

Oppose IMU Addition

By DOROTHY COLLIN
Staff Writer

A petition protesting the proposed addition to the Iowa Memorial Union on the grounds that the money could be used for "better things" is being circulated around the SU campus.

The petition reads:

"Last Friday we learned that the State Board of Regents authorized the State University of Iowa's proposal to use student fees to build a 110-room hotel on campus. We, students at the University, feel that the move was unwise and that student sentiment was not considered. Certainly, a hotel would be useful for various meetings, conventions, and University guests, but is this our most pressing problem?

"Our general library is not yet complete, several buildings are at the point of collapse, dozens of classes are held in 'temporary' tin huts, and married students' housing is pathetic. It seems hardly wise to build a hotel under the present conditions.

"We feel that priority should be given to the obvious and pressing needs.

"It also seems to us that student fees should be used principally to increase educational opportunities at the University. The Administration pointed out that use of student fees would save taxpayers $4.6 million. Yet what will we get for our money? A building we shall have no occasion to use and might well be constructed after present needs are met. We trust that when the Legislative Budget and Financial Control Committee meets to approve the project, they will examine it in the light of the above considerations."

The plan for the Union addition, which was approved by the State Board of Regents Dec. 11, would provide new kitchen and dining facilities, a 110 room hotel for University guests, a large ballroom, and a number of conference rooms.

The addition would be financed by a long term loan to be repaid from earnings from the present $8.50 per semester Student Union fee, which has been levied since 1951. No tax funds would be used for the addition according to the plan.

The regents said the hotel would create business for Iowa City by attracting more University guests. They also pointed out most other Big Ten schools have such facilities.

The petition was started by Michael McLaughlin, A1, Sac City, in conjunction with other students, and has been posted in all the dorms. He said he was discussing the proposed addition with some friends and they decided the whole thing sounded silly.

"We looked at the campus: the small library which was originally planned to be larger, the 15 year old temporaries, the Old Dental Building, the Electrical Engineering Building, and decided the money could be used for better things," McLaughlin said. "This is supposed to be an institution of higher learning, not a hotel."

Copies of the petition will be sent to the State Board of Regents, the Open Forum Editor of the Des Moines Register, and, possibly the Legislative Budget and Financial Control Committee, McLaughlin said.

Since he feels the petition might not get results right before Christmas, McLaughlin said, it may be circulated again after vacation.

McLaughlin believes students are not in favor of the addition. He bases his opinion on talking with other students and on discussing it in his classes.

"No one was for it except a couple of teachers," he said.

Schneider Explains Reason For Resigning CPC Position

John Schneider, A2, Chicago, said he resigned as treasurer of the Central Party Committee because "I no longer felt I was a functioning member of a properly functioning organization."

Earlier, Schneider had said "I no longer feel that I can, nor want to live a fallacy." In explanation of this comment, he released the following written statement Wednesday night:

"According to the Code of Student Life, the Central Party Committee is the prime entertainment procuring organ of the University. It is made up of 12 carefully selected, highly qualified students. It hires and provides all popular entertainment for all-University affairs, dances, concerts, etc.

"It appears to me that such was not the case, and I felt that my position on, and the function of the committee, were trivial and were not in fact what they were represented to be.

"In my term of office, I saw only one contract — long after it had been signed, sealed, and delivered. Is it not the duty of the treasurer of any organization to at least have, if not complete then partial, dealings in matters financial?

"Furthermore, no financial dealings are done by the committee itself. All money and contracts and other pertinent materials, including advanced announcements of future attractions offered by agencies from time to time for appearance here, are handled in the University Business Office.

"With these facts clear to me, I no longer felt I was a functioning member of a properly functioning organization."

Schneider was replaced as treasurer by Jack Williams, A4, Waterloo, in a formal installation Wednesday night. Williams' post on the Publicity Committee was taken by Dennis Edwards, A2, Davenport.

It was earlier reported that Bob Downer, CPC president, made a commitment to give a statement to the Daily Iowan last Thursday night about Schneider's resignation. Downer denied Wednesday that he had made such a commitment or had any intention of doing so until the new treasurer was formally installed. The installation was made Wednesday night.

Assassin Kills Era Gangster

CHICAGO (AP) — Paroled prohibition era mobster Roger Touhy and a retired police sergeant companion were gunned down on a West Side street Wednesday night.

Both were rushed to hospitals where Touhy died. The ex-police man is in critical condition.

Touhy and the retired policeman, Walter Miller, were walking near the home of Touhy's sister, Mrs. Ethel Alesia, when a gunman or gunmen opened fire from behind.

Touhy was paroled from Stateville Penitentiary last Nov. 24 and was living temporarily with his sister.

Touhy, 61, served nearly 26 years in prison for the kidnaping of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, one-time confidence man.

Many Stuck By Big Snow

VAUGHN, N. M. (AP) — Thousands of motorists remained stranded Wednesday night in a 10,000-square-mile area of east central New Mexico buried by the dying fury of a stubborn storm.

No hardships or deaths were reported as railroads, still running into the area, took on the job of delivering food and cooperated with police, National Guardsmen and Army volunteers in rescuing motorists trapped by the storm.

Skies were starting to clear over much of the area late Wednesday and a drizzling rain replaced the snow in places.

This little high plains cow town of 1,400 was harboring some 600 stranded drivers and their families. Five hundred fugitives from the storm were held up in Carrizozo, a town of 1,700 to the south.

Hundreds of others were caught in villages in the area.

The Santa Fe Railway reported it was sending in fresh milk for hundreds of babies and children in Vaughn. Twenty cases of bread also were brought in by the railway.

The Southern Pacific, which with the Santa Fe serves much of the high plains, sent special trains to rescue motorists stalled along U.S. 54 which parallels the tracks.

Some 125 motorists were given accommodations in the Vaughn City Hall, and the historic Lincoln County Court House at Carrizozo was opened to scores of other travelers.

Snow on the ground in Vaughn measured 32 to 36 inches on the level, with drifts up to 12 feet deep.

Highway Department crews battled to open the three U.S. highways which converge on Vaughn — 54, 285, and 60.

Motor Fails In Test Firing Of Nike-Zeus

WASHINGTON (AP) — The army fired a test model of its Nike-Zeus missile Wednesday but the second stage failed.

The firing at the White Sands missile range in New Mexico was the third test of the huge missile, which is ultimately intended to be armed with a nuclear warhead and to intercept and destroy intercontinental ballistic missiles aimed at the United States.

About an hour and a half after the launching, the Army said data radioed from the missile indicated that the big first stage fired properly and that the second stage separated, but its sustainer motor failed to ignite.

A heavy overcast made tracking difficult, the Army said.

The principal purpose of the shot was to study temperature and erosion of the missile as well as operations involved in the launching, the Army said. There was no attempt to guide the missile in flight, but the Army said it was on the intended course when the motor failed.

None of the three tests of the missile, still in its early development stage, has been completely successful.

The first stage of the Zeus is the largest known single engine solid propellant rocket motor to be fired. It has more than 400,000 pounds of thrust.

The second stage is a sustainer motor to keep the missile in flight.

The tests now under way are expected to have much influence on the final decision whether to press for quantity production of the missile and its related detection system.

Kyl Suggests Meeting On Farm Issues

BLOOMFIELD, Iowa (AP) — John Kyl, Iowa's newly elected Republican congressman and an opponent of the Benson farm program, Wednesday proposed a meeting of agricultural leaders to help solve the farmer's problems.

The 40-year-old merchant-farmer, who was defeated for this same Fourth District House seat by a Democrat last year, won over Grinnell College Prof. C. Edwin Gilmore in Tuesday's special election.

Unofficial returns in the 14-county, predominately rural district gave Kyl 28,336 votes and his Democratic opponent 25,804. Gilmore carried only two counties but lost in his home county and home town of Grinnell.

Kyl said he wants to talk to leaders of every Iowa farm group in order to "get all the ideas we can toward solution of the farmer's problems."

"I have no predilection for any particular plan," he said.

Kyl throughout his campaign — as did his opponent — criticized the Republican Eisenhower Administration's farm policies for decreased farm income, crop surpluses and lower hog prices.

The 6-foot, 4-inch, 220-pound congressman's victory was hailed by his party as an indication of Republican resurgence after defeat a year ago.

In 1958, Kyl was defeated by the late Rep. Steven Carter, whose victory margin came in the district's two industrialized counties, Wapello and Mahaska. Gilmore carried Wapello but only by 300 votes Tuesday.

GOP National Chairman Thurston Morton said the Iowa voters' decision was "a splendid tribute to President Eisenhower and his policies." Kyl had the President's endorsement.

But Iowa's Democratic Gov. Herschel C. Loveless did not regard his party's defeat as indicative of a trend. He said the district is normally Republican and added that voters in the mainly Democratic counties of Wapello, Jasper and Mahaska did not turn out in large numbers.

ISU Editors Protest Rule With 'Censorship' Clause

Student editors of the Iowa State Daily, campus newspaper at Iowa State University in Ames, said Tuesday that none of them would continue working if a proposed regulation for the central governing of student activities was passed.

A clause of the new proposal would give the student Activities Governing Commission (AGC) power to control and censor printed material considered detrimental to the University.

The proposed regulation would impose central control over all ISU student organizations, except housing units. It was discussed at a meeting Tuesday by a special committee of the AGC. The proposed regulation will be considered by the Cardinal Guild, student legislative body, last Thursday.

Twelve staff members of the student publications committee appeared before AGC to protest the clause, which read:

"Demonstrations and material distributed by a student organization will be restricted only when they prove harmful to the reputation or standing of the University. The decision will be made by AGC."

Violation of the proposed clause would result in the freezing of funds of the publications committee.

AGC committee members are to submit any changes they think necessary in the proposal before classes end Friday. The proposed regulation will be considered by the Cardinal Guild after the Christmas holidays.

Sioux City Boy Shoots Mother

SIoux CITY (AP) — A Sioux City mother died in a hospital Wednesday night about six hours after she had been shot by her 15-year-old son at her home.

The boy, Robert Butler, fled in the family car and was captured in a high speed chase at Sioux Falls, S.D. about 100 miles north of here.

Asst. Police Chief Russell White said the youth had argued with his mother, Mrs. Edwin Butler, 55, over some trouble he had with officials at his school.

Mrs. Butler died at St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital with two bullet wounds in the abdomen and lacerations about the hands and head.

Defendant Asks Court To Modify Alley Injunction

Permission for tenants, Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Saunders, to use an alley adjoining the property where they reside at 1030 Muscatine Ave., was sought Tuesday by Miss Helen Graf, a defendant in the Woodlawn alley dispute.

Miss Graf's attorney, Will J. Hayek, filed a motion in Johnson County District Court in an attempt to modify an injunction prohibiting Saunders' use of the alley pending outcome of the case.

A restraining order was issued by Judge H. D. Evans Saturday against Miss Graf; her nephews, John Sunier, and the Saunders. Miss Graf is agent for Sunier, owner of the Muscatine Avenue property.

The action was brought by W. Ross and Zella Livingston, Gordon and Katherine Webster, and Klara Robbins.

Miss Graf's motion states that the alley is the only access to the garage, and that it has been used as access to the garage at least since Jan. 29, 1945. John Sunier, Sr., purchased the property at that time.

Second Stage Misses In Army's 3rd Attempt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The army fired a test model of its Nike-Zeus missile Wednesday but the second stage failed.

14 Allies Support U.S. Plan; Warned Of Red Air Buildup

PARIS (AP) — France's 14 NATO allies argued in vain Wednesday that the French should agree to a unified NATO air defense system. The debate was part of a U.S. sponsored campaign for over-all integration of Atlantic Alliance military forces. A NATO spokesman said most members of the alliance appear to support the U.S. program for integration of all forces under international command.

The dispute over air defense dominated proceedings at the NATO meeting for a second day as the 15 members were informed by the United States that the Soviet Union has built up a powerful nuclear and missile system under a fourth arm of its military forces.

A Moscow propaganda broadcast heard Wednesday night accused the NATO delegates in Paris of keeping their "war chariot on an aggressive course."

It was announced Wednesday night the NATO defense ministers will meet in an extraordinary session Thursday to try to find common language on the issue of air integration.

The United States stood firm in the fight for integration despite French anger over the way the question was raised. France wants to retain control of its forces.

Franz Josef Strauss, West German defense minister, rapped what he called "special egoistic interests within NATO." He said NATO must decide whether it is to be a "modern system of alliance or a conglomeration of national states with the United States withdrawing to its continent."

The barometer in President De Gaulle's office is reported falling, and the expectation is that the two soldier-statesmen will have a frank and perhaps tense encounter about deteriorating Franco-American relations.

Eisenhower and De Gaulle will meet privately outside of their three-day "Allied Summit" meetings with British Prime Minister Macmillan and West German Chancellor Adenauer, which are in preparation for an East-West summit conference.

During a week of Franco-American recriminations, De Gaulle has kept his own counsel and has not deigned to reply to American generals, cabinet officers, and the like. There are signs that he is saving his complaints for the one American he regards as an equal: the President.

If what French and American officials of lower than summit rank are saying about each other's policy is a good portent, Eisenhower and De Gaulle have a heavy load of misunderstandings and lack of confidence to clear away.

The current high level of French irritation with the United States comprises both recent and long-standing points, and includes:

1. The statement last week by Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, that France is an important offender in not meeting military commitments to NATO, thus threatening a dangerous weakening of the alliance.
2. The abstention by the United States in the United Nations voting on the Algerian issue after the American Government had hailed De Gaulle's offer of self-determination to the rebellious territory. De Gaulle had expected his ally to support France by voting against the resolution.
3. De Gaulle's failure, after a year of efforts, to gain satisfaction to his demands for a greater French voice in world-wide allied strategy and admission into what he regards as an "Anglo-Saxon" (British and American) club.

Washington's officials regard integration as fundamental to the alliance. President Charles de Gaulle argues that France must

Economic Activities Justify U.N. Role, Says Hancher

By ARDIS BIGSBY
Staff Writer

University President Virgil M. Hancher, who returned Monday after serving for three months as an alternate U.S. representative to the United Nations, talked Wednesday to a group of reporters, telling them that he considered "the economic activities of the United Nations one of its great justifications."

Hancher, during his stay in New York, served on the Economic and Financial Committee and the Special Political Committee of the U.N.

There is a great division in the U.N., he said, between the "have" and "have not" nations.

There is great pressure among the "have nots" to develop living standards equal to those of the West. The danger, he said, lies not so much in the threat of war as in the threat that the pressure of hungry people may cause disorder and chaos and result in Communism taking over in underdeveloped countries.

The Economic and Financial Committee, he said, focuses almost entirely on aid to underdeveloped countries. Where Russia can, she will veto, where she can't, she will not contribute, he said.

Hancher pointed out that the United States made $40 million available to the technical assistance programs and the Operational and Executive (OPEX) programs for underdeveloped countries while Russia contributed only $2 million. Only 25 per cent contributed by Russia was convertible into cash. The other 75 per cent of the $2 million had to be used in the purchase of Russian goods, hiring of Russian technicians or in scholarships to Russian schools.

There is some objection, Hancher said, to the creation of a Capital Development Fund controlled by the U.N. Under such a program a few wealthy countries would be contributing the largest amount of the money, while 82 nations would determine how it would be spent.

"In many cases," he said "these countries do not need the money as much as they do technicians, engineers, public health experts and other trained personnel. The countries who would be contributing the most dislike the idea of having the money frittered away."

Discussing the importance of the Soviet block, Hancher's hands, fingers outstretched, moved together on the table in front of him. Nine or 10 Communist controlled countries, he said, continue constant progress toward maximum gains.

The U.S.S.R., he said, often announces short objectives. The

Christmas 1959

The Reporter Magazine last year carried an excerpt from Boris Pasternak's "Doctor Zhivago" in observance of the Christmas season. These words of the Russian poet-novelist seem to us so appropriate that we have decided to reprint them here.

By way of preface, the magazine remarked: "In the democratic nations of the West the balance between Unto Caesar and Unto God has been upset by the multiplicity of Caesarean powers, all claiming to serve the sovereign citizen and all making demands on him, while man's devotion to God has become mostly a matter of taste.

"In the Communist nations of the East, there is no other realm than Caesar's and the very thought of Unto God has been outlawed. Boris Pasternak, acting for himself alone, as befits a poet, has re-established the balance. The response that his book has aroused in the West is as momentous a fact as the book itself. The East, too, we are sure, will respond."

Here, then, are some of Pasternak's words concerning Christ:

Now what is history? It is the centuries of systematic explorations of the riddle of death, with a view to overcoming death. That's why people discover mathematical infinity and electromagnetic waves, that's why they write symphonies. Now, you can't advance in this direction without a certain faith. You can't make such discoveries without spiritual equipment. And the basic elements of this equipment are in the Gospels. What are they? To begin with, love of one's neighbors, which is the supreme form of vital energy. Once it fills the heart of man it has to overflow and spend itself. And then the two basic ideals of modern man — without them he is unthinkable — the idea of free personality and the idea of life as sacrifice. Mind you, all this is still extraordinarily new. There was no history in this sense among the ancients. They had blood and beastliness and cruelty and pock-marked Caligulas who had no idea of how inferior the system of slavery is. They had the boastful dead eternity of bronze monuments and marble columns. It was not until after the coming of Christ that time and man could breathe freely. It was not until after Him that men began to live toward the future. Man does not die in a ditch like a dog — but at home in history, while the work toward the conquest of death is in full swing; he dies sharing in this work . . .

And then, into this tasteless heap of gold and marble, He came, light and clothed in an aura, emphatically human, deliberately provincial, Galilean, and at that moment gods and nations ceased to be and man came into being — man the carpenter, man the plowman, man the shepherd with his flock of sheep at sunset, man who does not sound in the least proud, man thankfully celebrated in all the cradle songs of mothers and in all the picture galleries the world over . . .

Something in the world had changed. Rome was at an end. The reign of numbers was at an end. The duty, imposed by armed force, to live unanimously as a people, as a whole nation, was abolished. Leaders and nations were relegated to the past. They were replaced by the doctrine of individuality and freedom. Individual human life became the life story of God, and its contents filled the vast expanses of the universe.

'Matrimonial' Road To Be Paved

AMES — A contract to take the bumps out of the rocky road to matrimony was let by the Iowa Highway Commission Wednesday. It calls for asphaltic concrete surfacing of about 10 miles of Highway 346 from Highway 63 to Bradford — home of the Little Brown Church in the Vale.

County had asked the commission last summer to pave the highway. The group explained that a great number of marriages are performed at the Little Brown Church, but before the couples may be wed they must go to the county seat, New Hampton, for a license.

From New Hampton the shortest route to the church is south on Highway 63 and then west to the church over Iowa 346, the group explained.

But they said the bumpy condition of the road offered proof that the course of true love ne'er did run smooth.

A Cool View Of Renaissance II

To The Editor:

I went up to Renaissance II the other night. It was depressing, but not at first because I was feeling pretty tricky and full of the old zip. The patrons were languishing. They were bored, with nothing to say, and trying to look cool. Some of them were trying to look like they carried profound thoughts around with them — like so much ballast. It was a pretty solemn crowd; and for no good reason at all.

When I came in they all looked at me carefully. They wanted to know who I was and what I thought about it all, but I had a twinkle in my eye — they all looked so serious. I felt like breaking into my old soft shoe routine. I restrained myself. Anyway, I don't like to shout in churches.

They've got their candles in little cups up at Renaissance II. Someone had poured the melted wax out of my cup and then cemented the cup to the table with it. The person who did it must have been bored too. Everyone was bored. I don't know, maybe it was a bad night.

Along came a girl in black tights to take my order. "What do you want?" she said. "Coffee," I said, in honor of its being a coffee house.

"American or European?" That stumped me. "American," I said.

"Okay," she said, "damn that stuff." She picked at my puddle of wax. She didn't scrape it off, though. But I enjoyed being waited on by a girl in black tights. She moved more free and easy than other waitresses and was wise to the ways of wax. You can see that I wasn't depressed at first.

So pretty soon I accomplished some evesdropping. It's impossible not to hear what other people have to say at Renaissance II.

"The way I see it in my head," the beard said, "is that we're born in a trap. We spend all our lives trying to get out of the trap of life. It's just one big hate."

"Wait a minute," the tee-shirt said, "you mean we're trying to escape into an afterlife — heaven or something?"

Most of the patrons were more conservative in appearance, but these two were of the beard and tee-shirt.

"No," the beard said, "that's the sad part of it. The only way to get out is to die, and then where are you?"

"I see what you mean," the tee-shirt said.

Well, I wasn't too sure about what the beard meant. Besides, he didn't know either. Besides, he sounded just as bored as anyone else.

A couple of tourists came through. They examined the people, the paintings (too dark to see them), the free expression room; all the trappings. They didn't seem very impressed. A bunch of tourists come through Renaissance II every fifteen minutes or so.

People have said new things are coming to Iowa City. Things are happening, they say. Maybe so. But when I went outside it was drizzling and the atmosphere didn't seem right for big changes.

To The Editor:

We write to our contemporaries, the "Save-Our-University-Library" Committee.

We of the "Bomblast-Or-Die-Young" Committee want to express our glowing appreciation to you for your contribution (letter, Dec. 15) to the swelling stream of turgid letters about coffee and principle. What a happy sequence! To attack Mr. McCorsion in the second paragraph and then go forth to imply uncivilization, to suggest (even more subtly) quarantine, and (far-fetched!) some relation to the Caucasian eagle (excuse me, you said the Library was Hyperion, not Prometheus), and finally, in the most subtle metaphor of many, to call to our minds a well-fed colt. What offense can anyone take to your ready, easy, and well-made defense that you meant nothing of that kind? You can answer that we have no right to read into your tour-de-force meanings which you did not intend.

And to call up radioactivity, physiology, oats, the skill of boating, and Communism — all in one sentence — exquisite!

Your train of thought: how effective in justifying our final impression of your position! After saying that the to-drink-or-not-to-drink issue is the spirit of a person named triviality (some concepts must be expressed in much more than a usual way) when compared with a couple of recent trends, you go on to bring up Southern segregation; you allow us to understand, by inference, that the trivial issue you mention is really your immediate concern, not the recent trends which have wondrously become, with poetic license and language, three years old.

But the stroke of genius we most applaud here is your attack on uncivilized explosions of indignation, subjective lack of control, unacademic, disintellectual, and impassioned defense of considered changes, and your subsequent statement that you are the calmest of men.

This committee's conclusion is that Bomblast (carelessly called Bombast by erstwhile members) is a means of satire or irony and should be investigated carefully when applied to principles.

NATO Conflict Might Disrupt European Unity

By J. M. ROBERTS
AP Press News Analyst

One of the great trends in modern European affairs, toward military, economic and eventual political unity, could be affected by the current conflict within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Part of the fight is over Charles de Gaulle's desire to retain direct command of French military forces within an organization operating more like an old-fashioned alliance instead of leaving them under international command.

Part of the fight — in which some of the best-intentioned smaller nations are involved because of domestic political situations — is over the American demand that the other partners carry more of the expense burden in ratio to their increased prosperity.

This is in line with demands that Europe, having been helped during its difficulty with trade payments, shall reciprocate and that they shall assume more of the burden of economic aid to the underdeveloped countries.

The discussion of cost-sharing has revealed that people in Europe have fallen to some extent under the spell of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's peace offensive, and are inclined to look askance at ministers who ask for more money for defense preparations.

Transcending this, however, is the possibility that De Gaulle's insistence on having the French army a national army will affect relations between France and West Germany.

'Heart's Needle'

—By Workshop Alumnus

(Editor's Note: Mr. Fitzgerald, an instructor in the English department, prefaces his review by remarking: "Not only has Mr. Snodgrass been recognized by some of our leading modern poets and critics as one of the best of a large crop of young American poets, but he was also a student, teacher, and poet at SUI for several years. He will be remembered by many now at SUI as a distinguished teacher and a brilliant poet.")

By GREGORY FITZGERALD
Written For The DI

"Heart's Needle," by William D. Snodgrass; Knopf, $3.75.

This first book of poems by W. D. Snodgrass won the first $1,000 award in poetry of the Ingram Merrill Foundation; in addition, the author was the 1958 Hudson Review Fellow in poetry.

"Heart's Needle" does not represent the entire canon of Snodgrass' poetic endeavor, as the reader who has already encountered the poet's work in various periodical publications will immediately perceive.

Out of war, academia, domestic trauma, and other personal crises the poet has shaped moving vicarious experience for the reader. The best poems in this collection, for example "The Operation," are hard and brilliant examples of Snodgrass' success in objectifying and universalizing, despite the use of the first person, his often grim personal experience:

In skullcaps, masked, in blue-gowns, attendants
Towed my cart, afloat in its white
The body with its tributary poisons borne

Down corridors of the diseased, thronging:
The scrofulous faces, contagious
grim boys,

The huddled families, weeping,
a staring woman
Arched to her gnarled stick,— a child was somewhere

Screaming, screaming — then, blind silence, the elevator rising

To the arena, humming, vast with lights; blank here,
Shackled and spellbound, to enact my deed.

This is close to perfection in depicting the kaleidoscopic impressions of the patient travelling through those long, long corridors to the operating room. And significantly, it is the reader who is compelled to undergo the experience. Here it is the poet's detachment while himself totally involved which creates the tension so integral to the success of the poem.

A strain of ironic contemporary criticism runs through many of these poems. Sometimes it is directed against the moral disease of our time. The author speaks for many war veterans when in "Returned to Frisco, 1946" he says,

We had known all along we would be taken
By hawkers, known what authoritative lies
Would plan us as our lives had been planned.

We had stood years and, then,
scrambled like rabbits
Up hostile beaches; why should we fear this land
Intent on luxuries and its old habits?

Elsewhere the poet is sometimes bitter, though often humorous and always witty, in delineating his academic experience, as in "A Cardinal" and in one of the finest of the selection, "April Inventory." That the poet feels an unwanted tension between the academic life and the creative life is quite apparent.

Snodgrass was unhappy with his personal and creative life while he was in Iowa City a few years ago. Therefore, that a few poems reflect unfavorably on universities in general, and to some degree on SUI in particular, should surprise no one. It will interest many readers to know that Snodgrass was a member of the poetry workshop at SUI for several years, and this fact pinpoints the reference of Robert Lowell's statement that Snodgrass had "flowered in the most sterile of sterile places, a post war, cold war mid-western university's poetry workshop for graduate student poets." Lowell himself was once an instructor in the SUI Poetry Workshop.

Although these facts lend to "Heart's Needle" an added interest for Iowans, this interest should be regarded as subsidiary, for the book's chief raison d'être is certainly NOT as an attack on SUI or any other educational institution. Rather, these poems have something important to say about your life — yours, as well as the poet's — and they say it superbly. Mastery of poetic technique is never allowed to obstruct his art or become its end object. The poet does not stress the manner of the saying at the expense of the content; on the contrary, at their best these poems fuse form and significant content with deceptive ease; no do any of these poems emphasize a quivering, jelly-shy ego. Thus, this selection, free from many of the characteristic ills of modern poetry, occupies an all too-uncommon place in contemporary verse.

A knowledge of Snodgrass' divorce from his first wife; his subsequent separation from the only issue of this marriage, a daughter; his second marriage and its resultant two children — all of these facts importantly illuminate the meaning of "Papegen" ("Heart's Needle" (the title poem), et al. And if some of these latter seem not so successful, it is perhaps because the emotion which they represent is so sharp a needle in the poet's heart that the pain therefrom is an effective barrier to the successful detachment which is clearly achieved in "The Operation." Notwithstanding, the "strengths implicit in this little book have placed Mr. Snodgrass high among contemporary young poets. "Heart's Needle" may be the best book of poems yet published by an alumnus of the SUI Poetry Workshop.

Good Listening— Today On WSUI

BRITISH RADIO THEATRE, among the best in the world, tonight will be heard at 8 p.m. when "The Dock Brief" is presented again as WSUI's Evening At The Theatre. Written by John Mortimer and replete with special music, "The Dock Brief" was first broadcast in the Third Programme of the BBC.

It is "a witty study of a bird-fancier who readily admits to having murdered his wife because of her persistent sense of humor jarred upon his own habitual gloom." An unsuccessful barrister, elderly and habitually gloomy himself, sees an opportunity to redeem his career in a cause celebre when he is selected to defend the bird-fancier.

"As they work together in the cell, becoming, for the purpose of rehearsal, the Judge, the Jury, and various favorable or ruthlessly destroyed witnesses, they become not only enthusiastic, but deeply considerate of each other's tender feelings. Alone and happy, they make a world which they can always control, until they have to emerge halfway through the play, to face the rude reality of the trial."

The play contains only two characters, it confines them in a single place, and then draws its strength from the surprised communication, "with which two elderly men may discover each other's wildest dreams." (So you won't have to look all the way back to the top of the paragraph, the time was 8 p.m.)

MUSIC FOR SURPRISED COMMUNICATION will be heard on Evening Concert, from 6 to 8 p.m.: Ravel's Piano Concerto for the left hand (played by someone whose left hand won't know what the right hand is doing); String Quartet, Op. 76, No. 6 by Josef Haydn; Le Beau Danube by Johan Strauss, Jr.; Sonata for Violinello and Piano by Prokofiev; and Symphony No. 4 by Dag Wharen.

THE SHORTEST PROGRAM IN RADIO, a CONELRAD Test Alert lasting one minute, has been programmed for 9:14 a.m. today. If you do not particularly care to listen to a 1,000-cycle note lasting 15 to 20 seconds in duration, remember that the test is being carried out to help in the defense of our country.

Nixon Congratulates Kyl

Republicans Hail Iowa Win

WASHINGTON (HTNS) — Republican leaders are elated over the victory of their candidate Tuesday in the Iowa Fourth Congressional District that had gone Democratic last year. The first test of voting strength since the 1958 Democratic sweep was in a by-election to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Rep. Steven V. Carter, Democrat.

Sen. Thurston B. Morton, Republican National Chairman, claimed the election of Republican John Kyl, by 52.3 per cent of the vote, "reaffirms the resurgence of the Republican party . . . (and) is an indication that the Republican party is on its way to a great victory in 1960."

Among calls of congratulations to Kyl Wednesday was one from Vice President Nixon, who has exhorted party leaders in Iowa to make an all-out effort. The by-election was of great importance to the Republican cause nationally, he said, as a portent of the 1960 Presidential and Congressional elections.

On Monday Nixon sent telegrams to the Republican chairman of the 14 counties in the contested district. He told them, in part: "I know you are aware that the entire nation will be watching the results of the special Congressional election which is taking place in Iowa's Fourth District tomorrow.

"John Kyl's election to Congress will give a great morale boost to our cause throughout the nation and could well portend the election of a Republican Congress in 1960. From reports available to me, the election will be very close indeed. You and I know that close elections are won by leaders and workers at the precinct level. This, of course, is why your responsibility is so great."

Kyl, a 40-year-old television news-caster and clothing store clerk, defeated Democratic State Sen. J. Edwin Gilmour, a political science professor at Grinnell College.

Republican Chairman Morton said his party's victor had campaigned mostly on the issue of "President Eisenhower's dynamic leadership in foreign affairs."

On the domestic front the Republican candidate differed publicly with Administration farm policies credited to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, but insisted Benson was not himself an issue in the campaign and was not personally to blame for economic troubles in the farm area.

The Democrat, on the other hand, pitched practically his entire campaign on the "Benson issue."

In analyzing the returns, Morton pointed out that Kyl carried 12 of the district's 14 counties. The Republican percentage of the vote improved appreciably in both the rural and urban areas. In fact, Kyl came within 300 votes of winning the district's one big industrial county, where there was considerable labor union activity in behalf of the Democratic candidate. That county went Democratic last year by 2,815 votes.

SUI Artists Hear Views On Russians

Scientists and other top officials in Russia have much more freedom in talking with visiting Americans than do Soviet workers, a group of SUI art students and faculty members were told Tuesday.

"The common man in Russia seems afraid to be seen talking with Americans," explained Donald Moore, systems research manager for the RCA Whirlpool Corporation, who was in Russia last summer to help set up the American National Exhibit in Moscow. "The top men in Russia, however, were very interested in the United States and were eager to talk."

"The language barrier between the two countries was hard to overcome and made it difficult to communicate ideas," Moore said. "After observing the Nixon-Khrushchev debates in Moscow, I am convinced that the language barrier was an important cause in their differences of opinion."

Russians show little enthusiasm and seldom smile, Moore said. "They dress much like we do in the United States and are very clothes-conscious," he added. "Shoes are the most important part of their wardrobe. When you meet a Russian, he will usually look at your shoes first."

"Russian women still do heavy construction work today but there is a recent trend toward keeping women in the home more in order to combat juvenile delinquency," he pointed out.

The college facilities in Russia are very elaborate, Moore pointed out. University students are paid to go to school and are trained in highly specialized areas. "The Russian student, however, has little choice in deciding what he will do after he leaves school," he added.

The SUI group also saw slides that Moore had taken in Russia last summer.

Tuesday evening, Moore lectured to a design class in the SUI Art Department.

Kerstin is sponsored by the Delta Gamma sorority.

SUI Hospitals Receiving Gifts Sent To Patients

Santa's storeroom at SUI hospitals is a busy place.

Each day, the postman delivers more gifts from individuals and organizations throughout the state for Santa's delivery to patients who must be hospitalized at the University Medical Center during the Christmas holiday.

The gift program for patients has become a tradition at SUI, with many of the donors sending presents each year. The gifts are opened, sorted and gift-wrapped by volunteer workers.

Santa visits the hospitals on Christmas Eve, delivering presents to each ward. He also arranges for a gift to be presented to each child who is discharged from the medical center between Dec. 14 and 23.

A large portion of the gifts received so far this year have been toys and other items for children. Members of the hospital Christmas committee say that adult gifts are welcomed, too.

Items which have been especially appreciated in past years are socks, gloves, handkerchiefs, neckties, fancy handwork, head scarves, knitting materials, sewing boxes, mittens, playing cards, toilet articles, leather or ceramic kits, shawls and new Christmas cards with stamps for mailing.

'Dramatic Speed Reduction' Since Day Speed Limit OK'd

AMES (U) — Iowa's new daytime speed limit apparently has resulted in a dramatic reduction in speeds at which motorists travel on primary highways, the State Highway Commission was told Wednesday.

Carl Schach, the commission's safety and traffic engineer, said a semi-annual speed check in October showed that daytime speeds of passenger cars were considerably less than in October, 1958.

The state's 70-mile-an-hour daytime limit went into effect July 1. Schach said it appeared the decrease reflects closer enforcement of the speed laws since the initiation of the daytime speed limits.

The speed check in October showed 50 per cent of the passenger cars observed were traveling 54 miles per hour or less. In 1958 the 50 per cent mark was 61 miles per hour or less.

Eighty per cent of the cars observed were traveling under 60 miles an hour in October this year, whereas the 80 per cent point a year ago was 70.7 miles per hour.

Schach said 71 passenger cars were spotted traveling between 81 and 85 miles per hour in October 1958 out of 3,421 cars checked, and another 70 were traveling even faster, with 13 over the 100 mile per hour mark.

The October 1959 check showed only 75 automobiles out of 5,516 exceeding the daytime limit, and only 2 were going between 81 and 85 miles per hour.

For commercial vehicles, Schach said, the 50 percentile speed for October 1958 was 51.9 miles per hour and in 1959 this was down to 46.8 miles per hour.

Eighty per cent of the commercial vehicles in the 1958 check were traveling 58.4 miles per hour or less, and this year they were traveling 51.6 miles per hour.

Criminal Suit Ruled Out In Tax Case

DES MOINES (U) — Criminal prosecution was ruled out Wednesday in the case of a high official of the State Tax Commission who allegedly returned irregular state income tax returns.

However, John Stevens, special assistant attorney general, suggested that a civil fraud penalty should be assessed.

Atty. Gen. Norman Erbe, who disclosed the irregularities, did not identify the official, who reportedly is high in the Tax Commission but not one of the three commissioners.

John O'Connor, Tax Commission chairman, said a study of the official's returns will be made to determine if a civil penalty should be assessed.

O'Connor said he believed the amount of the tax in question was "very small."

Stevens said his investigation uncovered certain irregularities regarding procedure in the Tax Commission office. He said the official in question filed amended tax returns for the years 1957 and 1958.

The official filed delinquent returns, which then were validated back to the date when they should have been filed, Stevens said.

"The integrity of the employees of the State Tax Commission should be impeachable," Stevens said.

He said he thought "a recommendation should be made to the commission to institute controls over such practices."

Proposal Study Adjournment Hits Aluminum Talks

CHICAGO (U) — Aluminum industry contract negotiators met for several hours Wednesday, then adjourned for study of proposals made by each side.

The proposals were tendered Tuesday by representatives of the United Steelworkers Union and the country's five major aluminum producers. Another bargaining session was tentatively set for Thursday.

Spokesmen for both sides denied published reports that the negotiators were working out a three-year contract similar to one negotiated by the steelworkers with the American Can Company and Continental Can Company. That contract granted workers benefits totaling 28.2 cents an hour.

Present hourly pay for production workers in the primary aluminum industry is around $2.99. A strike called for Aug. 1 was averted by a contract extension.

Enright, Lichy To Work O'Connor Fund Contest

With five members of "Bucky's Best" already set to play against the Phillips Oilers in the O'Connor Memorial Scholarship fund contest here Jan. 7, game directors are making final plans for the feature. In addition to such past stars for the late O'Connor as Bill Seaberg, Bill Logan, Sharm Scheuerman, Chuck Darling and Herb Thompson, there will also be some top talent from the officiating ranks for the game. On hand to work the ball game will be one of the most colorful officials in basketball today, Jim Enright.

Reds-Indians Trade Figures Voice Displeasure At Deal

CINCINNATI (AP)—The big baseball trade between Cincinnati and Cleveland, revolving around infielder Johnny Temple and pitcher Cal McLish, did not cause the players to believe they had received early Christmas gifts.

In fact, Temple, star second baseman, lead-off man and spark-plug of the Reds, was downright surprised and disappointed. He said he didn't want to be traded, then added he would do his best for Cleveland.

McLish, who won 19 games while losing only 8 for the Indians this year, said he had hoped to remain at Cleveland. Later he said he was satisfied.

And Billy Martin, one of the blunt young men, who also came to Cincinnati in the deal, blamed Manager Joe Gordon. "So I'm out of the American League now because Gordon doesn't like me," he said.

Only Gordon Coleman, a standout minor league first baseman, had nothing to say about being sent to the Reds in the package.

The deal was one of 15 completed during the new interleague three weeks' trading period, and was made just before the deadline midnight Tuesday.

Despite the players' remarks, will be one of the most colorful officials in basketball today, Jim Enright. The cigar-chewing referee, who also writes sports for the Chicago American and who was one of Bucky's favorite officials, never stops amazing spectators with his tactics on the floor and his uncanny ability to follow the play even though he will probably be by far the biggest man on the floor. Bucky felt his Fabulous Five played their best and steadiest ball when Enright was working the game.

The portly Chicagoan will be assisted by one of Iowa's most well-known whistle-blowers, Wayne Lichy, Lichy, Waterloo area farmer, is a veteran of several seasons in the Big Eight and only recently retired from officiating in the National Industrial Basketball League, the loop with which the Oilers are associated. Game receipts will go to the scholarship fund which is used to give aid to basketball and golf participants who show ability, need and scholastic qualities. Tickets can be ordered from the Iowa Athletic Department Business Office, Field House, Iowa City, Ia. Reserved seats are two dollars and general admission is one dollar.

Gabe Paul, general manager of the Cincinnati club, and Frank Lane, the Indians general manager, said they thought the exchange strengthened their clubs for the pennant races in the National and American leagues, respectively. The Reds tied for fifth place and Cleveland finished second.

D'Amato To Trial Feb. 8

NEW YORK (AP)—Fight Manager Cus D'Amato was ordered Wednesday to stand trial in special sessions Feb. 8 on a charge of failing to answer a subpoena—a violation of the general business law—from the attorney general's office.

The attorney general's office is one of three governmental agencies which have investigated or still are probing the promotional background of the June 26 Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson heavyweight title fight. D'Amato manages Patterson.

D'Amato lost a unanimous decision by a three-member panel on a demurrer which would have set aside any information concerning an alleged crime as insufficient.

Ramsey To Coach Buffalo Bills

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Garland "Buster" Ramsey, defensive coach of the Detroit Lions, Wednesday became the new American Football League's first coach as he was named to head the staff of the Buffalo Bills.

The appointment was announced by owner Ralph C. Wilson Jr. of Detroit.

Ramsey, a former All-America guard at William and Mary, has spent 14 seasons as a player and assistant coach in the National Football League.

Terms of his three-year contract with the Bills were not learned. At Detroit, Ramsey said the Bills already have signed some players and "part of my job will be to get out on the road and sign some more."

Ramsey, 39, is a native of Maryville, Tenn. He was an Associated Press All-America guard on William and Mary's Southern Conference championship team in 1942.

After World War II service, Ramsey joined the Chicago Cardinals in 1946. He ended a six-year playing career when he moved to the Lions as an assistant coach in 1952. He was instrumental in directing Detroit's tough defensive unit on the championship teams of 1952, '53 and '57.

Wilson has been the most active of the AFL owners in setting up his club. Five players already are under contract and Wilson says he has agreements with several others but cannot release names until after the bowl games.

Conerly Wins Hickok Award For November

NEW YORK (AP)—Charley Conerly, the veteran quarterback who led the New York Giants to the Eastern title of the National Football League, Wednesday was named winner of the November award in the S. Rae Hickok pro athlete of the year poll. This qualified Conerly for the pro athlete of the year voting and the $10,000 belt that goes to the winner.

Clark Insists No 'Pressure' Forced Him To Leave USC

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The skeptics continued to wonder, but Coach Don Clark insisted Wednesday that no pressure was exerted in his decision to quit the lucrative football job at the University of Southern California.

Clark handed over the coaching reins Wednesday to his chief assistant, John McKay, a former star halfback, during a news conference.

The 35-year-old Clark, whose tenure at his alma mater actually ends March 1, declared he has been considering leaving the coaching ranks for several years; even, he said, before he took the boss role at Southern Cal three years ago.

He admitted the profession is a risky one and added that he did not want to face the prospects of moving his family — he has seven youngsters — all over the country in future years.

Clark resigned to enter a factory clothing supply firm headed by his brother, John.

He denied specifically that the now-famed McKeever incident which involved the Trojans and the University of California had anything to do with his decision.

Guard Mike McKeever was accused of deliberately injuring a California player, Steve Bates. In the uproar that followed, President Norman Topping of USC publicly apologized for the mishap but Clark defended his player and the play itself as an accident.

Clark was asked if alumni — and possibly school — criticism of his team's defeats by UCLA and Notre Dame figured in his resignation. He said it did not.

Clark reportedly earned around $17,500. McKay will get around $15,000, it was reported.

GOOD LOOKING CROP

MIAMI (AP)—Ben Jones, Calumet's general manager, has 14 young race horses schooling at Hialeah and he likes the way they're learning their lessons.

"It's too early to guess what they can do," says the veteran trainer, "but I will say they look like one of the most promising crops." He wouldn't select any one yearling as the best.

College Football Attendance Increases 6th Straight Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Is college football suffering from the increasing popularity of the professional game? Is television losing its impact on the fans?

If it is suffering, the annual attendance survey by the NCAA Service Bureau doesn't show it. Neither does it prove that the colleges might not be doing better at the gate without these two kinds of competition.

The statistics, released Wednesday, show total attendance and average attendance at the home games of 623 colleges increased this season for the sixth straight year.

The total of 19,615,344 — about two million each Saturday of the season — fell somewhat short of the 1949 peak total, but the average of 31,479 a team was more than 2,500 above the 1949 figure. There were 59 more football-playing colleges a decade ago.

The NCAA surveys, begun in connection with the television program, show a steady decline from 1949 through 1953. Since then there has been an equally steady rise. But the total growth rate doesn't look especially high when compared to pro football's boom.

It works out this way. In 1949, average attendance for 682 colleges was 28,815 a team. By 1953 it had dropped to 26,993. Now it has climbed to 31,479. It works out to a 9.2 per cent increase over the previous high and 16.6 over the low mark.

The low year for the colleges, 1953, was a record breaker for the pros with 2,164,585 cash customers attending the 72 National Football League regular season games. Figures for the 1959 NFL season haven't been completed, but there's every indication it was the eighth straight record breaker. Last year the total was 3,006,124, averaging 41,752 a game.

Banks Tops 2 Fielding Marks In '59

CINCINNATI (AP)—Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs, who holds season records for grand slam homers and home runs by a shortstop, established two major league fielding records in 1959.

This was disclosed Wednesday with the release of the official fielding averages by the National League Service Bureau here. Banks' mark was .985. This was two points higher than the previous record set by Eddie Miller of the Boston Braves in 1942. Banks, who played in all of his team's 154 games, at short, made only 12 errors. The former low was 14 miscues established by Phil Rizzuto of the New York Yankees in 1950 and equaled by Roy McMillan of Cincinnati in 1958.

Banks accepted 790 chances, 271 putouts and 519 assists. In 1958, Ernie made 32 errors and finished with a .960 average.

The Dodgers had the highest team fielding average, .981.

Banks set the grand slam record in 1955 by hitting five, his homer record for shortstops is 47 made in 1958.

BOSTON (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, who owns one version of the world middleweight championship, said Wednesday he is working to gather all professional athletes into an organized union.

He said he has talked with New York businessman Bernard Gimbel and George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO "and they have encouraged me."

"As a matter of fact Teamsters President James Hoffa wanted to organize this thing for me and bring it into the Teamsters," Robinson said. "But then he got all that bad publicity I felt it wouldn't be a wise move."

Robinson was here for a tuneup bout in preparation for a Jan. 22 defense of his middleweight title, recognized in New York and Massachusetts, against Paul Pender, Brookline, Mass. Robinson scored a second-round TKO over Bob Young, Providence, R.I., in a non-title bout Monday.

Peace Of Mind Starts Scott On 6-Bout Streak

NEW YORK (AP) — Peace of mind is making Charley Scott more destructive in the ring.

So says the top-ranking welterweight contender from Philadelphia, and the record backs him. Charley has won six straight, including a ninth-round technical knockout of Sugar Hart. Hart was the No. 1 contender until that Oct. 19 defeat.

Scott, a crisp-punching left-hander, is favored to run his streak to seven Friday night when he meets Benny (Kid) Paret, the Cuban middleweight, in the television 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

The lithe youngster was just another good Philly welter until he started his winning streak a year ago by beating Jerry Black. Then he swept five in a row, including two over Ike Logart, and decisive conquests of Ralph Dupas and Hart.

What happened? "I had managerial troubles and problems at home," said Charley. "I couldn't concentrate. Then Norman Henry became manager and things got better at home, too. For a change all I had to worry about was fighting. And that was the easiest."

Thanks to the passing of quarterback Johnny Unitas and the receiving of Ray Berry, Lenny Moore, Jim Mutscheller and company, the Colts supplanted Pittsburgh for top honors in total yardage gained passing with 2,753 yards.

The Giants, with big Sam Huff holding up the middle of the line, showed they were the best defensive team against rushing for the second straight year. They allowed 12 opponents a total of 1,261 yards, an average of 3.3 yards on

The co-pilot of the Boxcar and Williams discuss various aspects of the trip, which included a tour of the Convair B-58 plant in Fort Worth, Tex.

Inspect Convair B-58 Plant During 3-Day Ft. Worth Trip

On Dec. 3, 20 SUI Air Force ROTC cadets took off from the Iowa City airport on a four-hour flight to Carswell Air Force Base, Fort Worth, Tex. Carswell is a Strategic Air Command base. The purpose of the trip was to acquaint the cadets with the workings of an air base and various types of planes. The cadets ate meals and slept at the base during their stay there. They returned to Iowa City Dec. 5.

SUI Air Force cadets take similar trips to other air bases throughout the school year. The trips are usually on weekends and the cost to the cadets is nominal.

Final Guess At Corn Crop New Record

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa's 1959 corn crop was estimated at 830,346,000 bushels Wednesday, more than 150 million bushels above the 1948 record.

The corn crop also set a new high for acres harvested and equalled the record for average yield per acre.

However, in estimates made by the Agriculture Department in its final report of the year, corn was the only Iowa crop which showed a production increase in 1959.

Estimates of soybeans, oats, grain sorghum, wheat, barley, rye and hay were below the 1958 levels.

The estimated 12 1/2 million acres of corn harvested bettered the previous high of 11 million acres in 1932, and compensated for wet spring and falls which hampered planting and harvesting of corn.

The average corn yield per acre was set at 66 bushels, equaling a revised estimate of last year's record average.

The 1959 production was 46 per cent higher than the 1948-57 average production of 566 million bushels.

Rainy weather delayed spring planting, and snow and rain kept farmers out of the fields during harvest time. The Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said 20 per cent of the corn had not been picked by Nov. 30, compared with the average of 5 per cent on that date.

But hot August nights matured the corn rapidly and nearly all the crops were prepared before the first killing frost.

Production of oats this year dropped because only about 4 million acres were harvested, the smallest planting since 1897.

Publishers' Case Under Advisement

DES MOINES (AP) — A motion by several magazine publishers to strike out all allegations of obscenity regarding publications ordered off Iowa newsstands by Atty. Gen. Norman Erbe was taken under advisement Wednesday by Federal District Judge Robert Van Pelt.

Erbe and attorneys for the publishers met with Judge Van Pelt in a closed pretrial conference.

The judge said, after the conference, that he would arrive at a decision on the motion in the next three or four days.

If the motion is sustained, Judge Van Pelt said, no jury will be called to hear the case in a trial set for Jan. 18.

The attorneys contended that Erbe's crackdown on alleged obscene literature constitutes prior restraint and asked that an injunction be issued to stop the attorney general's campaign.

Santa And 'Customer'

'Remodeled' Santa Keeps Kids Happy

By ARDIS DIGSBY Staff Writer

"And a 'lectric train and a gun — and a truck." A five-year-old spoke to Santa Nick at his headquarters at 11-13 Washington St. in the former Meyers Lator Company Building.

When he had wished the youngster "Merry Christmas" and cautioned him not to fight with his sister, Santa Claus walked through the curtains into a room littered with boxes, removed his beard and became Frank Smith, an amiable grandfather from West Liberty.

"It's been a busy time here since Thanksgiving," Smith said, adjusting the pillow stomach under the red velvet suit. He is hired by the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce to work from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on week days; 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays, and until 9 p.m. on Monday and Friday nights.

"The kids ask me about my reindeer sometimes," Smith said, "and I tell them I came in on the rocket because there is too much traffic for the reindeer."

Smith, who is now retired, used to live in Iowa City when he worked for Sears, Roebuck and Company. He has two grandchildren — a girl, 13, and a boy, 21.

Speaking of requests from the children, he said that ponies and rifles seem to be the two most popular items this Christmas. His procedure when talking to the children is to watch their mothers for clues. When they nod, he knows that the gift the child requested is one he is likely to receive, and Santa says that he will try to bring it.

A number of very small boys have asked for real rifles, he said. "Usually I tell them to wait until they are a little older because they wouldn't want to hurt anybody." This argument seems to convince them, he said.

Not all Santa's visitors are preschoolers. His red suit also doubles as a cupid outfit. Recently a young man from SUI came in and confessed that what he wanted for Christmas was a girl.

Omaha Officers Think Connection Between Attacks

OMAHA (AP) — Omaha police said Wednesday there could be a connection between a recent molestation case and the stabbing Monday night of 18-year-old Carol Ann Snellenberg.

The Creighton University coed was shown a 17-year-old white youth who fitted some of the details of her description of the one who stabbed her 10 times, but she could not identify him. He was released.

However, when interviewed in the hospital she said she wasn't quite sure of the color of her attacker's hair, which she had previously described as blond. This led police to conjecture he might have been the same youth who seized an 18-year-old high school student Tuesday but fled when she bit his hand.

The other molestation cases are under investigation.

Lloyd To Appear With The Minneapolis Symphony

David Lloyd, associate professor in the SUI Department of Music, will be the guest soloist Friday evening for a concert by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra in Minneapolis. He will appear with the orchestra in Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

Lloyd appeared Tuesday and Wednesday in Iowa City as soloist with the SUI University chorus and orchestra in presentation of "The Messiah."

A tenor, the SUI professor has sung with many of the leading symphony orchestras in the U.S. and abroad. Several weeks ago he appeared as guest soloist with the St. Louis Symphony and is scheduled to perform with the Detroit, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestras later in the school year.

In September, Lloyd made three appearances in the Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and last summer he participated in Colorado's Central City Opera Festival. He joined the SUI faculty in September as an associate professor of music and has recently organized an opera department at SUI.

During the 1958-59 concert season he appeared as soloist and in recitals throughout the United States. He performed with the New York Philharmonic in Handel's "St. John Passion," and was featured with the Concert-Opera Group in the presentation of Mozart's "Così fan Tutte" in some 20 cities.

During his 1957-58 concert schedule, he was heard with the New York City Opera and in the NBC opera telecast of Poulenc's "The Dialogues of the Caremites." As an orchestral soloist, Lloyd has sung with such major symphonies as those of Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Washington and Pittsburgh.

Rookie Patrolman Addis, Former SUIowan, Omitted From Honor Role

MONTREAL (AP) — Thirty-one Montreal policemen found 55 parking tickets on their patrol cars parked in a reserved area behind headquarters this week. The puzzled cops were told a rookie cop did not know the space was reserved for police cars and took a no parking sign literally.

An omission was made in Wednesday's list of new members elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic society. Laird C. Addis, a 1959 graduate of SUI and now a graduate student at Brown University, Providence, R.I., was also elected.

Christmas GREETINGS

On this greatest day in Christendom you have our heartfelt good wishes for the very best that life can bring.

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Ceasar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed.

2 (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)

3 And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

4 And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, (because he was of the house and lineage of David.)

5 To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

6 And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

7 And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

8 And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

9 And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid.

10 And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

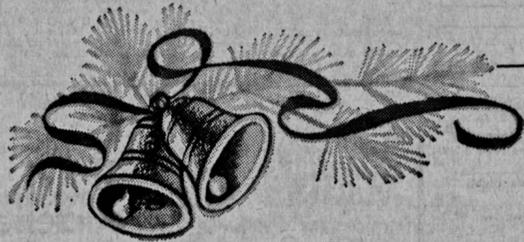

11 For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

12 And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

13 And suddenly there was with the angels a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying,

14 Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.
