

U.S. Test Decision— A Bit Too Soon

Once the Soviet Union began to test atomic bombs in the air again, after a three-year voluntary moratorium in which the United States and Britain participated, it was only a question of time before the U.S. would resume testing.

But the question of time was important.

Against the urgency of maintaining the U.S. lead in nuclear armament (which requires testing if Russia is refining its arsenal), the President had to weigh the advantage in the psychological contest of refraining from a quick resumption of testing.

Mr. Kennedy resolved this dilemma by deciding in favor of an early series of test explosions. He did not wait even a week after the Soviet tests began. He did not wait even until the deadline (Sept. 9) of the proposal he and Prime Minister Macmillan made to Russia to voluntarily refrain from test explosions above ground which would spread radioactive wastes in the atmosphere.

The U.S. tests, announced to begin this month, will be "in the laboratory and underground with no fallout." And the proposition to Russia on atmospheric tests still holds good.

Nevertheless, it cannot be denied that the U.S. has sacrificed some of the gain in prestige and good will it was harvesting by refusing to jump in hastily and follow the Soviet example. Mr. Kennedy evidently was persuaded by the arguments of the military establishment, Congress and the Atomic Energy Commission that the military requirements outweigh the propaganda loss.

Several questions about this decision may properly be raised, even though the public cannot know all the intelligence data which the President had before making up his mind.

The public cannot know U.S. intelligence reports on the status of Soviet nuclear science, nor can it know, for that matter, where U.S. nuclear research stands. Conceivably, the possibility of a Soviet breakthrough which would alter the balance of nuclear power forced the President to act as he did. If both countries are on the verge of a really new, "small package" nuclear weapon, then any delay in U.S. development while Russia moved ahead would be extremely dangerous.

Acknowledging this possibility, has the President been deliberate enough in making his announcement about the new tests?

Only a week ago President Kennedy said that the Administration was "entirely confident that the size of the U.S. nuclear weapons stockpile and the capabilities of the individual weapons and delivery system are wholly adequate for the defense of the United States and the free world."

Congressmen were given reports by the AEC which were said to show the vast superiority of the U.S. over Russia in nuclear weapons. One congressman said the details of the U.S. arsenal were "hair raising" in their awesomeness.

Unless new information has changed this estimate within the last week, it would seem that a few more days delay in making an announcement about tests would have been a good risk. The unexpectedly quick announcement gave the appearance of a sudden change of mind. Until now, Mr. Kennedy has given the world a picture of calmness, restraint, confidence, and determination to watch and see rather than to be pushed into action by his military advisers.

In this cold war the West often has been at a disadvantage against the Communists' cynical talk of peaceful co-existence. Communist parties in most countries have been skillful in exploiting fears of war, the colonial issue and the desire for quick economic gains in the poor countries.

But here the West had handed to it on a platter a beautiful psychological advantage. Secretary of State Dean Rusk recognized this when he said, "This business of the Soviet Union ought to soak in hard — soak in hard everywhere."

Has it soaked in enough in one week?

In the Cuban fiasco, President Kennedy acted hastily apparently without weighing the effect of his action on world opinion. The quick yielding to the military on the atomic test question has similar disquieting overtones of impulsiveness in handling foreign policy.

'Is There Somebody Else?'

Matter of Fact—

Republican Pattern Splits Into 3 Separate Groups

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Former Vice-President Richard M. Nixon recently completed a Washington reconnaissance. With no significant exceptions, the local Republican elders advised Nixon to run for Governor of California. Some added that Nixon's position of leadership in the party would be sadly undermined if he ducked the gubernatorial race.

The competition, from Democratic Gov. Pat Brown, is at present expected to be fairly lackadaisical. Yet the advice Nixon got in Washington, although similar to the advice he has been receiving in California, was decidedly unpalatable to him. He does not want to run for the governorship, partly because the office itself does not irresistibly attract him, and partly because he would naturally like to wait a little longer before making another hard race.

All the same, the logic of Nixon's situation clearly jibes with the advice he got here. Even the minor considerations, such as the fact that the California State House would give Nixon a dignified refuge from the 1964 Presidential primaries, all tend to push Nixon into the gubernatorial contest.

HENCE IT APPEARS likely that the reluctant Nixon will finally announce his gubernatorial candidacy when his self-set deadline comes in the middle of next month. He might balk at the last moment. But the odds favor the Nixon candidacy, and if he makes the race, the odds are on a Nixon victory over Pat Brown.

Thus one of the major elements in the coming Republican pattern appears to be about to jell in a rather solid and impressive way. As to element number two, the situation of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York can be considered as having jelled already, barring a political miracle to reverse the present outlook.

Rockefeller is virtually certain to win re-election by a good majority, if only for want of effective opposition. He just may make an important gain from the moon-struck mayoralty fight in New York City, where the Democrats are certainly doing everything in their power to help the other side. And even without this missed papers is not possible, but every effort will be made to correct errors with the next issue.

kind of gain, Rockefeller's home-state position will be very strong. Furthermore, as things now stand, Rockefeller also seems likely to be further strengthened by other Northeastern state victories of Republicans of the Rockefeller type. The most notable example is former Secretary of Labor James Mitchell, whose prospects for capturing the governorship of New Jersey are now rated very good indeed.

THERE MAY BE other such successes, as well. All of them will drive home the point that Rockefeller-type Republicanism wins votes. The point will have to be driven home very hard indeed, however; for even the New York City financial district, where the Landon, Wilkie, Dewey, and Eisenhower drives all began, is far from ready for Rockefeller as yet.

As for the Republican pattern's third and last major element, Sen. Barry Goldwater's desire to impose an all-out Southern-oriented strategy on his party has been examined in a previous report. But this is not the end of the Goldwater story, by any means. Another important chapter could be glimpsed during one of Goldwater's recent visits to California. Here an avowed member of the neo-Fascist John Birch Society, youthful Rep. John Russell, is threatening to challenge moderate Republican Sen. Thomas Kuchel in a party primary.

Russell's chances to beat Kuchel appear to be minimal. Kuchel is Goldwater's colleague and deputy Senate leader, and Goldwater is chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee. Hence a word from Goldwater favoring Kuchel ought to have been a matter of course. He was pressed to say this word. Yet he refrained quite ostentatiously from doing so, even when the "bleachers" of the stadium where he made his address blossomed with John Birch Society "Russell for Senator" banners.

GOLDWATER IN fact hopes to be helped by the victories of Goldwater-type Republicans, just as Rockefeller hopes to be helped by victories of Republicans of the Rockefeller type. Furthermore, while Goldwater has little chance of this kind of outcome in California, he has an excellent chance in other parts of the country. In the South and the Midwest especially, his agents are looking for the right sort of candidates to support; and they may easily find what they want.

If this happens, Goldwater will be a third formidable contender. And his emergence as a serious candidate will add violent ideological inflammation to the coming contest.

Peace—The Key Issue At Belgrade

By JOHN CROSBY

BELGRADE — The issues here, stripped of verbiage, ideology, and politics, are simply peace, the over-rising issue, and poverty. Sometimes the jokes belting around the conference of non-aligned nations tell the story better than the oratory. There's a Russian joke I like. One Russian asks another: "What would you do in case of nuclear war?" The other one says: "I'd join a crowd and walk slowly to the cemetery." "Why slowly?" "I don't want to start a panic."

Nobody wants to start a panic but the question is how tough can you be without starting the conflagration nobody, including the Russians, wants. The Russian saber-rattling, blowing off atom bombs in the atmosphere, and all that, sounds suspiciously as if they were trying to panic the non-aligned nations here into alignment with them. It sounds too as if the Russians were totally contemptuous of world opinion. But the Russians are never contemptuous of world opinion. The idea, I think, is to stampede world opinion towards a negotiation for total disarmament on their terms.

JUST AS THE Russians took over the world peace as their very own, they have not latched onto the phrase total disarmament, and the United States and the West have been chivied into the position in the eyes of much of the world of being against total disarmament. President Tito's speech upset the American Embassy for reasons I can't quite understand. Perhaps the time has come, Tito said, to consider the possibility of convening a general world disarmament conference.

This is what the Russians want and Russian correspondents here, headed by Victor Mayevsky, one of the foreign editors of "Pravda," have been going around the conference saying openly and repeatedly to anyone who will listen that the saber-rattling and bombs in space and panic button tactics were going to be followed by a massive Russian push towards a general disarmament conference.

The West's position is a separate problem from a nuclear test ban, against which the Russians seem adamant, but this seems to put us in the position of opposing general disarmament. This is a very difficult thing to explain to the peoples of the uncommitted nations, whose passion for peace was most dramatically expressed by little Madame Bandaranaike, Prime Minister of Ceylon. She electrified the delegates of 24 nations by crying: "There's not a single mother who can face the possibility of their children being exposed to atomic radiation."

THIS WAS A FLAGRANT appeal to the mother vote of the world and it got a storm of applause, the only applause to interrupt a speech so far, proving that motherhood is as sacred, as unassailable, and as sure-fire in the under-developed countries as it is in Topeka.

The conference took place in the Yugoslav parliament building and, as one wag has said, it is the first free discussion to be held in that edifice in 60 years. Seated around the huge oval table were a colorful mixture. Nehru, the bored star of the show, almost more British than Indian. Sukarno, in dark glasses which make him look like a villain in a Warner Brothers movie, wearing a succession of uniforms covered with decorations, though he's one of the few who never served in anybody's army.

THESE COLORFUL AND diverse folk rode to the Parliament building each day in a glittering array (by Yugoslav standards) of old Packards, new Cadillacs, and sundry other rolling stock which cost the American taxpayer (who is really footing the bill for this whole conference) a pretty penny. Peace, as Nehru and everyone else has said, is the great issue (if war comes all else goes). But right behind peace comes poverty and here the non-aligned, whether they be Communist or wallowing, like the Prince of Yemen, in the middle ages, have an emotional understanding of one another and of Russia that excludes us. These are po' folk and traditionally the po' folk hate the rich folk, which is what we are.

There's a bad Russian joke that goes: "Isn't it going to be great when we pass the United States?" "No, it'll be embarrassing then because they'll see our naked behind."

There's another much better Russian joke which is apt in this matter of foreign aid: "Is it true that under Khrushchev you can now make love in Red Square?" "Yes, but you'll get an awful lot of bad advice."

Well, when someone betters your way of life, there are always conditions attached, and I think we should attach a few conditions to our largesse, if we don't want to be crucified by our own generosity.

THE "BIG THREE" Cabinet members of the Kennedy Administration these days are Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. The trio exercises greater influence during these tense days of the Berlin Crisis than any other Cabinet members.

Rusk Warns Reds Against Unilateral Act

Says Talks Will Start
When Constructive
Negotiations Occur

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk warned the Soviet Union Friday night that if it sided action against the world's vital interests in West Berlin "could only cut disaster."

"We expect negotiations on Berlin as soon as it is apparent that negotiations serious and constructive character can occur," Rusk added. However, in a speech for a U.S. Army Association of Officers, Rusk gave the hint that the Soviets have indicated interest in such negotiations.

The U.S. foreign affairs spokesman reported only that "there are channels of communication available between Moscow and West; they are not being neglected."

As Rusk spoke out, Khrushchev was seen holding open the door for negotiations to settle the Berlin dispute, but not on terms acceptable to the West.

And Khrushchev appeared to have joined President Kennedy's reluctance to rush into any summit meeting now.

Khrushchev said at a Moscow meeting with Indian Prime Minister Nehru that he was ready "businesslike talks" with West powers on the mounting Berlin crisis.

Rusk said that if peaceful processes in the German question are to succeed, "they must be given their chance."

He continued: "This means unilateral action taken against vital interests of the free world in West Berlin could only cut disaster."

"There have been threats implied threats of such action recent weeks, with particular regard to Allied air traffic into Berlin."

"The months ahead will be crucial months, and much will turn on the issue of Berlin."

"The problem is whether channels of East-West communication can lead to a meeting of minds whether peace is a common purpose, whether there are arrangements, in President Kennedy's words, 'consistent with the maintenance of peace and freedom with the legitimate security interests of all nations.'"

Rusk recited postwar efforts the United States to shape a peaceful world and blamed Soviets for blocking these efforts.

A major hitch in a start of negotiations between East and West on the explosive Berlin dispute that neither side has offered points which the other seems interested in negotiating about.

The West does not want to talk about a peace treaty with Communist East Germany, a region which the Western powers do recognize. And a peace treaty what Khrushchev said Friday would be willing to discuss "businesslike talks."

U.S. Allies: Won't Yield

LONDON (AP) — Government officials in Britain and France Friday night scornfully rejected Nik Khrushchev's assertion that the countries will knuckle under to Berlin in the face of Soviet nuclear might.

The Soviet premier's view was reported in the New York Times. The newspaper quoted him Friday as saying in an interview these "figuratively speaking" hostilities to us" because they would refuse to join the United States in a war over Berlin's fear of nuclear destruction.

"The problem is whether channels of East-West communications can lead to a meeting of minds, whether peace is a common purpose, whether there are arrangements, in President Kennedy's words, 'consistent with the maintenance of peace and freedom, and with the legitimate security interests of all nations.'"

Rusk recited postwar efforts by the United States to shape a peaceful world and blamed the Soviets for blocking these efforts.

A major hitch in a start of negotiations between East and West on the explosive Berlin dispute is that neither side has offered points which the other seems interested in negotiating about.

The West does not want to talk about a peace treaty with Communist East Germany, a regime which the Western powers do not recognize. And a peace treaty is what Khrushchev said Friday he would be willing to discuss in "businesslike talks."

Paar Ignites Another Controversy—

Cameras at Berlin Border Cause Furor in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Disgraceful, shocking, highly dangerous" was the description applied by senators Friday to the use of U.S. Army forces in Thursday's filming of a Jack Paar television show in Berlin.

The Defense Department, with approval of the White House, ordered an investigation.

"This incident has disturbed the White House and the State Department and has brought a large number of inquiries from the public," said Arthur Sylvester, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs. In the Senate, an obviously aroused Democratic majority leader, Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, said he was more than disturbed.

"To say I was disturbed is an understatement," Mansfield said. He told the Senate the situation in Berlin is a world tragedy and not a TV spectacular "to be made into some kind of game for the personal profit of personalities in the entertainment world."

What happened was this: Jack Paar, the "I Kid You Not" star of the late evening NBC-TV variety program, showed up at one of the restricted border crossings between East and West Berlin Thursday with four cameras.

NBC said Paar explained that more than the normal complement of men and equipment were at the scene because the guard was being changed and the taping attracted other military personnel out of curiosity. The performer added, NBC said, that the officers in charge thanked him for the way he handled the show.

Newsweek in Berlin was told by an Army officer Thursday night that an operational changeover of units was in progress at the time and "in an effort to be accommodating we permitted Mr. Paar to film these activities."

Sylvester said as far as he had been able to learn there was no approval or clearance from the Defense or State Departments or White House for the use of Army men and equipment on the Paar show.

Organization leaders, including Tammany boss Carmine De Sapio, went all-out against Wagner in the primary, running State Comptroller Arthur Levitt against him.

Wagner, after a six-week campaign, defeated Levitt by 451,458 to 291,672 and routed the organization.

80 Advisers To Return For Briefing

More than 80 student advisers will arrive on campus Tuesday to take a special training course designed to help them make life easier for other students registering the next week. The advisers will counsel students in their dormitories.

The dormitory advisers were selected on the basis of their personality, vocational goals and academic achievement and include both graduate students and some undergraduates who are considered mature enough.

The adviser training program, which will get under way Wednesday, will find 86 advisers, counselors and nurses participating. They will learn what is expected of them in helping students with problems — both academic and personal. Typical problems involve homesickness, grades and health.

Training for the advisers is under the direction of Helen E. Focht, counselor for women, and Dirk Brown, counselor for men. In addition to the week of intensive training ending Sept. 17, the advisers will attend an in-service training course of one meeting a week during the school year.

Advisers receive rebates on their room and board, depending on the amount of time they give to the program.

Applications Being Taken for Science In-Service Institute

Applications for an In-Service Institute for Secondary Teachers to be given on 26 Saturdays during the coming academic year at SUI are still being taken, according to Professor Robert E. Yager, director of the institute and head of the science department at University High School. Information on the latest scientific research and new methods of teaching science will be featured.

Fifty high school teachers of science will be admitted to the institute, which is being supported through a grant of $16,000 from the National Science Foundation. Tuition, textbooks and travel expenses will be provided for teachers of science accepted for the institute.

To open Oct. 7, the Saturday institute sessions will close May 14. Three courses — in geology, biology and physical science — and seminar sessions will be presented.

Bourguiba Alters Basis For Bizerte Settlement

TUNIS (AP) — Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba agreed Friday to a new basis for settlement with France on the strategic Bizerte naval base.

Bourguiba told a news conference negotiations could be held on French use of the base as long as the Berlin crisis continues. Then there should be talks on the eventual withdrawal of French troops, he said.

Wagner's Win Spells Defeat Of 'Bossism'

NEW YORK (AP) — Effective use of "bossism" as an issue, and support from two highly respected Democrats, helped Mayor Robert F. Wagner win renomination despite bitter opposition from Tammany.

Herbert H. Lehman, former governor and senator, and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt provided major support, especially among the important minority groups.

And some observers think that Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller inadvertently helped. It was Rockefeller who called the legislature into special session to deal with the city's scandal-riddled schools during the height of the campaign.

The GOP-controlled legislature authorized Wagner to fire the school board and replace it with a blue-ribbon panel. That, many believe, took the heat off Wagner who had been blamed for the way schools had been maintained and administered and in connection with school construction scandals.

Wagner won the nomination Thursday against the combined opposition of city and state leaders and emerged as the most powerful Democrat in the state. He is now a top candidate for the gubernatorial nomination and is heavily favored to win reelection in November over the Rockefeller-backed Republican nominee, Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz.

Lefkowitz says Democrats "merely utilized him (Wagner) as a lever to topple the Tammany Democratic machine." The Republican also declared, "The action, of course, constituted in no manner an endorsement of the flabby, futile leadership and the scandal-stained city administration of Mayor Wagner."

Organization leaders, including Tammany boss Carmine De Sapio, went all-out against Wagner in the primary, running State Comptroller Arthur Levitt against him.

Wagner, after a six-week campaign, defeated Levitt by 451,458 to 291,672 and routed the organization.

U.S. Allies: Won't Yield

LONDON (AP) — Government officials in Britain and France Friday night scornfully rejected Nikita Khrushchev's assertion that their countries will buckle under on Berlin in the face of Soviet nuclear might.

The Soviet premier's view was reported in the New York Times. The newspaper quoted him Friday as saying in an interview these nations "figuratively speaking, are hostages to us" because they would refuse to join the United States in a war over Berlin for fear of nuclear destruction.

An authorized British source said: "If Khrushchev really believes this he is under a dangerous illusion."

"The British Government and people mean to fulfill their engagements over Berlin — even to the point of war."

Defense Minister Harold Watkinson is expected to affirm this stand publicly today.

In Paris, officials recalled the tough declaration of French policy on Berlin by President Charles de Gaulle only Tuesday.

"The Allies must maintain their positions by force" if Russia seeks by force to cut the communications of the Western powers in Berlin.

In Rome incredulity was the official Italian reaction.

A spokesman at the office of Premier Amintore Fanfani said, "Khrushchev's words echoed the phrasing of a propaganda rally."

The spokesman added that Fanfani explained to the Soviet leader "with the utmost clarity" the position of the Italian Government during talks in Moscow in August.

"We are staunch allies of the Western bloc," the spokesman quoted Fanfani as telling Khrushchev.

Brazil's Goulart Sets Up 'Middle-Road' Cabinet

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — President Joao Goulart Friday night established a coalition Cabinet headed by politico-businessman Tancredino Neves to operate Brazil's new parliamentary-type Government.

His setup won overwhelming congressional approval after congressmen from his own south Brazilian home range country protested the middle-road character of the Cabinet.

Congress voted 259-22 in favor of Neves to hold the top post and 246-10 for the over-all Cabinet.

The key posts of foreign minister and finance minister went to Francisco San Tiago Dantas and Walter Moreira Salles, respectively.

Ruy Ramos, a deputy in Goulart's Labor party, charged that the Cabinet contained members who either had betrayed the Laborites or had sold out to foreign capitalists. Ramos accused Moreira Salles of having too close ties with Wall Street.

The protests ended when Labor party Deputy Croacy de Oliveira read a dramatic appeal by Goulart urging Congress to go on with the vote.

Before the balloting, another Labor deputy, Gerlando Ferrari, declared he soon will introduce a bill calling for a national referendum on wiping out the parliamentary system within 90 days.

To eliminate rightist military opposition to Goulart, Congress had approved a constitutional amendment taking most of the powers from the presidency and giving them to a prime minister under the parliamentary system.

The leftist Goulart fired the three military chiefs who touched off a political crisis by temporarily blocking his rise from vice president to president after Janio Quadros resigned Aug. 25.

Neves, 51, a member of the dominant Social Democrats, had a clear road to the powerful post of prime minister.

He was approved by his middle-of-the-road party in a caucus with Goulart. The Social Democrats control Congress with the right-of-center National Democratic Union.

Goulart had refused to present Neves formally until he had a complete list of Cabinet ministers to nominate.

None of the Quadros' ministers made the new Cabinet lineup.

The new military chiefs: Gen. Segadas Viana, war minister, succeeding Gen. Odylio Denys; Adm. Angelo Nolasco de Almeida, Navy minister, replacing vice Adm. Silvio Heck; and Brig. Colvis Travaassos, air minister, succeeding Gabriel Grum Moss.

The big job of repairing the damage caused by the political turmoil of President Janio Quadros' resignation Aug. 25 will fall to Neves.

"We are going to start anew," said the slight, balding, textile magnate. "Our foreign policy will represent the pure tradition of Brazil."

This was taken to mean he planned to renew cooperation with Washington and ease back from the ties with Fidel Castro's Cuba and the Communist bloc favored by Quadros.

The Iowa City Community Theatre Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. will hold its annual Kickoff Potluck Supper to begin its 1961-62 season. The supper will be at the Episcopal Church Parish House.

A business meeting will follow the supper.

Roland Reed, G. Belle, Mo., will address the group. Reed will direct the first production of the season, "The Little Foxes," to be presented Nov. 16 through 18.

Crews will be signed up for the production following the meeting.

Fastest and Roughest

Football Fanfare

By JERRY ELSEA
Sports Editor

Iowa's football recruiting, notorious for grabbing off the best prep stars from other states, should be in for less criticism this year than any other.

Twenty of the total 60 players invited to report are Iowans, a recent survey has revealed. While this 33 per cent is more than in any recent year, bars may still be aimed at 40 more players representing 32 towns in 11 states and Canada.

Most vulnerable to newspaper jibes are Iowa's perennially fast backfield men, including All-American Larry Ferguson from Madison, Ill.

Murray Olderman, president of the Football Writer's Association of America, commenting on Ferguson has written, "Larry, the darter, is one of those all-the-way types that seem to abound at Iowa, their running style perfected no doubt by having to sprint across a couple of states to get to Iowa City in the first place."

But Iowa has contributed some pretty classy players who should "help out" the "foreigners." Sherwyn Thorson, known as "Thumper" because of his bruising tackles and blocks, is a Fort Dodge product. A two year letterman, Thorson, 210 and 6-0, is a widely mentioned candidate for All-American guard.

John Calhoun, junior quarterback from Mason City, is a fine Hawkeye punter as well as a good leader and much improved player. He's currently battling for the No. 2 quarterback slot.

Lonnie Rogers, sophomore from New English was a starter at right halfback until a knee injury sidelined him for two weeks. Rogers is a clever runner with good speed and fair size, 185 and 5-11.

Earl McQuiston, a high school all-American at Keokuk, is currently Iowa's No. 1 right guard. A seasoned letterman, McQuiston combines heads-up play with good size, 221 and 6-2.

Wally Hilgensch, a sophomore from Wilton Junction, and brother of Coach Jerry, is a promising No. 2 right guard. Hilgensch hits hard and has good speed. He played backfield in high school.

Mike Reilly, another sophomore guard, is rated best on offense and coaches report that he is expected to be the "sleeper" among the linemen. Reilly from Dubuque is 6-2 and 200.

John Sunseri, huge sophomore left tackle, also hails from Dubuque. Hampered by a knee injury last spring, Sunseri, 6-1 and 225, needs experience but coaches regard him as a possible starter.

Jerry Williams, who doubles as a hurdler on the track squad, makes his home in Tacoma, Wash. but originally came from Cedar Rapids. Williams, a senior, has great speed for a guard but has been troubled with a leg injury.

Pete Roemer, currently No. 3 center from Bettendorf, and Jim Robshaw, center from Council Bluffs, are both sophomores and both big, 220. It's tough, of course, to move up against All-American hopeful Bill Van Buren and Dayton Perry.

Bob Kreamer, junior halfback from Des Moines, is a big powerful runner, 9-9 in the 100 and holder of the Iowa high school 220 record with :21.7. But among the Hawkeye break-away specialists Kreamer has plenty of competition and it's hard to advance.

There are many other Iowans on the team, not first, second, or some even third stringers but fine potential players who would hold higher positions on a team without such a wealth of talent.

The number of promising sophomore from Iowa indicates that out-of-state recruiting should receive less criticism in future seasons.

Meanwhile, the non-Iowan football followers who complain about players, "sprinting across several states to get to Iowa City" are probably envious of the team which could possibly sprint over eight or nine teams and halfway across the country to Pasadena.

New Hawk Roster Lists Few Changes

Jim Helgens, 6-2, 190 pound sophomore from Scotch Grove, has moved up to the No. 2 left end position on the Iowa football team and Gus Kasapis, burly 235 pound left tackle, remains the only sophomore on the first unit, according to the most recent report from the coaching staff.

Helgens took over the spot from junior letterman Jim Winston who now ranks No. 3. Lonnie Rogers, who began the season as No. 1 right halfback is still sidelined with an injury and is expected to be out of action until about Sept. 16.

The first string members are: Felton Rogers, RE; Kasapis, LT; Sherwyn Thorson, LG; Bill Van Buren, C; Earl McQuiston, RG; Al Hinton, RT; Bill Whisler, RE; Wilburn Hollis, QB; Larry Ferguson, LHB; Sammie Harris, RHB; Joe Williams, FB.

Bernie Wyatt, listed as No. 2 right halfback, is to be used primarily as defensive halfback.

John Calhoun, junior quarterback, remains in the No. 2 spot ahead of Matt Szykowsky who missed spring football because of baseball. Szykowsky was last year's second string quarterback.

Calhoun, Hollis, and Mike Reilly, No. 3 right guard were listed as punters.

Mauren Takes Coaching Position at Upper Iowa

Jerry Mauren, captain of the 1959 Iowa football Big Ten co-champions has joined the Upper Iowa university football coaching staff as a special backfield assistant.

The 5-10 speedster from Wyandotte, Mich. played right halfback for the Hawks last season, averaging 4.4 yards per carry on rushing plays. He caught five passes good for 59 yards.

Mauren, who also played catcher and outfield for the Hawkeye baseball squad, succeeds former Iowa player Hugh Drake at the assistant coaching spot.

Bucs Nip Braves; Friend Is Winner

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Veteran right-hander Bob Friend weathered a ninth inning uprising by Milwaukee Friday night to dim the fading hopes of the third place Braves for the top spot in the National League race as his Pittsburgh Pirates won 2-1.

The 31-year-old hurler held the Braves to six scattered hits in the first eight innings before Milwaukee got three men on base on two hits and a walk and then let them die there in the ninth.

Friend (14-17) seldom was in trouble before the final frame despite the fact that his teammates got only four hits off two Milwaukee hurlers.

The Pirates scored their two runs in the fourth when Bill Virdon and Dick Groat walked. Roberto Clemente singled Virdon home and Groat went to third. Groat scored on a double play ball. Milwaukee got its run in the sixth on a double by Eddie Mathews and a single by Hank Aaron. Pittsburgh 000 200 000 — 2 4 0

Stumbling Detroit Loses 8th Straight

BOSTON (AP) — Boston relief pitcher Mike Fornieles beat the collapsing Detroit Tigers 9-2 Friday night by rescuing wild Tracy Stallard and hitting his first major league home run.

Battery mate Jim Paganlioni drove in five runs with a three-run homer, a double and single.

Only a game and a half behind New York prior to last weekend's Yankee Stadium disaster, the second place Tigers now are 10 back. The loss was their eighth in a row and 10th of the last 11.

Fornieles allowed only one Tiger hit in posting his ninth triumph. He replaced Stallard who also had permitted just one blow — Dick Brown's solo homer — in 4 1/2 innings but had walked 10.

Iowa Shunned by Dell Magazine Forecaster

Rico, of the Southwest Conference, and not Iowa, will be the country's No. 1 team according to Stanley Woodward's Football Magazine, published by Dell.

Woodward picked Ohio State to win the Big Ten and take second in the top twenty. He tabbed Iowa for the fourth spot.

The football swami saw no Hawkeye All-Americans running through his crystal ball, so none were listed in his first and second string pre-season picks.

Mantle Connects for 52nd

Maris Fails To Homer As Yanks Cuff Indians

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Maris failed to add to his home run total Friday night, but Mickey Mantle hit No. 52 — giving the young New York Yankee slugger a tie for the two-man, major league record of 107 homers in one season set by Yankee immortals Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig in 1927.

Maris, leading the pursuit of Ruth's one-season record of 60 homers with a total of 55, was 0-for-3, walking once. Mantle, who walked twice, was 1-for-2, belting his home run off right-hander Gary Bell with the bases empty in the fifth inning as the Yankees walloped Cleveland 9-1 for their ninth straight victory.

It was Mantle's third home run against Cleveland this season, but left him still two games behind Ruth's record pace of 1927. Maris now is six games ahead of the Babe.

Each has 13 games remaining in which to tie or break Ruth's record within the limit of 154 team decisions set by Commissioner Ford Frick.

The Yankees thus rumbled into a 10 1/2-game lead in the American League over the Detroit Tigers, who lost their eighth in a row, 9-2 at Boston. The Yankees' magic number now is 12 — any combination of New York victories and Detroit defeats totaling 12 and they have the flag.

Kasko's Hit Keeps Cincy In 1st Place

CINCINNATI (AP) — Eddie Kasko singled in the winning run in the 10th inning Friday night as the Cincinnati Reds protected their shaky lead in the National League with a 3-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Kasko lashed his game-winning single into left after Gus Bell had singled and his pinch-runner, Elio Chacon, had been sacrificed to second.

The Reds, after being held to four hits through the first seven innings by starter and loser Ernie Broglio (9-11) rallied for two runs in the eighth to pull into a tie.

Jim Brosnan (9-3), relieving starter Jim O'Toole, was the winner.

In the fourth O'Toole walked Julian Javier with one out and Javier scored on Charlie James' double. Ken Boyer singled in James.

Broglio's first walk led to the Red's uprising in the eighth. Javier's error on Kasko's fielder's choice set the stage for Frank Robinson to drive in the tying runs with his double.

Orioles Take 7th in Row

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles extended their longest winning streak of the season to seven straight Friday night, sweeping a two-night doubleheader from the Washington Senators, 2-1 and 4-2.

Errors figured in both Baltimore winning rallies, as Washington lost for the 24th time in 25 starts.
