Educator To Head Testing Program Here

J. Paul Mather, who resigned as president of the University of Massachusetts after a conflict with the state Senate, is the new head of the American College Testing program (ACT), based at SU.

The announcement was made Wednesday morning in Amherst, Mass. SU later confirmed that Mather, 44, had been named the program's first full-time president and executive director.

Mather, who submitted his resignation at Massachusetts when the state Senate turned down a bill increasing faculty salaries, will receive no more than $25,000 a year, including fringe benefits, in his new position, a University spokesman said.

The testing program was originated here last fall. It tests high school students for college entrance requirements and provides guidance and counseling service on the secondary school level.

The program is paid for from the $3 fee charged students who take the tests. The student designates three colleges or universities he is considering attending and results of the tests are sent to those schools.

The tests also are used in determining scholarship awards. The testing program is associated with SU but is not part of the University.

Mather will become head of the program April 1. His resignation at Massachusetts is effective March 31.

Prior to assuming the presidency of the University of Massachusetts in 1954, Mather, 44, held the position of provost at that institution. He has taught at the Colorado School of Mines, University of Denver and Princeton University, and has at various times served as administrative assistant, assistant registrar and business manager, and director of curriculum and instruction. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration from Denver and Princeton universities, and has been awarded five honorary doctorates.

In assuming the presidency of ACT, Mather will be in charge of an undertaking which has in the short span of a year grown from an idea to a program which has already tested 120,000 college-bound high school seniors in 19 states and which seems destined to reach hundreds of thousands of other youngsters throughout the nation.

Launched last fall and carefully nursed through its first stages by two SU staff members working at it part-time on top of their regular responsibilities, the program has grown so rapidly that it now needs full-time direction by "the best executive talent available," according to E.F. Lindquist, director of the Iowa Testing Programs and co-ordinator of the program with Ted McCarrel, SU director of admissions and registrar.

Lindquist has served as director of research and development for ACT and will continue to advise the program in this capacity. "More colleges are continually organizing to conduct the ACT program in more states," Lindquist said, "and at the same time we are trying to increase the scope and variety of the program to make it more useful to the colleges, the high schools and the students who take the ACT tests."

ACT now provides a battery of tests in English, mathematics, social studies and natural sciences, the tests being administered simultaneously at a number of testing centers — usually college campuses — in each participating state. Answer sheets are returned to Iowa City for scoring on two unique high-speed electronic scoring machines, and results are then forwarded to the colleges designated by the students tested.

As the testing program continues, Lindquist said Wednesday, it will provide "a wealth" of research data which will be used to help improve the articulation of secondary to higher education throughout the nation. Mather's job will be to coordinate this research, Lindquist said.

Other responsibilities which Mather will have include helping to establish ACT in the remaining 31 states, representing the program at meetings of educational and professional groups, establishing a publications program to disseminate the results of research involving ACT scores, helping to develop a more varied and significant schedule of reporting and research services to the colleges and high schools, and working with college and secondary school educators generally to help them make the best possible use of ACT findings.

"To fulfill such a position requires an executive of real stature, and ACT is fortunate in being able to interest President Mather in the challenges of this position," Lindquist said.

Suit Filed From Freak City Accident

A $134,509.37 damage suit was filed Monday in Johnson County District Court by Miriam J. Young, 36, of Coralville.

The suit alleges that Mrs. Young received permanent injuries and doctor bills of over $3,000 from a freak accident that occurred in downtown Iowa City March 25, 1959.

William Bernard Seltzer, 61, of 119 1st St., N.E., Oelwein, and Lampl Sportswear Manufacturing Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, were named as defendants in the damage suit.

The following account of the freak accident was given by Iowa City police when the accident occurred last March:

Seltzer was parked at the south curb of Washington Street directly north of the Jefferson Hotel.

Seltzer tried to pull back out of his parking place but could not because of a vehicle that was temporarily behind him. Seltzer then pulled back into the parking place and waited. When the car behind him moved, the police said, Seltzer accelerated without changing to reverse gear and hopped the curb, pinning Mrs. Young, who was walking in front of the glass door of the Jefferson Hotel.

Mrs. Young charges Seltzer did not have his car under control, failed to keep a proper look out for pedestrians on the sidewalk in front of his car and failed to shift the gears of his car into reverse when backing away from the curb.

The suit also charges that Seltzer hit the accelerator of his car when attempting to use the brake and drove over the curb onto the sidewalk, striking Mrs. Young.

Mrs. Young received permanent injuries from the accident, the suit claims. Mrs. Young alleges in the damage suit that she spent many weeks in the hospital and had to undergo surgery as a result of the accident.

The suit asks $3,229.37 for hospital bills and $1,000 for future medical bills. $5,290 is being asked for damages resulting from lost wages and $125,000 is asked for permanent injuries.

A jury trial was requested.

Russia Announces Wide Price Cuts

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced Monday night price cuts on a wide range of consumer goods, including several in the luxury class. The Soviet news agency Tass said the list includes polar fox furs, electric sewing machines, silverware, some makes of cameras, radios and sporting guns, marmalade, cocoa and coffee with evaporated milk.

The people, said the agency, will benefit by an annual saving of some 2½ billion rubles from the cuts, ranging up to 30 per cent.

Student Demonstrators—

Ike Dismisses Violence In Uruguay as Trivial

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Leftist student crowds shouting anti-U.S. and pro-Castro slogans made a violent and noisy effort to upset an enthusiastic Uruguayan welcome for President Eisenhower Wednesday at the windup of his South American tour.

The outbursts were contained by armed police force. Students Wednesday night countered with charges of police brutality.

At one point the touring President got an eye-smarting whiff of tear gas as he rode along in his car.

Police fought down a series of three demonstrations — two during the day and one at night using sabers wielded with spanking force, tear gas, fire hose serving as "water cannon" and a bit of warning gunfire.

President Eisenhower dismissed the incidents as of little importance. He leaves an hour earlier than originally scheduled Thursday for a rest in Puerto Rico en route home to the White House. The last-minute decision to leave early was not explained.

After the battles, the Uruguayan University Students Federation late Wednesday night issued a statement charging police handled their demonstrations with brutality.

It reported one student was shot, another wounded by a police saber and that "police attacks" on students included a raid on the engineering students club, many of whose members were arrested.

Uruguay, one of the smaller but more literate and enlightened Latin American nations, had been eagerly caressing by security forces in advance as a likely trouble spot on the Eisenhower tour because:

1. Two years ago Vice President Richard M. Nixon had been jeered.

2. Threats of demonstrations against Eisenhower here in connection with the California Chessman case led to a reprieve from the death chamber and removed temporarily the point of one potential anti-U.S. slogan.

3. Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro, in his anti-U.S. manifestations, had become a rallying cry here for leftists.

Thursday morning, Eisenhower flies home after having visited, in order, Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Uruguay. He occasioned some demonstrations elsewhere but none like the ones in Montevideo.

The two daytime demonstrations came as the President went to speak to the Uruguayan Congress.

Later, on leaving the Uruguay Congress, the President's car took an unannounced detour through relatively empty streets to avoid passing areas where the trouble had erupted.

Cars carrying other members of the presidential party returned by the earlier route and were jeered by groups of students obviously annoyed that they were not given another chance to demonstrate in front of Eisenhower.

There was another incident Wednesday night. Hundreds of students gathered inside the headquarters of the University of Montevideo for an "anti-imperialist" meeting permitted by police.

The students chanted "Cuba, si (yes); Yankees, no," "Fidel si, like no," and "Out Yankees."

They tried to move out for another demonstration in the streets but police reinforcements were rushed in and tear gas grenades and saber charges by mounted police broke up the attempts to begin a march.

The students retreated before the gas grenades and barricaded themselves behind doors of university buildings.

Claim Numbers Game Going In Iowa City

DES MOINES (AP) — The Des Moines Register said Wednesday night in a copyrighted dispatch from Iowa City that a "numbers game" based on scores of SU basketball games has been in operation at Iowa City during the Big Ten season.

Contacted by The Daily Iowan Wednesday night, Johnson County Atty. Ralph Neuzil said the Register's story is "news to me." He said he would certainly investigate to see if there were any possible basis for the story.

The newspaper said University students have lost hundreds of dollars in a gambling racket giving them the short end on betting odds.

The story was not attributed to any sources, official or private, but it said betting tickets were available from two men who frequented downtown business places.

The newspaper said the tickets were numbered from 1 to 9, with winners determined by the last digit of the halftime and final scores for the "home" and "visiting" team.

It said that a total of 100 tickets could be sold on the home team and a like number on the visiting team and the gambler thus could take in $200 at one dollar a ticket, paying out only $40 and pocketing $160. In some cases where all tickets were not sold, the operator would not have to pay out anything.

Jury Clears Van Rie in Murder Case

BOSTON (AP) — Willem Van Rie, philandering Dutch radio operator, was cleared of murder Wednesday in the strange death of his shipboard sweetheart, pretty Lynn Kauffman, an American traveler.

The acquittal verdict by an all-male jury not only spared Van Rie's life but set him free on the spot. Once he clears up his status with immigration authorities he may be on his way home to his native Netherlands.

Van Rie, 31, threw his hands to his head and broke into a misty-eyed grin as the verdict climaxed an all-night marathon in which the jury deliberated for almost 15 uninterrupted hours.

"I was getting a little worried," the handsome, blue-eyed Van Rie said afterwards.

He and his loyal wife, both Roman Catholics, spent hours saying their rosary beads as dark of night gave way to an icy, marble-pink dawn over the courthouse on Boston's Beacon Hill.

Van Rie's fears were well founded at one stage of the deliberations. Jury Foreman Charles A. Carroll, a telephone company communications man, said the panel had split 6-6 on the first of 20 ballots.

Calls for Committee to Seek Removal of Restrictive Clauses

By KAY LUND
 Staff Writer

The Interfraternity Council won a victory Wednesday night in the discriminatory clause controversy when the SUI Student Council accepted their program for removal of such clauses from fraternal constitutions without a specified time limit.

A crowd of 300 persons overflowed the south half of the River Room of the Union to witness the meeting which proceeded in a more orderly manner than the Council meeting Feb. 16.

Large blocs of fraternity members were present to support the IFC program and applauded approvingly when Jack William, A4, Waterloo, submitted the plan.

Audience participation was frequent from the graduate married students who commented on the discrimination topic and also questioned the legality of a married student representative, Lloyd Humphreys, L1, Iowa City, to sit on the Council.

The lengthy, 11-point IFC-Panhellenic program proposed the appointment of a joint committee of seven members from the IFC and Panhellenic Councils.

This committee would be responsible for the "centralization and coordination of the efforts of those fraternities which have clauses in their work toward the effective removal of their restrictive clauses."

The program also stated that local chapters having discriminatory clauses shall show adequate proof to the committee that they have actively supported and voted for the removal of such clauses at national conventions.

Williams, in presenting the program, said, "This is a precise, definite and workable plan for removal of these clauses. It is more than an approach to appease the Council — it is a program with teeth."

He summarized it as a program of constant pressure on all officers who have weight in the national organizations.

An amendment, which accompanied the IFC program, was presented by Bill King, A3, Des Moines. It directed that the reports of the committee be made available to the students of SU. The amendment passed 20 to nothing.

The amendment also said that the Committee on Student Life or Office of Student Affairs should take immediate action for the removal of clauses if any fraternity failed to fulfill its obligations as outlined in the program or if the committee neglected to follow through with its plans.

King said the amendment was designed to eliminate any stalemate in action. "Open reports will help alleviate this," he said.

King made the motion that the Council accept the IFC program with the additional amendment.

At the Feb. 16 meeting the Student Council accepted a resolution that IFC-Panhellenic form an acceptable program for removal of discriminatory clauses from their constitutions. The clarification of racial or religious discrimination was not evident in the resolution.

Four SUI fraternities and no sororities have restrictive clauses. Williams, in concluding his presentation of the program, said to the Council, "If your efforts have been to take effective steps to remove Greek letter societies from this campus, then reject this program. But if you are genuinely interested in taking effective steps to remove discriminatory clauses from these organizations, then I encourage you to accept our proposal."

The committee will be directed to consider off-campus housing conditions and professional and honorary fraternities as well as all additional student organizations or areas it feels exist under this category.

"Upon completion of its inquiry, the committee is to present before the Student Council at its next meeting, March 16, the most direct and satisfactory means of eliminating the discrimination which currently exists."

The 13 members who composed the resolution were Julia Kennedy, A2, Farley; Donna McChesney, A2, Wapello; Marion Wagner, A1, Iowa City; Frank Turner, D3, Davenport; Larry Albrecht, P3, Hartley; Robbin Burns, P2, Burlington; Al Brennecke, L2, Marshalltown; Jack Burge, A3, Charles City; Maxine Kinsky, A2, Chicago; Kay Ackerman, A3, Iowa Falls; Miss Balk, Humphreys, and King.

There was one abstention and three negative votes against the resolution. Two of the three negative members qualified their votes. Jay Howe, A2, Greenfield, said he was directed to vote accordingly by his constituency, Hillcrest. Humphreys believed the resolution was too

Students Present Symposium

Last week we mentioned a new student venture underway at Yale known as "The Challenge." In brief, the project is a student attempt to confront fellow students with the "crucial issues of today's world." To accomplish this, the group sets a theme for each school term and encourages public meetings, informal discussions and, where possible, individual action and involvement.

The aims of "The Challenge" movement have spread rapidly beyond Yale. Students at the University of Wisconsin, for example, have picked them up eagerly. The result was a recent symposium at Wisconsin that deserves attention.

The symposium, sponsored by the Wisconsin Student Association, was composed of seven separate lecture programs and drew an audience estimated at about 5,600. The list of speakers was impressive.

Earl Clement Atlee spoke on "The Future of Democratic Government," William Buckley, Jr. and Norman Cousins on "The Basis of American Security," Dr. Benjamin Fine on the "Challenge to American Education," Earl P. Mazo and Edward P. Morgan on "Mass Communications and its Obligations to Democracy," Howard Taubman and Norman Thomas on "American Values in Crisis," Prof. James Cros, a geneticist, and Prof. Verner Suomi, a meteorologist, on "Science and Society," Prof. Bernard Loomer, University of Chicago Theological School, and Prof. Harlow Shapley, past director of the Harvard University Observatory, on "Religion: Its Role in the Nuclear Age."

Some Wisconsin students voiced complaint with the supposedly poor coordination of the symposium events by the Student Association. Nevertheless, it seems to us an impressive attempt to, as "The Challenge" group puts it, "open up the world of the greater problems." This strikes us as a truly worthwhile enterprise for a student government group.

New Russian University

It should be increasingly evident to even the complacent observers that the Russians are deadly serious in the struggle to win the minds and consciences of the uncommitted people of the world.

The recent news that the Soviet Union will open a special university for students from Asia, Africa and Latin America certainly reveals a carefully calculated plan of attack. This institution, dedicated to the training of technicians, physicians and teachers for underdeveloped countries, expects an enrollment of 500 this year and an eventual total of 4,000.

The New York Times noted in a recent editorial that foreign students are far from unusual on American campuses. This year alone nearly 50,000 foreign students from 131 countries are attending U.S. colleges and universities. (There are 178 full-time foreign students enrolled at SUU.)

The unusual feature of the new Russian plan, however, is its offer to pay for the students' two-way transportation plus full tuition, stipends and living expenses. In short, the Russians are willing to foot the entire bill.

The Russians are indicating a willingness to go all out in the struggle for the neutral world. The hard question that follows is, are we?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR—

No One Can Classify the Validity of This Decision

To the Editor:
"Charge Ex-Student With Draft Evasion"

So read the headline of a small, objectively written news article which appeared on the front page of last Saturday's Daily Iowan. My purpose in commenting upon that article is not primarily to defend Robert E. McGrath, the subject of the article; it is to clarify the meaning, or meaninglessness, of the term "draft evasion" as it applies to his arrest.

Excepting those times when I am dominated entirely by my emotions, and that occurs often enough, I attempt to give descriptive words the relative meaning which they should possess. In my amateur "philologizing" I find that the word "evasion" should carry with it the following meaning: "...avoiding a duty by deceit or cleverness, to hide from one's responsibility."

If we then operate on the presupposition that the above definition of the word "evasion" does represent the meaning of the non-verbalized idea behind it, I submit to you that Bob McGrath is being held on a charge which has no bearing in his case.

In the first place Bob never hid from his responsibility to compulsory conscription. He denied it — yes, but he never retreated from the threat it possessed. His selective service board always knew, or should have known, where he was. Bob never ran and he never intended to do so. He lives, not evading life's responsibilities, but affirming his right to decide freely for himself wherein his life responsibility lies.

Nor did Bob avoid his duty by deceit or cleverness. Is it deceitful when you forthrightly write to your draftboard, "I shall disregard any official communication and shall not acknowledge or comply with any induction notice and symbolically do herewith enclose those draft cards which have been assigned to me. I do this fully acknowledging my guilt in many things and that whatever my sins, I am not under the judgement of men for them."

Deceit? Trickery? Hiding? Running? Evading the draft? No, I am not defending Bob's motives, but I am not blindly judging them either. Only Bob and his Creator know what factors prompted his decision. No one else, not even the learned psychiatrist, can classify or declare the degree to which Bob's decision is a valid one. Pray tell me, what is a pure motive?

If I defend Bob it is only because he made a firm decision before the face of a power he for which I shudder. Does this classify Bob as a draft evader? No, you and I are the evaders of the draft — you and I who evade the draft by letting it consume us, you and I who evade the draft by letting the Government tell us that a theological education or a particular denominational affiliation gives us some type of pious preference in this world, you and I who share Bob's feelings but fail to express them too loudly for fear of the consequences, you and I who fail to face squarely the moral ambiguities involved in the growing power of the military in our country.

We are the draft evaders!

Letter to—

Sense of Friendship

—Upton Sinclair

REVIEWED BY JOHN K. HUTCHENS
Herald Tribune News Service
MY LIFETIME IN LETTERS.
University of Missouri Press.
412 pages, $6.50.

"Really, Mr. Sinclair, you must keep your head," a President of the United States wrote on June 11, 1906, to the 27-year-old author of that year's most talked-of book, Theodore Roosevelt was not chiding Upton Sinclair for having written "The Jungle." He was merely soothing his fear lest his sensational muckraking novel, and the reforms it called for, end up in a blind, white-washed alley. Mr. Sinclair was not resigned, then or ever, to futility.

"I like you so much — and you make me so damn sore," an old newspaper friend told him in 1917. "I am against you and the Liberals because I believe you chase butterflies, but I am even more against your enemies," H. L. Mencken said to him in 1923, asking him to contribute to the new "American Mercury."

Occasionally they smiled at him, quite frequently they disagreed with him, more often they applauded him, and almost without exception the writers of these 300 letters to Upton Sinclair respected him. Some of them he knew but slightly, and a few not at all. Nevertheless, the sense of friendship runs steadily through this selection, made by himself and Mrs. Sinclair from the correspondence of a lifetime that has now reached 81 years.

In "On Native Grounds," Alfred Kazin speaks of the "extraordinary purity" of that life, by which he does not mean, of course, the Sinclair non-drinking, non-smoking, vegetarian asceticism. He means purity of intention, and who now can fail to recognize and salute it?

Well, a few people can and will. But let them have a care. Mencken made fun of the lance-tilting Sinclair — politics, but Mencken knew a first-rate reporter when he saw one, and the man who wrote "The Jungle," "The Brass Check" and "The Goose-Step" was in all truth a first-rate reporter. Elsewhere, in and out of fiction, he was an out-and-out pamphleteer, writing sometimes well and sometimes badly, the words pouring out of him by the million in favor of a socialist, socialist, world peace, the endowment of poets, prohibition, women's rights, justice for Sacco and Vanzetti. His fervor was untiring, his ego unabashed. Of such stuff are reformers made.

Boston banned his Sacco-and-Vanzetti novel, "Boston." Los Angeles police arrested him for reading the Bill of Rights (on private property, with the permission of the owner). It has taken some time, but all save the most relentless of his foes should be able to see now that it was not he who stood on the lunatic fringe to which they once assigned him. Indeed, as you see him mirrored in these interesting and revealing letters, you find in him an old, quintessentially American characteristic: the unyielding optimism of the younger land we once were.

Like that of many a doctrinaire, his thinking has had its limitations including doubtless a certain naivete. Surely, by the process of reason and intelligence, the world inevitably could be made better! But to say that is also to say that one believes in life, as this man did and does. We see Edith Wharton and Sherwood Anderson scolding him here for using the novel as a device for propaganda; but they do not question his basic decency of purpose. Nor does he, in his commentary on one or another of these letters, question the good faith of those who differ with him.

Great Movies of the Past—

Welles' 'Citizen Kane'

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles discussing great film productions of the past.)

By ROBERT B. KREIS
Written for the DI

On Oct. 30, 1938, people living on the eastern seaboard, barely recovered from the war scare of the Munich crisis several weeks before, heard on the radio that the Martians had landed in Groves Mills, New Jersey. Within half an hour, thousands had fled their homes in panic, and newspapers, radio stations, and the police were flooded with calls and false alarms. Meanwhile, in station WOR in New York, totally ignorant of the mass hysteria he had created, Orson Welles concluded the broadcast of his adaptation of H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds," and the boy-wonder (age 22) of Broadway now became the boy-wonder of radio.

Shortly thereafter, RKO Pictures invited him to Hollywood, on his own terms. After writing two unproduced film scenarios, Welles began work on "Citizen Kane" and when the film opened in February 1941, nearly everywhere agreed that "Kane" was one of the most daring, imaginative, and stimulating films to ever come out of Hollywood.

"Citizen Kane" presented cinematic innovations that were unique in 1941, and the film is still, 20 years later, far ahead of its time.

Having had no previous film experience at all, Welles produced, directed, scripted (with Herman Mankiewicz) and starred in the film, and brought his Mercury Theatre players from New York to play the supporting roles. (The Mercury Theatre, started by Welles and John Houseman in 1937, had firmly established Welles' reputation on Broadway as a writer, actor, producer, and, in between playing "The Shadow" on radio, he presented scores of provocative dramas with the Mercury players.) Included in the supporting cast of "Kane," were Joseph Cotton, Agnes Moorehead, Everett Sloann, Dorothy Cummings, and Ray Collins.

"Citizen Kane" is the story of Charles Foster Kane, an American tycoon and press lord who inherited a fortune when he came of age, spent it, lost it, and made it again a hundred times over in the undisciplined pursuit of his own self-satisfaction and power. The thesis is put forth that his loss of emotional security at an early age created his self-devouring drive for success, as a sublimation of his need for the love he demanded, but was incapable of giving in return.

The elimination of all credits from the opening was startling new at the time, and the newsreel effects are spell-binding. Also etched in the memory are . . . the breakfast scene between Kane and his first wife, connected by one continuous line of dialogue, which shows the gradual disintegration of their relationship, and is on the scene for no more than 30 seconds . . . the expressiveness of the vastness of the Thatcher Memorial Library . . . the gargantuan hollowness of Xanadu, Kane's island where he retreats at the twilight of his material wealth, and where his wife sits, in front of a fireplace better than a hundred feet wide, assembling a monstrous jig-saw puzzle . . . the opera sequence, Kane, determined that his untalented second wife will be an opera singer, gives her voice lessons, builds her an opera house, and in her disastrous debut the camera is placed high in the wings, focused on the faces of two stage hands, whose expressions convey the truth about the performance going on below.

The scene from the opera stage, looking out into the audience, was filmed in an empty movie house directly into 3,000 tiny floodlights and presents a perfect replica of being on an opera stage. This, all because Welles was unwilling to hire 3,000 extras and build a fake theater for the scene. ("Kane,") filmed in 27 weeks, cost just over $750,000.

There was much talk at the time that "Kane" was a thinly disguised biography of William Randolph Hearst, and, goaded on by Louella Parsons, the Hearst papers refused to run any advertisements or mention of RKO films. Lawsuits were threatened, accusations were flung far and wide, but whether or not "Kane" is Hearst, or anyone else for that matter, it remains an awesome and so far unequalled cinematic endeavor.

Orson Welles paid the price for his daring, his youth, and most of all his success, for he was removed from his next film ("Magnificent Ambersons") in 1942 before its completion, for superficial reasons that are not entirely clear, but the underlying cause was the undeniable motive of pure envy from large segments of the U.S. film industry. However, no such action can dim the stature of "Citizen Kane," the work of the titanic 24-year-old who rewrote film history in 27 weeks, and whose initial film is an unapproachable classic.

From a purely technical point of view, "Kane" is unparalleled. There are virtually no visual transitions, newsreel technique is used to chronicle Kane's public life, the 30 or more short scenes are brilliantly pointed, dialogues overlap each other, people cough, are interrupted, sentences are started by one person and finished by another, single narrative strands cover weeks and months of visual projections, low ceilings are utilized in filming, sound is muffled, and yet, this is not technique for its own sake. Every technical device serves and is subservient to the telling of the story, and the incredible virtuosity of Welles and cameraman Gregg ("Grapes of Wrath," "Long Voyage Home") Toland has to be believed.

Toland and Welles established many camera innovations, including: Pan-focus, which gives scenes great clarity and depth, eliminating the close-up, which tends to disorient the actor from his environment; shooting straight into light; shooting from underneath floors. The result is a visual combination of realism and expressionism that is unique in the annals of film.

Many of the scenes are staggering artistic triumphs, and the juxtaposition of scenes (Welles edited the film, too) creates a rise and fall in dramatic tension that is almost symbolic in character.

TREASON, a dramatic subject all by itself, is even more exciting in the radio play by Sanders Lewis scheduled for broadcast tonight at 8 p.m. Originally produced by that loyal body, the British Broadcasting Corporation, Treason (that's the name of the drama as well as its theme) is concerned with related events occurring on a single day in July, 1944, in Paris and in Normandy.

THE "CHORAL" SYMPHONY, Symphony No. 9 in E Minor by Beethoven, will be the principle work to be heard on tonight's Evening Concert program, from 6 p.m. to 8. It will be preceded by Cesar Frank's Symphonic Variations and a Brahms quartet. TONIGHT ON FM: More new records, in addition to the feature (music from "The Sleeping Beauty"), will be previewed: a new version of the Schubert "Unfinished" Symphony; Chopin waltzes played by Malczynski; and some Verdi arias sung by Aase Lovberg. KSUI-FM broadcasts for three hours nightly, Monday through Friday, beginning at 7 p.m.

SATURDAY SUPPLEMENT RETURNS, after a week's absence, this Saturday at 1 p.m. with a three-hour review of contemporary Russian-American relations based, for a change, on that optimistic theme expressed by Roswell Garst: "More, Hope Now Than Before." Instead of fastening on the most abysmal aspects of cold war competition, SS producer Emma Sue Phelps intends to concentrate on the symptoms of an improved relationship between the two countries. And who's to say she's wrong.

AN AMERICAN OPERA, perhaps the most universally respected to date, will be presented Friday at 7:30 p.m. That would be Vanessa by Samuel Barber and Gian-Carlo Menotti. It has been favored by audiences aboard as well as within this country. The original cast recording is directed by the Metropolitan's Dimitri Mitropoulos.

WE WARNED YOU that there would be frequent references to the necessity for having available binocular listening equipment for "J.B." when it is broadcast, March 31.

Plans for Shifting in

Plans for Mecca Week — a 50-year-old tradition at SUU — are shifting into high gear as the time for the annual event, March 14 to 19, approaches.

Rich in sentiment and tradition, Mecca Week drew its name from the five engineering branches at SUU when the festival was founded — mechanical, electrical, chemical, civil and architectural. However, since its start in 1910, the architectural branch has been dropped and an aeronautical section added.

Sponsored by the Associated Students of Engineering (ASE), which represents some 700 engineering students on the SUU campus, the program will include a beard-growing contest (with prizes for the handsomest, ugliest and funniest beards), a shaving contest with awards for the fastest shavers (excluding nicks and cuts, of course), and the perennial hunt for the Mecca or "Blarney" stone — a 35-pound hunk of granite hidden by last year's seniors (never will so many have searched so long for so little).

Highlight of the week will be the Mecca Ball March 18, during which the Mecca Queen will be crowned and "St. Pat, patron saint of engineering students, and the Queen will reign over the Mecca Ball.

The Mecca Stone hunt will begin the morning of March 14, when a group of engineering students will set out on the search equipped with clues ranging from mathematical equations to verbal riddles. Failure to find the stone — which is located somewhere within a 15-mile radius of Iowa City — would mean that the seniors would have to replace it. This has happened only once before, in 1947.

On March 16 at 1 p.m., the beard-judging contest will be held in Studio E of the Engineering Building. Judges will be faculty members and students on the ASE council. Admission will be free.

The Mecca Week Smoker will be held March 17 from 6:30 to 10:30

Haggamen Cited By Union Board

Harry H. Haggamen, Waverly, president of the Board of Regents, became an honorary member of Union Board Tuesday evening at the annual Union Board banquet held in the Iowa Memorial Union.

Each year the members of Union Board select an honorary member and invite him to present an address at the banquet.

Haggamen spoke to the group about the Board of Regents, its function and organization.

SUI president, Virgil M. Hancher, who is an honorary member, introduced Haggamen who was presented a honorary key by Tom Obinger, A4, Grand Junction, president of Union Board.

Following the presentation, Earl E. Harper, director of the Iowa Memorial Union, gave each member of Union Board a recognition key.

It's Been a Long, Cold Iowa Winter

It hasn't always been winter.

These pictures will attest to that fact, but to many IOWANs, it must seem that the snow and ice have been here forever.

Daily Iowan photographer, Bruno Torres, was one of these skeptical souls. He searched the picture files for a summer scene just to prove to himself that the campus hasn't always been bleak and cold.

Then he slushed his way to the same scene and recorded it as it is today. The pictures were taken at the front of the Commons steps, looking east across the Iowa River towards the Iowa Memorial Union and other campus buildings.

SUI's first snow of the season fell 116 days ago on Nov. 7. No body seemed to mind then; in fact it added an extra touch to the Iowa-Minnesota football game played that day. But "absence makes the heart grow fonder," so the old saying goes, and many people are now wishing they hadn't greeted that initial snow-fall with so much enthusiasm.

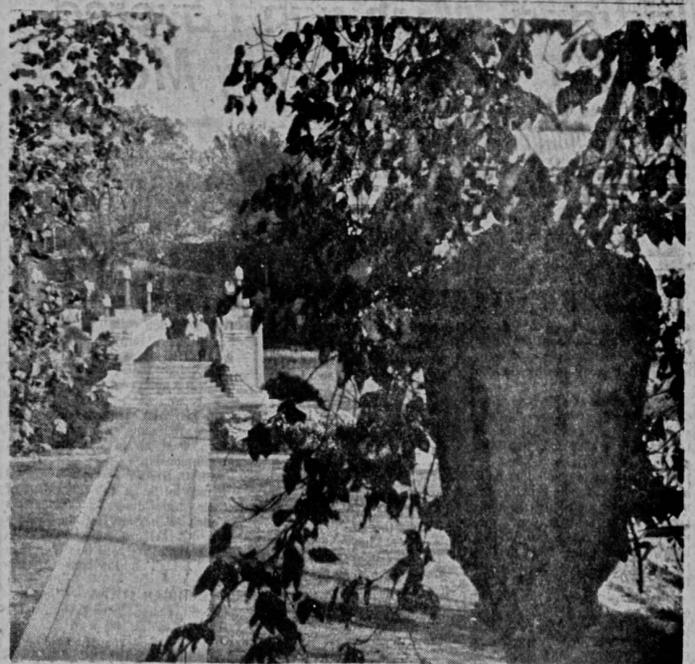

The first day of spring, March 21, is still a long way off. One look at the weather forecast will show this to be only too true.

A blinding snow storm driven by winds of 25 to 30 miles per hour roared into Iowa Wednesday with a promise of between three and six inches of new snow by Thursday.

In Des Moines a Weather Bureau forecaster said "driving conditions in the state will be very hazardous and motorists should use extreme caution."

The Weather Bureau said this is turning out to be one of the worst winters in two decades.

So rally to your snow shovels, keep on your car chains and don't throw away your parka yet, but most of all, don't lose hope. It can't last forever.

SUI's Prof. Funke Completes Dictionary for Translingua

By SANDRA LEHMAN Staff Writer

Prof. Erich Funke, head of the SUI German Department, has just completed a dictionary which will enable persons to translate a code of interlinguistic communication.

The code, which is based on Arabic numbers 0 to 9 and their decimal combinations, is called Translingua Script.

The dictionary of 25,000 symbols will be photographically multiplied so that Translingua dictionaries of all the world languages can be developed, said Funke.

Translingua is written and not spoken. A word or an idea is denoted by a code number which means the same in any language.

2.25 is in English, "pretty;" in French, "joli;" in German, "hübsch;" in Dutch, "aardig;" in Swedish, "vacker," and so forth for the rest of the languages, explained Funke.

The user of Translingua does not have to study any foreign language or memorize the number symbols, but he must know his own language well, said Funke. Also, a person must be able to handle the highly simplified grammar of the system in order to transcode into it with ease, he said.

A few and simple diacritical or distinguishing marks indicate the grammatical function of a word. They may also indicate the shift of a verb to a noun, or an adjective to a verb, and so forth, said Funke.

Therefore, he said: 8.1 equals man, 8.1x equals men; ("x" denotes plural) 1.72 equals to see, 1.72 (with an arrow pointing down after it) equals saw, and 1.72 (with an arrow pointing up after it) denotes future tense) equals will see; 9.412 equals blood, "9.412 equals bloody (" " " denotes an adjective), and "9.412 equals to bleed.

The sentence structure is predominantly determined by position: Subject-verb (predicate)-object. Modifiers ordinarily precede the word modified: 2.1-8.1 equals the good man, Funke explained.

A person needs only a two-way dictionary of his own language

Utilities Company Sues for $1,000

Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Co. filed a damage suit Wednesday in Johnson County District Court asking $1,024.95 for damages done to a utility pole, electric lines and equipment.

The damage suit stemmed from a car-truck collision involving an Iowa City man Jan. 29 of last year. Robert C. Wormer, RFD 4, Iowa City and Kirk McWorter of Salt Lake City, Utah were named defendants in the damage suit.

The suit alleges that a car driven by Wormer and a semi-trailer truck driven by McWorter collided at an intersection of Linn Street and Highway 6, causing the trailer truck to demolish a utility pole and damage electricity lines and equipment on the pole.

Costs of damages to the pole and equipment were listed at $1,024.95 by the company.

McWorter is an employee of the Interstate Motor Lines of Salt Lake City, Utah.

29 Attending Workshop on Houseparents

Four Iowans are among 29 administrators and houseparents from 18 Midwestern states attending the Midwest Administrators Workshop on Houseparents this week at the SUI Center for Continuation Study.

Sponsored by SUI in co-operation with the American Association of Instructors of the Blind and the American Foundation for the Blind, the workshop is the fourth of its kind ever conducted in this country.

Iowans attending the workshop are: D. W. Overbey, superintendent, Iowa Braille and Sight Saving School, Vinton; Don Walker, principal at the Vinton school; Mrs. Betty Huber, also from Vinton, and Mrs. Carol Bowers, field worker for the deaf and blind, Des Moines.

Overbey will also speak at the workshop, along with two SUIIowans, Prof. Boyd R. McCandless and W. W. Hartup of the Iowa Child Welfare Research Station. Other staff members for the workshop include: Georgie Lee Abel, program specialist for education, American Foundation for the Blind; Maurice Olsen, executive secretary, American Association of Instructors of the Blind; Everett Wilcox, superintendent, Oregon State School for the Blind, and Max Woolly, superintendent, Arkansas School for the Blind.

Purpose of the workshop is to develop an interest in and understanding of the role of houseparents in schools for the blind. Special emphasis is placed on the development of pre-service and in-service training, establishment of standards for personnel selection and growth, and the improvement of liaison between houseparents and staff.

Indiana, Michigan Favored In Big 10 Swimming Meet

By JOHN HANRAHAN Staff Writer

The Big Ten Conference's championship swimming meet gets underway this afternoon at Ann Arbor, Mich., with Indiana and Michigan rated as heavy favorites to battle it out for the team title.

Iowa coach Bob Allen expects several Big Ten marks to fall during the three-day meet and "wouldn't be a bit surprised if some American records are set also."

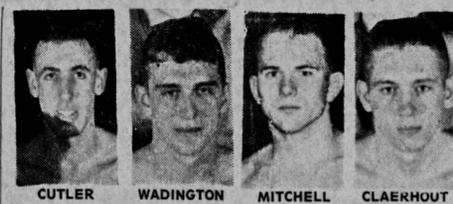

Allen gives Indiana the edge for the team title over Michigan, but said it could easily go the other way.

"Both Indiana and Michigan have several 'good swimmers,'" Allen said, "but Michigan definitely has the edge in diving with Bob Webster and Joe Gerlach. Indiana has no top-flight divers and this could hurt them because in the Big Ten meet there is both high and low board diving. Indiana won't pick up any points in diving, so if Michigan's divers come through then the Wolverines should take the team title."

Allen said he doesn't foresee any of his boys taking first places in the meet, but added that Les Cutler (100, 200-yard backstroke), Charles Mitchell (200-yard individual medley) and Binky Wadington (1,500 meter freestyle) should be pushing the leaders all the way in their individual specialties.

In seven meets this year, Cutler won the 200-yard backstroke six times. His only loss came against Indiana when he finished third behind the Hoosiers' great combination of Frank McKinney and Dick Beaver.

Mitchell takes a perfect 7-0 mark in the individual medley into the Big Ten meet. He won in that event against Indiana but did not have to swim against the Hoosiers' sophomore flash Mike Troy. Troy will be favored in the individual medley over Mitchell, Minnesota's Chip Peterson, and Indiana's Dick Beaver.

According to Allen, Wadington has been improving rapidly in the 1,500 meter freestyle. "His practice times would have placed him among the leaders last year," the Iowa coach said. "But since the event isn't held regularly in the Big Ten, it's pretty hard to tell what the other teams have in the way of 1,500 meter swimmers. I do think, though, that Binky has an excellent chance of placing high in the 1,500 meters race."

Allen took a 10-man squad to the Big Ten meet. They are: Les Cutler (backstroke, medley relay), Binky Wadington (1,500 meters, 440-yard freestyle, 400-yard freestyle relay), Charles Mitchell (individual medley, medley relay, 220-yard freestyle), Howard Heid (medley relay, 200-yard breaststroke), Ray Carlson (200-yard butterfly, both relays), Bill Meyerhoff (50 and 100-yard freestyle, both relays), Bill Claerhout (100 and 220-yard freestyle, both relays), Larry Fruehling (100 and 200-yard backstroke), and Corky Rhodes (alternate for both relays, alternate in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle).

Here is how the other Big Ten teams stack up for the conference meet:

ABC Tourney To Open with 30,000 Entries

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Bowling's biggest event, the American Bowling Congress Tournament, starts Saturday with more than 30,000 contestants battling for $409,311 in prize money.

Bowlers from 43 states, the District of Columbia, Canada, the Canal Zone, Puerto Rico and Saudi Arabia will be represented in the 79-day competition ending May 22.

Eddie Lubanski of Detroit, who dominated last year's tournament in St. Louis, will defend his three titles. He and Bill Lillard of St. Louis were the only triple winners in the 57-year history of the ABC. Lillard turned the trick in 1956.

The 30-year-old Lubanski, who quite a promising baseball career to bowl, last year won the singles championship, the all-events title, and was captain of Detroit's Pfeiffers, which won the five-man team event with a record 3,243 pins. Lubanski's 2,116 in the all-events also set a record.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four of the five teams from last year's title field, including defending champion Gladbrook, won their district meets Wednesday night and rolled into the 1960 Iowa Girls State Basketball championships at Des Moines next week.

The fifth survivor from the 1959 field, Argyle, fell 49-43 at the hands of a strong Douds-Leando team which won its 26th game without defeat this season.

Paced by the 55-point shooting of Judy Shade, Gladbrook racked up its 41st win in a row, including 27 this season, by swamping Tripoli 79-42 in a district final at Waterloo.

Other teams earning a return trip to the state finals were Bondurant-Farrar, Corwith-Wesley and Ida Grove.

Bondurant-Farrar won its 21st in 24 games 57-53 over Guthrie Center at Adel with Judy James contributing 23 points.

Linda Nall's 31 points helped Corwith-Wesley to a 72-53 victory over Havelock-Plover at Rolfe.

Magazines Agree To

DES MOINES (AP) — A group of wholesale magazine distributors pledged Wednesday to keep their magazine titles from obscuring Iowa newsmagazines.

Meeting here with Atty. Gen. Norman Erbe, representatives of the Central States Distributor Association said they will personally visit Iowa county attorneys with a view toward working out an agreement to keep their titles from obscuring Iowa newsmagazines.

The association, representing Iowa magazine distributors, commended by Erbe for what called its "excellent cooperation since Sept. 1."

Erbe last September named publications which he considered obscene and ordered Iowa dealers to take them off their newsstands or face criminal action.

Stan Seidler of Cedar Rapids, association secretary, said a problem of the definition of obscenity was discussed at length during Wednesday's meeting with Erbe.

"As a result of the meeting," he said, "we will attempt to keep certain magazines off newsstands and meet certain requirements county attorneys regarding publications they consider objectionable."

Seidler said, however, his organization has been voluntarily withholding magazines it considered to be in bad taste "and are not interested in any contest by putting objectionable magazines on newsstands."

Erbe told the group he hoped that his original "blacklist" of magazines would serve as a guide to both county attorneys and the magazine distributors to what magazines might be considered objectionable.

Linn County Attorney Richard Nazette, past president of Iowa County Attorneys Assn., said "there is nothing to prevent distribution of the 42 magazines the distributors feel they are right."

Seidler said his organization would check each of the 42 other publications periodically to see if there is any change in the dominant theme. "He indicated that some of the 42 publications may be placed back in circulation."

Polk County Attorney Ray Hanrahan told the group he will take each magazine on its own merits to determine whether or not the would be any action taken under Iowa's anti-obscenity law.

Nazette said "I don't want to act as a censor, but I will decide if there is sufficient evidence to make out a case."

Seidler replied that a great deal of authority will be vested in county attorneys "but we will operate fully."

Erbe and other members present indicated that an effort was

Warm Weather, Not New Pitch Helps Newcombe

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — It was only last May that Cincinnati Coach Clyde King told Don Newcombe he'd have to learn a new pitch if the disgruntled Reds hurler wished to work himself back to starting status.

King told the 33-year-old right-hander, who only three years before had won 27 games with Brooklyn, "Your fast ball just isn't fast any more. Why don't you try to develop a screwball?"

"I'd be a screwball if I did," snorted the big guy.

"All right, then," persisted King, a former pitcher himself, "how about a slider?"

"What do you think I've been throwing all these years?" asked Newcombe.

For three weeks Newcombe fretted on the bench. He had lost favor with Manager Mayor Smith, after winning only one game in five decisions.

Tired of sitting on the bench Don approached Smith one day.

The next day Newcombe, relying on his fast ball, defeated the Giants 2-1. He didn't stop winning until he won eight in a row. At the season's end, he owned a 13-8 record.

"I had a good year, the club didn't," explains Newcombe.

"I should be all right this year, too, if I don't hurt my arm. I

Big 10 Shooting Records Appear Certain To Fall

Saturday may close a record-breaking year for the Big Ten as far as season field goal shooting is concerned, both individual and team.

With one game left for all the teams, four players and three teams possess averages better than the existing marks — 538 for an individual, set by John Green in 1958 while with Michigan State, and 431 for a team, established by the 1957 Ohio State team.

Jerry Lucas of Ohio State has a .63 field goal percentage. Ron Johnson of Minnesota 571. Terry Dischinger of Purdue .558 and Walt Bellamy of Indiana .542. Ohio State is .498 in shooting from the floor. Minnesota .482 and Indiana .458. Champion Ohio State leads in points per game with a 92.0 figure, better than the 91.2 mark turned in by the 1956 Illinois team. Northwestern regained the defensive top spot, allowing its opponents 69.4 points a game. Michigan State still heads the list in rebounds with a total of 686 for a 52.8 average.

Dischinger maintained his season-long lead with 27.1 points per game. He also remained ahead in total points with 352. Lucas ranks second with a 26.1 average and 339 total points.

The possibility of a three-way tie for third place presents itself in a pair of final contests. Illinois, with a 7-6 win-loss record, is at Northwestern (9-5) in a regionally televised game, while Minnesota (8-5) entertains Ohio State. Last year, a trio of teams — Michigan, Northwestern and Purdue — tied for second place with 8-6 marks.

Big Lead for Carol in World Meet

VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP) — Carol Heiss of New York City pulled up an apparently insurmountable lead Wednesday in defense of her world figure skating championship. Completing the compulsory figure program with an unofficial total of 939.9 points.

In second place with an unofficial 904.8 was Sjoukje Dijkstra of The Netherlands. Barbara Roles of Los Angeles ranked third with 870.

Joan Haanappel of The Netherlands followed at 845.1 after the sixth compulsory figure. Regine Heitzer, Austria, was fifth with 829.3.

The world event was shaping up as a repetition of the Olympics, where Miss Heiss won the first-place gold medal, Miss Dijkstra the silver and Miss Roles the bronze award. That was the first Olympic gold medal for Carol, but she has won the world championship four times.

Upon completion of their compulsory figure skating Wednesday the girls will rest until Thursday night, then compete in the free-skating portion of the competition.

Basketball Scores Detroit-Villanova To Open NIT

NEW YORK (AP) — Villanova (18-5) will play Detroit (19-5) in the opening game of the annual National Invitation Basketball Tournament starting in Madison Square Garden next Thursday, Asa S. Bushnell said Wednesday.

In the second game, Providence (20-4) and Memphis State (18-4) are the opponents.

Only the opening night's schedule has been arranged. Three more teams are to be named before the 12-college field is completed.

Tie Vote by Big 10 Certain —

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Western Conference this weekend is slated formally to end the Rose Bowl pact which in 14 years has poured five million dollars into its coffers.

A five-five vote on renewal of the football agreement, with a majority needed for approval, is a virtual certainty as the Big Ten faculty representatives and athletic directors open their three-day post-winter sessions here Thursday noon.

The opening session will be a secret affair, with the result being announced at a 5 p.m. press conference. The bowl vote is No. 1 on the agenda.

Minnesota, Ohio State, Northwestern, Illinois and Wisconsin are a solid bloc against renewal of the pact, and Michigan, Michigan State, Purdue, Iowa and Indiana are for it.

For the past 14 years, during which conference schools won 12 and lost two Rose Bowl titles, each Big Ten member has profited by that amount of $25,000 from the pact, with the competing school getting twice that much and a full share going to the commissioner's office.

Another proposal due to receive a resounding "no" from the conference representatives is an offer to pay the league three million dollars for the privilege of televising all sports over a three-year period. Any acceptance of the bid would be in defiance of the NCAA which sets up all television programs involving inter-

Polio Took 22 Lives in Iowa in '59

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa, although ranked among the top five states on per capita use of polio vaccine, had one of its heaviest polio death years of the decade during 1959, the State Health Department reported Wednesday.

There were 415 polio cases reported in Iowa last year, the department said, and of the total 22 persons died. The last reported death was in February, 1960. The victim, however, had contracted polio in 1959.

Of the 415 cases, the department said, 273 were diagnosed as paralytic, 128 as non-paralytic, and 14 were unspecified.

The department said that six of the 22 persons who died of polio had received vaccine. One of the victims had received three injections during the school immunization program three years ago. Another had received two inoculations in 1957 and a third the following year.

Only one of the victims, a 34-year-old Webster County woman, had received the full four shots, the department said.

The department noted that only 2 of the 22 cases resulting in death occurred in the 5-10 age group, in which polio formerly was most prevalent.

Polk County with five deaths led the Iowa counties. Webster County was second with four.

The total number of cases last year was heaviest since 1956, when 580 cases, including five deaths, were reported. In the year 1957, only 78 persons contracted polio and 73 cases were reported in 1958.

The previous high death toll from polio was in 1954 — the year before the nationwide inoculation program got underway — when 55 Iowans died.

Since the polio vaccine program started in Iowa in 1955, the department said, a total of 5,301,165 units of polio vaccine had been distributed in Iowa through Jan. 15, 1960.

Health officials had blamed public apathy in general for the rise in the number of polio incidents in Iowa last year.

Dilemma of Lent: What to Give Up?

NEW YORK (AP) — "What are you giving up for Lent this year?" People have been asking each other this question for days. Most of them now are embarked on their annual 40-day sacrifice of some form of personal indulgence.

The fellow down the hall from her has sworn off martinis for the duration. A girl on the floor below has turned her back on tempting chocolate sodas. The old lady on the floor above has abandoned the reading of lurid confession magazines, a harmless source of thrills for her during the rest of the year.

"Everybody ought to give up something for Lent, daddy," said my daughter, Tracy Ann, 6. "Is it all right if I give up bubble gum?"

I told her that was a fine thing to give up and complimented her on her spirit of fortitude because I saw it would be a real struggle. At six you don't give up bubble gum lightly. When the world is going against you at that age, bubble gum can be a real consolation.

"And what are you going to give up?" asked my daughter. The question stopped me cold. "I haven't decided yet," I told her.

But what can a middle-aged man give up? He can't give up beer-baiting, wife-beating or cop-fighting. He already has cut out such frivolities long ago.

If he is already on the wagon and embarked on a diet, he can't give up the bottle or the joys of the table. For the time being, these things are part of his past already. The doctor has forbidden him the pleasures most people make such a point of giving up at this period of the year.

When you get right down to it, a middle-aged man on a health kick doesn't have either any vices or joys he is aware of.

In this dilemma I consulted my wife who, fortunately, hadn't decided that for Lent she would give up on giving me advice.

"I can name a hundred things you could still give up," she said, and, bless her heart, I feel sure she could name 200 if she really started. "But for one thing, why don't you do the draperies a favor and give up smoking those cheap cigars?"

Well, that's an idea. I guess I will give them up. That leaves just one problem. How am I going to get her to give me the money to smoke expensive cigars?

Interim Committee To Check Board of Control Purchases

DES MOINES (AP) — An equipment supply firm's complaint of irregularities in certain purchases by the State Board of Control was referred to the Iowa Legislative Interim Committee Wednesday.

The committee, after a closed-door meeting of more than three hours with Atty. Gen. Norman Erbe, said it was launching an investigation in which the Board of Control will cooperate.

The three board members — George Callenius, John Hansen and Jim Henry — also sat in on the meeting with Erbe.

Hansen and Henry met Wednesday afternoon with an agent of the State Bureau of Criminal Investigation to check the irregularities which the firm said it did not meet the specifications was actually purchased.

The complaint, he added, covered several purchases, each involving relatively small amounts of equipment from May, 1957 to January of this year.

Hansen said that in addition to checking the purchase records, Interim Committee would set up a three-member group of "disinterested experts" to examine the equipment involved to see if it meets the specifications.

"Our aim," Paul said, "is to find out whether the state of Iowa is being defrauded on goods purchased under specifications."

The Board of Control operates 14 state mental, penal and other institutions.

Equipment purchases are made through the board's central office. Specifications are drawn, bids are taken and contracts let through the board's purchasing agent.

The purchasing agent during part of the period covered by the complaint was Harry Shropshire. He resigned about a year and a half ago and was succeeded by James Gay.

State officials emphasized that the complaint actually was directed against another equipment supply firm and was not aimed specifically at any state employee.

Young Demos Plan Club for Humphrey

A "Humphrey for President" club will be formed by a group of SUI Young Democrats tonight at 7:30 in Conference Room 2 of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Robert L. Fulton, L.S. Leon, president of the Young Democrats, will conduct an organization meeting for all students and staff members interested in supporting the candidacy of Minnesota's Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

MILITARY PLANS DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Unconfirmed press reports said Wednesday Arab defense ministers will begin contacts shortly to draw up unified military plans to face a possible Israeli diversion of the course of the River Jordan.

This move, the reports say, follows the recent proclamation by Arab League foreign ministers at Cairo that any attempts by Israel to divert the river will be regarded by all Arab states as aggression.

He declined to reveal the name of the complaining firm or to say what kind of equipment was involved.

Erbe, however, said it was "mostly hospital equipment, such as hospital beds."
