Carl Sandburg

Sandburg Lecture Tickets Available

Tickets for "An Evening with Carl Sandburg" will become available to SUI students and staff beginning at noon today in the east lobby of Iowa Memorial Union.

Esteemed throughout the nation for readings of his Pulitzer Prize winning poetry and for his inimitable guitar-playing and ballad singing, Sandburg will appear as a feature of the 1960-61 SUI lecture series at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Main Lounge of the Union.

According to Orville Hitchcock, chairman of the lecture course committee, tickets will continue to be distributed on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The tickets are free to students and staff upon presentation of identification cards. Any tickets remaining Tuesday morning will also be available to the general public.

Sandburg's Nov. 16 "evening" at SUI marks his return to the campus after an absence of 17 years. Since his last appearance in 1943, the renowned author and poet has been awarded the gold medal for history and biography from the American Academy of Arts and Letters in 1952, and the Poetry Society of America's gold medal for distinguished achievement in 1953.

Sandburg's "Complete Poems" was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for poetry in 1951. His first novel, "Remembrance Rock," was published in 1946. His "Always the Young Strangers," a story of his family, friends and life in the small town in which he was born, was published in 1953. "The Sandburg Range," a representative selection from his entire work, was published in 1957.

All this, and even more, has been a tribute to the man who was totally unknown to the literary world until he was 36 years old. Not until 1914, when his fabled poem "Chicago" was awarded the Levinson Prize for Poetry, did Sandburg achieve recognition. And there is still another facet to the Sandburg fame. His goat farm in Flat Rock N. C., where he and his wife reside, is among the best-known in the country. Mrs. Sandburg has long been recognized as a leading authority on breeding and raising blooded dairy goats.

Mitropoulos' Will Designates James Dixon as Sole Heir

James A. Dixon, conductor of the SUI Symphony Orchestra from 1954-59, has been named the sole heir of world-famous conductor Dimitri Mitropoulos.

Dixon, who is now director of the New England Conservatory of Music Orchestra, was a protegee of Mitropoulos.

The will of Mitropoulos, who died Nov. 2 in Milan, Italy, at the age of 64, leaves to Dixon the household and personal effects, musical collection, scores and residuary estate of the noted conductor. The value of the estate is not known.

Mitropoulos once described the 32-year-old Dixon as "my best disciple" who has "developed to the point of being a valuable artist and is very useful to his country." Mitropoulos' last visit to SUI was in May, 1958, when he came to Iowa City to announce to hear Dixon conduct the SUI Symphony Orchestra in Mahler's "Symphony No. 2 in C minor."

Prior to an appearance on the SUI campus in 1955, Mitropoulos wrote, "It was in Iowa that I met for the first time a young and unobtrusive boy who followed my concerts everywhere with keen interest. That was James Dixon, who came from a very small town and worked his way up through college."

Dixon, a native of Estherville, was graduated from Guthrie Center High School in 1946. He came to SUI to study conducting at Mitropoulos' suggestion. He received a bachelor's degree in music at SUI in 1952, studying under the late Philip G. Clapp, longtime head of the SUI music department.

During the summer of 1951, Dixon went with Mitropoulos and the New York Philharmonic to the British music festival.

From 1952-54 he conducted the Seventh Army Symphony Orchestra in 76 concerts for German audiences, appearing in all of the major cities of the Western zone of Germany. The concerts were co-sponsored by the Army and the U.S. Department of State. He joined the SUI faculty in October, 1954.

Dixon conducted the SUI orchestra in compositions presented in 1951 and 1952 concerts in which Mitropoulos, then conductor of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, appeared as piano soloist.

Diem Ousted In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials said Thursday night reports from Viet Nam indicate an army coup has forced the resignation of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

The reports are considered by American authorities to be true. The army coup apparently was led by a 28-year-old U.S.-trained officer, Maj. Du Quoc Dong, in command of the first paratroop battalion in Saigon.

The action bore a marked similarity to the Aug. 9 coup in Laos, led by paratroop Capt. Kong Le, which led to the upset of the pro-Western government of Laos.

The action apparently came as a total surprise. Viet Nam army forces have been fighting a series of jungle skirmishes with battalion-sized units of the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in the high plateau area north-east of Saigon and along the Viet Nam-Laos border.

Kennedy Vows Liberalism; GOP Questions Vote Total

Dorm Rate Increase Asked

$40 to $60 Hike Required to Meet Higher Expenses

VINTON (AP) — The State Board of Regents was asked Thursday to increase dormitory rates at SUI from $40 to $60 a year starting with the 1961-62 school year.

The proposal was made by the board's building committee headed by Regent Arthur Barlow of Cedar Rapids. He said higher rates would be needed to meet anticipated increases in the cost of dormitory and food service.

"We do this reluctantly," he said. At SUI, Virgil S. Copeland, associate director of Dormitory Administration, told the Daily Iowan that a $40 to $60 increase is not a crucial amount when considered in relation to the entire bill for one year of a student's education. He estimated this complete cost at almost $2000.

The rates would also go up for non-boarding students and $26 for the 1961 summer session, $10 for those in the dormitories during the eight weeks session. The regents did not act on the proposal but may do so Friday before the end of their two-day meeting. They met at Cedar Rapids Thursday and then moved to Vinton where they also planned to inspect the State Braille and Sight Saving School.

The $40 dormitory increase would apply to the South Quadrangle, the only non-boarding institution on the campus. It would make the new rate there $340 a year. The $60 increase would apply to the four boarding dormitories. It would hike the rate for double or triple rooms to $880 a year and the fee for single or double rooms with bath to $960 a year. No increase was planned in the rates for married student housing. The regents were told that officials of Iowa State University at Ames also were expected to ask for a boost in dormitory rates.

Kennedy to Recruit Best U.S. Brains, Eliminate 'Dead Wood' in Government

31 Hillcrest Men Are Called Before Judiciary—Didn't Dress Up

Thirty-one Hillcrest Dormitory residents must appear before the next meeting of the Hillcrest Judiciary Committee for failure to dress up for Wednesday's evening meal.

Given the chance to return to their rooms and change before entering the dining room, these 31 declined and proceeded to eat without the dress shirt-coat-tie combination prescribed for Wednesday and Sunday evening meals by an Oct. 24 ruling of the Hillcrest Association Council.

Each was fined $100. Six-month jail sentences for each were suspended by Judge James P. Gaffney.

A seventh former SUIowan, Robert D. Deignan, Franklin Park, Ill., is to be arraigned later, but no date was set. Fined were Charles Gilderbloom, 21, Des Moines; Stephen B. Hayward, 19, Mason City; Douglas Smith, 19, Clear Lake; Richard D. Rinker, 21, Boone; Gordon L. Davis, 23, Burbank, Calif.; and David E. Lanning, 21, Oskaloosa.

Foreign, National Agency Shake-ups Expected Quickly

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — A wide-ranging drive to recruit the best brains in the United States for Government service — and to prune out the "dead wood" — is high on the list of President-elect John F. Kennedy's objectives.

This was learned on good authority Thursday at Kennedy's headquarters.

Sweeping changes are due, soon after he takes office, to step up the efficiency in government agencies of all kinds, and in the American embassies and missions overseas.

Members of Kennedy's staff said he feels strongly about the need to get top people into government, and that he has a program which will be put into effect quickly. As they described it, Kennedy's plan covers these points:

1. A concerted effort to get qualified people for specific office. They will not necessarily be young people. He intends to draw on the nation's human resources, regardless of age or political affiliation.

"He wants people who are willing to work all hours in order to get things done," an aide said. "He's not looking for nine-to-five people."

2. The practice of "buying" an ambassadorship, or naming ambassadors for political reasons, is finished.

It is a time-honored American custom to reward heavy contributors to the winning party with embassies. Members of Kennedy's staff recalled two instances of offers of money for his campaign, on the understanding that the donors would be appointed to ambassadorships if he won.

"They were told that they could contribute if they wanted to, but that the money would not guarantee a job of any kind," a source close to Kennedy said.

3. He intends to bring qualified personnel into the embassies and missions at all echelons, and to promote top-quality foreign service officers.

"There are many talented people in the embassies who have not been recognized," the sources said. "Or, by reason of the seniority system, they haven't had a chance to show what they can do. Jack intends to change that."

4. Supplemental funds will be provided for Government officers, at home and abroad, to build stronger staffs and to permit a higher operating efficiency, the sources said.

Death Penalty?

LONDON (AP) — Two hangings and a murder within the space of an hour Thursday touched off fresh discussion in Britain concerning the death penalty.

President-elect, Ike Set Parley as Allegations Aired

WASHINGTON (HTNS) — Allegations of election irregularities in several states caused Republican leaders Thursday to reconvene intensively all returns in the Presidential contest — and wonder whether their concessions of victory to Sen. John F. Kennedy might have been premature.

One top-echelon figure in the party hierarchy told the Herald Tribune News Service that if "half the reports we've been getting can be run down quickly enough to be proven" it is "quite possible" Vice-President Nixon would become President-elect, instead of Kennedy.

Leonard W. Hall, chairman of the Nixon campaign, was less optimistic. He said a mass of reports from "almost a dozen states" indicated there had been serious irregularities, especially in Texas and Illinois. But he said his offhand view was that it may be too late to "catch enough of it" to switch the election result.

It was learned, however, that a preliminary survey at a secret conference late Thursday afternoon convinced party leaders the situation was serious enough to warrant challenges and possible Federal investigations.

But no one attending the meeting, including a White House representative, would specify the suspected states or communities. The only public comment was from a spokesman at the Republican National Committee who said that Sen. Thurston B. Morton, Ky., the national chairman, has requested all state and county Republican chairmen to advise him of complaints alleging fraud and other irregularities in the balloting and vote-counting Tuesday.

To comprehend the increasingly-confused election situation, it should be realized that Nixon conceded, and Kennedy accepted the election as President on the basis of unofficial tallies.

The result actually is not formalized until each state is canvassed officially — and official returns are posted, about two weeks after the election.

NEW YORK (HTNS) — President-elect Kennedy, who plans to confer with President Eisenhower late in November, declared Thursday that despite the closeness of Tuesday's vote, he intends to put through liberal programs.

He told a press conference at Hyannis Port, Mass., that he was confident that members of the new Congress — in which there will be influential blocs of conservative Republicans and Southern Democrats — "will meet their responsibilities."

"I am hopeful that we will be able to work together," he said. "But I didn't run for Presidency without realizing that there were great problems facing the United States in the sixties, and I am going to do my best as the President to see that the United States moves ahead in the 1960s."

Against a background of speculation that the close vote may have cancelled any mandate to fight for the liberal measures he had advocated in his campaign, the President-elect insisted that he was going to do his best to "implement those views."

"I went to the country with very clear views of what the United States ought to do in the 1960s," he asserted.

Kennedy, who is flying to Palm Beach, Fla., Friday for a short vacation, announced that he would go to Texas next week to confer with Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the Vice President-elect and a man who will unquestionably wield great influence on Capitol Hill, particularly among the Southerners.

Crediting Johnson with having made a substantial contribution to the Democratic victory by his efforts in Texas and throughout the South, the President-elect said: "I think that the results of the election prove his willingness to play a major role as partner in this effort. I think his part in (the campaign) was most important, and what is even more significant is I think that he will play a major role in the next Administration."

In his first public comments on the election, he said that the result was closer than he had anticipated. He did not believe, he said, in answer to a question, that the outcome was a "repudiation" of President Eisenhower, Vice President Nixon or the Republican Party.

Six Former SUI Students Sentenced for Larceny

Six former SUI students were sentenced in district court here today after pleading guilty to charges of larceny.

Each was fined $100. Six-month jail sentences for each were suspended by Judge James P. Gaffney.

A seventh former SUIowan, Robert D. Deignan, Franklin Park, Ill., is to be arraigned later, but no date was set.

Fined were Charles Gilderbloom, 21, Des Moines; Stephen B. Hayward, 19, Mason City; Douglas Smith, 19, Clear Lake; Richard D. Rinker, 21, Boone; Gordon L. Davis, 23, Burbank, Calif.; and David E. Lanning, 21, Oskaloosa.

All seven men were charged in connection with the theft of dozens of items including a TV set and lamps in a period from early last spring through early this summer. Value was estimated at $700 for the 23 stolen items found by police.

"You look like grown-up men but talk like juveniles," Gaffney told them Thursday. He also told them to stop acting like juveniles.

"It's time you started to do a little individual thinking," he admonished them. The six men who were sentenced were paroled to Sheriff A. J. Mur-

Hamilton New District Judge

Clair E. Hamilton, 67-year-old Iowa City lawyer, will become judge of the eighth judicial district as of Monday. He succeeds Judge H. D. Evans, who died Oct. 25.

Gov. Herschel C. Loveless made the appointment after requesting a recommendation from the bar association. Atty. Hamilton is a Democrat, as is the other judge in the district for Johnson-Iowa county, Judge James P. Gaffney of Marengo.

Judge Gaffney will preside at the public swearing-in ceremony for Atty. Hamilton Monday at 4 p.m. The ceremony will be held before the attorneys from the district.

Atty. Hamilton, 421 E. Davenport St., has had extensive trial court experience since his graduation from SUI's College of Law in 1921. He has practiced law in Winterset, his home town, and since 1940, in Iowa City. He served as an assistant to Iowa's attorney general and as a special attorney for the Iowa tax commission.

Government Offices Close Here Today

Banks and Government offices in Iowa City will be closed all day today in observance of Veterans Day, though most stores will stay open.

City Hall and county courthouse offices will be closed, plus the post office.

There will be no mail deliveries here today.

However, motorists receive a boon from the holiday—Police said Thursday it won't be necessary to feed parking meters today.

The only known ceremony here this year will be an open house from 2 until 4 p.m. today at Veterans Hospital.

Catholics of this diocese have received a special dispensation permitting them to eat meat today. The dispensation was granted by Bishop Ralph L. Hayes of Davenport, as this is Veterans Day.

City Seeks Lease Of Tract for Park

Iowa City Council has authorized the mayor and city clerk to make formal application for lease of a tract on the Coralville reservoir.

The tract is to be developed as a city park. Linder Point, the area involved, is located near the Coralville dam.

Under the lease agreement, the corps of engineers would turn the area over to the city with no rental charge.

One development costing about $550,000, of which the city would finance about $420,000, has been proposed. Other developments to be made over a 15-year period would include some of a semi-public nature.

The corps of engineers must approve the application and the city's development plans before the lease will be granted.

U.N. Seats Kasavubu's Congo Men

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (HTNS) — The Credentials committee voted Thursday to seat in the United Nations the Congolese delegation appointed by President Joseph Kasavubu.

But before the Kasavubu appointees can take their seat, the committee's action must be approved by the General Assembly, a majority of whose members voted Wednesday to put off any further discussion of the crisis in the Belgian Congo Republic.

It was expected that the United States would press for speedy General Assembly recognition despite strong sentiments on the part of many African and Asian nations to do nothing until a proposed Afro-Asian conciliation commission goes to the Congo and reports back to the Assembly.

Delegations that will participate in the mission are expected to meet Saturday and set a starting time for it, possibly next week. The mission's task will be to promote reconciliation of the various factions ripping the Congo apart.

Hoover, Dulles To Stay at Jobs

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (HTNS) — President-elect Kennedy, at his conference here Thursday, announced that FBI director J. Edgar Hoover would remain at his post in the new Administration, as will Central Intelligence Agency director Allan Dulles.

Kennedy also made these appointments: Andrew T. Hatcher, a Negro, as assistant press secretary; Pierre Salinger, press secretary; Theodore Sorenson, special council; Kenneth O'Donnell, special assistant; and James M. Landis, director of a study of the Federal regulatory agencies.

Pep Rally Comparison

This evening at 6:30 p.m. another Big Ten School is having another pep rally. So who cares? Apparently not very many people if one were to judge from previous turn-outs this fall.

Comparison does not always prove a point - but lets try. Those SUIowans attending the Minnesota game last weekend should have been impressed by the display of genuine enthusiasm, moral and vocal support shown by Minnesota partisans for their team.

We all know the score of that game, but how many Hawkeye fans realize what that sort of backing does for the morale of a team, and the coaches too?

Coach Forest Evashevski and ten Hawkeye seniors make their final home appearance in the Iowa Stadium Saturday. Who cares? Have they brought anything positive into your life in the way of entertainment, an appreciation for effort and ability?

A Test for Pay TV

Pay-television, long sought by a small group of persistent promoters, may soon receive a full-scale test in Hartford, Connecticut, and should finally determine the extent to which the American viewing public is dissatisfied with its present TV programming.

If the Federal Communications Commission gives its approval, the test area will be provided with television programming radically different from that being seen now.

For this entertainment, the subscriber will pay a $10 installation fee for the decoder, which permits him to unscramble the teletext, plus from 25 cents to $3.50 for each show.

Cabaret to N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) - H. B. Lutz is all set to bring a cabaret theater to New York sometime in November.

The cabaret theater is a popular form of entertainment abroad and has had a successful revival in Chicago, where "The Second City" has been operating to sell-out audiences for nine months.

Lutz, who has no connection with the Chicago operation, tried the cabaret technique at the Jazz Gallery in Greenwich Village with "Krapp's Last Tape" and "The Zoo Story."

Whether there can be a fair test between a product which costs more than $10 a month and one which is free is open to question.

At a pre-game pep rally in Minneapolis Friday, one "Gopher" gave the crowd the following victory formula: "(1) Pray for cold weather; (2) Hit so hard that even if they do win, Ohio State will make mince meat out of 'em."

He got his cold weather, but as for the Buckeyes, I predict: EVY, 18; WUDY, 7.

"In Your Condition I'd Suggest Radio"

Roscoe Drummond Reports -

Meaning of the Election

WASHINGTON - The final returns put something of a different hue on the election and justify these conclusions: 1 - President-elect John F. Kennedy won primarily on the strength of the Democratic Party which has grown steadily throughout the Eisenhower Administration.

2 - While the Kennedy victory was nationwide in its range, the total popular vote was so close that it cannot fail to exert a moderating influence upon the new President.

3 - There is a further and strengthened restraint upon the new Administration. A Republican war hero like Dwight Eisenhower can rise above the minority status of the Republican Party. He won it as a conservative.

In this close division of national opinion Nixon emerges as a formidable figure with a political future - if he wants it. He will be a powerful and influential spokesman for a near-majority of the American people. I am confident that he will be a responsible and constructive spokesman intent upon helping the narrowly elected Kennedy Administration to function free from petty criticism and free from obstruction-for-its-own-sake.

This will require reciprocity from President Kennedy. This will require a largeness of view by Kennedy in his duty to those who voted against him as well as in his duty to those who voted for him.

4 - Vice President Lyndon Johnson, as a result of the complexion of Congress, emerges as a powerful and indispensable figure in the Kennedy Administration. President Kennedy will need Johnson's influence and resources as a legislative leader if he is to avoid a recalcitrant and balky Congress.

Let's not forget and let us not minimize the fact that Kennedy won the election, that he won by a popular majority, however narrow, and that the effective functioning of our system of government rests on majority rule.

But there is another and significant side to what happened. It is that a long-standing, traditional, partisan Republican, Richard M. Nixon, nearly won the election. He received almost half of the votes. Many independents and registered Democrats supported him after he had conducted a basically conservative campaign.

It would be a source of unity - helpful to the nation and helpful to President Kennedy - if he appointed such bipartisan and experienced public servants as John McCloy and Robert Lovett as Secretary of State and Secretary of Defense. I cite them only illustratively.

These were the unpledged electors who were being held in reserve for just such an opportunity. They represented anti-Kennedy Democrats.

If neither candidate had been able to obtain a majority from the other states, Nixon would almost certainly have been elected. The possibility of manipulating the Electoral College in such situations, created by the right of the states to control their own election procedure, has often been argued in connection with the efficacy of the whole arrangement.

He will need all the maturity and resourcefulness and creativeness he can muster. I do not

DRUMMOND

Control by Minority

To the Editor: For several weeks I have been toying with the idea of writing this letter and finally have decided to do so.

I have a good friend who insists the main reason so many affiliated students are able to hold dominance on SUI's activities is because they are capable, interested students and have demonstrated this by rushing and pledging.

Does this mean they are any less interested or capable? Most decidedly, it does not. What is to be done? Certainly becoming anti-Greek - or anti-GDI, for that matter - does not hold the answer.

Contributing to the argument has been the fact that there have been minority presidents, through victories in the Electoral College without a majority of the popular vote.

There have been repeated suggestions, however, for making the electoral vote more representative of situations within individual states.

This time we have the case of Illinois, where Kennedy got 27 electoral votes through a majority of only about 5,000 out of about 4,750,000. Under proportional representation in the Electoral College, which many suggest, Nixon would have gotten 13 of those votes.

Letters to the Editor - Contented vs. Concerned

To the Editor: The debate over patriotism which appeared in this column in the last few days illustrates admirably the contest between the contented and the concerned which was a major issue of the recent election. Let me hastily add that I, as well as any "pseudo-intellectuals" who are prone to generalize, do not mean by this that "all" Republicans are contented and "all" Democrats are concerned, any more than that "all" Republicans are rich and "all" Democrats are poor.

It seems that there are those who are contented if not all Negroes are beaten with ax-handles. Others are concerned about abolishing any form of racial inequality and injustice, even those which employ much more subtle means than ax-handles.

There are those who are contented if they are lucky enough to have a hard working wife who is willing to sacrifice herself to further her husband's education. Others search for means to enable the wife to receive higher education also if she so wishes, and everyone else who has the desire and the ability. There are those who are contented if their particular claim to government aid based on their "patriotism" in war happens to be backed by interest groups powerful enough to wrest a "contract." Others insist that the role of the government be examined more critically and not left to the chance outcome of the battle between interest groups.

What is a "patriot?" According to Webster, a patriot is one who loves his country and zealously defends and upholds its institutions and interests. But what are the institutions and interests to be defended? To the contented they are the institutions and interests of the status quo. They are confident in their patriotism; they call themselves patriots.

This is why the concerned, those with critical minds who are justly called the intellectuals, shy away from the label of patriots. They realize that many of the institutions and interests that the Arch-Patriot Washington defended are no longer the institutions and interests of today. They know that the New Deal measures which were once attacked as a betrayal of American ideals are largely accepted by the American people today, including Republicans. They know that the world moves forward, and that we must always maintain a critical spirit.

1960 Election Again Shows Need For Revamping of Electoral System

By J. M. ROBERTS Associated Press News Analyst In the early morning hours of Wednesday, during the period of the "Nixon rush" in the vote counting, there appeared, on paper, a possibility that the final decision might lie in the hands of 14 men in Mississippi and Alabama.

These were the unpledged electors who were being held in reserve for just such an opportunity. They represented anti-Kennedy Democrats. If neither candidate had been able to obtain a majority from the other states, Nixon would almost certainly have been elected.

There have been repeated suggestions, however, for making the electoral vote more representative of situations within individual states.

This time we have the case of Illinois, where Kennedy got 27 electoral votes through a majority of only about 5,000 out of about 4,750,000. Under proportional representation in the Electoral College, which many suggest, Nixon would have gotten 13 of those votes.

KKG-DG Powder Bowl To Be Held Sunday

An unusual sight will be visible to persons driving past City Park at about 2:30 Sunday afternoon. The annual Sigma Alpha Epsilon "Powder Bowl" will be in progress.
The members of the Kappa Kappa Gamma social sorority and the Delta Gammas will meet to see whose secret plays are the best. Each group, which is being coached by two SAE's, has been practicing heavily these past few days. According to Frank James, A4, Grinnell, Sigma Alpha Epsilon president, the annual games stand with three victories for each, with two ties. At the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house following the game, a banquet will be held. A trophy will be presented to the most valuable player, and a porcelain replica of a toilet which has the game scores inscribed on it will be awarded to the winning team.

Hi, Dad!

Reynolds J. Prybil, 122 Seventh Ave. is one of many fathers that will be welcomed to SUI this weekend. Bruce Houper, E4, Marshalltown shakes hands with Prybil, as Larry Prybil, A3,

Iowa City, greets his father. The DU's have quite a weekend planned for their fathers. The serene Friday evening will probably bring back lots of memories for the Dads.

Semi-Finalists Announced

Larry Albrecht, P4, Hartley, president of the Inter-Dorm Social Board, has announced the semi-finalists for king and queen of the Inter-Dorm Dance. Voting for the three finalists in each group will take place Wednesday. The queen and king and their attendants will be selected from a poll taken of those entering the dance on Friday, Nov. 18.

The queen semi-finalists are: Linda Flohr, A1, Storm Lake; Marge Kelley, A1, Osage; Nancy Kramer, A3, Remsen; Pat Lovejoy, N4, Cylinder; Gretchen Moine, N2, Hampton; and Judy Pearce, A1, Jefferson.

LEGAL NOTE

The Law Wives will meet Tuesday at 7:45 p.m. in the Law Lounge. Dr. William Hamilton, 311 Willis Dr., will show a movie and give a talk on life saving.

Fraternities, Sororities, and Dormitory Honor Fathers For Dad's Day

The fathers of the sons of the Delta Upsilon fraternity will accompany their sons Friday night while serenading several sororities. On the return to the house there will be an early 1:30 a.m. breakfast. Saturday everyone will go to the game. Sunday the DU's and their fathers will cheer on the football game between Kappa Kappa Gamma and Delta Gamma sororities.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon will be the sponsors of the KKG-DG football game, known as the "Powder Bowl." Before letting their dads visit this wild game, they will treat them to dinner Saturday night at the Amana's.

Kappa Kappa Gamma will have their traditional open house following a cozy Saturday night. Sunday morning the girls will be very industrious and serve breakfast in bed to their fathers.

Since this weekend will be dedicated to the dads, different sororities and fraternities will entertain in their own unique way. Saturday evening the Pi Beta Phi's will eat dinner at the Hawk. Phi Delta Theta will take their fathers to Harold's Club after their open house. Chi Omega will give, as favors, leather shoe shine cases with the sorority crest on them, to the dads. Alpha Xi Delta have white ceramic as trays to give to their fathers, as a little gift. The Delta Tau Deltas will take their fathers to the Den, which is the basement of the Ranch Super Club. Alpha Delta Pi plan on eating dinner at the Union, then letting the fathers have some time to themselves.

Many sororities are having coffee, cozies, along with giving a floor to the dads for sleeping Saturday night. Food and entertainment will highlight the cozies. Sororities which are doing this are Delta Zeta, Kappa Alpha Theta, Delta Delta Delta, Zeta Tau Alpha, Fraternities having only open houses after the game Saturday are: Phi Kappa Theta, Phi Kappa Sigma, Phi Kappa Psi, Phi Gamma Delta, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Pi Kappa Alpha, Phi Epsilon Pi, Alpha Epsilon Pi, Beta Theta Pi, Delta Chi, Alpha Tau Omega, and Sigma Nu.

The Alpha Phi pledges and actives are taking their fathers out to dinner following the football game Saturday. Mary Carr, A1, and Janie Peters, A1, are in charge of the arrangements.

Burge Hall will hold an open house and tea for their fathers Saturday.

Newcomer's Hear Prof. Wm. Petersen

The University Newcomer's Tea was held Monday at the new Iowa State Historical Society building. The theme of the meeting was "Know Your Iowa."
William J. Petersen, associate professor of history, director of the Historical Society, spoke to the members on romance in Iowa history, followed with a tour of the building.

The tea table featured Iowa specialty foods. Pouring was one of the club's sponsors, Mrs. George S. Easton, and Mrs. Howard La-tourette, president.

Mrs. William M. Furnish was sponsoring hostess for the event and Mrs. Robert Belding was tea chairman, being assisted by Mrs. E. A. Scholer, Mrs. William Whalen, Mrs. Earl V. Andrews, Mrs. M. Carr Ferguson, and Mrs. Charles H. Hubbell.

League of Voters To Study Land Use In Vicinity

The second round of unit meetings of the League of Women Voters will continue the study of land use in Iowa City and Johnson County with special consideration of schools and parks.

Mrs. Max Pepernik and her committee on zoning and planning will be the resource persons. Members of the committee are Mrs. Henry Bull, Mrs. G. W. Buxton, Mrs. Henry Harrison, Mrs. Ralph Oelmann, Mrs. Robert Rollins, and Mrs. Harold Shipton.

The meetings will be held as follows: Tuesday, 8 p.m. at the home of Miss Mae Tangen, 413 S. Johnson; Wednesday, 1:15-3:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Richard Lloyd-Jones, 169 Oak Ridge; Wednesday, 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Milton Panzer, 6 Knollwood Lane; Thursday, 9:15 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Ray Thornberry, 115 Montrose; Thursday, 3 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Alan Christensen, 609 10th Avenue, Coralville.

Football To Expand Further If Minneapolis Move Works

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures

Baseball has been hogging more than its share of sports page space with its startling franchise and personnel moves this fall but professional football is moving rather rapidly, too.

The football men are moving quietly with the season in full swing. They feel announcements about new franchises might have a tendency to cut into game attendance.

However, National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle is excited about the Minneapolis setup for 1961, even before the Minnesota Vikings have their first player.

"With the Minnesota Vikings joining us for next season as our 14th team we will be able to schedule 14 games for each team," says Rozelle. "This year, after the Dallas Cowboys came in, each team played 12 games in 13 weeks. There will be no open Sundays next year. And there is some sentiment for new Texans in Miami and Atlanta.

"At Minneapolis we anticipate a situation parallel to that of Green Bay where the four home games are sold out on a season basis. (The Packers still play two home games a year in Milwaukee).

"The Vikings opened a ticket drive this fall and within one month more than 12,000 season tickets were sold. They are obligated to sell 25,000 tickets for each game.

"They should do it. That part of the country is not saturated with other sports such as horse racing, and football interest is tremendous.

"Minnesota will have first pick at the annual draft meeting on Dec. 27. (The meeting will be held in Cleveland, Philadelphia or New York, depending on the NFL's Eastern Division winner.) There will be 20 rounds of selections and the Vikings will have first pick each time. Second pick will go to the team with the poorest overall record. (This figure to be Dallas).

"The Vikings will play their home games in Metropolitan Stadium. Their president is William Boyer (a car dealer) who was active in getting the stadium built."

The park had 21,638 seats for the last baseball season. One condition made at last January's meeting in Miami was that it would be expanded to 40,000 seats by 1961. Work naturally is being speeded because the Washington Senators are moving their baseball team there for 1961.

The NFL franchise is costing its Minneapolis backers $600,000 before one game is played. The NFL gets $30,000, the rest will go for 39 players with each NFL team selling three men. The Vikings general manager is Bert Rose Jr.

At present Minneapolis is neither in the Eastern nor Western division of the league. The East has the right to select Dallas or Minneapolis for 1961 since the Western division this year has been operating with seven teams. The East has six.

The 34-year-old Rozelle is having an active season in his first year as commissioner. The infant American Football League has failed to cut into NFL attendance.

Next year, if Minneapolis lives up to Rozelle's expectations, plans for further expansion will be made. A Miami franchise is being sought by George Storer, who once owned the Miami Marlins in baseball. In Atlanta a franchise is being sought by a group of business people.

1 Game Set Today

One volleyball game is scheduled for today in men's intramurals play. Trowbridge will meet either Higbee, Fenton or Bordwell. In Wednesday's touch football action Calvin beat Higbee 20-12. Psi Omega won the finals of the professional league volleyball competition squeaking by Nu Sigma Nu, 2-1.

The bidding set forth in the diagram does not have the approval of this department. East's opening bid of four hearts is not quite up to textbook requirements, but in view of the conditions of vulnerability it has certain merit.

Designed, as it was, to keep the opposition out of a spade contract, it reacted in a strange way and goaded the opposition to bite off more than they could chew.

North's double of four hearts was quite orthodox, and though such double is intended primarily for penalties, South's take-out to four spades was proper procedure.

North's slam invitation cannot be justified. South has merely announced great length in spades with no special high card values, and the game should not be placed in jeopardy.

At most tables the contract was four spades, but in all cases West opened the four of hearts which East won with the king.

Choosing the course of least resistance, several Easts returned the ace of hearts, forcing dummy to ruff. The ace of spades revealed the bad trump break, but declarer drew three rounds of the suit and then started establishment of the diamonds.

After cashing the ace and king, South ruffed and it didn't matter whether West overruffed or not. Declarer still retained two club entries in dummy — one to establish a long diamond and the other to reach dummy to take the club discard and bring in 11 tricks on his contract.

When South was pushed to five spades by his overambitious partner, he met with failure as the result of alert defense by East at trick two. East won the opening lead and forthwith shifted to the jack of clubs.

This deprived dummy of an essential entry, and declarer was unable to ruff a heart and also es-

Hawks Do Baiting, Buckeyes Are Bulls

Iowa-OSU Game a 'Bullfight'

By RON SPEER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The nationally televised football game between Ohio State and Iowa Saturday could be billed as a bullfight with the Hawkeyes doing the baiting and the Buckeyes playing the role of the bull.

Ohio State, the nation's third-ranked team, has used undisguised power in rolling up a 7-1 record. Iowa's combination of speed and finesse has resulted in a similar record and the No. 5 spot in the latest Associated Press poll.

Both teams are still fighting for the Big Ten championship — but the winner of the game will need an assist from Purdue or Wisconsin to share the title. Unbeaten Minnesota, the nation's top team, plays Purdue Saturday and Wisconsin the following week.

Iowa's hopes for victory hinge on its ability to stop the charges of quarterback Tom Matte and 220-pound fullback Bob Ferguson, who share ball-carrying chores almost exclusively for the Buckeyes.

Ferguson is the leading rusher in the conference with an average of 5.1 yards per carry. Matte is second in the conference with a 5-yard average and also is the top-ranked passer with 21 completions in 35 attempts, although the Buckeyes rarely take to the air.

Quarterback Wilburn Hollis, who was stopped in Iowa's loss to Minnesota last week, heads the Hawkeye attack and is third-ranked Big Ten rusher with an average of 4.5 yards. He's surrounded by fleet halfbacks.

Coach Forest Evashevski says Iowa will be "up" for the game and there has been speculation the players will dedicate their efforts to Evy, making his last home appearance as coach.

Evashevski, now serving as coach and athletic director, is slated to quit coaching after the season.

"Our biggest question is whether our defense can hold up against the biggest line we will meet this season," Evashevski says. "We must get across the line quickly or we will get blown out of the stadium."

Ohio State's only loss this season was a 24-21 upset by Purdue, a team Iowa defeated 21-14. Ohio State does not play Minnesota but has a conference date with Michigan next week. Iowa's only remaining foe is Notre Dame in a non-conference match.

Ohio State is a one-point favorite.

Little Hawks To Meet Davenport in Final Tilt

City High reaches the end of the trail as it closes out the 1960 prep season in Iowa City against Davenport Central on the City High field.

The Little Hawks, mythical state champions selected by the Associated Press, are going after their eighth straight win of the campaign, after losing their opener to Rock Island in the last 11 seconds of the game, 28-26. Game time at City High Field is 3:00 p.m.

The Little Hawks, with a win against the Blue Devils, will finish in second place in the tough Mississippi Valley conference. The Davenport team has not won a game yet this year.

The Blue Devils have scored only six touchdowns in eight games, but have been bearcats on defense. They lost to powerful Rock Island by only 13-0, and the only lopsided contest was a 27-0 shellacking by Dubuque.

This is the third time in 11 years that City High has won the state title. The first two times were in 1950 and 1953.

College Linemen Finally Get Credit They Deserve

NEW YORK (AP) — This could be the year college football linemen get the credit due them.

Certainly no back has captured the imagination of the nation in the way that Billy Cannon of Louisiana State, Pete Dawkins of Army, Jimmy Brown of Syracuse, Howard Cassidy of Ohio State or Alan Ameche of Wisconsin did in recent years.

Instead, in All-American talk, the names that keep cropping up are those of Tom Brown, the giant Minnesota guard; Claude (Tee) Moorman, Duke end; Roy McKasoon, Washington center; Mike Ditka, Pitt end; Al Vanderbush, Army guard; Danny Larose, Missouri end; E. J. Holub, Texas Tech center; Bel Balme, Yale guard; and Merlin Olsen, Utah State tackle.

In fact, AP's eight All-American boards, representing each NCAA district, put linemen No. 1 on league's top ground-gainers, fullback Mike Cain and halfback Tony Welt.

Cain is averaging 8.7 yards per carry this season, and Welt is right behind him with an 8.1 average. Welt is also the league's top scorer with 80 points and Hawlet halfback Phil Minnick is second with 67.

The strong schedule played by the Little Hawks gave them the mythical crown over three unbeaten teams, second-ranked Bettendorf, fourth-ranked Mt. Pleasant, and Webster City, eighth place team in the balloting.

There are those who call Tunnell's name first when listing the many reasons for the resurgence

Former Hawkeye Grid Great Tunnell Never Grows Older

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers' Em Tunnell, the Archie Moore of the cleft and helmet set, keeps right on playing top-notch defense in the fast National Football League despite debate over his age — whatever it is.

Tunnell talks a great fight in trying to keep down the number of the summers, and in the fall puts on a great show in knocking down passes and runners for the Packers.

There are those who call Tunnell's name first when listing the many reasons for the resurgence

EM TUNNELL
Hawkeye 13-Year-Old?

of the Packers, only a half-game off the pace in the Western Conference with a 4-2 record.

Tunnell is quick to contest any allegation that he might be a bit up in years as pro football players go.

Before the start of the current campaign, he said, "I'm not 34 any more. I found my birth certificate and I'm 31 next season."

That would have made him 13 when he played his first college game at Iowa.

At Iowa, where he starred as a halfback, football records show he was 22 years old when he enrolled as a freshman in 1946. That would make him 36 now.

Tunnell is in his 13th season in the NFL and holds the league record for conference games, 144. He's carried the ball on offense only 17 times, but on punt returns and pass interceptions he had gained 4,662 yards to the start of this season.

Before the start of the season, Tunnell had intercepted 78 passes, more than any other player listed in the records.

Tunnell doesn't return punts anymore. But when he did he hauled back 252 for 2,209 yards, high in the league. And he's the only NFL player ever to return four punts for touchdowns in a single season. He turned that trick in 1951, when he was with the New York Giants.

"I was just walking around New York," Tunnell said, "so I dropped into the Giants' office, just for kicks, to see what they had to offer."

He has no plans to quit.

SUI Author Tells How Novels Developed

By ED HUGHES
Staff Writer

Vance Bourjaily, lecturer in English at SUI, was looking very non-authorish in his newly-purchased home in North Liberty when interviewed Thursday night. He had had no luck pheasant-hunting that afternoon. Still clad in hunting boots, dungarees and sweater, the writer chain-smoked and reminisced about the origins of his first novel.

It was in Italy during World War II, he said, grinning. He was on a party with a nurse, who in her exuberance wanted to see the front. Bourjaily complied (as an ambulance driver) and took the girl, with intoxicated derring-do, to the front. He returned safely but slightly the worse for the wear, deposited his date, and returned to the post.

The next morning, hungover and remorseful, the enormity of what he had done — pulling a frivolous escape without getting strafed, or shelled or blown up by a mine — hit him. The nucleus for his book "The End of My Life" started here. He began thinking how it would have turned out if things had gone wrong.

He said, "Novels often begin like that, with quite trivial things. The fact that I felt guilty may well have been caused by how rotten I felt physically, but nevertheless it was real enough to make me build a novel around it."

Bourjaily's new novel, "Confessions of a Spent Youth," was somewhat differently conceived. It is, he said, a direct effort to work with recollected material, with things he had experienced. This is usually the first thing writers try, he said, but he himself had never done this previously. None of his earlier characters had any real counterpart, he said, in his experiences.

"Wanting to try something different," Bourjaily said, "I thought I should try to use my experience in a novel." He added that he thinks the delayed use of this technique makes his recent book more clear-eyed, less sentimental than youthful "first-novels" usually are.

Bourjaily will autograph copies of his book at a party in his honor today at The Paper Place at 4:15 and at 8 p.m. Later tonight he will view a short play written by John Pearson, a student of his, and which was derived from a character in his new book. Bourjaily was quite enthusiastic over the work of fellow-artist Pearson.

He said, "It is a part of the book where the hero is in college, and is about a college drunk. I think the way it has been written by Pearson will be very different from anything ever put on in Iowa City."

"In fact," said Bourjaily, warming to his subject, "It's something New York has seen very little of in theatre at Baylor University in Texas, and they are really experimental down there."

The play, to last about 25 minutes, will be given twice tonight, three times Saturday and four times Sunday. It will be shown above the Paper Place. Tickets are free.

Some of the old chestnuts about writing are true, said Bourjaily. When one begins to write a novel, the real world ceases to be real to the writer. The real world for him is his book.

"But," he added, "you can become tired of the thing, too. My third novel, 'The Violated,' got off to several false starts. Altogether, I guess it took me three years to get that one done."

"At times, you get the feeling that writing is appallingly difficult and unrewarding. But then four or five months go by and you begin to work again. Finally the work possesses you, and towards the end you find that you're kicking the dog, surly with the kids, and working 18 to 20 hours a day."

What are the differences between good and bad novels?

"There are novels — sometimes successful and interesting — that are about things, things like advertising, Hollywood, or war, but these don't really seem to come off. The really serious novel isn't about anything; it's a statement by the author."

"The greatest novels are statements about the human condition; these are books by writers like Dostoevsky or Joseph Conrad."

Polaris Missile Sets 1,600-Mile Record

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Navy successfully launched an advanced Polaris missile on a record 1,600-mile flight Thursday and scored a significant breakthrough in its program to increase the range of the submarine weapon.

Project officials, pleased with the result of the new model's maiden flight, reported the missile achieved all test objectives in streaking 300 miles farther than any previous Polaris. Range and accuracy were not vital goals of this initial test.

The new Polaris series, designated A2, contains several improvements over the well-tested A1 model. It eventually will have a range of 1,725 miles, compared with 1,380 miles for the A1 rocket.

The shorter-range Polaris is scheduled to become operational next week, when the atomic submarine George Washington goes to sea with 16 nuclear-armed missiles.

Radical changes have been made in both stages of the advanced missile.

Aerojet General Corp., maker of the first-stage motor, has added 30 inches to the length, increasing the over-all height of the Polaris to about 31 feet. The weight of the motor case has been reduced through miniaturization of certain components and use of lighter materials.

The second-stage motor case, made by Allegheny Ballistics Laboratory, is the first glass filament casing ever flown. It is bonded with a heat resistant resin. The upper stage also utilizes fuel of higher specific impulse.

The thrust of both engines has been increased slightly.

The Navy plans to have the A2 rocket operational in 1962, in time for deployment aboard the first of the Ethan Allen class of Polaris submarines.

W. Germany Eases $ Rate

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — West Germany took its first step Thursday to help ease pressure on the U.S. dollar. More moves seemed just around the corner.

The Federal Bank cut the discount rate from 5 to 4 per cent in an effort to check the flow of foreign exchange into the country. West Germany had been under mounting criticism for its tight-money policy which attracted capital from countries with lower interest rates.

The action, taken after U.S. urging at the last World Bank meeting in Washington, conflicted with the anti-inflationary policy pursued by Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard. Erhard fears that the West German economic boom may still get out of hand.

The United States, faced with a rapidly-deteriorating balance of payments, bluntly told the Germans that something must be done about the situation.

West German gold and foreign exchange reserves have climbed annually by some $2 billion — reaching a record high of $7,378,000,000 last month — while America's reserve have dropped by $4 billion a year.

Plans are also maturing to allocate three billion marks — $714 million — in aid for underdeveloped countries. Half of this amount would be raised by German industry to contribute to the development of African-Asian countries.

Prof Discusses Election

By TERRY TRIPP
Staff Writer

Norman C. Meier, professor of psychology, missed on his prediction that Richard Nixon would be the next president of the United States, but was correct in picking Jack Miller to defeat Gov. Herschel Loveless for U.S. Senator.

Meier is a member of the advisory board of the Gallup Poll and technical advisor to the Iowa Poll. He was one of few who predicted a decisive victory for Eisenhower in 1952.

This time, Meier said, both the Gallup Poll and the Iowa Poll were very accurate. The Gallup Poll figure of 49-43 for Kennedy, when adjusted by allocating the three per cent undecided, would make out about 49.5 per cent for Nixon and 50.5 per cent for Kennedy.

The actual figures are 49.8 per cent for Nixon and 50.2 per cent for Kennedy.

"As far as the forecast I made on the basis of trends, there were two trends spotted by the polls that were significant. First, the earlier Iowa Poll showed that Jack Miller was about nine points below Governor Loveless but in the final Iowa Poll on Sunday, Miller was only one point under Loveless. This trend and his continuation was what elected Miller," said Meier.

"Erbe was predicted by me to be elected if the Republican ticket came through well, which is what it did.

"On the national basis, there was a trend in which Kennedy's advantage of six points over Nixon had been reduced to a one-point advantage five days prior to the election. If that trend had continued, it could have meant Nixon would have been elected. Apparently the trend did not continue and probably was reversed giving the election by popular vote to Kennedy by an extremely narrow margin.

"In the last five days before the election," Meier said, "my guess is that President Eisenhower's speeches were probably not effective but that the rather sarcastic and satirical jibes made by Kennedy were.

"The appearance of the political map now looks like we have the normal Democratic pattern re-instated — the almost solid South and the huge Democratic majorities in the large northern cities."

4 Compositions by Student To Premiere in New York

Four compositions by Robert Lombardo, an SUI graduate assistant in the Department of Music, will be presented to a New York City Composers' Forum audience Nov. 19.

Two of the compositions, "Fantasy for Piano" and "Two Movements for String Quartet," will have their world premiere at the second concert of the 1960-61 Composers' Forum Concert Series at Donnell Library Auditorium.

Selected New York artists will also perform "Trio for Brass" and "Five Songs for Soprano and Cello," both Lombardo compositions which were presented in New York City first in 1959.

The Composers' Forum Concert Series, sponsored by the New York Public Library and Columbia University, is held once a month during the winter. Each concert features the work of two contemporary composers. Compositions by the two musicians are played and a question period allows members of the audience to question the composers about their work.

To be featured in the Nov. 19 concert with Lombardo is Karl Kohn.

The Composers' Forum presented compositions by Philip Bezanon, associated professor of music at SUI, last February.

Lombardo is presently studying for his doctorate degree in music at SUI and has a teaching assistantship.

He has studied at the Hart College of Music, Hartford, where he received B.M. and M.M. degrees.

4 SUI Doctors Now in Chicago At Medical Meet

Four physicians from the department of obstetrics and gynecology in the SUI College of Medicine are participating in the annual district meeting of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists being held in Chicago through Saturday.

Drs. Dean Goplerud and James Frudenfeld, both resident physicians, will deliver papers at scientific sessions of the Junior Fellow Division today.

On Saturday, Dr. William B. Goddard, associate professor, will give a scientific paper, and Dr. William C. Keetel, professor and head of the department, will take part in a panel discussion.

Discussions at the meeting will range from how patient care can be improved through the combined efforts of nurse, resident and specialist in gynecology and obstetrics, to the latest methods being used to reduce deaths from cancer and maternal causes.

Algerians Protest

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP)—Club-swinging security police broke up a rightist demonstration at the Algiers War Monument Thursday night in what could be a preview or worse disturbances today.

Several persons were injured when police charged a group of about 1,000 persons who gathered to jeer government officials beginning the World War I armistice anniversary observances.

The crowd shouted "Algerie Francaise"—French Algeria—rallying cry of the rightists, as a group of military commanders arrived to lay a floral wreath at the monument.

Bowl for Polio Drive Slated

"Bowl for Polio" will again be a feature of the National Foundation's fund drive here, it was announced Thursday by Harold W. Simmons and Richard Malcolm, co-chairmen of this area's drive this year.

"Bowl for Polio" originated in Iowa City last year and proved to be the best fund-raiser, according to Simmons. He said an attempt is being made to institute this fund-raising device throughout Iowa.

With the cooperation of bowling alleys, prizes are offered bowlers who score highest above their league average. To enter the contest, a bowler donates $1 to the National Foundation. The "Bowl for Polio" contest will take place during one week of the fund drive which lasts from mid-December through January, 1961.

Last year's "Bowl for Polio" drive was covered by WMT-TV, as this year's is expected to be. First prize for both men and women will be a bowling ball and bag; second prize for each, bowling shoes.

Honegger Cello Program Tonight

Henri Honegger, a cellist, will be presented in a concert tonight at 8 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium by the Civic Music Association.

Admission to the concert is by season ticket only.

Honegger has performed with the best-known orchestras in Europe, North and South America, and Africa. His program will include works by Couperin, Bach, Beethoven, Schubert, de Falla, Martinu and Bartok.

Brunch at Hillel

Hillel Foundation will hold a brunch Sunday morning from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. Bagel, lox, creamed cheese and coffee will be served.

The brunch is open to all students. The house will be open from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. Sunday afternoon for students and their parents.

Alumni Dad, SUI Band To Feature Grid Sideshow

Dancing Highlanders and marching bandsmen will entertain especially for Dads Saturday afternoon at the Iowa-Ohio State gridiron clash. The Scottish Highlanders and the Hawkeye Marching Band have prepared programs to show parents attending Dad's Day activities the best in music, marching and dancing.

Before the game gets under way the band and Highlanders will participate in presenting the Alumni Dad of 1960 to the fans. He is being chosen from nominations by SUI students. Omicron Delta Kappa, men's leadership fraternity, has charge of selecting the honored parent.

At half-time the Highlanders will entertain with "Rowan Tree," "Over the Sea to Skye," "Donkey Serenade" and the dance "Flora MacDonald." Only the chanter or melody stick of the bagpipes will be used to play "Donkey Serenade" as the Highlanders execute a series of complicated and colorful marching maneuvers. The Hawkeye Marching Band has chosen "Musical Highlights of the Fabulous Fifties" for their Dad's Day show. Fans will hear the theme from "Bridge on the River Kwai," "Little Bit of Luck," "76 Trombones," "Hound Dog" and Tchaikovsky's "Piano Concerto No. 1," and will witness a drill "Knife." A four leaf clover, grand piano and a hound dog will figure in the show formations.

P.S. from Confusion— Shirley, Irma

By ART BUCHWALD To Shirley and Irma with Love

Jan Murray, the comedian and TV master of ceremonies, has a son who always wanted to be a journalist. Despite what some people in show business say, this is a very noble profession and one that any father should encourage.

Despite the fact that Mr. Murray's son has good marks and was an excellent student he found it difficult to get accepted in a certain Midwest university which had an excellent journalism department. Mr. Murray therefore went himself to the university to have a talk with the Dean of Admissions. He was getting no-where with the Dean until he happened to mention he was in show business.

"You don't know Frank Sinatra, by any chance?" the Dean asked excitedly.

"Know him?" said Mr. Murray picking up the ball. "We're bosom buddies. Frank and I were on the same stockball team in New Jersey."

"I know this is a lot to ask," the Dean said, "but my two daughters are his biggest fans. Do you think there is any chance of getting his autograph for them?"

"It's a cinch," Murray said happily. "Give me their names and you'll have the autographs in a couple of days. Now about my son —"

The Dean said he would give Mr. Murray's son further consideration. He also said his daughters' names were Shirley and Irma.

With a light heart Mr. Murray proceeded to Miami, Florida, where he had a night club engagement, and where, by happy coincidence, Mr. Sinatra was also working.

He saw Sinatra the next day and told him the story, ending it by saying, "And just by getting your autograph for Shirley and Irma I think I can get my kid into journalism school. Here, Frank, just sign these two pieces of paper — one to Shirley and one to Irma."

Sinatra said, "What a touching story. Listen that guy deserves something more than an autograph. I'll give him some of my latest records."

Mr. Murray said, "Frank, he don't want any records, he just wants your autograph — here, one is for Shirley and one for Irma."

Sinatra threw the papers on the floor. "For a nice guy like that, are you crazy? I'll give him some records."

Sinatra called over to one of his friends. "We got any of my new records?"

"No, Frank, we gave them all away."

"Well, get some more," Sinatra said. "Come back tomorrow, Jan, and I'll give you a whole bunch of records."

It was very difficult to locate Sinatra the next day but Murray finally did. He was holding the two pieces of paper in his hand and said, "Hi, Frank, remember Shirley and Irma?"

"Sure I do," Sinatra said, "and I've been thinking about it. Why don't we get the guy a big color

Shirley, Irma Love Frankie

By ART BUCHWALD
To Shirley and Irma with Love
Jan Murray, the comedian and TV master of ceremonies, has a son who always wanted to be a journalist. Despite what some people in show business say, this is a very noble profession and one that any father should encourage.

Despite the fact that Mr. Murray's son has good marks and was an excellent student he found it difficult to get accepted in a certain Midwest university which had an excellent journalism department. Mr. Murray therefore went himself to the university to have a talk with the Dean of Admissions. He was getting no where until he happened to mention he was in show business.

"You don't know Frank Sinatra, by any chance?" the Dean asked excitedly.

"Know him?" said Mr. Murray picking up the ball. "We're bosom buddies. Frank and I were on the same stockball team in New Jersey."

"I know this is a lot to ask," the Dean said, "but my two daughters are his biggest fans. Do you think there is any chance of getting his autograph for them?"

"It's a cinch," Murray said happily. "Give me their names and you'll have the autographs in a couple of days. Now about my son—"

The Dean said he would give Mr. Murray's son further consideration. He also said his daughters' names were Shirley and Irma.

With a light heart Mr. Murray proceeded to Miami, Florida, where he had a night club engagement, and where, by happy coincidence, Mr. Sinatra was also working.

He saw Sinatra the next day and told him the story, ending it by saying, "And just by getting your autograph for Shirley and Irma I think I can get my kid into journalism school. Here, Frank, just sign these two pieces of paper—one to Shirley and one to Irma."

Sinatra said, "What a touching story. Listen that guy deserves something more than an autograph. I'll give him some of my latest records."

Mr. Murray said, "Frank, he doesn't want any records, he just wants your autograph—here, one is for Shirley and one for Irma."

Sinatra threw the papers on the floor. "For a nice guy like that, are you crazy? I'll give him some records."

Sinatra called over to one of his friends. "We got any of my new records?"

"No, Frank, we gave them all away."

"Well, get some more," Sinatra said. "Come back tomorrow, Jan, and I'll give you a whole bunch of records."

It was very difficult to locate Sinatra the next day but Murray finally did. He was holding the two pieces of paper in his hand and said, "Hi, Frank, remember Shirley and Irma?"

"Sure I do," Sinatra said, "and I've been thinking about it. Why don't we get the guy a big color television set. He'd probably love that."

Murray fingered the pieces of paper nervously. "Frank, he doesn't want a television set. He just wants you to write your name, here, right here."

Sinatra tore up the pieces of paper. "Look, I'm a father too and I know what it means to get a kid into college. We got to do something nice for this guy, something really nice."

Murray was on his knees trying to put the scraps of paper together. "The nicest thing you could do, Frank, honestly, is just write something to Shirley and Irma. Here use my pen."

Sinatra was thinking hard. "Why don't we invite him out to Palm Springs. He could use my house. I'll bet you he'd like that."

"You're probably right," said Sinatra. "A trip to Palm Springs wouldn't be such a good idea, and if we sent him a television set he'd probably think it was a bribe."

"Exactly," said Murray, holding up the two slips of paper.

"So I think the best thing to do is go back to our original idea about the records."

"Did your son ever get into journalism school?" we asked Mr. Murray.

"No," he said. "Because of Shirley and Irma he decided to study history at New York University instead."

"I received his bachelor's degree from the Curtis Institute of Music."

Before coming to SUI he was a member of the faculty of the Delaware School of Music in Wilmington.

THE SECOND SUI SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA CONCERT

The second SUI Symphony Orchestra concert of the season will be given before two different audiences on two different nights. SUI students and guests will hear the concert Tuesday in the Iowa Memorial Union, while Dubuque citizens and Loras College students will attend Nov. 17 in the Loras College Gymnasium.

Prof. John Simms of the Department of Music will be featured in a piano solo, Rachmaninoff's "Piano Concerto No. 2 in C Minor."

Paul Olefsky, who became the director of the SUI Orchestra this year, will conduct the group in three other compositions. At SUI he is also solo cellist in the Iowa String Quartet.

The orchestra will accompany Simms in his solo, and also play "Symphony No. 39 in E Flat Major, (K. 543)" by Mozart; "Thanksgiving and Forefathers Day" from "A Symphony: Holidays," by Charles Ives; and "Daphnis and Chloe Suite No. 2" by Maurice Ravel.

Simms is well-known for fifteen sonatas for violin and piano which he recorded with Rafael Druijan, former concertmaster of the Minneapolis Orchestra.

He has appeared with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra and the Minneapolis and SUI symphonies.

In concerts in the Middle West he has accompanied and performed solos with Jascha Heifetz, Janos Starker, David Lloyd and other artists.

Before coming to SUI he was a member of the faculty of the Delaware School of Music in Wilmington.

He received his bachelor's degree from the Curtis Institute of Music.

Smaller Mental Hospitals Forecast for Future U.S.

Special to The DI

CHICAGO — The next 10 years will see a "drastic departure" from the traditional large hospital for treating the mentally ill and a trend toward more community services.

This was predicted by Dr. Matthew Ross, Washington, D.C., medical director of the American Psychiatric Association, in the current (November) Archives of General Psychiatry, published by the American Medical Association.

Dr. Ross said psychiatrists have begun to doubt the potential of the large public hospital as a treatment center.

There has been increased concern expressed about the size of such hospitals, he said. Whereas in the past the 1,500-bed hospital was considered optimal, he said, that figure has now been pared down to 500 and many think 200 would be preferable.

"If we are to build any new hospitals, it is ventured, they should be small regional hospitals located in areas where the patient lives," he said.

"Our pleas now are for open hospitals, day hospitals, night hospitals, half-way houses, sheltered workshops, after-care programs, outpatient departments, clinics, and community mental health centers," Dr. Ross said.

We believe that no community general hospital of any size should be considered truly "general" unless it cares for psychiatric as well as other patients, he said. We also maintain that a public mental hospital cannot do its job unless it is integrated into a network of community facilities, he said.

A decade ago, psychiatrists were reluctant to suggest that perhaps 60 per cent of patients would recover in a mental hospital providing they could be given active treatment, he said. But now it is not at all uncommon to hear it said that 80 to 90 per cent of such patients can be helped providing community support is established.

Medical Schools
Special to The DI
CHICAGO (AP) — A sharp rise in construction of medical school facilities is expected in 1960-61, the American Medical Association (AMA) reported today in its annual report on medical education.

possible by existing medical schools. The findings indicated that the present maximum enrollment for the schools was 8,188 and that if the same schools were able to expand under ideal circumstances, maximum enrollment could be boosted to 9,874.

However, the Surgeon General's Consultant Group on Medical Education has estimated a need for facilities to handle about 12,000 first-year enrollments by 1971.

"Medical school facilities will have to be greatly augmented," the Council said. "Also, the available supply of well-trained and well-qualified students with enough financial backing from either private or public funds to enable them to complete their medical training will have to be increased considerably. Finally, in addition to this necessary expansion of existing schools, it will be necessary to establish several new medical schools in the next decade."

Approximately two-thirds of the students entering medical schools had B average grades while the other third was divided equally between A and C students. This make-up showed little change from the previous year.

There also was little change in the number of students who dropped out of medical school. However, there was a decrease from 73 per cent to 57 per cent in the number who dropped out in the third and fourth years "for reasons other than academic."

When all four years are considered, 39 per cent of the drop-outs are for non-academic reasons.

Hawks Could Regain Share Of Crown

Millions of TV Fans Will Witness Tough Evy-Woody Battle

By MIKE PAULY
Sports Editor

If incentive were enough to win football games, Iowa would be a landslide favorite to beat Ohio State in a Big Ten contest here today before a sellout Dad's Day crowd and a national television audience.

In this test, the Hawks will have more reason to win, perhaps, than they have had all season. To wit:

• Forest Evashevski will be coaching the team for the last time before a home crowd. He will devote all his energy next season to his job as director of Iowa athletics.

• A win in this game will assure the Hawks of no less than a second-place finish in the conference with a 5-1 mark. An Iowa win and a subsequent Minnesota loss to either Purdue or Wisconsin will give the Hawks a share of the Big Ten crown.

• This will be the last home game for 11 seniors.

• This will be the first time Iowa has faced an opponent which has a higher national poll rating. Ohio State is third in both the Associated Press and United Press International polls. The AP rates Iowa fifth; the UPI sixth.

• This will be the game in which the Hawks attempt to "make up" for losing to Minnesota.

• The contest is a continuation of the always lively rivalry between Iowa and Ohio State and Evashevski and Ohio State coach Woody Hayes.

• And, as mentioned, 59,300 fans, plus a TV audience of several million, will be watching.

Incentive, however, may not be enough for the Hawks, no longer undefeated, no longer the No. 1 team in the nation and no longer the Big Ten leader.

Ohio State (6-1) will enter the contest with a 3-1 Big Ten record after losing only to Purdue. Iowa (4-1) has lost only to Minnesota and has a 4-1 conference mark.

The Buckeyes will also bring the best offensive mark of the conference to Iowa City today. Ohio State has averaged 333 yards a game and has scored 27.5 points a contest. The Bucks are fifth, however, in defense.

Iowa ranks fourth in both offense and defense.

Observers generally have predicted a high-scoring battle between the two clubs, but with a close final decision. The average point spread in the last seven games between the two teams has been only six points.

Evashevski revealed that Iowa will attempt to play Ohio State at its own game.

"We will attempt to meet power with power," Evashevski said. "We must also be a threat with the forward pass if we are to be successful against Ohio State."

Iowa drills this week started on a somber note, but Evashevski shook the squad up early in the week when he told them in private that they had better return to the practice field the next day with the intention of playing football.

Since that time, drills have been tough and spirited as the Hawkeye coaches installed more power plays and polished the not-always-potent passing game.

A battle of quarterbacks may be a highlight of today's clash.

Iowa's Wilburn Hollis will tangle with Ohio State's Tom Matte, the Buckeye star, in a duel that could easily determine the outcome of this crucial test.

Matte leads the Big Ten in pass completions and is second in total offense and rushing. Hollis is third as a rusher and eighth in passing. Others will also try to share the glory.

Ohio State fullback Bob Ferguson has crashed through opposition lines for 400 total yards this season in conference games. Iowa can counter with a Ferguson of its own, halfback Larry, the team's leading rusher.

This will be not only the last home game of the season for Evashevski, but for 11 Hawkeye seniors.

Making their last appearance before the home crowd will be Dick Clauson, center Lloyd Humphreys, tackle Charlie Lee, guard Mark Manders, halfback and team captain Jerry Mauren, place kicker and quarterback Tom Moore, fullback Gene Mosley, guard Bill Ringer, halfback Bob Russo, halfback Donald Tucker and center Donald Zinn.
