A Leprechaun's-Eye View of St. Patrick's Day

He's Using His Pot of Gold To Buy Green Beer!

By CAROLYN JENSEN
Staff Writer

Sure and begorra! The Luck of the Irish is with us today! The engineers found the Blarney Stone, the medical students are finishing finals, the sun shone Thursday and the sidewalks are dry, students are using the foot-bridge — green beer, green beer, green beer . . .

puffed smoke in my face. "Let me tell you about St. Patrick's Day," he said, and pushed his hat down over his eye. It did make him look wiser. "Twas a dark age for Ireland before St. Patrick. Pirates were terrorizing the country — even the poor sheep couldn't graze in peace. One of these pirate bands captured a 16-year-old boy near Bannavem, Scotland. "The chief, I'm ashamed to admit, was from Ulster, and forced the young lad to work for him in Ireland for six years. "I felt sorry for the boy and tried to keep a special eye on him. He was a devout lad, he was. Used to pray all the time. That was pretty unusual, cause most of the Irish were heathen — black devils! My leprechaun seemed to be getting far afield so I told him to get to the point. He gave me a disgusted look. "I'm remembering. It's not easy to remember way back to 400," he said. "Just try it some time." He had me there. "Anyway," he continued, a dreamy look coming back to his eyes. "I wasn't too surprised to hear young Pat had escaped. Went to a monastery in France, I understand. I was sorry he wouldn't be around anymore, but then I didn't blame him. "When he was gone, Ireland got worse than ever. Everyone was worshipping idols and celebrating pagan rituals. Hardly a Christian was left in the Emerald Isles. "About 20 years later I happened to be snoozing under a tree in Ulster when I was awakened by a voice. I was pretty sore at first. We leprechauns don't get much time to sleep, but this voice was praying. I couldn't believe my ears. "I crept around till I could get a good view. "Begorra," I said to myself, "it's Patrick. He was asking God to help him correct the evil in Ireland. "And that's what he did. He found Ireland heathen and left it Christian. Patrick founded 300 Christian churches and baptized 120,000 people. Have you ever heard anything like it?" I had to admit I hadn't. He was still tapping my nose with the shillelagh. "What about the snakes?" I asked. He snorted. "Pat drove the snakes out of Ireland, all right," he said. "Every black heathen snake in sight. He brought 'em into the faith. "He took the shamrock and made it a symbol of the Holy Trinity. But you know the best thing he did — the very best thing?" I shook my head. "He was kind to the people who had mistreated him. He loved the Irish, even though he'd been a slave to them for six years. That's pretty amazing." I agreed and both of us meditated a few moments.

"Well, I guess I'll be off," he said. I roused myself from my reverie long enough to ask: "Hey — what about the pot of gold you're supposed to give me?" He laughed. "That's only if you catch me. Besides — I'm going to spend it all. I'm going to have some green beer." I wished him luck. "You have to be 21 to buy beer in Iowa City," I warned. "Don't worry." His eyes were twinkling and he waved his shillelagh. "Do you think the bartender will believe I'm 2100?"

Miss Jensen Named Editor Of Hawkeye

Mike Gilles Will Be Business Manager Of Next Year's Book

CAROLYN JENSEN
New 'Hawkeye' Editor

Carolyn Jensen, A3, Charles City, was selected editor of the 1962 Hawkeye and Mike Gilles, A3, Mason City, business manager by the Board of Trustees of Student Publications, Inc., Thursday.

Miss Jensen, a journalism major, is copy editor of the 1961 Hawkeye and a Daily Iowan staff writer. She is on Executive Orientation Council and is also Commissioner of External Affairs for the Executive Cabinet of Student Council. Previously she was on Profile Previews and Union Board sub-committees.

Gilles, also a journalism major, is presently Hawkeye book sales manager, all-campus elections chairman, and advertising manager of the SUI Student Advertiser.

Serving as 1961 editor of the yearbook is Denny Rehder, A4, Gladbrook, while Jerry Parker, A4, Ottumwa, is business manager.

New Bible Translation Goes Fast in Canada

TORONTO (AP) — Toronto booksellers report sales of the New English Bible New Testament are so brisk, Canadians may soon deplete the country's 50,000-copy stock. Distributors say no more copies will be available until a second printing of 350,000 copies is completed.

Court Rules Again; Field House Won't Have Voting Booth

By HAROLD HATFIELD
Editorial Assistant

The battle for a Field House voting booth took a new turn Thursday night when the Student Council Court ruled that the Elections Committee is an autonomous group and is not bound by Council election rules. The decision apparently ended the controversy begun when the Council tried to force the Committee to place a voting booth in the Field House for Wednesday's elections. A report presented to the Council by Mike Gilles, chairman of the Elections Committee, was amended to include the Field House as a voting place.

On Monday, the Court ruled that the amendment was a procedural matter within the Council over which the court has no power. Gilles appealed the decision, asking the Court to declare that the decisions of the Committee as to the placement of election booths be final and binding.

Gilles argued that the Court does have jurisdiction in the matter. He said the Council's action in setting up a booth in the Field House was a contradiction of the Committee's decision, and would be an election irregularity, discrepancy, and procedural error.

The Court is given the power to hear election appeals on irregularities by the Student Council Constitution. The appeal added that the committee is not a committee of the legislative branch in the usual sense, but an organ of the executive branch. It is an independent, autonomous unit of student government given the power "to govern" elections above the political intrigues of the legislative and executive branches, Gilles said.

A letter from Deil S. Wright, assistant professor of political science, was presented as evidence by Gilles. Wright agreed that the Elections Committee is an autonomous entity and that the Council has no right to review, revise, or amend the Committee's rules.

Jerry Lutz, Council vice president, and Jack Elkin, parliamentarian, argued for the Council. They said that the appeal was illegal because no new evidence was presented. They argued that the Court still had no jurisdiction in the matter.

In its decision, the Court said that it felt a procedural error had been brought to its attention. It added that the Elections Committee is the only body which has the power to create statutory laws to which the Court is pledged and bound.

The decision concluded: "The Court has decided on the basis of the evidence presented that the Elections Committee from the time of its inception until it is dissolved, is an autonomous body and its rules and regulations shall be adopted by the Court as statutory law and shall be the final procedure to be followed for the All-Campus Elections."

They said that the appeal was illegal because no new evidence was presented. They argued that the Court still had no jurisdiction in the matter.

A New U.S. Colonialism Policy Seen

Stand May Alienate West Europe Allies, Gain Africa, Asia

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States has given two dramatic pieces of evidence in 24 hours that the Kennedy Administration is embarking on a new African policy.

If the signs are correct — and most U.N. diplomats think they are — the United States undoubtedly will win new friends. But it also may alienate some old ones.

It is not yet clear just how far-reaching the changes are, but the new U.S. position indicates a break with the big Western allies on some colonial issues and a swing toward the views of the new Asian and African countries.

The first major step in this direction came Wednesday night in the U.N. Security Council when the chief U.S. delegate, Adlai E. Stevenson, lined up with the Soviet Union and three Asian-African delegations on a resolution calling for reforms in Portuguese Angola.

In the past, the United States had almost always voted with its North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies on colonial issues. On this question, however, the United States not only split with Britain and France but it sharply challenged Portugal's attitude of non-cooperation with the United Nations on its African territories.

Thursday morning, the United States once more found itself at odds with Britain, France, Portugal and Belgium on a resolution concerning the Union of South Africa for its attitude on the territory of Southwest Africa, a former League of Nations mandate.

The United States voted for the proposal, while the four NATO countries — along with five other countries — abstained.

This vote and the one on Angola are in sharp contrast with the U.S. vote last fall on a resolution calling for an end of colonialism as soon as possible. On that occasion, much to the annoyance of Asian and African countries, the United States was one of nine abstainers. It has since been learned that ex-President Dwight D. Eisenhower took the unpopular position after receiving a strong personal appeal from British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Stevenson indicated a possible change when he took over in January as spokesman for President Kennedy's Administration. He said the United States would not feel itself bound to support Belgium on all questions relating to the Congo just because Belgium is a member of NATO.

Wednesday's and Thursday's U.S. votes were hailed by Asian and African diplomats as an important step toward better U.S. relations with their countries. The Western powers had nothing to say publicly, but privately some Western delegates expressed concern.

One expressed fear that the Soviet Union might take advantage of the new U.S. position to drive a wedge between the NATO powers. This might be done, he said, by bringing up one colonial issue after another until a chain reaction resulted in a wide-open split in NATO.

The Asians and Africans, however, were openly jubilant. Indian Ambassador C. S. Jha said: "We consider the U.S. votes of the past two days a welcome departure which has been hailed in Asian-African circles. It is striking proof of the change in orientation under the Kennedy Administration."

Wearer of the Green

Save those Irish flags; Erie will rise again! These four coeds have seen proof — the flag of the Irish Free State flying from the WSUI radio tower in honor of St. Patrick's Day. The banner was hoisted by pranksters, obviously wearers of the green.

Historian Relates 3 U.S.-Cuban Problems

By JUDY KLEMESRUD
Staff Writer

United States-Cuban relations owe much of their present status of deterioration to three American mistakes, Samuel Shapiro, professor of history at Michigan State University, told members of the Socialist Discussion Club Thursday night.

He listed the first error as the supplying of American arms to dictators, namely that of Fulgencio Batista, Castro's predecessor. "The trend is away from dictators," Shapiro said, "and one Latin American dictator has fallen every year since 1955, even though we continue to give them arms."

Poor quality of American diplomats to Latin America was given as the second error. He cited as examples the American ambassadors to Cuba during the Eisenhower Administration, all of whom could speak no Spanish and had no knowledge of the island.

The third mistake, he said, was the persistent misunderstanding on the part of the American people of what had happened in Cuba. Coupled with this, he said, is the notion that the American ambassador in Cuba could give orders to the Cubans.

He told of U.S. Ambassador Philip Bonsal's first statement to Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa: "When are you going to do something about these Communists?" "Another factor aiding in Cuban misunderstanding is what Shapiro termed the "irresponsible press" operating there. One day Castro was reported in the American press as dying of syphilis, and the next day he was in front of the television cameras, Shapiro said.

Shapiro has written several articles on the Cuban Revolution for New Republic magazine. His most recent visit to Cuba was this January. He was also in Havana prior to the nationalization of American industries, when U.S. oil refineries refused to refine Soviet oil. He told of seeing the first Russian oil tanker come into the harbor and tie up in front of the American embassy instead of at the regular docks. "The Cubans now have so much oil that they're selling their surpluses to Canada," he added.

When President Eisenhower cut the sugar quota, he said, the Russians and Chinese immediately took it over, not because they were fond of sugar but because it was "symbolic sugar."

Such American actions as these, Shapiro said, forced Castro into the Communist fold. He equated U.S.-Cuban relations to a tennis game, with the familiar "back and forth, you do this and I'll do that" movements. "Just like two kids fighting," he added. "We cannot invade Cuba — not after the Suez fiasco and the Soviet brutality in Hungary," Shapiro said. "If we did, we'd have another Algeria on our hands."

"Economic pressure, diplomatic maneuverings, and the arming of Cuban exiles have all failed to get rid of Castro," he said. "The American eagle presently resembles an ostrich with its head in the sand, but I think we'll eventually have to come to terms," he added.

Meteorite's Wax Provides Clue

Explorers May Find Life in Space

By STUART H. LOORY

NEW YORK (HTNS) — Three scientists said Thursday night a tiny quantity of wax — similar to that found on the skin of an apple — points to existence of life on other planets.

The wax was extracted from a meteorite, one of 20 which fell on the village of Orgueil, in the district of Armagnac, France, May 14, 1864.

Exact chemical analysis of the piece of meteorite, which weighed one-third of an ounce, has shown it contains hydrocarbons (the wax) that could only have been made through a biological process, the scientists told the American Academy of Sciences meeting here, in a widely heralded presentation.

And where there are biological processes, there is life. This is the argument of Dr. Bartholomew Nagy and Dr. Douglas J. Hennessey, of the Fordham University Chemistry Department and Dr. Warren G. Meinschein of the Esso Research and Engineering Co.

The announcement was met with some disbelief in the scientific community. For example, Dr. Brian Mason, curator of minerals (including meteorites) at the American Museum of Natural History, said:

"Personally I am skeptical. I think we should have more evidence that these hydrocarbons (the wax) were not formed by some inorganic process (a process not involving biology)."

of chemistry at the University of California and one of the world's leading meteorite authorities, commented in a telephone interview: "I would tend to doubt the interpretation. Nobody really knows what meteors are and where they come from. I find that as a beginner in this business most people are brash, but after they've stayed in it awhile, they tend to become more humble. I am very humble."

The fragment — ranging from the size of a man's fist to that of his head — came from one of 20 picked up the morning after a meteorite fell on Orgueil. One fragment made its way, via an amateur mineral specimen collector of the day in Philadelphia, into the hands of J. P. Morgan, the financier, who gave it to the Museum of Natural History in New York in 1900. Last January, Dr. Mason chipped a fragment off the museum's two-ounce piece and gave it to Dr. Nagy. "I'm sure it's a meteorite," Dr. Mason said. "Many people saw it fall, according to reports, and it has a burnt crust."

Regarding contamination, Dr. Nagy Thursday explained that the meteorite is a very rare kind known as a "carbonaceous chondrite." A feature of these is that they contain a large amount of salt crystals that dissolve in water, breaking the meteorite up. The salt crystals were intact in the specimen, showing nothing had contaminated it.

Carbonaceous chondrites are very rare. Ever since 1834, they have been known to contain carbon, the element that is basic to life. But, of course, carbon can be combined with other elements into compounds without life-generating processes.

Drs. Nagy, Meinschein and Hennessey took the meteorite fragment and separated out the hydrocarbon (wax) molecules. Then they heated the hydrocarbons to a vapor, bombarded them with electrons, passed them through a gold leaf and counted the number of carbon atoms in each molecule.

They noticed that many more of the molecules contained 19, 21 or 23 carbon atoms than 20, 22 or 24. Here on earth, it is characteristic of waxes made biologically that they have more molecules with odd numbers of carbon than with even numbers.

Letter 'Muddies Political Waters'

To the Editor:

The attack presented in Mr. Thompson's letter to the editor which appeared in Thursday's Daily Iowan has left me greatly disturbed.

son evidently didn't understand that the crucial issue is not the problem of who is backing SLATE, but the crucial issue is the platform upon which SLATE is running.

portant in this election, a pamphlet entitled "Did You Know?" has been circulated to the students. Even the most superficial reading of the pamphlet makes it clear that SLATE is not carrying on a campaign based upon personal attack.

Rally Round the SLATE, Boys

To the Editor:

The Student Council race for the three town men positions has developed into a race between the three of us writing this letter, who are running on Student Democratic SLATE, and the fraternity ticket of Rogers, Schulz and Hall (hereinafter cited as Frat 1, Frat 2, and Frat 3 respectively).

These frat men have almost completely aped our platform in order to reduce the actual differences which exist between the two sides.

Frat 1 has organized and is heading up this Trojan horse. Frat 1, a former active member of Theta Xi (a social fraternity which is now defunct) was on the Student Council during the past year and cast the only dissenting vote when the Council passed a resolution asking that the University withdraw their "approval" of all off-campus housing which practices discrimination.

Frat 2, a member of Delta Upsilon social fraternity, was an active member of the Inter-Fraternity Council last year.

Frat 3 is a formerly active member of Phi Delta Theta, the national fraternity which recently expelled its Stanford chapter for initiating a Jew.

If the above type of fraternity candidate may seem repugnant to the majority of town men, they may reasonably ask if the SLATE candidates offer any visible alternative.

Two of us are in fact members of the Socialist Discussion Club. The third is not. All three of us agree, however, that whatever anyone's views may be on national and international politics, there are certain conditions which exist on this campus which are as intolerable to a Goldwater Republican as they are to any liberal.

It is to these and only these issues that SLATE addresses itself, both in the campaign and in office if we are elected.

All who are interested in learning more about the Student Democratic SLATE are urged to attend a torch-light parade and rally which will be held this coming Monday night.

Supports Lobby to Legislature

To the Editor:

It was recently brought to my attention that having attended SUI for four years, I have yet to write a letter to the editor.

In viewing the platforms of the various candidates I'm sure everyone must agree that it is difficult to find clear-cut distinctions between them.

As anyone who walks down Clinton Street knows, I am running on a common platform with Jim Rogers and Dick Hall.

"Did You Know?," a rule book for SLATE candidates in pamphlet form, is for "this and that" (a sweeping summary) and good student government.

However, we are prepared to go at least one step further; and that is to real "elbow-grease" type work for progressive student government.

It is fine to have ideas; to assert these ideas by word of mouth, in discussion clubs, in controversial newspapers, and through those less fortunate in mental capacity.

But if and when these ideas are proven sound, it is by far the finer thing to work to give these ideas real effect.

To lend some degree of substance to all this, I would like to mention an important point in our platform, one which I particularly endorse (true to form, probably everyone else will too).

SUI will produce from its ranks a large percentage of the future leaders of Iowa.

The SUI student body, as a group of potential leaders commanding voting influence greater even than its numbers, should be one of the greatest influences in the state Government.

Flotsam and Jetsam By JUDY KLEMESRUD DJ Columnist

(This) G'(reat) (Irish) Friday, and if this were an Ann Landers-type "advice column," this week's mailbag might possibly include the following letters:

JLK SUI Student Council. If there is any one thing I can do to prepare myself, please tell me! Hy Aspirations

DEAR AUNT JUDES: I am a high school senior planning to come to SUI next year. I am quite active in high school activities, and when I get to college, there is one thing I want more than anything else: to be president of the SUI Student Council.

DEAR DESPERATE: In your letter you fail to mention whether you're a boy Independent or a girl Independent.

DEAR KLEM: I've been here four years now, just like you, and hope to graduate in June.

DEAR I. RATE: I can understand your problem, as I have several friends in the same predicament.

DEAR JUDES: I get so mad when people knock girls' basketball. What really topped it all was Larry Barrett, in his weekly Iowa Defender article, wondered if girls wear athletic supporters when they play.

2nd Look at 'Camino Real'— Belief Is the Key Word

By WALTER R. KELLER DJ Reviewer

I think "belief" is the key word for this production. Almost without exception, the members of the cast, even to the last street-woman, came across as having given themselves to this production such as to allow the audience the rare opportunity to suspend its disbelief.

Bill Elwood's performance is a prime example. In yesterday's hurried, sketchy review I inadvertently neglected to mention his scintillating portrayal of The Champ.

What was certainly one of the most moving moments of this theatre season occurred after he claimed his solid gold heart from the dissection table.

Rather than go into more detail over Tom Carson's, Doug Hubbell's, or Elwood's performance...

TV Writer Sees Death Of Old Original Drama

By JOHN CROSBY

Original television drama is dying. Some say it's already dead. Not quite. Later this month, March 21, 9:30 p.m., CBS-TV, DuPont will wind up its season and its TV career in its present format.

But original TV drama had its great days when it produced "Marty" and "Middle of the Night" and "The Miracle Worker" and "Twelve Angry Men" and "Days of the Wine and Roses," and the other day I had a talk with Foote about those days and what he thought about these days of TV mediocrity.

"I used to watch in the old days of television, sure I watched. It seemed the most exciting thing to do but now I look up things ahead of time and I hardly turn on the tube — as they say."

A Public Nuisance

A hit-and-run driver is a public nuisance. Not the kind who hits a pedestrian and runs away — he's a public menace — but the kind who scratches or dents the side of your convertible while backing out of a parking place and not leaving his name.

A hit-and-run driver is a special kind of person: totally irresponsible. He's the kind who painted statues and broke windows when he was a youth.

There were 111 of this kind in Iowa City last year — and probably a lot more the police don't know about. They damaged more than two cars a week last year.

But of these 25, only one hit-and-run driver was caught. Why so few? Because the guy who hits and runs is hard to catch.

Admittedly, the hit-and-run driver is not in the same class with the murderer or kidnaper; he rarely endangers any lives. But he does cause hundreds of dollars in property damage in Iowa City each year.

One interesting note about Iowa City's hit-and-run accidents is that they are less frequent during the summer months: there were 18 last year in June, July, and August, compared to 40 during the following three-month period.

If the former is true, then irresponsible driving must be added to the already long list of immature actions charged by our critics.

But above all is the moral consideration. It is just as wrong to damage a car and run to avoid responsibility as it is to forge a check, steal a purse, or rob a bank.

We Will Take a Stand

For those of you wondering about the editorial silence of The Daily Iowan in the upcoming Student Council elections, we would like to offer an explanation.

With this in mind, we just haven't had time to decide which candidates will make up the most effective council — one that will provide vigorous leadership on campus.

But we will take a stand. In tomorrow's Daily Iowan we will announce which candidate for the Student Council Presidency we feel will be most effective.

Cabinet Wives— Primary Interest Is Her Family

—Mary Louise Day

AP Newfeatures
Mary Louise Day is a modest brunette who doesn't like to talk about herself, except to say, "I'm primarily interested in my family."
J. Edward Day, new postmaster general, is, however, not reluctant to talk about his wife.
"She is very popular in the neighborhood (the fashionable Wilshire District of Los Angeles) and enjoys her family."
The latter includes Geraldine, 17, and Mary Louise (Molly), 14, who attend a private school for girls, and Jimmy, 12, who goes to a public junior high school.

"She makes friends very easily and is active in many civic causes, in the Community Chest, Children's Hospital and an association of her college alumnae, the Vassar Club," Day goes on.
"She is good at organizing a large party and seeing that everyone feels at home." Mrs. Day also has taken part in public life, during Adlai Stevenson's term as governor of Illinois.

"She's a very good bridge player, a better player than I am. We're both quite mediocre tennis players."
Mrs. Day also has her share of curiosity, according to her husband. Shortly after his appointment, a telegram arrived with $5.60 due. The family wasn't expecting a telegram, but Mrs. Day wanted to know what it was. Day says, "She had to go around collecting money from the children to pay the telegraph boy."
The telegram was a lengthy message of congratulations, sent collect.

Postmaster's Family

Mrs. J. Edward Day's primary interests are her children, left to right, Molly, 14; Jimmy, 12; Geraldine, 17. Mrs. Day is popular in her neighborhood, makes friends easily and is active in many civic causes, as well, according to her husband, the new postmaster general. —AP Wirephoto

Louisville Blocks Buckeyes' Chances In NCAA Tourney

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unbeaten, top-ranked Ohio State begins defense of its National Collegiate NCAA basketball championship tonight against a towering Louisville team bent on pulling an upset before a home audience.

"All the teams are tough," warned Coach Fred Taylor, who has mastered the Buckeyes through 29 straight victories and to the undisputed No. 1 position in college basketball.

The game at Louisville is the feature of a far-flung program which sends 16 conference champions and hand-picked independents into regional eliminations to determine four semifinalists.

Survivors of these four preliminary playoffs tonight and Saturday qualify for the championships showdown at Kansas City March 24-25.

Cincinnati, St. Bonaventure and Southern California are favorites to join Ohio State's defending champions in the big climactic show at Kansas City next weekend, but upsets are common in tournaments of this kind.

Louisville is throwing one of the nation's tallest teams against All-America Jerry Lucas and his gifted Ohio State teammates. The host team's front line consists of Fred Sawyer, 6 feet 11, Bud Olsen, 6-8, and John Turner, the Cardinals' top scorer, 6-5.

However, the Buckeyes have a poised, experienced squad with four starters from last year's winning combination. Besides Lucas, the Olympic star, there are Larry Siegfried, John Havlicek and Mel Nowell.

Ohio State's sternest competition in the tournament may come from a neighbor, Cincinnati, which is on a red-hot 18-game winning streak and the No. 2 team in the country in the Associated Press final poll.

The Missouri Valley champions are heavily favored over Texas Tech, the Southwest kings, and will be picked to take the winner of the game between Kansas State and Houston, Houston qualified by beating Marquette Wednesday night 77-61.

St. Bonaventure, with All-America Tom Stith as spearhead, appears the class of the Eastern sections, although a stern fight can be expected from Wake Forest, upset conqueror of St. John's. The Bonnies lost a two-point decision to Ohio State in the Holiday Festival at Madison Square Garden in December.

Southern California's hopes of winning at Portland were buoyed by the report that the team's star point-maker, John Rudometkin, should be at full strength for the weekend games. He was sidelined earlier with a leg injury.

1st Time Outside For Iowa Squad
Spring has arrived — at least for the SUI baseball team.

The Hawkeye squad practiced outside Thursday afternoon for the first time this season. Coach Otto Vogel reported about 25 candidates, including seven lettermen, were on hand.

"We were out for only about 20 minutes to a half an hour," the coach said. "I wanted the players to get a look at the ball outside for a change." The team took one round of hitting practice, then went back inside.

Iowa opens its season March 27, playing a six-game series against Arizona University at Tucson.

Lettermen are first baseman Howard Kennedy, outfielder Jack Leabo, catcher Jerry Mauren, pitchers Ron Reifert and John Barton, first baseman Paul Bonstead and utility infielder Bob Hawk.

Calumet Jars Ames 65-62; Assumption, Marshalltown, Mason City Also Advance

DES MOINES (AP) — Little Calumet's upset of Ames sent the Indians into the semifinals of the boys state basketball tournament along with Mason City, Davenport Assumption and defending champion Marshalltown Thursday night.

Calumet, a tiny school of 38 students, sidelined Ames 65-62 in the to push Manning momentarily ahead 67-66. Then Nelson, who played all of the fourth period, connected on two free throws with 1:05 left to push Marshalltown back in front to stay.

Assumption's tall Knights used their height to advantage on both offense and defense to turn back Fairfield, the tournament dark-horse, in the second afternoon game.

The eastern Iowa teams battled on even terms for the first 10 minutes before Assumption moved to a 28-18 halftime lead.

Judge Allows Ingo $12,000 For Expenses

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Ingemar Johansson pleaded Thursday that he needed money for current expenses and Federal District Court allowed the Swedish heavyweight fighter $12,000.

Judge Emmet Choate granted a petition by Johansson that Feature Sports Inc., promoters of Monday night's championship fight, be permitted to pay him out of the gate receipts, being held up pending settlement of tax claims.

Matthew Mannes of New York City, attorney for Johansson, had asked for $15,000 but the judge reduced the amount to $12,000.

"He may petition the court for further funds if he needs them," Judge Choate said.

"I am an employe of Scanart S. A., a Swiss corporation," Johansson said in his petition. "I am not an officer, director or stockholder of the company."

"I have no money, funds or property other than my personal effects in this country and I am without any funds or resources to pay for my personal needs or expenses. The $250,000 paid for the March 13 fight was not paid to me but to a Swiss bank for the account of Scanart."

Mannes said he understood Johansson has a contract with Scanart whereby they cannot pay him less than 70 per cent of his earnings.

The U.S. Government claims Johansson owes about $1 million in taxes.

Down with Rebound

Karl Noonan (35) of Davenport Assumption takes a rebound as Fairfield's Walt Horras (55) and Assumption's Gerry Ketelaar (53) also go for the ball. Noonan also did his share of the shooting for Assumption. He was top scorer with 16 points. Assumption won 68-54.

Sharm Says Future Is Bright

Frosh To Give Iowa 'Physical' Boost

By PHIL CURRIE
Sports Editor

Prospects for the Iowa basketball team to continue its winning ways next season are bright.

While the varsity loses only one member next season, (Dennis Runge, 6-9 forward who was an important cog in the second semester drive), it will gain what Iowa Coach Sharm Scheuerman called "the best group of freshmen at Iowa in my three years as head coach."

While Scheuerman was careful to point out that the good freshman players do not always blossom into strong varsity stars, he said "that with the great desire of the varsity, coupled with the additional physical strength from the freshman, we are looking optimistically toward next year."

"The freshmen did a lot of work against the varsity this season,"

Scheuerman explained, "and that helped, both teams tremendously. It was of particular value to the varsity when we were so short on men." The varsity did all its heavy work and scrimmaging against the freshman team second semester.

One of the Hawks' biggest problems after the second semester ineligibility blow took four starters was the lack of man power. Scheuerman expects the freshmen to help most in this department. "They (the freshmen) will give us a great deal of added physical strength," he said.

Scheuerman and Dick Schultz, freshman coach, expect "three freshmen (Connie Hawkins, Andy Hankins and Dave Roach) to be of immediate help to the varsity next year."

Hawkins is perhaps the most highly regarded of the freshmen members. The 6-7 forward from Brooklyn's Boys High School, was one of the most sought after players in the country his senior year. Hawkins, who was a high school All-American, showed he was ready to play college ball when he scored 24 points in the freshman varsity game before the regular season opened.

In freshman games this season he has shown not only good shooting but also great ball handling ability.

Hankins, a 6-0 player who can dunk the ball is expected to boost the guard ranks next season. Hankins played high school ball in Waukegan, Ill.

Roach, who played at the center position at Pickneyville, Ill., before coming to Iowa, worked out this season at a guard spot. "Actually Roach (6-6) can play all three positions now," Schultz said. "We put him at the guard position because it was the only place he hadn't worked before. Next year, we can use him about anywhere."

In addition to these top three freshmen, according to Schultz, "Bill Skeas, Jerry Messick and Doug Mehlsaus have come along well, and if their progress continues, they should be a great help to the varsity."

"All three will give us good height," Scheuerman said, "as well as good shooting ability." Skeas is 6-9, Messick, 6-8 and Mehlsaus, 6-7.

"We expect several more players to progress and be a lot of help in the next year or two," said Schultz. "The squad as a whole is one that makes Iowa's basketball future look bright."

Casper, McGowan Take St. Petersburg Golf Lead

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Chunky Billy Casper Jr., and skinny Jack McGowan each with a torrid 63, tied for the first-round lead in the St. Petersburg Open Golf Tournament Thursday as the field ripped the Pasadena Club's par 71 to shreds.

Casper and McGowan bettered the old competitive course record of 64 held by Henry Bolaest of Tampa and Jim Turnesa of Rye, N.Y. Casper, the former Open champion from Apple Valley, Calif., had a 6-under-par 29 on the home nine, which he played first, and achieved his 63 despite two bogies.

The virtually unknown McGowan was out in 32 and back in 31, and had eight birdies.

Mecca Week Smoker Features Queen Candidates, Beard Awards

By JIM CAREY Staff Writer

Interviewing of Mecca Queen candidates and the presentation of awards were part of the 51st Mecca Week smoker Wednesday night in the River Room of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Master of ceremonies Bob Johanssen, E4, Gladbrook, and Don Shriner, E3, Moneta, dipped into a straw hat for questions like "What are your hobbies?" and "What do you think of the engineering group?" which brought varied replies from Mecca Queen candidates and laughter from the engineers.

Following the interviews was the presentation of beard prizes. First place winners got Remington electric razors; runners-up received slide rules.

For the heaviest beard, winners were: first — Dewey Geary, E4, Iowa City; second — Ron Eden, E3, Monticello; and third — Edmundo Cardenas, E3, Caracas, Venezuela.

Prizes for the most handsome beard went to: first — Larry Montgomery, E3, Muscatine; second — Tom Brugman, E3, Muscatine; and third — John Beaty, E3, Maquoketa.

Legislative Aid Key Factor—

State Schools Make Progress

Because the last two legislative sessions took major steps to help Iowa State University, Iowa State Teachers College and SUI meet several pressing needs, these institutions are in "considerably improved" positions today, says ISTE President J. W. Maucker.

"Iowa has made a good start at improving these three important educational facilities," Maucker said, continuing, "Now it is important that we keep up this good work, so we can be ready for the thousands of additional students who will soon be at our campus gates."

For instance, Maucker noted, when the 57th and 58th General Assemblies appropriated increased funds to improve faculty salaries, this helped the institutions hold many key faculty members and thus maintain instructional quality. "We've continued to lose some good people — but we would have lost many more if we hadn't been able to raise salaries to help meet the keen competition from other schools in other states," he said.

Similarly, he said, the nearly $15 million which was appropriated two years ago for new construction, utilities improvements and land purchases on the three campuses is helping to reduce the long-standing "building deficit" resulting from years of depression, war and inadequate appropriations. But it will not begin to meet anticipated space needs of the near future, he said.

Maucker listed six pressing needs of the institutions which can only be met, he said, by legislative appropriations. These include:

Faculty and staff salaries — "A perennial problem, because other states have been raising salaries, too, at a faster rate than Iowa, to a point where ISTE, ISU and SUI professors are again being enticed by, job offers involving salaries averaging $2,000 to $4,000 higher than they are presently earning."

Governor and industry, too, are taking their toll of Iowa faculties — one ISTE professor was offered some $9,000 more than his teaching salary to join a midwestern business firm. Salary schedules at all three schools are too low to enable us to attract many of the faculty replacements we need."

Enrollment expense increases — "We must be geared to add the additional faculty and purchase the supplies needed to teach more students as they enroll. By enlarging classes and adding sections we can absorb more students with our existing staffs — but only up to a point, after which we weaken our whole program."

Strengthening and improving programs — "If we are to teach students to work and live in a modern world, we must have modern tools with which to teach. Each of our three institutions must modernize courses and add new courses to meet the needs of changing times."

Equipment and books — "Here again, we must replace equipment which has become obsolete as technology has advanced, if we are to produce graduates acceptable to modern society. Our

Hillcrest Residents Vote Wednesday

Hillcrest residents will elect a new president and two Student Council representatives Wednesday night.

Allan Goode, A2, Bloomfield, and John Efferding, A2, Dubuque, are presidential candidates to replace Ralph Hillman, A2, Essex.

Candidates for Student Council are John Hoepner, A2, Davenport; Ron Andersen, A2, Dike; James Hinrichs, A2, Missouri Valley; and Dale Hurliman, A3, Burlington. Hoepner and Andersen are incumbents.

The balloting will be during the dinner hour Wednesday, according to Doug Carlson, A2, Davenport, elections chairman. The Hillcrest vice president is elected each fall from among 16 house presidents. The secretary-treasurer will be appointed by the new president.

libraries must be strengthened by acquiring new books and periodicals — inadequate libraries can only mean inadequately educated students.

Repairs and replacements — "It is poor economy to let Iowa's investment in these campuses deteriorate for lack of enough funds to make the necessary repairs, replacements and alterations. Money spent for these purposes saves much more money in the long run, besides enabling the institutions to operate more efficiently and economically."

Buildings — "Too many of our present buildings are already overloaded, even with today's enrollments, and they are completely inadequate for the numbers of students we expect to have on our three campuses in the next few years. For example —

"Here at ISTE the demands made upon our library building, now 54 years old, far exceed its capacity. Over the last two years alone, book circulation increased 27 per cent, and this will continue to rise each year. We are acquiring approximately 8,000 new books each year, to meet the need to keep up with the increase of new knowledge — and there is practically no space left to shove books where they will be accessible to students and faculty. We have done about as much remodeling to gain extra space as would be practical."

"In Iowa City, SUI is still using 51 World War II barracks for classrooms, faculty offices and storage. In addition, the University has in daily use several long-since-obsolete buildings in the neighborhood of 60 years old. The construction in progress right now on the SUI campus won't do much to reduce this nearly six acres of temporary and obsolete space."

"At Iowa State University at Ames, 10 of the buildings currently being used for classrooms, offices and laboratories were built in the nineteenth century, and range up to 90 years of age. These, plus the World War II 'temporary' buildings might well be replaced in the interest of efficiency of the University program — but this still wouldn't provide the expansion in facilities indicated by today's mounting enrollments."

"These are only a few examples of the most pressing current needs for buildings at ISTE, SUI and ISU, and there's no escaping the fact that we will need still more construction all through the 1960's. Somehow, Iowa must find the means to provide these classrooms, offices and laboratories, if Iowans expect us to continue educating more than half of their children and grandchildren."

"Iowa has a long tradition of quality in its state-supported institutions of higher learning. With the encouragement of the people in their districts who recognize these needs, our legislators have in the past four years found funds to accomplish some of the improvements we needed so desperately. We sincerely hope that Iowa citizens generally, and their elected representatives in particular, will demand that we continue these needed improvements throughout the next decade," Maucker concluded.

The belief that Iowa can, by making "some hard and wise decisions," afford to meet the costs of providing for the 37,000-40,000 students expected to be enrolled at ISU, ISTE and SUI by 1970 has been stressed on several occasions by SUI President Virgil M. Hancher who, with ISU President James H. Hilton, joined in Maucker's expressed hope for adequate institutional support.

And President Harry H. Hagemann of the State Board of Regents put it in these terms in the Regents' report to Governor Erbe and the 59th General Assembly: "If Iowa is to progress in the years immediately ahead, we believe that we must build upon the strong foundation of higher education . . . The State of Iowa has long been proud of its educational institutions. The people of this state cannot afford to allow them to deteriorate at this time of tremendous world pressures."
