Seamen's Strike Threatens Merchant Fleet

30 Port Cities, 1,000 Vessels Are Involved

White House Appeal Fails To Head-Off Midnight Walkout

NEW YORK — A major maritime strike, the first in three years, Friday threatened gradual paralysis of the nation's merchant fleet. Thirty port cities and nearly 1,000 freighters, tankers and passenger liners were involved.

White House intervention failed to head off the strike, which began at midnight. Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg, sent here by President Kennedy Thursday, kept in touch with the disputants.

But he could only report: "Meetings are continuing. The President is being kept informed."

Pickets of seven striking seamen's unions, with some 85,000 members, were on duty at some Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific ports. However, many ports were not picketed because no American ships were tied up. Picket boats patrolled the Hudson River here.

First report of picket line violence came from the Philadelphia area, where three oil refinery workers were bruised in a fight with pickets. Four persons were arrested.

The strikers received the support in many areas of the International Longshoremen's Association and the Teamsters Union.

President Joseph Curran of the striking National Maritime Union, declared: "The tankers are at a standstill in this country and many refineries are not operating. No trucks are moving because of Teamster support."

Some tankers continued to operate because their crews were not involved in the strike. The American public was little affected at the outbreak of the strike. Most dry cargo comes in to this country on foreign-flag vessels, which were not struck. There was a 40-day supply of petroleum on the East Coast, and little immediate threat of a gasoline shortage.

Key issue in the deadlock between the unions and the shippers was a demand by the strikers for the right to organize the crews of so-called "runaway" ships—American-owned vessels flying foreign flags. There are about 450 of these, mostly tankers, and the unions claim wages and working conditions aboard them are below the normal American standard.

Jerilyn Oliver Is 'Miss Iowa City'

Jerilyn Oliver, 22, Williamsburg, has been selected "Miss Iowa City." She will compete for the crown of Miss Iowa at the contest to be held at Arnold Park, near Lake Okoboji, Iowa.

Miss Oliver performed as a baton twirler last fall with the SUI Marching Band and played a leading role in the University Theatre's production of "The Boy-friend."

The winner of the Miss Iowa contest will compete in the Miss Universe contest to be held July 7-16 at Miami Beach, Fla.

Kennedy Appeals For Aid Program

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy called on Americans Friday to fight world communism by destroying its breeding grounds with long-range foreign aid.

Seeking to rally public support for his five-year, $8.8-billion cold war program, the President said poverty and social injustice invite the violent subversion which the Communists call "wars of liberation." These, he held, cannot be stopped by bombers and "they cannot be deterred by military guarantees."

Kennedy urged those who want to halt the spread of Communism "to channel their energies behind our new foreign aid program—to help prevent the social injustice and economic chaos which invite subversion and revolt—to encourage the social and economic reform and development that can stabilize new nations and weak governments."

The President's first public speaking appearance since he began using crutches a week ago was made before the National Conference on International Economic and Social Development. This is a nine-year-old group dedicated to the support of U.S. foreign aid programs.

Kennedy bore down hardest on the long-term aspect of his program—one of the things meeting heaviest opposition in Congress

$3 Million Buildings Ready Soon

By BILL STRABALA
Staff Writer

Two new SUI buildings costing a total of nearly $3 million will be in use by February, according to George L. Horner of the department of planning and construction.

The $2,800,000 Law Commons will be ready for occupancy this fall, according to Mason Ladd, dean of the College of Law.

James Jordan, director of university relations said the move from the old to the new law building will depend upon the arrival of bookshelves for the law library.

He also said plans for the old law building which will be vacated are still indefinite. He speculated that some of the offices now housed in the old dental building may be temporarily moved there.

Jordan also said the high-ceiling interior may be remodeled to sandwich in a new second story. But these plans were still nebulous.

Jordan attacked a rumor that the new Law Commons will have a ventilation problem.

According to this rumor, the windows in the law building were made not to open — ventilation being taken care of by air conditioning. The rumor further speculated that plans for air conditioning were cancelled, leaving the building without proper ventilation.

Jordan explained that the rumor started from a misunderstanding by a member of the Board of Regents.

He said that air conditioning had not been requested for the building and that the windows do open. However, ducts necessary for air conditioning have been installed within the walls, but only in case air conditioning for the building becomes financially possible in the future.

The 85 per cent-completed chemistry addition will not be ready for use until the second term because of the extensive amount of equipment — $750,000 worth — yet to be installed.

Most of the work remaining on the 3-quarter million-dollar chemistry addition amounts to interior finishing. The technical equipment and chemical supplies will cost as much or more than the building itself, according to Horner. The addition will house laboratory facilities.

accustomed to calling the foreign aid tune each year.

"I cannot stress strongly enough the necessity of obtaining this long-term borrowing authority. Under our new approach, we will be asking less developed nations to undertake a much greater effort in the way of internal reform and self-help. We will be asking the other industrialized nations to undertake a much greater effort of economic aid. We will be asking top-flight personnel in American business and professions to interrupt their careers to devote their talents to this cause," Kennedy said.

"But unless this is a long-term effort with long-term authority, we cannot convince these individuals and those other nations that we are serious about this program."

Kennedy freely acknowledged past shortcomings in the foreign aid program. He said that although over-all balance is favorable, "the critics of foreign aid have too often been right in too many of their complaints. Too much of the money generously given by the taxpayers has been wasted or unwisely spent."

The president called on his listeners to help him build confidence in the new approach but said "we cannot achieve that confidence until we have eliminated the waste, the duplication, the delays and the fragmentation of the present foreign aid machinery."

That is why, Kennedy said: "We are proposing a single new agency in Washington and in the field, to replace the present, overlapping structure."

Kennedy Off To Virginia For Rest

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy flew to his country retreat at Middleburg, Va., Friday night for a weekend of rest.

Mrs. Kennedy accompanied the President in a helicopter that took off from the White House grounds for the 25-minute trip to their rented estate, Glen Ora.

The Kennedy's children, Caroline, 3, and 7-month-old John Jr., preceded them by automobile.

Assistant press secretary Andrew T. Hatcher said Dr. Janet Travell, the White House physician, would go to Glen Ora Saturday morning for her daily check on Kennedy's ailing back.

Kennedy motored to the Shoreham Hotel Friday afternoon and entered through a freight service door as the band struck up "Hail to the Chief."

The unorthodox entry through a nine-foot-wide door was arranged for Kennedy's convenience, as the shortest distance between two points.

Kennedy, still on crutches as a result of the back injury he suffered during a ceremonial tree planting in Canada last month, was driven to the hotel to keep a speaking engagement.

He addressed the Conference on International Economic and Social Development, a gathering of business, labor and farm groups, and urged support of his long-range foreign aid program.

He stayed seated through his speech. His hotel entry was his first formal public appearance on crutches away from the White House.

To spare him a long walk, the President was driven in a White House limousine to the rear of the hotel, where a ramp leading up to the service door was waiting.

Kennedy swung himself up the green carpeted ramp with ease, stepped through the door and emerged in the ball room, only five feet from the seat was to occupy on the speakers' platform.

Assistant press secretary Andrew T. Hatcher said Kennedy is continuing to improve and soon may start walking short distances without the crutches.

Further Talk Advocated On Pay Lid

DES MOINES — Two Iowa legislators who voted for a ceiling of $18,000 a year on salaries paid a state mental hospital indicated Friday that they favor further discussion of the pay issue.

The two are Sen. George Scott (R-West Union) and Rep. Marvin Smith (R-Paullina). They are members of the Iowa Legislative Interim Committee, which Wednesday voted 6-3 to place the salary limit on mental hospital employees below the rank of superintendent.

Scott said in a telephone interview, "Maybe we, the committee, went too far, but there should be some kind of pay limit. I am very much in sympathy with the State Board of Control, which supervises mental hospitals."

"What's been accomplished in mental health is marvelous. But not all the credit goes to the psychiatrists. Drugs have done a lot. There is some feeling that we may have gone too fast. We're outpacing practically every other state for psychiatrists."

Smith said, also in a telephone interview, that there is need for further study of the psychiatrists' salary schedule scale, which now ranges up to $22,800.

"Some psychiatrists may be worth more than $18,000," Smith said. But he added that there is some feeling by the public that some of the present salaries are too high.

"The question is whether we are getting our money's worth," Smith continued. He said the legislature gave the committee "some kind of a mandate" to review the pay of the psychiatrists.

Rep. Scott Swisher (D-Iowa City), one of the three committee members who voted against the $18,000 ceiling, said he will ask the committee to reconsider.

Swisher has said the salary ceiling will "wreck the state mental health program" and may result in an exodus of psychiatrists from the state.

Neutron Bomb Called Mightier than Hydrogen

Hell (o)! Welcome to Iowa Not So Friendly

DAVENPORT — The Mississippi is not the River Styx and that "hello" — with the letter "o" missing — welcoming motorists to Iowa on Highway 6 at Bettendorf is not peculiar to this region.

The Iowa Development Commission admitted Friday that the vital letter "o" is missing from all 21 of the welcome signs at principal entries to the state.

It seems that some people just can't resist the temptation to remove the final letter from the friendly hello in the commission's greeting to visitors — even when bolted down with double strength steel. That precaution was taken when the signs were first tampered with.

The commission maintains 21 signs at principal entries to the state and 12 others at airports.

"All of them have been hit at least once," according to Martin Miller, director of education and publication for the development commission.

The sign on Highway 6 near here was the last to be hit. The Development Commission doesn't like to see its property damaged, but admits the shortened "hello" causes no end of comment.

Horse Show Tonight Includes 300 Entries

The Eastern Iowa Horse Show takes the center ring tonight and tomorrow night at the county 4-H fairgrounds, south on Highway 218.

An expected 300 entries, including some from Illinois and Minnesota, will go through their paces in 23 competitive classes.

Judging each night will start at 8:30 (DST). The show is sponsored by the Iowa City Saddle Club.

State Department Denies Charges

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Communist Czechoslovakia charged Friday the United States tried to hire one of its top diplomats as a spy. The United States retorted that the handsome Czech was a spy who had been collecting information from an American Government worker for almost a year.

The story came out when the Czech delegation lodged a protest with the U.N. Secretariat saying the United States ordered Miroslav Nacvalac, the delegate, out of the country because he refused to become a U.S. spy.

About six hours later the U.S. State Department formally announced Nacvalac's withdrawal was being demanded because of espionage activity it attributed to him.

But Nacvalac, 39, a dapper diplomat who has been with the Czech mission on a permanent basis since 1958, didn't leave. He showed up at U.N. headquarters and, calmly sipping a dry martini, told his story to reporters. He claimed that two U.S. intelligence agents — he named them only as "Mr. Mack and Mr. Jack" — offered him wealth beyond his fondest dreams if he would stay on his diplomat job and spy for the United States.

He said all this took place last Tuesday in a fashionable New York restaurant noted for its Swedish fare — the Gripsholm on E. 57th Street. With the two U.S. agents, he said, was a Czech who defected from the embassy in Washington in 1959, Lt. Col. Frantisek Tisler, a military attaché.

Nacvalac said the two agents and Tisler talked for almost three hours while he ate his smorgasbord specialties while they — as unwitting guests — just drank water.

He said he was shocked at the offer and that for a time when the agents learned his reaction they threatened him with what he called "stupid and offensive arguments."

He asserted that Tisler at one time hinted that he might be subjected to physical violence if he refused, but that the talk most of the time was calm. When they finally left, the agents told him to forget the whole thing, he added.

The United States said Nacvalac pretended all the time to be interested in becoming a defector.

The State Department's announcement declared Nacvalac made contact with an American about a year ago who was then a Government employe. Lincoln White, department spokesman, gave these details:

The Czech demanded the American's cooperation under a threat that the American's fiancée in Czechoslovakia would be prevented from joining her intended husband in this country.

She has been admitted to this country and they now are married. White said he withheld their names for the protection of the American and his bride.

Nacvalac denied to reporters that he was engaged in any kind of improper activity. He said an American was with him when the agents entered the restaurant, but left when one of the agents displayed a badge. Nacvalac refused to divulge the American's identity.

Nacvalac is counsellor of embassy and third high man in the Czech permanent mission to the United Nations. He is an expert on U.N. administrative and budgetary matters and has been in the United States since July 18, 1958.

The Czech Government made the protest in a note the mission sent here and issued to the press.

The note was addressed to "the U.N. Secretariat," rather than, as would be normal, to the secretary-general. Communist countries have withdrawn recognition from Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, a Swedish national.

The note described Tisler as a man whose extradition Czechoslovakia once sought from the United States "because of embezzlement of a large sum of money belonging to the Czechoslovak state."

Tisler was given asylum in the United States in 1959 and the following year told the House Committee on Un-American Activities he had headed all Czechoslovak military intelligence work in the country.

The note said U.S. "provocative actions" against Nacvalac and other Czech delegates added weight to the "urgent demand" that U.N. headquarters be transferred out of New York. It said the United States "is not capable of ensuring on its territory conditions for a normal functioning of this organization."

Awaits Briefs In Kelly Case

By BILL JACOBSON
Staff Writer

No decision has been reached in the Police Court case involving Daniel L. Kelly, former SUI student from Iowa City, according to Judge J. Neuman Toomey.

The case of Kelly vs. the city grew out of an incident on April 23 when Kelly was found at about 2 a.m. sleeping on a table wearing only trousers at the Downtown Laundrette; 226 S. Clinton St., by two policemen. His shirt and socks were washing at the time.

Kelly pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct in Police Court and was fined $25 and costs the same day.

Further action was initiated by members of the Socialist Discussion Club and other individuals who were concerned with what they thought to be the harassment of an individual citizen. A new trial was scheduled.

At the trial on May 13, Toomey had given the attorneys for both sides two weeks in which to file briefs.

Frank F. Kennedy, professor of law at SUI and Kelly's defense council, has filed his brief on the case, Toomey said, but William F. Suelppel, attorney for the city, has not filed his yet. He said that Kennedy, realizing how busy Suelppel is at the present time with a tax rate case, has asked for no deadline on the city attorney's brief. He said he wanted to examine both briefs before reaching a decision.

Kelly claimed he had been questioned by the police following his arrest about his political beliefs. Police denied this. He also contended he was harassed by one of the arresting officers a few nights after his arrest. Kelly said he was sitting in a local coffee shop at 2 a.m. when the officer told him that he was violating an 11 p.m. curfew law and that he had to go home.

Kennedy entered the case as Kelly's defense counsel after he was approached by a law student who was concerned with the handling of the case. Kennedy withdrew the guilty plea and changed it to one of innocent.

2 Bombs Set Off In Washington Over Integration

WASHINGTON — Two bombs were set off in downtown Washington Thursday night and Friday. An anonymous caller told police he was "going to strike a blow against integration" and there'd be more blasts.

No one was injured in the explosions Thursday night at Vermont Ave., and H St., N.W., and Friday at Massachusetts Ave., and 15th St., N.W.

The first explosion was in a garbage can about 11 p.m. and the second demolished and outdoor telephone booth at 8:10 a.m.

About two hours after the first blast, a police dispatcher said he received a phone call from a man who spoke with a Southern accent and said he had "five more bombs to go." The police officer said the man told him he came to Washington "because that is where the Freedom Riders started. I am going to strike a blow against integration."

A Day of Affection For All Fathers

Sunday is Father's Day, the day we honor our paternal parent with sentiment, words of appreciation and affection, and a gift which we usually buy with Dad's money.

It seems to be the lot of fathers to be taken for granted and to be unappreciated by their children through most of the year, but on the second Sunday of June families make a point of honoring good old father. The ritual of giving Dad his breakfast in bed, a tie and a pipe merely serve to show a portion of our esteem for the head of the family.

Wrapped up in that tie and pipe are all the years of love, kindness and guidance which children receive from their fathers. From the minute a child is born and Dad hands out the cigars and beams with pride to the time when that child is handing out his own cigars and beaming on his own child, Father affords a helping hand spiritually, emotionally, and materially.

When his child is an infant, Dad walks the floor at 2 a.m. trying to quiet his crying offspring. He brings home toys, stuffed animals, puppies, and the old college sweat-shirt for his bouncing two-year-old. When it comes time for his five-year-old to begin school, father is ready with encouraging words and a steady hand to guide his child through this new experience.

Dad listens to the troubles of a seven-year-old, answers the questions of an eight-year-old and shows his nine-year-old how he used to hit them out of the park when he was in college. Father tries to explain something about that mysterious and all-inclusive subject of life to prepare his growing child for his fast approaching responsibilities in the adult world. He must think of answers to never ending "Whys?" of the pre-teen and teenager and suffer with his child through these early years of maturation.

Father provides his child with piano lessons, often much hated at the time, that new dress or suit which his 16-year-old just must have, and one night a week, maybe, with the family car.

If possible father sends his child to college, many times with much sacrifice, and watches with a touch of pride and sadness as his bouncing baby goes into the world to make his way. But no matter how old his child becomes or how far away he may travel, dad is always ready with able aid, advice, and love he can give.

It is for this life-long help and affection that we honor Fathers Sunday and that we honor them in our minds and hearts all our lives.

And for Dad's sake, give him a decent tie Sunday.

Good Listening— Today On WSUI

A MUSICAL COMEDY, such as you might be able to see on Broadway, is presented to the ears of sleepy listeners every Saturday morning at 9. (Listeners are even sleepier than usual, now that we have Daylight Saving Time.) Rich Babi prepares and executes the program; but, in order to maintain freshness and spontaneity, he often ignores the musical until the last minute (Friday night, e.g.). That's why it occasionally occurs that we are unable to give you the name of the presentation in this column and in advance. Today is such a day.

BUT WE KNOW ALL ABOUT CUE, don't we? (I almost wish we didn't.) An old friend, a skit called "A Chance Encounter on the American Road", depicts the conversation which might ensue between old Henry Ford and Henry Ford II were they to meet in their respective autos; really, it's a gasser. Then there will be an updating of our continuing conversation with James Goussieff about the Summer Repertory Theatre in rehearsal at SUI. Other items of interest are widely separated by narrow bits of broad comedy—like Jonathan and Darlene Edwards playing music?; Henry Morgan criticizing Wagner (Richard not Mayor), Ruth Draper reading "Southern Girl", and Larry Barrett rocking and rolling. Altogether, no matter what you have to do that you think is more important, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., go ahead and do it.

TRAVEL IN EUROPE, for those who aren't affluent enough to be able to enjoy it in person, becomes possible for any of us today on Saturday Supplement. Appropriate music will accompany the traveler and make the trip all the more enjoyable. Norm Stein will serve as tour guide.

MR. BOP HIMSELF, Dizzy Gillespie, will be presented "in concert" on Tea Time Special at 4 p.m. Tom Koehler will M.C. a selection of selections from the several concert recordings Mr. G. and his intrepid troupe have waxed at home and abroad.

FOR QUITE TYPES, however, there is a full Evening Concert at 6 p.m. Then, at 8 p.m., the two groups may combine tastes over the popular Music for a Saturday Night.

Communist Guerrillas Pose Threat to South Viet Nam

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

HTNS—London Observer Service

SAIGON, — Reports that the United States is determined even to risk sending troops to South Viet Nam if necessary to prevent it from falling into Communist hands have focused international attention on this country.

One fifth of the nation already has passed out of the control of President Ngo Dinh Diem's pro-Western Administration and is completely at the mercy of the intimidating strike-by-night Viet Cong (Communist) guerrilla organization.

Senior military officials in Saigon claim that in the past year the numbers of armed Communist fighters operating throughout South Viet Nam have increased from fewer than 5,000 to 11,800. This figure does not include fully trained political cadres who are subverting and inciting the populations of towns and villages, organizing provocative anti-Government mass demonstrations and indoctrinating or intimidating the peasants.

IT IS CONSERVATIVELY estimated that this stay-behind movement is killing or abducting 60 people every week — most of them provincial officials of the Diem Administration. The Viet Cong distribute roughly printed leaflets of the "National Front for the Liberation of South Viet Nam" in Saigon itself, where gunfire can be heard when the Communist insurgents mobilized close to the capital.

Vietnamese army intelligence sources report that since the cease-fire in Laos two regular Vietminh regiments from North Viet Nam have been moved into the Laotian frontier area which adjoins the jungle-covered Vietnamese uplands, to the north of Saigon, inhabited by 300,000 minority tribesmen.

At present the Government here thinks it almost impossible to stem the creeping penetration by Viet Cong in this region, where Communist cadres have not only infiltrated among the primitive population but have married into minority families and learned their 14 principal languages. Yet many experts believe that strategically the high plateau is the key to the conquest of the South.

THE VIET CONG nevertheless suffer from definite limitations, the threat they pose at present, while grave, is often exaggerated, and the picture is not all black.

The 150,000-strong Vietnamese army, outnumbering the enemy by ten-to-one without taking ancillary forces into account, now recognizes the futility of trying to fight a conventional war against the hit-and-run Viet Cong in the swamps of the South or the tangled rain forests in the hill country, and is striking back more effectively.

ONE HUNDRED RANGER companies, each of about 100 men, have been formed to meet guerrilla tactic with guerrilla tactic, and their training is slowly being extended throughout the army. The roads are as dangerous as ever before, the toll of Viet Cong assassinations mounts, and the army's past record of desertions and weapons lost to the enemy is depressing. But according to official records the army has already inflicted 6,500 casualties on the Viet Cong this year, and in provinces like Kien Hoa, which was a black area only six months ago, troops and police have completely turned the tables on the enemy.

The problem here, however, is not so much one of killing Viet Cong as of winning over the population to the Government. The army and police, treating the peasants only too often as sympathizers of the enemy, have turned assumption into reality by beating them up, killing them or arbitrarily arresting them.

The civil servants and civil guards do not identify themselves with the people but in many areas act as petty mandarins, subjecting villagers to infamous abuses. At this moment a group of them is on trial for an outrage in which not only murder and rape but also cannibalism were combined. The rural population judges the Saigon regime by its local representatives, and in regions where shortage of personnel or nepotism has left unscrupulous administrators in charge, the masses are easy prey to Communist propaganda.

fundamentally apathetic or resentful against both sides at first, villagers in many provinces are obliged by self interest to support and serve the Viet Cong, for the Administration is simply unable to protect them from the summary and lethal justice the Communists mete out to their enemies.

THE GREATEST DANGER in this country is its political vacuum. The rigid, mandarinal Administration of President Diem has eliminated all serious opposition and the masses, from which its civil service, one-party elite is isolated, are faced with a straight choice between President Diem and the Communists. Positive support for the Viet Cong should not be overestimated, for the Communists failed signally in their attempt to rouse the people and disrupt the general elections last year and subsequently the presidential elections in April.

Many feel that the army — in which there are men in all ranks who resent the political interference of the regime and tend to compare their own dangerous underpaid jobs with the cushioned lives of Saigon politicians — may constitute a greater potential danger to President Diem than the Viet Cong, and that South Viet Nam may face another military coup rather than a Communist victory.

U.S. Response To Test-Ban Predictable

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — Now that the Soviets have locked the door on any inspectable, test-ban agreement, the United States response can be safely forecast.

As far as we are concerned, we will let the test-ban talks be recessed, not merged into interminable negotiations on general disarmament.

We will recover freedom to resume underground testing, from which there is no radioactive fallout, but not immediately resume testing.

Before resuming testing President Kennedy may very well decide to address the world from the rostrum of the U.N. General Assembly in September in order to focus the responsibility for the failure at Geneva where it belongs and to explain to world public opinion why the United States is forced to resume testing in the common defense.

At Vienna, Khrushchev gave Kennedy a memorandum stating plainly that the test-ban talks were not going to be allowed to get anywhere, but suggesting that they be kept going under another form.

This latter tactic, of course, is Khrushchev's maneuver to extend indefinitely the voluntary cessation of tests without inspection.

This Khrushchev aide-memoire on inspection is a tricky affair. It argues that anything other than a three-man directorate, each with a veto, it absolutely "impermissible." Elsewhere Khrushchev contends that this veto would not in the least preclude either side from carrying out all the inspections permitted under the treaty.

The catch here is that in saying that "the on-the-spot inspections within the limit of the agreed quotas must be effected at the request of the state interested in the inspection," Mr. K. has conveniently omitted the condition insisted upon by the Soviets at Geneva. The control commission would have to certify that the inspection is justified by the treaty. For example, there was inspection machinery to guard against a military build-up in North Korea after the Korean cease-fire and the same in Laos and Vietnam after the Indo-China treaty at Geneva in 1954, but no violation ever seemed to meet the technical requirements to bring the inspection into use.

I fail to see how Khrushchev can have it both ways. He says that there shall be uninhibited inspection within the limits of the treaty, but that inspection must be subject to the veto to guard against imposing "the will of one group of states upon another group."

If all the on-the-spot inspections are to be freely available, why the veto? If there is to be a veto, why pretend that the inspections can be freely "effectuated"?

Bear in mind that it was the Soviets who first pleaded that the test-ban issue should be separated from the general disarmament talks. It was the Soviets who contended that the test-ban control would logically lead to arms control.

Now Khrushchev wants to continue the voluntary test ban indefinitely by merging the fruitless Geneva negotiations into fruitless disarmament negotiations. I say fruitless because the Soviets now say that the veto must apply everywhere and because Mr. K. in his memorandum states that Moscow "will never accept" anything less than the veto.

How can we negotiate an agreed test ban with inspection if we are going to accept an indefinite voluntary test ban without inspection? How can we safely refrain from testing when we have no way of knowing whether the Soviets are testing?

A Soft Stick

Despite the humanitarian aspects, the tractor deal with Castro makes this country look mighty stupid.

Castro will get the tractors and turn over some "prisoners" as he pleases. There is no guarantee he will turn over anything but the stupid ones who could cause him no harm.

Castro recently gave this trick away—he said "traitors" would be dealt with by Cuba.

What we will get for our tractors is plain humiliation and Cubans who are no threat to Castro.

We're speaking loud and carrying a soft stick.

Interstate Crews Halt Construction

DES MOINES (AP) — An Iowa highway contractor has pulled his crews off an interstate highway project. He said Friday, he will not return until state officials provide adequate safety precautions to protect the men.

Irving F. Jensen Sr., president of the Brower Construction Co. of Sioux City, said the action was taken after two men were killed in traffic accidents at construction sites on Interstate 35-80 north of Des Moines.

The Brower firm has an Iowa Highway Commission contract to put a rumble coat of asphalt and coarse rock on the shoulders along the four-lane superhighway, which was opened to traffic last year.

"When that second man was killed," Jensen said, "our crews were really shook up. They told the supervisor of the job that they wouldn't work unless they got some protection. So we pulled them off."

Both fatal accidents occurred late last month where the Brower firm was working on the interstate. Jensen said he had asked the commission for permission to stop traffic on the interstate, then lead strings of cars at reduced speeds through the construction area with a pilot car.

He said the commission engineers had turned down the request. Jensen said he also has asked state officials to use radar equipment to check the speed of motorists going through the construction area. The commission recently

Allot $6,000 For Political Education

Twenty-six Iowa four-year colleges and universities will participate during the 1961-62 college year in political education activities coordinated by the Iowa Citizenship Clearing House (CCH), which maintains state-wide headquarters at SUI.

A budget of $6,450 was approved by the national CCH, with which the Iowa group is affiliated, for five political education programs involving Iowa students. Funds to support the program are provided through grants from the Ford Foundation.

According to Robert F. Ray, dean of the SUI Division of Special Services and Director of the Iowa CCH, the new budget will enable the Iowa affiliate to start several new programs as well as continue its most effective programs.

The programs planned for the 1961-62 college year include the following: 1. Week-in-Washington — Funds will be available to send twenty students and four professors to the nation's capital to view politics and the national Government firsthand. In 1960 10 students and four professors participated in this program. The Democratic and Republican parties of Iowa provide $350 each to share in sponsoring the students in the program.

2. Drake University Internships — Drake University, Des Moines, offers four internships a year for students to work in the Polk county headquarters of the two parties and in the Legislative Research Bureau.

3. Workshop on Pressure Groups — Four students and one faculty adviser will be invited from each Iowa college to attend a one-day workshop on the role of interest groups in politics and government. Six Iowa college students, who are now serving internships with national interest groups in Washington, D.C. under another Iowa CCH program, will be featured in this workshop.

4. Research in Negro Political Attitudes — The CCH will provide a grant to Jack Walker, G. Atlanta, Ga., a political science student at SUI, to help finance a study of the attitudes and activities of Negro leaders in Atlanta.

5. Political Leaders in the Classroom — This new program will provide funds to individual Iowa colleges so that professors may invite leading politicians to participate in classroom activities. Colleges are invited to submit proposals for course-connected appearances by politicians. These proposals will be reviewed by the advisory board of the Iowa CCH, a group of 15 college teachers and administrators and state leaders of both parties.

In addition to these programs, Ray said, the Iowa CCH hopes to offer a number of internships for college students to work with candidates in next year's election campaign. Proposals for these internships are to be submitted to the national group later this year.

Racine's To Change Locations

One of Iowa City's landmarks will change faces Aug. 1 when Racine's changes its location from the corner of Washington and Dubuque Streets to 13 S. Dubuque St.

The 50-year-old store started as a cigar store with a pool hall on the balcony. In 1939, a damaging fire made remodeling necessary. At that time the present interior of the store, was built.

Manager Chet Comer said the lunch counter will be discontinued in the new location so that more space will be available for tobacco specialties. Plans for a bar where individual custom blending is done are included in the expansion along with more imported pipes, cigars, and men's gifts.

Comer opened a store at the new location about a year ago with the intention of expanding through combination. After the move takes place the store will be known as Comer's and the management will remain the same. No plans for the present store have been made yet.

Seniors Get NSF Grant

Four seniors majoring in chemistry or psychology at SUI will participate in research projects this summer under a grant from the National Science Foundation (NSF).

Three students in psychology chosen to do research at SUI this summer are Mary L. Schultz, A2, Bettendorf; Wayne K. Linder, A4, Sperry, and LeRoy E. Carver, a student at Coe College, Cedar Rapids, enrolled at SUI for the summer program.

Mary Lindeman, A4, Aplington, is the chemistry student chosen to participate in the NSF research program at SUI.

The students will work with SUI professors on regular research projects already underway.

In making the grant for the program at SUI, NSF announced that it hopes the students taking part will be the most likely candidates for careers in research and college teaching.

The purpose of the NSF-sponsored program is to help colleges provide new and expanded means for advancing able students in their understanding of scientific methods and in their ability to employ investigative procedures.

This is achieved by fostering undergraduate participation in established research projects whenever practicable and by supporting research initiated expressly for its educational value to undergraduate participants.

Under the NSF grant, the undergraduate research program will continue until June, 1963, in chemistry, and until June, 1962, in psychology. Other students will be named to participate in the program later.

Freedom Riders' Arrests Total 116

Ten hunger-striking "Freedom Riders" refused to obey a police order to disperse at the Tallahassee, Fla., airport Friday and submitted quietly to arrest. Three others got into a scuffle with two white men at the Ocala, Fla., bus station and also were taken to jail.

Meanwhile, others in a total of 24 out-of-state riders who crisscrossed north and central Florida by bus in a campaign to challenge Southern racial segregation practices were served without incident at lunch counters at Tampa, Gainesville and St. Petersburg.

At Jackson, Miss., five new Freedom Riders stepped off a Greyhound bus after a trip from Nashville, Tenn., and were arrested immediately. A police captain ordered them to move on. When they did not comply, he arrested them for breach of the peace.

The arrests brought to 116 the number of Freedom Riders arrested in Jackson since May 24. In Washington, two homemade bombs were set off in a trash can and an unoccupied telephone booth Thursday night. An anonymous telephone caller told police the blasts were related to efforts of Freedom Riders.

The Tallahassee hunger strikers — five white and three Negro Protestant ministers and two Jewish rabbis — had gone without food for more than 24 hours in a protest against their inability to obtain service at the state capital's airport restaurant.

The restaurant was closed when the clergymen showed up Thursday. It was still closed when they returned to the airport Friday morning.

At Ocala, two Negroes and a white man were picked up. They were taken into custody after a disturbance which erupted when seven Freedom Riders walked into the bus station and headed for its cafeteria. Two unidentified white men advanced to meet them and there was pushing and elbowing.

Other racial developments: In Louisville, Ky., a crowd of 100 spectators cheered Thursday night when police arrested 27 Negroes and one white person at a stand-in demonstration. Police said blocking the entrance to a business establishment would be the basis for prosecution.

Summer Concert Series in Park Begins Sunday

Thomas A. Ayres, assistant professor of music of SUI, will appear as guest conductor at the inauguration of the Iowa City Community Band's summer concert series in the Park series, Sunday, at 4 p.m.

Ayres has served as guest conductor in each of the Community band's three previous summer seasons. He precedes several SUI and other musicians scheduled to perform similar duties this year. Frederick C. Ebbs and Thomas Davis, conductor and assistant conductor, respectively, of SUI bands; William Gower, assistant conductor of the SUI Symphony Orchestra; and Howard Robertson, conductor of bands at Iowa City High Schools, are also slated as guest conductors.

The Sunday performance under Ayres will be held at College Hill Park.

"News in Classes" Workshop Theme

Forty-two high school teachers representing 12 states will attend the fourth annual workshop on "The Newspaper in the Classroom of a Free Society" at SUI Sunday through June 30 in the Iowa Center for Continuation Study.

Newspapermen who will speak will include Harry Boyd, editor of the Cedar Rapids Gazette; Wilbur E. Elston, editor of the editorial pages of the Minneapolis Star-Tribune; Daryl Feldmeir, managing editor of the Minneapolis Tribune; W. T. Hageboeck, publisher, Iowa City Press Citizen; Herbert Tschudy, executive director, Iowa Daily Press Association; C. K. Jefferson, formerly circulation manager, Des Moines Register, and Frank Miller, cartoonist, Des Moines Register-Tribune. Leslie G. Moeller, director of the School of Journalism, will address a luncheon meeting on "A Picture of Changing Nations."

Other SUI faculty members in journalism, history, education, economics, geography, sociology and political science will also talk.

A trip to the Des Moines Register and the State Bureau of the Associated Press is scheduled, to give visiting teachers a chance to observe and ask questions about the various departments of news media at work. Hosts for the trip will be J. R. Hudson, Register public relations director and C. G. (Cy) Douglass, manager of the state AP bureau.

Indonesian Police To Visit Course On Police Work

Two officers of the Indonesian National Police will join approximately 100 Iowa law officers in the 25th Annual Peace Officers Short Course, to open Monday at SUI.

Officers enrolled in the one-week course will study developments and techniques in criminal investigation and key problems in the general police field.

The two Indonesian officers are Captain Harjadi, staff officer of the University of Police Science, Djakarta, and Captain Senoto, staff officer, Bureau of Organization of the Indonesian National Police.

The course will be conducted by the Bureau of Police Science of the University's Institute of Public Affairs in cooperation with the College of Law and several state agencies and organizations.

Tigers Clobber Yankees 4-2; Move into First with Indians

Fumbling Yanks Lose to Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers belted the error-stricken New York Yankees out of first place Friday night and moved in to a share of the lead themselves with a 4-2 victory.

Billy Bruton's four sharp singles led the Tigers' eight-hit attack and Phil Regan muffed the Yankees with a snappy six-hitter as a crowd of 51,744 roared its approval.

The Yankees committed five errors, but only one of Detroit's runs was unearned.

A near-fight between Tiger Norm Cash and Yankee reliever Jim Coates and the ejection of New York manager Ralph Houk enlivened the game.

The victory enabled the Tigers to rejoin the Cleveland Indians, 3-1 victors over Baltimore, in first place, one game ahead of the Yankees.

The Tigers tagged loser Bill Stafford for all their runs, getting two in the first inning.

Bill Skowron's two-run home run was the only damaging blow for the Yanks.

Cash and Coates had heated words after the Tiger first baseman was knocked down by a close pitch in the eighth. Cash attempted to walk to the mound and challenge Coates as players poured from both dugouts.

White Sox's String Snapped by Twins

CHICAGO (AP) — Excellent relief pitching by Pedro Ramos and timely hitting by Jim Lemon and Bob Allison helped the Minnesota Twins snap Chicago's seven-game winning streak, 6-1 Friday night.

Ramos took over for starter Danny McDevitt with one on and none out in the second inning and held the Sox to four hits.

Lemon doubled and scored on Allison's single in the second and then hit his fourth homer in the sixth. Allison drove home two more runs with a bases loaded single in the seventh, and Harmon Killebrew hit his 16th homer in the ninth.

Chicago scored a run in the first inning without the aid of a hit on three walks, a hit batsman and a passed ball.

2 Dismissed In Scandal

DETROIT (AP) — The University of Detroit said yesterday it has dismissed from school two of its regular basketball players "because of their admitted contracts with individuals involved in the nationwide basketball conspiracy."

The most recent basketball scandal has involved players being offered bribes to control the victory margin in collegiate basketball games.

Gambling on basketball games is done on a point-spread basis, with the favorite having to win by so many points before a bettor on that team collects.

A statement by the Very Rev. Laurence V. Britt, president of the university, announced the dismissal of Charles North and John Morgan, the second and third leading scorers on the Titan team. It said:

"It is the understanding of university officials that both players appeared voluntarily before the New York grand jury, at the request of the district attorney, and agreed to cooperate fully as witnesses. Further details are a matter of grand jury record and must await announcement by proper authorities."

North, 21, of Detroit, said: "I wouldn't like to say anything because I'm just a witness before the grand jury."

Asked whether he had been contacted about shaving points, he replied, "I have no comment on that."

Morgan, also of Detroit, played one season for the Titans after transferring from Colinga Junior College in California.

Morgan could not be reached immediately.

The Titans were ranked high among the 49 teams in the nation early last basketball season, but tapered off to an 18-6 record. The team went to the National Invitation Tournament but was eliminated in the first round.

Rumors circulated around Detroit about a month ago that the university had been involved in the basketball scandals.

Reds Down Phillies 4-1; Move into 1st

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds took over temporary possession of first place in the National League Friday night by scoring four runs in the eighth inning to beat John Buzhardt and the Philadelphia Phillies 4-1.

Rookie right-hander Ken Hunt posted his seventh triumph in 10 decisions as he held the Phillies to three hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Jim Brosnan hurled hitless ball the last two innings.

Don Demeter accounted for the Phillies' only score with a homer in the seventh.

This gave Buzhardt, who checked the Reds with two singles through the first seven innings, a temporary 1-0 lead.

St. Louis Cards, Gibson Hand Pirates 5-2 Loss

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals broke up a pitching duel with a three-run seventh inning Friday night and went on to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2.

The Cards sent nine men to the plate and pounded four hits in the big frame. Back-to-back singles by Tim McCarver and Bob Gibson, each with the bases loaded, accounted for two runs. Bob Lillis drove in the other on a fielder's choice.

Up to that time, Gibson and Pirate starter Harvey Haddix were in a 1-1 duel.

Gibson 4-3 held the Bucs to five hits, fanned four and allowed six bases on balls. Haddix 4-2 struck out one and walked one in his 6 1/2-inning stint.

Boston Rips Senators 14-9 in 4-Hour Battle

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox struck for eight runs in the fourth inning Friday night, outlasted Washington 14-9 in a near-record 3-hour, 44-minute struggle and advanced to a three-way tie for fourth place in the American League.

In addition to coming within eight minutes of the record time for a nine inning game, the marathon nearly produced another dreary record—for bases on balls. The nine pitchers used by both teams gave up 26 walks—only four short of the record set in 1916.

$118,000 Goose Tatum Caught On Income Tax Rap

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Reece "Goose" Tatum, Negro professional basketball player, was sentenced to serve 90 days in jail Friday for his failure to file federal income tax returns.

The defendant was placed on probation for three years by Judge Richard M. Duncan of the U.S. District Court.

Tatum, 39, known as the "Clown Prince of Basketball," had pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) to charges of failure to file returns for 1956 and 1957. Government attorneys earlier had reported Tatum owed more than $118,000 in taxes and penalties.

Middies Favored In Rowing Tourney

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Navy's smooth-striking Middies are favored slightly to beat contending Cornell, California and Washington in the Intercollegiate Rowing Association Championship on Onondaga Lake today.

Paul Quinn, the coach of the only all-winning crew in the record varsity field of 13, was heartened Friday by the recovery of Olympian Joe Baldwin, the Middies' No. 6 oarsman. The husky senior from Tarzana, Calif., was sidelined by stomach cramps Thursday. Friday he rejoined his mates.

But despite Navy's 5-0 record it would create no surprise if Cornell, California's defending champions (5-1) or Washington's Huskies (3-1) won the 3-mile classic.

The weatherman forecast a pleasant afternoon with temperatures in the high 70s and a spanking head wind.

Cleveland Trims Baltimore 3-1

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians bounced back into a first place tie with Detroit in the American League race Friday with a 3-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles behind the four-hit pitching of Dick Stigman and Barry Latman.

Detroit knocked New York out of the lead with a 4-2 victory over the Yankees, who now are third, a game behind.

The victory went to Stigman 2-0, who was on the disabled list with arm trouble until June 4, in his first start of the season.

The 25-year-old left-hander gave up only four hits, struck out four batters and walked one in the seven innings he worked. Latman held the Orioles hitless in the last two innings, although he walked two in the ninth.

Stigman also drove in what proved to be the winning run with a single in the fifth inning after John Romano had singled with one out and Woodie Held drew a walk.

The Indians got their first run on Willie Kirkland's homer in the second inning.

Starter Chuck Estrada 4-5, who also went seven innings, was the loser.

He gave up five hits, struck out three and walked two. Hoyt Wilhelm finished.

The Orioles got their run in the seventh on a single by Jackie Brandt, who went to second on Held's throwing error, a walk, a sacrifice and Dick Williams' sacrifice fly.

Bonus Baby Helps A's to 4-0 Win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Lew Krause, the Kansas City Athletics' $125,000 bonus pitcher, made a sensational big league debut Friday night, shutting out the Los Angeles Angels on three hits as the A's won 4-0.

The 18-year-old right-hander, who was graduated from a Chester, Pa., high school less than two weeks ago, struck out six and walked five. Five times the Athletics came up with double plays and as a result the Angels had only five men left on the bases.

McBride was the losing pitcher and the reverse evened his season record at 5-5.

Iowa Citizens Win in Open

DES MOINES (AP) — Nearly a dozen ranking college tennis stars moved through the first two rounds Friday in the singles of the Hawkeye Open, an invitational tournament serving as a tuneup for the National Collegiate tennis championships at Ames, Iowa next week.

The parade was led by Billy Hoogs, Jr., a Davis Cup team player from the University of California.

Hoogs, his teammate, Jim McManus, and defending champion Brian Casey, a student from Melbourne, Australia, drew first round byes.

They and other seeded players who will be entered in the NCAA meet, advanced to the third round of the men's singles tomorrow.

In the group were George Stoesser of Arizona University; four Texas University men, Jack Kamrath, Mac White, John Heath and Jerry Walters; Rawson Lloyd and Len Saputo of California; Pete Barizon of Arizona and Don Ralph of Notre Dame.

Neil Unterseher of Lincoln, Neb. member of the Texas University team, was forced to withdraw by a strained stomach muscle.

Evy Takes Phelan 5-4 Fires Steady Par Golf To Sweep Tournament

By GARY GERLACH Sports Editor

Jim Evashevski polished off a complete sweep of the 15th annual State Junior Golf Tournament Friday morning by defeating John Phelan of Ft. Madison, 5 and 4.

Young Evashevski, 17-year-old son of SU's Athletic Director, Forest Evashevski, thus wound up the four day junior meet by winning everything in sight — Tuesday he took medalist honors, with a one-under-par 71. Thursday he was voted the best sportsman of the tournament, and Friday morning he won match play competition.

For the fourth year in a row, Iowa City had a finalist but this was the first time that an Iowa Cityan won.

THE CARDS:

Par Out	454 345 434—36
Evashevski Out	445 344 535—37
Phelan Out	554 445 535—40
Par In	454 34
Evashevski In	444 34
Phelan In	444 55

It took only 14 holes for the championship match. Evashevski played steady par golf with a 14-hole-total 56, while Phelan turned in a 62, six over par.

Young Evy was one over par and three up after nine holes as Phelan shot a 40.

Evashevski started out strong by winning four of the first six holes. He could have done even better had he not blown three short puts.

On the fourth hole he missed a five foot shot, although he won the hole; on the fifth hole he missed a four footer and halved the hole; and on the seventh hole he booted a three-and-one-half foot putt, again halving with Phelan.

After Evashevski's strong start, Phelan came around to provide stiffer competition. They halved the next six holes, seven through 12.

But on the tough 13th hole (a par three, 150 yard hole, with the green almost completely surrounded by water) the Ft. Madison Ace ran into trouble. He shot over the green on his tee shot and landed in water four inches deep, about 25 yards from the pin. Phelan had to settle for a double bogey five, while the champion took a par three.

On the par four 14th hole — the final one played — Phelan missed a 40 foot putt by a hair, and then blew a short four footer to give Evashevski the hole four and five and the match, five and four.

Young Evy lost only one hole — number three to Phelan's par. Evashevski bogeyed it with a five. Phelan is a quiet, sandy haired youth who is best known in his home town for his basketball ability.

Phelan — in his modest manner — said he was surprised that he even qualified for the championship flight. He shot a 6 over par 78 in Tuesday's qualifying round. But Phelan effectively displayed his ability by easily eliminating two highly regarded opponents on his way to the championship match.

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Doug Sanders and Bob Rosburg, two of the humpy swingers of pro golf, led a par-busting charge that had proud, old Oakland Hills reeling Friday and took the halfway lead in the U.S. Open Championship.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer, blowing up with two double bogies and a couple of missed short putts on the back nine, shot a 75 and for a 36-hole total of 149 and barely qualified for Saturday's final round.

A pair of 3-under-par 67s sent punch-swinger Sanders, a 27-year-old former caddy from Ojai, Calif., and pudgy 35-year-old Rosburg, who has parlayed a baseball grip into an exceptional professional career, into Saturday's double round showdown with 36-hole totals of 139.

Bobby Brue, the intense, fidgety youngster who got "only a little sleep" after his scrambling 69 led the class field Thursday, shot a creditable 72. But he wasn't able to withstand the challenge of Rosburg and Sanders, two experienced, money-winning vets.

The gusty winds of Thursday abated and the 6,907-yard, par 35-

35-70 course shifted under ideal conditions from Ben Hogan's "monster" to a docile puppy. "There was a big group at 141, including Brue, a 26-year-old unknown from Menomonee Falls, Wis., who seemed tickled pink he could shoot another good score under the pressure of an Open.

With Bobby at 141 were former PGA champion Doug Ford, 23-year-old Al Geiberger, one of the "comers" of the touring group from Santa Barbara, Calif., Eric Monti of Los Angeles, Gardner Dickinson of Tequesta, Fla., and Gene Littler of El Cajon, Calif.

Australia's Bruce Crampton, Bobby Harris of Winnetka, Ill., and Bob Goaly of Crystal River, Fla., were at 142. Sam Snead, who matched par with a back nine 33, was at 143 with Dow Finsterwald, Tommy Bolt and Mike Souchak. Harris and Monti matched the 67s of Rosburg and Sanders. Littler fired a 168, and there were 69s from Ford, Dickinson and Ted Kroll. The latter had started the day at 78 and wound up at 147.

Also at 147 was Gary Player, the Masters champion from South Africa, after a 72 Friday.

Sanders hits with probably the shortest backswing in pro golf — a shoulder-high punch at the ball he says he developed when he was a caddy as a boy.

"We used to sneak out on the course to play a few holes," he said, "and the only way we could be sure to keep the ball straight and keep going fast enough for someone not to catch us was to punch at it."

Rosburg, former star athlete at Stanford, is a chipping and putting master who looks and swings something like a weekend golfer off the tee. He wears glasses, puts hunched over his pudgy middle and has a knack of winding up with the same kind of scores as the most formal, book-styled players in professional golf.
