Rhee Submits Resignation; Prompt Acceptance Expected

SEOUL (AP) — President Syngman Rhee has formally submitted his resignation, Foreign Minister Hug Chung said Wednesday.

The resignation was sent to the cabinet secretariat to be relayed to the National Assembly, Huh said.

The Assembly, which asked Rhee Tuesday to resign immediately, is expected to accept the resignation promptly.

It was generally agreed that a caretaker government, possibly headed by Huh, would take over and prepare for elections for a new National Assembly, president and vice president within three months.

The 85-year-old founder of independent Korea, the nation's only president in its 12 years as a republic, finally stepped down after weeks of mounting violence stemming from protests against the March 15 presidential elections.

A tumultuous 26 hours of steady rioting and demonstrations ended at curfew time Tuesday night after more than 100,000 Koreans crowded the streets of the capital, celebrating Rhee's announcement that he would quit.

Wednesday the city of two million resumed something of a normal appearance.

Leaders of the historic upheaval were cooperating with the Korean army to bring order back to the troubled nation.

Students replaced Rhee's hated National Police in directing traffic in much of Seoul.

Students manning loudspeaker trucks toured the streets, urging people to stay at home.

At the moment the nation seemed rudderless. Chang had resigned. Vice President-elect Lee had been banned from his posts. Rhee's resignation might mean control passing to Huh Chung, independent politician and former premier who was named by Rhee earlier as foreign minister and ranking member of a Cabinet the President was trying to form.

The Health Ministry reported at least 15 more persons died in Tuesday's riots and more than 170 were wounded. For the week of violence, the totals rose to at least 145 dead, by official count, and more than 800 wounded.

The students' celebrations Tuesday prior to Rhee's announcement involved an attack on a police station and the looting and sacking of Lee's home. Lee, Rhee's running mate in the March 15 elections, was credited with a landslide victory over the opponent who defeated him four years ago. Students, charging fraud and police coercion at the polls, made Lee their chief target in the demonstrations.

Crowds of young people smashed into Lee's home, hurled his personal belongings out the window and built a bonfire to burn them. One of the few items to survive was a huge silk American flag. The students gently placed it to one side, away from the fire, and then presented it to an Associated Press photographer. As for Lee, his whereabouts was a mystery at that moment.

SUI Council Meets Tonight

In a special meeting tonight the Student Council will discuss organizational plans for establishing an SUI fund for Southern students who have suffered as a result of demonstrations against segregation.

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. in the South River Room of the Union. The Council accepted a resolution April 20 which directed the establishment of the fund.

The Council members will hear the report of a three-member committee which has studied possible ways for the fund and organizational set-up of the campaign.

The committee is comprised of Larry Day, A4, Grimes; Myrna Balk, A3, University City, Mo., and Frank Belloni, G, Iowa City.

City May Buy Local Water Co.

By BEN BLACKSTOCK
Staff Writer

In a special meeting Tuesday the Iowa City Council instructed City Manager Peter Roan to negotiate with the Iowa City Water Service Co. about the possibility of the city purchasing the water company.

The Council instructed Roan to continue with negotiations with the water company concerning the implementation of a recommendation by a special advisory committee established by the Council to study water facilities in Iowa City.

The advisory committee recommendation the Council referred to called for the City to purchase the water plant at a "fair" market price and modernize the plant and distribution facilities in the public interest.

In a report Roan submitted to the Council Tuesday, he lists the total book value of the water company at $939,000.

Mayor Ray Thornberry said this figure was arrived at by Roan by "using the best appraisal methods known today."

Roan said that one item that does not appear in the book appraisal of the company is an old age pension program that the water company has in force. Under the pension plan the water company employees will retire at 65 at half pay, with the basic retirement pay to be made by Social Security benefits and the company making up the difference to reach half pay retirement for the water company employees.

The extent of this liability, Roan said, can only be determined by an actuarial survey of the company's pension system, but would amount to a considerable amount.

The question of whether or not the pension cost would be included in the net value of the company will be subject to negotiations with the water company and the City Manager, Thornberry said.

City Councilwoman Mrs. Thelma Lewis said the nearly $1 million value of the plant as determined by Roan is simply a basis for negotiations with the water company and is not necessarily a definite purchase price.

Concern was expressed by some Council members that the company will not agree with the city's evaluation of the worth of the water company and may not sell at all.

Mayor Thornberry said some of the advantages of municipal ownership of the water company would be no federal, state or city taxes and the plant would not have to realize a profit.

Thornberry said there are only three or four cities in Iowa that do not now own their water plants and Iowa City is included in the number.

He compared municipal ownership of the water company with that of city ownership of the sewage system where the taxpayer is saved the cost of taxes on the service company and the company does not have to realize a profit.

The City Council did not take action on a second recommendation made by the advisory committee, calling for the Council to enter into negotiation with the present owners of the water company to permit the company to request a franchise to distribute water in the Iowa City area in case the water company does not want to sell or the Council and the Council and the company do not agree on a purchase of the water plant.

If the water company and the Council do agree on a purchase price, the question would have to be submitted to the Iowa City voters.

Mayor Thornberry said such a purchase would be financed by a long-term bond issue that would have to be voted on by Iowa Citizens.

Another possible move suggested by the advisory committee would be for the Iowa City water company and the University water plant to combine facilities.

'Food Riot' Starts Hectic Night

By HAROLD HATFIELD
Staff Writer

Spring fever overtook several hundred Hillcrest men Tuesday evening as they walked out of their cafeteria and staged a dissatisfaction demonstration protesting dormitory meals. The demonstration turned out to be somewhat milder than the "food riot" that had originally been planned.

The riot was scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. during the evening meal. Advisors were notified of the plan before the meal and had deployed themselves at strategic positions in the cafeteria.

The first phases of the demonstration were tapping glasses with silverware, stamping feet and singing the Iowa Fight Song. As men finished their meals, they remained in their seats, leaving no room for the rest of the residents. About 20 of the men took their dinners outside and ate on the lawn.

By 6:15 most of the men had left the cafeteria and were gathered on the lawn north of the dorm. Several dishes were broken, followed by cheers from the crowd. Calls of "We want food," "We want May Herman," and "We want a panty raid," were heard. Water was thrown from windows on the second floor.

The crowd cheered loudly when a dummy was hung from the Hillcrest roof. A sign on the dummy said "The Hillcrest Cook."

A number of advisers circulated through the crowd writing down the names of several of the demonstrators. Several men were taking pictures.

The demonstration had lost much of its exuberance by the time that M. L. Huit, dean of students, arrived. Huit said that he was willing to meet with the students and urged them to meet in the cafeteria.

Huit said the students were wasting a lot of time. "We are willing to meet with you," he said.

Huit said the demonstration came as a surprise to him. He said that he had heard no complaints about the quality of Hillcrest food, and that he was surprised to hear that they were not happy with the food. This statement was followed with loud cheers and applause.

Tom Drummond, A2, Washington, D.C., acted as spokesman for the students. He said, "There are quite a few things wrong with the food. If you are first in line you get different things than if you are later in line. What's on the menu isn't always what you get."

"The fish is raw. Meat slices are small. The Jello is almost unbearable to eat."

Other complaints were that the breakfasts were bad. One resident said that two strips of bacon are served which look like "a couple of shoe strings."

Another voiced disgust at a salad of oranges and onion rings. Another complaint was the rule that a suit or sport coat be worn at Sunday meals. Huit said that one of the reasons for the dress-up rule is to set a standard.

Huit promised there would be no disciplinary action against the students. He guaranteed that nothing would happen to a small group that wouldn't happen to all of the Hillcrest residents.

In referring to the 10 men who planned the demonstration, Huit said, "Nothing is going to happen to these 10 men, I assure you." At his request the students agreed to appoint a committee to confer with him next week.

SUI Men Protest 'Bad Food,' Coeds' Hours in Flareups

By Staff Writers

More than 1,000 SUI men staged a demonstration at 10 p.m. Tuesday night at Currier and Burge dorms. The men circled both dormitories chanting "No more hours" and displayed a banner bearing the words "Down With Unfair Hours."

University and Iowa City police were tipped off in advance of the demonstrations and were on the scene at both dorms. No action was taken to disperse the demonstrators.

Fall Injures Worker at Building Site

An Iowa City man was reported in fair condition late Tuesday, suffering from injuries he suffered when he fell from the third floor to the second floor at the Law Commons now under construction at SUI.

Mercy Hospital officials said Ellsworth Kelly, 53, 1503 Crescent St., suffered several broken ribs, a fractured collar bone and multiple cuts and bruises. They issued the condition report after Kelly had undergone surgery.

Fellow workers on the new building, which is going up across the street from the Veterans Hospital on the west side of the river, said Kelly fell about 12 feet.

They said he had been working on the third floor when he apparently lost his balance and dropped to the second floor level.

Attendants of the Iowa City Ambulance Service Company, who were called to the scene, said Kelly was still conscious when they arrived.

Kelly is employed by the Viggo M. Jensen Construction Company. The Iowa City firm has the construction for the new building.

Kennedy Makes Strong Showing in Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts rode toward victory Tuesday on a rising tide of Democratic write-in votes in Pennsylvania's presidential preference primary election.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, unopposed on the Republican ballot, was rolling up a vote that could approach the totals cast for President Eisenhower in other primaries in the state.

Nixon alone entered the primary. He was the only name on the ballot for either major party.

Unofficial tabulations on the Democratic Vote in 3,528 precincts of 9,013 showed: Kennedy 27,059, Stevenson 3,283, Humphrey 1,299, Symington 701, Johnson 265.

Republican tabulations from 4,128 precincts gave Nixon 375,977 votes and Rockefeller 1,433 write-ins.

One city fire truck made a brief appearance at the dorms and many students expected hoses to be directed on the crowd. Police Captain Richard Lee said that no action would be taken as long as students remained orderly.

M. L. Huit, Dean of Students, came to the scene from the Union when he heard the demonstrators. Huit circulated among the crowd urging students to "call it a day."

He refused to comment to Daily Iowan reporters except to say that the demonstration was "rather unrealistic." According to an unconfirmed report, Huit said that students caught within three feet of the dorm would be expelled from school.

WHEAT PROPOSAL DEFEATED WASHINGTON (AP) — A tie 8-8 vote in the Senate Agriculture Committee Tuesday appeared to have defeated backers of a broad new proposal for dealing with mountains of surplus wheat.

Rejected on the tie vote was the wheat allotment plan urged by a national association of wheat growers and two farm organizations, the National Grange and the Farmers Union.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) was among those opposing the allotment proposal.

Major Weakness Evident In Student Government

(A background article on the Committee of Student Life will be found on page 3 of today's Iowan.)

The Committee on Student Life's failure to make public a report of its meeting last week points up a major weakness in the student government system at SUI. The weakness can perhaps best be summed up by noting the confused answers one receives to questions of what has happened to resolutions passed by the Student Council.

Few Council members we have spoken with have any ready knowledge of what has happened to the resolutions passed during the last year. Some members are not even clear about the procedure followed after a resolution has passed from the hands of the Council.

If the Council is to become an effective student organization it must concern itself with the fate of its resolutions. It must keep up a constant check on adopted resolutions and eventually make some public accounting of their disposition.

It is to be hoped that the present controversy centering about the Committee on Student Life will result in some action in this area.

The Committee met last Wednesday to consider the discrimination resolution passed in March by the Council. According to established procedure, all adopted Council resolutions in the area of student life are brought before the Committee. They then pass on to President Hancher, with Committee recommendations, for final action.

At the recent meeting it was decided by the Committee that reporters from The Daily Iowan and the Iowa Defender could not be present during the deliberations. It was stated, however, by a member of the committee, that following the meeting a statement would be issued.

We, of course, hoped to have a reporter present at the meeting. The Council's action on fraternity discrimination took place amid considerable student controversy. As a result, Committee action on the resolution was an important news event.

When reporters were barred from the meeting, however, we depended on the promised statement for information. But such a statement was not forthcoming. Committee members spoke with refused to elaborate. And although we have tried continually since Wednesday, we still have been unable to obtain a statement as to what, if anything, transpired during the session.

This seems to us a breach of responsibility on the part of the Committee. Students have a serious stake in the discrimination resolution. They have a right to some information on where the resolution stands now that it has left the hands of the Council — not necessarily a complete transcript of the Committee minutes, but at least some informative report.

As we have suggested, the Committee's back-down in this matter reveals a major weakness in our student government system. The Student Council, if it wishes to merit our serious interest, must concern itself with this problem. It must inform itself — as well as see to it that the student body can be informed — on University action on adopted resolutions.

'Draft Stevenson' Petition Campaign To Get Underway

To the Editor:

Two weeks ago Adlai Stevenson returned from an extensive tour of Latin America, similar to his visits of the past several years to Asia, Africa, and the Soviet Union. The rapid sequence of events since he arrived in New York demonstrate in an almost startling manner that he very likely will be once again the Democratic nominee for President.

His speech the next day at the University of Virginia — described by an admiring press as "his finest since 1952, which is high praise indeed" — received a tumultuous welcome, with students at Virginia joining those at Wisconsin, Oberlin, Missouri, and other schools where he has been acclaimed as the choice of mock conventions.

Amateur movements to "draft Stevenson" have sprung to life in California, Wisconsin, Missouri, New York, and elsewhere in the nation, causing columnist Marquis Childs to comment that the demand for Stevenson is "insofar as these things ever are in American political life, genuinely spontaneous."

Such notable political columnists as Childs, James Reston of the N.Y. Times, Walter Lippmann, and Murray Kempton of the N.Y. Post have concluded that the probable Democratic candidate will be Stevenson, with Senator John Kennedy as the Vice-Presidential nominee. But what is even more significant than the fact that these perceptive political analysts believe Stevenson-Kennedy to be the strongest Democratic ticket is the unprecedented willingness of these observers (who comprise a wide range of the political spectrum) to enlist themselves in enthusiastic support of Stevenson as the one man in American public life who would bring greatness to the Presidency.

We invite the members of this University community who share the belief that Adlai Stevenson must be "drafted" to meet informally on Wednesday, April 27, at 7:30 p.m. in room 121A Schaefer Hall. We hope to get the "draft Stevenson" petition campaign underway on the Iowa campus now, as part of the nation-wide effort to secure five million signatures prior to the July convention.

Horrifying Instruction

To the Editor:

After reading the article in the Des Moines Register, (reprinting an Iowan article of comments on the Koch case), I am shocked at the views of Kay Ackerman, Boyd Critz and Robert Downer in regard to the firing of Mr. Koch from the University of Illinois.

Certainly the question here is not just that of being fired for writing a letter. He was fired because of the damage he could do to every young person's moral behavior with whom he came in contact. Having a teacher in an institution such as a state university, and exposing the vast number of students to such rot — given as gospel instruction, no doubt — is horrifying. It would be the last place I would send any one of my three teenage sons and daughters, if I knew Mr. Koch was connected in any way with the faculty.

Free speech is one thing, by condoning prostitution among teenagers and unmarried people goes far beyond that privilege, and is against both civil and religious laws. We parents are very much concerned with not only our own children's welfare, but that of the type youth they come in contact with. We can help them obtain real happiness in married life by making them realize the importance of abiding by moral laws beforehand. How would you like to marry a girl you knew was an easy "mark" for every boyfriend? She wouldn't be the person you should seek out to mother your children. And what about all the innocent babies born out of these "pre-marital sexual relationships"? What would our Mr. Koch advise here?

I wish to thank Mr. Henry, and everyone at Illinois responsible for still believing in human dignity, and in firing a man who advocates we act as common animals.

Mrs. Arnold Fladoos
Dubuque, Iowa

What's Happening—

On Other Campuses

Gary G. Gerlach
Staff Writer

ANN ARBOR — The demonstrations against discrimination across the nation — especially in the South — have brought a gigantic wave of editorial comment from the nation's newspapers. One editorial, in the Michigan Daily, seems to make a level-headed analysis, by first defining the scope of the problem and then questioning the effectiveness of telegram protest. The Daily explains: "Discrimination is especially the South's problem. They have a real job of their hands, while ours (meaning the North), though important, is more of a mopping-up operation by comparison. Sending telegrams may get our student government organization a mention in Time, but it also makes the sit-in's job that much tougher. And this should be the primary consideration. We're supposed to be working with them, not against them."

CHAMPAIGN — In planning a Freedom Rally, the NAACP at the University of Illinois has invited, and has an excellent chance of getting, famous Negro folk singer Mahalia Jackson to present a few special numbers. To attract an even larger crowd for the rally, Bob Ming, a Chicago lawyer who is exceptionally popular on the Illinois campus, will probably be asked to deliver an address. This is typical of the many rallies that are currently being planned at other Big Ten universities.

MINNEAPOLIS — In a popular move, popular at least among University of Minnesota students, the Minnesota Daily continues its war on private businesses that strain "the student's pocketbook with high prices on just about everything from toothpaste to hamburgers." The Daily puts Fredrick's Cafe on the back because its management recently eliminated a student cover charge and initiated a new menu that is geared to the modest pocketbook of the average collegian. It is hoped that this praise and publicity for Fredrick's will spark a revolution that will bring sky high prices down, at least to a somewhat reasonable level.

DES MOINES — The Drake Times-Delphic, Drake University's student newspaper, is sticking its neck out. Believing that they can maintain a neutral stand in their news columns and confident because of their close contact with the affairs of the Student-Faculty Council, the Times-Delphic has decided that they will endorse a slate of candidates for election to the student government. This is interesting, because like The Daily Iowan, the Times-Delphic is a campus newspaper monopoly. They insist, however: "(Although) we cannot assure students... a perfect governing body... we feel that the candidates whom we are endorsing are the most qualified..."

COLUMBUS — Comedian Bob Hope will invade Ohio State University soon. In a telephone interview with the Ohio State Lantern, Hope made this interesting statement on the Ohio State "no" vote in regard to the Rose Bowl issue: "It's sad to me. I don't understand it. Don't you people out there want it?"

AMES — The Iowa State Daily took a survey on smoking. The result: lung cancer is not a determining factor in causing people (ISU students at least) to quit smoking. The survey also produced some entertaining remarks. One coed damned smoking as a "nasty, dirty, expensive habit." A fellow stated: "I think people smoking look stupid, especially girls in the Commons."

CLASSICS CLUB will have a tea today, at 3:30 p.m. in 118SH. All immediate friends are invited to attend.

ZOOLOGY SEMINAR will meet Friday, April 29, at 4:30 p.m. in 2012B. Dr. Pieter D. Neukopp, Professor of Embryology and Director of Hubrecht Laboratory, Utrecht, Holland, will speak on "Proximo-Distal Organization of the Reproduction Elements of the Urodelean Limb."

UNIVERSITY FACULTY AND STAFF interested in supporting the movement to initiate "draft Stevenson" petitions on the campus are asked to attend a conference in 121A, SH, at 7:30 tonight. Petition forms and instructional materials will be available at that time.

FACULTY AND STAFF WOMEN: The monthly dinner meeting is scheduled at 5:30-6 p.m. on Monday, May 2, in the North Alcove of the Union Cafeteria.

PONTONIERS will meet at 8:30 p.m. tonight in the Cadet Lounge of the Army.

'Each One Teach One'

Fights Communism Through Educating the Illiterate

By LEWIS LAPHAM
Herald Tribune News Service

A godly man with a globe in his hands and the languages of 274 peoples at his command sat in the lobby of an apartment house here Tuesday and spoke of mankind's only hope of salvation.

Dr. Frank C. Laubach is 75 years old, and still he travels the world teaching illiterate people how to read their own languages. He has been named by some, "our greatest living Americans," "a saint," others have referred to him as "a nice old fuddy-duddy."

The inspiration to Dr. Laubach's monumental work came to him from a headhunter on the island of Mindanao in the Philippines in 1930. Dr. Laubach was there trying to convert the savage Moro tribes to Christianity. Unable to persuade them, he at last hit upon a way of teaching them to write their own dialect.

Rhee Leads Away from Democracy

By J. M. ROBERTS
AP News Analyst

The United States, after much trouble with the postwar governments with which she has been allied, now has an opportunity to make an alliance with a people.

Syngman Rhee, whose name for so many years was synonymous with the fight for Korean freedom from Japan, who provided the unyielding core of resistance to the Communist invasion of South Korea, was for years the one and only choice to lead the revival of his truncated country. Even now there is no one of his stature in sight for a replacement.

But he has become an old man, and the inflexibility once devoted to his country's cause has been diverted into partisan political causes. His leadership has been away from, instead of toward, democracy. Now his people have rebelled against his high-handed methods.

South Korea, after the poorly conceived postwar partition, was the first country founded under the wing of the United Nations. The free world, led as always by the United States, thus assumed responsibility in the Korean war, which served notice on international communism that military expansion would not be permitted.

But Rhee opposed the armistice, and every other policy which would limit his desire to retake North Korea. Since 1950 he has been an embarrassment to the United States and the other countries which fought to save South Korea.

Acting under her new policy of not letting the old bogaboo of non-intervention interfere with higher responsibilities, the United States has acted quickly to place herself on the side of democracy in Korea insofar as democracy can be traced as a political ingredient of the immature country's politics.

She is now engaged in an effort to promote this attitude among the other countries which helped her to defend Korea.

By all reports, these efforts have struck a responsive chord among the South Koreans who oppose Rhee. American influence now has an opportunity to play a key role in the reorganization.

The situation provides a test, however, of how well American military leaders have played their roles. Thousands of South Korean soldiers have served and are serving under American command.

American divisions on the armistice line have been heavily interlaced with Korean soldiers. Independent Korean divisions have been armed and trained by Americans. The attitude of these forces can play an important role in national stabilization.

He taught them phonetically, illustrating each syllable with a picture of the animal or common object that could be associated with the spoken sound. His idea was an immediate success. Excited tribesmen crowded into his hut to learn to read and write.

Shortly afterwards the money for the teaching ran out. Told that his people might have to discontinue their education, a Moro leader, the sultan of Southern Lanao said, "if it stops now we are lost. Everybody who was learned to read must teach somebody else. If he doesn't, I'll kill him."

Adopting a gentler expression of the sultan's thought, Dr. Laubach made the slogan, "each one teach one," which has been the watchword of his campaign against illiteracy all over the world in the past thirty years.

With the same kind of fierce determination as the Moro chief, Dr. Laubach has carried his system of reading and writing into 98 countries, preparing lessons in 274 languages and dialects.

He has taught Hindi in India, Gtongsa in Mozambique, Bushanti in Nigéri, Coptic in Ethiopia, Kekchi in Guatemala, and Sioux in the United States. Some observers guess Dr. Laubach has been directly or indirectly responsible for starting 60,000,000 people on the way to literacy.

The doctor himself is not concerned with numbers. He is a passionate man. His vision comprehends the magnitude of the teaching yet to be done, which, he explains, means somehow reaching half the population in the world, in Asia, Africa, and Latin America.

Dr. Laubach does not mince words. He refers to the "ignorant and hungry people" in those parts of the world as the "silent billion," the title of a book he published in 1945.

"These people are getting hungrier," he said, "and they're getting more ambitious. They know they're hungry because they're ignorant. The communists know it too."

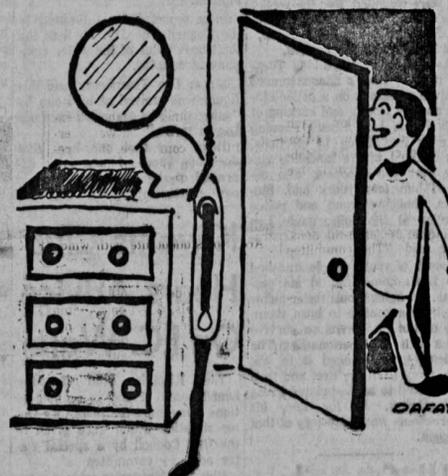

He said the gulf between their rising expectations and the reality of their achievement, between their growing numbers and the falling food supply, made for a "fearful situation."

When he was a boy, Dr. Laubach said, he saw a newspaper cartoon showing a platform on top of which gaily dressed people were laughing and dancing, while underneath "half-naked wretches, crouched, staring and afraid."

He said he now knew that the platform was education. Nobody in the world is safe, he said, so long as half the world is illiterate. He knew that many foreign governments are "scared of their own people," but do not have enough money to teach them. He has from time to time been invited to bring his pedagogic methods to 65 countries.

"This is a race," Dr. Laubach said, "either we do something for the millions who are starving, or the communists will. Either America lifts up the world, not with gifts but by teaching others to help themselves, or we are lost."

Dr. Laubach was graduated from Princeton University in 1909 and later earned both a master's and doctor's degree from Columbia University in sociology, the former for a thesis entitled, "The Social Value of the New York Saloon." A born a Methodist he became a Congregationalist missionary so he could get to the Philippines.

Good Listening— Today On WSUI

AN EVENING BETWEEN THE SPEAKERS may be enjoyed by those who have both FM and AM receivers; for WSUI and KSUI are staging a stereo extravaganza tonight, from 7 p.m. to 9:45. Prime time (up to 9 p.m.) will be devoted to the finer things in music (Berlioz' Symphonie Fantastique is the featured work); but the last forty five minutes will comprise a "Trio-like" stereophonic sampling of dance music, vocal music and jazz. Les Brown, Lena Horne and Dave Brubeck will fill in the spaces, and it is hoped that inveterate FM listeners will not find the effect distasteful. (Anyone who doesn't care for Lena should have a physical check-up immediately.)

Considers Resolution

Committee Acts as

By KAY LUND
Staff Writer

SUI has a multitude of committees. There is a three-member student committee to study the canoe situation, and there are top-level committees governing University policy.

Near the top of this hierarchy is a 17-member committee which directly affects the policies governing the more than 10,000 SUI students. Yet very few of these students could probably give a correct definition of this committee's function.

This group is the Committee on Student Life.

The Committee on Student Life is comprised of 15 faculty and administration, and two student representatives. Ralph J. Ojemann, professor of child welfare and chairman of the committee, described the group as "advisory, not administrative." He said it takes recommendations to the President of the University.

The Committee on Student Life, instituted in 1945, was authorized by the President of the University to establish policy and procedures in all phases of student life and activity. However, this does not include areas under the jurisdiction of the Board in Control of Athletics or Student Publications, Inc.

Many SUI students have recently expressed concern over operation of the Committee on Student Life since this group has been acting on the discrimination resolutions which were submitted by the Student Council.

All resolutions of the Council concerning areas of policy contained in the Code of Student Life must be approved by the committee.

The Student Council passed at its last meeting a resolution setting up a group to study the Committee on Student Life and to investigate the possibility of more student representation on the group. At present there are two student representatives.

According to Ojemann, the Committee on Student Life receives matters on student policy which are not clarified in the Code or about which policy must be established. In this case, the committee discusses the matter and makes recommendations to the President of the University. He can accept or reject these recommendations. Ojemann said, "The committee has been a very good one. They have always discussed each matter thoroughly in the best interests of the students."

"Every resolution sent from the Student Council has been acted upon promptly. The committee has never delayed unavoidably," he said.

The President of the University appoints the faculty and administration representatives to the committee. "He tries to include a broad representation from this area, especially the Office of Student Affairs, Iowa Memorial Union and dormitories. Tenure is determined "at the President's pleasure," Ojemann said.

Considers Resolutions, Code—

Committee on Student Life Acts as Adviser on Policy

By KAY LUND
Staff Writer

SUI has a multitude of committees. There is a three-member student committee to study the canoe situation, and there are top-level committees governing University policy.

Near the top of this hierarchy is a 17-member committee which directly affects the policies governing the more than 10,000 SUI students. Yet very few of these students could probably give a correct definition of this committee's function.

This group is the Committee on Student Life.

The Committee on Student Life is comprised of 15 faculty and administration, and two student representatives. Ralph J. Ojemann, professor of child welfare and chairman of the committee, described the group as "advisory, not administrative." He said it takes recommendations to the President of the University.

The Committee on Student Life, instituted in 1945, was authorized by the President of the University to establish policy and procedures in all phases of student life and activity. However, this does not include areas under the jurisdiction of the Board in Control of Athletics or Student Publications, Inc.

Many SUI students have recently expressed concern over operation of the Committee on Student Life since this group has been acting on the discrimination resolutions which were submitted by the Student Council.

All resolutions of the Council concerning areas of policy contained in the Code of Student Life must be approved by the committee.

The Student Council passed at its last meeting a resolution setting up a group to study the Committee on Student Life and to investigate the possibility of more student representation on the group. At present there are two student representatives.

According to Ojemann, the Committee on Student Life receives matters on student policy which are not clarified in the Code or about which policy must be established. In this case, the committee discusses the matter and makes recommendations to the President of the University. He can accept or reject these recommendations.

Ojemann said, "The committee has been a very good one. They have always discussed each matter thoroughly in the best interests of the students."

"Every resolution sent from the Student Council has been acted upon promptly. The committee has never delayed unavoidably," he said.

The President of the University appoints the faculty and administration representatives to the committee. "He tries to include a broad representation from this area, especially the Office of Student Affairs, Iowa Memorial Union and dormitories. Tenure is determined 'at the President's pleasure,'" Ojemann said.

The two student representatives, a man and woman, are members of the Student Council who have applied for the positions. Their terms normally last one year.

Ojemann said the committee meets "whenever there is a need and sufficient material for an agenda." Anyone can ask Chairman Ojemann to call a meeting. He said the committee meets approximately half a dozen times a year, more often in the spring when the Code is being prepared for the following year.

On the subject of student representation on the committee, Ojemann said, "We have given the students full opportunity to express their opinions. They have never been shouted down."

He cited an example where the student representatives were asked to provide the background on the discrimination issue at the beginning of the discussion of the topic at committee meetings.

Concerning student sentiment for more representation on the committee, Ojemann said he believes evidence is needed to show inadequacy of the present set-up. He asked, "Are there such things which these two people can't convey?"

Both open and closed meetings have been held by the committee. However, reporters were refused admittance to the April 20 meeting when the committee was scheduled to discuss the Student Council's resolution on discrimination. Ojemann said, "It's necessary to let the committee be free in operation to express opinions in discussion without being quoted."

He said, "We attempt to release the report as soon as possible."

The minutes of the meetings are drawn up by Miss Helen Reich, assistant director of student affairs and secretary of the committee, and sent to Ojemann for approval. He, then, submits the policy recommendations along with the minutes to the President of the University.

If the President disagrees with the policy recommendations, he confers with the committee. Ojemann said sometimes the President finds a flaw which was overlooked by the committee. If the report had been released before it reached the President, it might appear that the two were "at odds," which is not the case, he said.

Areas of student life with which the committee has dealt recently have ranged widely. They have set policy for students mutilating library materials, acted on a Sigma Pi petition for fraternity housing, approved the constitution of the Jazz Society, studied Central Party Committee's position as an SUI organization, and set other policy which is stated in the Code of Student Life.

The most recent Student Council resolution to be acted upon by the committee concerned the Interfraternity resolution on discrimination. The committee decided April 4 to temporarily hold the resolution in abeyance until it was further clarified by the Student Council.

It described the resolution as "vague in particular areas" and raised several questions including: Should a local chapter be penalized because of policies of the national organization which the local chapter itself doesn't advocate? Would not a constructive program of education be better to follow than one to force and coercion?

Members of the Committee on Student Life in addition to Ojemann and Miss Reich are: Kay Ackerman, A3, Iowa Falls; Prof. Dale Bentz, associate director of University Libraries; Prof. Margaret Fox of physical education for women; Prof. E. E. Harper, director of the Iowa Memorial Union; Prof. H. C. Harshbarger, chairman of speech and dramatic arts; M. L. Huit, dean of students; Dr. Paul E. Huston, director of psychiatric medicine; Dr. C. I. Miller, chief of student health; T. M. Rehder, director of University Dormitories; Bradley Smith, A4, Pawnee Rock, Kan.; George F. Stevens, assistant director of the Union; Dewey B. Stuit, dean of the College of Liberal Arts; Prof. Danile Waite, head of oral surgery; Prof. Allan D. Vestal of the College of Law; and Louis C. Zopf, dean of the College of Pharmacy.

NSF Helps Support Visiting-Scientists By $25,690 Grant

The National Science Foundation has awarded a $25,690 grant for support of the new Iowa visiting-scientist program. Prof. W. C. Oelke, retiring president of the Iowa Academy of Science, announced Tuesday.

Some 60 to 70 Iowa scientists will take part in the program, with each scientist making four two-day visits to a high school or junior college during the 1960-61 academic year.

T.R. Porter, associate professor of science education at SUI, will serve as project director. Porter explained that the purpose of the Iowa visiting-scientist program will be to improve the teaching of science and mathematics in high school and junior college, and to arouse the interest in scientific activities, including scientific investigations. The NSF grant also supports publication of selected scientific papers.

FOURTH IN A SERIES Suggested Books of the Week

Maya: The Riddle and Rediscovery of a Lost Civilization
by Charles Callenkamp
Suggested for Reading by ORVILLE A. HITCHCOCK, Prof., Speech

At Uxmal, Chichen Itza, Copan, Tikal, and hundreds of other sites in Middle America lie the remains of the fabulous Mayan civilization. This extraordinary culture flourished between the fourth and thirteenth centuries A.D. The Mayans invented a complicated system of hieroglyphic writing, developed a remarkably accurate calendar, built great cities of stone, and reached high levels of achievement in mathematics, sculpture, and painting. Interest in the Mayans has increased greatly in recent years. Americans have discovered that they have on their own doorstep archaeological ruins that rival those of the old world. Mr. Callenkamp's book presents an interesting account of the rise and fall of this Mayan culture. It also tells the story of the explorers and archaeologists—John Stephens, Frederick Catherwood, Edward Thompson, Giles Healey, and others—who discovered these ancient cities, buried deep in the jungle, and made them known to the world. The book is intended for the general reader, but is authoritative and up to date. Through a readable text and many superb drawings and black and white photographs it succeeds in bringing to life an important part of the history of the Americas.

Human Potentialities
by Gardner Murphy
Suggested for Reading by RALPH H. OJEMANN, Prof., Psychology and Child Welfare

The expansion of our knowledge of human growth and behavior has made it more apparent that man's development is a product of the interaction of organism and environment. What a man becomes is not the result of some inner potentialities which inevitably assert themselves nor of the culture in which he lives. What a man becomes is the resultant of the interaction of the two.

As man's knowledge of his physical and social environments widens, it becomes possible to enlarge and enrich experiences for all age levels. It also appears that some change in the physical organism can be made. It follows that the potentialities of human development are enormous. To what extent these potentialities will be realized will depend upon the quality of leadership and followership each citizen exercises in his daily pursuits. If the college student is to exercise leadership, he must have an appreciation of the ever-expanding range of choices that result from the growth of knowledge. He must also acquire skill in using available knowledge of the long-range probable consequences of various choices in decision making. Murphy's discussion stimulates the reader to develop this perspective.

The Discovery Of the Mind
by Bruno Snell
Suggested for Reading by ROGER HORNSBY, Asst. Prof., Classics

Professor Snell demonstrates, through a close analysis of poetry and philosophy, how the ancient Greeks 'discovered' the human mind and charted the ways which subsequent Western thinkers were to follow. The Greeks channeled our thinking and feeling about such matters as myth, reason, and scientific thought. For us, Professor Snell illuminates the gradual awareness which the Greeks themselves had on what it meant to be a rational and moral man.

These three books are available at Iowa Book & Supply Co. We think you will enjoy this week's suggestions for reading by three of SUI's educational leaders. Our shelves are stocked with many, many other books of current interest too — BEFORE YOU BUY, SEE IOWA SUPPLY.

NCAA Breaks with AAU Over Suspension of Athletes

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The NCAA broke with the AAU Tuesday over the suspension of college athletes. The NCAA Council said the action stemmed from "widespread dissatisfaction among NCAA members on the capricious and inconsistent manner in which the AAU has applied and administered its suspension rules."

Such reconciliation will be made until there is "common agreement on rules under which such suspensions are to be administered," the NCAA Council said. Another instance cited by the NCAA involved a basketball team from Sweden which was banned in the United States "after many commitments had been made with our members."

Power Single Breaks Up Pitching Duel—

DETROIT (AP)—Vic Power dumped a two-out single into left field and gave the Cleveland Indians a 12-inning 2-1 decision over the Detroit Tigers Tuesday. The loss was Detroit's first after five straight triumphs. Power's game ending blow came off Tom Morgan and scored pinch runner Carroll Hardy from second base. Dave Sisler walked Russ Nixon to start the inning and Morgan yielded a bloop single to pinch hitter Don Dillar to set up the deciding run.

CHICAGO (AP)—Don Drysdale, making his fourth straight complete game a 4-hitter, led the third place Los Angeles Dodgers out of a four-game losing streak Tuesday with an 8-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Iowa Netmen Lose Dual To Badgers

Wisconsin gained a 5-4 tennis victory over Iowa Tuesday in a dual meet that wasn't decided until the final match.

With the meet score tied at 4-4, the No. 1 doubles combination, Henry Utley and John Nadig, 2-6, 6-3, 9-7.

The win climaxed an afternoon in which the lead changed hands three times in the last three matches. The singles competition ended with the meet score tied at three points apiece.

The No. 3 doubles match was completed first, with Badgers Tom Ruedisile and Dick Pease defeating John Stoy and Dave Nairn, 6-3, 6-2. The Iowa team rallied, however, when a doubles win by Bill Voxman and Larry Halpin evened the score.

Hawkeyes Bill Voxman and Larry Halpin kept their dual meet singles winning streak alive. Neither has lost a match in the three Iowa outings.

The loss was the Hawkeyes first of the season. Their season record now stands at 2-1. Wisconsin has a 1-3 record, the win here being its first of the season.

Narrow List of Candidates For Athletic Director Post

Dr. George Easton, chairman of the SUI Board in Control of Athletics, Monday night said that no one has yet been interviewed in regard to the athletic director's post to be vacated by Paul Brechler July 1, but that "we have narrowed the field of candidates very materially."

Easton also said that some people were interviewed in the near future concerning the athletic director's job. "What goes on from there depends on what happens at these interviews," he said.

Easton said that no deadline for the naming of a new director has been set, but "I would hope that in another two or three weeks we might have our man."

Hawk Gridders Begin 2nd Week Of Spring Drills

The Iowa Hawkeyes plunged into the second week of spring football drills Tuesday, wrapping up the day's activity with a rugged scrimmage.

The early part of the session was devoted to learning new plays. The first two units ran through the plays several times against dummies and then put them into action in the live scrimmage. The other Hawkeye units also saw action in the scrimmage.

The eighth session of spring practice will be held this afternoon. Practice closes May 14 with the annual Varsity-Alumni game.

Lucky Strike's Dr. Frood declares:

Graduation is all a matter of degree

Dear Dr. Frood: I'm working my way through college. I have delivered newspapers, worked as an usher in the local movie theater and rolled bandages for the school infirmary. What can my college life possibly prepare me for?

Dear Beaver: Publishing, motion pictures, medicine.

Dear Dr. Frood: I am about to graduate top girl in my class. I have decided to take up a career, rather than squander my intellectual achievements on bawling babies, dreary housework and a sloppy husband. Don't you think I have made the right decision?

Dear Smart: I do, and I feel safe in saying that I make that statement on behalf of every man in America.

Dear Dr. Frood: What a mess I have made out of college! I am flunking out because I have been so lazy. I can't get a job because I have made such a poor record. I have no friends because I have no college spirit. What is there left for me?

Dear Chastened: You can always serve as a horrible example.

Dear Dr. Frood: I was outraged to learn that a rich, spoiled senior is planning to give sports cars as graduation presents to all the friends he has made in college. Is there any action I should take?

Dear Dean: Give him a big smile, put your arm around his shoulders and say, "How're things, pal?"

Dear Dr. Frood: In the past four years, I feel that I have become a wiser and better man. How much do I owe to my college for this?

Dear Grateful: Shhh! Somebody must have forgotten to send you the bill.

Dear Dr. Frood: The older generation claims college life is too soft. Just a lark. Well, I am finishing four years, and look! The day I enrolled in college, the photograph at left was taken. At right is a recent photo. What does the older generation have to say about this?

Dear Serious: Just what we've said all along. Parties, parties, parties!

Dear Dr. Frood: Yesterday I visited my boy friend and I saw two Lucky Strikes burning in an ash tray. One had lit! Was I right in slapping him in the face and leaving the room?

Dear Scorned: No. Why get jealous just because other girls smoke the same brand you do?

Cyclists' Opinions Vary

By HAROLD HATFIELD Staff Writer

Iowa City's mushrooming parking problem, SUI's increasing enrollment, and the Great Canoe Robbery are forcing many SUJowans to turn to bicycles for transportation and pleasure. And now even cycle enthusiasts are being threatened by a new Iowa City law.

Bikes came into the spotlight recently when the city council proposed an ordinance which would require owners to buy license plates for their bikes or face a $1 to $100 fine for violations.

The proposal also required a bell or horn on the bicycle, an operating light to be displayed 30 minutes after sunset until 30 minutes before sunrise, prohibited parking on sidewalks or in prohibited zones, traveling on sidewalks in the business district, and gave pedestrians the right of way on unprohibited sidewalks.

The council's proposal was followed by a call for cyclists of the city to unite, by Quentin J. Black, A2, Iowa City. He mentioned the thin pocketbooks of many bicycle owners as an argument against the licensing.

Black was joined in his crusade by Robert Michaelson, professor and director of the School of Religion. Michaelson outlined a four-point platform for the cyclists: 1. 25 per cent of Iowa City's streets to be private bicycle roads; 2. Right of way for all cyclists; 3. A bicycle bridge over the Iowa River; 4. Placing bicycle racks at strategic spots on the campus and in the business district.

The council was apparently not too seriously affected by the SUJowans' pleas and passed the law on April 19.

The new law will affect 9,517 bicyclists who are registered with the police, as well as an unknown number who are not registered.

Reaction by SUJowans to the law is typical — it doesn't follow any predictable pattern.

Dave Abbott, A3, Newport News, Va., said that he thought the licensing would be useful as a means of identification if the bike was stolen, but that a complete description of the bike should be registered with the police.

"I don't think the requirement of a bell or horn is necessary," he said. "Also, I think there should be a place to park bikes in the business district, other than at the police station."

Abbott said he has had his bike

Although tricycles aren't included in a new Iowa City law requiring licenses for bicycles, Stevie Riggan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Riggan of 522 South Van Buren, is playing it safe. "We cyclists gotta comply with the law," Stevie might say as he installs an old Texas plate.

for one and a half years and uses it to get to classes and downtown.

Mary Kay Knox, A2, Iowa City, thought that the law was a good one, except for the license requirement. She said that the present method of registration was adequate.

"I use my bike mostly for exercise," Miss Knox said. She added that the prohibiting of bikes on some sidewalks will not affect her. "Why use the sidewalks when most Iowa City streets are smoother than the sidewalks?" she asked.

"I'm going to buy a boat foghorn for my bike," Ed Huges, A4, Mt. Cuba, Delaware, declared. "I also think it is ridiculous not to allow bikes to be parked on sidewalks. They don't take much room, and usually won't be left there very long. That seems to make more sense than taking up a whole parking space for one bike."

Huges said that he thought it would be all right to use the new licenses as a source of revenue. He said that he can ride from his home to the campus on his bicycle in three minutes, while walking takes 10 minutes.

Tom Hansen, A2, Cedar Falls, said he didn't think a license or horn is necessary. "There aren't enough bikes around the campus to justify them," he said.

Hansen said that the requirement for a light is more practical, but won't affect him because he doesn't ride at night. He said that he only uses his bike for short times and when he is in a hurry.

The number of bicycles used by SUI students has greatly increased in recent years according to William L. Novotny of the Novotny Cycle Center. "Ten years ago there were very few bicycles on the campus," he said. "Now, because of the parking problem, there are many more."

Novotny said that University students are much easier to deal with than younger riders. "They have much better luck with their bikes because they take care of them and will respect our advice about them," he said.

Daily Iowan Mistaken On Seals' 'Creation'

An error appeared in the preview story on the Seals Club synchronized swimming show.

Jo Thielen, A2, Fonda, wrote the poem, "Creation," on which the show is based. The idea for Miss Thielen's poem came from a work by James Weldon Johnson, but the show is not based on Johnson's poem as stated in Tuesday's Daily Iowan.

A GUIDE FOR THE LOVELESS

Gentlemen, take warning. June is almost upon us—June, the month of brides. Have you got yours yet? If not, don't despair. You don't have to be rich or handsome to get a girl. All you have to be is kind, considerate, thoughtful, and obliging—in short, a gentleman.

For example, don't ever call a girl for a date at the last minute. Always give her plenty of advance notice—like three months for a coke date, six months for a movie, a year for a prom, two years for a public execution. This shows the girl that she is not your second or third choice and also gives her ample time to select her costume.

And when you ask for a date, do it with a bit of Old World gallantry. A poem, for instance, is always sure to please a young lady, like this:

I think you're cute, Daphne La France. I'll put on a suit, And take you to a dance.

In the unlikely event that you don't know any girls named Daphne La France, try this:

I think you're cute, Winifred Jopp. I'll put on a suit, And take you to a hop.

In the extremely unlikely event that you don't know a Winifred Jopp either, try this:

I think you're cute, Isabel Prall. I'll put on a suit, And take you to a ball.

If there is no Isabel Prall, Winifred Jopp, or Daphne La France on your campus, it is quite obvious why you've had trouble finding dates all year: you've enrolled in an all-male school, you old silly!

Next let us take up the question of etiquette once you are out on a date with Isabel, Winifred, or Daphne. The first thing you do, naturally, is to offer the young lady a Marlboro. Be sure, however, to offer her an entire Marlboro—not just a Marlboro butt. Marlboro butts are good of course, but whole Marlboros are better. You get an extra inch or two of fine flavorful tobacco—and I mean flavorful. Do you think flavor went out when filters came in? Well, you've got a really surprise coming when you light a Marlboro. This one really delivers the goods on flavor, and when you hand Isabel, Winifred, or Daphne a whole, complete, brand-new Marlboro, she will know how highly you regard and respect her, and she will grow misty and weak with gratitude, which is very important when you take her out to dinner, because the only kind of coed a college man can afford to feed is a weak and misty coed. Latest statistics show that a coed in a normal condition eats one and a half times her own weight every twelve hours.

At the end of your date with Isabel, Winifred, or Daphne, make certain to get her home by curfew time. That is gentlemanly. Do not leave her at a bus stop. That is rude. Deliver her right to her door and, if possible, stop the car when you are dropping her off.

The next day send a little thank-you note. A poem is best. Like this:

For a wonderful evening, many thanks, Isabel, Winifred, or Daphne. I'll take you out for some more merry pranks Next Saturday if you'll haph me.

We can't give you rhyme but we'll give you good reason why you'll enjoy Marlboro and Marlboro's unfiltered companion cigarette, Philip Morris. One word says it all: SURE.

Many of the Corrier girls calmly followed fire alarm procedures, put on coats and headed for stairs and fire escapes. One resident said that she saw "This is a false alarm," some walls of the siren. "It was a wing fight," she said.

One resident summed up the situation during the height of rioting Tuesday. "Boy, the really school spirit," she said.

Clownish Students Get Big Chance

Ever have a fantastic urge to be a clown?

If so, you must go to the North Gym of the Field House, Thursday afternoon at 4:30 and try out!

Two or three new "Herkey's Helpers" will be needed for the upcoming fall session. In addition to the many advantages of being a clown, there is one that's bound to appeal: away football games will be expense free.

All prospective clowns must present individual skits as a basis upon which past clowns may judge them. In addition, these qualified judges will give each person an additional "task" to perform.

Along with other treats in store for those desirous of becoming a clown... they won't be kept in suspense. Winners will be announced Thursday afternoon.

By BILL JACOBSON Staff Writer

A group of women studied marched on Quadrangle and crest Dormitories Wednesday in a singing demonstration to thank the men for their show force at Burge and Currier Tuesday night and to protest against late hours.

At about 7:45, after a group of 50 to 60 girls had gathered on north side of the Field House,

'Raid' Cause

Excitement Girls' Dorms

By LOUISE SPRAICAR Staff Writer

What is it like to be in a women's dormitory after closing hours there are 1,000 men outside singing, shouting, and singing? "It's neat!" squealed one in Burge.

Rumors of raids traveled lightning. When a girl in dorm heard that men from crest would be visiting Tuesday night, she rushed to tune in Quad radio station to hear if rumor was true. In her haste she got at the radio on a high note the girl jumped on her desk, tipped over and the contents spilled. No injuries were reported.

Some girls probably have been advised, said those who live in the inside houses of Burge which have windows that light courts, raced to frat rooms in Wellman and Houses, to get good vantage to see the men outside.

There were a few calm students in the dorms. One graduate student from England said, "Oh, this is very interesting. I'm just ruckering, you know."

Many of the girls were happy with having to comply with rules—in rooms, lighted doors to rooms open. "I paid to stay here, and I can't around like I want to," said a resident.

Getting into the women's dorms was a problem for some. Several had police escorts to them get through the crowd at Capitol Street.

When the fire alarm went in Corrier Tuesday night, noise lasted about 20 minutes, said one resident. Many of the Corrier girls calmly followed fire alarm procedures, put on coats and headed for stairs and fire escapes. One resident said that she saw "This is a false alarm," some walls of the siren.
