NEW YORK (AP) — FBI agents swooped down Thursday night on a Russian employe at United Nations headquarters and a New York illustrator and arrested them on charges of espionage.

The Justice Department announced the arrests from Washington minutes after agents had seized the two men at their homes in Manhattan.

Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers named the men as Igor Yakovlevich Melekh, the Russian, and Willie Hirsch, described as a freelance medical illustrator in New York.

Rogers said that Melekh had tried to obtain U.S. intelligence data in New York City, Newark, N.J., and Chicago.

"This data included a map of Chicago showing military installations and aerial photographs of the city," Rogers said.

Warrants for the arrest were based on an indictment voted earlier Thursday by a federal grand jury in Chicago, the attorney said.

"The indictment resulted from an investigation conducted by the FBI," Rogers added. "J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, reported to the attorney general that Melekh was placed in contact with a resident of Chicago by Hirsch in October, 1958.

Rogers said the Chicago indictment charged Melekh and Hirsch with conspiring to obtain information pertaining to U.S. national defense for transmittal to the Soviet Union.

Named as a co-conspirator but not as a defendant was Kirill S. Doronkin, also a Soviet national, Rogers said.

He described Doronkin as a former film editor of the radio and visual division of public information of the United Nations Secretariat.

The attorney general's statement said that in addition to the charges of conspiracy to violate the espionage provisions of the United States Code, Melekh and Hirsch were charged with conspiring to violate that section of the code which requires agents of a foreign government to register with the secretary of state.

The FBI said Melekh is also known as Peter Stephens and as "Gipsy." He came to the United States in June 1955, to work for the United Nations. He is 27 and resides in New York City with his wife and two children. He is employed as chief of the Russian section language and meetings services, Office of Conference Services, United Nations Secretariat.

Hirsch, 52, now living in New York, uses the name John Gilmore, the FBI said. He is German-born. He came to this country as a youth and never has become a United States citizen.

If convicted on the charges in the indictment, the men would face a maximum penalty of $25,000 fine or 25 years in jail or both.

The two men will be arraigned as soon as possible in New York, the FBI said.

IFC Answers Charge On Study-Crutch File

By HAROLD HATFIELD
Editorial Assistant

SUI's social fraternities Thursday night opened their test files to public inspection.

The move was taken by the Interfraternity Council in its bi-weekly meeting in answer to charges that fraternities maintain extensive files of stolen tests as study crutches.

The IFC resolution stated that in order to dispel false misconceptions that the fraternities do maintain such files, "The IFC offers a standing invitation to any faculty member, at any time, to enter any fraternity and inspect any file."

Resolution On ROTC To Hancher

By JERRY PARKER
Staff Writer

A resolution passed by the Educational Policy Committee of the College of Liberal Arts which recommends abolishing compulsory ROTC at SUI next fall is now in the hands of President Hancher. The resolution will probably be submitted to the Board of Regents at their November or December meeting, according to Phil Connell, assistant to the President.

The text of the resolution, released today by Dewey B. Stuit, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, is as follows:

"Be it resolved that the Educational Policy Committee of the College of Liberal Arts recommend to the President of the University that he recommend to the Board of Regents that the present basic ROTC requirement be discontinued effective, September, 1961 and that the undergraduate colleges be authorized to establish such new military programs and requirements as are deemed advisable in the light of the present day officer requirements of the military services."

Stuit called attention to the fact that the resolution did not recommend the substitution of voluntary for compulsory ROTC. He said the resolution merely asks that the present program be changed in light of the findings of a study which began a year ago.

The study was made by a subcommittee of the Educational Policy Committee from other institutions, notably the University of California and Ohio State University. In addition an extensive study was carried out on the SUI campus. According to the report which accompanied the resolution, interviews were conducted with students, faculty, the military departments and administrative officers.

Among the principal reasons cited in the report for the recommended change in the ROTC program are the following: 1) the chief purpose of ROTC now is obtaining career officers and not training officers for the reserves, 2) no military service credit is awarded for participation in basic ROTC, 3) increasing numbers of acceptable college students are not participating in ROTC programs due to attendance at institutions without ROTC units.

Also, 4) heavier academic loads for students participating in ROTC make its value to the student subject to serious question, 5) the establishment of an adequate scholarship and loan program by the military services would in all likelihood maintain a high rate of officer productivity.

Also cited was the fact that the Defense Department itself no longer advocates compulsory ROTC.

Connell said an effort would be made to include the resolution on the November docket, but other matters of a more urgent nature might make it necessary for the Board to wait until their December meeting to consider the recommendation.

The next meeting of the Regents is scheduled for November 10 and 11 in Cedar Rapids and Vinton, but the docket probably will not be made up until the week before, according to James R. Jordan, Director of University Relations.

'Do Something For Others,' GOPs Told

Roberts Challenges 100 SUIowans At Republican Rally

Millard G. Roberts, president of Parsons College, presented a challenge to SUI Young Republicans to do something for others rather than themselves in a keynote address at a Nixon-for-President rally Thursday night.

The other speaker at the rally was Evan Hultman, Waterloo, candidate for state Attorney-General.

They spoke before the student crowd of around 100 in Macbride Auditorium.

"Young people are taught ideas by their parents — most of them taught before they go to college — and these ideas remain with them," Roberts said.

He continued that parents teach sons and daughters "around the dinner table" of how we have reached an eight-hour day and five-day week. They know the four-day week is on its way, he said.

This means, Roberts explained, that we have more time to load the boat, head for the country, build vacation houses, rush back to city jobs, to rest and make money, so we can rush back to the country.

"Is it not true that you come to college to gain more status than your parents?" he asked.

"You probably want a diploma to frame in glass to show people how smart you are whether you are or not."

"The problems we face tonight are so great that many of us do not care to look at them anymore. We are afraid to teach you the truth in classes — the average college student wants status and the money that goes with it."

"But will it be so in your generation with everyone having degrees and with inflation?" Roberts asked.

He added we tend to think that the more education a person receives, the more money he will make. This is because we look at the graphs and scales of the last decade, he added.

"Are you sure a glassed-in diploma will be worth anything 10 years from now? I'm not," he said.

"Diplomas are fine, Roberts continued, but you must not think of the graphs of the last decade. But, you must use your knowledge for new ideas."

And this, he said, was the purpose of the rally.

He said, "My word for tonight is that most of you are not caring very much and are interested in the future in terms of yourselves."

It is necessary that you do something for others, he said, if our system of free enterprise is to be preserved.

He questioned his audience: "Do you know what to do about foreign policy — or yourselves? Do you know what to do about war? About inflation?"

The rally climaxed a Young GOP torchlight parade which circled Burge Hall and the downtown area of Iowa City.

Telegrams in greeting were sent to the rally from Vice-President Nixon and President Eisenhower.

The Liberal's Hour

John Galbraith, professor of economics at Harvard and Kennedy advisor, makes a point during his speech in Old Capitol Thursday night.

Galbraith, whose SUI appearance was sponsored by SUI Young Democrats, spoke to a crowd which filled the Senate Chamber, the House Chamber, the foyer between, and the spiral stairway in Old Capitol.

Galbraith Assails GOP Before Record Crowd

In an address before one of the largest crowds ever to jam the Old Capitol, John Kenneth Galbraith, economic adviser to Senator Kennedy, said Thursday night that the central issue in the presidential election is not liberal versus conservative but "The Contented Versus The Concerned."

Tearing into the Eisenhower Administration as eight years of political inertia and inaction, Galbraith told the 700 students and faculty packed into the Senate Chamber, the House Chamber and the foyer in between, that an administration of the comfortable, the contented and the unconcerned — one committed to the status quo and fearful of change — will never be energetic.

As had once been said of Calvin Coolidge, Galbraith spoke of Eisenhower as having what he called that "masterly inactivity for which he was so splendidly equipped."

The comment drew rounds of applause which echoed throughout the Old Capitol — from those spectators lining the wall behind Galbraith on the speaker's platform to those cramped together in the cloak room and on the spiral staircase.

"Where energetic government is important to one group of people, it is not so important to others," Galbraith said. "For instance, a school construction bill or a bill to raise teachers' salaries could and would cost money, but to the less compassionate and less thoughtful residents of the well-heeled suburb, the poor schools of the other communities are not an urgent problem."

As other examples, he cited the Administration's negative attitude toward unemployment, medical care of the old, impoverished and ill, the farm problem, and the failings of the present Federal Reserve policy under which there have been recurrent recessions — in 1953-54, in 1957-58 and in the judgment of Wall Street, at least, again this year.

In the area of foreign policy, Galbraith described it as also being static and unimaginative and lacking creative leadership. He criticized the military pacts that had been set up by Dulles as serving to alienate people from governments that were previously well disposed toward the United States.

"There has been a spurious show of busyness — for instance, when we call standing up to Khrushchev," Galbraith said, "our policy of trading speech for speech and insult for insult with a view to insuring that whatever the Russian reputation for bad manners, ours will not be much better."

As alternatives to the negative policies of the Eisenhower administration including Nixon, Galbraith outlined four areas where positive action should be taken and would be taken if a concerned Democratic administration was in office under the leadership of Kennedy.

Galbraith stated that there should be "Federal aid for education — a new concern for aid to schools at all levels of government, support for research, scholarships."

He said that there should also be concern for the crowded housing situation, particularly the slum conditions of the big cities.

Concerning foreign policy, Galbraith indicated that emphasis should be placed not only on economic development, but also education and social justice. He said this was the problem in Cuba — that the lesson must be accepted and applied in our dealings with other countries.

Car Leaps Curb, Kills 5 Chicago Pedestrians

CHICAGO (AP) — A car streaking down a Loop sidewalk sliced through a throng of homebound commuters Thursday night, killing five pedestrians and injuring three others, so seriously.

The tragedy occurred at the height of the evening rush at Randolph and Franklin Streets. Sidewalks and streets were jammed.

Most of the victims were catapulted through the air. Their bodies were strewn along a parking lot.

One man lay moaning near the curb, 25 feet from the spot where he had waited for a traffic light to change.

Three vehicles were involved — two cars and a taxicab. One of the bodies was covered with tar.

Witnesses said the driver of the death car was a young woman.

Their stories provided this account: She drove along the sidewalk of Randolph Street, plowed into a group of men waiting for the light to change, swerved in side the traffic light, glanced off the trailer of the tax truck at the cross street, Franklin.

Then she smashed into another car, shoving it into the parking lot, and careened into another group of pedestrians.

"All I saw was bodies flying," one woman said. "All I heard was crash, bang — it happened so fast."

The death estimate was furnished by the coroner's office. A deputy coroner earlier set the toll at six.

The accident triggered a mammoth snarl in downtown traffic.

The dead, all suburbanites, were identified as Carl Matre, 61, Des Plaines; Leslie M. Miles, 63, West Chicago; Carl A. Berggren, Glen Ellyn; Carby Alward, 44, La Grange; and Harold Murphy, 49, Glen Ellyn.

The driver of the death car was identified by police at a hospital as Miss Mary Elizabeth Gillespie, 25, Chicago, a demonstrator of household appliances. She is the daughter of a former Chicago alderman, Joseph Gillespie.

The injured are: Romie Gilkey, 42, driver of the second car; Miss Gillespie, suffering mainly from shock; and Richard Brady, 40, Arlington Heights. Gilkey and Miss Gillespie were listed in fair condition, Brady in serious.

Police said Miss Gillespie told them of backing out while driving behind a bus, "and the next thing she remembered she was in the hospital."

No charges were filed pending an investigation by the state attorney's office, police said, "because of the gravity of the situation."

The Daily Iowan is written and edited by students and is governed by a board of five student trustees elected by the student body and four faculty trustees appointed by the president of the University. The Daily Iowan editorial policy, therefore, is not an expression of SUU administration policy or opinion, in any particular.

CPC Out of Date?

One of the basic assumptions in any Democratic society is that when an organization no longer serves any useful function that organization will die.

By this token, we must assume that Central Party Committee serves a useful function, operating on the assumption that we exist in a Democratic society, and that the State University of Iowa believes in the functions of a Democratic society.

Criticisms of CPC rage rampant on the SUU campus every year. They still rage.

There have been outspoken comments relating to CPC. It has been described as "worthless," "undemocratic," "outdated," "non-representative," and other similar terminology.

Most recent attack springs from the Socialist Discussion Club which indicates that it plans to actively oppose CPC "monopoly on entertainment."

The Socialist Discussion Club explains its opposition of CPC in this manner: "We want to see something positive set up so any campus organization can present other kinds of entertainment to the campus other than that offered by CPC and be able to charge admission."

Before we can offer valid criticism, the important issues in the CPC controversy must be cited:

What is the role of the administration in CPC activities?

Is CPC representative of the student body and is CPC aware of the interests and desires of the students it is supposed to represent?

Is the method of selecting future CPC members in need of revision?

Is there a need for a complete remodeling of CPC from beginning to end?

Or, should CPC be abolished?

On the basis of the "need for and service rendered" principle, CPC became non-existent long ago.

We are of the opinion that CPC must become a healthy, representative, functioning organization, or it must retreat from the position it now occupies - a couple of pages in the University yearbook.

According to the Code of Student Life, Central Party and Entertainment Committee is responsible for sponsoring and generally supervising all University parties and popular entertainment for which admission is charged.

The Administration presented us with CPC back in the days when such a group was needed to coordinate student functions, halt duplicity in presentations, and provide a financial base for the financing of presentations. Now it is all too obvious that CPC, in its present capacity, is a dated, unnecessary campus organization, a greater hindrance than aid.

CPC is not composed of a representative group of students, nor does it make any attempt to be such. No attempt is made to establish closer ties with the student body. An attitude of indifference reigns.

The unrepresentative composition of CPC is made of an honorary group whose membership is determined on the basis of previous experience in organization, but not on previous experience in entertainment. There's a special art involved in "politicking" to get on the committee; there's a way to fill gaps in the rank, just be a fraternity brother of the president; or perhaps big sister was on it last year.

The obvious, definite trend away from big dances is evidence that CPC is dated. The logical body for intelligently studying and recommending changes in the status of CPC would be the Student Council, aided and encouraged by organizations with a special interest in the matter such as the Socialist Discussion Club or by interest on the part of SUU students in general.

We hopefully wait for this much-needed action.

Students, Workers Demonstrate in Paris

PARIS (AP) - French students and workers demonstrating for a quick end to the Algerian rebellion fought bloody street clashes with police in Paris and the provinces Thursday night.

It was the first widespread outbreak of violence in France over the stubborn Algerian insurrection since President Charles de Gaulle returned to power in mid-1958.

The demonstrations flared into wild rioting. They swept the Left Bank in Paris and boiled up in seven other cities in widely separated parts of the country.

The coordinated outbreak was forceful evidence of a conviction among some of the French people that France must come to terms quickly with leaders of the national revolt. The war in Algeria has ravaged that North African area and taken a heavy toll in lives and property for more than six years.

A preliminary count after Thursday night's violence showed more than 100 persons had suffered cracked heads or other injuries. Fifteen Paris policemen were hurt, and 527 Paris students were arrested.

The demonstrations coincided with a call by the French Communist party for token work stoppage as a gesture of sympathy for the moves by the French National Students Federation. The work halts in most cases were brief.

In Paris, violence erupted on the approaches to Mutualite Hall on the Left Bank where students, with government permission, had scheduled an indoor rally for an Algerian peace.

Campaign Hocus-Pocus

By EARL MAZO Herald Tribune News Service WASHINGTON

Harry Truman has called Richard Nixon a "political hatchet man" and consigned all who vote Republican to a searing hereafter; Republican and Democratic campaigners are swapping accusations of demagoguery, smear, McCarthyism and lies; a hard-shell Protestant outfit reportedly is mobilizing for a "Reformation Day" assault on Democratic candidate Kennedy's Catholic faith; and the Walter Reuther union hierarchy has been caught circulating hate literature that depicts Kennedy's campaign against Republican Nixon as a "liberty" crusade against "bigotry."

In other words, the hocus-pocus season is on us, full-force - and voters beware.

The steamed-up religious issue in this year's forefront race has tainted the whole political scene and is likely to affect in some way the 15,000 other contests for Congress, governor, state legislature, sheriff and so forth. So the electorate should brace itself for an outpouring of campaign knavery in the next two weeks that would make the stunt faithful old Joe Corse pulled to win tiny Jamesburg, N. J., for Al Smith seem innocent, as well as funny.

Chief Justice Earl Warren's last race for governor offers a classic case. Late one night platoon of Democrats blitzed the countryside attaching huge stickers with the word "Republican" on Warren billboards. This infuriated the governor and his Republican entourage. Investigations, prosecution and law suits were threatened, and an army of billboard technicians was hurriedly mobilized to eradicate all trace of that word.

One type of politicking fellow that should figure more and more prominently in the days immediately ahead is listed in my primer as "Carrier Pigeon," since it is his duty to fly around delivering lowroad campaign nuggets for a boss man traveling the campaign highroad.

Nixon handled the pigeon chore for General Eisenhower in 1952 and 1954, and to a lesser extent in 1956. But now that he is himself a highroad boss man, his opponent, boss man, Kennedy, appears to have signed up the most effective pigeons. Take Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, for instance. He's able and experienced enough at carrying to the Kennedy roost, and now the message he delivers higher and yon is that "all bigots will vote for Nixon and all right-thinking christians and Jews, North and South, will vote for Kennedy..."

Of course, a statesman-candidate sometimes is caught in the back fire of a blast delivered by his most adept carrier. That happened during the West Virginia Democratic primary last spring when young Franklin Roosevelt, one of the hottest pigeons extant, dropped an ostensible bombshell by claiming Sen. Hubert Humphrey was a wartime draft evader.

Like many pigeon "deliveries," that one was fartsched. And it prompted the eloquent Humphrey to observe, icily, that "if this kind of trash is to be said I suggest it come from the candidate..." these words of Roosevelt hardly do honor to the author of "Profiles in Courage" (a book by boss-man Kennedy).

This report concludes with one of the most subtle varieties of vote-seeking trickery - listed in the primer under "Nickname Siletto."

Both sides are stabbing away, of course. In predominantly Jewish districts, where few issues are more potent than protecting Israel, Democratic operators alude to the Republican candidate for Vice President as "Mohamed" Lodge. For their part, Republicans are referring to candidate Kennedy's energetic younger brother and campaign manager as "Raoul" Kennedy.

As the veteran Humphrey has said of campaign hocus-pocus seasons: "We're in politics; we're not making love."

Good Listening - Today On WSUI

MUCH TIME has been spent this week in an effort to square around the schedule of performances in WSUI's Evening-at-the-Opera series. A poverty of riches is the excuse, for our Rudolph Bing (Avril O'Brien) has more choices before her than a bride at a supermarket. As you may remember (if you've been following this serial), last week's opera ("Ariadne auf Naxos" by Richard Strauss) was pre-empted by those who love a parade. Meanwhile, various versions of Verdi's opera, "Don Carlos," have been accumulating in the WSUI vaults to the point where one suspects they may be multiplying as well. The upshot of the whole affair (a reminder of The Bookshelf) is that the disc recording of "Don Carlos" has been retired in favor of the tape recording from Salzburg; thus the way has been cleared for a presentation THIS VERY DAY, opera lovers of "Ariadne auf Naxos." Now, let's hope this will make you, both of you, happy at last. The broadcast begins at 7 p.m.

IN THE INTEREST OF THE STATION being able to serve you better, we urge that you make your position known NOW if you have not already been included on the WSUI-KSUI mailing list. The problem, obviously, is that people in this broadcast area have a bad habit of going and coming, what with graduation and that sort of thing. Necessarily, then, the mailing list is in almost constant need of revision to prevent "ringers" from staying on. In fact, if your name is Ringer, you needn't apply; we're simply not equipped to handle it. Anyone else, however, may address a request for the Music Guide to: WSUI, Iowa City, ALASKA. (Well, I mean... where ELSE would Iowa City be?)

DEVOTING ONESELF TO MUSIC can be the most singularly rewarding of pursuits, as listeners to WSUI and KSUI-FM must already have discovered. It is with that consideration in mind that the stations of SUU have devoted the next two months of programming to Fine Music. It is a good bet (about 9 to 5) that no dilettantes ANYWHERE will hear more and better music in November and December.

A Worthwhile Evening - 'Separate Tables'

By WALTER R. KELLER Daily Iowan Reviewer

The University Theater season opened last night with a sometimes forceful, sometimes limp, too often erratic production of Terence Rattigan's "Separate Tables" directed by Dr. James Gousseff. The neat and crisp-looking sets (creating the lounge and dining room of an English seaside hotel) were designed by Dr. A. S. Gillette; the lighting and costumes were by Dr. David Thayer and Margaret Hall respectively.

First impressions are not always the most dependable, but I could not help but be considerably annoyed by certain technical elements in the first scene. Ruth Farstrup (as Mrs. Railton-Bell) and Tom Carson (as John Malcolm) "wore" makeup which ranged from a greasy-looking blur on Carson, to a blazing inferno on Miss Farstrup. Eloise Heuer (as Doreen, a waitress) had lost her Cockney accent by the end of her second speech and thereafter fluctuated between a cornfield twang and an indescribable whine.

Scenes One and Two dragged noticeably at times. Carson often seemed in too much of a hurry to get through his speeches and his relationship with Virginia Peters (Miss Copper - the hotel manager) was unclear. This indefiniteness was mainly due to a lack of connection between them. This same lack of connection permeated the first two scenes; in short, many of the characters seemed to lack an awareness of the others on stage with them. Nancy Cole (as Anne Shankland, Malcolm's former wife) was without the necessary degree of acidity toward Malcolm until well along in the second scene.

The first two scenes were saved by Miss Farstrup's memorable intrusion upon the passionate embrace of Stratton and Tanner (as played by Nick Scott and Lynn Cawthorne), and Phyllis Gold's comic consistency. The pace picked up in the last scene. Mrs. Cole's final scene with Carson (after she has had a violent argument with him and he finds out that she has become addicted to drugs) was handled excellently by both of them.

If the play had started and ended with Act Two, the evening would have had a different tone. In this scene, Carson played the part of a would-be colonel, and Mrs. Cole became the sheltered, timid spinster daughter of Mrs. Railton-Bell. The transformation ("transfiguration" might be a better term) was remarkable - not only in the obvious change of costume, coiffure and makeup, but also (and more importantly) in the characterizations. Both Carson and Mrs. Cole emerged from a comparatively pedestrian first act, to levels of sensitivity, subtlety, and variety which were a pleasure to behold.

The other characters were also generally stronger and more believable in the second act. Especially commendable were Nick Scott (as Stratton, a medical student) for his intelligently restrained, yet pointed sarcasm; Virginia Peters for her controlled, yet unmistakable compassion, and Jane Glierist (as Lady Matheson) for her simply fine overall performance.

The main weakness in the scene stemmed from Roland Reed's (as Mr. Fowler) forced characterization and his lack of actor's energy.

In sum, a worthwhile evening of theater, the second half of which (at the least) balanced out the first.

U.S. Favors Atomic Pool, Reports Say

By J. M. ROBERTS Associated Press News Analyst

The United States is now reported to favor an Allied pool of atomic power in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in the hope of persuading France not to press development of her own nuclear striking force on the outside.

France, on the other hand, is determined to go ahead with a national force even if a Polaris force should be integrated into NATO.

The United States fears this will produce division in NATO and a nuclear arms race among its members.

There is also the impact on the spirit of Western European Union itself, under which West German rearmament is integrated into NATO under controls, including a commitment not to produce nuclear weapons.

A strong display of nationalism, such as France's, is bound to be felt in a structure which was designed primarily to submerge France.

France, on the other hand, insists that her nuclear force would merely put her in the same position, with regard to the alliance, which Britain and the United States already occupy. She insists on an equal voice on whether nuclear weapons would be used in an emergency, and how. She points out that Britain and U.S. reservation of the right to supply and command NATO's nuclear deterrent in effect leaves two national forces just as France's would be a third.

A week ago the United States said reports that she had agreed to make NATO a nuclear power were not true or at least premature.

Since then the French General Assembly has approved the plan of French President Charles de Gaulle and President Eisenhower is reported considering a trip to Paris during the NATO meeting in December in support of an American pool offer.

France, in the last week, likewise has denied that her policy is in any way based on fear that the United States might eventually withdraw from Europe.

University Bulletin Board

Iowa City Youngsters Will Trick-or-Treat For UNICEF

Tricks-or-treats for UNICEF, the United Nations International Childrens Emergency Fund, will be on the lips of many Iowa City youngsters this weekend. Sunday night has been designated as the UNICEF trick-or-treat night, however, some youngsters from the various participating church school groups will start earlier.
Mrs. Allan H. Arneson, 35 Hawthorne, co-chairman of the Iowa City drive, asks that Iowa Citizens have pennies or small coins ready to drop into the UNICEF containers, giving a few to each child. She said that one penny will give a child five glasses of milk, one penny will protect a child against tuberculosis. As well as fun for the children here in the United States, it provides them a chance to share.
Mrs. Arneson pointed out that over 80 countries participate in the UNICEF fund making contributions. The children's pennies are really only a small part, yet just last year they collected over a million and a half.

There are about 100 countries that are now receiving aid from UNICEF. However, it should be pointed out that UNICEF is not a give-away plan. The Governments of countries desiring aid must make a study of the child health

This week is rolling to its conclusion, and it's time for us to dust off our crystal ball and peer into the darkness to see what is ahead this weekend on the nation's gridirons.

A week ago we had more luck than the Iowa football team! We didn't miss a call as we successfully picked Michigan State, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Northwestern and Ohio State to win. It's apparent that such luck can't continue, but we'll give it the old college try—and keep our fingers crossed. This is the week of the upsets. There could be more of them than leaves on campus.

Enough of this procrastination and on to other things:

Iowa 38, Kansas 12—Despite the big margin Iowa appears to have on paper for this test, there are many things which make the Hawks ripe to be plucked. Not the least of these is the fact that a win at Minneapolis against Minnesota next week means a share of the Big Ten title for the Hawks.

Another important factor will be the recent suspension incurred by Kansas for what the National Collegiate Athletic Association called a violation of recruiting rules.

But the Hawks haven't faltered yet. And it's always safer to stay with the front runner.

Northwestern 16, Indiana 13—A couple of have-nots clash here, but the Wildcats are less a have-not than the Hoosiers. As has been often stated (to the point of boredom) this game does not count in the Big Ten standings because of Indiana's suspension.

Purdue 24, Illinois 16—The Boilermakers showed a lot of fine football against Iowa last week, while the Illini have been slipping all season. Purdue will be anxious to bounce back. Illinois had too rough a time against Penn State to be considered a threat to Purdue.

Wisconsin 14, Michigan 12—One of these days the Miller-to-Richter passing combination is going to explode—and this could be the game. Wisconsin will be smarting after two straight losses. Michigan goes down to defeat again.

Ohio State 28, Michigan State 19—The Buckeye power is great and Michigan State probably does not have the strength to cope with it. Woody Hayes has another powerhouse. If Michigan State loses this one, it is out of the Big Ten race for conference honors.

Minnesota 42, Kansas State 6—Minnesota, undefeated in Big Ten play, should massacre this Big Eight foe. Kansas State is among the weakest of the weak. Minnesota, too, must be looking ahead to its contest with Iowa. The Gophers should easily brush aside this upstart squad.

Iowa State 24, Oklahoma State 18—The Cyclones are about ready to snap back, and Oklahoma State, although rugged, should not be strong enough to halt a win for Clay Stapleton's squad.

LSU 14, Mississippi 13—This is the game in which Mississippi will falter. LSU has had a somewhat less than fabulous season to date, but a win in this one would be enough for the Louisiana squad.

Navy 28, Notre Dame 18—No sinking here.

Pittsburgh 14, Syracuse 10—An upset.

Commissioner Advises: Go Slow on Expansion Plans

NEW YORK (AP)—The American League pushed ahead Thursday plans to run a 10-team league in 1961 despite word that Commissioner Ford Frick wished they had waited until 1962.

Hank Greenberg and Bill Veck reportedly were headed for Los Angeles where a new franchise will be established. Three groups were interested in the Washington franchise, made possible by Calvin Griffith's decision to move the Senators to Minneapolis-St. Paul.

"I told Joe (American League President Joe Cronin) that trying to get started in 1961 constituted quite a problem," said Frick. "That it was doing things awfully fast and I wished they might have waited until 1962."

The National League last week voted to expand to 10 teams by adding Houston and New York in 1962. The American League beat the gun Wednesday by deciding to branch out next year.

Despite claims by Bill Shea, founder of the Continental League, that the American had "renege" on its agreement and was "double crossing" the defunct circuit, Frick said he was satisfied that the American had met its commitments.

"At first I was concerned about any commitment that might have been made to the Continental League," said Frick. "But I have been assured that the American League's four-man expansion committee recommended the two clubs be added from the Continental but that it could not be passed."

Frick indicated this action had been taken, but not announced, at an earlier American League meeting. He refused to identify the clubs that the four-man group recommended but they were believed to have been Minneapolis-St. Paul and Dallas-Fort Worth.

The problem of stocking the two franchises with new owners, general managers, players, scouts and, in the case of Los Angeles, a ball park, remained to be settled before the next meeting Nov. 17 in New York.

Frick said several requirements would have to be met before the new clubs could participate in the minor league draft Nov. 28 at Louisville. It was expected the new National League cities as well as the new American cities would take part in the draft if the owners and stockholders had been approved and other problems solved.

Iowa Meets Kansas After 51-Year Wait

Only a few old-timers can recall when the Kansas football game was a prime fall attraction.

So, 51 years after the last previous game, comes upset-minded Kansas, hoping to whip the Hawkeyes in Iowa Stadium Saturday and topple Iowa from its No. 1 spot in the nation.

Coach Forest Evashevski, whose team has a 5-0 mark and joint leadership of the Big Ten, has warned that 4-1-1 Kansas is a dangerous foe sandwiched between Purdue and Minnesota on the Hawkeye schedule.

"I feel that we are in an ideal situation to get picked, sitting up there like a big red apple. Our players cannot help thinking of the Minnesota game Nov. 5. Any let-up in effort can lead to defeat," said Coach Evy.

He pointed out, however, that the Hawkeyes are a sound group of men, not awed by the No. 1 position held for the second week. They have pride in themselves, have accepted the role humbly and realize they must improve if they are to retain the elevated spot, he believes.

Iowa will be in better physical shape than for the Purdue game last week but Charlie Lee and Sherwyn Thorson, the left tackle and left guard, will be used sparingly if at all. Captain Jerry Mauren, right halfback, is much better and might be hindered little by his back bruise.

Kansas, loser only to unbeaten Syracuse, 14-7, will not be at full strength, due to the loss of right tackle Stan Kirschman and left halfback Bert Coan by injuries last Saturday. Coan is a strong sophomore, but a shoulder injury will keep him out.

With Minnesota and Ohio State coming up on the two following Saturdays and title hopes at stake, the Hawkeyes will try to get by Kansas without dipping into their fancy play repertoire. Quarterback Wilburn Hollis will call his own signal on option plays and will use the other backs on fundamental basic stuff.

A healthy respect for the Kansas attack is held by Iowa. John

Brown Risks World Title; 9th Defense

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Lightweight champion Joe Brown, whose career parallels in some degree an even more ancient contemporary, Archie Moore, steps into the ring tonight for his 110th official fight.

He boxes Bobby (Cisco) Andrade 15 rounds or less at the Olympic Auditorium. At stake in the non-televized scrap is Brown's world title.

The battler from Houston, Tex., by way of his native Baton Rouge, La., is a proud champion. He said Thursday he is confident he will whip California's veteran Compton Comet.

He is also proud that this will be his ninth defense of the 135-pound division crown, breaking the record of eight established by the great Benny Leonard when he fought Lew Tendler in 1923.

Curtain Beginning To Fall on Prep Football Squads in Iowa City Area

By GEORGE KAMPLING
Staff Writer

The curtain starts to fall on local prep football this week, as the University High Bluehaws close out their season here tonight against Mt. Vernon.

The Blues go into the game with a 2-4 record against a 1-6 for the Mustangs. If the Blues should win this one, they will finish fifth or in a tie for that position in the Eastern Iowa Hawkeye conference.

U-High has beaten Wapello and Wilton Junction, while the Mustangs only win was against Wilton, a team that hasn't been able to salvage a victory all year.

John Dulin has been designated captain for the finale by Blues' coach Bob Hoff. Game time is 7:30 p.m. on the University practice field.

The Regina Regals, 6-1, will travel to Wellman where they face the unbeaten Mid-Prairie Golden Hawks. Should the Regals win this one, they can possibly finish the season 8-1, the best record the school has ever had.

Regal coach Herm Miscowicz describes the Mid-Prairie team as "a good team, and very well balanced. Their four starting backs are real good, (Jim Stockett, Dick Evans, Don Debler, and Keith Semler), and they are a winged-T running team."

"They have a good pass offense when they need it, and use the roll-out," he added.

The Regals will be led by Jim

McGuire, ace quarterback, who is back in top running form after suffering a foot injury two weeks ago. So far this season, in seven games, McGuire has thrown 124 passes, completing 54 of them, for 715 yards. Ten of his tosses have gone for touchdowns.

Captains for the game will be McGuire and Bob Donahue, guard. Game time at Wellman is 8 p.m.

The number one prep team in the state, Iowa City's Little Hawks, are on the road again, traveling to Davenport to play West High, the newest team in the Mississippi Valley conference.

West has only one win in this, their first year, 18-6 over city rival Davenport Central. City High goes into the game with a 5-1 record, after losing 28-26 in the last second to Rock Island in the first game of the year.

The Hawklets will be led by fullback Mike Cain, leading average ground gainer in the conference — over nine yards per carry — and second top ground gainer, Tony Welt. The Little Hawks lead the conference in both offense and defense.

Game time at the Brady Street stadium is 7 p.m., Iowa City time.

Soviet Gym Team Can't Come Here

NEW YORK (AP) — The Amateur Athletic Union is making another attempt to bring Soviet Russia's Olympic champion gymnastics team to the United States for an exhibition tour.

A scheduled 11-date, 9-city tour which was to have started Sunday at West Point, N.Y., had to be canceled when the Russians applied to late for visas.

The sites for the canceled tour included Cedar Rapids and Iowa City.

DEER FATALITIES

WESTBROOK, Conn. (AP) — Deer had a bad time in this area within a space of six hours. A train killed two and injured another. Two others were killed on highways. State troopers said it was an unusually high toll and probably was brought about by the mating season.

Randy Duncan To Quit

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Quarterback Randy Duncan, 1958 All-America from SUI now in his second year with the British Columbia Lions, said Wednesday he doesn't expect to return to professional football next year.

He indicated he wants to study law. Unless he has a change of heart before next summer, Duncan will play his last game here Saturday night when the Lions and the Saskatchewan Roughriders close out the Western Interprovincial Football Union season.

"It's mostly a matter of two conflicting careers," said Duncan. "I'm working toward my law degree and it's becoming increasingly hard to play football in Canada and to study in the states."

"I took my pre-law at Iowa and I have to go back to Drake University to finish off the final three years for my degree."

Duncan added that he's never considered himself a career athlete. "Football was a means to an end. If I do go out of it completely, I'll certainly miss the game. But, maybe after this season I shouldn't miss it."

Certain players appear always to manifest certain characteristics at the card table and a shrewd opponent can frequently capitalize on the knowledge of these habits.

West in today's hand succeeded in a highly unorthodox play, made because of his knowledge of South's habits, one of which was never to finesse for the queen when holding nine trumps.

After North's overall, South, despite the misfit, was unwilling to play the hand for less than game. He, therefore made a jump shift to three hearts.

When North supported hearts, there was nothing to be gained by showing the clubs since a slam was not in contemplation.

West cashed the first two diamond tricks and realized that he would eventually make his king of clubs.

Since there was no chance for a spade trick, he recognized that the only hope to defeat the contract was to score with the queen of trumps. South's jump shift in hearts made it a moral certainty that he held at least a five card suit and that with nine trumps, even if he held the jack, he would not finesse.

If, however, East happened to hold the jack of hearts, a false picture might be painted for the eyes of the declarer. West led the deuce of hearts, East followed with the jack and South won with the king. It seemed highly improbable that West would have led from the queen and one, so declarer entered dummy with a spade and led the eight of hearts through for the finesse.

When West won the trick, the jig was up since there was no way to avoid the loss of a club trick. Had declarer been left to his own resources, he would have had no choice but to lead the two top trumps.

Rate Bread-and-Butter Players for Top Honor

By JERRY LISKA

Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — While an All-America football player may be a real razzle-dazzler, more often he makes his mark as a rugged bread-and-butter performer.

That's the way it is with most of the Midwest's prime All-America candidates, a report of the region's AP selection board indicated Thursday.

For instance, Ohio State's quarterback Tom Matte and fullback Bob Ferguson gained stature in the Buckeyes' 34-7 rout of Wisconsin last Saturday by pure, hard-nosed football — and lot's of it. Commented board member Oliver E. Keuchle, sports editor of the Milwaukee Journal:

"The basic simplicity of Ohio State's attack continues to confound — Matte to the outside and Ferguson to the inside — but it works. Between them, they carried the ball 40 of the 50 times Ohio State rushed."

Also covering himself with more glory while in the thick of the fray was Minnesota's 243-pound guard Tom Brown.

After unbeaten Minnesota's 10-0 defeat of Michigan, Bill Jauss of the Chicago Daily News observed of Brown:

"He is the standout defensive man on the tremendous defensive team. Brown singlehandedly jams up opponents' center plunges, leaving his teammates to stack defenses for wide sweeps. He certainly is the best player we have in the Middle West."

Tackle Jerry Beabout of Purdue also is an All-America candidate who digs in and likes the melee. Bert Bertine of the Champaign-Urbana Courier reports that while fairly light for a Big Ten tackle at 220, Beabout "more than makes up for it with strength, quickness and aggressiveness. He man-handled Ohio State."

The Midwest, however, is not without spectacular performers, a

Cubans Fear Civil War Near

Political Strife Grows; Castro Alerts Military

HAVANA (AP) — Visa applicants standing three abreast in two lines that stretched from the U.S. Embassy entrance for more than a block reflected Thursday growing Cuban fears that the tense political situation here may soon explode into a bloody civil war.

Rumor after rumor in Havana added to the anxiety of the thousands of Cubans seeking refuge abroad from what they fear will be bitter armed clashes between partisans and foes of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The Cuban Communist party organ, Hoy, bannered a Cuban news agency report from Mexico that 13 unmarked warships are waiting in the Guatemalan port of Puerto Barrios to load on invasion forces against Castro.

Castro leaders countered these developments, it is said here, by alerting all regular soldiers and calling up the military reserves — even some who have been inactive because of poor health.

The workers' militia has been summoned for a mass show of muscle-flexing Sunday. The order is for all male militiamen to report early in the morning at specified concentration points "in the face of dangers that threaten our revolution."

Many Cubans are discussing Key West, Fla., radio reports that quote unattributed Havana reports to the effect that an invasion fleet already has left Guatemala and will reach Cuba by Friday.

Maj. Raul Castro, the prime minister's brother who is armed forces minister, reportedly has set up temporary headquarters in Santiago de Cuba, at the opposite end of the island from Havana, and has moved his family into a house there.

Some sources say the shift was made so that Raul can personally direct repulsion of any invasion force trying to land on the eastern shores of Cuba.

Invasion fever and the tension that comes with it have sharply increased night gunfire in Havana. More than an hour of heavy shooting echoed in the wealthy Biltmore section Wednesday night, reportedly from police and military patrols firing at a lowflying plane.

Two Americans were picked up Thursday and held, without charges, for investigation. Some arrests have been made recently in connection with alleged illegal currency transactions.

A Canadian and a Cuban were held on suspicion of espionage after they supposedly acted suspiciously in a restaurant.

Judge Reverses Decision, $2000 Bond Frees King

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — A county judge Thursday reversed an earlier decision and freed Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Negro integration leader, from the Georgia State Prison under $2,000 bond.

Judge Oscar Mitchell of De Kalb County Court said he had been under mounting pressure for and against granting bond to King but that his decision was influenced only by law.

Pressure for freeing the integration leader, said Mitchell, included a telephone call from a member of the family of Sen. John F. Kennedy, Democratic presidential nominee. Mitchell did not identify the caller other than that it was a male voice.

The judge said he granted bond in accordance with the law which requires a stay of sentence pending an appeal in misdemeanor cases.

When he sentenced King Tuesday to serve four months of a suspended 12-month term for driving a vehicle without a Georgia driver's license, Mitchell said he did not believe King was entitled to bond or revocation of probation.

King's attorneys filed new proceedings Thursday under a code section which Mitchell said requires the granting of bail during an appeal "in this portion of the case."

Reinstatement of part of the traffic sentence was based on King's part in Atlanta lunch counter sit-in demonstrations. De Kalb County officials said the sit-ins violated the state's new anti-trespass law and King violated probation on the traffic charge by ignoring the trespass law.

Russia Gets Warning Note From West

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union was warned in Western Big Three notes published Thursday to avoid tampering with air corridors to West Berlin and to restrain the Communist East Germans from squeezing that isolated city.

Britain, France and the United States informed the Soviet Union that the Western powers insist on the right to use the three air corridors from West Germany, 110 miles away, without restriction.

"Any attempt from whatever quarter to introduce any restriction would create a dangerous situation for the consequences of which the Soviet government would be held fully responsible," the notes said.

This rejected the Kremlin's claim that the air corridors could only be used to supply the American, British and French garrisons and not for the benefit of the 2½ million Germans living in West Berlin.

The Western powers dismissed Soviet allegations that they were creating tension in Berlin and were using the air corridors to ferry in anti-Communist agitators.

U.S. Appeals Disarm Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States appealed to the Soviet Union Thursday to drop Premier Khrushchev's all-or-nothing demands on disarmament, and for the sake of world peace to keep the door open for East-West negotiations.

U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth declared that the step-by-step approach urged by the West could result in total disarmament in five or six years, or even less if there is "good faith and a real sense of urgency on both sides."

He spoke in the U.N. Political Committee, just after a Communist bloc delegate unleashed a bitter attack on the United States and threatened anew to walk out on the committee unless Khrushchev's disarmament proposals are adopted as the sole basis for negotiations.

Kuzma V. Kiselev, the delegate from White Russia, said the United States was preparing for a new war while assuming the garb of a peacemaker.

Iowan To Sing Opera 'Don Giovanni'

An Iowa-born actor who received a degree from the University of Dubuque will sing the title role in "Don Giovanni," an opera by Mozart which will be given here Nov. 8.

The Goldovsky Grand Opera Theatre will present the opera at 8 p.m. in the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Paul Unkena, a baritone, will sing the lead role of the licentious Spanish nobleman whose amorous exploits and eventual downfall is pictured in "Don Giovanni."

After leaving Iowa, Unkena received his master's degree from New York's Juillard School of Music.

He has been soloist for the New York premieres of Delius' "Requiem" and Benjamin Britten's "The Beggar's Opera." He has also had leading roles with the NBC-TV Opera Company.

In addition to frequent concert engagements with the New York Philharmonic, the National Orchestral Association and the Robert Shaw Chorale, he has sung the lead roles in "Kiss Me Kate," "South Pacific," "Carou-

Loveless Proclaims Civil Defense Day

DES MOINES (AP) — Gov. Herschel Loveless Thursday proclaimed Dec. 7 as National Civil Defense Day in Iowa.

His proclamation, issued on the recommendation of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, Washington, D.C., and the Iowa Civil Defense Administration, urged Iowans to continue to participate in the non-military defense program "in order that we may keep peace through preparedness."

P.S. from Kennedy C Buchwald

It is inevitable since we've been traveling with both presidential candidates that we take advantage of the experience by comparing the two.

The newspapermen divide the campaign as follows. The Nixon campaign is known as "Truth and Purity," the Kennedy campaign as "Fun and Games." There are not too many laughs on the Nixon campaign planes, and one must be careful of one's language. "Hell" and "damn" are taboo, of course, but these aren't the only off-color words that are forbidden. Others are "Bobby Kennedy," "Senator Fullbright" and "The first television debates."

Nixon's campaign is by far the best organized. His plane always arrives on schedule, he is rarely if ever late for a speech, the reporters' luggage is always waiting in their hotel rooms, and the Republican organizations throughout 48 states (we can't talk about Hawaii and Alaska) have everything down pat (who incidentally is more popular than Dick).

Kennedy's campaign, on the other hand, is organized confusion. The Senator rarely gets where he is going on time, and is anywhere from an hour to three hours late. He puts little importance in time schedules, and prefers to make three or four stops to the Vice President's one. Reporters are loaded down with press releases on the Kennedy campaign, mainly to give them something to read while they wait for their luggage, which is usually late.

Despite this, most newspapermen prefer to travel with Sen. Kennedy. For one thing, Kennedy's speeches are usually shorter than Nixon's. For another, Kennedy sometimes changes his speech during a day's campaigning, and tries to give the reporters a new lead.

Iowan To Sing Opera Lead—

'Don Giovanni' Set for SUI

An Iowa-born actor who received a degree from the University of Dubuque will sing the title role in "Don Giovanni," an opera by Mozart which will be given here Nov. 8.

The Goldovsky Grand Opera Theatre will present the opera at 8 p.m. in the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Paul Unkena, a baritone, will sing the lead role of the licentious Spanish nobleman whose amorous exploits and eventual downfall is pictured in "Don Giovanni."

After leaving Iowa, Unkena received his master's degree from New York's Juillard School of Music.

He has been soloist for the New York premieres of Delius' "Requiem," and Benjamin Britten's "The Beggar's Opera." He has also had leading roles with the NBC-TV Opera Company.

In addition to frequent concert engagements with the New York Philharmonic, the National Orchestral Association and the Robert Shaw Chorale, he has sung the lead roles in "Kiss Me Kate," "South Pacific," "Carousel," and "Kismet" in summer stock. Leporello, Don Giovanni's comic henchman, who grumblingly assists his master in his adventures but manages to escape the Don's fate, will be sung by Spiro Malas.

Donna Anna, daughter of a nobleman murdered by Don Giovanni, who pursues the villain with a desire for vengeance, will be played by soprano Constance Fisher.

Other lead roles will be Donna Elvira, played by Marguerite Gignac; Zerlina, played by Jeanette Scovotti; Masetto, played by Sherrill Milnes; and Don Ottavio, played by Robert Barry.

The Commendatore, Donna Anna's frail, aged father, appears twice in the opera, once alive and once as a supernatural stone statue after his death.

Because of the distinct difference in the nature of the two voices, two singers will play the roles. James Kelley will appear as the Commendatore in real life, and Mike Skarry will be the ghostly statue.

The opera will be sung in English, following a translation by Ruth and Thomas Martin. The Goldovsky Theatre believes in singing opera in English because "the lyric masterpieces of Mozart, Verdi and Puccini can be valid and absorbing theater rather than mere displays of vocal pyrotechnics."

Another assumption of the company is that young actors and actresses who are also good-looking can best portray romantic heroes and heroines—a departure from the usual "heavy" heroine.

The opera will be under the musical and stage direction of Boris Goldovsky, who has been known as "Mr. Opera" for his commentaries during intermission of the weekly Saturday matinee broadcasts from the Metropolitan Opera House. Goldovsky is head of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center and Director of the Opera School of the New England Conservatory of Music.

The Goldovsky Grand Opera Theatre is the national touring unit of the New England Opera Theatre, founded by Goldovsky in Boston in 1945.

Hancher Elected AAU President For 2-Year Term

President Virgil M. Hancher of SUI was elected president of the Association of American Universities at the annual AAU meeting Wednesday in Chicago. He will serve for two years.

The AAU is comprised of 41 major public and private universities. Both SUI and Iowa State University of Science and Technology, Ames, are members of the Association.

President Hancher succeeds former Chancellor Lawrence A. Kilmington of the University of Chicago as AAU president.

Hickerson Argues For Convention

Foes of the constitutional convention have given Iowans a "thoroughly misleading reassurance" of the legislature's ability to deal with reapportionment, Loren Hickerson said Thursday.

Hickerson, director of the SUI Alumni Association, spoke at a noon luncheon of the Iowa City Rotary Club.

He declared that convention opponents "conveniently overlook" the fact that any legislative action must be passed twice before it is an amendment.

"Even though a reapportioning agreement might be reached," Hickerson said, "I simply do not believe that any such agreement can hold through a second legislative session.

"The pressures are too great, the basis for compromise are too tenuous, the changes in the legislature itself in two years are too numerous, and the conflicting forces are too determined."

Hickerson said that he is convinced that, unless the people call for a constitutional convention this year, there will be 10 more years of legislative stalemate on this issue.

He noted that the two major groups opposing a convention, the Farm Bureau and the Iowa Manufacturers association, are "two of the most influential legislative lobbies in the state."

"This fact," Hickerson added, "makes one wonder why these lobbies should fear competition in a convention — unless it has something to do with the possibility that the delegates might turn out to be less susceptible to lobbyists in general than are legislators."

Hawks Iowa Putting 5-0 Season On the Line

By MIKE PAULY Sports Editor

Iowa, first-ranked team in the nation, and Western Conference leader, steps outside the Big Ten today to meet Kansas, a squad that could be as troublesome for the Hawks as any league foe.

Kansas has a 4-1 record compared to Iowa's perfect season mark of 5-0. Yet the Jayhawkers are getting Iowa at a crucial point — in many respects.

Today's game, to be played at Iowa stadium before a crowd expected to reach 50,000 persons, comes between a rugged Purdue test won by the Hawks last weekend and the upcoming game with Minnesota at Minneapolis next Saturday.

If Iowa can beat the Gopher next week, the Hawks will share the Big Ten title, no matter what happens the rest of the season.

There has been muffled talk in the Iowa camp that the Hawks may suffer a letdown against the Big Eight foe today in the process of looking ahead to Minnesota.

There are other factors. Kansas has already played Syracuse, at that time rated No. 1, and held the Orange to one-touchdown victory. If the Hawks should have such trouble with Kansas, their high national ranking will be imperiled.

Added to this is the recent one-year football probation slapped on Kansas by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for alleged violation of recruiting practices.

The Kansas coach reportedly told his players to give Iowa a rough test, "because theirs is no use saving ourselves for conference play."

Kansas, a Big Eight title threat will not be considered for the honor because of its probation.

So the stage is ripe for the Hawks to be plucked.

Iowa coach Forest Evashevski has repeatedly told his team that the Kansas game will be as tough a contest as Iowa will play this year.

The coach has used a lot of psychology to keep the team on an even keel this week.

Evashevski has also said that he plans to spell quarterback Willburn Hollis this week and give No. 2 quarterback Matt Szykowny more work.

Several of Iowa's injured Hawks are still doubtful starters against Kansas. First-string tackle Charlie Lee and No. 1 guard Sherwyn Thorson won't play against the Jayhawkers, Evashevski said Friday.

But the overall team condition will be better. Iowa took a great physical beating against Wisconsin two weeks ago, but the Hawks were more fortunate against Purdue.

The only injury suffered by Iowa against the Boiler-makers was an ankle injury to guard Mark Manders. He was slowed at practice early in the week, but will be ready to go full speed Saturday.

Kansas also has lost two of its key players. Halfback Bert Coar was injured in last week's battle and will miss the Iowa test. Also out is tackle Stan Kirschman, who has broken his hand.

Scouting reports indicate that Kansas will not be an easy foe. Members of the Iowa coaching staff have attempted to impress this on the squad during drills this week.

John Hadl, an all-Big-Eight quarterback, will be shifted to halfback against Iowa. Nonetheless, his ability to run and throw will not be hampered. In addition, Hadl is one of the nation's top punters. He often booms the ball 60 yards in the air.

Another of the Jayhawkers who could give Iowa a lot of problems is Curtis McClinton, who averages almost six yards a try.

"In my opinion," said assistant coach Archie Kodros, who scouted Kansas for Iowa, "McClinton is one of the best all-around backs I've seen this year. He can do about anything and do it well."

But Iowa is not without its own crew of great backs and linemen. Iowa has five of the Big Ten's top 10 rushing leaders. Hollis is second, followed by Larry Ferguson, fourth; Joe Williams, sixth; Jerry Mauren, seventh and Sammie Harris, tenth.

This test, outside the Big Ten will not be a snap for the Hawks' coaches feel.

But as one of them said, "The staff knows this game will be a rugged one. But do the players?"

CUBAN MARINE ACTION?
HAVANA (AP) — Cuban paper said Friday that U.S. Marines at the Guantanamo Naval Base are engaged in combat exercises in preparation for action. U.S. Ambassador Philip Bonsal meanwhile left the country.
