

Speaks Against Force, Asks Understanding

Non-Alliance Called Block To Settlements

Says West Defines; Eastern Mind Shades

By SANDRA LEHMAN Staff Writer

The doorway to understanding between the East and the West is being opened wider and wider, Madame Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit said, although non-alliance is still a stumbling block to the understanding of India.

"It is not so bad to remain un-allied if others understand what it is all about," she said. "Understanding is difficult because of the difference of the eastern and the western minds."

The western mind defines situations in terms of black and white, good and bad, and jumps to conclusions, she said. The eastern mind sees in grays, it sees shades, and shades within shades. Things are not wholly good or wholly bad.

India will not form an alliance with any country, Madame Pandit said in her lecture Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Main Lounge, Iowa Memorial Union. In the United Nations, instead of joining a block, India will decide on each situation on its merits as it comes up, she said. India thought if she stood aloof then perhaps she would bring the division of the world together, but people misunderstood.

People misunderstood because of the differences in the concept of democracy by India and the way a prosperous country like the United States defines democracy, she said.

"India thinks of democracy in terms of necessities — food and shelter," she said. "When these basic problems are solved then India will think of bigger things. As India develops then her concept of democracy will change according to her need."

"Western values must be simulated with Eastern ideals," Madame Pandit said. She said that the cartoons and comments in the United States papers show how little we understand India.

"Now is a moment of crisis in our lives," she said concerning Chinese aggression. "It is the gravest crisis which has faced India since her independence. This is the reason why no action has been taken. We do not believe in hasty action. Our views have to be discussed before open conflict."

"India has struggled to live by ideals and principles and understanding," she said. "India hopes that these will become the principles by which the world will live by. These principles are not new, but the principles of the Bible and the Sermon on the Mount."

"If India must resort to force then it will be the saddest day in India's history. We want your understanding now," she pleaded, "not when we must get up and fight. We must try to create understanding and tolerance of those things which we don't understand."

"In our different ways, we are peculiarly alike," she said. "With a little more understanding we can create a road on which all people of the world can walk without fear."

"India of today is not the result of one nation but the result of all nations who have enriched her and strengthened her. She is the result of many things, not just one straight design. The strength of the United States also has been due to many influences."

The single greatest influence in India's crusade for freedom was Gandhi, Madame Pandit said. He, for the first time in the history of India, stirred the minds of the common people of India by using the language they easily understood.

Mrs. Pandit: Won't Submit To Red Force

By ARUN K. CHHABRA Staff Writer

Mrs. Vijay Lakshmi Pandit, former ambassador to the United States from India and sister of India's Prime Minister Nehru, declared, "India shall not submit to the use of force by Communist China nor shall she abandon her rights and sacrifice her principles."

Speaking at a press conference held in the Pentacrest Room of Iowa Memorial Union, Madame Pandit said, "The present dispute between India and China does not concern a piece of land here and there, but it is a very crucial challenge to India's sovereignty over some 44,000 square miles. This challenge shall be met by the Indian people and the Government in the way it deserves."

Tracing the history of the present dispute, Madame Pandit told reporters that though the present situation became more menacing after the unfortunate Tibetan episode, Chinese attacks on the Indian border originated much earlier, particularly in the North Eastern Frontier Agency area in Assam.

The present border between India and China was set in 1914 between the representatives of India, China and Tibet under a treaty named after the British representative MacMohn.

Madame Pandit explained that at the Bandung Conference in 1951 and also at a meeting in Delhi, Prime Minister Nehru brought the border question to the notice of Chinese Premier Chou En Lai by pointing out certain Chinese maps which showed some part of Indian territory as Chinese.

She said at that time the Chinese Premier tried to allay the fears of the Indian Government by saying that his Government did not get time to correct these maps. Now to substantiate their claims, Chinese forces have entered 40 miles within the Indian border, she said.

Madame Pandit, now India's High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, said that though her country was pledged to peaceful methods, India would not tolerate any encroachments of her territory.

Remoteness and difficulties in transportation together with her preference for peaceful methods are some of the factors, according to Madame Pandit, that keep Indian forces from taking any strong action, against the intruders in her land. She ruled out any possibility of war and discontinued the suggestion that Russia had anything to do with the situation.

When asked to explain demonstrations by some Indian students against Krishna Menon, the defense minister of India, for his silence on this important issue, Madame Pandit admitted that Menon was facing a very angry and hostile press.

Praised the United States for generosity to the under-developed countries of Asia.

Said family planning has been readily accepted in India.

Expressed her satisfaction with the pace of progress in India.

Powerful Play—

'House Of Bernada Alba'

—Lyrical Scenes Best

By RICHARD POWER Daily Iowan Reviewer

In brave defiance of the chilly grip of a midwestern winter, the Studio Theatre last night presented "The House of Bernada Alba" by Federico Garcia Lorca, a play of a more torrid clime and culture.

A hot-house plant of a play it is, forced out of the frustrations and jealousies of a houseful of women, confined behind the whitewashed walls of a Spanish village, their contact with the outside world limited to an awareness of the lustful yearnings of the men who ride by to the harvest-fields. A play of great power, at once lyrical and harshly realistic, its theme is not only the frustration of youth and the senses, but the rot at the core of a static authoritarian society.

What could have been more remote from its Studio Theatre audience? In a country where authority comfortably eludes definition and where people are given their greatest measure of freedom at an age when they rarely know how to cope with it? Yet, last night's audience valiantly tried to bridge the gap and succeeded in enjoying a worthwhile production.

It was also an ambitious production and occasionally beyond the capacities of a cast which had its share of bad luck in the way of illnesses. Somewhere in the course of the play, La Poncia, the Iago-like housekeeper, observes that in every room of the house there is a thunder-storm, which some day will break and carry the whole household with it. For most of the play, that thunder-storm was a very distant rumble indeed.

The causes are various. One may have been the Studio Theatre, which did not seem quite right for

Regents Give Approval To Utilities Plans

Recommendations for renovating and improving the production and distribution of utilities on the SUI campus were approved Thursday by the State Board of Regents during their November meeting.

The recommendations were made by the Stanley Engineering Company, Muscatine, which has been surveying SUI's utility problems as the first step in the renovation program for which the 58th General Assembly recently approved $2,019,500.

How to provide, purify and store the one to two million gallons of water now used daily at SUI was considered in a series of studies.

The Regents agreed that SUI should give serious consideration to building a new water plant to provide increased capacity and more modern methods of treatment, since it is not feasible either to undertake repair of the present water plant building — part of which has settled badly — or to modify several wells presently supplying cooling water to make it possible for the wells to provide water safe for drinking.

The Regents approved a recommendation that SUI should proceed with plans to build a 750,000-gallon elevated storage tank north-east of Iowa Stadium at an estimated cost of $242,000 to provide needed water storage facilities for use in meeting peak demands for water, which now force the water plant to work beyond its rated capacity.

The Regents also approved recommendations covering the installation of equipment costing $41,000 to permit two of the SUI power plant boilers to burn gas, rather than coal, during half to three-fourths of the year, at an estimated annual fuel saving of $25,000.

The claustrophobic atmosphere of the play, with its open stretches of stage across which the dialogues of the daughters lost their suppressed force. Another may have been the acting, which at times was too subdued, especially on the part of the daughters.

The play seemed to call out for the building up of tension by a repression which would find its outward expression in lack of movement. The outbursts of sudden passion would then have seemed all the more violent by contrast.

There seemed most of the time to have been too much movement, resulting in a diffusion of tension. Exceptions to this were the scenes in which La Poncia, who was most capably played by Miss Connie DiLillo, served as the focus of the action. The movements were all the more obtrusive because the daughters moved with a New World agility at the expense of Old World grace, in other words, like women accustomed to freedom.

Mrs. Clara Reinhart (who took the part of Bernada Alba at short notice) exercised a benign authority which lacked enough bite to make the oppression of her daughters credible. If she can bring this quality to later performances she may go far towards providing the hard center which last night's performance lacked.

The scenes that were good were the quiet lyrical ones, that in which the harvest workers go past singing, or that magical scene in which the old half-crazed Maria Josepha, beautifully played by Miss Bea Gardner, adds a poignant undertone to the climax.

The play is directed by Shirley Ahren. It will run through Saturday.

Cheating Report Prompts Survey —

SUI Departments Plan Little Change In Testing

By NAOMIE HAGGE Staff Writer

SUI departments contacted by The Daily Iowan do not plan any major changes in administration of examinations after a report on cheating was recently released by the Student Responsibility Committee of the Student Council.

The Student Responsibility report is a 93-page study done by the committee on cheating in the College of Liberal Arts during the first semester of last year.

The report said that at least 15 students were observed cheating during final examinations that semester and that 42 of 200 students who filled out a questionnaire admitted cheating on exams during the semester.

Several faculty members expressed concern with the problem of cheating and described the special care and precautions taken during examinations in their departments.

Opinions were expressed by the faculty members, who are instructors of large classes, core course chairmen, and heads of departments.

Allan G. Bogue, associate professor and chairman of the History Department said, "We're very concerned with the problem and have taken special care this year to see that new members of the department know the steps to be taken in controlling cheating. We also endeavor to proctor our examinations rigorously."

Lane Davis, associate professor of political science and instructor of American Government classes, said, "We do not use multiple choice examinations and I have not seen anything that looked like cheating this year."

"In the past those we've caught cheating were given F's or turned in to the Dean's office, depending upon the situation."

"We had no problem last year, as far as we knew, and the size of examination groups is smaller this year."

"I'm very much in favor of a student honor system for examinations."

John C. Gerber, professor of English said, "Our situation is somewhat different from that in other core courses."

"Our exams are the essay type and students are all proctored by their own instructors in small groups."

"There certainly isn't the opportunity to cheat with these exams as there may be with others."

Jerry J. Kolros, professor and chairman of the Zoology Department said, "Our practice during examinations is to provide alternate exams and to use a system of alternate seating. And, we certainly have someone available as a proctor."

J. Richard Wilmet, associate professor of sociology and co-chairman of the social science core courses, said of his department: "We attempt to take precautions all the time: new examinations, alternate seating, and proctoring. We also compare the results of large scale examinations with those taken in smaller groups."

"When we suspect that there might have been copying, we compare the papers of the suspected students."

"During an examination, we feel it is much better to move the student we feel is being copied from, rather than move the student suspected of cheating. This doesn't create a scene or disturb the exam."

"Our students show quite a consistency of performance; their grades on discussion quizzes tend to be consistent with those they receive on large scale examinations."

"If the attitude of teachers becomes one of suspicion toward everything a student does, this destroys the function of a teacher."

"I'm optimistic about students. I think that there are more students who work for their grades than there are who look for devious means."

Union Terms 30-Cent Hour Package 'Old'

Industry's Cooper Calls Proposal Fair Offer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The industry disclosed Thursday a new offer to end the long labor dispute with the United Steelworkers Union. The union rejected it as "something only a company - controlled union would accept."

R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, said the offer would mean a 30-cent hourly package over a three-year period. He said it also tempered industry demands for more say over working conditions.

USW President David J. McDonald called the proposal a rearrangement of "the same old package offered by industry Oct. 17." He said the new proposal would mean a gain of 24 cents an hour over the three years.

Referring to the work rules issue, McDonald said: "The only changes are a stay of sentence in the same old attempt to deprive steelworkers of hard-won gains and protections."

On the basis of company estimates, the new proposal represents an increase of six-tenths of a cent an hour over the 29.4 cent hourly package the industry submitted Oct. 17 in a proposed three-year contract.

Cooper said the proposal was a "fair offer to do what can be done and still keep within noninflationary bounds in the cost of steel production."

The offer was made during secret negotiations that began shortly after a 116-day nationwide strike of 500,000 steelworkers was halted Nov. 7 by an 80-day Taft-Hartley law injunction.

Under terms of the injunction workers will vote by secret ballot on the last company proposal. The National Labor Relations Board will conduct the election between Jan. 5 and Jan. 20.

Unless the industry improves its current proposal before Jan. 5 this could be the offer the workers will vote on. They will be free to renew the strike after Jan. 26.

McDonald said the industry proposal was actually put on the table last Sunday. He said the offer was rejected by the union's 33-member Executive Board the same day.

The industry proposed that the work rules issue be turned over to a committee that would have equal industry and union representation.

The committee, under terms of the proposal, would have until June 30, 1960, to resolve the issue. After that, if a solution is not found, the issue would go to binding arbitration.

The new proposal was submitted by 11 firms making up the steel companies coordinating committee.

The proposal also calls for the companies to take over the entire cost of health and life insurance that is now paid for jointly by management and the workers.

About the insurance McDonald said: "Here they have substituted for their major-medical proposal an offer costing the same amount to provide life insurance and sickness and accident benefits, leaving the employee paying half of the cost of the far more expensive hospitalization and surgical insurance."

Band To Honor Herky Hawk Creator Saturday

The man who created Herky the Hawk will be in Iowa City Saturday to watch the SUI Marching Band tell the "Herky Story" in the half-time presentation at the Iowa-Notre Dame football game.

Dick Spencer, III, an Iowa alumnus and former instructor in the SUI School of Journalism who created Herky in 1948, will receive an honorary I blanket from SUI athletic director Paul Brecher during the half-time show.

Spencer, now a resident of Colorado Springs, Colo., is editor of The Western Horseman magazine.

The 12-piece SUI band, under the direction of Frederick C. Ebbes and Thomas L. Davis, director and assistant director, respectively, will run through five formations and play seven songs while telling the story of Herky's creation.

The music will include "Say it with Music," "Who," "Pretty Baby," "Rock-A-Bye Baby," "My Hero," "Boo-Hoo," and "Blues in the Night."

The SUI Marching Band has performed at each of the Iowa City football games and traveled to Madison, Wis., for the Iowa-Wisconsin game. Saturday will mark their last performance for this year.

Kennedy will hold a press conference and will give a brief address at a public reception in the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday. The reception will be sponsored by the Johnson County Democratic Central Committee and the SUI Young Democrats.

He will be the guest of Gov. Herschel C. Loveless at a private luncheon and at the Iowa-Notre Dame game Saturday.

'Compulsion'

—Rated Best

By ROBERT B. KREIS
Daily Iowan Reviewer

"COMPULSION." The Leopold-Loeb case has proved continually fascinating since 1924. The result of Clarence Darrow's defense of the boys was life imprisonment, and the background and events of both the murder and trial, along with Lindbergh, Garbo, and Ruth, seem to be among the most treasured memories of the era. This film is, in all ways, a superlative account of the case, and in terms of dialogue, camera work, editing and performance, ranks with the best domestic films of recent memory. Richard Fleischer's tight, pointed, yet subtle direction draws fine performances from Bradford Dillman and E. G. Marshall, and an uncomfortably comprehending portrayal of Leopold by Dean Stockwell, Orson Welles appears as Darrow and dominates the final reels. Don't miss "Compulsion."

"HOUSEBOAT" stars Cary Grant as a widower with many small children, and Sophia Loren as a masquerading governess. The title gives the locale of the action, and the plot should be obvious. Unfortunately, so are the dialogue and situations, and the concept of fatherly weakness projected by Grant seems, to me, in bad taste. Played for laughs, the film achieves very few, and I found the moppets generally unattractive. "Houseboat" can be classed as inverted family entertainment.

"REMARKABLE MR. PENNY-ACKER" is also a family film. About two rather large families, as a matter-of-fact, and all the children were "fathered" by Clifton Webb, in the title role. Somehow he managed to keep the families separate for years, but finally the news leaked out, providing dramatic conflict. Sadly, this comedy doesn't come off Tomorrow, SUlowans, is your last chance of the year to lose "On Iowa" in the stadium. But don't fret — basketball will soon be here.

There has been talk of boosting Gov. Loveless as a 1950 "favorite son" candidate. Let's have a solid Iowa ticket and run Herky for veep!

Campus Landmarks No. 8: The two boulders guarding the east approach to Old Capitol. One was hauled to the campus in a wagon by the class of 1870 and the other rolled onto the lawn by the class of 1880. Many students perch atop the 1870 boulder in warm weather, but the 1880 stone is too tall to climb comfortably. Wonder if SU1 males could be torn away from the pubs long enough to accomplish such a feat now?

Query of the Week: First it was Charlie, now Dick Clark. Who's next—Captain Kangaroo?

SUI really has an "All-American" football team. Seventeen states and the District of Columbia are represented by the 50 players listed in the football program. The breakdown is: Illinois, 9; Michigan, 8; New Jersey, 4; Ohio, South Dakota and Nebraska, 2; and District of Columbia, Missouri, New York, Massachusetts, Washington, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Wisconsin, California, West Virginia and Minnesota, 1 each. It seems strange, but IOWA has contributed the most players—12.

There is a dry cleaning establishment serving Udder University students in Ames called Hawkeye Cleaners. Is this wishful thinking? Or is it what psychologists call "identification"?

A second Renaissance is coming to Iowa City. And with it, a "rebirth of Unionizing"?

Pre-Summit Discussion Trend Shows

By The Associated Press
Three things occurred Wednesday to indicate the trend of discussion which will take place during the next several months before a summit conference.

The Soviet Union reiterated that it didn't intend to try to throw anyone out of West Berlin, but repeated its threat to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany unless the Allies agree to get out.

Dean Acheson, former American secretary of state, described the kind of negotiations the Soviets want as dangerous and a possible cover for Allied surrender.

Great Britain assured West Germany that her willingness to talk about limiting armed forces and the Berlin problem did not mean she was entertaining any idea of military disengagement in Central Europe.

Acheson was one of the prime movers in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which the Soviet is trying so hard to scuttle. He now takes his stand beside German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and French President Charles de Gaulle, against the British belief that talk in itself is a help, and against the agreement of the United States to go along with the British although less firmly convinced of the negotiation's value.

On the point of disengagement, the United States has only recently reiterated that planned troop cuts do not have anything to do with her firm intent to keep her divisions facing the Reds in Germany.

The developing West German army and the proposals that Britain and France are sufficiently strong economically to assume more of the military defense burden are not directly concerned.

we looked around, taking in the gleaming centaur on the wall, the black piano, the bongo drum, and the paintings. music was being piped in from somewhere: TALES OF THE VIENNA WOODS . . .

a young man in an army shirt was sitting at a black table, typing up a menu. the army shirt was splashed with oil-paint. he said: —this machine types in back-hand. it's like italics. you know, i haven't slept in three nights. sometimes i wonder why i'm in school. i have a part-time job, too, besides this one. but it's worth it, i suppose. anyway, the place is in shape, and we're going to open on time, tomorrow night at eight.

he raised his voice: —john, is this VIENNA OR PUMPERNICKEL supposed to be crossed out here?

—put down: IF WE HAVE IT, mr. beardsley answered. and then turning again to us, he said:

—we'll be serving coffee and cold sandwiches and pastries, and spiced cider and hot chocolate. i have no idea of making this a group place, you understand, that is, anyone can come here, beats, if there are any, or frat boys: it makes no difference. we're not trying to emulate los angeles or san francisco. this is iowa city: it has its own rhythm, its own mood.

—you might find a bearded beat lying on the floor some afternoon, the boy in the army shirt said. who can tell?

mr. beardsley frowned slightly. —i think everything'll work out . . . oh, this is mr. jerry morris. our cook, you might mention him. a boy who'd been cutting cardboard looked up. —i'm not beat, he said. i'm just a kid from Waterloo.

the boy in the army shirt said: —i would prefer to be nameless.

the finance office is after me. mr. beardsley said: —actually there are four of us here. we have another part-time owner, who's incognito. later on we're going to have waiters who can sing folk songs or play the guitar. that type of thing. come in here, into the hi-fi room.

we followed him into the hi-fi room, an enormous wide window looked out on south clinton street.

—you can sit up here and see everything that's going on in town, and even who's going into Kenney's.

—it's great, we said. —we think it may BECOME great, mr. beardsley said.

we noticed the turntable, which was revolving. there seemed no way to shut it off.

the boy in the army shirt came in from the other room, holding a menu:

—it doesn't shut off, he said, smiling, it runs all the time. we'll be open all night, or as long as there's business . . . look, down there, the ice is melting, it seems to be thawing.

—man, like, it's spring, we said. as we left, we saw a rather lovely nineteenth century tintype on the wall, someone had lettered: I LIKE PROUST on the glass. it was fine: it was great, it was like feelinghetti through the broad end of a brass megaphone. it was like a glimpse of the bay bridge, through the fog, it was . . . well: 130 1/2 south clinton, above the old MODE O DAY . . .

THE ADDRESS OF MADAME PANDIT, delivered last night in the Iowa Memorial Union, was recorded for presentation next Tuesday at 8 p.m. Remarks made at her press conference prior to the formal talk will be reported on CUE, tomorrow morning.

TRIO WILL BE HEARD, an unusual occurrence of a Friday, because of Offenbach's brevity in treating with La Duchesse. Starting time is 9:10 p.m. with Shorty Rogers and his Giants, Eddie Gomez and her Midgets, and Lee Morgan and some jazz musicians of medium stature.

ANY TIME IGNORANCE of the plans at WSUI has caused any listener to miss an attractive program, he or she really has only him- or herself to blame for not listening to Program Previews, Monday through Friday at 5 p.m. The offense can be flagrantly compounded by not reading this column either.

End To Surge In Stock Market

NEW YORK — Cold water was dashed on a continued stock market rally Thursday when the Steelworkers' Union rejected a company offer for settling the strike. Prices closed mixed.

The market picked up renewed strength on word of a new offer by the steel management. It did not take long for the union to turn it down — and down went steels, rails and motors.

On the whole, the market didn't do too badly. The industrial segment was up. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 1.33 to 643.32.

Of the 1,200 issues traded, however, losers outnumbered gainers by 489 to 468.

Alumnus Requests Salute At Game

To The Editor:
After being absent from the Big 10 area for a few years, I have given me great satisfaction to return to Iowa City these past fall weekends to watch the gridiron activity of Evy's fine football team. Also, the spirit of the crowd, and particularly the student body impresses me as an alumnus, happy to see that his successors are developing a lifetime affection for this wonderful University.

It is with this thought in mind that I call attention to the fact that the present student body does not carry on the age old tradition of singing the alma mater and fight song at the end of the game.

I would like to say, that although the Pacific Coast Conference teams do not win Rose Bowl games, they do salute their team and themselves at the end of each athletic contest.

Maybe it is too late, but do you suppose there is some possibility this could happen at the Notre Dame game?

Christmas At Thanksgiving?

To The Editor:
Sure is nice of everybody around the country to have all the Christmas decorations up in time for Thanksgiving.

You know, I went into a store in downtown Iowa City this afternoon to get a little something for the great dinner we'll have at home next Thursday and I could not find a thing. All they had was a huge assortment of tree decorations and colored lights — undoubtedly intended to brighten the family circles next week. And the signs — really beautiful — telling me I'd better shop early for my Christmas gifts — or I'll be left out.

Here I was just wanting something for Thanksgiving — and I'm too late.

And another thing, I'm sure all of us love the beautiful Christmas decorations going up all over the Iowa City streets. They are really nice. But will the bare stems and drooping branches be so pretty on Christmas Eve? Let's hope so.

All this is rather comparable to the Good Old Pilgrims sitting at their dinner way back when — and passing their Gold, Frankensence, and Myrrh back and forth over the turkey.

Just wanted you to know what I was thinking about this afternoon as I started preparing for my Thanksgiving observance. I guess I'm just out of phase — economically, at least.

Auto Sales Poor; Edsel No More

DETROIT — Ford Motor Company Thursday announced that one of its car lines, the Edsel, will be discontinued after only 28 months of production.

Ford said sales were so poor it could no longer justify the Edsel's existence.

Cars, like old soldiers, rarely officially die but are allowed to fade away. This was the case of the Kaiser, Frazer, Packard, Hudson and Nash — all of which have been discontinued since World War II without official notice.

British-German Talks End, No Agreement On Berlin

LONDON (AP) — To the tune of cheers from a British crowd, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer went back to West Germany Thursday night satisfied that he and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan had cleared away some of the fog of British-German distrust.

Even Macmillan was astonished at the demonstration for the departing 83-year-old German statesman.

But although Adenauer said on his arrival in Bonn that "both parties were very satisfied" with the three days of talks, the two leaders failed to agree on the place of a stopgap Berlin deal in coming summit negotiations with the Soviet Union.

Adenauer signaled a West German retreat from established Allied positions on Berlin. He told a crowded London news conference one subject of summit discussion doubtless will be how East Germany can get self-determination.

"In that complex of questions there is embedded the problem of Berlin," he added.

Adenauer made clear he wants Berlin to form part of a wider German settlement. But British officials immediately reaffirmed that Macmillan considers a temporary Berlin solution can and should be reached with the U.S.S.R. at the summit based on existing Western proposals. These made no mention of self-determination, and allowed for a Berlin solution in isolation.

Judge Fines SUI Student, City Youth

One SUI student and one Iowa City youth were fined in police court Thursday. John E. Hutchings, 18, A1, Searsboro, was fined $50 in Iowa City police court after he pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct. Costs of $4 were assessed. Hutchings was accused of creating a disturbance in the Scott store, 114 E. College street, Wednesday.

Ronald R. Carman, 19, 322 Court St. Pl., was found guilty of failing to leave required information at the scene of an accident. Judge Ansel J. Chapman continued judgment in the case.

Carman pleaded innocent to the charge. He was accused of striking an unattended car owned by Dennis Healy, A2, of 704 E. Jefferson St., while it was parked in front of Healy's home Tuesday morning.

Two Votes Defeat Iowa Labor Officer

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — One of the three salaried officers of the Iowa Federation of Labor was defeated for re-election Thursday at the closing session of the group's annual convention.

He is Earl J. Baum who had been secretary-treasurer since the merger of the AFL and CIO into the present federation in 1956.

Baum, of Des Moines, was defeated by only two votes by Jack Lewis, Des Moines postal clerk. The result was Lewis — 478, and Baum — 476.

Lewis, member of the National Federation of Postal Clerks, was sworn in along with the other top officers, President Ray Mills, of Des Moines, and Executive Vice President Jack McCoy, of Ottumwa.

Mills was re-elected by acclamation Tuesday, and McCoy was re-elected in Thursday's balloting over Michael McDonald of Davenport. This result was McCoy — 666, McDonald — 291.

Osmundson was president of the Johnson County Bar association in 1952 and served as president of the Iowa City Board of Education in 1954-55. He served as a director of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce in 1956-59.

Johansson Ready To Leave U.S. — Rematch Not Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson prepared to leave for Switzerland en route home Thursday while police continued their search for fight manager Cus D'Amato.

Johansson expected to stop in Geneva for a few days before returning to Sweden. Ingo again left the country without any final arrangements having been made for the proposed May or June rematch with ex-champion Floyd Patterson.

Patterson's manager, D'Amato, meanwhile, was nowhere to be found. A warrant for his arrest was issued Wednesday after he failed to answer a subpoena to appear for questioning by the state attorney general concerning the much-investigated June 26 Patterson-Johansson fight.

Quadrangle Association To Show 'Picnic' Sunday

"Picnic" will be shown in the study room of the Quadrangle Sunday, Nov. 22, for all Quad men and their dates at 6:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. The free film is one in a series that is being offered the Quadrangle residents.

The first film was shown in January of 1959. This film and the four following were all documentary films from the Bell Telephone series. The first feature length film, "Caine Mutiny", was shown on Oct. 25. Jim McNulty, president of the Quadrangle, said that at both showings of that film, "standing room only" was left. An equally large crowd is expected this Sunday.

Chairman of the movie committee and originator of the idea is Ed Haven, A4, Swaledale. The free movies were the result of the desire of the residents for a service of this nature.

Another service that is being established for the Quadrangles is a scholarship program. Under the leadership of Paul Lacy, scholarship committee chairman, the service is being organized to see what assistance the association can give the residents in the scholastic field.

As part of this committee's function, Sharrm Scheuerman, head SUI basketball coach, spoke to the Quad men recently in the Quadrangle Lounge about scholarship. The committee also prepared and distributed a pamphlet on how to study for particular types of mid-term exams.

The committee plans to organize and provide a number of services in the scholastic area. Some of the hopes of the committee are to have a series of lectures, both by educators and men from business and industry, to form seminar or study groups, to establish text and note files, to show short films, and to give scholarship recognition.

The Quadrangle Association, striving to bring more services to the residents of the dormitory, is well on its way.

Some Clever Tricks With Pumpkin Pie

Pumpkin pie is as traditional for a Thanksgiving feast as is roast turkey. If you'd like to try a new kind of "pumpkin" pie or stick with your favorite recipe but add a few clever touches, here are a few tips.

How about a different — but easy — crust? Just mix graham-cracker crumbs and sugar with melted butter. When all the crumbs are moistened, dump them into a 9-inch pie plate. Then take an 8-inch pie plate and press down. The crust shapes itself and is all ready for baking or chilling.

If you plan to make more than one pie, try a snappy-flavored gingersnap crust or the vanilla-wafer kind, in addition to your graham-cracker crust.

For homemakers who prefer pastry crust, it may be helpful to roll it out in wagon-wheel style, going from center to edge of the dough as if following the spokes of a wheel. To transfer the pastry to the pie plate, roll it over your rolling pin. Then unroll it over the plate and fit it loosely onto the bottom and sides.

Remember — pumpkin pie is at its best straight out of the oven. According to a lot of folks, that's the way it used to be and that's how it should remain.

CHANGE OF HEART
DAVENPORT — A thief apparently had a change of heart Thursday and returned part of the loot he took from the home of Mrs. Harry Mellick of Davenport. Mrs. Mellick said a package was delivered to her at her place of employment. It contained an antique cameo ring and a gold watch which had been taken in the burglary. However, $80 in cash the thief removed from a dresser drawer was still missing.

Who said it first?

A column of incidental intelligence by Jockey brand

"APPLE OF THE EYE"

For this overworked phrase, we must turn to the world's richest source of quotations—the Bible. Specifically, the Old Testament, Deuteronomy, XXXII, 10: "He kept him as the apple of his eye."

"ALL IS NOT GOLD"

Seems like everybody had a crack at this piece of homely philosophy, but the originator seems to be Geoffrey Chaucer, in "The House of Fame", Book I: "Hyt is not all gold that glareth"

"COUNT 10..."

Was there any limit to the talents of Thomas Jefferson? Statesman, scientist, architect—he also authored this admonition: "When angry, count ten before you speak; if very angry, a hundred."

Jockey T-Shirts

The most respected, creative name in underwear is Jockey brand. It stands for reason, then, that Jockey brand T-shirts are unmatched for quality as well as styling. You can choose from standard crew neck T-shirt, "paper-tee" shirt, sleeveless I-shirt, and V-neck T-shirt models. Every man needs a drawer full of T-shirts—and the label to look for is Jockey brand. Let it guide you to the world's finest underwear.

Doerfer, FCC Endorses Bill On TV 'Ethics'

By DAVID WISE
Herald Tribune News Service
WASHINGTON — John C. Doerfer, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, Thursday endorsed a Senate "ethics" bill that would prevent rigging of the FCC itself in the award of multi-million dollar television channels.

The FCC chairman told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee hearing that he supported the general aims of the proposed legislation although he disagreed with certain features. The measure is an outgrowth of last year's investigation of influence cases in federal regulatory agencies by the same house subcommittee that just exposed fixing of TV quiz shows.

The measure, introduced by Sen. John A. Carroll (D-Colo.), at the request of the American Bar Association, provides up to a $10,000 fine and a year in jail for anyone who makes secret contacts with agency officials in a semi-judicial case. It would apply to several government agencies, including the FCC.

Last year, the House Subcommittee on Legislative Oversight headed by Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), disclosed repeated instances of under the table approaches to FCC commissioners. Disclosures in the Miami Channel 10 case led to the resignation and indictment of FCC commissioner Richard A. Mack. Sherman Adams resigned as assistant to President Eisenhower, after the subcommittee disclosed he had contacted two federal agencies for Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine, from whom he accepted a Vicuna coat.

Meanwhile, Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, announced that broadcasters would face tough new laws unless the industry takes firm self-policing action.

Federal Mediators Call D.M. Transit Strikers To Meet

DES MOINES — Federal mediators Thursday called a meeting between the strike-bound Des Moines Transit Company and its workers for 2 p.m. today. But statements issued by both sides — after the meeting was called — made prospects of settlement of the nine-day-old strike seem dim.

Company President Fred C. Worden said he again will urge workers to accept a truce and have insisted on a settlement before returning to work. Major issue in the dispute is the transit worker's demand for job and retirement security. The financially ailing company contends it can't afford to meet the demands.

Air Force ROTC Group Visiting Weapon Center

Thursday at 1:30 p.m., 36 Air Force ROTC students left Iowa City in a C119 plane for Kirtland Air Force Base in Albuquerque, N.M. Accompanying them were Edward Mielnik, associate professor of mechanical engineering, and Floyd Meyer, assistant professor of electrical engineering. The purpose of the trip is to see in operation some of the things about which the students have been taught. The base is the home of the Air Force Special Weapons Center. The group is expected to return Saturday afternoon.
