Regents Plan Tour of Indiana Schools

Iowans Inspect Building Program

Four members of the State Board of Regents and 10 Iowa legislators will leave Sunday on a two-day inspection tour of Purdue University and the University of Indiana.

Arranged by the Board of Regents, the trip is intended to give the group an insight into improvements on other state-supported campuses.

More specifically, the group will examine what the state of Indiana has accomplished during a 10-year, $80 million building program.

Iowa's three state-supported schools have expressed the belief that this state is not spending enough money at its three schools — SU-I, Iowa State University and Iowa State Teachers College.

The trip was suggested by Maurice Crabbe of Eagle Grove — a Board of Regents member — at the Board's October meeting in Iowa City.

SUI officials made the final arrangements for the trip. It is being financed by alumni associations of the three Iowa schools.

The group will fly from Des Moines and Iowa City Sunday morning to Purdue (at West Lafayette, Ind.) Monday morning. They will tour the University of Indiana medical center in Indianapolis.

That afternoon they will visit the University campus at Bloomington. They will return to Iowa Tuesday.

Board of Regents members making the trip will be Alfred W. Noehren of Spencer, Arthur Barlow of Cedar Rapids, and Lester Gillette of Fostoria.

Late Returns Favor Nixon

WASHINGTON (U) — Winner John F. Kennedy appeared almost certain Thursday to wind up with less than a majority of all voters cast Nov. 8 for President of the United States.

With 1,549 precincts still out and many absentee ballots yet to be tallied, Democratic President-elect Kennedy had 33,862,693 votes to 33,676,099 for Republican Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

This was a Kennedy lead of only 186,594 out of more than 67½ million votes last week for him and Nixon.

Jordan explained that the group will not be looking for ideas in specific buildings. Instead, they will be looking for benefits of the over-all building program.

Rushing the Season

It's only 37 more days till Christmas and Iowa City city employees are making sure they won't get caught in the last minute decorating rush. As most SUI students were contemplating the approaching Thanksgiving vacation, John Banack (on ladder) and Meyer Baines begin decorating downtown light poles with red and silver tinsel.

Religious Issue Vital in Election

By BRUNO TORRES
Staff Writer

Religion was important in the outcome of the 1960 Presidential election, according to Associate Professor of Sociology David Gold.

Gold, speaking Thursday noon to a group of 25 sociologists and political scientists, also criticized the mass media for helping form a "cult of personality" while playing down the issues of the campaign.

He said the religious issue probably helped both Vice President Richard Nixon and Senator John F. Kennedy. But he thought it worked more to Kennedy's disadvantage.

According to Gold the past election had the characteristic of a large turn-out caused by an event that brings the occasional voter to the polls. He said that event was the religious issue.

A second characteristic of the election Gold listed was a large cross-over vote. This he said was indicated by the nearly 50-50 split in the popular vote when the Democrats statistically have a three to two registered voter majority over the Republicans.

He said if this had been a normal "maintaining election" where there is a low turn-out and a vote division along party lines the Democrats would have won easily.

But the occasional Democratic voter brought out by the religious issue, according to Gold, crossed party lines to vote against Kennedy.

Gold gave one example of voting in the state of Washington where many Democrats voted a straight party ticket with the exception that they voted against Kennedy. J. Richard Wilmet, associate professor of sociology and Iowa City second precinct committee man for the election, commented from the audience to agree with Gold.

Wilmet said his precinct findings had 300 affirmed Democrats and 250 undecided voters. He said the Democrats expected to pick-up around half of the undecided voters, but Kennedy's total vote in that precinct was 334, 34 more than the number of affirmed Democrats.

Gold criticized both Nixon and the mass media for what he called a dangerous trend of personalizing the campaign issues. He said a content analysis of mass media coverage of the campaign probably would reveal a focus on personalities rather than on issues.

"Where the candidates' wives bought their dresses was an important issue," he commented sarcastically.

Gold quoted Nixon as saying

"don't vote for the party, vote for the man." In other words, Gold said, this means "forget about the issues."

"This seems to be a fundamental change in America's political structure," he concluded.

U.S. Sends Navy Ships To Caribbean

AUGUSTA, Ga. (U) — President Eisenhower has rushed U.S. Navy warships and air units into position to defend revolt-threatened Guatemala and Nicaragua against any Communist-led attack.

The vacation White House announced the emergency action Thursday in a clear warning to Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro to keep hands off both Central American republics.

The President acted amid mounting tension in the Caribbean after Guatemala and Nicaragua fought off antigovernment revolts and charged Castro with helping the rebels.

Swiftly answering written appeals for help, Eisenhower ordered Navy fleet units, including at least one aircraft carrier, to "seek out and prevent" any outside invasion.

In Washington, the Navy said the carrier is the Shangri La which with four destroyers from Mayport, Fla., is patrolling the Caribbean between Cuba and the coast of Central America.

U.S. warships often carry Marines but Hagerty said the warships sent to help Guatemala and Nicaragua did not have any Marine infantry units with them, so far as he knew.

Eisenhower personally ordered the naval move late Wednesday, Hagerty said, after an urgent telephone call from Secretary of State Christian A. Herter in Washington.

Religion Missing in Lives Of Communist Youth—Abe

By JIM TUCKER
Staff Writer

The president-elect of Rotary International, Joseph A. Abe, told the Iowa City Rotary Club Thursday that "we must join hands with men of the free world if we are to create better understanding and strengthen the free world against Communism."

Abe, circulation manager of the Reading, Pa., "Eagle-Times," came to this conclusion after observing conditions in Hungary, Bulgaria, Rumania, and North Africa on a recent trip.

Abe also emphasized that he felt a belief in a religion is of utmost importance for any country, even if it serves only as a symbol.

Communist influence among the youth of Russian satellite countries is very effective, according to Abe. He said that about 20 per cent of the children in these countries still believe in God, but he added that Communist influence is gradually decreasing that percentage.

Abe pointed out that juvenile delinquency rates are extremely high in some of the satellite countries, despite rigid Communist jurisdiction. Abe's opinion was that the youth of these countries are missing the thing they need most — religion.

Abe said that many Hungarians would ask him, "Do you know my brother?" He lives in the United States." He explained that many of the people behind the Iron Curtain have no realization of the size of the United States.

The News In Brief

By The Associated Press

OTTAWA, Ill. (U) — A stocky ex-dishwasher confessed Thursday that he bludgeoned three women to death last spring in a canyon of Starved Rock State Park.

The slayings first were admitted by Chester Otto Weger, 21, of nearby La Salle, in a semihysterical, sobbing confession. Then afterward, showing almost exuberant relief, he re-enacted the killings of last March.

They happened, he said, because his victims wouldn't cooperate in his attempt to rob them.

In a series of swift moves to wind up the eight-month-old case, evidence against Weger was presented to a grand jury late Thursday.

Authorities said the web of accusing circumstances had been closing around Weger for many weeks. He had worked in Starved Rock State Park Lodge at the time of the slayings.

LONDON (U) — Smiling radiantly, Elizabeth Taylor Thursday night left a London hospital where she was taken Sunday in hysterical condition from severe head pains.

The glamorous actress smiled at photographers and about 50 fans who waited two hours in a blustery rain to see her. She was accompanied by her husband, singer Eddie Fisher, and her personal American physician Dr. Rex Kenner.

UNITED STATES, N. Y. (U) — President Joseph Kasavubu of the Congo said Thursday it's absolutely "indispensable" that the United Nations seat him in the General Assembly before it sends a political conciliation commission to his country.

Testimony Ends In Sweeting Trial

Testimony was completed Thursday in the trial of Byron C. Sweeting, 30, who is charged with making an improper left turn here, Sept. 1, resulting in a collision with a police car. Sweeting lives in Riverside.

Patrolman Ronald Dreyer was answering an emergency call about 1:30 a.m. when the accident occurred at the intersection of South Capitol and Prentiss Streets. Dreyer and seven other persons were injured.

County Atty. Ralph L. Neuzil rested his case after eight witnesses, including the patrolman, had testified that the patrol car's red emergency light had been flashing before the collision or immediately afterward. Five of these witnesses did not see the crash.

Under questioning by Sweeting's attorney, John Baldrige, of Washington, one of the seven persons riding in Sweeting's car when it crashed, testified that they did not see the emergency light on the patrol car.

Dorm Election Irregularities Force New King-Queen Vote

By KAY ARMSTRONG
Staff Writer

Vote counting at SUI seems to cause almost as much confusion as the Nixon-Kennedy vote war in California did.

Because of irregularities in the ballot counting procedure, the finalists for Inter-dorm king and queen will be selected at the Inter-dorm Dance on Friday night, according to Ed Statton, advisor to the Inter-Dorm Social Board.

According to Statton, and other members of the committee, the first count was challenged on the basis that the voting was close and the chances of error are great when counting approximately 2,000 votes for 12 individuals.

Following the first count in the Iowa Memorial Union, the ballots were taken to Hillcrest Dormitory for a recount.

Statton, who is also head counselor of South Quadrangle, suggested that the vote be thrown out because:

1. All the dormitories weren't represented at the recount.
2. The ballots had been moved from the original counting spot in the Iowa Memorial Union to Hillcrest Dormitory.
3. Some who helped on the recount weren't authorized to do so.
4. There were blank ballots mixed with marked ballots at the second counting.
5. There were discrepancies between the tallies of the two countings.

Consequently, Statton said, they decided it would be fairer to the candidates to select the finalists at the dance tonight.

Originally, three finalists for Inter-dorm King and Queen were to be selected on the basis of Wednesday's balloting. The winners were to be selected by those attending the Inter-dorm Dance.

Tonight each couple will be given a favor as they enter the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union. Inside the favor will be a ballot on which will be the names of the six men and six women candidates.

The couple will vote and place their marked ballot in a ballot box. The counting will begin at 10 p.m. but votes can be cast until 10:15 p.m.

Statton, Miss Claire Murphy, head counselor of Currier, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoggen will count the ballots. Hoggen, a junior in the College of Law, is a disinterested observer.

The six finalists for Inter-dorm Queen are: Linda Flohr, A1, Storm Lake; Margery Kelly, A1, Osage; Nancy Kramer, A3, Remsen; Pat Lovejoy, N4, Emmetsburg; Gretchen Moine, N2, Hampton; and Judy Pearce, A1, Jefferson.

Inter-dorm King finalists are: Al Bachrach, A1, Washington, D.C.; Chuck Coulter, A3, Webster City; Bill Sonneberg, A3, Dubuque; Bill Stanley, A2, Manchester; John Richards, A1, Petaluma, Calif.; and John Vondrak, A2, Nebraska City, Neb.

Les Brown and his "Band of Renown" will play at the dance tonight from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Gas Co. 'Disappointed' By 5 Per Cent Rate Hike

The five per cent increase in gas and electricity rates approved in a resolution passed by the Iowa City City Council Tuesday was called "definitely disappointing" by a spokesman for the Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Co. in a statement received Thursday.

The company had requested increases of 29 per cent in electric rates and 12 per cent in gas rates. John Bauer, public utilities consultant for Public Administration service, who was engaged to make an analysis and report on the rate matter to the city, recommended the five per cent increases.

In commenting on the rate increases proposed by the council, James E. Stewart, district manager of the utility said the amount of additional income provided did not measure up to what is needed according to the results of the company's prolonged study of rate requirements.

Stewart's statement declared: "The differences between the amount proposed by the council and that which we requested is due to the method used by Dr. Bauer in determining depreciation expense and income tax and in the weighting which he has given to meet original cost of the property required to serve this community in relationship to the net reproduction cost of that property."

"In our best judgment, Dr. Bauer's computations do not conform with the ruling of the Supreme Court of Iowa in 1957 on this subject."

"Dr. Bauer's report indicates that a five per cent increase will provide $100,414 in additional gas revenue and $98,400 in additional electric revenue. Actually, a five per cent increase in the ordinance rates in Iowa City, University Heights, and Coralville will provide $67,287 in gas revenue and $72,019 in electric revenue."

"The company's rates applicable to sales not covered by ordinances of these cities, including the surrounding rural area, have been increased substantially and are in line with the increases requested of the Iowa City Council."

There was no indication given in Stewart's statement as to what, if any, further action the company might take on the matter. It can take the matter to court.

Iowa-Illinois sought revenue increases totalling $413,000 for electric rates and $163,000 for gas rates.

Campaign Called Rural, Urban Battle

By BARB HAARDT
Staff Writer

Terming the recent political campaign "the battle of the cities versus Main Street," Kirk Boyd said Thursday night, "the rural won in Iowa, but the battle will go on."

Boyd, a graduate student in political science, was press secretary to Lt. Gov. Edward McManus during McManus' losing campaign for state governor. He presented his own "Reflections on a State Political Campaign" Thursday night.

The recent campaign, Boyd said, has forced Iowa's Democrats to realize that they must turn toward urban areas. As cities continue to grow, he declared, issues, programs and platforms will be directed primarily toward urban majorities.

"You can forget about reapportionment since the Constitutional Convention has been defeated," Boyd asserted. He said that the hope of fair representation in Iowa seems dim, unless federal action is taken.

Thus, he continued urban forces should work to gain control of the executive branch of government so that they may bargain with the rural legislature.

Boyd also declared that the cities should fight to maintain the controversial Electoral College (since it favors urban minorities) until Congress and state legislatures are fairly apportioned. In 46 out of 48 states, he said, rural counties have more power than their numbers warrant. He said he did not know about the representation in Alaska and Hawaii.

Turning to his own work in the campaign, Boyd said that state campaigns are now fought mainly through press releases. "Gubernatorial candidates don't draw any crowds," he said.

"The problem of press releases, Boyd said, is that 'newspapers don't use all of what you write and often they don't use anything at all.'

"Newspapers have become infected with the idea of responsibility, so they try to be fair in the amount of space they give each candidate. But their equal coverage comes down to three or four sentences."

Boyd also pointed out that "state campaigns today are big money." He termed as "ridiculous" the Iowa law which requires a candidate to spend no more than half the salary of the office for which he is running.

According to this law, a gubernatorial candidate may spend only $10,000. Boyd estimated that both candidates spent at least six times the set maximum, legally, through the state central committees.

Boyd suggested a new state law to require candidates to list contributors and amounts contributed. He said that although one "angel" could still make large contributions through others, enterprising opponents or reporters could investigate the published lists and point out violations.

The Daily Iowan is written and edited by students and is governed by a board of five student trustees elected by the student body and four faculty trustees appointed by the president of the University.

Evening with Sandburg

Wednesday night the beloved poet, Carl Sandburg, provided SU-Iowans with a thought-provoking and often critical commentary on the American culture.

His sketches ran the gamut of social abuses - from war, through racial integration, motion pictures, love, advertising, and soap detergents.

On television - "One bit of advice. Only one western a month. After 12 months any bright boy can write his own."

He said the mark of great men was their ability to endure solitude - to use solitude for an opportunity to do creative thinking.

He said a lot of other pertinent things. None of them really very new or startling. Everyone is against war, and social injustices.

The thing is, the secret of the impression the comments made, was that Carl Sandburg made them. It was unmistakable that here was a man who could endure solitude, that had in his life time done a great amount of "creative thinking."

Nor was there any question that here was just an old man advocating a return to the simple life, to the "good old days."

Time and time again he reemphasized his belief in the beauty and dignity of mankind. "We are alike in love, food, games, governments, and sports. Such likenesses are very much like a great symphony."

He took his audience to the depths of pessimism and lifted them to the heights of optimism. Everyone should have a little more of something - say awareness - for having heard him.

ISU 'Daily' on ROTC

The Student Council at the State University of Iowa recently endorsed the abolishment of compulsory ROTC at that institution. Is Iowa State doing anything about the ROTC program? Yes, the University administration is in the process of setting up a faculty committee to study the situation, as is Cardinal Guild.

Among others, there are two factors which are complicating the compulsory versus elective ROTC decision. First, Army Secretary Brucker has said that the Army can't get the 14,000 officers it needs by 1965 unless ROTC is kept an integral part of the campaign.

Col. William C. Lindley of the Air Force has said, "There is no doubt that the AFROTC program is over-extended. We have units in 175 schools and sub-units in 15' others. Accordingly, we have a freshman enrollment in Air Science I of more than 60,000 boys each September.

Four years later we commission from 3,500 to 4,000 of them as second lieutenants. The loss and the cost are great, to both the institution and the Air Force.

"With the well-publicized predictions for a doubled enrollment in our colleges in this decade, we in the Air Force are greatly concerned about our ability to man a basic ROTC program that promises to become larger and larger - at a time when our officer manpower requirements are decreasing.

If the Air Force turns to voluntary ROTC, those not choosing the Air Force or Navy programs would be forced into the Army program under the compulsory system. If this happens, we might well ask if a compulsory ROTC program is not in effect only for the benefit of the Army.

Two other factors which need be considered are the curriculum of military contact courses and lack of interest of the college student in becoming an officer.

Comm Skills Department Answers Daily Iowan Editorial

By CARL A. DALLINGER Coordinator and Speech Advisor and RICHARD BRADDOCK Writing Supervisor

(Editor's note: This is a reply to the editorial on the Comm Skills Department set-up which appeared in Wednesday's Daily Iowan.)

We are grateful to the editors of The Daily Iowan for their interest in the Communication Skills Program, evinced by Wednesday's editorial. Certainly it is appropriate to examine any program in the University, including the Communication Skills Program. To be useful, however, suggestions for improvement must be based on knowledge. For that reason, we would like to inform the editors and their readers of the facts about sectioning and exemption in Communication Skills and to invite suggestions based on these facts.

As the editorial mentioned, freshmen entering SUI show a wide range of ability in writing, speaking, and reading. Consequently, entering students are initially classified as follows:

10-3 - one-semester accelerated course

10-1 (10-2) - two-semester regular course

Recommended - non-credit work in writing or reading (or both) because of low placement scores in these skills. Concurrent with 10-1.

This classification is based on the objective American College Testing Program examinations (ACT), administered in many states during the year before the student enters SUI. This year, if the reading score plus two times the English composition score equalled 215 or above, and if the composite score of all the ACT examinations was 70 or above, a student was classified as 10-3. A student with lower scores was placed in 10-1. If we discovered a student whose English and reading scores were high but whose composite score was pulled below 70 by a very low mathematics score, we placed him in 10-3. If a student's English or reading score was at or below the 20th percentile rank, his admission statement included the recommendation that he take non-credit laboratory work in addition to his regular work in 10-1. On October 20 of this fall, 90 such students were enrolled in the Writing Lab, 143 in the Reading Lab.

During the first few days of class, 10-3 students write themes and deliver speeches. Using the theme, speech, and objective test scores as a basis for judgment, we decide whether an accelerated student is to be exempted entirely from the Communication Skills requirement, held only for a two-hour speech course, or retained in 10-3. Exempted students are advised, but not required, to enroll for Core Literature. In addition, a 10-1 student is transferred to 10-3 if his early classroom performance and a re-appraisal of his test scores warrant it.

This year the results of the sectioning were as follows:

Table with 3 columns: Placement, Number, Percent. Rows for Exempted, 10-3, 10-1.

If a 10-1 student is consistently earning B's and A's by the end of the semester, his instructor may recommend that he take the exemption examinations at the end of the 10-1 instead of waiting until the end of 10-2. Last year, of 13 students so recommended, 7 were exempted without taking 10-2. More than that number of 10-1 students ordinarily complete the Communication Skills requirement in one semester by doing superior work; last year, when the ACT tests were first used, a higher proportion of en-

We hope that the editors and readers of The Daily Iowan will continue to take an interest in Communication Skills and to offer suggestions for the improvement of the program. We also hope that such suggestions will be based on more accurate knowledge of the facts than was manifested by Wednesday's editorial.

terings students were placed in 10-3 than usual, resulting in fewer good students in 10-1.

The general nature of the final examination procedures in Communication Skills is well known, although Wednesday's editorial was badly in error when it stated that a final theme would be failed solely because it introduced personal opinion into an expository paper. What Daily Iowan readers may not realize is that failing the final theme or speech does not necessarily mean the student is held for remedial work in writing or speaking. When a final theme or speech is not much below passing, the student may be exempted, on the instructor's recommendation, if the student's class work in that aspect of the course has been consistently of B caliber toward the end of the semester. Moreover, doubtful themes typically are read by as many as four raters. A student whose score on the speech test is doubtful may be recommended by his instructor for a "rehearing" - a repetition of the final speech examination using a different set of topics from which to select a subject for his speech. Last June, 147 students were reheard in this fashion, and 82 of them subsequently were passed in speech.

The following table shows how Communication Skills students fared in the final examinations last year. Represented in the table are those students enrolled in 10-3 at midterm who took the examinations in January, and those students enrolled in 10-1 at midterm the first semester who took the examinations at the end of 10-2, in June.

Table with 4 columns: 10-1:10-2 Students, 10-3 Students, Number, Percent. Rows for Withdrew before finals, Exempted on first try, Held for more writing, Held for more speaking, Held for more reading, Held for 2 or 3 labs, Held for 10-2 or 10-3, Incomplete.

Total enrollment at fall midterm 1108 692

We hope that the editors and readers of The Daily Iowan will continue to take an interest in Communication Skills and to offer suggestions for the improvement of the program. We also hope that such suggestions will be based on more accurate knowledge of the facts than was manifested by Wednesday's editorial.

Tone of Disillusionment - The Three Sisters - But Chekhov is Chekhov

By ANNETTE BASALYA Daily Iowan Reviewer

Life rusted away - for the most part, successfully - last night in the Studio Theatre's production of Chekhov's "The Three Sisters." Directed toward the middle class, quasi-intellectual of late nineteenth century Russia, the art of Chekhov is an art of scrupulous observation, at once both detached and compassionate, inspecting people who cannot be other than what they are. It is an art which creates acting problems which are challenging and paradoxical.

In the first act of the drama these problems were most apparent. Marilyn Gottschalk had little difficulty in hitting a competent dramatic stride as Olga, the eldest of the three sisters whose only ambition in life is to escape from the dull life of the provinces into the fancied excitement of Moscow. Her spinstery decisiveness was convincing and sustained. Janis Benson, as Irina, strained ingenuously just a little and Nancy Duncan as Masha, the married sister was aptly irate and bored.

As the characters defined themselves in the drawing room of the sisters' home, the pervading Chekhovian tone of disillusionment became apparent.

Don Rosenberg handled the role of Andrei Prozoroff, the frustrated brother, with a firmness that would be startlingly realized in the third act by a moving monologue of disintegration. Jim Maloon as Vershinin, began a consistently fine performance as the unhappily married, philosophizing lieutenant-colonel, and Walter Keller, from the beginning engaged with a zest, the role of the paranoic and dangerous Soleni.

Where then did the difficulties of the first act lie? The players introduced the elements of melancholy and frustration with skill,

Our New

Jacqueline Kennedy, wife of our First Ladies ever to live in the White House, is the most fashionable First Lady since the death of Mrs. Roosevelt.

Jackie Isn't First Lady

Much has been said about John Fitzgerald Kennedy being the youngest man ever to be elected president of the United States. Although Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy, 30-year-old wife of the President-elect is probably one of the most attractive women ever to be First Lady, she is not the youngest woman to hold this position.

Definition of Integration Needed by President, Courts

By KIRK H. PORTER Professor Emeritus Political Science

(Editor's note: This is the third of a series on the integration question.)

We can hardly expect to learn very much very soon about what actually happened at the President's conference with southern governors. It is not enough for them to say they will obey the Constitution. Some of them have said already it is the Supreme Court itself which disobeyed the Constitution. They ask if the court is above the Constitution and thus can do no wrong. That question has lurked in the background of our constitutional history for over a hundred years. I think myself it has become wholly academic. The Constitution is what the courts say it is. Their decisions must be obeyed.

In its decision the court did not use the words integrate, or integration. What the court did was to forbid segregation. Obviously this implies that integration should begin. But there is no law about it except in those states which have voluntarily accepted a c c u e s e d. Much progress has been made already in states where it was thought vigorous resistance might be encountered.

And even in some states where state law has not been changed local school districts have admitted some negro children to the schools.

It may be anticipated that in some areas state and local authorities will do just as little as they can and still call it integration. They might do very little indeed, put a dozen selected and colored children in a school with two thousand and call it integration. And they would hope to leave the situation that way. Thus a tiny group of colored students, perhaps only two or three, could be admitted to every school. Would this fulfill the mandate of the Court? All the court did was forbid compulsory segregation. The court decision does not even use the word integration, much less define it. If school authorities merely scatter a few colored students through their schools they might say they have stopped compulsory segregation. Have they?

This is hair-splitting and quibbling. But they believe that is what the Supreme Court itself did with words of the 14th Amendment. They may be expected to do it ad infinitum. The practice has begun and has been successful to the extent that judges here and there have approved what may be called "token integration" plans.

Undoubtedly southern governors will attempt to get the President to approve moderate, token plans. He will probably be condemned if he does or if he does not. That is the fate of the man who is president. But it is not his business to condemn a given plan or to approve it. If he indicated approval of token plans he would have undercut district judges in given situations who had disapproved them. And his opinion would not have the weight of law in any event. If he expressed disapproval of moderate plans he would undercut other judges. It is to be hoped he will not be caught in such a cross-fire. It is not his business to define the law but to enforce it. It is his business to enforce court orders and he has certainly shown a disposition to do that.

Good Breakfast; Energy Necessity

Most of us have been told time and again that we need a good breakfast if we are to do a good morning's work. Yet if we were to conduct an informal poll in almost any group we would find would find some who started the day without any breakfast or with only a cup of coffee.

Researchers in the department of physiology at SUI recently published results of a study which provides evidence that we can do better work if we start each day with a good breakfast. Dr. W. W. Tuttle and other researchers at SUI conducted the study with workers in an Iowa City industry.

Their purpose was to analyze the effect of omitting breakfast and the effect of taking a mid-morning rest on capacity to do work.

Dr. Tuttle found that all subjects were able to do more "work" when they ate an adequate breakfast. The addition of a mid-morning rest period when breakfast had been eaten did not result in more work accomplished.

Dr. Tuttle concluded that eating an adequate breakfast was of more value than taking a rest period in enabling the persons in the experiment to do more work.

It Is Possible To Be 'Calm and Collected'
On Thanksgiving, if Schedule Is Planned

It's possible to be a "calm and collected" hostess when you greet 10 to 20 guests for Thanksgiving dinner — if you plan your menu carefully and work out a detailed time schedule well ahead of the holiday, says Alice Petersen, instructor in home economics at SUI.

You can easily avoid one common slip-up which is disastrous — forgetting to allow the frozen turkey at least one hour per pound to thaw at room temperature!

Homemakers can avoid other last-minute crises in preparing food for many people by planning to serve only some of the traditional holiday foods or by modifying these foods. For example, Mrs. Petersen suggests that a gelatin-based chifon pumpkin pie can replace the old-fashioned custard pumpkin pie which usually should be cooked the day it is to be served. The chifon pie can be prepared the day before serving and stored in the refrigerator.

Mrs. Petersen suggests that much of the food for Thanksgiving Day can be prepared before Nov. 24.

Cranberries can be cooked a day before Thanksgiving and do not require refrigerator storage.

Gelatin, apple and fruit salads can be prepared ahead of time. A nut-apple salad can be prepared a day before Thanksgiving and stored in the refrigerator. The homemaker should avoid serving tossed salad, which is best only if prepared just before serving, reminds Mrs. Petersen.

Eliminate last-minute work of preparing homemade hot rolls by serving either brown-and-serve rolls or warmed French bread.

Sweet potatoes can be pre-prepared by cooking, mashing and forming them into balls. These then can be rolled in graham cracker crumbs and topped with marshmallows. Pop them into the oven about 30 minutes before serving to warm up the potatoes and to melt the marshmallows to a golden brown.

A vegetable casserole such as beans with mushroom soup can be prepared ahead of time so that the homemaker need only put it into the oven 40 minutes before the meal is served.

For homemakers who can accept the idea of serving the "instant," prepared potatoes by adding cream and butter, Mrs. Petersen predicts these potatoes will taste just as good as those freshly cooked. Although such potatoes are of questionable economy for everyday use, homemakers may feel the convenience justifies the cost for holiday meals.

The big problem of carving the turkey at the table can disrupt more than it enhances the festiveness of Thanksgiving Day, observes Mrs. Petersen. While guests watch the bird being carved, the rest of their meal gets cold.

A solution to this dilemma is to carve the turkey in the kitchen. Since it is difficult to slice hot fowl, the bird should be taken from the oven at least one hour before it is to be sliced for serving. Slicing the turkey ahead of the meal makes it possible to serve the meat warm with hot giblet gravy. The rest of the meal can then be served piping hot.

People who own freezers have fewer problems in preparing for a large guest list — they simply must remember to allow enough time for the pre-prepared food to thaw. Homemakers can put pies and stuffing into the freezer two or three weeks ahead of the meal, then cook them fresh for Thanksgiving Day, explains Mrs. Petersen.

Quesada Gets AL Franchise In Washington

By JACK HANDB

NEW YORK (AP) — A 10-man group headed by Elwood Quesada, administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency, Thursday night was awarded the new Washington franchise in the American League.

Joe Cronin, American League president, also announced that the league had adopted a plan for stocking the two new clubs with 20 players each.

Each American League team will present a list by noon Friday of 15 players, seven of whom must have been on the active roster Aug. 31, 1960. All must have been on the 40-man rosters when frozen by Commissioner Ford Frick Nov. 7. Each club will lose seven men for a total of 56 to be divided between the two new clubs.

The two new clubs will draw lots to see which will get first pick. One team will take four men, the other three. Then they will alternate until each has 28.

Ten of the players must be pitchers, 2 catchers, 6 infielders and 4 outfielders. The other 6 men may be any position needed.

In addition to this stockpiling plan, each of the new clubs will get two draft selections from the minor leagues after the regular player draft Nov. 28 at Louisville. No first-year man can be taken and no more than one from any one club.

This provision, which needed minor league assent, was approved by mail vote of the minors and majors earlier this month.

Frosh Challenge Varsity

Iowa's freshmen will tackle the varsity basketball team Tuesday in a game at the Iowa Field House, open to the public. At the top, from left, are frosh Joe Messick and Bill Skea and varsity

Basketball Begins Tuesday With Frosh-Varsity Game

Iowa's basketball squads move into the sports spotlight next Tuesday when Coach Sharn Scheuerman's varsity tangles with the freshmen in the semi-official opening of the 1960-61 basketball year.

Hawkeye cage fans will get a look at the varsity for the first time this season during the game, and will see the players upon whom Scheuerman is placing Iowa basketball fortunes this year.

Also, spectators will get their first look at the Hawks of the future — the freshmen — paced by Connie Hawkins, the highly-touted star from Boys High School in Brooklyn, N.Y. The freshmen are coached by Dick Schultz, former Humboldt High School coach.

"We'll play it 100 per cent all the way," Coach Scheuerman said of the game. "The freshmen have been working hard and hope to upset the varsity. And we've been working hard to see that it doesn't happen. It promises to be quite an interesting contest," he added.

The contest will mark the first chance the coaches have to see the '60-61 team in game maneuvers. The contest will be photographed and the film will be of great benefit to the coaches before Iowa's home opener with South Dakota State Dec. 1.

"The game is very valuable to us from a coaching standpoint," Scheuerman said. "But it also gives the fans a look at this year's team and future teams. It helps the players to overcome natural first-game tension, and it gives the players a chance to perform before a crowd before the actual opener."

Expected to start for the varsity are guards Ron Zagar and Mike Woods, forwards Denny Range and Frank Allen, and center Don Nelson with Dave Maher, Tom Harris and Joe Novak slated for duty.

Frosh starters will be Andy Hankins, guard, Waukegan, Ill.; Dave Roach, guard, Pinckneyville, Ill.; Bill Skea, forward, Batavia, Ill.; Jerry Messick, center, Wood River, Ill.; and Hawkins, forward.

Jofre, Sanchez Clash In Bantam Title Bout

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two young fighters, Eloy Sanchez of Mexico and Eder Jofre of Brazil, who between them have fought but 72 matches, clash Friday night for a piece of the world bantamweight title.

Slated for 15 rounds in the Olympic Auditorium, the contest is expected to attract around 10,000 fans and the winner will be recognized by the National Boxing Association as king of the 110-pounders.

The victor, in turn, has agreed to fight Alphonse Halimi of French Algeria, who is now recognized in Europe as the title holder.

The title was vacated last summer by Mexico's Jose Becerra, who won the then undisputed crown by knocking out Halimi here in July, 1958.

Becerra retired after the little-known Sanchez belted him out in the eighth round in Mexico last Aug. 18 in a non-title scrap.

Halimi regained prestige and the European crown when he beat Freddie Gilroy of Ireland in London recently.

Jofre is rated the No. 1 contender and will be about a 10-7 favorite at ringside.

The match goes on soon after 9 p.m. PST. There is no radio nor television broadcast in the United States.

Jofre has scored 26 knockouts in his 37 matches, has three draws and has not been defeated.

Sanchez has knocked out six opponents in his 35 fights, all of them in Mexico. He has been beaten 11 times, losing three on technical knockouts.

Brechler Sees Minnesota In Rose Bowl Contest—IF

By RON SPEER

DES MOINES (AP) — Paul Brechler, former Iowa athletic director, believes Minnesota will be invited to the Rose Bowl if the Gophers beat Wisconsin.

"I don't think Iowa's chances are very good if Minnesota wins Saturday," Brechler told the Des Moines Football Writers Association.

"However, this is strictly my personal opinion, and I haven't been talking with the Rose Bowl Committee or anyone else involved," he said.

"But the way I see it an invitation would be one way the Rose Bowl Committee could get Minnesota to abandon its opposition to the Big Ten's contract with the Rose Bowl."

Minnesota has always opposed Big Ten participation in the New Year's Day classic and was one of five schools which voted to drop the contract last spring. Six conference schools must favor the contract if it is to be renewed.

But it is believed Minnesota would accept an offer this fall to play in the bowl on an individual basis.

"However, West Coast people really like the way Iowa has always supported the Hawkeyes when they played in the Rose Bowl," Brechler said.

Brechler is now commissioner of the Skyline Conference which he said "is going to get bigger and stronger."

He said there will be a realignment of the conference but "there will always be a Skyline Conference."

He praised Iowa and Coach Forest Evashevski and said "I was pleased to see the Hawkeyes do as well as they have this year."

"I saw the Ohio State-Iowa game on television and I believe Iowa has the only backfield that leaves a vapor trail wherever it goes — those backs are really fast."

City High Hawks Place Seven Men On League Squad

Iowa City High School's Little Hawks, who finished second in the Mississippi Valley Conference with an 8-1 record, placed seven men on the first two all-conference teams, released yesterday.

Four men were named to the first team, including tackle Dan Nanierala, guard Roy Frantz, halfback Tony Welt, and Phil Minnick.

Minnick was named as first team fullback in an unusual honor by the voters. He played halfback this season for the Hawks, but last year played fullback, so the voters selected him as a fullback to avoid slighting an outstanding group of halfbacks.

Named to the second team were end Joel Jensen, quarterback Gary Snook, and fullback Mike Cain.

The first team is made up entirely of seniors, with Cain and Snook being two of only three juniors on the second team. The other is guard Mike Romanowski of Moline.

"I think it must give Evy a great deal of satisfaction to close out his career with a season like this and he and all his staff should be congratulated for a fine job," Brechler said.

Evashevski replaced Brechler as athletic director after a long controversy between the two in an apparent clash of personalities.

Brechler said he did not believe the best Skyline Conference teams could compete with Iowa and said one of the reasons is a great diversification of interest in the Rocky Mountain area.

"Everybody hunts, plays golf and fishes out there in addition to watching sports such as football, and when you have numerous interests you're not as intense about one sport as you are when you have only a couple of interests."

Bus Mertes, Drake coach who finished his inaugural season with a 4-5 mark, told the writers "I hope to stay at Drake as long as they'll put up with me."

"We'll be a lot better team next year, because we have about 11 freshmen that really got their feet wet this fall and will help us," he said.

"You don't build a strong team in one year but we hope to be up there in three or four years," he said.

'Most Valuable' Groat Almost Was Swapped

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Last December, the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Kansas City Athletics got together for a possible trade. The talks involved swapping Pittsburgh's shortstop Dick Groat for slugger Roger Maris of the A's.

After one of the sessions, General Manager Joe L. Brown and Manager Danny Murtaugh of the Pirates seemed almost ready to wrap up the deal. They returned to their hotel room in Miami Beach to talk it over.

"But as soon as Danny and I closed the door, we looked at each other and frowned — right away we knew we didn't like it," Brown recalled Thursday.

The deal was called off.

Thursday, Groat was named the National League's most valuable player. About a week ago, Maris, now with the New York Yankees, achieved the same distinction in the American League.

Groat, who led the Pirates to their first pennant in 33 years and their first world championship in 35 years, won the MVP award in a landslide.

He got 16 of the 22 first place ballots cast by a special committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America for 278 points to beat out teammate Don Hoak. The Buc third-sacker placed second with 162 points.

Willie Mays of San Francisco polled 115 points for third place and Chicago's Ernie Banks, winner of the award in the last two years, was fourth with 100 points.

New Orleans School Board Asks Integration Recess

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Shaken by disorders that swept through this tense city, the New Orleans School Board Thursday sought federal court permission for a recess to integration of public schools.
U.S. Dist. Judge J. Skelly Wright — the jurist who ordered the integration — said he would hear arguments on the motion Friday.
One-third of the white public school pupils in New Orleans played truant today, 12,666 of a total white enrollment of 35,725.
A growing boycott of the two elementary schools integrated last Monday just about reached 100 per cent Thursday. Three white pupils reported at William Frazin, none at McDonogh No. 19.
Downtown New Orleans went about its workaday business, free of the roaming masses of unruly teen-agers that forced police to call on fire hoses and mounted officers Wednesday.

The aftermath of the violence died slowly during the night. Police rushed cars throughout the city, and arrested nearly two-score youths for fights and rock-throwing.
The board's move to return to segregated schools until differences between city and state can be ironed out came on a motion filed by Samuel Rosenberg, the board's attorney.
The motion did not ask that the integration order be vacated. It asked time to ease tempers, to work out a solution to the bitter dispute between segregationists and the court order.
It asked for permission to return to segregation, but Lloyd Rittiner, board president, admonished: "This action should in no way be construed by Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, Mr. Shelby Jackson, state education superintendent, or any members of the State Legisture as an abdication of our stand for a continuance of our public education system."

So bitter is the struggle that the Louisiana Board of Liquidation of State Debt cut off the Whitney National Bank of New Orleans as a state agent because the bank let the board have school funds.
It transferred $138,000 of state money currently in Whitney to the National American Bank in New Orleans effective next Monday.
While riotous demonstrations, fire hoses and four Negro first-graders caught the headlines, the school board is fighting a less dramatic battle to meet its payroll.
The board has been denied by state legislative action access to current funds, which would be inadequate in any case to meet Friday's maintenance payroll of $45,000, and the Nov. 23 teacher payroll of $1,900,000.

University Buys New Instrument For Eye Defects

An instrument which uses an intense beam of light to correct eye disorders has been purchased for the SUI College of Medicine with a $13,000 grant from John H. Witte, Jr., Burlington.
Witte specialized in chemistry at SUI and was named to Phi Beta Kappa Sigma Xi, national honorary scholastic and scientific societies, respectively.
The instrument purchased for the SUI Department of Ophthalmology with Witte's recent gift is a light coagulator, which employs intense light as a knife. The principle is the same as focusing the rays of the sun through a magnifying glass upon a piece of paper to start a fire.
In the case of the eye, the focused beam, which passes harmlessly through intervening transparent tissues, is used to coagulate an eye lesion, seal off blood vessels, or make a torn retina adhere, making operative surgery unnecessary or supplementing it, said Dr. A. E. Braley, professor and head of the Department of Ophthalmology.

Heart Attack Ends Reign Of Cinema's King Gable

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clark Gable, whose crackling voice, rough-hewn face and husky frame became the symbol of American manhood to the world, has died of heart failure at 59.
He was king of the movie world from the moment he slapped Norma Shearer in "A Free Soul".
Thought to have been recovering from a heart attack, he had eaten a good dinner and had been taking an evening nap. He breathed two short gasps and died without apparent pain before his wife could be summoned from across the hall at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital.
Mrs. Gable, herself a heart patient, is five months' pregnant

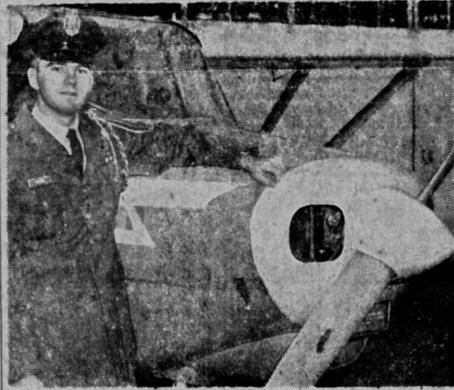

CLARK GABLE
The "King" is Dead
in 1931 until death came swiftly at 11 o'clock Wednesday night.
He had fair success on Broadway and was touring in "The Last Mile" when Hollywood decided to give him a chance. Big ears or not, he was sought by an industry converting to sound and needful of actors who could speak.
Though he never appeared to push his career, he remained a top star for a generation. His heyday was in the '30s when he made a long series of hit films, mostly as a hard-fisted man of action. It was a tribute to his resilience that his popularity never declined although none of his postwar films matched the brilliance of his early ones. He still drew top salary — $750,000 for his last film, plus three weeks of overtime at $48,000 a week.
Gable's marriage to the former Key Speckles seemed to suit him. The vital, down-to-earth blonde brightened a life that had known much tragedy, and he treated her two children as his own. The greatest joy of his last months was the prospect of becoming a father for the first time at 60.
After finishing "The Misfits" two weeks ago, he announced "I'm taking off until the baby is born in March. I want to be there when it happens and for a good many months afterward."
Funeral services have been tentatively set for Saturday at Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

with the actor's first child.
Even since he was stricken with coronary thrombosis 10 days ago — two days after completing his last film — Gable had told his wife repeatedly: "I feel terrible doing this to you and the baby."
When death came, Mrs. Gable was enveloped in the arms of her maid Louisa, who murmured to her: "You're going to have his baby. Don't you worry."
Mrs. Gable was taken to the 20-acre Encino ranch where the star had lived for his last 23 years. She had spent the entire time of his illness with him at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital and had been certain of his recovery. He had been heartened by good wishes from President Eisenhower and hundreds of fans. Wednesday had been his best day since he fell ill.
Hollywood was slow in realizing his value. After a boyhood of following his father around lumber camps, Gable came to the movie town in the 1920s to work as an extra.
He recalled later: "Everybody said, 'You'll never do anything in pictures; you're not handsome and your ears are too big.' I said, 'Okay, maybe my ears won't look so big on the stage,' and went to New York."

Game Tapes Thrill Soldiers

Listening to Hawkeye football via tape recordings may not be quite as thrilling as viewing the games from Iowa Stadium.
But to the men of the 1st Battle Group 9th Infantry, stationed in Alaska, the tapes provide a rare enjoyment this year.
The soldiers had previously been lucky to see an occasional five-week old telecast of a West Coast game. Now they are hearing SUI's games soon after they are played.
Late in September, the Alumni Association received a letter from Lyle H. Shaw, Chaplain for a battle group of 2,000 men, many of them Midwesterners.
He said: "Those of us who are used to following the Big Ten spend our 30 months here without hearing or seeing any games in which the Midwest teams are engaged."
Shaw asked if he might send tapes to SUI on which Iowa's games could be recorded and sent to the Yukon. WSUI made the recordings.
With the wishes for "good listening," the Association sent off the first tapes of the Michigan-Iowa game. It has since mailed tapes of the Wisconsin, Purdue and Kansas games and will soon send recordings of the Minnesota and Ohio State contests.
When one soldier heard that the tapes were coming, he immediately wrote the Association to express his elation. Pfc. Ralph K. Lund, SUI alumnus of 1959, said: "... these recordings will create many moments of enjoyment, not only to myself, but to the entire gathering of Hawkeye fans in the Yukon."
"We will once again intimately follow the fortunes of, win or lose, the number one team in the nation."

74 Holiday Birds On Dorm Menus

By KAY HIGBEE
Staff Writer
Thanksgiving dinner menus in four dormitories at SUI require 74 roasted turkeys, half a ton of potatoes and 465 pies.
Twenty-four roasted turkeys will be served Tuesday to 750 Currier Hall residents, said Miss Helen Goodenow, manager of Currier dining service. The menu will also include sage dressing, 300 pounds of whipped potatoes, frozen peas, relish plates, cranberry-waldorf salad, butterhorn rolls, currant jelly, 95 pumpkin pies with whipped cream and coffee, tea or milk.

'Birdy' Dinner Complex Project

By CAROLYN JENSEN
Staff Writer
Housewives, appalled by the problem of fixing Thanksgiving dinner for relatives and friends, should meet Mrs. Margaret A. Stokely, manager of Burge Hall dining service.
Mrs. Stokely is planning to serve a turkey dinner to 1200 hungry coeds Tuesday. Although the modern college girl likes to think of herself as a light eater, 875 pounds of turkey, 400 pounds of potatoes, and 60 pounds of cranberries will be consumed during the dinner. It will require 55 loaves of bread to make the turkey dressing.
Monday, half of the turkeys, 450 pounds, or about 15 25-pound birds, will be roasted, cooled, and sliced. Breast pieces may be sliced on a machine, but meat from the legs, thighs, and wings must be sliced by hand. Early Tuesday morning the remainder of the turkeys will be fixed.
The birds will be roasted in several separate ovens, each about 3-foot square. Cooking time is usually four and a half hours, because the turkeys are first cut in half.
Tuesday afternoon all the meat will be reheated for serving.
Burge cooks begin to prepare the dressing three days in advance. The bread is crumbled and dried over the weekend. The dressing is not cooked with the turkeys themselves, but contains pieces of the meat for flavor.
This Thanksgiving, Burge is serving cranberry relish instead of the traditional jelly. The relish has been frozen and needs only to be thawed Tuesday.
The 400 pounds of potatoes will be whipped on the day of the meal, out into large whipping vats and kept warm until serving time.
Thanksgiving is the only turkey dinner the Burge girls get during the school year. Mrs. Stokely sums up the feelings of all the dining officials by saying, "I don't mind doing it once a year, but I'm glad when it's all over."

Journalists Plan Annual 'Wayzgoose'

The annual Wayzgoose Banquet for all students and faculty of the SUI School of Journalism will be held Dec. 4, at the Iowa City Elks club.
Featured speaker will be Peter Willett, central division news-pictures manager of United Press International.
In addition to journalism students, faculty, and their spouses, newspaper and broadcasting staff members from the eastern Iowa area are invited to the banquet.
General chairman of the 1960 Wayzgoose Banquet is Anne Stearns, A4, Osage.
The term "Wayzgoose" is derived from a three-centuries old English tradition of the master-printer providing a "way-goose" or "stubble-goose" dinner for his journeyman-printers after harvest time. As adapted by the school of journalism, the Wayzgoose Banquet also traditionally has been a sort of small-scale version of the Nation Press Club's Gridiron Dinner, with students performing satirical skits.

IDEA Meeting Design Teaching

How may the "personal approach to learning" influence the education of a designer? Should human factors be taught to young designers?

Evaluations of these and other significant design problems will attract members of the Industrial Design Educational Association (IDEA) to a Midwestern regional meeting at SUI Friday and Saturday.

Heading a list of outstanding speakers to be present at the meeting is R. Buckminster Fuller, internationally-known engineer, designer and philosopher, who will lecture in the Art Building Auditorium Saturday at 8:15 p.m.

Fuller is presently a visiting research professor at Southern Illinois University. His topic will be "The Trend to Invisibility," and the lecture will be open to the public.

P.S. from Paris—

For ART BUCHWALD

To get a haircut in Paris used to be a very ordinary experience. You went into a barber shop, grabbed a copy of "La Vie Parisienne," sat in a chair and in a half-hour you were on the street again, slightly colder and 75 cents poorer.

But in recent years Paris barber shops have been getting fancier and fancier, and now if you want to get a haircut you have to apply for an appointment days in advance, and some barbers will only take you if you've been recommended by Yul Brynner.

By far the fanciest shearing establishment in Paris is a plush three-story building on the Avenue Matignon called Defosse. Here some of the best heads in France, including those of Jean Cocteau, Marcel Achard, Arturo Lopez, Antenor Patino and Gen. Salan are clipped by some of the best hands in the country.

Although Defosse has been open for seven months we were very fortunate, by applying five months ago, in getting an appointment for 10 o'clock yesterday morning. In the meantime, our wife trimmed our hair, so it would not get too long.

Well, the big day arrived and we were so excited we didn't know what to wear. We BUCHWALD were afraid to call Defosse and ask them in fear they would cancel our appointment. So we took a chance and wore a dark suit with a tie from the Traveller's Club, which we had bought at the Flea Market.

It turned out to be just the right thing and the doorman smiled as he opened the door and let us in.

A beautiful girl was sitting behind a large desk in the lobby, with a large appointment book in front of her — the same kind that Gen. De Gaulle's secretary uses at the Elysee Palace.

"Do you have a rendezvous?" she asked.

"Yes," we said. I made one five months ago."

She looked up her records. "Ah yes. You asked for Michel. Unfortunately he was already booked up and we told you that you could have Dominique. That's correct?"

Castro, R Say U.S. Menace

By The Associated Press

Cuba's Fidel Castro and his Communist pals — Red China and the Soviet Union — charged Friday that the U.S. warship shield protecting Guatemala and Nicaragua menaces world peace.

Castro-controlled newspapers in Havana shouted in black headlines that President Eisenhower's deployment of the warships in nearby waters could open a way for a direct attack on Cuba.

Radio Moscow chipped in a warning that the U.S. movement into the Caribbean is "fraught with the danger of a military conflict."

Red China's Premier Chou En Lai said the United States is threatening Cuba by what he called force of arms, and he promised continued support of Castro's regime.

Other late Friday developments bearing on the Cuban-Central American-Caribbean situation included:

—Costa Rica said it found documents on a Nicaraguan opposition leader linking the unsuccessful Nicaraguan revolt with Castro and international communism.

—Guatemalan President Miguel Ydigoras said he favors a Korean type police action against Cuba by the Organization of American States.

—Cuba formally protested to Eisenhower's order dispatching warships to protect Guatemala and Nicaragua.

—The State Department in Washington reported Cuba has received at least 28,000 tons of arms — tanks, guns, planes — from the Soviet bloc and has the largest Army in Latin America.

The clamor from Cuba and the world's two largest Communist powers was brushed aside by the United States. The Navy in Washington reiterated that the carrier Shangri La and four destroyers are in position to help repel an invasion of the two little Central American nations.

The State Department in Washington spiked a report published in London that the warships might halt suspected ships on the high seas. Washington said ships would be stopped only in the two nations' territorial waters, and then only on the request of Nicaragua and Guatemala.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerly said in August Ga., the Moscow broadsheets were "Communist-type reaction" and added: "There's a very similar

The News In Brief

By The Associated Press

LONDON — A British medical source said Friday night Sir Winston Churchill's physicians now face the difficult task of preventing the 85-year-old statesman from developing pneumonia.

Congestion of the lungs poses the greatest threat to the life of the former prime minister, now bedridden with a broken bone in his back. The injury resulted from a fall in his home Tuesday.

DETROIT — Chrysler Corp. finally gave up Friday on the DeSoto and announced suspension of production of the medium-price car effective Nov. 30.

OTTAWA, Ill. — Ruptured Chert O. Weger, 21, was formally accused Friday of a shocking Star Rock Park triple slaying and other crimes.

His eyes were downcast as handed copies of indictments charging that he murdered the Chicago women March 14 in a rugged canyon of the scenic nature spot.

Weger was seized by deputy Wednesday night, confessed bludgeoning the three women early Thursday, re-enacted the form later in the day, and was indicted Friday by a panel of 15 women and six men.

WASHINGTON — One of the nation's unsung heroes — Michael Malone — the undercover Treasury agent who greased the ski which carried Al Capone to a federal prison — was buried Friday at Arlington National Cemetery.
