Husamettin Tunali, G. Istanbul, Turkey.

Several of the June grants have not yet been awarded. Included are the Folk internships in politics under a $3,100 grant from the Citizenship Clearing House; SUI Activity Scholarships under a $4,900 grant from the Alumni Association; the Norwood C. Lewis Pharmacy Award partially supported by June gifts from Hands Jewelry, Iowa City, and Pearson Drug Store, Iowa City; and the Chicago-Tri-Cities Motor Freight Scholarship.

The committee also accepted Alumni gifts for the Perkins and Barnes Scholarships in Journalism, which were awarded recently.

Also accepted was a $3,450 grant from the National Science Foundation for an undergraduate research program in psychology. Previously announced were 21 fellowships supported by June NSF grants of $60,900.

Other grants accepted were $48,756 from the U.S. Public Health Service for fellowships and training programs in the SUI College of Medicine, and $22,819.51 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for 30 fellowships for the 1960-61 academic year under the National Defense Education Act.

Scholarships are also being awarded as part of the special Summer Institute on the Far East. The program is being supported by a $1,200 grant from the Asia Foundation, the Japan Society, and the Asia Society.

Scholars to SUI

Twenty-four persons have received National Defense Education Act Fellowships for advanced study at SUI, starting with the fall semester. SUI is only one of three universities in the United States to receive the maximum number of fellowships allowed under the act. See the story on page 4.

Truman Says He Won't Attend Democratic Party Convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman jolted his beloved Democratic party Wednesday with the blunt announcement he will not attend its national convention next month.

He refused to say why just now. Some saw in the surprise statement an indication that he has given up hope that he can win the nomination. Sen. Stuart Symington, in Washington, talked to Truman by telephone in Independence, Mo., and then told a reporter: "He went out of his way to assure me that this decision on his part did not in any way change his unqualified support of my candidacy."

Symington, generally regarded as running third in the race for the nomination, behind Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, added that he is still "running hard as a candidate."

Truman, at Independence, gave no explanation of his decision, which was a shocker to politicians wondering how such a confirmed political firehorse could stay away from a national convention.

The ex-President did say he would hold a news conference Saturday, and he told reporters who pressed him for his reason: "I'll give my special reason at the press conference. You can ask me all the questions you want to Saturday morning."

Asked whether there might be a health reason, Truman replied: "I feel fine. Mrs. Truman feels fine. There is no health reason."

Politicians searching for an explanation recalled that the Missouri state convention recently refused to exempt Truman from the unity rule, which provides that the votes of the state's whole delegation shall be cast as a unit for whichever candidate a majority favors.

There was some speculation at that time that Truman might decline to serve as a delegate, under those terms, but he has not publicly discussed the point.

Only last week he told a Symington rally: "I'm for Stu and I'm going to be for him until the last dog dies."

Such a determination would seem to call for no decision to resign as a delegate, which Truman said Wednesday he was doing, since all 39 Missouri convention votes are pledged to Symington.

The first public word of Truman's decision came from his Independence office, which announced he had sent the following telegram to Gov. James T. Blair of Missouri: "I have decided not to go to the Democratic convention. I am resigning as a delegate. I am sorry I cannot be there with you."

Gov. Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio, a Kennedy supporter, interpreted Truman's announcement as pointing to "the collapse of all opposition candidates."

A Johnson backer, Gov. Price Daniel of Texas, said: "If this means that Symington may not be a contender, I think Johnson will get more of Symington's votes than anyone else."

2,491 Enrolled At Iowa State

First summer session enrollment at Iowa State University has topped at 2,491 as compared to a total of 2,442 a year ago.

Graduates top the list with 1,144. By colleges, the breakdown is as follows: College of Engineering, 335; College of Home Economics, 287; College of Science and Humanities, 391; College of Agriculture, 316; College of Veterinary Medicine, 8. There are 12 agricultural engineering students.

Included in the enrollment are 1,917 men and 573 women. By classes, there are 127 freshmen, 303 sophomores, 432 Juniors and 451 seniors. Veterans under the support of the Veterans Administration number 211.

71 Attending SUI Program In Science

By DENNY REHDER
Staff Writer

An instant "beep-beep" came over the recorders playing back the now-familiar call of a satellite in outer space. The audience this time was a group of high school students spending the summer session at SUI taking college-level science courses.

They were touring the SUI Department of Physics after hearing a lecture by Ernest C. Ray, assistant professor of physics.

The young prospective science-majors number 71, with the boys enjoying a 2 to 1 majority over the girls. However, as Maria Miller, 17, of Schleswig, put it: "We girls are holding our own with the boys in class."

Originally, there were over 800 applications to attend the session, but these were trimmed down to the present 71, according to Robert E. Yager, SUI assistant professor of science education and the director of the project.

The project is being financed by a grant of $24,000 from the National Science Foundation. Although there are some 100 such programs in progress across the nation, this is the only one in Iowa.

The SUI program consists of basic college-level work in botany, chemistry, physics, and zoology. There is an additional special course in finite mathematics. The students are carrying a hour-load total of from 7-8 hours by college standards. They will receive credit for their work which can be applied toward a college degree, Yager said.

What are the reactions of the faculty and students involved? According to Yager, many instructors have commented on the interest displayed by the high school students.

"They seem to be more curious and more inquisitive about the material being presented than the average college class," said Yager.

"It's very interesting material. It'll be a definite aid in any further work for me," said Paul Daggett, 16, of Fairfield, who is interested in botany and chemistry.

"It's presenting me with invaluable background for future work," said Steve Drish, 17, Davenport, who is interested in physics and mathematics. "I'm now taking an entirely new course in systematic logic," he added.

Miss Miller said that her two hours of lab work every day weren't so bad after she got used to dissection. She's studying in the botany-zoology section.

What are the chances of the program being continued? According to Yager, it depends on the National Science Foundation. The NSF will send a man to view the SUI program and judge its effectiveness. It is then up to the NSF as to whether they wish to extend an offer for another program to SUI, Yager said.

Last week the students were in Chicago to tour the Argonne National Laboratories. A trip to Collins Radio in Cedar Rapids is coming up.

Sandburg, Riesel Also Scheduled—

Andre Maurois to Open Lecture Series in Fall

Andre Maurois, one of the giants of French contemporary literature, will open the 1960-61 SUI winter lecture series October 11 at the Iowa Memorial Union. The first of five visiting lecturers, Maurois' topic will be "The Spirit of France," according to Orville Hitchcock, professor of speech, and director of the University lecture series. The French writer was born in Elbeuf in 1885, and was educated at Rouen. He first became known to the English public in 1918 with "Silences du Colonel Bramble," based on his experiences as an interpreter during the first World War.

Maurois' style has been described as "delicate, but direct, and his delineation of English character has perhaps helped to make his later books widely read in translation."

Works of the French writer include biographies of Shelley, Byron, Dickens, Dumas, Disraeli, George Sand, Victor Hugo, and Proust. Other works are: "September Roses," "History of England," "History of France," "Aspects of Biography," and "Voltaire."

Author-poet Carl Sandburg will present an "Evening With Carl Sandburg" at the Union Nov. 16 in a second presentation of the lecture series. Sandburg will read poetry and play the mandolin during his appearance.

Atomic Physicist Ralph Lapp, former head of the nuclear physics branch of the office of naval research, will speak Dec. 7 in Macbride Auditorium on "Man, Space and the Atom." The science consultant also will be on the SUI campus two days visiting and lecturing to physics students.

Crusading labor columnist Victor Riesel will speak at the Union Feb. 22 on "Inside Labor." Blinded by acid thrown by labor hoodlums a few years ago, Riesel continues to write a daily syndicated labor column.

Ballerina Anne Wilson, artistic consultant to the Fred Berk dance group, will present a lecture-demonstration in Macbride Auditorium March 8. Miss Wilson's presentation will be based on "The Ballet Story." She will be on campus two days conducting a modern dance workshop, and talking to students of music, theatre and dance.

Convention Recess Set For Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic chiefs of the House and Senate — overriding protests from the ranks — decided Wednesday Congress should come back to work in August after the national party conventions.

"We've decided we can't get through in time for people to get to the conventions," Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) said in breaking the news.

Shortly afterward, Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Rayburn's partner in directing Congress, announced he will offer a resolution to recess either Friday or Saturday and return on Aug. 8. There seemed little doubt the decision would prevail.

One result of a recess would be to give the congressional aspirants for the Democratic presidential nomination, including Johnson, more time to talk with delegates at the convention scene before the voting starts.

Highlanders' Problem: To Ride or To Walk

LONDON (AP) — Seventy-three girl pipers and highland dancers — Iowa's cultural export to Scotland — settled down in London Wednesday for a one-week stay and immediately split into two factions: One group wants to ride around town on those double-decker red buses.

The other group wants to walk — to lose weight. The girls are members of the Scottish Highlanders group of SUI. They will have a dress rehearsal today — and some of the girls are afraid their uniforms may not fit.

"All we seemed to do on the boat coming over," said Miss Phyllis Fleming, the group's press officer, "was eat, sleep and play cards. A lot of the girls are getting worried about their weight."

The pretty 21-year-old drum major, Margaret Ladd, G, Iowa City, said:

"We're looking forward to walking around London to keep our figures trim."

Two of the "why walk when you can ride" faction are Judy Clark, G, 21, of Cedar Falls, and Pat Steenrod, A3, 19, of Iowa Falls.

"We figured out the cheapest and easiest way of seeing a city is to take a bus," said Pat. "It worked swell in Washington and New York and we think it will work just as well in Europe."

The girls go from London to Scotland July 6. "This is the third time the group — with different girls — has made the trip," said Miss Fleming. "The Scots love them — but they make allowance for the fact that the girls can't play the bagpipes as well as the Scots themselves do it."

After Scotland the girls go to Amsterdam, Paris, Cologne, Frankfurt, Berne and Rome in a sightseeing tour. They will not be performing on the continent.

The News In Brief

From the Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The chief of the national space agency indicated Wednesday that America's man-in-space project so far is lagging only slightly despite troubles in getting a capsule that can carry an astronaut safely. T. Keith Glennan said that "before many months" a man will be sent on a rocket flight 125 miles high and 200 miles down the Atlantic missile range in 16 minutes. "And before the end of 1961, after a series of experimental flight tests, the first manned flight will be made," he said in a speech.

WASHINGTON — A budget surplus of $500 million or more is in prospect for the 1960 fiscal year that ends tonight. The surplus will be more than double the $217 million cushion that President Eisenhower forecast in his January budget message to Congress.

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK — The nation's governor's rejected Wednesday the Eisenhower Administration's approach to medical care for the elderly. In the finale of their annual conference they voted, across party lines, for a medical care system within the framework of the Social Security program.

VANDEMBERG AIR FORCE BASE — The Air Force tried — and apparently failed — to fire the satellite Discoverer XII into orbit Wednesday. More than two hours after the blast off, scientists said the rocket failed to go into the intended orbit. The rocket carried a capsule the Air Force hoped to recover as it re-entered Earth's atmosphere.

LEOPOLDVILLE — The Belgian Congo colony today becomes the independent Republic of Congo. Baudouin, King of the Belgians, will read the proclamation of independence in the still incomplete Palace of the Nations. His act will cut ties that have bound the Congo to Belgium for 80 years.

Refused to Process Crude Oil From the Soviet Union

HAVANA (AP) — The Castro regime seized the American-owned, 26-million-dollar Texaco refinery at Santiago Wednesday after it refused to process Soviet crude oil on orders from the Cuban Government. Indications were that Cuba would start refining the Soviet crude this weekend.

The oil company indicated claims against the Cuban Government for its properties on the island may total 50 million dollars.

The State Department in Washington denounced the Cuban tactics as "a naked seizure of property in contravention of norms of conduct by responsible governments."

The seizure came after Prime Minister Fidel Castro told a mass meeting he is ready to take over the property of all Americans in Cuba "down to the nails in their shoes."

Havana newspapers gave page one play to the seizure, all saying the government and workers moved in after American officials "abandoned" the plant.

Burdick Pulls Ahead in U.S. Senate Race

FARGO, N. D. (AP) — The race for a North Dakota Senate seat headed Wednesday into a photo finish between the Republican governor and a Democratic congressman.

In a surprising spurt on the backstretch, Rep. Quentin W. Burdick (D-N. D.) surged into a small lead in a contest eyed nationally as charting a possible course for this fall's election in the nation's farm country.

With 39 precincts left to count, Burdick was a slim 333 ahead of Gov. John E. Davis, whose early 58 percent lead, built up in the cities, steadily was whittled down as returns dribbled in from rural areas.

With 2,275 of 2,314 precincts reporting, unofficial tabulations looked like this: Burdick 103,196; Davis 102,863.

Ezra Taft Benson, secretary of agriculture, was a factor in this race. Both sides disowned him, and the Democrats had as one of their slogans, "Beat Benson with Burdick."

The forecast had been that Davis, 47, a banker, rancher and hero of World War II, would run well in the cities. Burdick, 52, a lawyer who had the backing of the powerful farmers union, was supposed to sweep the farm country.

The U.S. Embassy had no comment on the seizure except to say the situation was being watched closely.

The seizure climaxed Castro's most bitter attack on the United States since relations between the two governments began to deteriorate months ago. Americans who heard his 2 1/2 hour diatribe against the United States Tuesday night described it as "openly and deliberately insulting."

NEW YORK (HTNS) — TWENTIETH CENTURY PARODY, AMERICAN AND BRITISH. Edited by Burling Lowrey. Introduction by Nathaniel Benchley. Harcourt, Brace. 304 pages. $5.75.
It's the hardest form of creative writing there is, said the late Wolcott Gibbs, speaking of the exquisite art of parody. Here and there, presumably, a firm adherent of the tricky villanelle may file an exception to this dictum.

gibes, from "A Christmas Garland," at the manner of Joseph Conrad and Rudyard Kipling? These are the opening acts of this vaudeville, and they get it off to a slow start. But stay with it, because things improve when The Incomparable One gets around to Henry James, and they are still better when Robert Benchley pays his respects to John Galsworthy, Peter De Vries to Ivy Compton-Burnett, Clifton Fadiman to Thomas Wolfe, Frank Sullivan to Van Wyck Brooks, Mr. Gibbs to the several members of the Playwrights Company, Patricia Colling to Lillian Hellman.

These are not only a delight in themselves but tend to support the contention of Aldous Huxley, as quoted by Robert Benchley's sprightly son Nathaniel in the latter's introduction, that parody is the most acute form of criticism. A couple of Nathaniel Benchley's other prefatory statements are vaguely suspect. Is it true that "only the big ones are worth parodying"? That some parodies "make glorious reading even if you've never even heard of the author being parodied"?

If the first pronouncement is true, Geoffrey Gorer's dissection of Colin ("The Outsider") Wilson would not be the murderously comic piece it is. If there is anything in the second assertion, the job done on a writer with whom you may not happen to be well acquainted—like Anthony Brode's salute to Kingsley Amis—ought to bring you out of your chair cheering. It does not.

If Mr. Brode leaves you sitting right where you are, John Updike takes care of Jack Kerouac nicely. "What happens when they're dead?" he has one Kerouac "beat" character asking another: "The infinite never-to-be defiled subtlety of the late Big Sid Catlett on the hushed trap drums," he is told. "Swish, swish, swish-swish SWOOSH!"

No do I know how Mr. Wilson is going to survive Mr. Gorer's performance as Mr. Wilson analyzing "Alice through the Looking Glass": "Alice is a Victorian bourgeois girl oppressed by the angst of being an Outsider; in a previous volume she had vainly tried to escape her destiny by taking semi-psychotic refuge in a 'rabbit hole.' In vain; all through this volume she is from the outside, looking in, threatened by the queens and duchesses in Authority, eventually involved in a court case no less disquieting than that described by Kafka."

It does seem a little unkind of Mr. Lowrey to have exhumed Donald Ogden Stewart's hard-breathing caricatures of Edith Wharton and F. Scott Fitzgerald; and, alas, all but one of the reprinted compositions of "John Riddell" (Corey Ford) come back with a film of dust on them. The exception is a splendid consideration of Adm. Richard Byrd at the South Pole in the style of the Rover Boys. But there are "the Rev. Peter Salmon's observations on Mr. De Vries' 'Mackerel Plaza,'" one of the delectable reviews on record; Lionel Hale kidding T. S. Eliot's verse plays; Ira Wallach approaching Henley's "Invictus" in the jargon of the New Criticism.

By and large, I should say, it all evens up, with maybe a little weight on the credit side. Which goes to show, as the book in question indicates, that parody is at best a chancy field whose practitioners are doing pretty well if they do not fall on their faces.

You may expect Jose Ferrer to be heard in the title role; Jimmy Durante plays "the nose"; Edmund Rostand is expected to demand equal time. HIGHLIGHTS OF FRENCH MUSIC ("Mademoiselle from Armentieres"; "C'est si Bon"—that sort of thing) is a new series beginning at 2:55 p.m. today and continuing daily, Monday through Friday. Iverson, Evashevski Advance in Jr. Golf

By JOHN HANRAHAN Sports Editor Iowa City's Jim Evashevski, son of Iowa Hawkeye football coach Forest Evashevski, emerged from the first two rounds of the State Junior Golf Tournament looking like the golfer with the best chance of beating last year's champion Bill Iverson of Clinton. Playing on SUJ's South Finkbine course, Evashevski pulled the top upset of the tourney in the first round by defeating Rod Bliss III of Des Moines 5 and 4. Bliss was far off his usual game and didn't appear to be the same golfer who shot a 69 in Tuesday's qualifying round. On the other hand, Evashevski was razor-sharp as he recorded five par for the 14-hole match. He maintained his sharpness in his second-round match in the afternoon and defeated another top opponent, Bruce Fisher of Manning, 6 and 4. Iverson had no trouble in his first-round morning match when he defeated Steward Maples of Cedar Rapids 5 and 4. The 17-year-old Clinton lad shot one-under par golf for the 14-hole match. Iverson's second-round match in the afternoon was a different story. He had to struggle hard to edge Jim Kachelek of Dubuque 1-up. In that match, Iverson shot an 80 — far off the par-busting pace he had set over the first 32 holes he had played in the tournament. The match was all even going into the 18th hole. Iverson took a bogey 5 on the hole, but Kachelek was not equal to this and shot a 6. In one of the top matches of second-round play, Ron Welk of Muscatine topped Queston Boston of Waterloo 1-up in 19 holes. Welk won the match by canning a 20-foot putt on the 19th hole for a par 4, while his opponent took a bogey 5. Welk won his way into the second round by defeating Steve Stewart of Fairfield 2 and 1. Boston had advanced to the second round on the strength of his 5 and 4 win over Paul Nixon of Des Moines. One of the most interesting matches of the afternoon round

24 Awarded Fellowships For Advanced Study at SUI

Twenty-four students from throughout the United States have been awarded National Defense Education Act Fellowships to study at SUI beginning this fall.

SUI is one of only three universities in the country to receive the maximum number of fellowships under the act; the other two are the Universities of Indiana and Oregon.

The State Board of Regents' finance committee accepted a $22,819.51 grant at its June meeting from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to finance the program. The fellowships are normally for three years, providing a stipend to the individual of $2,000 for the first year, $2,200 for the second, and $2,400 for the third, plus an additional allowance of $400 a year for each dependent.

Students who will study in the SUI Department of Dramatic Arts are Earl W. Larson, Peru, Neb., from the University of Nebraska; Stanley W. Longman, G. Pacific Palisades, Calif.; and Charles R. Myers, Towson, Md., from Western Maryland College at Westminster.

History students are Edward H. Kaplan, New York City, from Georgetown University, Washington, D. C.; W. J. Wiman, Belle Plaine, from Loras College, Dubuque; and J. R. Allen, Elmwood Park, Ill., from Northern Illinois State College, DeKalb.

Mathematics students are R. J. Gregorac, Euclid, Ohio, from Case Institute of Technology, Cleveland; Herald Kerr, G. South English; Thomas McGee, Ames, now attending Iowa State University of Science and Technology; Richard

M. Schorri, Evanston, Ill., from Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio; and Peter C. Morris, G. Carbondale, Ill.

Philosophy students are John P. Barnes, Omaha, from Omaha University; and David E. Johnson, from Augustan College, Rock Island, Ill.

Psychology students are John H. Talbot, East Haven, Conn., from Yale; and Paul F. Butler, Amherst, Mass., from the University of Massachusetts.

Political science students are Herbert E. Cheever, Brookings, S. D., from South Dakota State College; Robert J. Donovan, Milwaukee, Wis., from the University of Wisconsin; and Barry D. Wardlaw, Scott, Calif., from San Francisco State College.

Speech pathology and audiology students are Kathryn Dunn, Valley Stream, N. Y., from Pennsylvania State University; Norman Cannell, Rapid City, S. D., from the University of Minnesota; and Sylvia Steiner, G. Pittsburgh, Penn.

Sociology students are Irving L. Allen Jr., Charleston, W. Va., from Morris Harvey College, Charleston; Jerrold L. Buerer, Clintonville, Wis., from Luther College, Decorah; and Ronald W. Wilson, LaCrosse, Wis., from Wisconsin State College.

SUI graduate student David C. Young of Lincoln, Neb., is one of six men to receive a NDEA fellowship for an inter-university program in classics. He will study at the University of Minnesota during the coming academic year, and will study subsequent years at SUI and the University of Wisconsin.

7 Scholarships Awarded For Institute on Far East

Scholarship winners for the Summer Institute on the Far East being held at SUI have been announced by Prof. Y. P. Mei, head of the Department of Oriental Studies at SUI.

Scholarship winners and the amounts of their awards are: Mrs. Opal L. Kissinger, Cedar Rapids, $100; John R. Mann, A4, Cedar Rapids, $100; Gordon F. Mixdorf, Cedar Rapids, $175; Sister Mary Irenaeus Russell, Davenport, $100; David Cooper, Marion, $175; Mrs. Corrine Morse Tandy, Williamsburg, $100; and Mrs. Beatriz Nidea Santos, Legaspi City, the Philippines, $100.

Mei explained that the Far East program at SUI planned to aid college students in intercultural understanding, and to help teachers improve their teaching on the Far East.

The scholarships were made possible by grants totalling $1,200 from the Asia Foundation, the Asia Society, and the Japan Society. SUI has also received a Federal grant under the National Defense Education Act to establish a Chinese Language and Area Center. As part of the program, a major in Chinese language and civilization will be offered at SUI for the first time beginning with the fall semester.

The eight-week summer institute, which began June 15, offers five courses on the Far East — Survey of the Far East, India and Pakistan; Elements of Culture; Geography of Asia; Government of the Far East, and Great Books of China and India. Instructors in the summer institute are Mei, Kennard (Rumage, assistant professor of geography; Russell Whitesel, associate professor of political science; and Itrat Zuberi, visiting lecturer in English.

KATMANDU, Nepal — Chinese Communist troops killed a Nepali officer and captured 17 unarmed Nepali soldiers operating on the Himalayan frontier with Tibet, Premier B. P. Koirala announced Wednesday.

Nepal protested to the Chinese Embassy here and demanded immediate return of the prisoners.

Koirala said the Chinese fired without provocation across the border, killing the officer and then entered Nepal to take the prisoners. The incident, which the government described as gravely delicate, took place Monday at the border village of Choka near Mustang, which lies in a valley of northwest Nepal.

Unconfirmed reports said two village officials also were captured.

This was the first open clash between Nepal and Red China, which signed a treaty of friendship with Koirala's government March 21. The announcement followed months of unconfirmed reports of border trouble.

Schedule New Bike Registration Period

Iowa City police have scheduled another period for bicycle registration.

The licensing will be held today from 1 to 3 p.m. at the College Hill Park three blocks east of City Hall. The fee is 50 cents.

The additional licensing was set by police after several persons requested it. Nearly 2,500 bikes have been registered thus far under the city's new bicycle ordinance.

Social Notes

PI LAMBDA THETA, honorary organization for women in education, will meet tonight at 7 in the social classroom of the Women's Gym. This is a get-acquainted meeting for all members attending summer school and those living in Iowa City.

MEXICAN CHILDREN AIL

MEXICO CITY — Mexico has had its hottest spring in recent years — temperatures up to 110 — and an unusual wave of sickness among children that led to uncounted fatalities. As summer began, Children's Hospital here had about 200 suffering from respiratory ailments, dehydration and kindred ills.

Revised Iowa Voting Book Published

Publication of a revised edition of "Voting in Iowa," a simplified explanation of the Iowa election laws and political party procedures, was announced Wednesday by Robert F. Ray, director of the Institute of Public Affairs of SUI.

Nearly 20,000 copies of this book have been distributed since it was first published in 1956, Ray said. The book is used in many schools in the state; it is also used in citizen education programs of both political parties and by Leagues of Women Voters, the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, and similar groups.

The book has been revised to include changes made in the laws since the first edition was published, Ray said, and to bring it up to date in other respects.

A number of points have been expanded and clarified. These changes were suggested by teachers who have used the book as a supplementary text in high school and junior high school classes.

"Voting in Iowa" discusses the state's election laws as they affect voters. In addition, it discusses the political party activities that are not regulated by state law. The book is written in simple terms, and the new edition is printed in larger type for easier reading.

Author of the book is George B. Mather, associate professor in the Institute of Public Affairs. The book contains illustrations by Dale Ballantyne, designer in the SUI Department of Publications.

Copies of "Voting in Iowa" may be obtained from the Institute of Public Affairs, State University of Iowa, Iowa City, at 50 cents a copy. Quantity discounts are available to schools and other groups.

Award Damages For Riverside Drive Property

$26,800 in awards for damages to property taken for the widening of Riverside Drive were made Tuesday by a state condemnation commission.

Riverside Drive is being widened from two to four lanes from Iowa Avenue south to the intersection at the Highway 6 by-pass.

The largest award, $18,000, went to Reka F. Koser, owner of the property at 137 S. Riverside Drive where the Dairy Queen is located. An additional $4,000 went to Roy Jester, the lessee, and Wilbur E. McWane, the tenant.

Also receiving awards were: L. O. Nolf, SUI professor of Zoology, and Gladys E. Nolf — $2,000; Eugene T. Larew, Marie N. Larew, Richard Larew and Louise Larew — $2,500; and George F. Morrow — $300.

The condemnation commission appraises and makes awards in cases where the highway commission and property owners fail to agree on damages.
