$51.8 Million Asked By Regents for SUI

Erbe, Board Discuss Plan For Trimester

$51,785,386 was requested for SUI and related institutions for the next two years by the Board of Regents, as part of a $128.5 million budget presented to Governor-elect Norman A. Erbe Friday.

During the meeting, Erbe also questioned the Regents about the possibility of establishing a trimester system at SUI, Iowa State University, and Iowa State Teachers College.

In presenting the budget, the Regents said Iowa's state-supported institutions of higher learning will require considerably more money to help build for the future.

Regents president Harry H. Hagemann, of Waverly, told Erbe, "The Board is aware of a tremendous bulge in enrollment and we have the responsibility to take care of it. We also are aware that there is an explosion in learning and we have the responsibility to provide the faculty for it."

Recently constructed buildings will barely be able to take care of future needs, Hagemann said. Private colleges now handle about 50 per cent of the student enrollment and save taxpayers considerable money, he added. But, it is uncertain what can be expected of them in the future.

Several goals the Regents hope to attain were also included in the budget statement. These were:

1. A faculty salary level averaging and keeping Iowa in third place among comparable institutions in an 11-state Midwest area.
2. Sufficient space to provide for increasing enrollments, permanent, economical and convenient buildings; modern equipment for efficient and economical teaching; and research facilities in keeping with modern society's changing needs.
3. The achievement of economical operation through long-range planning and financing.

Funds requested for SUI included those for University Hospital, Psychopathic Hospital, Hospital for Severely Handicapped Children, State Bacteriological Laboratory, and Lakeside Laboratory.

The budget for the state asks $49.8 million for operational funds, and $29.03 million for capital improvements and other building needs for the two-year period.

Discussing the trimester system, Erbe suggested that such a system would permit easy transfer of credits and would help prevent duplication of courses.

SUI President Virgil M. Hancher said the system would not be geared to the Iowa public school system.

Even a four-quarter program has problems, David Dancer, Regents secretary, said. He described these as what to do with school staffs that are on a nine-month basis, and the convenience of the program to students.

Kennedy Chooses Dillon, Brother Robert for Cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy flew off to Florida Friday after selecting his brother, Robert, 35, for attorney general and Republican Douglas Dillon, 51, now under secretary of state, to be secretary of the treasury.

That left only the position of postmaster general to be filled in the Cabinet.

The odds were on J. Edward Day, a Los Angeles insurance executive and newcomer to the national political scene. Day rode with Kennedy on the plane to Palm Beach, as did Robert Kennedy.

Kennedy announced the two Cabinet appointments from the snowy steps of his Georgetown home.

He said, in answer to questions, that he couldn't recall a precedent for naming a brother to a Cabinet post — but "we are going to start one."

Kennedy told reporters he thought he should obtain the best possible talent, regardless of party or other considerations.

William P. Rogers, the Eisenhower administration's attorney general, sent Robert Kennedy a message of congratulations, pledging "complete cooperation in making the transition orderly, successful and in the public interest."

Day arrived in the capital Friday morning after speeding eastward via jet airliner in response to an invitation Thursday night by Kennedy.

In talking with newsmen, Day didn't quite say he had been appointed. But he commented that "this was quite a bolt from the blue" and said he told Kennedy "I would be available if he needed me in some important job in his administration."

Kennedy also announced two non-Cabinet level choices.

He selected Byron (Whizzer) White of Denver, a long-time friend and comrade of Navy days, as deputy attorney general.

Harry J. Anslinger, veteran of years of service as U.S. narcotics commissioner, will continue in the new administration. Kennedy had followed the same policy in asking J. Edgar Hoover to continue as chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and Allen W. Dulles to stay on as head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

In nominating Robert F. Kennedy, subject to Senate confirmation, the president-elect said he was confident his brother would serve as attorney general with ability, courage, independence, judgment and integrity.

Robert is a lawyer and was counsel for the Senate rackets investigating committee, which sought to root out corrupt elements from labor unions. One of his chief targets was President R. Hoffa of the Teamsters Union.

What about appointing a brother to a Cabinet job? reporters asked Kennedy.

He said he had talked to Robert some time ago about taking the post, but that Robert had expressed some reservations.

Robert told newsmen the reservations were "matters between the president and myself."

Police Arrest Would-Be Assassin Of President-Elect

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A craggy-faced retired postal clerk who said he didn't like the way John F. Kennedy won the election is in jail on charges he planned to kill the president-elect.

Richard Pavlick, 73, was charged by the Secret Service with planning to make himself a human bomb and blow up Kennedy and himself.

Secret Service agents said Pavlick never got near Kennedy, but he had seven sticks of dynamite, blasting caps, wiring and other gear in his car and motel room.

Pavlick told newsmen he wanted to take Kennedy's life because of "the underhanded way he was elected."

"Kennedy money," he added, "bought the White House and the presidency. I had the crazy idea I wanted to stop Kennedy from being president."

News in Brief

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS — The United States told its NATO allies Friday night some American troops might be pulled out of Europe and it offered to strengthen the alliance's nuclear striking power as compensation for such a withdrawal.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter told a conference of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministers that NATO needs more muscle but that the United States can no longer afford to foot the bill.

He said the United States is willing to assign to NATO by the end of 1963 five atomic submarines armed with Polaris missiles.

Herter suggested this step would hinge on the other 14 alliance countries putting up $100 million for the manufacture of an additional 100 medium ballistic missiles to be deployed at sea.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The General Assembly plunged into bitter debate Friday on a proposal aimed at neutralizing the Congolese Army and freeing deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Seven nations — including some who already have announced they are withdrawing their soldiers from the U.N. Congo force — put a resolution containing the plan before the assembly. The United States and other Western powers oppose it.

The Soviet Union opened the debate with a demand that the assembly consider removing Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's control over the U.N. Command on the ground he supports "colonialist terror" in the Congo.

VIENTIANE, Laos — Pro-Western forces of Gen. Phoumi Nosavan drove leftist-Communist defenders from Vientiane Friday and announced the liberation of the Laotian capital after three days of bloody fighting.

Tanks of the rightist invaders were reported mopping up the last pockets of the resistance at the Vientiane airport where the Soviet Union had landed plane-ferried artillery in support of the pro-Communist forces fighting under paratrooper Capt. Kong Le.

The pro-Communist Pathet Lao radio said Friday Kong Le's forces were standing firm in the western and northern sections of Vientiane and had inflicted heavy losses on the Phoumi troops.

Haile Selassie Returns Home In Triumph

Revolution Crushed; Emperor Denies Son Had Part in Rebellion

ASMARA, Ethiopia (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie, "King of Kings, Conquering Lion of Judah," returned in triumph Friday to recover his realm from revolutionaries who seized power two days ago.

The rebellion was reported crushed.

Selassie's eldest son, Crown Prince Asfa Wassan, 44, was reported to have served the revolution only under duress, and remains faithful to his father, reliable sources said.

The slight, bearded Selassie, 68, survivor of many crises in his almost legendary career, chose to land here in the former Italian colony of Eritrea — now part of his realm — rather than in the embattled capital, Addis Ababa.

As he touched down on Ethiopian soil after a long flight from an abruptly ended state visit to Brazil, he said: "The rebellion against authority seems to have been stirred and acted by some ambitious men whose speeches seem irrational."

The revolutionaries, using Crown Prince Wassan as their mouthpiece on Addis Ababa radio Wednesday and Thursday, had proclaimed their regime would promote social reforms to replace feudal customs dating from the pre-Christian era.

There had been suggestions that they espoused nationalist and socialist trends like those in neighboring Egypt and Sudan.

Selassie was asked whether the rebellion was staged by a foreign power.

"It is difficult to say whether it was provoked from the outside or from within," he replied.

Nearly the entire population cheered the emperor on his way from the airport to the official palace of Asmara.

Selassie was in Sao Paulo, Brazil, when the revolution erupted Wednesday as a reported palace guard uprising, with army support and Prince Wassan as its nominal head. He quickly flew the Atlantic and across Africa in his private airliner to Khartoum, the Sudan capital, 700 miles from Addis Ababa.

In an interview, Selassie said the latest news he had of the imperial family was that all were in good health — "but the rebels' headquarters are there" in the imperial palace.

He said uprisings of the imperial guard and police were almost suppressed by his loyal army. He said loyal troops also had retaken Addis Ababa airfield.

The emperor emphatically denied that the crown prince took part in the rebellion.

Cuban Sugar Imports Halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, citing continued "deliberately hostility" by the Fidel Castro regime, Friday cut to zero Cuba's sugar sales to the United States for the first three months of 1961.

Eisenhower said also he would ask Congress again for authority to whack purchases of sugar from another Caribbean country ruled by a dictator — the Dominican Republic.

Shortly after the White House announcement, the Agriculture Department fixed 1961 sugar requirements at 10 million tons and set quotas for the first quarter of 1961 which omitted Cuba.

In addition to Castro's hostility, Eisenhower said the fact that Cuba is increasing commitments to sell sugar to Communist countries makes it an unreliable supplier for the United States. This country normally has bought about a third of its sugar needs from Cuba, usually paying a premium.

N.Y. Neighborhood Ravaged by Jet

NEW YORK (AP) — Two airliners, one a jet, collided in the air Friday and plunged into New York City. There were 132 persons killed in the worst disaster in the history of aviation.

Not since the Wright brothers gave wings to mankind in 1903 has there been a single air catastrophe to equal the blazing collision that scorched the earth below it.

Of 128 persons aboard the two planes, the sole survivor was one small boy.

The jet plunged into a crowded Brooklyn neighborhood, killing a street cleaner at work and four other persons. A block-wide area was scourged with fiery death and destruction.

The other plane, a four-engine propellor-driven craft, apparently exploded and came down in flaming pieces on Staten Island, across the narrow neck of New York Harbor. It landed in an open field sparing further tragedy.

Police fixed the collision spot above the Narrows, the heavily traveled steamship lane between Brooklyn and Staten Island. Federal authorities said the jet's last reported position was 5,000 feet over Preston, N.J., while the other plane was cleared over Linden, N.J., to drop down from 6,000 to 5,000 feet.

Until now, the worst air tragedy in history was the death of 129 servicemen in the June 18, 1953, crash near Tokyo of an American Air Force transport.

Fire Commissioner Edward P. Cavanagh Jr., said it might be many hours before all the buildings ravaged by the fallen jet could be thoroughly searched for bodies.

The awesome tragedy, occurring over a metropolitan area, pointed up the growing peril of overcrowded airways above the nation's larger cities.

It was only the second in-flight collision between commercial airliners. The last was over the Grand Canyon in Arizona in 1956 when all 128 persons died in a collision between a Trans World Airlines plane and a United airliner.

By grim coincidence, the same two airlines were involved in Friday's crash. It occurred at 10:34 a.m. in dirty gray skies that were further obscured by the falling snow. The two big planes were coming from the west for separate landings at the two New York City airports — LaGuardia Field and Idlewild Airport, about 10 miles apart on Long Island. The ceiling was about 600 feet.

The two planes were supposed to have been at different altitudes. But for some unexplained reason, they weren't. Recorded conversations their pilots had with the control towers were being monitored for some clue to the tragedy. So was an automatic flight recording device carried by jets to list their action in flight.

Ironically, a part of the jetliner came to rest in the wreckage of a Brooklyn funeral parlor, with a score or more passengers entombed in the debris of the house of death.

Iowa Girl, ISU Student Among Crash Victims

CHICAGO (AP) — A Des Moines girl and a New York youth attending Iowa State University were among the victims of the New York plane crash Friday.

United Air Lines listed Miss Ardythe Lee, 21, of Des Moines, and M. James Mountain, 20, of Kisco, N.Y. among passengers on its jet airliner which collided with a Trans World Airlines plane in the air.

Miss Lee, an employe of Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., was the daughter of Harold E. Lee, a mailing room employe of the Des Moines Register. She was a 1957 graduate of Des Moines East High School.

Mountain was a sophomore student in electrical engineering at Iowa State. He was going home for the Christmas holidays.

Only Crash Survivor Is Boy, 11

NEW YORK (AP) — "Mother — she's waiting for me."

These mumbled words came from the lone survivor of Friday's double plane disaster, Stephen Baltz, 11, as he lay seriously injured in Brooklyn's Methodist Hospital.

He was aboard a United Air Lines jet plane from Chicago when it collided over New York with a Trans World Airlines plane, and crashed into a Brooklyn residential area.

He apparently was hurled free from a tail section.

A passer-by, Louis Viericki of Brooklyn, found the youngster lying unconscious on the pavement, and with the aid of a policeman got him to the hospital about six blocks away.

He had been on his way here to join his mother, who had flown here earlier to visit relatives. His own trip had been delayed because he had a sore throat.

At one point, in the hospital, he recovered consciousness long enough to murmur that his mother was waiting at Idlewild Airport for him.

And he was right. She was there with a number of others waiting for the plane. They were in tears. When the news of her son's survival was given her, she broke into a great smile of joy.

There the lad, in his moments of awareness, explained weakly, "I'm a Methodist Sunday School boy."

Chief nurse Edith Roberts told him he had come to an appropriate hospital, a Methodist institution, and "We'll take good care of you."

The youngster had serious burns, and an undetermined number of broken bones. His condition was listed as critical. He lapsed back into unconsciousness shortly after his few remarks.

The boy regained consciousness later, and was able to talk to a doctor. He said of the accident: "I heard a big noise while we were flying. The last thing I remember was the plane falling."

The doctor said the youngster was in "good spirits."

His mother and his sister, Randee, 9, arrived at the hospital later, after being driven from Idlewild by Henry Sansone, a United Air Lines representative.

Mrs. Baltz and the girl took up a vigil at the boy's bedside.

The boy has deep third-degree burns over the chest and his left arm from the elbow to his shoulder, and also on his back to a lesser degree.

"We're very hopeful for his recovery," the doctor said. The boy's father flew in from Chicago and was given a police escort from the airport to the hospital.

Swisher Chosen Minority Leader

DES MOINES (AP) — Sen. Andrew Frommelt of Dubuque and Rep. Scott Swisher of Iowa City were elected Friday to lead the minority Democratic Party in the 1961 session of the Iowa Legislature.

Frommelt, 39, serving his first term in the Iowa Senate, was named minority leader and Swisher was re-elected minority leader in the House.

In separate caucuses, Sen. C. Edwin Gilmour of Grinnell was named assistant Senate minority leader and Merle Hagedorn of Royal was elected assistant House minority leader.

Cuban Diplomats Back Red Movements in Costa Rica

(Editor's note: Following is the third of four articles by Edward Tomlinson, who has just completed a survey of the countries of northern South America, Central America and Mexico. Tomlinson, an authority on Latin America, is author of the book "Look Southward, Uncle.")

By EDWARD TOMLINSON
Herald Tribune News Service

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Communist activities in Costa Rica, next door to the Panama Canal, as well as in Panama itself, Honduras, El Salvador, and even Nicaragua, have been considerably stepped up in the past three months. In practically all these little countries, except Panama, Cuban diplomats and special agents are acting as front men.

It is well to remember that prior to the Red infiltration of Guatemala in the early 1950s, Costa Rica was the first nation in the Caribbean in which the Communists gained a dominant position in government. They were strong enough to worm their way into the Administration of the late President Teodoro Picado and force it to prevent Otilio Ulate, victor in the Presidental elections of 1948, from being certified as the duly elected Chief Executive.

As a result, Jose Figueres, later himself President, led a successful farmers' and citizens' revolution that overthrew the Picado regime and installed Ulate as President of the Republic.

The man who engineered the Red penetration of the Picado movement was Manuel Mora, one of the Kremlin's cleverest operators in Central America. Exiled for a time after the revolution, the democratic laws of Costa Rica permitted him to return to his homeland.

Today Mora enjoys the freedom of San Jose. He no longer engages in the rough-and-tumble activities, such as leading parades and spearheading demonstrations, but acts as elder statesman of the Communist movement. He edits the propaganda sheets and a Communist weekly newspaper. The man who actually plots Red domination of the labor movement the students' organizations and other Leftists groups is Marcial Aguiliz, formerly of Honduras, and now a member of the Costa Rican Chamber of Deputies.

If you ask Costa Rican officials why such men as Mora and Aguiliz are permitted such a free hand, they quickly reply, "Costa Rica, like the United States, is a free country. It permits its citizens to follow their own political convictions, just as your country allows the Communist party to function legally."

This freedom and tolerance has played into the hands of the leaders of the Communist movement. In the past year, Aguiliz and his agents have been able to infiltrate and gain control of the two largest unions of banana workers at Golfito and other plantations along the Pacific Coast. Although there is a sizeable federation of labor in the smaller towns and rural districts on the central plateau that is strongly influenced by the Catholic Church, Mora and Aguiliz now control most of the unions of industrial employees in the capital of San Jose.

The Reds have not yet been able to take over the university student movement completely, but they have succeeded in recruiting a sizeable coterie of the more irresponsible high school teen-agers. These groups showed up frequently during the San Jose Foreign Ministers' Conference, and attempted, without much success, to stage pro-Castro rallies and demonstrations.

The most volatile and persistent pro-Communist and pro-Cuban Costa Ricans, at least in San Jose, are these teen-agers and the unemployed middle class young people who for a few colones are ever ready to join any rally or demonstration. Their principal leader is Miss Virginia Grutter, proprietor of a popular "beatnik" cafe, which is their gathering place after dark. Miss Grutter was the spokesman of the various pro-Cuban rallies during the Foreign Ministers' meetings.

Lending more encouragement to the Communist cause than any of these are the extreme Left-Wing politicians, led by Aguiliz. In spite of a bombardment of criticism by La Nacion and Diario de Costa Rica, the two leading newspapers of San Jose, and while the Foreign Ministers were grappling with the Communist threat to the hemisphere, a delegation of these Leftist legislators, headed by Aguiliz, were traveling in Red China as guests, all expenses paid, of the Peiping government, where they were received and toasted by Premier Chou En-lai. Chou assured the Costa Rican solons that his regime would "always stand on the side of Latin America in the struggle against United States imperialism."

As in most of the other Caribbean countries, the Costa Rican Communists are getting help from the Cubans. The government of President Mario Echandi has been keeping a strict eye on propaganda packages coming into the country by mail. According to Costa Rican intelligence sources, one such package that arrived recently contained a large amount of Cuban currency.

Honduras has never recovered economically from the disastrous Communist-led strikers on the banana plantations, chief industry of the country, in 1954. During the two months period when nobody worked, floods destroyed a large portion of the man-made fields in the swampy lowlands, while the two dread enemies of the banana plant, Communists first penetrated El Salvador, scene of the latest Central American revolution and the smallest and most densely populated of all the middle American Republics, back in the early 1930s. During a desperate uprising, great numbers, some estimates run to the thousands, of people were killed, many of them by the Army, before the disturbance could be put down.

El Salvador has experienced the same "diplomatic" penetration as Honduras. Before his overthrow President Jose Maria Lemus had thrown several of these pseudoemissaries out of the country and protested what one San Salvador newspaper called, "this brazen attempt to stir up another bloody holocaust among the rural population."

Latin - American diplomatic sources are convinced that local and Cuban Communist agents helped to spark the revolt that overthrew the government of President Lemus. These elements unquestionably were responsible for the violent student demonstrations that preceded it. There also was strong evidence that some leaders of the revolution were pro-Castro sympathizers.

Latin - American diplomatic sources in Managua agree that the overthrow of the Somoza regime, in Nicaragua, is among the major goals of all the Communists in Central America, and that they are using the Cubans to spearhead the movement. Several attempts have been made by Cuban based expeditionary forces to penetrate Nicaragua by way of the wild jungle coasts of Honduras and Costa Rica. The latest took place the second week in November, when the Costa Rican government headed off a large group of insurgents who were marching on the Nicaraguan frontier and arrested some 50 plotters in the City of San Jose.

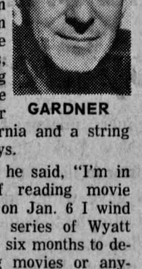
Pro-Red Cuban propagandists have not been too popular in Panama, since the abortive attempt of a Cuban expeditionary force to invade the little country early last year. Known Communists on the isthmus are comparatively few, but they have been what one Panamanian journalist called "the principal flamethrowers" among the rabid nationalists and Leftists in all the recent outbursts against the United States. In fact, the extremists are playing the Communist game when they talk about "Yankee Oppression" against the people of the Isthmian Republic. Even responsible Panamanians admit that the volatile anti-Yankee University students are puppets in the hands of Communist agents.

TV Earp Prefers Girls To Horses

By HY GARDNER
Herald Tribune News Service

NEW YORK — That scream of sirens you heard the other morning wasn't exactly a testing of air raid equipment. It was a warning to New York's eligible red-heads, brunettes and blonds that Hugh O'Brian, the rootin'-tootin', high-falootin' TV Western star who likes to corral girls like most cowpokes hanker to herd cattle, was back in town.

We talked to the wolf-in-Wyatt Erp's clothing, and got the low-down on what the lady-killer is up to these days aside from being a shrewd-enough actor to own a factory in San Francisco, a copper mine in Louisiana, an apartment house in Los Angeles, a wide sweeping bundle of grape ardor acres near Fontana, California and a string of bowling alleys.



GARDNER

"Right now," he said, "I'm in the process of reading movie scripts. 'Cause on Jan. 6 I wind up my current series of Wyatt Earps and have six months to devote to making movies or anything else I'll enjoy making a profit doing. As far as movie roles are concerned, I guess my desires are modest. I'd like to make one picture in Europe and I don't give a hoot who or what I play as long as there ARE girls in it and NO horses in it! That's my favorite hobby," Hugh grinned, "girls, girls and more girls. They're a wonderful invention, aren't they?"

Aside from dropping in to pay his respects to pub-owning pals such as Ed Wynne at the Harwyn and Danny Stradella at The Hideaway, it turns out that O'Brian is a Museum of Natural History buff. "I'm a bug on museums," he explained, "anthropology, the study of man and — girls. The only section I bypass is where they exhibit the Eohippus. In cause you wonder, the Eohippus (he spelled it out for us) is the ancient forerunner of the horse — a four-toed creature about the size of a fox. I don't cotton to those things. Besides, I think the Museum has any girl Eohippuses on exhibit, so the hell with the whole section."

Knowing O'Brian as well as I do (and as well as HE does!), I didn't press him to explain whether this cavorting with Princess Soraya in Las Vegas, New York and elsewhere might eventually alter his bachelor status. Aside from the novelty of the rerationship and the head lines that the strange combination makes, I believe the pair have only one thing in common — he's a boy, she's a girl and boy — does he like girls.

Market's Advance Best in Month

NEW YORK (AP) — A late rally Friday pulled the stock market out of the mire of irregularity and gave it the best advance in more than a month. Trading was heavy.

Chemicals, followed by steels and high quality stocks in other divisions, paced the final-hour advance which added an estimated $3 billion to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the rise in The Associated Press average.

Big Thre autos all posted gains. Selected coppers, aircrafts, utilities, tobaccos, electronics and photographic issues did well.

Key stocks throughout the list rose from fractions to more than 2 points.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 7.02 to 617.78.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 2.20 to 219.60 with the industrials up 4.30, rails up .70 and utilities up .40 to a new high for the year.

'You Know What I'd Like To Do? I'd Like To Push This Right Down Over That Guy's Ears'

Drummond Tells Salinger Worth of Press Conference

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

To Pierre Salinger: WASHINGTON — It is my hope and conviction that President-elect Kennedy with your strong endorsement, will put the White House press conference to fuller and more effective use than at any time since the end of the war.

It would be a boon to the President. The White House press conference is a valuable instrument of presidential leadership. It has been used by few Presidents to its full potential.

DRUMMOND

You have already offered one suggestion which would give the press conference a "New Frontier" and have invited professional reaction.

I think your suggestion is good that the President occasionally meet the press in the evening, thus permitting live television and radio. It is welcome because it would increase the value of the press conference instead of curtail it, as some advisers have unwisely been urging.

As correspondents, we, of course, have a professional interest in the presidential press conference. It is good for the press. The reporters missed them badly when President Truman and President Eisenhower held fewer and fewer. From 100 a year under Roosevelt, there were about 50 a year with Truman and fewer than 25 a year under Eisenhower.

But I would not urge that Kennedy hold more regular and more frequent press conferences did I not believe that the interests of the President and the public would be well served.

But I would not urge that Kennedy hold more regular and more frequent press conferences did I not believe that the interest of the President and public would be well served.

This is way I hope you will experiment with live TV and radio in order to give the press conference the widest audience.

This is why I hope you will reject the proposals in a Brookins Foundation Study designed to shield the President from effective question-and-answer confrontation with reporters.

These proposals, as reported by "Editor and Publisher," are harmful, retrogressive, unnecessary, and as old-frontier as the days of Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover.

Let us look at them briefly.

Proposal — That there be no direct quotation from the President.

Objection — Why shouldn't the President be responsible for what he says? Is it not better that the President's views be expounded in his own words on the basis of the recorded transcript than filtered to the public through what the reporters said he said? Kennedy is not tongue-tied and he is not slow of mind.

Proposal — That only written questions be permitted.

Objection — It is impossible for reporters to foresee all the questions which should be asked because some of the best and most appropriate questions come from what the President himself says. Some questions could be submitted in advance. It would be well to do so in order to produce the most responsive and informative answers. But others, especially the follow-up questions, must be asked spontaneously and orally.

Proposal — That the subject matter of the press conferences be limited by the President.

Objection — The President can always take the initiative and dominate the press conference. He doesn't have to answer every question, but he ought not to deny the right to ask. The President will create suspicion if he attempts very often to rule whole subjects beyond the bounds of questioning.

I am sure that I do not need to cite to you or to Kennedy that the President who was most unavailable, most uncommunicative, who most shielded himself from contact with the press, Hoover, had the hardest time in office, and that the President who was most communicative and most consistently accessible, Roosevelt, ably utilized the press conference as a powerful means of advocacy.

If Kennedy looks upon the press conference as an ordeal — as I feel sure he does not — it will be one. If he looks upon it as a means of vitalizing his leadership, it will be an invaluable tool of government.

A COMPANY OF CATS (both in the sense of numbers and companionship) will fill the air on Saturday Supplement, from 1 to 4 p.m. The cat from Alice in Wonderland, exotic cats from far off lands, and the cat next door are some whose story will be told. Don Marquis' cat, Mehitabel, will speak her own piece (she remembers Cleopatra, y'know); and there will be some bits of cat history of a more authoritative sort. Music devoted to, inspired by, or sounding like cats will be excerpted from the works of a number of outstanding composers. Tom Koehler dreamed up the idea, coordinated the program, and tied it with a pretty blue ribbon with a bell on it. (If it's anywhere near as good as the job he contrived last summer on the circus, it will be exceptional.)

BROADWAY AND JAZZ, formerly an unusual combination, have become more accustomed to each other in recent years. This is partly because many jazz musicians have taken to recording show music (frankly, they were running out of material) and partly because there are large numbers of people who "go for" anything called Show Music. Lately, the thing has become a two-way street with jazz musicians going into the theatre to accompany the action on stage (Thurber's Carnival is an e.g.).

Today's feature in ninety minutes of Tea Time Special will be a jazz-swing treatment of West Side Story by Manny Albam (it's an Albam album). The all-out Special version of Monday-Friday's Tea Time begins at 4 p.m.

THESE TWO LINES should be sufficient to remind you that WSUI and KSUI-FM will maintain a virtually full holiday schedule.

Triplets and Parents

Triplets — two boys and one girl — born Thursday morning in University Hospitals are pictured in incubators at the hospital. Parents of the triplets (insert) are Mr. and Mrs. Donovan McDonough of 605 Finkbine Park. McDonough is a graduate assistant in English at SUI. The triplets (from left) are Seamus Brian, Siobhon, and Padriac Conall. The McDonoughs have three other children, aged 6, 3½, and 2.

Tesher Defends Israel's Action in Eichmann Case

By DICK BUDD
Staff Writer

(Editor's note: This is the last of a series of articles covering an interview with David Tesher, consul general of Israel. The series deals with Israel and its relations with other countries in the Middle East.)

Israel caused a world-wide political tremor when it extralegally removed Adolf Eichmann from Argentina and whisked him to Israel for trial.

The one-time Nazi high executioner for Adolf Hitler will face a Jewish court in March charged with mass extermination of Jews during World War II.

Counsel General of Israel David S. Tesher has defended his country's action in the Eichmann case and appealed for understanding of the Jewish nation's move.

"It would be wrong to apply the principles of every day law to the Eichmann case because of its extraordinary nature," Tesher said.

"While we admit the seizing of Eichmann from Buenos Aires was in violation of the sovereignty of Argentina, it was the only way that justice could be done at the time.

"Israel is not looking for revenge, but seeks justification and clarification for Eichmann's acts. The world can be assured that he will be given a fair trial in a democratic country and in the glare of publicity," Tesher said.

The Israeli government has announced that approximately 374 newsmen from 35 countries have been assigned to cover Eichmann's trial. The government has set up closed circuit television, wire photo and telegraphic services from the courthouse in Jerusalem. Simultaneous translation of the proceedings is planned to aid correspondents.

"While it is true Israel was not a nation at the time Eichmann committed his crimes, where are the people now who are most concerned with the results of his actions?

"You must remember that Eichmann did not commit his crimes in Germany alone, but in Poland, Czechoslovakia and Russia as well. Should he be turned over to these countries for trial?

"We feel it better that he be tried in Israel where our justice does not have political limitations. Eichmann can not be allowed to go without trial. Had we not brought him from Argentina, he would still be a free man," Tesher continued.

"The extraordinary implications of Eichmann's crimes cannot be comprehended by the human mind. Show me the precedent or legal case to be cited for the handling of a similar crime.

"The nature of scope and method of this crime are unfathomable," Tesher said. "Death by poison, experimenting with women, selected annihilation of children — not even the most flagrant murder ever committed is comparable.

"The mistake our critics make is attempting to squeeze this tremendous happening into the confines of everyday law," Tesher concluded.

St. Louis Archbishop Is 6th U.S. Cardinal

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Archbishop Joseph Elmer Ritter of St. Louis, Mo., was nominated to the College of Cardinals Friday, along with two South American prelates and an Italian.

A biography of Archbishop Ritter distributed by the Vatican press office said, in part: "He has made a vast contribution in his diocese for the establishment of a fraternal climate between the different races, defending over-all the just aspirations of Negro citizens."

One of his first acts after being appointed archbishop in 1946 of the St. Louis diocese, with a Roman Catholic population of about 475,000, was to squelch organized opposition to admission of Negro pupils to Catholic schools in the diocese.

The four new princes of the Church will be elevated to the purple at a consistory here Jan. 16, increasing the size of the College of Cardinals for the fourth time since Pope John XXIII became Pontiff two years ago, to 86. Three were appointed "in pectore" — in his heart, or in secret — in March and their names have not been made public.

Appointment of Archbishop Ritter, 68, gives St. Louis its first cardinal since John J. Cardinal Glennon, who died less than a month after receiving his red hat in 1946 and before returning to St. Louis with it.

It gives the United States six cardinals — the others being: Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York, Albert Gregory Cardinal Meyer of Chicago, James Francis Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles, Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston and Aloisius Cardinal Muench, former bishop of Fargo, N.D., now a member of the Vatican Curia.

Named by the Pope in addition to Archbishop Ritter were the Most Rev. Luis Concha Cordoba, 69, archbishop of Bogota; the Most Rev. Joseph Umberto Quintero, 58, archbishop of Caracas; and Msgr. Giuseppe Ferretto, 61, assessor of the Vatican's Consistorial Congregation.

Hickerson Named To Citizens Unit

Loren Hickerson, director of the SUI Alumni Association, was named Friday to the board of directors of the state Citizens Action Committee for Fair Representation.

In 1960, Hickerson made numerous speeches in Iowa in support of reapportionment by constitutional convention.

Also named to the board was George C. Parks, Iowa City, Iowa business representative of the State, County and Municipal Employes union. Mrs. Fred H. Doderer, also Iowa City, had been named previously to the board of directors.

She and Hickerson were members of the former Citizens Committee for a Constitutional Convention. After defeat of the convention proposal in the November election, the committee was reorganized to continue efforts to achieve legislative reapportionment.

Santa Not Coming To Town

By ART BUCHWALD

We met an old friend the other day named Herb Sargent, a television writer, who was looking for ideas for a TV Christmas show.

Sargent seemed rather discouraged. "In American television, Christmas isn't treated as a holiday or a tradition, but a 'special event.' But it's very hard to find a new idea for a Christmas program. Everything seems to have been done before.

BUCHWALD

"I suggested a Christmas special with the Vienna Boys' Choir singing Christmas carols and Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin talking about Christmas cheer. But they said it was old hat and they wanted something new. Then I came up with a brainstorm. I said why don't we put on Santa Claus — the real one, fly him down from the North Pole, and let him do his act?

"At first they went nuts for it and they called a conference of all the television network executives, the producer, the man who sells the programs, and 12 vice-presidents. They all slapped me on the back and wanted to make me a vice-president. But then one of the executives said 'Wait a minute, fellows. So we fly him down from the North Pole — we can tie in with an airline and it won't cost us anything. Okay, what do we do with him when he gets here?'"

Sargent said, "I told them 'When we let him do his act, the bit with the reindeer, let him go down the chimney, show some toys, give him a few laugh lines and have him sing a song with Dinah Shore. What more do you want him to do?'

"One of the vice-presidents spoke up, 'I don't want to throw any damp Kleenex on this, but we want to show someone people believe in. Nobody except a few crazy kids believes in Santa Claus. I think we should get somebody the audience really believes in, like Jack Paar or Arthur Godfrey.'

"'Tab's right,' the advertising man said. 'Besides, who can we get to sponsor the show? Obviously the razor and electric shaving companies are out. Claus's sleigh eliminates the automobile people. What does he smoke?'

"'A pipe,' someone said.

"'Well, there goes the cigarette accounts,' the advertising man said.

"Another executive spoke up. 'What about that weight reducing company that was looking for a Christmas show? Couldn't he take off a few—'

"'Forget it,' the producer said. 'I'm not going to take the responsibility of getting his weight down in time.'

"A vice-president then spoke up. 'Maybe we could use him for a guest spot? Violence is going over big this year. Why don't we show Santa Claus whipping his reindeer and let it go at that?'

"'Yeah, but what do we do for the rest of the show?'

"'I've got it,' another VP said. 'Why don't we put Claus on "Open End?" We'll get David Susskind to show him up for the phony he really is.'

"'No,' someone replied, 'he'll start with the ho, ho, ho business before each question and people will switch off their sets. Whose idea was this in the first place?'"

Sargent said to us, "Everyone loked at me and I knew I had had it."

We asked, "So what are you going to do for a Christmas show?"

Sargent said, "I'm going to Vienna to see if it isn't too late to sign up the choir boys."

Hawk Cagers To Battle Wyoming

Time Out from Practice

Two members of the Oregon football team, in Philadelphia to play Penn State in the second annual Liberty Bowl game today, visited Philadelphia Metropolitan Hospital and autographed a football for a group of young patients. The players are Mickey Bruce, at left, and Mike Gaechter, both right halfbacks.

Opposition from the West invades the Iowa Field House tonight as Wyoming, replete with six players of Iowa origin, challenges the Hawkeyes at 7:30 p.m. Iowa will be seeking its fourth win against a single loss.

Monday, Iowa will host Arizona to wrap up its four-game home stand. After a short Christmas break, the Hawks will fly to the West Coast to take part in the eight-team Los Angeles Classic Dec. 28-30.

Wyoming (3-1) will bring to the Field House a squad with more Iowans than any team that has yet faced the Hawkeyes. One is guard Earl Nau, a 5-11, 170-pound senior from Mt. Pleasant, who lettered as a reserve at Iowa two years ago.

In addition, Wyoming coach Bill Strannigan for five years was cage boss at Iowa State University.

"Strannigan has been noted for his defensive teams," Iowa coach Sharm Scheuerman reported. "We look for them to throw at us a defense similar to the one St. Louis used.

"There's a possibility they will zone us. It will probably be a low scoring game," the coach revealed.

Wyoming has beaten South Dakota, Oregon and Baylor so far this season, with a single loss to strong Wichita.

Scheuerman also is concerned with Iowa's ball-handling mistakes. "When you lose the ball against a team like Wyoming it's going to hurt even more," the coach said.

The Hawks have been working hard this week in an effort to overcome mechanical mistakes which have sharply cut Iowa point production. But personnel problems also have taken much time in practice.

The Hawks are set at center and one forward position with aged sophomore Frank Allen and Don Nelson, respectively, but lack a forward opposite Nelson, as well as guards with height.

Coach Sharm Scheuerman has insisted that Iowa will need a forward who can shoot and feed, as well as taller guards if Iowa is to be a success this season.

In Nelson, the Rock Island grad who now has a 25.7 average for Iowa, the Hawks have one of the best in the business. Scheuerman recently called Nelson "one of Iowa's all-time best."

Allen has been a big help so far this year. He has been the squad's most consistent rebounder and has taken much of the scoring pressure off Nelson, who has responded with more points.

But the other forward is a question mark. In the four games this season, Iowa has used Dennis Runge, Dick Shaw and Tom Harris at the spot. But each is lacking in some phase of the game. The search goes on.

At guard, Dave Maher and Ron Zagar have been sparkplugs but lack height necessary to contain the opposition shooters. Some help may come from Matt Szykowny, who at 6-1 is three or four inches taller than the other guards.

In addition to Nau, Wyoming has another starter who is an Iowan, forward Maynard Lang, Monticello. He is a transfer from Iowa State.

The other Iowans are Dick Bowers, Mike Rawson, Bill Stuart and Bob Steckman. Steckman averaged 9.1 points a game last season.

Penn State, Alabama Picked In Liberty, Bluebonnet Bo wls

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Penn State pits its power and depth against Oregon's speed in the second annual Liberty Bowl football game at Philadelphia Stadium Saturday.

State is a seven-point favorite for the nationally televised game (NBC) based on its strong regular season finish, winning its last four games. The Nittany Lions of Coach Rip Engle won six and lost three, defeating Army, Maryland, Holy Cross, Pittsburgh, Boston U. and West Virginia, and losing to Missouri, Syracuse and Illinois.

Oregon's Webfoots posted a 7-2-1 seasonal record, losing by one point to Rose Bowl-bound Washington and 21-0 to Michigan of the Big Ten. The Ducks beat Idaho, Utah, Washington State, San Jose State, California, Stanford, West Virginia and tied with Oregon State.

HOUSTON (AP) —Alabama, a one-point favorite, meets Texas Saturday before a crowd of 70,000 in a Bluebonnet Bowl battle matching two veteran bowl-game schools.

Alabama rates the narrow edge on strength of a 8-1-1 record the Crimson Tide compiled despite a plague of injuries. Texas had a 7-3 season and lost its three games by a total of only nine points.

Standing-room-only tickets went on sale Friday for the Rice University stadium game that will be televised nationally (1 p.m., CST, CBS).

Each team will pick up over $100,000 while trying to start a new winning streak for postseason classics. Alabama will be making its 14th appearance in a bowl game, Texas its 10th. Both schools have lost their last two postseason tests.

19 Major League Players Involved in 3-Week Trading

By The Associated Press

The major leagues have completed nine transactions involving 19 players during the three-week interleague trading period, beginning Nov. 21 and ending Friday night at midnight.

Seven of the deals, including the big one which sent Cleveland outfielder Harvey Kuenn to San Francisco for pitcher Johnny Antonelli and outfielder Willie Kirkland, were of the interleague variety. These included three cash sales. The Milwaukee Braves, who finished second to the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League last season, were involved in four deals.

KUENN

In an effort to strengthen their infield, the Braves obtained second baseman Frank Bolling from Detroit for four players and shortstop Roy McMillan from Cincinnati for two.

Outfielder Billy Bruton, infielder Chuck Cottier, catcher Dick Brown and pitcher Terry Fox went to the Tigers and pitchers Joey Jay and Juan Pizarro went to the Reds. Pizarro was immediately shipped by Cincinnati, along with veteran right-hander Cal McLish to the Chicago White Sox for third baseman Gene Freese.

The Braves also purchased Billy Martin from the Reds, releasing first baseman Frank Torre to make room for the veteran second baseman. Earlier, they had purchased Brown from the White Sox.

In an even swap, the Philadelphia Phillies sent pitcher Gene Conley to the Boston Red Sox for Frank Sullivan, a right-hander.

The Dodgers sold two players, outfielder Earl Robinson to the Baltimore Orioles for a reported $50,000 and left-handed pitcher Danny McDevitt to the New York Yankees for a little over the $20,000 waiver price.

Gophers Get AP Crown

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota will accept the crown of Associated Press national football champion today and will wing toward the Rose Bowl.

Thousands of students and well-wishers are expected to gather at Wold-Chamberlain Field to roar a sendoff for the California-bound Gophers and to witness their acceptance of the national championship award.

Coach Murray Warmath, flanked by All-America guard Tom Brown and Capt. Greg Larson, will receive The Associated Press trophy from George Moses, AP chief of bureau in Minneapolis, at the airport.

The award goes annually to the team judged No. 1 in the nation in The Associated Press poll. It goes to Minnesota this year for the third time in the 25 years it has been presented.

The Gophers, tailenders in the Big Ten a year ago, won it with a record of eight victories and one defeat and a share of the Big Ten championship for the first time in 19 years.

But primed on the coast and apparently unawed is Washington, also only once-beaten and a landslide winner over Wisconsin in last year's Rose Bowl.

Packers Favored For Championship

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Green Bay Packers are favored by 10 points to defeat the injury-hit Los Angeles Rams today and wrap up the National Football League's Western Division title.

A crowd of 60,000 at Memorial Coliseum plus a national television audience will watch the battle as the Packers shoot for their first NFL championship since 1944.

Kickoff will be at 11:35 a.m. (CST).

Also keenly viewing the contest will be the Baltimore Colts, San Francisco 49ers and Detroit Lions. A Ram victory could throw the division race into either a two-club or three-club playoff depending on the outcome of Sunday's games.

SUI Wrestlers Meet Illinois In Dual Bout

Coach Dave McCuskey's Hawkeye wrestling team meets Illinois today, seeking its second straight dual win of the season. The Hawks beat Indiana 24-15 in last week's season opener. The Illini also beat Indiana, 23-15.

McCuskey has a full team for this week's meet, and will not have to forfeit two matches as was the case against the Hoosiers. The Iowa team is led by captain Joe Mullins, 167, and Joe Chezum, 177-pounder, who won the AAU invitational meet title at that weight two weeks ago.

Francis Frye will be the probable starter for the Hawks at 115, and the Hawkeye coach hopes Sherwyn Thorson, heavyweight, would be available for the match against Illinois.

The probable lineup for the match today listed by the Hawkeye coach is: 115, Francis Frye; 123, Don Huff; 130, Tom Huff; 137, Herm Reininga or Dave Gates; 147, Syd Walston; 157, Steve Combs; 167, Joe Mullins; 177, Joe Chezum; 191, Dick Jenkins; and Sherwyn Thorson, heavyweight.

This is the last meet for the Hawkeyes until January 5th and 6th when they travel to Oklahoma where they will face the Oklahoma State Cowboys, and the Oklahoma Sooners. The first home meet of the season will be January 21st, at 2 p.m. against defending Big Ten champion Minnesota.
