist. The number of companies offering openings for chemists rose from 396 in 1959 to 672 this year.

Job opportunities in other fields include selling, 613 requests; accounting, 516; chemical engineering, 472; and business administration, 459. The demand for industrial engineers dropped from 481 last year to 431 this year.

Smaller in number but reflecting changing occupational trends, the number of firms seeking mathematicians grew from 177 to 183. In all, 236 occupations are either referenced or cross-referenced in the annual.

Examining the openings and opportunities for women graduates, the annual, for the first time this year, contains a special listing of nearly 600 firms which offer professional employment to women. The job opportunities offered include accounting, aerodynamics, aero engineering, probation work, land law examination, and dentistry.

Articles in the opening section of the annual give tips on all aspects of recruiting and job-hunting, including writing resumes, interview do's and don'ts, and training programs. Others offer hints on self-analysis, making job decisions, and ways to use the placement bureau, as well as a special article offering advice to women.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The consumer's dollar lost about a third of a penny's worth of buying power last month as the cost of living mounted to another record peak.

The Labor Department's index for September, made public Friday, showed a rise of three-tenths of one percent in consumer prices. It was the fifth increase in six months.

All major costs of city families rose except transportation, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said. The index stands at 125.2 per cent of the 1947-49 average. The previous high was 124.9 in July.

Some 1.2 million workers gained pay boosts under self-adjusting wage contracts intended to keep pay in line with changing prices.

These included 850,000 railroad workers who will get a three-cent hourly increase under contracts adjusted semiannually; 370,000 electrical equipment and aircraft workers whose quarterly adjustment is worth about one cent an hour on the average; and 16,000 others who will receive two cents an hour more.

The bureau's price chief, Hersey S. Riley, said part of the price rise was seasonal. He rejected a reporter's suggestion that inflation was creeping again.

But there seemed to be at least an even chance that the index for October would show another increase. This report will be completed a month from now.
