

SUIowans Welcome You to Old Gold Days!

Expect Over 700 Students For Program

Purpose: Emphasize Higher Education To High Schoolers

According to pre-registration over 700 high school students are expected to arrive today, and tomorrow for Old Gold Days. The third annual Old Gold Days program has been planned to appeal to Iowa's top high school students, who have been invited to attend.

Fred Glassman, A3, Iowa City, feels the increase in numbers attending is due to the influence of the new purpose which is emphasizing higher education. "We are especially pleased to see schools participating who never have before," Glassman said.

Many towns in the northwest and northeast parts of Iowa will be represented for the first time. A group of eight will represent Mason City, with a number of students coming from as far east as Illinois. Two students will represent Moline and La Grange, Ill. Other Illinoisans will be here. The town best represented with ninety students participating in the program will be Iowa City.

Campus Relations Group At Work

A new committee has been added to the Old Gold Days program this year — the Campus Relations Committee.

The purpose of this group is to create an awareness of the SUI campus of Old Gold Days and the benefits which can be derived from it, both from the position of the high school visitors and the University students.

Last year it became apparent that the SUI students didn't realize the purpose of Old Gold Days, and those who did know the purpose didn't realize how they could contribute to the program. This year there has been an effort to point out how important every student at the University is to the program.

The members of the Campus Relations committee have prepared posters, contacted newspapers and radio stations in the Iowa City area so the students, as well as residents of the area, will know what Old Gold Days is and why it is becoming more significant every year.

Top Seniors at Training School

Top high school seniors from all over the state, selected on the basis of scholarship and leadership by their school principals, will attend the annual Old Gold Days Leadership Training school Saturday.

The training school will be held at 1 p.m. in the House Chamber of the Old Capital.

Sara Schindler, A4, Albia, student co-chairman of leadership school will preside. Robert F. Ray, professor and director of the Institute of Public Affairs, will speak at the general meeting which will open the training school.

Following the general meeting a panel discussion will be presented with Samuel Hays, professor of history, Loren Hickerson, director of SUI alumni association; Diane Cherry, A4, Cincinnati, Ohio; Lloyd Humphreys, A4, Iowa City; William Sutton, B4, Red Oak and Margie Ladd, A4, Iowa City, taking part.

A closing address will be given by Virgil M. Hancher, president of SUI on "Your Challenge and the Future."

It is estimated that over 100 high school students will attend the training school.

Problem Forum Added This Year

A new addition to the Old Gold Days program is the College Problem Forum which has been developed by Fred Glassman, A3, Iowa City, chairman of the Old Gold Days Program.

This program is set up for the high school visitors who do not attend the Leadership School.

At the Forum, Judy Clark, A4, Cedar Falls, president of Student Council; David Brodsky, A4, Iowa City, SUI Forensics and Debate Team, and M. L. Muft, dean of Students and director of the Office of Student Affairs will discuss problems of concern to the

LSU Dean Is Charged In Murder

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Sheriff's deputies Thursday charged brilliant Dr. George H. Mickey, 49, dean of the Louisiana State University graduate school, in the savage weekend slaying of a woman biologist teacher.

The internationally known scientist has been questioned several times since the body of 39-year-old Dr. Margaret McMillan, her head hacked 13 times from behind, was found dead on a country lane south of the LSU campus here.

Dist. Atty. J. St. Clair Favrot, who signed the warrant for Mickey's arrest, said there was no statement. Mickey's attorneys said he would make no statement for the press.

Favrot said the East Baton Rouge Parish grand jury is scheduled to meet Feb. 16. Earlier in the day, Kling said briefly that his men had questioned two or three persons during the morning and planned to question more in the afternoon.

The search centered around Louisiana State University. The sheriff's detectives sought information from anyone who knew the 39-year-old woman professor on the campus here before she took a teaching post at the LSU branch in New Orleans.

Mickey is a biologist known internationally in the field of genetics. Kling said Dr. Mickey was questioned extensively at his consent because "he knew her so well."

Snow Tricks!

Iowa Officials Chase A 'Helpless Airplane'

WEST BEND (AP) — As snow swirled and the wind howled in this part of north Iowa Thursday night the State Highway Patrol received a report of a plane apparently in trouble while flying over West Bend.

Three patrol cars, two sheriff's cars and the town marshal's car converged near the spot where a West Bend man said he first heard the "plane" flying a triangular distress course.

The cars turned on their lights trying to direct a course to the Algona Airport 15 miles from here. Air stations at Fort Dodge and Mason City tried to talk to the "pilot" but received no answer.

Finally state patrolmen found the source of the airplane sound. It was a humming power line a half mile southwest of here, vibrating in the wind.

Something for Everyone—

'The Frogs' — No Croaker

—Best Play of Season

By RICHARD POWER
Daily Iowan Reviewer

"The Frogs" by Aristophanes, which opened last night at the University Theatre, bids fair to pack them in more solidly than any production so far this season. It has something for everyone, pantomime sketches, glamor, music hall jokes, slapstick, not to mention a very contemporary debate between rival schools of poetry.

With the program, comes a cautionary note which points out that Aristophanes is often taken too seriously. Well, he isn't in this production, as the most academic of Greek scholars will gather from the opening moment.

The program note also says that the production, while staying as close to the letter of Aristophanes as possible, attempts to show how his comic spirit transcends his own times and to catch the gaiety, music and color that would have delighted the audience at the first presentation. Whatever about the letter of Aristophanes (and how many will insist on that?), the claim is justified many times over. An imaginative production carries the play along, continually delighting the eye and ear.

From the first startled moment, when we are invited to follow the adventures of the still-legged, husky-voiced, harridan-faced Dionysus and his grumbling slave Xanthias (admirably played by Robert Meadors and James Ellis) we are prepared to be taken anywhere. And we are.

We journey with them over the Styx to the synopacted caperings of a chorus of frogs, in which even Charon and his boat join. We meet sex-kittens and fairy-tale monsters, ably represented by Miss Martie Chapman and Mrs. James Colby.

Sleet, Snow Jolt Iowans; It's January

Old Man Winter hit Iowa Thursday with every tool at his disposal — from rain and sleet to snow and howling winds — jolting Iowans and refreshing the memory of those who had forgotten this is January.

Snow accumulation of four inches and more is expected in the northwest by this morning with smaller amounts across the rest of the state.

Highways will be hazardous across the state today. Many were already snow packed by Thursday afternoon.

Heavy rains in the last few days kept rivers on the rise. The English River south of Iowa City overflowed into lowland areas along Highway 218 between Riverside and Lone Tree. Some farm land east and west of Kalona is flooded as are the basements of some homes in the town.

Between Riverside and Lone Tree, near the confluence of the English and Iowa rivers, flood waters fill ditches along Highway 22. Three cabins built on stilts in the area also are in the water.

Army Engineers at the Coralville Dam north of Iowa City continued to hold back water from the rising Iowa. Otherwise, flooding between Lone Tree and Riverside would be worse.

The level of the Coralville Reservoir is above 665 feet above sea level. The normal stage for January is 680 feet.

The Engineers said they will continue to hold most of the on-rushing water until the crest on the English has passed. This is expected sometime tonight or Saturday.

As a result of the decreased flow from the reservoir, the Iowa's stage at Iowa City dropped from eight feet Wednesday to 1.93 feet Thursday.

WANTS ROLLS ROYCE

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese government has asked Parliament to appropriate $34,000 to buy Emperor Hirohito a new Rolls Royce and an Arabian stallion. The horse will be used to sire better animals to pull the imperial carriage. The Rolls will be added to the Emperor's stable of seven cars, the newest a 1957 Rolls.

U.S. Wants International Disarmament

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States challenged Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev Thursday to follow through on his troop cutback proposal by agreeing to an effective international disarmament plan.

As for itself, it said the United States is "prepared to go as far toward safeguarded disarmament as any other country."

State Department press officer Lincoln White issued the U.S. reply to Khrushchev's Moscow speech while U.S. strategists studied the Soviet Premier's text.

Khrushchev announced the Soviet Union will cut its armed forces from 3,623,000 to 2,423,000 men over the next couple years, and will quit production of manned bombers while pushing ahead with production of powerful missiles.

Initial reaction here was that Khrushchev is reorganizing, not disarming his forces and trying at the same time to reap propaganda benefit from the move.

"A masterpiece of propaganda effectiveness," was the description applied by Sen. Hubert M. Humphrey (D-Minn.), chairman of the Senate Disarmament subcommittee.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said Khrushchev "holds out an olive branch and at the same time tries to hit us over the head with it." Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, the assistant Senate Republican leader, said the Soviet Premier apparently was announcing only a shift from men and planes to missiles.

Rep. Thomas E. Morgan (D-Pa.), chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said Khrushchev's speech was a combination of boasting and propaganda and "should not be allowed to affect our foreign policy in any way."

The State Department statement focused on the 10-nation East-West disarmament talks slated to start in Geneva March 15 in declaring America's readiness "for safeguarded disarmament."

"It is hoped," the statement said, "that this announcement by the Soviet Union is an indication of its willingness to participate in the forthcoming negotiations in the same spirit."

Developing 'Fantastic Weapon' That Tops Bombs, Missiles

MOSCOW (HTNS)—Premier Khrushchev Thursday called for a cut-back of 1,200,000 men in the Soviet armed forces in the next year or two and said he hoped the Western powers would initiate similar moves. There are 3,623,000 men in uniform now in the USSR.

At the same time, Khrushchev disclosed that the Soviet Union is "hatching" what he called "a fantastic weapon" vastly more formidable than the hydrogen and atomic-tipped bombs and missiles he said now are stock-piled here. He did not elaborate.

The Soviet leader voiced his troop cutback proposal at a joint session of the Supreme Soviet, this country's version of Parliament. He said he was certain the Supreme Soviet "will unanimously approve" his proposal. The Supreme Soviet never rejects any measure proposed by the Government.

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union will demobilize 1,200,000 of its 3,623,000 uniformed service men "in a year, or a year and a half, if not two years" to demonstrate "our country's intentions are most peaceful." He said the USSR "earnestly hopes other nations will do likewise."

But the cut-back will not jeopardize the USSR's security or diminish its military power, he told the Supreme Soviet delegates. The forces remaining in uniform will be equipped with the newest and most powerful weapons, he went on, and their capacity "will increase many-fold in terms of quality."

The Soviet Union now has highly refined weapons of the latest type, stockpiles of atomic and hydrogen arms and intercontinental ballistic missiles "of various types" he declared. "If any nation should assault the USSR," he warned in a promise of massive retaliation, the Soviet Union could and would reply with weapons that would "virtually wipe off the face of the earth any country or countries attacking us."

In such a war the Soviet Union would suffer less than its attackers because the USSR has vast spaces and fewer population centers than Western nations, he said. Such a war, he went on, would cause great damage and losses here, but it would be the end of Capitalism.

Khrushchev said the troop cut-back he outlined would be helpful in several ways for the USSR. It would release more than 1,000,000 men for working in the factories and on the farms here, he said, and thus off-set the shortage of labor needed to carry out the seven year plan.

It would mean a savings of 16,217,000,000 rubles yearly, he said. That is about one-sixth of the 1960 defense budget of 96.1 billion rubles. (The nominal exchange rate is 4 rubles to $1 and the "tourist" rate is 10 rubles to $1.)

But in proposing the cut-back, the Soviet Government "is not chasing rubles at the risk of exposing the lives of our people and the very existence of our country to danger," Khrushchev insisted.

"It is not out of economy of budgetary weakness, but out of strength and power that we are choosing to cut our armed forces," he declared.

The Soviet leader was applauded repeatedly as he spoke to the Supreme Soviet delegates in the grand hall of the Kremlin Palace. His audience included his wife, and most of the foreign diplomats here. All listened intently throughout the Soviet leader's three-hour speech.

He first discussed internal affairs, reviewing 1959 and pronouncing it a good year, then he swung into an appraisal of foreign affairs before moving on to his troop cut-back proposal.

He said he was pleased that a Summit meeting had been scheduled and assured the world of smaller nations that the larger countries were not going to prejudice their interests at that session. He said international tensions were easing, but charged there still are some cold war partisans in the West, including ex-president Harry S. Truman, ex-secretary of state Dean Acheson, and New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller. Khrushchev was harshly critical of Western Germany and Chancellor Adenauer.

Shifting to his troop cut-back proposal which, if effected, seemingly would mean fewer men here in uniform than in the United States, Khrushchev disclosed details of past and present troop enrollment never made public here before.

He seemed especially intent on convincing the Supreme Soviet delegates that his proposed troop cut-back would not jeopardize this nation's security. In pursuing this point, he branched into a broad review of military doctrine and tactics.

Because of the power and speed of weapons today, fewer men are needed for conventional type military duties, he said, recalling concepts expounded by some United States defense planners. But a thinning of troops will not affect the Soviet Union's powerful defenses or striking power, he continued. The USSR has dispersed its rocket bases so they cannot be knocked out with one assault and those rockets which would remain intact after such an assault could be hauled back at any attacker, he promised.

Soviet forces increasingly are being converted through nuclear and rocket units he said. Military aviation here is of decreasing importance, he went on, as are surface ships. Submarines are becoming more important, he said. The USSR will continue producing atomic and hydrogen weapons and perfecting its missiles until all of them are outlawed internationally, he continued.

Kennedy Tells Reasons for Rejecting Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) said Thursday he did accept — and then cancel — an invitation to speak at a 1950 inter-faith meeting in Philadelphia related to the building of a memorial chapel to four chaplains of the armed services who died in World War II.

Kennedy told the National Press Club he canceled his acceptance because he was informed that some clergymen of his faith, the Roman Catholic, were upset and because the chapel was located in the sacristy of a Baptist church.

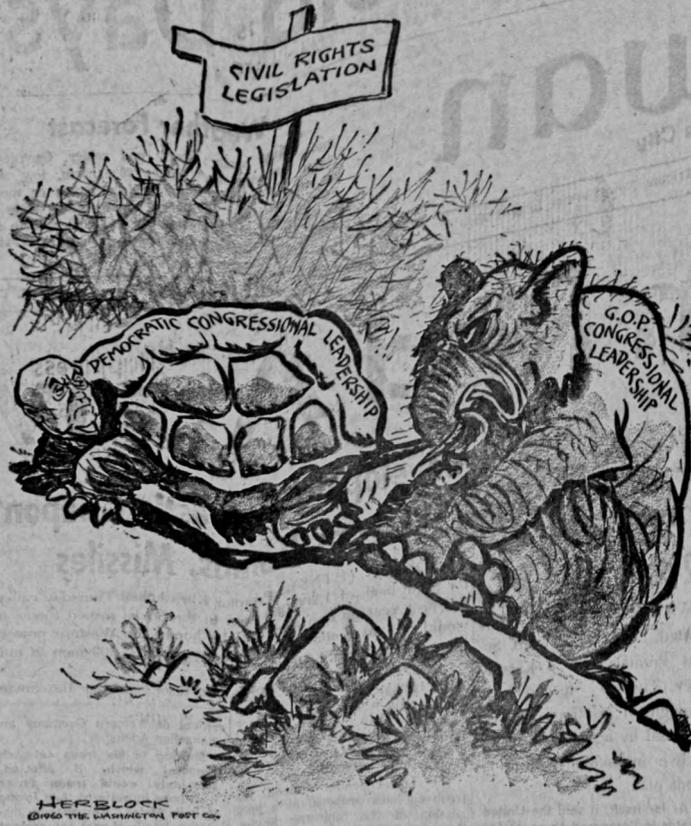

Thursday night, Kennedy issued a statement saying that he had been invited to attend as a spokesman for the Catholic faith and that, under the circumstances, he felt he had no credentials to attend in that capacity.

Kennedy's first remarks Thursday were in response to questions at a press club luncheon. They and Thursday's night's statement bore on a matter that came into controversy last fall as a result of an article by the Rev. Dr. Daniel W. Poling, a Protestant clergyman and editor of the Christian Herald.

Rev. Poling — in relation to the question of whether a Catholic would be influenced in his actions as president by the views of the Church — wrote in the Herald that Dennis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia had got Kennedy to withdraw as a speaker for the inter-faith meeting.

Rev. Poling said the meeting at which Kennedy had been invited to speak was a civic occasion "not in a Protestant church, but on neutral ground in a hotel."

Rev. Poling noted mention of Kennedy as the possible Democratic nominee, and said Kennedy had declared firm support for the principle of separation of church and state.

Student Help Needed

Fred Glassman, student chairman of the Old Gold Days program, has issued an appeal for student participation in the weekend activities. We hope he gets some good response. Glassman points out that although some 200 SUUowans are working on various committees for the program, the general support of the student body is needed to make Old Gold Days a success.

The chairman urges students to make an effort to show high school visitors around the campus and to answer their questions about college life.

Another way students can help out is in connection with the Administrator-Freshman Conferences. At these meetings, scheduled for Saturday morning, freshmen will have an opportunity to talk with administrators from their former high schools about their college experiences. Students will have a chance to offer suggestions for changes in their high school's curriculum which they think would benefit those preparing for college.

Many SUI freshmen have been sent post cards about the discussions so they can be prepared with suggestions for the administrators.

According to Chairman Glassman, the purpose of the two-day program is to acquaint prospective college students with opportunities in higher education. This is something of a switch on previous years when the emphasis was on promotion of SUI.

"This year," says Glassman, "we are stressing higher education rather than strictly SUI in all our activities though we will be using our school as an example of higher education."

All this seems to us important and worthwhile. Along with Chairman Glassman, we urge students to pitch in to help Old Gold Days accomplish its aims.

More Efficient Use

The lack of classroom facilities already is a problem confronting many colleges. Swelling enrollments predicted for the next decade promise even greater shortages.

Usually the only solution proposed to the space problem is expanded facilities. A recent report in the New York Times suggests, however, that another solution would be the more efficient use of present facilities.

The report notes that Monday, Wednesday and Friday are the busiest days of the week in college classrooms — but "busiest" means only that they are used about 45 per cent of the day. The average Monday through Friday classroom use, based on a 44-hour week, is 40 per cent. Laboratories are used only 25 per cent of the week.

The report also discusses the use of space when rooms are occupied. Each student, according to the report, uses an average of 19 square feet per classroom, and 10 square feet per laboratory. The study found that when classrooms are occupied only 51 per cent of the available space is used. For laboratories, utilization is only 56 per cent.

An Eye That Sees—

'Friday's Footprint'

—Right to the Center

By JOHN K. HUTCHENS
Herald Tribune News Service

FRIDAY'S FOOTPRINT: Twelve stories and a novella. By Nadine Gordimer. Viking, 244 pages, $3.95.

She is "a born writer and a poet," said Lewis Gannett in these columns, hailing Nadine Gordimer's first novel, "The Laying Days," back in 1953. If one may say so who somewhat shamefacedly admits that he is meeting the art of Miss Gordimer for the first time in this book, nothing about it contradicts that early judgment. Reading these 12 stories and a novella, it must occur to you that, yes, Miss Gordimer is a born writer, in the sense that a composer is a born musician. That she is a poet, in her intensity of vision and her precision of execution, there would seem to be no doubt whatever.

Hers is the eye that sees right to the center, undistracted by irrelevancies, and this is the sure mark of her high professionalism as a craftsman and her instinct as an artist. Like other masters of the short-story form, she sometimes comes upon a character at a point just this side of a significant moment in his or her life, dips back into that life for explanatory detail, and drives ahead to a climax.

Sometimes, but not always. With equal skill she can develop a tale in the beginning-middle-end technique, or tell it all in one long flashback. It says much about her virtuosity that these stories have appeared in — but never seem tailored for — magazines as various as "The New Yorker," "Mademoiselle," "Cosmopolitan," and "Encounter."

Without exception they are set in Miss Gordimer's native Africa. Since it is a very big place indeed, her range of settings is accordingly extensive — from Cairo to Johannesburg, with stops along the way in jungle rivers where crocodiles lurk. Yet here, as I gather has not yet been the case in her previous work, locale is not of the essence. The fearful African drama of black and white in uneasy juxtaposition obtrudes rarely and only obliquely.

The human problems into which Miss Gordimer gazes would be recognizably at home almost anywhere.

Irony permeates many of the tales. Observe, in "Our Bovary," the woman who had been a teenage bride, came into her own lucidly in her thirties and won the scorn of her watchful neighbors in a Johannesburg suburb and, after her decline into illness and age, is remembered by them as a figure of glamour. In "A Style Of Her Own," it is a woman who having exchanged the role of a satyr's mistress for that of his wife, suffers the torture of the betrayed. In the title story, "Friday's Footprint," it is still another woman who is undone, this one by a sense of guilt in retrospect.

In these and other short dramas (for Miss Gordimer's stories invariably build dramatically) what is important about a character is revealed in a flash, frequently in a single spoken word, and now and then by a silence. In her way she is a kind of distiller, occasionally so elliptical in her effects that what actually has happened, or what she wants us to believe will happen later, remains unclear.

In this respect, or so it seems to me, at least two stories fail, not to be rescued by the chiseled perfection of her phrasing. For the rest, including the novella which concludes the book and is the stuff of a long novel beautifully condensed, one admires.

One admires — but, if it may be said without ingratitude, one is not warmed. Like Elizabeth Bowen, Miss Gordimer is so near to perfection within her chosen area that the spectator looks on with something like awe but without that sense of involvement which less artfully exact writers invite. He remains a spectator who takes away with him an impression of cool precision but not a memory of personal experience. That is the way it is, anyhow, with one new member of Miss Gordimer's audience.

Flotsam and Jetsam

By JUDY KLEMESRUD
Assistant City Editor

Last fall a West Coast fraternity pledge choked to death on a piece of raw liver soaked in oil. We're glad that our SUI fraternities don't believe in such tomfoolery. They aim their activities at a much higher level — such as staying all night in a haunted house, and sending a $13 telegram to Brigitte and son.

AAU has a new meaning in Iowa City: Assinine And Unreasonable. Following the postponement of the "Fabulous Five" Oilers basketball game last week, one SUI student came up with this idea: How about 10 students playing a marathon basketball game until $1,000 (or more) is donated to some charitable cause—the Bucky O'Connor Memorial Fund, the March of Dimes, etc?

CAMPUS LANDMARK No. 12 — Geology Building. Location: Across from its Skid Row coeval, Old Dental Building. The Geology Building provides an apt setting for its majors, since it is one of the biggest old fossils around.

The owner of a local ambulance service claims the Iowa City police are invading his business. Perhaps the boys find that playing nurse is about the safest job these days, especially after a squad car "disappeared" last fall. I guess mystery isn't confined to Guttenberg alone.

Now is the time for all good students to start advocating a longer spring vacation. Many schools have two weeks around Easter. What do you think?

Governor Loveless told two DI reporters Wednesday that he had "mixed emotions" concerning the proposed Guest House addition, and this was one reason, he said, why he let the capital appropriations bill pass last spring without his signature. The governor also said that he "is aware" that many SUI students are against the Guest House.

An ancient Chinese shirt was recently made public. The entire shirt was covered with 5,000 answers for a tough civil service test. Will the local haberdashers get a supply in time for our finals?

QUERY OF THE WEEK: Why do the movie theaters all play top movies one weekend, and "B" flicks the next?

This is Old Gold Days week, the time to really show the high schoolers how much SUI has to offer. We're stressing the intellectual aspects of the University, and we have plenty to be proud of. This is probably the main difference between ISU's Veisha and our Old Gold Days, and affords one area where we CAN compete with our sister school. The stage is set and the high schoolers are the judges — let's really give it to 'em!

Britain and the Welfare State—

People Don't Starve Now; The State Won't Allow It

About the Author

Miss Burford is an SUI graduate student from Wimbledon, England. She is one of 131 outstanding students from 35 nations who have been awarded Rotary Foundation fellowships for study abroad during the academic year 1959-1960.

Since her arrival in September, Miss Burford has spoken at Rotary Club meetings in both Iowa and Illinois, discussing the social welfare state in England, the National Health Service, and the British educational system.

Miss Burford was awarded a Rotary fellowship in competition with more than 60 students in England. She attended Cambridge University, where she was among the first presidents of the Cambridge University Women's Union. She received an honors degree in history in 1957 and is studying American history and literature at SUI.

Miss Burford has also studied at the Sorbonne in Paris, the University of Florence in Italy, and the University of Innsbruck in Austria. Since receiving her degree from Cambridge, she has become a law student at Gray's Inn and plans to work for the bar examinations upon her return from the United States.

would have been poor now get their children's schooling free, with free meals and even clothing allowances at school, all medical care, and if they qualify, cheap homes (of the luxury modern contemporary style rather like Burge Hall), and legal aid. Along with other people in Great Britain they eat some subsidized food (e.g., eggs). In fact, while the erstwhile "working class" man may not be any happier than Mr. Micawber, financially and physically he is a great deal better off.

Metaphorically, you cannot starve in Britain because nobody would let you. This is a fact that seems to annoy a group of writers loosely classified as the "Angry Young Men."

The overall standard of living in Great Britain is higher than it has ever been before.

To maintain the way of life in Great Britain means relatively high taxation (though it is a curious fact that with over 50 million people in Great Britain, the cost of the whole of our welfare services does not amount to even one per cent of the American expenditure on defence each year). As in the United States it is a graded system of taxation. The result of this is that after taxation incomes in Great Britain fall between $700 and $2,800. Less than one per cent of the population has an income of over $5,600 after taxation each year.

The advance of the welfare state has led to a change in the attitude to wealth. It certainly affects traditional theories of property rights, for, for example, you have a right to schooling and health care paid for by the state.

There has always been a difference between American and British attitude toward individual wealth. (To give one example of this, in Great Britain the civil honours list would be considered a more valued yardstick of success than the ability to accumulate money.) But nowadays with the concept of the welfare state in Britain, to have money is less important to the individual than it is to the individual in America.

Could Ike Legally Run For Veep?

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Of this, we can be sure: If Dwight D. Eisenhower should decide to run for vice president, he would set the greatest constitutional binges in its history.

Eisenhower himself suggested the strange possibility at his news conference Wednesday.

The transcript reads: "The only thing I know about the presidency the next time is, I can't run. (laughter). But someone has raised the question that if I were invited, would I constitutionally run for vice president, and you might ask — you might find out about that one. I don't know. (laughter)."

Well, this is a laughing matter now, for everyone knows Eisenhower isn't about to run for the vice presidency. But he did raise a point that seems to have baffled the 22nd Amendment.

"No person shall be elected to the office of the president more than twice," says the amendment. "And no person who has held the office of president, or acted as president, for more than two years of a term to which some other person was elected president shall be elected to the office of the president more than once."

In short, Eisenhower has had it, so far as elections go. But what if he ran for vice president? And, if elected, could he step up if the president were to die?

All right. Let's talk with Chester James Antieau at the Georgetown Law School.

"You caught me cold on this one," Antieau said. "But I think, I suspect, he can. As I read it (the 22nd Amendment), it's only a bar against election."

All right. A lot of people have been saying the 22nd Amendment is no good and should be kicked out. They say it puts a bar on elections that should be left for the people to decide.

In all the discussions no one seems to have thought about a president, having served his legal limit, getting another potential whack at it by serving as veep.

But an anti-22nd Amendment leader, Rep. Stewart L. Udall (D-Ariz.), says: "As I construe it, the amendment doesn't prohibit any vice president from stepping up."

Good Listening— Today On WSUI

THE MARRIAGE OF FIGARO is the Evening at the Opera presentation at 7:30 p.m. One reference work closes its remarks about the opera with these words: "Its wonderful cheerfulness and vital sympathy appeal to every listener, and its bright, free, joyous tone from beginning to end is no less fascinating than the exquisite melodies with which Mozart has so richly adorned it... the best test of the work is, that in its third century it is as fresh and bright and popular as ever." Tonight's recording is the Glyndebourne Festival production under the direction of Fritz Busch.

MUSIC TO GET MARRIED BY (for example, The Tempest, by Tchaikovsky) will precede the opera from 6 p.m. to 7:30. Items of interest in addition to that already noted are: Trio in E Major by Mozart; La Bonne Chanson by Faure; and Concerto for Four Viols by K. P. E. Bach.

BACK TO TONIGHT and the FM transmission from 7 p.m. to 10. A Mozart piano concerto will be featured.

The JAZZ Scene

By GREG MORRIS
Daily Iowan Columnist

Many good things are coming up in the near future for jazz enthusiasts and their fellow travelers. This Sunday afternoon the Modern Jazz Society is having its first meeting of the new year. The guest speaker will be our advisor, Dr. Norman Williams, and his topic will deal with East Coast-West Coast jazz and whether or not there is, or ever was, a difference in the two. The time the proceedings commence is 3 p.m. and the place is the North River Room of the Union. Should be great fun, so how about coming around?

I have received the word from one who knows that Ahmad Jamal and his trio are making an appearance on our scene on Feb. 11, at the swinging hour of 8 p.m. The "ball" is to be held in the Main Lounge of the Union. Many of you have drooled, etc., over his recordings. Now's your chance to hear him in the rough. Knowing Jamal and his sounds, I think it promises to be a choice set.

Another tasty tidbit: the great J.J. Johnson, the man who perennially places first in everybody's trombone section, is making an appearance at Parsons College in Fairfield, Iowa, on the 18th of February. This is really a fine opportunity because, to the best of my knowledge, J. J. doesn't make too many tours. If any persons are interested in going and have no transport, get in touch with me and I'll see what I can do. No promises, but I'll do my best.

And one other note of interest to some: The University of Notre Dame is sponsoring its second annual Collegiate Jazz Festival on March 18th and 19th. I have a few applications for musicians who might wish to compete for a spot on one of their shows. See Jim Longstaff, WSUI's Rhythm Rambler, or me, and we'll give you the complete lowdown. It is a very well thought of affair. Such jazz notables as the Duke of Ellington, Stan the Man, and Rev. Norman O'Connor give it their hearty support.

The winning small group receives, among other things, a booking into Chicago's famous Blue Note, and the winning large group receives a billing in the Detroit Jazz Festival, held later in the year. And in addition to these, the groups receive a trophy for their respective schools. Just think of how you will rise in stature in the eyes of your old Alma Mater if you bring home the bacon! Seriously, it is a very worthwhile festival, so if you're interested in playing there, let us know.

SUI To Host Band Clinic Jan. 21-23

Iowa band conductors and their students will find a busy schedule of musical events — including clinic sessions, lectures and concerts — when they attended the third annual Iowa Band Clinic at SUI Jan. 21-23.

Three guest artists will be on the SUI campus to help with the clinic. James Burke, noted cornetist, will be guest soloist with the SUI Band at the group's mid-winter concert Jan. 21. The concert, which opens the Band Clinic, is open to the public. Tickets will be distributed at the Information Desk, Iowa Memorial Union beginning Wednesday, Jan. 20.

During the conference the Williamsburg High School Band, directed by Robert Gower, and the Davenport High School Band, directed by F. E. Mortiboy, will present individual concerts.

Melloh Appointed Engineering Dean

DES MOINES — Professor Arthur W. Melloh of the University of New Mexico faculty Thursday was named professor of electrical engineering and dean of the SUI College of Engineering by the State Board of Regents.

Professor Melloh's appointment will be effective July 1. As head of the SUI Engineering College he succeeds Dean Francis M. Dawson, who retired in 1957 after 21 years as dean. At the request of University officials Dean Dawson had continued serving while a successor was sought, but illness forced him to withdraw from active duty in the college early last year.

The new Iowa engineering dean, 52, is a native of Minnesota, and earned bachelor of electrical engineering, master of science and doctor of philosophy degrees from the University of Minnesota, where he also served as instructor for four years.

Melloh's subsequent employment included two years as research engineer for Automatic Electric Company of Chicago, three years with the San Diego Radio and Sound Laboratory, and two years as senior research engineer for Stromberg-Carlson Company in Rochester, N.Y. From 1947 to 1956 he was vice-director of the Texas Engineering Experiment Station, a branch of Texas A&M College, and since 1956 he has been professor of electrical engineering at the University of New Mexico, Albuquerque.

Dean Melloh is the author of four instructional books for the U.S. Navy, three Experiment Station Bulletins, and five publications in technical journals. His professional memberships include the Institute of Radio Engineers, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Society for Engineering Education, Sigma Xi, Tau Beta Pi and Phi Kappa Phi. He is a Registered Professional Engineer in Texas.

Mrs. Melloh formerly taught at Carleton College and recently served as director of the Bryan, Tex., Public Library. The couple have no children.

Regents Approve New Plan For Business M.A. Degree

DES MOINES — A new graduate program leading to the Master of Business Administration degree was approved Thursday for the State University of Iowa by the State Board of Regents during the Regents' January meeting in Des Moines.

Designed to provide advanced professional training for those who hold bachelor's degrees in liberal arts, engineering, agriculture, commerce, business administration or law, the new program was approved by the Inter-Institutional Committee on Educational Coordination before being presented to the Regents for their approval. The committee includes representatives from SUI, Iowa State University of Science and Technology, and Iowa State Teachers College.

In other action during their monthly meeting the Regents:

Approved an application for $452,715 in federal matching funds to be used for research equipment in the new Pharmacy Building to be constructed at SUI.

Awarded an $85,000 contract to Ryan Heating and Plumbing of Davenport for mechanical work and a $34,800 contract to Cedar Rapids Electric Co. for electrical work, both projects involving the Hillcrest men's dormitory dining addition;

Accepted the resignation of Alexander I. Popov, associate professor of chemistry at SUI, who will become professor of chemistry and dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, next month;

Extended a leave of absence now in effect for Robert Thorne, associate professor of botany, until Jan. 31, 1961, to permit him to accept a National Science Foundation postdoctoral fellowship for study in Europe and England;

Granted a leave of absence for Professor Clark C. Bloom, assistant director of the SUI Bureau of Business and Economic Research, to accept assignment as consultant on the Development Board of the Kingdom of Jordan between Aug. 1, 1960, and Sept. 15, 1961;

Authorized the University to sell or lease, on the basis of the best offers, three pieces of recently-acquired Iowa City property: two sheds and a boat dock at 120 W. Market, a house at 133 Park and a house and garage at 419 S. Madison;

Authorized SUI to sell a 40-acre tract of "creek pasture" land located south of Lohrville in Calhoun county, the land to be sold at $150 per acre subject to approval by the Iowa Executive Council. The tract, which was donated to SUI nearly 100 years ago, will be purchased by the Calhoun County Conservation Board for development into a park.

The new Master of Business Administration degree program, which will get under way July 1, is a non-thesis program requiring 60 semester-hours of credit with provision for "advanced standing" allowance not to exceed 22 semester-hours. Designed to meet demands from business and government for more intensely trained personnel, the Iowa program will be comparable to those offered by most leading schools and colleges of business administration today.

Eye Pathologists To Attend SUI Medical Meeting

Twenty-five pathologists from all parts of Iowa and from several midwestern states are expected to attend the annual conference Saturday of the Midwest Association of Ophthalmology Pathologists at the SUI College of Medicine.

Sponsored by the Department of Ophthalmology at SUI, the conference will be held in the pathology laboratory in the University's Medical Laboratories Building.

Physicians attending the meeting will bring case studies concerning pathology of the eye for discussion. The conference is held at a different midwestern university each year.

Dr. Frederick C. Blodi, clinical associate professor of ophthalmology at SUI, says the annual meetings provide members of the association an opportunity to discuss difficult diagnostic and treatment problems with colleagues at other institutions.

Dr. Blodi and Dr. A. E. Braley, professor and head of ophthalmology at SUI, are co-chairmen of the event.

FALLS TO DEATH

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — The master of a British liner fell to his death in Glasgow Harbor while boarding his ship Thursday. Capt. A. J. M. Watkins stumbled as he walked toward the gangplank and fell between the quay-side and the 8,067-ton liner Clan Davidson.

Gulf Oil Man Visits Campus; Asks Nominations for Grants

A visitor from one of the nation's larger corporations visited SUI this week, not in an effort to lure professors from the classroom to the business world, but on a mission designed to help able professors stay in teaching.

He is M. G. Gulley, a representative of the Gulf Oil Corporation, who came to SUI to ask nominations for Gulf's Faculty Salary Supplementation Program.

Gulley is with the office of the secretary of Gulf's Education Committee, Pittsburgh. He previously was a senior geologist with Gulf for some 30 years.

Gulf Oil Corporation started its formal program to aid education two and one-half years ago and now spends some $700,000 a year in financial aid to education, Gulley explained.

About $420,000 of this sum is spent in a six-part program which includes, in addition to Faculty Salary Supplementation, an Alumnus Gift Matching Program, Gulf Merit Scholarships, direct grants to independent colleges, departmental assistance and graduate fellowships.

Under the Faculty Salary Supplementation Program, Gulf is making grants to 15 college faculty members each year for work on specific projects during the summer for Gulf Oil Corporation. Some 75 nominations are sought each year in selecting the 15. Grants are made to faculty members in departments covering the whole field of education.

Winners of the grants may work in the United States or in other countries, depending on the project they undertake.

Nominations are made by department heads of universities and colleges asked to participate, with final selection made by the Gulf Education Committee on the advice of presidents and other officials of the universities and colleges.

Op. 52 in F Minor," Chopin, and "Sonata No. V, Op. 38," Prokofiev.

Jon Piersol, A3, Ames, will present a clarinet recital at 4 p.m. including "Sonata, Op. 120, No. 2," by Brahms; "Concertante," Dello Joio, and "Kleines Konzert," Uhl.

Hawkeye Gymnasts Paste Southern Illinois 67-45

The Iowa gymnastics squad exhibited mid-season form here Thursday afternoon as they downed a strong Southern Illinois squad 67-45.

Dischinger's 34.3 Average Leads Big 10 Scorers

CHICAGO — The fourth best single game scoring performance in Big Ten basketball history has vaulted sophomore Terry Dischinger of Purdue into a commanding position in conference individual scoring standings.

Dischinger's 43-point outburst against Illinois pushed his Big Ten average to 34.3 points per game.

Horace Walker of Michigan State ranks second, with 27.3 points a game and Jerry Lucas of Ohio State is third with 25 points a game in his two loop appearances. Iowa's Don Nelson ranks seventh with a 19.2 mark in four games.

Ohio State, the only undefeated team in conference play after two games, leads the league in scoring with a 96.5 team average and in rebounds, with 56 per game. Purdue ranks second in both departments.

Northwestern leads in team defense, ahead of Iowa and Purdue.

Walker, mainstay of Michigan State's defending champions, leads in individual rebounds with 19 per game, followed by Lucas, Dischinger and Ray Cronk of Minnesota.

NCAA: Unattached Source Reported OU Conditions

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association said Thursday a confidential source not connected with any NCAA institution had provided the information which led to a football probation for the University of Oklahoma.

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, said in a statement the source was "identified as John Doe," and "Mr. Doe is responsible for opening this particular case."

Earlier in the day the Lincoln, Neb., Journal in a copyrighted story had quoted Byers as saying it was someone in west Texas who provided the tip. The Journal said Byers' report had exonerated Bill Jennings, Nebraska football coach of any charges he had tattered on Oklahoma, where he formerly served as assistant coach.

The Topeka, Kan., Daily Capital in an earlier story had reported the tip came from a west Texas man.

Byers said the information regarding "Mr. Doe" was presented at a press conference in New York, Jan. 6, at the time Oklahoma was placed on probation.

Swimmers Travel to MSU For Dual Contest Saturday

By JOHN HANRAHAN Staff Writer

The Iowa Hawkeye swimmers take the road this weekend for a dual meet against the Michigan State Spartans at East Lansing.

This will be the second meet of the young season for the Hawks who were second in a triangular event at the Iowa pool last Saturday, finishing behind Ohio State and ahead of Wisconsin. Ohio State totaled 67½ points; Iowa 64½ and Wisconsin 35.

Coach Bob Allen indicated that he was very pleased with his team's performance in last Saturday's triangular. "We haven't got a big squad," said Allen, "but the kids we've got are all competitors. Still, we've got to keep improving."

Allen expects a close match with the Spartans Saturday. The Michigan State squad has several returning veterans, good depth and a trio of excellent sophomores.

Allen regards the three sophomores as the top swimmers on the Michigan State team. The best of the three is Dick Brackett. In a recent dual meet with Iowa State (won by the Spartans 77-28) Brackett won the 200-yard freestyle in the fine time of 2:09.2 and also took the 440-yard freestyle with a 4:43.7 clocking. The latter time was a new dual meet record for the Michigan State pool, topping a mark set in 1951.

The other top sophs for the East Lansing tankers are Carl Shaar (butterfly) and Dennis Ruppert (200-yard breaststroke).

Spartan veterans include Larry Jones (relays, 100-yard freestyle), Danny Convis (50-yard freestyle) and Ron Gage (medley relay, 200-yard backstroke).

Allen anticipates making a few changes in the lineup that took part in the first meet of the season, but basically the Hawk roster will be: Bill Claerhout, sprinter; Les Cutler, 200-yard backstroke; Bill Meyerhoff, 200 and 400 freestyle; Charles Mitchell, individual medley; Ray Carlson, butterfly; Larry Fruelinger, backstroke; Bob McNamee, diving; Binky Wadington, 220 and 440 freestyle; and Howard Heid, breaststroke.

The Iowa coach figures one of the best races of the day should be in the 200-yard breaststroke with Iowa's Les Cutler against Ron Gage. Cutler took first in this event last Saturday with a 2:10.1 mark. Against Iowa State, Gage won the same event in a slower 2:19.4 clocking. However, Gage was not pushed at all in the race and Allen is certain he is capable of a much better time.

"If you compare our best times and Michigan State's best times in the various events, you can see we're going to be in for a rough one Saturday," Allen said. "We're going to have to put forth our best effort in order to win."

The meet will begin at 1:30 in the Michigan State pool in the new Men's Intramural Building. This is the first year of dual meet competition in the new pool.

Van Brocklin, McDonald Lead East Pro Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The East squad in Sunday's 10th annual Pro Bowl football game will be led by a pair of Eagles — Norm Van Brocklin and Tommy McDonald.

The two stars from the Philadelphia team in the National Football League's Eastern Division have been looking sharp in drills for the annual free-for-all of football's finest.

The strong arm of Van Brocklin has been tossing some sizzling passes to the fleet McDonald during practice at the University of Southern California's Bovard Field.

Daily Training Routine Has Stan Ready for '60

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Stan Musial, anxious to atone for the only poor season of his career, said Thursday his daily training grind "makes me feel confident I'll be ready this time — already I feel stronger."

The seven-time batting champion in 39. In baseball it means you're getting old, but Stan is the first to admit it.

"When you get older, you have to work much harder to be ready to play," Stan said. "I just wasn't ready last year. Once the season starts, it's too late." He batted only .255 after 16 straight .300-plus seasons. Musial admits he was dead tired after the St. Louis Cardinals 1958 postseason tour of Japan. He took it easy in spring training last season.

"I took it easy in past springs, too, but I was younger then and could more easily round into shape," he said.

For the last 10 days, Musial has been huffing and puffing through a rugged set of exercises outlined by Card trainer Bob Bauman. He has six weeks of the same before spring training.

Musial again scoffed at the idea the 1959 season proves his legs are almost gone and he is washed up. Stan put it this way:

"My reflexes were still good — I could still get around on the fast ball. But I wasn't ready, my timing was off nearly all season and they got me with change-ups and junk pitches."

TIED JOCKEY MARK

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Apprentice rider Frank Northcutt of Covington, Ky., tied a record at Pimlico last fall when he rode five winners in one day. The feat was performed in 1931 by Joe Guerra and repeated in 1956 by Nick Shuk.

Welu Inflates All-Star Lead

OMAHA (AP) — Billy Welu, defending champion from St. Louis, inflated his lead in the All-Star Bowling Tournament Thursday to almost six points as he swamped his tenth round opponent and built his Petersen point total to 198-02.

Welu fired 246-206-237-218-907 as Chicago's Bill Bunetta went to pieces and surrendered all four games, 200-171-223-172-766.

Don Carter retained his second place standing despite the fact he divided his tenth round encounter with Charles Cooper of Tampa, Fla. Carter eked out 178-211-180-224-798 to Cooper's 225-171-192-215-803. The showing gave the St. Louis star a 192-19 point accumulation.

Dottie Crouch of Los Angeles moved into first place in the women's division after the tenth round with an 89-30 total. The Los Angeles redhead mustered a split with Mena Degymas of Chicago. Dottie rolled 200-169-369 to 205-156-361 for Miss Degymas.

Robertson Maintains NCAA Scoring Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Oscar Robertson's average has dipped below 40 points a game but the Cincinnati Bearcats' star continues to hold a commanding lead in the major college individual scoring race.

Statistics released Thursday by the NCAA Service Bureau through Tuesday's games show that Robertson has scored 458 points in 12 games for a 38.2 average. Tom Stith of St. Bonaventure is second with 29.2 followed by Jim Darrow of Bowling Green 28.3 and Frank Burgess of Gonzaga 28.0.

Fake Sandpaper; Phony Foil—

FTC Raps TV Commercials

By DAVID WISE
Herald Tribune News Service

WASHINGTON — Those drops on the margarine in the television commercial really aren't water, the "sandpaper" in the shave cream demonstration is phony, and the "ordinary" tin foil that looks so bedraggled next to super-strength aluminum wrap is deliberately torn and stomped on by the admen, the Federal Government charged Thursday.

These were the accusations contained in complaints filed by the Federal Trade Commission against four major national advertisers in the agency's first large-scale move against alleged visual deception in television commercials. Up to now, most FTC complaints have been directed at exaggerated product claims rather than at visual trickery.

The FTC said that a "typical TV commercial" in a standard Brands Company case shows three products side by side — Blue Bonnet margarine, butter, and a third, unidentified margarine. What appears to be magnified drops of moisture are seen on Blue Bonnet and on the butter, but not on the unmarked margarine.

The catch, the FTC said, is that the drops shown on the butter and Blue Bonnet are not moisture drops, "but are drops of a non-volatile liquid substituted for the demonstration." The complaint did not identify the allegedly bogus liquid used, but a Commission official, asked to give examples of "non-volatile liquids," named glycerine, cottonseed oil and corn oil.

In the Palmolive commercial, the complaint said, a hand holding a razor is shaving what "purports to be a piece of dry sandpaper to which Palmolive Rapid Shave has been applied." The "misleading implication" is that the product's "moisturizing" action makes it possible to shave the sand off sandpaper.

The "truth is," the FTC said, that "the supposed sandpaper" isn't sandpaper at all. The Commission said it is a "mock-up" made of glass or plexiglass "to which sand has been applied."

In the Alcoa complaint, the Commission said the commercial "shows two hams side by side." One labeled "ordinary wrap" is "dried out and the foil is tattered and torn. The other ham, labeled 'New Super-Strength Alcoa Wrap' is fresh and the foil is not torn."

The announcer claims: "Look! These leftover hams were wrapped and unwrapped the same number of times. The ordinary foil is tattered and torn . . . ham is dried out, tasteless . . . but not a rip in new Alcoa Wrap. Ham is juicy, tasty!"

The FTC said the commercial is "misleading" because the hams were "not wrapped and unwrapped the same number of times" and were selected from several hams allowed to age unwrapped for various periods. The FTC added:

"The ham which appeared to be freshest and moistest was used to demonstrate Alcoa Wrap, while the most dried out and tasteless ham was used to demonstrate the 'ordinary wrap.' Furthermore, the latter foil was deliberately torn and severely wrinkled but Alcoa Wrap was not subjected to this deliberate abuse."

The companies were given 30 days to reply. While the cases are pending, the FTC is powerless to prevent the commercial from continuing to appear.

An FTC spokesman said the complaints are a result of a new crackdown on false TV commercials announced by Chairman Earl W. Kintner Nov. 2.

U.S. Again Challenges Du Pont's Stock Owing

By GARDNER L. BRIDGE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Government Thursday renewed its long court battle to strip the Du Pont company of its big stock holdings in General Motors Corp.

The Justice Department filed notice of appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court from a ruling that Du Pont could dissolve its close association with General Motors by retaining ownership of its 63 million General Motors shares but passing voting rights on to Du Pont stockholders.

The department contends this ruling by U.S. Dist. Judge Walter J. Dabuy in Chicago was based on erroneous conclusions.

The president of Du Pont, Crawford H. Greenwalt, charged in a statement that it would appear the Justice Department "desires simply to pursue its 11-year vendetta against the million or more stockholders of Du Pont and General Motors, who have been found innocent of any wrong."

"For in the last analysis," Greenwalt said, "the Government's appeal is aimed not at the two companies, but at their stockholders."

The Government began its anti-trust action on June 30, 1949. It sought to force Du Pont to dispose of its General Motors stock, currently valued at more than three billion dollars, by distributing some of it among Du Pont shareholders.

and selling the rest in the open market.

The Government lost the first round when the Chicago court held in 1954 that it had failed to prove any anti-trust violations. This ruling was overturned 4-2 by the Supreme Court, which held there was a reasonable probability, and sent the case back to Judge Labuy.

Last Nov. 17 Labuy signed an order directing that Du Pont be allowed to retain its 23 per cent stock interest in General Motors and collect the dividends, but forbidding it from voting the shares or acquiring more.

Race To Rescue 12 from Ice Floe In Arctic Ocean

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A race against time was begun Thursday in 58 below zero weather to pluck 12 men from a doomed Arctic Ocean scientific outpost before it disintegrates.

Evacuation of Station Charley, a crumbling ice floe about 440 miles northwest of Barrow, Alaska, was ordered stepped up after an inspection flight by Brig. Gen. Gordon H. Austin, commander of the 11th Air Division.

The general, who had hoped to complete the rescue by Thursday midnight, revised his estimate to noon Friday.

Wednesday night new cracks opened up across the floe and small chunks continued to split off the edges.

Gen. Austin said the ice floe is only 40 inches thick in some places, up to 6-7 feet maximum.

He said the men still there are in no acute danger unless conditions change radically. They include one civilian scientist and 11 military personnel. Four others were flown out Wednesday night.

NO INDICTMENTS IN PARKER CASE

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — A special federal grand jury ended its investigation of the Mack Charles Parker lynching Thursday without returning indictments in the nine-month-old case.

Charles Long, of Gulfport, the jury foreman, read the decision to U.S. Dist. Judge Sidney Mize that "on the basis of evidence presented, we were unable to arrive at any true bill."

The action apparently has the effect of ending the Parker case unless authorities uncover new witnesses or new testimony.

Mize congratulated the jury on its work during the deliberations which started Jan. 4, saying he thought jurors had conducted themselves "diligently and fairly."

Safety in The Home For 1960

A well-chosen set of New Year's resolutions might have to do with safety in the home. How many of the following facts do you suppose the average person knows, in spite of the fact that some of these statements are incorporated in printed directions:

Never puncture an aerosol can—it may explode.

Never use clothes pins when you hang an electric blanket to dry.

Never plug a portable dishwasher into an outlet that is not grounded.

Never use a combustible cleaning ingredient or solution in an automatic dryer — unless you don't object to blowing off the front of it.

Never plug a portable heater into an electric light outlet — the wiring is not heavy enough to handle heating elements.

Tobe Says

For A Completely Different Look The newest and most arresting print fashion to come our way in a long time is the bold scarf print, originated over a year ago as a matter of fact, by Emilio Pucci, the famous Italian sportswear designer.

Planned originally for shirts to wear over slacks, the scarf prints are already a world wide success in this field. Now our own smart dress makers have adapted these for the great American shirtwaist dress.

The designs are new and imaginative — usually in bold colors on white grounds. Made with full skirts and long, tightly cuffed sleeves, these scarf print shirtwaist dresses are a wonderful addition to the fashion circle of print dresses.

For January Parties

Nothing looks more like spring than a pretty print dress and that is my suggestion for those gay late-day parties that always come up in January.

I think these are the smartest in warp-print taffeta — light grounds with designs in the soft, slightly muted colors one always finds in warp prints. The taffeta itself is softer than formerly so that it may be draped, or rounded into a puffed tunic, or shaped over a lining to form one of the new modified dome skirts. Bodices are fitted — with low open necklines and the new elbow-length fitted sleeves

I Never Should Have Asked - -

"Professor, I'd like to inquire as to what is expected of me in this course to earn a grade of A."

"You mean you have to be 21 to buy beer in Iowa?"

"Shouldn't you two be studying for finals?"

"Well, darn it, Betty! Do you expect me to call you for a date a week in advance?"

"If you have any questions, I'll be happy to help."

"What's a good snap course around this place?"

"Tell me quick — what does he mean by 'gross national product'?"

"Why do you suppose I never get any mail?"

"And just why can't you break your date?"

Now Woman Graduates' Salaries Up

It may once have been a man's world, but the ladies — God bless them — are becoming an ever more important factor in the labor force. Their occupations, once pretty well limited to the typewriter keyboard and stenographer's notebook, now range all the way from atomic research to veterinary medicine.

The ladies, of course, go to work for money, just like everyone else, and beginning salaries for female college graduates these days are highest in chemistry, mathematics or statistics.

A recent Department of Labor survey reports that starting salaries for women chemists averaged $4,800 a year, while mathematicians first went on the payroll at about $4,600. The average for all women graduates in the class of June, 1957, was $3,700.

Paradoxically enough, however, the highest paying fields did not attract a growing number of applicants. According to Mrs. Alice K. Leopold, assistant to the Secretary of Labor and director of the department's women's bureau, "there was no great increase from 1955 to 1957 in the number of women graduates who majored in chemistry, math or statistics."

Most of the female graduates (59 per cent of those employed) headed for teachers' certificates and the classroom. This is probably one of the reasons why the average salary rung up by the Class of '57 was so much lower than the highest end of the pay scale.

Teachers' salaries are improving, of course, but not at quite the same rate as those in nursing, and this may help to explain why the number of graduates going into nursing has increased significantly.

Nurses, in fact, represented the second biggest occupational group in the Labor Department's survey. They accounted for 6.9 per cent of all employed graduates and had a slight edge over the next largest group, which was secretaries and stenographers. Biological technicians and social workers, accounting for 3 and 2 per cent of the employed respectively, were the next most favored occupations.

The remaining 22 per cent of the class, according to the Labor Department, included occupations that ranged all over the lot.

Jean, Annette Hagens, A3, Elmira, N.Y., Cindy Stage, A3, Davenport, Carol Bieber, A3, Midlothian, Ill., and Tom. All of the Gamma Phi's living in the annex are juniors.

Meet The 'Houseparents'

If the women living in the Gamma Phi Beta sorority annex were to whiff pipe smoke after hours, they probably wouldn't be the least bit distressed. You see, there's a man in the house.

Jean and Tom Scheuerman are the official chaperones for the seven Gamma Phi's living in the house annex. "It's a great arrangement," says Jean, who likes to spend spare time with the group. "We see that they behave, although we've never had a bit of trouble. And Tom takes care of the upkeep and repair."

Jean is a student teacher in the eighth grade homemaking class at Tipton. She'll graduate from SUI next month. Her husband, Tom, is a second semester freshman in the College of Law.

Says Tom, "I don't have any qualms about living in a sorority annex now that I'm used to the noise. I must admit I had my doubts, though, before we moved in."

The couple has rented the apartment since August. In exchange for their services, their utilities are paid. The apartment has a spacious living room, kitchen, bedroom and bath which they furnished themselves.

Tom, in addition to his responsibility as a law student and "housefather," is a bookkeeper for a local drugstore, and serves as a research assistant for Congressman Fred Schwengel. Jean's a student and practice teacher, and she's looking forward to her last set of finals.

"There will be a dull silence around here soon," she said, "with nine students studying for exams." Coffee and television lure the women to Scheuermans' apartment at all hours, it seems. The couple invited them all to dinner just before Christmas vacation, and spent an evening at the Gamma Phi Beta house, just next door, at the annual Christmas party where they were given a gift.

Next semester the plans will change, but the situation will remain the same. The Gamma Phi's will move back into the sorority house, and the Scheuermans will chaperone two graduate students and four undergraduates — again, all women.

ALTHOUGH THE Gamma Phi Annex has a judiciary chairman of its own, Jean finds herself acting the part now and then. Here, she watches as Annette Hagens, A3, Elmira, N.Y., signs out for the evening.

Pinay Dismissal Perturbs Paris—

De Gualle Opposition Seen

By ALAIN DE LYROT
Herald Tribune News Service
PARIS — Widespread conservative opposition to the regime of President De Gaulle is expected to be a result of his dismissal of Antoine Pinay as finance minister, according to informed opinion Thursday.

While Pinay asserted Wednesday that he was momentarily retiring from political activity, it is generally believed that he may become France's most powerful opposition leader.

The conservative press Thursday lamented Pinay's departure from the Government while noting with some relief the Government's assertion that Pinay's policies of economic conservatism and financial liberalism will be continued. The appointment of Wilfrid Baumgartner as finance minister was greeted with satisfaction in conservative circles, where he is held in high esteem.

Pinay's departure from the Government is, however, believed to have caused the decline registered at the French stock market Thursday with several leading stocks making a sharp drop.

The immediate resignation of the four cabinet members who belong to Pinay's independent party (moderate-conservative) appeared unlikely. The resignation of one of them, Max Fliche, secretary of state for economic affairs and a personal friend of Pinay, however, was considered likely.

The possibility that Pinay might return to the National Assembly was raised when Deputy Emile Hemain, who replaced Pinay when he left the assembly to join the Government, proposed to resign.

This would make a local election possible which might return Pinay to the assembly where, it is expected, he would immediately become the main opposition leader. Pinay has not indicated whether he would accept Hemain's proposal.

The most direct conservative opposition to the present regime may come from the 188-strong group of independent deputies in the 532-seat National Assembly.

Already many independent deputies have shown displeasure with the regime and have voted against Government measures on several occasions.

It is expected that this sentiment may spread to a majority of the group although a group of independent deputies may follow former Premier Paul Reynaud, who continues to be a strong backer of Gen. De Gaulle.

Should a majority of the independent deputies join the opposition, Premier Michel Debre's parliamentary majority may be whittled down to uncomfortable proportions.

A meeting between Gen. De Gaulle and Leon Noel and Gilbert Jules, members of the Constitutional Council, raised anew

Thursday speculations that Gen. De Gaulle may be considering a constitutional change.

Sources close to the Government have, however, stressed recently that Gen. De Gaulle was not contemplating any drastic measure of this or any other nature as he has been rumored to do.

With Pinay's departure, the cabinet is now made up almost exclusively of technicians and high civil servants who are not in a position to oppose Gen. De Gaulle's policies.

There is little, therefore, that can interfere with Gen. De Gaulle's authority until Parliament. This can be done if 277 deputies (half the assembly plus one) sign a petition to that effect. This seems unlikely at the moment.

PTA Joins Erbe In War Against Obscene Books

DES MOINES — The Iowa Parent - Teachers Association Thursday said it plans a drive against pornographic literature "much broader" than Attorney General Norman Erbe's crackdown on such magazines.

John R. Hedges of Iowa City, director of the PTA's public welfare department, said the drive would include "all kinds of pornographic and obscene literature."

He made the statement while presenting his departmental report at the semiannual meeting of the Iowa PTA Board of Managers.

Hedges did not outline details of the drive. He said a complete announcement of the drive would be made later by PTA President Mrs. Charles W. Reynolds of Grundy Center.

New Space Engine Boosts Thor To Atlantic Target

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A new space engine made an impressive debut Thursday, boosting a Thor missile to an Atlantic target off the West Indies island of Antigua.

The test was the first of three for the engine, which the United States hopes will help fill a gap until bigger space boosters are developed in a year or so.

If it proves out, the new power plant probably will be used in Thor-Able and Thor-Delta rockets, three-stage vehicles employing the Thor as a first stage. The Able and Delta rockets have numerous space assignments in the next few months. Most involve hurling relatively small payloads into orbit about the earth or deep into space.

The Thor blasted off at 11:35 a.m. Thursday and covered the 1,700 miles to its target in about 15 minutes. Two hours later a recovery ship plucked a data capsule from the water. The capsule, filled with instruments to record the missile's performance, was ejected from the nose cone after it re-entered the earth's atmosphere from a height of more than 300 miles.

The data will be studied to see what changes, if any, are needed for the final two tests.

The engine is a modified version of the regular Thor motor. Informants report it generates about 165,000 pounds of thrust, 15,000 more than the military Thor.

Concealed Bomb Cited as Cause Of Plane Deaths

WASHINGTON (AP)—"A bomb of some sort" caused the mysterious crash of an airliner which killed 34 persons on Jan. 6, Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.), said Thursday.

Monroney, chairman of a Senate subcommittee which had just heard that one of the passengers carried nearly $900,000 in insurance, told a reporter:

"I am convinced the explosion of a bomb of some sort was the cause of this disaster."

"It seems pretty pat that this bomb was carried into the washroom in the plane, and set off deliberately."

"The evidence is very strong it was a case of suicide by bombing."

The heavily insured victim was named as Julian Andrew Frank, a 32-year-old New York lawyer, in testimony by a Civil Aeronautics Board investigator.

Monroney said the CAB had learned that Frank took out the insurance, naming Mrs. Frank as his beneficiary. Mrs. Frank a former New York model, was not aboard the plane.

SUI Worker Convicted Of OVI; Fined $300

William C. Halstead, Route 4, was found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated Thursday by Judge H. D. Evans in Johnson County District Court.

Halstead, who is an SUI power plant laborer, was fined $300 and costs.

He was arrested Dec. 19 on the corner of Dodge and Market streets by policeman Patrick J. McCarney.

Washington Trip by Adenauer Confirmed

BONN (HTNS) — West German Chancellor Adenauer plans to visit Washington this spring, a Government spokesman confirmed Thursday.

The date of the trip has not yet been fixed, the spokesman said. It appeared that it might take place before spring officially begins on March 21.

The visit has been under discussion in Bonn and Washington for some time. However, it will acquire particular importance from two recent developments.

1. It will give Adenauer another chance to confer with President Eisenhower about Berlin before the projected East-West summit conference in May.

Adenauer is uneasy that the West may weaken on the Berlin issue under pressure from Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Adenauer will not be present at the East-West summit, where the circle of participants will be confined to United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union. He is accordingly intent on bringing maximum German influence to bear on the West's Berlin policy before the conference begins.

2. Adenauer's personal appearance in the United States may help to overcome doubts about West Germany that have arisen in some American quarters as a result of the recent anti-semitic outbreaks on German territory.

Stock Market Rallies Sharply

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market rallied sharply Thursday, recouping some of the losses taken in the previous six days of sharp decline.

An estimated 1½ billion dollars of nearly 11 billion dollars in quoted values of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, which were erased in the six-day sell-off, were won back, based on the movement of The Associated Press average.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 4.09 to 660.53.

Taxpayers Must List Income Tax Refunds

DES MOINES (AP)—Refunds received by Iowans in 1950 on their 1950 federal income tax returns must be listed on their state income tax returns.

A misprint on many of the state income tax forms led to inquiries about computation of the federal income tax deduction.

On page two of these forms, line four reads: "Less-Refund received in 1950 from 1950 federal return."

That line should read: "Less-Refund received in 1950 from 1950 federal return."

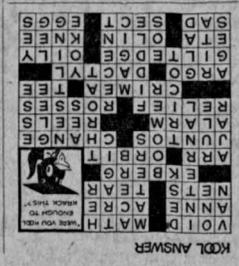

Japan Warned Against Signing Pact with U.S.

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China Thursday warned Japan against signing a new military treaty with the United States and charged it signifies a revival of Japanese militarism. The pact is to be signed in Washington Tuesday.

Peiping radio broadcast a statement from Red China's Foreign Ministry attacking the new pact as "collusion for the preparation of new aggression and war, and menacing Asian and world peace."

The Japanese Cabinet gave the new treaty formal approval Thursday. Kishi leaves for the United States Saturday. Political fireworks are expected when the pact comes before Parliament later. The new treaty is a revision of the old security pact signed in 1951, when Japan was still under American postwar military occupation.
