Regents Vote No On Trimesters

DES MOINES (AP) — The State Board of Regents decided Thursday the trimester plan of year-around operation is not suitable for Iowa's three major institutions of higher education.

It filed away a report by the presidents of SUI, Iowa State University and Iowa State Teachers College on the trimester plan.

It also directed the presidents — Virgil M. Hancher of SUI, James Hilton of ISU and J. W. Maucker of ISTC — to recommend whether all three institutions should adopt a quarterly system, now in use at Iowa State, or the semester plan used at the other two schools. Rejection of the trimester plan came after Board Member Lester Gillette commented that the three Iowa institutions already offer substantially a year-around program for students who want it because all have extensive summer courses.

Under the proposed plan, now in use at the University of Pittsburgh and other institutions, including Parsons College at Fairfield, the year is divided into three "trimesters" of about 16 weeks each, instead of the traditional two semesters a year.

Its proponents say the plan permits more efficient use of a school's physical facilities and enables students to graduate in three years instead of four.

However, in the report of the presidents, delivered to the board in December, they said they felt the disadvantages of the plan outweigh the good points as far as Iowa is concerned.

They pointed out the long summer trimester is unsuited for public school teachers taking additional training, and there is poor calendar coordination with elementary and secondary schools used for student teaching.

The presidents also pointed out difficulties had arisen with accrediting bodies which base requirements on a traditional type of school year, and the system could cause eligibility problems for athletes and scheduling difficulties for intercollegiate athletic competition.

Laos Planes Make Raids On Rebels

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Laotian pilots raided rebel lines Thursday for the second day in a row, flying four hastily armed obsolete training planes supplied by the United States. The biggest battle of Laos' six-year-old civil war was believed shaping up.

While British and French diplomats in Vientiane expressed fear of Communist retaliation, a top U.S. official defended the air strikes as a defense measure against a big pro-Communist rebel buildup to the north.

When the battle will come no one here knows. But Western military experts said quick action is necessary to offset continuing Soviet air drops to rebels in north-central Laos.

The targets of the propeller-driven planes, delivered by the United States only Tuesday, were secret. And a tight security screen was thrown around the capital's field from which they flew.

The planes were making repeated strikes. Each was armed with two machine guns and with racks for two 100-pound bombs and two rockets.

It was believed one target almost certainly was the Plaine des Jarres. Western military experts estimate leftist Capt. Kong Le and his pro-Communist Pathet Lao guerrilla allies are missing about 6,000 men on the plain.

The plain, with its four airstrips, has a cross-country road leading from Communist North Viet Nam westward to Luang Prabang, the royal capital 150 miles north of Vientiane.

Premier Boun Oum's forces are assembling by light planes and helicopters at Tha Thom and Paksane, 40 and 80 miles respectively south of the plain.

Western military sources said the Government can put 4,000 to 6,000 regulars into the battle, plus possibly 3,000 militia and volunteers. This would mean the biggest engagement of the civil war, which up to now has been largely one of skirmishes and guerrilla strikes.

Socialized Medicine Mediocre, Says Stone

By CAROLYN JENSEN Staff Writer

Organized medicine leads to mediocrity in medicine, according to Dr. Daniel B. Stone, British opponent of socialized medicine and assistant professor of internal medicine at SUI.

"To have good medicine you have to have good doctors, and to have good doctors you have to encourage them," Stone said at a Union Board-sponsored panel discussion Thursday night.

Other members of the panel were Dr. George N. Bedell, associate professor of internal medicine; Robert Boynton, assistant professor of political science; John S. Harlow, associate professor of general business; and Richard N. Hunt, assistant professor of history, all advocates of socialized medicine.

Dr. Stone stressed that good medical care is the responsibility of both the physician and the patient.

"Under the British system of socialized medicine," Dr. Stone said, "there are no penalties for bad patients. Patients tend to call physicians unnecessarily because they don't have to pay."

Dr. Bedell said that the inadequacies of the British system possibly resulted from the intense opposition of the British Medical Association (BMA). "Because the BMA refused to recognize the need for socialized medicine, the system had to be worked out by individuals outside the medical profession."

Hunt believes that the increase in calls by British doctors is not a reflection of increased British hypochondria. "A need is now being met in Britain that could not be met before," he said.

Boynton said that he does not wish to import the entire British system. He believes a less rigid system of socialization can be worked out for the United States.

Harlow desires an American system of socialized medicine, partly because physicians would have more opportunity for contact among themselves. "Physicians not coming into contact with others tend to let their practices degenerate," he said.

Ike -- Principles Must Endure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower called on his successor Thursday to stick to principles which he said kept America strong and free in a world menaced by Communist troublemakers.

Reviewing the record of his eight years in office, during which he said the country has risen to unprecedented heights while holding Red imperialism in check, Eisenhower said: "These vital programs must go on. New tactics will have to be developed, of course, to meet new situations, but the underlying principles should be constant."

The 70-year-old retiring president began and ended his final State of the Union message to Congress with prayerful good wishes for President-elect John F. Kennedy, although he did not mention his successor's name.

"To him, every citizen, whatever his political beliefs, prayerfully extends best wishes for good health and for wisdom and success in coping with the problems that confront our nation," Eisenhower said at the outset.

And in closing: "Let us pray that leaders of both the near and distant future will be able to keep the nation strong and at peace, that they will advance the well-being of all our people, that they will lead us on to still higher moral standards, and that, in achieving these goals, they will maintain a reasonable balance between private and governmental responsibility."

Before turning over the reins to his 43-year-old Democratic successor next Friday, Eisenhower will send Congress a new budget for the coming year, as required by law, and an annual economic message.

The News In Brief

By The Associated Press

HAVANA — Cuba turned from the task of repulsing a "Yankee invasion" that never came to planning a victory parade to demonstrate support for Prime Minister Fidel Castro's revolutionary government.

Propaganda organs abruptly dropped warnings of the U.S. attack once freely predicted by Castro. Instead they concentrated on rallying a massive crowd for a march to the presidential palace Friday night.

Whether Castro will address the people is still not certain. But those here are quite certain that if he does, he will announce that the "aggressors from the north" have been frightened away once again.

MOSCOW — Premier Khrushchev has bawled out the Communist party chief in the great grain-producing Ukraine for lying about corn production, warning, "You will pay for this lack of leadership."

The premier then suggested that farmers be taught to operate tractors and combines instead of importing professionals from thousands of miles away for a harvest lasting only 15 days. This suggestion could have a tremendous effect in boosting Soviet agriculture production.

WASHINGTON — Outgoing Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming Thursday rang down the curtain on the White House Conference on Aging with a plea for the federal government to help retired people pay their medical bills.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — The Cuban ambassador and the Soviet Embassy's first secretary Thursday night were ordered to leave Uruguay for engaging in subversive activities.

Both were declared persona non grata — unwelcome. They were linked with pro-Castro subversion, demonstrations and street fights that led to a government raid Wednesday on Communist headquarters and the arrest of 139 persons.

Airman Killed As Jet Crashes

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — One airman was killed but three parachuted safely Thursday when a huge six-engine Air Force jet bomber crashed as it was starting a simulated bombing run on Winslow, Ariz.

The big B-47 crashed and burned near the famed Mt. Palomar University, starting a five-acre brush fire.

The Air Force said all four aboard the plane parachuted but the navigator-instructor, Lt. Col. Irwin L. Williams, of Riverside, Calif., was dead when he was found. Williams, 40, is survived by his widow, and two children.

Several students from the University of Georgia at Athens relax in the sunshine Thursday in contrast to a wild, riotous demonstration last night by several hundred white students. Rusk Sees No Immediate Relations with Red China

By ROWLAND EVANS JR. WASHINGTON (HTNS) — Dean Rusk, who has been chosen as secretary of state in the Kennedy administration, testified Thursday that he sees "no prospect at the present time that normal relations could be established" with the Chinese Communist regime.

Rusk promised deep study of this and other outstanding foreign policy questions, but he was adamant in ruling out recognition of the mainland regime, or supporting the growing international effort to admit Peking to the United Nations, under present conditions.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee invited Rusk to answer questions about his competence to assume the cabinet post Jan. 20.

Republicans on the committee were unsuccessful in establishing what appeared to be a key point for them — that Kennedy might listen more to Chester Bowles, who has been picked for under secretary, and to Adlai E. Stevenson, who will be the chief United States delegate to the United Nations, than to Rusk.

Dean G. Acheson, Secretary of State under former President Truman, was also mentioned as a possible source of inordinate influence with Kennedy. It was Acheson who placed Rusk, at his own request, in the hotly-controversial job as assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs in 1950, not long before the Korean War broke out.

Rusk said that he, not they, would be the President's chief adviser; that he and they had the "same objectives," and that the new President "should not be confronted with a monolithic judgment."

He flatly denied that Kennedy had given Bowles and Stevenson "autonomy" in their roles. He said: "I do not anticipate any difficulty in this matter."

On other major policy questions, Rusk invariably used conditional words, carefully avoided commitments and sometimes declined outright, on grounds that the new administration had not yet taken office, to speculate. This is what he said:

1. On summit conferences: It would be "improper to generalize" but "well-timed and well-planned" state visits have their place in diplomacy. Traditional diplomacy making intelligent use of ambassadors has just as much importance today as ever before.

2. On Quemoy and Matsu: He declined to enter a discussion of this delicate issue with Sen. Lausche. "I want a complete briefing on all these matters," Rusk said, before determining policy. He said he would not presume to speak for Kennedy at this time.

3. On Cuba: Of course the United States has "vital interests" in this area, but he would not comment on future policy now.

4. On China: While seeing no prospect of normal relations with the mainland regime, Rusk said it was "most sobering" to consider the possibility of Red China obtaining the nuclear bomb.

5. On the United Nations: He disagreed that trends in the world body necessarily boded ill for the United States. The U.N., he said, offers "a range of common interest on which we can build." The United States need not find itself "overridden" by votes in the 99-nation General Assembly.

Quiet After Riot

Several students from the University of Georgia at Athens relax in the sunshine Thursday in contrast to a wild, riotous demonstration last night by several hundred white students. During the disturbance, which was in protest of forced integration of the school, Hamilton Holmes and Charlayne Hunter were withdrawn from the school for their own safety, according to University officials.

Riot Forces Suspension Of Negroes

MACON, Ga. (AP) — A federal judge dealt a killing blow to Georgia school segregation laws Thursday but took no action to return two Negro students to the University of Georgia from which they were whisked by order of the Governor after campus rioting Wednesday night.

U.S. Dist. Judge W. A. Bootle invalidated the state appropriations law ban against the use of tax money for the support of an integrated public school or college.

He continued in effect an injunction granted Tuesday against Gov. Ernest Vandiver and other state officials which had kept them from closing the University by cutting off funds. Vandiver had planned a temporary shutdown for legislative repeal of the fund cut-off law.

Attorneys for the Negro students asked for another injunction to cancel suspension of Charlayne A. Hunter, 18, and Hamilton E. Holmes, 19, and speed them back to classes at the University in Athens, Ga.

Overruling them for the time being, Bootle told the attorneys to file a written motion and he would consider it as soon as possible.

Donald L. Hollowell, counsel for the students and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, prepared to draw up the motion.

Bootle said the funds cut-off provisions of the state statute were patently unconstitutional and that similar laws had been struck down time and again in other Southern states.

The new decree of Bootle, who last week brought on a series of developments culminating in the campus riot by ruling the Negroes must be admitted to the University, made it unnecessary for the legislature to do any amending of the funds cut-off law.

Vandiver, who held that he and the legislature should be given the chance to change the racial pattern if it must be done, had no immediate comment on the federal decree expected to hasten the integration of public schools as well as the University.

But he made it clear at a news conference that he has no plans to help Miss Hunter and Holmes return to classes at the university.

While the judicial, legislative and executive moves proceeded Holmes and Miss Hunter waited in their homes in Atlanta.

Overruling them for the time being, Bootle told the attorneys to file a written motion and he would consider it as soon as possible.

Donald L. Hollowell, counsel for the students and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, prepared to draw up the motion.

Enquirer interviews must be "proactive and revealing, with top celebrities disclosing unusual facets of a personality's life."

Some typical titles the Enquirer has run include: "Little Caesar is a Soffie," "Marilyn Monroe's Worst Enemy: Her Body," and "The New Elvis — He Ain't What He Used to Be."

In the crime department, the magazine wants "fast-paced stories that reveal clever police work against a background of mounting tension. Current stories are preferable, though an exceptional classic piece is sometimes welcome."

Two "classic" titles from this category are: "I Saw Two Men Lynched," and "The Vicar Faked His Own Death."

"Writers of true adventure, do you have an exciting, edge-of-the-chair thriller up your sleeve?" asks the prospectus hopefully.

"Then the Enquirer is your dish. But remember, we like them fast and suspenseful and these stories must be absolutely authentic."

Here are a couple absolutely authentic titles: "I Escaped From a Sea Coffin — But 99 Other Men Drowned Like Rats," and "Pit of Doom — He Survived Three Years in a Stinking, Steaming Hell."

Perhaps of all its departments, the Enquirer has gained its greatest admiration for its highly important services to the consumer. "Consumer interest," boasts the Enquirer, "is a fruitful field for the painstaking writer who can dig up fully-documented articles."

As a result of painstaking efforts, the Enquirer has featured these articles: "Borden Pleads Guilty on Filthy Milk Rap," "Three Million Dozen Bad Eggs Are Sold Each Year," "He Guzzled a Coca-Cola and Found a Cockroach in His Mouth," and "Filthy Fowl Can Kill You."

The Enquirer has a section on weird and supernatural articles. "They must be backed up by facts — no flights or fantasy," warns the prospectus. Their first factual title is "I Was Saved by the Hand of My Dead Father," followed by "I Dug Gold Out of Graves — By Selling Dead Voices From the Past."

"Tomorrow's 30-Second Lunch — A Handful of Capsules," represents a title from the science and medicine category and these are examples of the general stories: "I'll Marry Anyone for $3,000," "I've Been Married 16 Times," (perhaps written by the same author as the preceding story).

With opportunities offered by a magazine of this calibre, it's hard to understand why there isn't a mass exodus of students from the journalism-school. However, at last count, everyone was still around Iowa City.

Rescuers Exposed To Radiation

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Twenty-three men were exposed to radiation in rescue and recovery operations after last week's reactor explosion that killed three technicians, the Atomic Energy Commission revealed Thursday.

The report indicated none of the 23 men exposed is hospitalized and precautionary checkups "show no clinical symptoms."

Pedestrian vs. Motorist

Wednesday evening a SUI student was struck by a car and seriously injured. The student was crossing Madison Street toward University Library.

It was bound to happen. The most amazing thing is that someone hasn't been injured sooner. The pedestrian vs. automobiles contest in Iowa City is becoming more serious every day, but seems to attract little attention from the city's traffic authorities.

We had hoped that the institution of the "Yield to Pedestrians" signs at several strategic corners would give pedestrians at least a fighting chance. Not so — King Motorist continues merrily on his way, daring anyone to get across the street.

The Madison Street speedway is particularly notorious. There are no stop signs or traffic lights for the three blocks between the Iowa Avenue-Madison street intersection south to Burlington Street — making it a bit dangerous for the unfortunate pedestrian who ventures into the street during a drag race.

Iowa City traffic commissioner Fred Lewis told a Daily Iowan reporter that stop signs at the intersection of Washington and Madison had been removed because it would be difficult for cars to stop when snow is on the pavement.

Of course they wouldn't be able to stop. It is even doubtful that they will be able to slow down enough to make the corner — traveling at the speed that most of them do. A stop sign would perhaps slow most cars down to a reasonable speed. Better lighting would be a help. The corner is one of the darkest in Iowa City. A flashing yellow light like the one used when it is slick at Burlington and Madison would at least warn drivers to slow down. A similar situation exists at the intersection of Jefferson Street and Madison.

The three-way corner at Clinton and Iowa is another bad place. Only in this case, the pedestrian usually wins — maybe because cars have been slowed by stop lights on all corners one block away. Surely a light here would end some of the congestion.

Contrary to popular belief, Iowa City does have traffic and speed laws. Motorists, and it must be admitted, pedestrians, are inclined to take such laws with a grain of salt. The most widely observed law seems to be every man for himself — may the fittest survive.

So far we have been pretty lucky. But Wednesday's accident shows us what can happen. Something needs to be done before it happens again.

Non-Smoker's Lament

Dewey B. Stuit, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, sent "No Smoking" memos to various SUI classrooms Wednesday. These reminders were read to the classes meeting in the rooms that day.

The memos should not be necessary with the black and white "No Smoking" signs staring students in the face day after day, but then perhaps the students cannot see the signs in the smoke-shrouded rooms — or perhaps their reading comprehension is poor.

Dean Stuit's memo brought various reactions, among them boos, guffaws, and immediate "light-ups." "Bring your own ashtrays and I'm sure they won't mind," remarked one professor.

To us "No Smoking" means "No Smoking," regardless if a student has an ashtray, a sand-filled urn, or a 20-gallon fire extinguisher at his command! Since classes cannot be specially sectioned for smokers and non-smokers, it's imperative that this laxly-enforced regulation take on a new meaning. Not all the red-eyed students are new contact lens wearers, and not all the continual hackers are tubercular. A glance in one of these hazy "opium dens" during a class session shows graphically why these symptoms are prevalent among SUI non-smokers.

Therefore we urge students to obey the "No Smoking" signs. We are blank as to how to or who should enforce the regulation, unless a special Smoking Violations Division be added to the new College Disciplinary Board. Since this is unlikely, all we can do is offer a suggestion and plea to those subject to nicotine fits and other non-weed "catastrophic" seizures: Buy a plug and chaw, or suck lemon drops.

Student interest in reapportionment seems to be growing. Some of the methods suggested by which SUIJouans could help further the "cause" are: (1) an Equal Representation March to Des Moines; (2) threats to jump en masse down the three-story "hole" in the statehouse rotunda; (3) blockade of the Capitol itself. Another suggested we gather up Iowa's surplus corn, haul it to Des Moines, and spew it on the statehouse lawn as a symbol of disgust, similar to our noble ancestors' activities in Boston in 1773.

Bob Kennedy Faces Tough Questioning on Appointment

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND WASHINGTON — Since the Senate must confirm all members of the Cabinet, the appropriate committees are now holding hearings on Kennedy's top appointees.

They are being examined — and cross-examined — on their experience, their opinions, and the potential conflicts of interest. From Dean Rusk and Douglas Dillon at State and Treasury to Arthur Goldberg and J. Edward Hay at Labor and the Post Office, they are all being submitted to a degree of senatorial scrutiny.

DRUMMOND

I say "to a degree" because unless the appointee is acutely controversial or egregiously unfit, the precedent is to let a President — and particularly a newly elected President — have a Cabinet of his own choosing.

Probably the only high official of the Kennedy Administration to be asked more than routine questions will be Attorney General-designate Robert F. Kennedy. There are honest anxieties among honest people, many of whom wish the Administration well concerning this appointment.

No senator is questioning Robert Kennedy's integrity or his dedication. But it is proper that the anxieties about his appointment on political and professional grounds should be aired. This could be more than a minor ordeal. How he responds to it will determine certain standards for the conduct of the Justice Department which can be helpful to Robert Kennedy in the performance of his office and which can help evaluate his performance. I would put the following uppermost:

1 — Non-partisanship. It is customary to think first of State and Defense as those departments of the Federal Government which ought to be conducted pre-eminently on a non-partisan basis. But the Justice Department needs, if possible, to be more non-partisan than either. If the Attorney General fails to demonstrate unequivocally that he is non-partisan and non-political, then public confidence in the law enforcement is seriously hurt. Hardly anything could be worse. If Robert Kennedy is to do his job a swell as he wants to do, it seems to me that he will need to make it conclusively clear that he is separating himself from the political, partisan mechanism of the Administration.

2 — Independence. A crucial responsibility of the Attorney General is the appointment of the ninety-one U.S. attorneys and some 500 assistants, and his recommendations to the President of federal judges. The integrity and competence of both the federal judiciary and of the law enforcement machinery rests largely with the Attorney General. He must be willing to stand out against massive political pressures from Congress and others. He must be willing and able to square his own recommendations with the exacting standards of the American Bar Association.

3 — The proprieties. The Attorney General is the lawyer for the United States. It is a position which has to be discharged with scrupulous prudence plus deep respect for the legal process which elevates means to the level of ends. It takes a harsh willingness to be personally unpopular to conduct the Justice Department well and to retain for it the respect of the legal profession,

Glorious Opening Night

'Love for Love'

—Deliciously Hysterical

By WALTER R. KELLER Daily Iowan Reviewer Last night Peter Arnott created an all-too-seldom-seen miracle at the University Theatre — he directed a glorious, smashing opening night in the presence of "Love for Love" by the Restoration playwright, William Congreve.

What Congreve has provided is essentially a bawdy comedy replete with one-night stands of love, feigned madness, necromancy, quasi-astrology, and a swelling batch of upper-crust, fashionable-set intrigues. Lover and mate-swapping is the rule rather than the exception. And this atmosphere lends itself admirably to the stylized comedy which was projected so well and so often.

Arnott cut away much of the posturing and exaggerated style, yet left just enough to add spice and zest to the fast pace.

The opening scene started a bit woefully. The funny bits of business created for Don McLean (Jeremy) were vitiated by his rather blah rendering of the lines. But a happy riot soon took over in the person of Steve Cole (Trapland) and Robert Bonnard (Tattle). After their entrances the play never hit a truly low point.

There were three outstanding performances among the major players and they provided us with the majority of the numerous brighter moments. Robert Bonnard was thunderously funny as the loose-tongued Tattle and Judy Puttcamp was just plain delectable as the girl from the provinces whom he woos. The scene between them on the couch as he explained the ridiculous intricacies and phony posturings of love among the well-bred was uproariously funny.

The impossible positions into which they rendered one another were deliciously hysterical. Miss Puttcamp had many memorable moments, but I'll especially remember her almost inaudible grunt after Bonnard has given its career officials, and the public. Robert Kennedy was not denied the Attorney Generalship because he was the President's brother. But he was not appointed because the President scoured the country and found none better.

In this sense Robert Kennedy is on trial. He has the intellectual equipment which could make up for inexperience as a practicing attorney. He will, I trust, welcome having his performance watched faithfully, fairly — and alertly.

(c) 1961 New York Herald Tribune Inc.

her the first passionate kiss of her life. I'll also not soon forget Bonnard's aghast reclining position after she had returned the compliment.

Bill Elwood consistently shone as Foresight, the bumbling, bungling, ill-omened astrologer. His quasi-mystical, beleaguered manner provided a superlative counterpoint to each character he played opposite.

Tom Carson (Scandal) and Nancy Cole (Mrs. Foresight) were generally acceptable — at times quite funny — but they had a scene together in the second act which conjured up memories of certain spiritless moments in "Separate Tables."

Jim Colby as Sir Sampson, Valentine's father improved noticeably after rather droopy early scenes which were unfortunately punctuated with his ill use of a large staff. However, he never quite managed to arrive at a sustained pace and so lacked some degree of believability.

Don Fibiger (Valentine) rose to some fine moments during his feigned madness which contrasted with what was a generally adequate performance overall.

Good supporting performances were turned in by J. D. Marcum, as Ben, and Margie Mee, as a nurse to Miss Prue. Phyllis Gold was a fashionable lady of fashion as Mrs. Frail.

I found Beverly Blackmore not strong enough as a counterpoint to most of the other leads. She lacked enough degrees of energy and variety.

Perhaps the only markedly unfortunate aspects of the evening were provided by the horrendous sets. At least two of them were utter abominations (Act I, Scene 1 and especially the lurid robin's egg blue and greenish blue of Act II, Scene 2). The sets were all the more sorrowful in view of the excellent use to which the revolve was put.

The costumes were beautiful. I keep seeing visions of the extraordinary costume of Bill Elwood in the second act — complete with turban and the startlingly simple, yet elegant, black and white of Tom Carson in the same act. Pat Crawford deserves large applause for her thoughtful creations.

But to hell with costumes, and who needs sets when you have captured the priceless elements of satire, comic invention, swift pace, and precise timing and molded them together in so sparkling a package as has Peter Arnott.

Go over, see the play, and congratulate him. I wish I could see it about eight more times.

U.S. Must Remain Vigilant

By J. M. ROBERTS Associated Press News Analyst The Soviet Union's role in Laos suggests that she and Red China may be playing interchangeable rather than merely complementary roles in Communism's 1961 "big push."

It also suggests that, in spite of their seeming compromise over who shall lay prime stress on "peaceful coexistence" and who shall hold in reserve the threat of force to decide the cold war, the West cannot afford to take an eye off either one.

Right now, although heavily preoccupied with the Soviet Union and Soviet arms in Cuba, and in Laos, the United States' outgoing President and the incoming secretary of state are taking time to emphasize their concern over Red China.

There are two immediate reasons. One is a subtle but growing inclination in Western diplomatic circles to credit the Soviet Union with a current if not permanent leaning toward continued non-shooting war.

The other reason for America's particular concern with Red China is the approach of a time when U.S. opposition will no longer be sufficient to prevent United Nations recognition.

When the Communist idiom has been sufficiently illumined by deeds to make the recent Communist manifesto really understandable, we are quite likely to find the two leading countries of the bloc playing the same game of expediency quite aside from ideology.

Now that American weapons have been pitted against Soviet weapons in Laos, Western observers will be watching closely to see what Red China, acting perhaps through her associates in North Viet Nam, will do as a corollary in South Viet Nam. Assassins and saboteurs have for more than a year been creating a situation there which is now ripe for trouble.

Good Listening— Today On WSUI

RABBIT'S FOOT, ANYONE? Listeners to the broadcasting facilities of the State University of Iowa would surely eschew such primitive totemism even on Friday the Thirteenth. After all, how much luckier can they get? Tonight at 7 p.m., for example, they face these attractive alternatives: the opera "Norma" on WSUI or three hours of high-fidelity recordings on KSUI-FM. Maria Callas, the stormy prima donna in real life, will address herself to the title role of Bellini's opera in a La Scala production directed by Tullio Serafin. As for the recordings on FM, nearly all will be new releases being heard for the first time. (Of late, record companies have provided comparatively accurate timing data for their releases to radio stations, and it is unnecessary even to play them once through prior to the first broadcast.) And if that isn't good fortune enough, listen to this.

BAD LUCK, on the other hand, is the underlying theme of editorial Page, today at 12:45 p.m. As President-elect Kennedy approaches inauguration Day, the editorial writers of the leading U.S. newspapers continue to discover more and more crises for him to resolve. No doubt today's EP will contain a few more troublesome items for the mounting list. Confident and competent as he may be, no President can be expected to overcome those unpredictable crises in our lives which are called "The Breaks": an unfortunate coincidence, bad timing, failure of a subordinate,

With No Thumping Flops Plays 'Go Down Squeaking'

By WALTER KERR NEW YORK (HTNS) — Once any season has passed its halfway mark it is customary to start calling it names. Only one season in ten has a real chance of being spoken of fondly; most are found to be rather more "disappointing" than the "disappointing" years directly preceding them, and 1960-61 is already coming in for its share of lumps.

But there is a difference. Substandard seasons are usually brought about by a bewildering number of thumping flops, outright disgraces. Last year, for instance, the theater seemed to have been trapped in a revolving door, ushering its bad plays out almost as soon as they'd entered, lest they somehow contaminate the area.

We have had our three-day blunders during these past four months, too. But, by and large, there have been few disasters distressing enough to compel decent men to avert their eyes. If "Rape of the Bell" crept quietly into history after a day or two of loneliness in the big Martin Beck, it wasn't because it deserved such swift and summary exile; it just didn't weigh enough to make people come and stare in wonder. If "Send Me No Flowers" has been sent flowers after a few undernourished weeks, it isn't because it lacked fun or a certain lazy charm; it simply lacked the get-up-and-go to get people going.

This isn't the year of the play that flies dithering to pieces before your very eyes, it's the year of the play that comes within an inch of squeaking by, and then goes down squeaking because it couldn't summon up that last ounce of necessary nerve.

We do seem to be going through a "please?" period in the theater, with our writers and actors and directors all playing it a bit shy, cocking their heads at us as though it would be nice if we liked them but never daring to demand that we do.

Iowa City Mayor Thelma Lewis Enjoys Cooking and Gardening

Iowa City's recently elected mayor, Mrs. Thelma B. Lewis, wife of an SUI professor, sees her home life as the typical life which any other housewife leads.

"I do my own housework and cook meals just as any other woman would do," Mrs. Lewis said at an interview at her home.

"My chief interest is cooking, and I like to entertain," she said. Mrs. Lewis' favorite recipe is a corn pudding which she found in the first cookbook she owned. Now, however, the recipe is slightly different than the original one since she has made her own revisions. The recipe, given below, is very good for large crowds, she said, because it is easily multiplied.

The corn she uses in her pudding is that from the Lewis garden — cut from the cob and preserved in the freezer. Mrs. Lewis does her own canning and freezing. "The vegetables come from the garden," she said, "but the fruit I have to buy. We do have fruit trees getting a start now." The orchard, which includes apples, apricot, cherry, plum, and pear trees, is Mr. Lewis' hobby.

"Native plums on the place," she said, "provide an excellent jelly however, and I regularly make jelly and jams from these." There are also wild grapes on the Lewis' land which Mrs. Lewis uses for jelly.

Mrs. Lewis said she has always had a vegetable garden, but when she and Mr. Lewis built their house, she decided she wanted to try flowers. Therefore, Mrs. Lewis' gardening has extended to a greenhouse which houses only flowers — of many varieties. Among two of her plants are a Bird of Paradise and a Cumbidium Orchid, both budding now.

"I usually spend at least 15-20 minutes a day working in the greenhouse and must spend several hours every three weeks for spraying insecticides and feeding the plants," Mrs. Lewis said. "During the indoor-outdoor transition, there is about two days work, both in the spring and in the fall. Last summer, she said, all the plants were moved outdoors."

In 1956, the temperature went down in the greenhouse, and the cold killed some of the plants," Mrs. Lewis said, "but I still have one of my original plants." Mrs. Lewis had given cuttings of a Coleus to friends and when the plants were killed, the friends, in turn, gave her some cuttings from their own grown plants.

"The greenhouse is a great pleasure," she said, "but like a child or a pet, it must have a sitter when we leave. We can't leave it longer than a day."

League To Study Local Planning, Apportionment

The January series of unit meetings for the Iowa City League of Women Voters will be concerned with two issues — reapportionment and local program planning.

The League, which will consider reapportionment plans presented to the 59th General Assembly, has set up six basic tenets for an adequate reapportionment bill and will measure new bills by them. The tenets are:

1. Reapportionment every ten years.
2. Representation in the House based solely on population.
3. Representation in the Senate to be based upon a combination to be based solely on population.
4. Reapportionment to be performed by a bi-partisan commission appointed by the Governor.
5. Provision for judicial review of a commission's redistricting upon the petition of a qualified voter within a defined period of time.
6. Enforcement or safeguard provision to insure that apportionment will occur every ten years.

Ideas for our local program will also be considered. Members may wish to continue the study of adequate water supply for Iowa and zoning as set forth in the Bartholomew Report. Other possible areas of study are a county government health unit, state constitution study as related to county reorganization, recreation with special emphasis on neighborhood parks, voting machines, and the up-dating of our "Citizen's Guide to Local Government in Johnson County, Iowa," using recent Know-Your-County study material.

The unit meetings will be held at the following homes: Tuesday, 8 p.m. May Tangen, 413 S. Johnson; Wednesday, 1:15 p.m., Mrs. E. K. Jones, 1498 Ash St.; Wednesday, 8 p.m., Mrs. Martin U. Martel, 1322 Whiting Ave. Ct.; Thursday, 9:15 a.m., Mrs. W. B. Goddard, 815 N. Linn; Thursday, 8 p.m., Mrs. Henry Harrison, 707 Eighth St., Coralville.

JFK Has Say On Wardrobe

By JOY MILLER
Associated Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's designer permitted a brief peek Thursday at the new First Lady's wardrobe, and disclosed that the President-elect had quite a bit to say about it.

"I feel he likes them very much," designer Oleg Cassini told 200 fashion editors of the nation's newspaper, here for the spring press week showings.

Cassini made public only three items from the wardrobe — a gown and a daytime coat and dress ensemble.

President-elect John F. Kennedy takes office a week from Friday. Mrs. Kennedy is keeping secret details of other dresses until the inauguration.

Cassini made it clear that the gown is not THE gown which she will wear to the inauguration balls that night, and that the ensemble can be worn anytime and may not necessarily be seen during the festivities.

He called the gown "a mere covering of white pristine satin, pure in line, pure in color and pure in detail."

It will, he said, "have one fluid line from shoulder to floor, unbroken except for a beguiling bow at the waistline."

It is sleeveless, with a simple, slightly rounded neck. The skirt is slim and the waist is fitted, with a slight easy blousing.

"It has a completely natural look," said Cassini, "with the dignity and fineness that can only be achieved by simplicity of design."

The daytime ensemble is a one-piece soft wool dress in fawn, a subdued beige. The silhouette is gently shaped to the figure with a natural shoulder and simple rounded neckline. Matching silk serge at the waistline and cuffs is the only accent.

The dress is to be worn with a matching coat of soft-finish wool. The coat is of a semifitted shape with a restrained flared hemline. Again, it has the natural shoulder and simple rounded neckline.

'Final' Flings Will Be Held Before Tests

Several SUI fraternities and sororities will hold final flings before settling down to some serious study and concentration for finals by holding parties and formals this week-end.

"June in January" will be the theme of the ALPHA CHI OMEGA social sorority's winter formal Saturday evening at the Mayflower. Steve Stewart and his band will provide dancing music until midnight.

The SIGMA PI social fraternity will hold its Winter formal "Playboy Party" Saturday. The Chapter house will be decorated to carry out the Playboy theme. A "Playmate" will be chosen by the chapter.

The dance will be preceded by a dinner at Bill Zuber's Dugout in Homestead. Music for dancing will be furnished by the Trio Plus group at the chapter house from 8 p.m. until 1 a.m.

The GAMMA PHI BEAT social sorority will hold a costume party Saturday evening at the Elks Club. The theme of the party is "Wish I Were," to portray secret desires. Dinner will be followed by dancing to the music of the Behm-Martin Sextette.

Sparkle Up Your Glass Casseroles With Baking Soda

To remove brown stains from glass baking dishes put three tablespoons of baking soda into each casserole and fill with hot water.

Soak for a few minutes then wash. If there are stubborn stains, rub with a damp cloth dipped in soda. Do not scour glass cook-ware with coarse abrasives. They may weaken the skin or surface and weaken the glass in that spot.

To Restrict Gala Activities

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — On advice of her doctors, Mrs. John F. Kennedy will restrict her participation to main inaugural ceremonies and festivities in Washington next week.

Pierre Salinger, press secretary to the President-elect, said in an announcement that the next first lady is having a normal recovery from the Caesarean birth of a son Nov. 25.

But Salinger added that her doctors want her to continue to take it relatively easy for a while. For that reason, Salinger added, Mrs. Kennedy will take part in only these inaugural events:

The concert and the fund-raising gala the evening of Jan. 19, and all of the principal inaugural events of Jan. 20. These include the oath-taking ceremony at the Capitol at noon that day, review of the inaugural parade from the area in front of the White House, and the inaugural ball that evening.

Spartans, Hawkeye Foe, Inexperienced

By JIM TUCKER
Staff Writer

The Michigan State basketball team, with a record of three wins and seven losses, is one of the most inexperienced Spartan squads in several years, but the Iowa coaching staff is not planning on an easy game for the Hawkeyes Saturday night.

Head Coach Sharm Scheuerman said Thursday, "On a given night, Michigan State could cause trouble for any team."

Assistant Coach Bob King added, "They should improve as the season progresses, and they could give us a real battle."

The Spartans won 10 and lost 11 last season and finished eighth in the Big Ten with a 5-9 mark. Their top two scorers, Horace Walker and Lance Olson, however, have graduated, and Coach Fordy Anderson has been forced to replace them with inexperienced sophomores.

The Michigan State offense is centered around guards Dave Fahs, 5-9, and Art Schwarm, 6-1, the only returning letter-winners on the team. They both carry 16-point averages. King called Fahs and Schwarm "two of the best guards in the country."

Fahs, the only senior on Michigan State's young squad, is said to resemble Boston Celtic star Bob Cousy with his ball handling. "He's real fast, a tremendous ball-handler, and a good shooter," said King.

The rest of the squad is made up of sophomores Ted Williams at center and Dick Hall and Ron Sabo at forwards.

Sabo, 6-6, made his debut in the recent Los Angeles Classic Tournament when he came off the bench to make 17 points and 15 rebounds against Minnesota.

Hall, 6-4, is a dangerous set-shooter and shoots well with both hands.

Coach King said, "Our main defensive problems will be to stop Fahs, Schwarm, and Hall."

Michigan State is 0-2 in the Big Ten, losing to Wisconsin 74-71 and to Indiana 79-55. They were defeated three times in the Los Angeles Tournament, including a 23-77 loss to Minnesota in a consolation game.

The all-time series between Michigan State and Iowa stands at 13-10 in favor of the Hawkeyes.

Iowa defeated the Spartans at Iowa City last season 92-79 but lost the game at East Lansing later in the year by a 90-80 score.

Gymnasts Open Home Season in Dual Meet

By GARY HICKOK

A most important meet faces the Iowa gymnastics squad Saturday. It will be the Big Ten opener against two formidable opponents, Michigan State and Minnesota, who last year finished ahead of Iowa in the Big Ten gymnastics championships. Meet time is 2 p.m. north gym of the Field House.

Although competing with what Coach Dick Holzapfel calls "reduced numbers," the Hawkeyes will be riding on the strength of a record that has seen only three dual meet defeats in the last three years. During the regular season last year, Iowa beat Minnesota 60-52 and was tied by Michigan State 56-56.

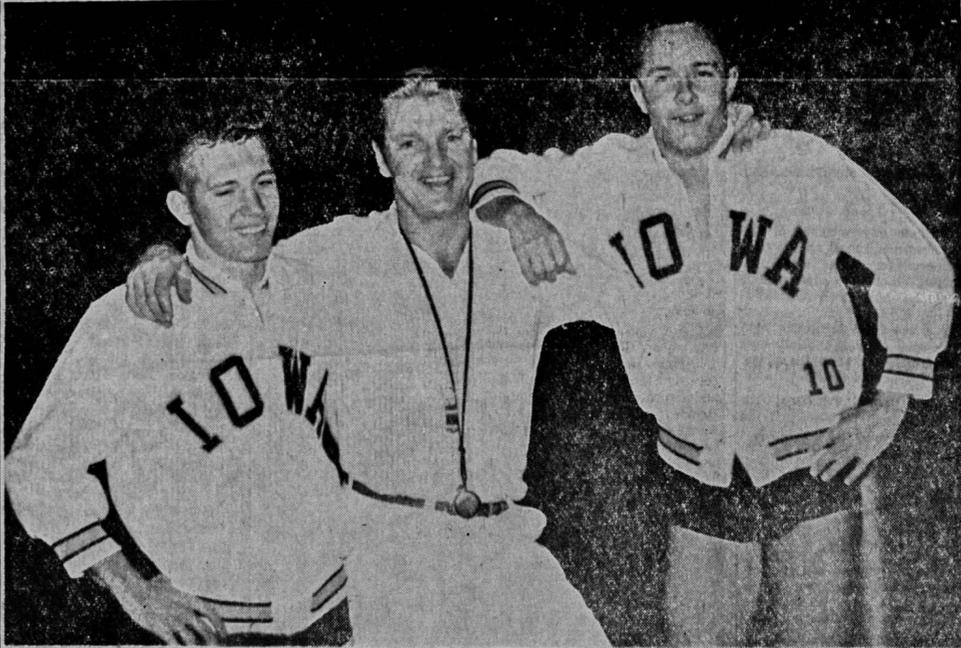

With the caliber of these two opponents, Holzapfel said his men can't afford to make mistakes and that "our strength will depend on the men doing their routines."

Competing for Iowa will be co-captains Roger Gedney and Don Carney, Ron Crago, Hans Burchard, James Liddell, Russ Porterfield, Bob Schmidt, Ed Wilson and Drew Mawhinney.

Gedney led the Hawkeyes in their 61-51 loss to the University of Illinois (Chicago) last week and provides strength in free exercise and tumbling. Burchard, who has had difficulty thus far but is expected to be one of Iowa's top gymnasts this year, should be decidedly better on free exercise

Intramural Wins Easy

Runaway wins were the rule in Wednesday's intramural heavy-weight action. The results: Delta Tau Delta 56, Sigma Nu 26; Sigma Chi 63, Phi Kappa Sigma 34; Alpha Kappa Kappa 55, Nu Sigma Nu 30; West Tower 54, Upper A 31; Higbee 45, Phillips 26; Calvin 54, O'Connor 44; Seashore 29, Mott 24; Phi Beta Pi 25, Phi Rho Sigma 21; Delta Upsilon 22, Beta Theta Pi 20.

Hawk Swimmers Face Kansas--

Tankers at Home Tonight

Iowa's swimming team will open its 1961 home season with two dual meets this weekend at the Field House Pool. The Hawkeyes face Kansas tonight at 7:30 and Michigan State Saturday at 3:30.

Iowa Coach Bob Allen said, "We should beat Kansas," but he was less optimistic about Michigan State, pointing out that the Spartans have tremendous depth.

Allen considers Les Cuffler in the backstroke and Co-Capt. Bill Claerhout in the freestyle event as Iowa's best chances for points in both meets.

Other top Hawkeyes are Chuck Mitchell, 200-yard individual medley; Co-Capt. Ray Carlson, butterfly; Bill Meyerhoff, sprints; and Binkey Waddington, 440.

Probable swimmers in Iowa's relays will be Cutler, Howard Heid, Mitchell, and Cooper Weeks in the 400-yard medley, and Claerhout, Tom Cronwell, Weeks, and Mike McWilliams in the 400-yard freestyle.

"Kansas does not have too much depth, but they have some good, strong men," said Allen.

Top Jayhawk performers are Eldon Ward, sprints; Dick Reamon, butterfly; Mike Cassidy, 220 and 440; Karl Pfuetze, breaststroke; and Joe Tiller, backstroke.

Michigan State, Iowa's Saturday foe, is reportedly a much improved team over last season. The Spartans have 12 returning lettermen and several promising sophomores.

In their only meet this year, the Spartans placed second to powerful Indiana at the Big Ten Relays last week, and they finished ahead of Michigan, 1960 Big Ten Champion.

Michigan State is led by Bill

Stewart, a former NCAA champion. Stewart, a native of South Africa, was ineligible last year because of a Big Ten ruling on foreign athletes. A special provision, however, has given him another year of competition.

Stewart won the 440 and the 1500-meter freestyle events at the NCAA meets in 1958 and 1959.

Other leading Spartans are Dick Brackett and Carl Shaar. In last year's NCAA meet, Brackett finished fifth in the 220-yard freestyle and Sharr finished sixth in the 220-yard butterfly event.

Houston Upsets Bradley; Drake Tumbles at Tulsa

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A free throw by Jim Lemmon with 35 seconds to play gave Houston a 60-59 upset victory Thursday night over Bradley, the nation's No. 2 ranked basketball team.

It was the first defeat of the season for Bradley after 12 victories. The upset snapped an 18-game winning streak in the game last February.

With Tim Robinson hitting 22 points the first 20 minutes, Bradley took a 39-29 halftime lead, only to see Tommy Thomson lead Houston's quick comeback in the second half.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Tulsa displayed its best ball handling and shooting of the season Thursday night to whip Drake 81-69 in a Missouri Valley Conference basketball upset.

The outcome left both teams with 1-2 Valley records and dropped Drake's season record to 10-2. Tulsa now is 6-6.

A great team effort by the Tulsa squad was paced by two sophomores. Gary Hevelone led the Tulsa scoring with 26 points while

Unitas Meets Van Brocklin In Final Test

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Unitas said Thursday he's looking forward to Sunday's pro bowl game and what may be his last quarterback duel with Norm Van Brocklin.

"I'm sorry to see Van Brocklin retire. He's a great one," said Unitas, who pilots the West in the annual postseason donnybrook for National Football League all-stars.

Unitas, the bombardier from Baltimore, said Van Brocklin will have an edge in working with Philadelphia Eagle teammates Tommy McDonald, Bobby Walston and Ray Retzlaff. But Unitas said the West has a few aces to play, too.

Rounding out the West's backfield with fullback Jim Taylor of Green Bay are Lenny Moore and Jon Arnett of Los Angeles.

Unitas has a couple of running and pass-catching aces up his sleeve, Nick Pietrosante of Detroit and Paul Hornung, Green Bay's jack-of-all-trades.

The West has won six of the previous 10 battles.

Kerbawy Handed Leave Until July

DETROIT (AP) — Fred Zollner Thursday night handed W. Nick Kerbawy a leave of absence from his post as general manager of the Detroit Pistons because of what he called "Kerbawy's active participation in the Detroit Lions' stockholders fight."

Zollner said the leave of absence — in effect almost a suspension — would be in effect immediately and would continue until July 1.

Grimm Added to Chicago's Unique 'Board of Coaches'

CHICAGO (AP) — Charlie Grimm, a three-time manager of the Chicago Cubs, and Verlon Walker, a club employe since 1948, Thursday were named to the Cub's board of coaches.

They were the sixth and seventh men appointed to a proposed eight-member coaching staff from which the 1961 Cub field manager apparently will emerge. Immediately, there was speculation that Grimm might be tapped for a fourth term as Cub field boss.

Owner P. K. Wrigley said, at a complex news conference, that the eventual Cub leader (Wrigley disdains the term of "manager") will be determined in spring training.

"One man will emerge as the leader," said Wrigley, who added he would not appoint any particular top man, asserting this would come about "automatically."

Grimm, 62, also one of three Cub vice presidents, said he was not interested in becoming field manager, "head coach," or whatever title the 1961 Cub leader may carry.

"I've had too many turns already," Grimm said. He conceded, however, that he would do whatever Wrigley adjudged best for the Cubs.

Grimm first was Cub manager in 1932, continuing through 1937. He also was the top Cub man from 1945 through 1948. After the 1959 season, Grimm succeeded Bob Scheffing and was manager until last May 5 when he was replaced by Lou Boudreau.

On the Cub coaching staff now with Grimm and Walker, are Rip Collins, Harry Craft, Vedic Himsel, Goldie Holt and Elvin Tappe. Collins and Holt recently were hired, the others being holdovers from 1960.

There was no indication when the eighth coach will be named.

The Cubs will not appoint managers for their minor league affiliates at San Antonio of the Texas League and Wenatchee of the Northwest League. Instead, "roving coaches" from the Cub's eight-man staff will fill the jobs for approximate one-month periods.

Richie Ashburn, outfielder and Cub player representative, will become Cub "ex-officio member of the management team." This will mean that Ashburn can carry any player complaint to the Cub coaching staff without waiting for the usual All-Star game period for airing player grievances.

Unusual Bout: Briton, Yank Switch Styles

BOSTON — There's a rea switch in the Paul Pender-Terry Downes middleweight title (New York-Massachusetts-Europe version) fight coming up Saturday night.

You have Pender, an American boxing like an Englishman with a fancy left jab and a straight right to follow through, and Downes, an Englishman, fighting like an American with an aggressive, two-fisted style.

The experts believe the English style is more becoming to the American than vice versa, for the 30-year-old Pender is the 2-1 favorite to repel the challenge of the 24-year-old Londoner. Pender saw Terry stop Phil Edwards in a British title fight in London last July. He said he liked Terry's style — "for me." "He's a real, game aggressive kid," said Pender. "He takes a punch to get one in. He comes at you with both hands. He's not a great puncher, but he's a good one." "Will he change styles? He couldn't change now if he wanted to. He'll have to come to me if he expects to win the title. He's certainly not going to outbox me." "I'll come at him, he needs't fear," said the confident Briton. "I just hope Pender fights like a champion and doesn't run all night." The fighters, who already had finished their boxing preparations, took light gym workouts Thursday.

Golden Gloves Tourney Banned by Iowa Ruling

DES MOINES — Any boxing contest at which prizes are given and admission is charged — including Golden Gloves tournaments — is illegal under Iowa law, the Iowa Attorney General's office has ruled.

Wilbur Bump, solicitor general and Atty. Gen. Evan Hultman's office, said an attorney general's opinion in 1928 held such contests illegal and the law hasn't been amended since.

The opinion was requested by

2 Louisville Stars Named Braves Varsity Prospects

NEW YORK — Two of the best immediate prospects to make the Milwaukee Braves' varsity are not even on the club roster. They are pitcher Bob Hendley, and outfielder Mack Jones. Both are on the list of Louisville, a Braves' arm club.

Hendley, 21, won 16 and lost 9 last year and added five victories for the Colonels in the playoffs and Junior World Series.

The promising youngster could gain a spot on the starting staff, depleted by the disposal of Joey Jay and Juan Pizarro in a winter trade. "Hendley could be our fourth starter," said General Manager John McHale. Jones is the boy McHale had in mind when he swapped center fielder Billy Bruton to Detroit last month.

Yogi Gets Early Start

Yogi Berra is ready for the season after signing his 1961 contract in the New York Yankee office today. It was reported that he got $50,000, a raise from last year's salary. —AP Wirephoto

35-Year-Old Berra Signs At $50,000

NEW YORK — Yogi Berra signed his 16th New York Yankee contract Thursday — for "slightly more" than $50,000 — and declared he would rather play the outfield this year than return as a catcher.

"Don't get me wrong," said the 35-year-old all-star catcher of 1960. "I'll play anywhere Houk (Yankee Manager Ralph Houk) tells me to play but I would prefer the outfield because I think it would add a couple of years to my career."

Houk, sitting to Yogi's left, grinned at the reporters present for the conference and said: "Yogi is listed on the roster as a catcher but you may be sure he'll play some in left field, too."

Berra divided the 1960 campaign between catching and the outfield. He played in 129 games in all and batted .275 with 15 home runs and 62 runs batted in.

Banks Gets Increase In $55,000 Contract

CHICAGO — Ernie Banks, the Chicago Cubs' slugger shortstop, Thursday signed his 1961 contract for an estimated $55,000.

Banks, the Cubs' all-time home run leader whose 269 home runs are more than any other shortstop in major league history, was given an increase over his 1960 contract.

5 Clubs Race Pirates For '61 League Title

HOUSTON, Tex. — Seven club managers believe the 2961 National League race will be wide open with at least five clubs challenging the champion Pittsburgh Pirates.

Danny Murtaugh, the good-natured Irishman who piloted the Pirates to a seven-game World Series victory over the New York Yankees, goes along with the consensus.

"You can give any club a couple of guys with real good years — pitchers, I mean — and that club can be a strong contender," he said.

Murtaugh and six other managers were in Houston for Tuesday night's first annual major league baseball dinner at which Houston was welcomed into the National League for the 1962 season. Only Chicago, which has not named its 1961 manager, was not represented.

The other managers looked at the 1961 season this way: Fred Hutchinson, Cincinnati Reds — "Pittsburgh should be the favorite but a lot of clubs could break it wide open, like Milwaukee, St. Louis, Los Angeles, San Francisco — and Cincinnati, with a couple of additions that would strengthen our pitching."

Chuck Dressen, Milwaukee Braves — "Milwaukee will be a contender. The Roy McMillan trade helped and we have fine young pitchers coming up. St. Louis, with fine pitching, should be a top contender."

Alvin Dark, San Francisco Giants — "I'll have to lean toward Pittsburgh in a tight race. I'll have to withhold any estimation of my own club's strength until I see the men in camp." Walter Alston, Los Angeles Dodgers — "St. Louis, with a strong pitching staff and excellent relief, could be a front runner." Solly Hemus, St. Louis Cardinals — "Pittsburgh should be picked first but the Dodgers, Giants, and Braves will be stronger than last year. Our biggest need is additional bull pen help." Gene Mauch, Philadelphia Phillies — "It should be a helluva race with the Braves and Giants certain to play much better ball."

Burgess Tops List With 31.4 Average

NEW YORK — Frank Burgess of Gonzaga, who lifted his average to 31.4 points, is the nation's major-college basketball scoring leader for the fourth straight week, the latest NCAA Service Bureau statistics showed Thursday.

Burgess scored 32 points in a losing cause against Washington State last Thursday, giving him 408 points in 13 games. Tom Chilton of East Tennessee State is second with a 30.3 average on 303 points in 10 outings. He is followed by Tom Stith of St. Bonaventure 29.5, Terry Dischinger of Purdue 28.4, Bill McGill of Utah 27.3 and All-America Jerry Lucas of Ohio State 26.3.

Baseball's Unforgettable Games

Hubbell Fans Big Five

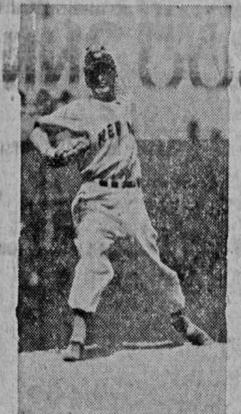

By JOE REICHLER and BEN OLAN They called him "The Meal Ticket." They called him "The Stopper." They called him "King Carl." These are nicknames that were truly made for Carl Hubbell. For Carl Hubbell — the master of the screwball and the greatest control pitcher of his time, winner of 253 games for the Giants, a 20-game winner for five successive seasons, a no-hit, no-run pitcher, a twice most valuable player — personified all those nicknames. Yet, these nicknames, aptly descriptive as they are, told only part of the story of one of baseball's greatest pitchers. Here are a few of his outstanding pitching feats: He set a National League record for pitching 4 1/2 consecutive scoreless innings. He won 16 games in a row to the end of the 1936 season and extended that streak to 24 by winning his first eight games in 1937. He pitched a no-run, no-hit game against Pittsburgh on May 8, 1929. He won the most valuable player award in 1933 and 1936. He pitched and won an 18-inning 1-0 game in 1933, yielding but six hits, striking out twelve, and walking none. In the All-Star game of 1934, he struck out, in succession, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx, ment was to check the mightiest collection of sluggers in baseball, a lineup that was eventually to send nine of its members to the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y. Five minutes after the start of the game, Hub's task seemed impossible. Charles Gehring, the Mechanical Man of the Tigers, led off with a single and went to second on an error. Heinie Manush worked the lean, lanky Oklahoman for a base on balls. The fans, predominantly National League rooters, stirred unhappily. Babe Ruth, the Sultan of Swat, was moving in to the batter's box. Hubbell's infield clustered around him — Bill Terry, Frankie Frisch, Pie Traynor, Travis Jackson, Gabe by Hartnett, the catcher, came out to talk things over with his pitcher. Hub listened to them all without saying a word. He was the least nervous of the lot. Now Carl was all alone on the mound. At the plate, the Babe was waving his bat ominously.

the pitcher wrapped his fingers around the ball and prepared to throw his famous screwball. The first pitch was a ball. Strike one! Strike two! The Babe had yet to take the bat off his shoulders. Hub let go with the screwball again. The Babe started to swing, stopped. He was completely fooled. The pitch hit the outside corner for the third strike. Up stepped Lou Gehrig, Again next man was Joe Cronin, recognized as the most effective clutch hitter in the American League. Cronin, too, went down swinging. Now it was Bill Dickey's turn, and the great Yankee catcher broke the spell with a single after taking two strikes. The next batter, Lefty Gomez, was an easy victim for Hubbell's tantalizing screwball. Carl had struck out six of the last seven men to face him.

NL 'Favored' In Senior Bowl, AFL Charges

HOUSTON — The American Football League charged Thursday that television coverage of last Saturday's Senior Bowl game showed favoritism toward the National Football League.

The eight AFL club owners charged that National Broadcasting Company announcers handling the telecast showed an "unbelievable disregard of fair play" by constantly referring to the NFL but failing to mention that several of the game's stars also had been drafted by the AFL.

The owners opened their first winter meeting by telegraphing their protests to Robert Kintner, NBC president in New York City, and Frederick Ford, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, Washington, D.C. "The unfairness was heightened by mentioning that certain players had been drafted, although not yet signed by the NFL, although most of those same players also had been drafted by our own league," the telegrams said.

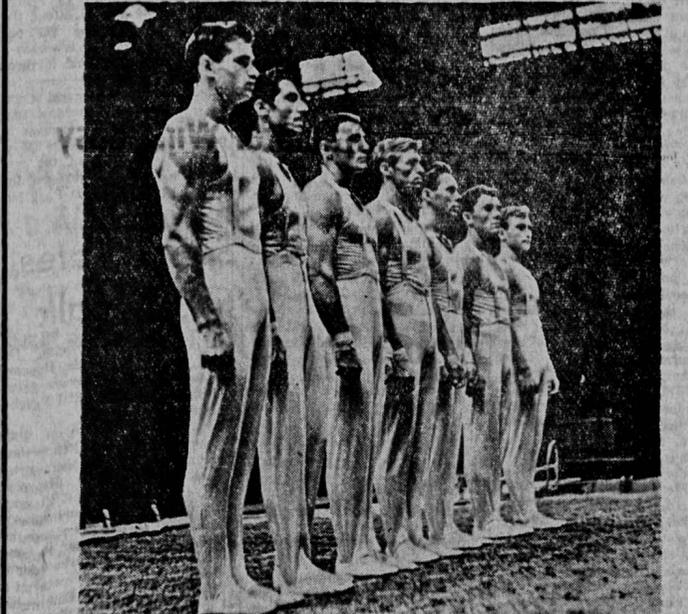

Bad weather prevented representatives of the Oakland club from arriving until Thursday night. This caused Commissioner Joe Foss to postpone action on all major problems until Friday. The seven owners present spent the day discussing reports on game officials and television.

Monti in Lead At San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Eric Monti of Los Angeles knocked five strokes off par for a 66 Thursday and led the way through the first round of the $20,000 San Diego Open.

The 41-year-old teaching professional, who plays relatively little tournament golf, found the sunny weather and the Mission Valley Country Club course to his liking. He led off with a 35-foot putt for a birdie-three on the first hole and went on to cover the par 35-36-71, 6,725-yard course in 32-34.

Congo Cats Dig Satchemo Jazz
By ART BUCHWALD

Louis Armstrong is in Paris for five weeks to appear in a film, "Paris Blues," with Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward, Sidney Poitier, and Diahann Carroll.

Armstrong recently returned from a two-month tour of Africa, and after he completes his work in the film, he will go back there for another month.

The Satchemo, or, as he is known in the Congo, Satchemo, seemed in very good spirits after Africa, and we asked him if he had seen any trouble while he was down there.

"No," he said, laughing. "All I saw was people shuffling. Lots of people shuffling back and forth."

"But wasn't the Congo rough?"

"No, I had no trouble in the Congo. Half the times I didn't know whether I was in the Congo or out of it. Them African places look all alike. But Leopoldville was great. I had three armies escorting me everywhere I went. There was the United Nations cats, the Congo cats, and then we had Ghanaian troops all around ARMSTRONG.

A man gets good protection in the Congo. But the Congo was no different than any place else. Lots of heat down there — got me right across the back, that heat did."

"What did you do?"

"What did I do? I just took a John L. Sullivan stance and blew the horn."

Armstrong traveled with a six-piece orchestra, his valet, his manager, his singer Velma Middleton, and his wife Lucille.

"They people were very nice to me down there," he said. "They gave us all kinds of presents. They gave my wife some tribal clothes and she put 'em on and I didn't recognize her. She looked like an awful sharp native. I stared and kept saying to myself, 'There's something wrong there.'"

The first two weeks of Armstrong's tour were paid by the Pepsi-Cola Company, who is opening plants all over the new African republics.

"In Nairobi," Armstrong said, "The Coca-Cola people had big signs saying, 'Welcome Louis Armstrong,' and this sure got the Pepsi-Cola people mad."

"But that wasn't my fault. I couldn't be responsible for what signs they put up in a town."

Armstrong stayed with Moise Tshombe in Katanga for four days as his house-guest. "He was a nice fellow. I called him Prez and he called me Satchemo-Mo. He's sharp as a tack."

"Didn't people try to get you politically involved in the situation down there?"

Armstrong grinned. "Sure they did, but I always replied: 'I don't want to talk about politics. I only came down here to blow the horn.' I told 'em: 'You want to talk about music, I'll talk about music.'"

"They asked me all sorts of questions. They always asked me every time we arrived in a country if I would want to live there."

"What did you say?"

"I always said: 'Oh, yeah!' But I couldn't give many reasons why. If they persisted I'd say: 'I really got no desire to pull up stakes, but I might come back for a visit.'"

Armstrong said that one of the things he tried to do when he was in Cameroon was to adopt a little African baby.

"I wanted to give it to Lucille, kind of like a gift, but we didn't have the time, so now the President of Cameroon and the American Ambassador are working on it. We'd both like to have an African baby. We been married twenty years and have no children. I'd like a little boy and a little girl. It would be real nice for Lucille."

Satchemo got misty-eyed when he started talking about his wife. "I had three wives before Lucille, but she takes all the stars. She lives for that horn — same as I do. She ain't always braggin' and scraggin' and complaining. Thanks to her, I don't have to think of nothing when I get up on a stand except to make pretty notes."

Freshman Journalism Scholarships Available

Application forms for two freshmen journalism scholarships at SUI to be awarded for the 1961-62 academic year are now available at the SUI School of Journalism.

Announcement of winners of the Quill and Scroll Foundation scholarship, valued at $500, and the George D. Perkins scholarship, valued at $250, will be made about May 15. Applicants must currently be enrolled as high school seniors, rank in the top third of their class, be seriously considering a journalism career, and be planning to enroll as journalism majors at SUI in September, 1961.

Applicants for the Quill and Scroll Foundation scholarship must be attending an Iowa high school, but need not be members of Quill and Scroll Society. (Quill and Scroll is the international honorary society for high school journalists.)

Competition for the Perkins scholarship is not restricted to students attending an Iowa high school. Winner of the first Perkins scholarship is Bryan Reddick, A1, in September, 1961.

SUI Slates Dental Exams

Prospective dental students will gather at SUI Saturday to take a battery of tests which will help determine whether they will be admitted to dental colleges next fall.

No students is admitted to dentistry in United States schools unless he has taken the five tests prepared by the committee on aptitude testing of the American Dental Association.

The tests include "Reading Comprehension Test in the Natural Sciences," "Space Relations Test," "Cooperative School and College Ability Test," "Survey of the Natural Sciences" and a chalk carving test. This last test gives an indication of the student's degree of dexterity with his hands, a necessary ability for dentists.

SUI's Dr. Ray V. Smith, professor emeritus of crown and bridge in the college of dentistry, will administer the tests Saturday as he has done in many previous years. Dr. Smith and Dr. Harry Greene, former SUI faculty member widely known in the field of educational tests and measurements, pioneered the use of aptitude tests for prospective dental students.

At first they were used only by SUI, but a great demand for aptitude tests soon developed and after the second World War the ADA developed the current testing program.

The 60 students who will take the aptitude tests are in at least their sophomore year at SUI or other colleges in Iowa and neighboring states. Completion of two years of a college liberal arts course is required for admission to a dental school or college. In recent years approximately 55 percent of those taking the tests have enrolled in dental college the following fall.

SUI Lecturer Publishes Volume of Short Stories

A collection of short stories written by a visiting lecturer in the Writers Workshop at SUI and only recently published has already received favorable reviews.

Titled "Among the Dangs," the collection is by George P. Elliott. The publisher is Holt, Rinehart and Winston.

"The ten tales in this book have the virtue of providing continuous surprise," says a review of the collection in the Jan. 13 issue of Time Magazine. "Even when they are shockingly unpleasant, these yarns make compulsive reading."

Poems and short stories by Elliott have appeared in many magazines. A short story entitled "Is He Dead?" originally published in Epoch, was chosen one of "The Best American Short Stories of 1956" and was published in that anthology.

Elliott has also authored a novel, "Parktilden Village," and edited an anthology titled "Fifteen Modern American Poets."

Child-Care Group Hears SUI Prof

Professor Wendell Johnson of SUI department of Speech Pathology addressed the Institute on Child-Care Institutions at the University of Minnesota Wednesday.

He spoke on "The Semantics of Talking with Children," analyzing the effects of language structure and communication relationships in problems of personal development and social adjustment in childhood.

CRASH KILLS
MUSCATINE — A Chicago salesman, Joseph L. Sweeney, 65, was killed Thursday in a one-car accident at the intersection of Highways 61-68 here.

Authorities quoted a witness, Albert Boldt, of near Muscatine, as saying that Sweeney's north-bound car struck an island, flipped over and was thrown about eight feet in the air. The car burned.

Cedar Falls Ranks Second—

I.C. Schools Lead in Enrollment Gain

The Iowa City Public Schools registered the highest percentage rate of enrollment growth in the state among the 34 largest schools during the past academic year.

The finding was reported in a study conducted by the Iowa center for research in school administration at SUI.

The research center's report credits Iowa City schools with a 12.9 per cent enrollment increase. The next highest increase was 10 per cent at Cedar Falls.

The enrollment was 4,885 in the city public schools in the second week of school last fall.

However, the school officials did some of its own computation on a different basis and arrived at conclusions which would tie it with Cedar Falls for the title of most progressive school district.

Iowa City Superintendent of Schools Buford W. Garner told the board of education this week that the computations of school officials placed the growth rate at about 10 per cent — the same as shown by Cedar Falls schools.

Garner told the board of teacher replacement and addition needs apparent at this time. He said the district will need at least 23 elementary teachers, including about eight for the new elementary additions to be done next fall, seven junior high teachers and two high school teachers.

Garner expressed the hope that the district will have a favorable balance of applicants to the openings.

This is the gist of a letter Arun K. Chhabra, G. India, wrote to the Chicago Tribune last week. The Tribune in a December 29 editorial, "Nehru on America's Constitution," said that the Nehru government policies favored International Communism.

The Tribune also called the Indian people and other nations, getting aid from the United States and yet not totally falling in line with her, as "ingrates overseas."

Chhabra in his letter, printed in the January 7 issue of the Tribune, took issue with the paper and re-futed each charge, levelled by the Tribune, point by point.

Chhabra stated in his letter that the whole idea of foreign aid becomes obnoxious and sinister if it is motivated by the desire to usurp others' minds.

"From your own daily experience, I am sure, you know that money can not buy individuals, much less nations," he wrote to the Tribune.

"Besides, what would be the difference between a democratic and a totalitarian country if the latter forced her will on others with an iron rod, and the former did the same thing with a silver stick?" he continued.

The Indian student stated that Nehru feels more strongly against the Communists in India than many public leaders feel in this country.

He wrote: "We want to see 'freedom with justice' prevail all over the world, but at the same time we want to keep away from cold war groupings. India is at present engaged in a stupendous task of providing the basic amenities of life to her teeming millions, and we cannot afford to have our attention or energies diverted to entangling divisions."

Explaining the position of his country vis-a-vis the free world, Chhabra wrote in his letter, "If we succeeded in meeting out social justice to and maintaining the freedom of our 400 million people, I believe, we will have amply contributed our share toward strengthening the cause of democracy in the world."

Erbe Inaugurated

New Governor

Norman Erbe, of Boone, was inaugurated as Iowa Governor Thursday ending four years of Democratic control of the governor's seat. Iowa Supreme Chief Justice Theodore Garfield, left, swore Erbe in at a ceremony in the Statehouse. Erbe succeeds Democrat Herschel Loveless.

Suggestions Favored By Assembly

DES MOINES (AP)—Republicans in the Iowa Legislative responded with expressions of general approval Thursday to sweeping legislative proposals made by Gov. Norman Erbe in his inaugural address.

Some lawmakers said that while the program offered by the new GOP chief executive was comprehensive it contained more than the General Assembly might be able to handle at this session.

Some of the minority Democrats said they were in favor of many goals Erbe outlined but that he was not specific enough about how they can be accomplished.

In general, the course charted by the former attorney general after he took the oath of office in the House Chamber, sought to fulfill pledges he made in his gubernatorial campaign.

Priority was given to legislative reapportionment, a thorny issue which he asked the legislators to solve at this session.

In addition to providing relief for local taxpayers through the state school aid program, Erbe proposed some sweeping changes, including annual sessions of the Legislature, enacting a state civil service law, four-year terms for county attorneys, new procedures in state government operations, lowering the voting age to 18 and adopting election reforms which the GOP sponsored two years ago.

Erbe did not spell out ways to finance the fiscal part of his program. He said he would do this in his budget message next month.

Erbe's inaugural address followed the colorful swearing-in ceremony for him and Republican Lt. Gov. William Mooty of Grundy Center. Chief Justice Theodore Garfield of the Iowa Supreme Court administered the oath.

Before ceremonies began, the official state figures of the Nov. 8 election for governor and lieutenant governor were announced to the joint session.

The figures, canvassed by the Legislature, showed that Erbe received 645,026 votes in defeating Edward J. McManus, Keokuk Democrat.

McManus received 592,063.

Church Sets Organization

The Iowa City congregation of the Lutheran Church of Christ The King will be formally organized at a 10:30 a.m. service Sunday in the Hawk Ballroom, Coralville.

The Rev. Dr. H. W. Siefkes, Waterloo, president of the Iowa District of The American Lutheran Church, will organize the congregation.

The congregation will serve southwest Iowa City, University Heights, and Coralville. It is being organized under the sponsorship of the department of American Missions of The American Lutheran Church.

Pastor of the congregation is the Rev. Eugene K. Hanson.

The congregation will also meet at the parsonage, 116 Marietta Ave., Sunday at 2:30 p.m., for election of officers and approval of its constitution.

Rights Endangered --SDC Speaker

By BRUNO TORRES Staff Writer

Freedom of speech, press, religion and assembly are being jeopardized by the actions of the U.S. House of Representatives' committee to investigate un-American activities, the Rev. William T. Baird told the Socialist Discussion Club this week.

The Rev. Mr. Baird, executive secretary of the Chicago Committee To Defend the Bill of Rights, is also on the board of the National Committee To Abolish the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC).

He said the prime objective of the two groups is to discredit HUAC and have the committee abolished.

The Rev. Mr. Baird based his cause to abolish HUAC on the belief that it is restricting and denying freedoms protected by the Bill of Rights.

He said the writers of the Constitution and the Federalist Papers did not intend the First Amendment freedoms to be curtailed even during time of national emergency.

The Bill of Rights freedoms are in special peril now, he said, most of the pressures to curb these freedoms stemming from HUAC investigations into subversive activities.

He referred to the condemnation by the 1958 Convention of State Supreme Court Justices of what he called a "liberal" ruling of the U.S. Supreme Court in the Jencks case coming from an HUAC investigation.

The U.S. Supreme Court reversed Jencks' conviction of filing a false non-Communist oath, and ruled that the Government must, when requested, produce FBI reports that form a basis of a witness' testimony in criminal trials.

Through the pressure of the State Supreme Court Justices' condemnation, the Rev. Mr. Baird said, the U.S. Supreme Court reversed itself and during 1959 upheld the contempt convictions of Barenblatt and Uphaus.

In the Barenblatt case the Court upheld Congress' power to investigate alleged subversion and Barenblatt's contempt conviction for refusing to answer queries on Communist ties.

In Uphaus vs. Wyman the Court upheld the state's right to act against subversion in the interest of self-preservation, and upheld the contempt conviction of Uphaus for refusing to give the New Hampshire attorney general data on the New Hampshire World Fellowship Center.

He also mentioned the margin of only one vote by which the Senate, in 1958, killed a bill which he said would have denied the U.S. Supreme Court the power of review.

A U.S. Supreme Court ruling in the 1956 Nelson case rejected anti-subversive laws in 42 states on the grounds that Congress in the 1940 Smith Act had preempted Federal jurisdiction in this field.

The Smith Act made it a crime to organize a conspiracy to overthrow the U.S. Government by force and violence.

The Chicago Committee To Defend the Bill of Rights, was formally organized only last month. The Rev. Mr. Baird said the group has been working for five years to form a climate in which persons would support the group even with the knowledge that a known Communist is on the executive board.

He said the group's main purpose is to abolish the House Un-American Activities Committee, but that it will be in existence as long as the cold war continues.

"As long as there is a cold war, HUAC will provide the ideology for witch hunts against Socialists, peace and disarmament groups, and anyone with ideas contrary to the status quo," he said.

In 1950, with the U.S. Supreme Court ruling against segregated schools, HUAC was reactivated by Sen. George Eastland (D-Miss.) to stem integration by investigating integrationist, peace, and friendship groups, the Rev. Mr. Baird said.

The Rev. Mr. Baird, minister of the Essex Community Church in Chicago, was a minister at Williamsburg, Ia. from 1937 to 1943.
