87th U.S. Congress To Convene Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Congress already on notice that President Kennedy wants to raise the national debt ceiling rings up the curtain today on what probably will be a rousing election year session.

House Democrats got ready Tuesday at a sweetness and light caucus. Without a murmur of dissent they voted to nominate Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts to be House speaker. They made Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma their unanimous choice to step into McCormack's old post as Democratic floor leader.

Thus in the House, which shapes up as this year's major battleground, the chief responsibility for piloting Kennedy's program over legislative shoals will fall on a new leadership team. Kennedy of course wants a lot more from Congress than a boost that probably will shove the legal limit of the national debt beyond the $300-billion mark for the first time. The ceiling now stands at $298 billion.

High on the President's list are proposals on tariff cuts, medical care for the aged under Social Security, aid to education, tax changes — but no general cut — a new farm plan, higher postal rates.

The President skimmied through the list twice Tuesday, first with McCormack, Albert and other Democratic congressional leaders, then with his cabinet.

The chief executive will unfurl it to public view on Thursday in the annual State of the Union message he will deliver in person to a combined Senate-House session, in the House chamber.

To the veterans, it is going to seem strange to look up at the House rostrum and not see Sam Rayburn standing there, gavel in hand. He was speaker more than twice as long as any other man. Now he is dead.

This year the gavel will be in the hand of Ralph Roberts, clerk of the House. But not for long. It is just a matter of going through the motions to elect McCormack speaker.

Democrats have a 258-174 edge on the Republicans. That isn't enough to guarantee getting all the Kennedy bills through the House, but it is plenty big enough to make their man speaker.

Senate Democrats have no leadership vacancies. Senate Republicans must find a successor to the late Styles Bridges of New Hampshire as chairman of their policy committee. The contenders are Sens. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa and Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts. The picking will be done in a party huddle Wednesday.

After Thursday, two more of the three major presidential messages that always mark a new session still will be coming along.

The White House said Kennedy will submit his budget — he has promised it will be in balance — on Thursday, Jan. 18, and the annual report on the national economy on Monday, Jan. 22.

Two special messages, with no special times set for them, will convey to Congress the Administration's farm and trade-tariff programs. Both of these have been billed as new and bold.

McCormack left a leadership breakfast session with Kennedy Tuesday with word to newsmen that: "I have every confidence that Congress will enact into law the greater part of the President's program."

The greater part evidently doesn't include the bill for health care for the elderly through Social Security. McCormack said he has every confidence the bill will pass the House — if it clears the Ways and Means Committee.

Reporters pressed him as to the chances of the committee's approving it. McCormack thought that one over for a moment. Then with a possibly significant twinkle in his eye he ended the meeting with newsmen with, "Well, thank you, gentlemen."

The medical care, tariff and various other key measures will be in the domain of the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance Committees. So the committee chairmen, Rep. Wilbur Mills (D-Ark.) and Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.), were invited to the White House breakfast.

Presidential Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the President asked for no commitments from Mills or Byrd and did not seek their opinions on prospects for legislation.

But Mills reportedly promised anyway that his committee at least would consider the medical care measure — which he has opposed in the past. Byrd let Kennedy know he would buck the bill if it ever got as far as his finance committee.

It was at the leadership conference that Kennedy let it be known that he wants an early lifting of the lid on the national debt. He reportedly said fast action was necessary because the debt is only $2 billion below the present limit and increased defense and other expenditures are coming up.

SUI Roars Approval Of '4' Freshmen

By ERIC ZOEGLER Staff Writer

Four Freshmen came to SUI last night, sang a few songs at the Iowa Memorial Union, and graduated magna cum laude with 1,500 persons roaring their approval.

Ross Barbour, Ken Albers, Bob Flanigan and Bill Comstock, A1, On-The-Road U.S.A., accomplished their unusual task at the standing-room-only concert sponsored by the Hillcrest Association for Aid Iowa Development (AID).

Better known as The Four Freshmen, the vocal group which has won almost every conceivable award from the nation's trade magazines, combined their melodic voices and some tricky instrumental jazz work with a lot of laughs to warm the souls who froze while getting to classes during the day.

The Frosh, operating from the random program, thrilled the crowd with several of their title favorites such as "Fools Rush In," "Angel Eyes," "Poinciana," and the rollicking "Them There Eyes."

Their singing varied from the lush, soft moods to the loud swinging numbers, all assisted by the fine instrumental background which the four provided at the same time.

Albers, tabbed by the group's leader Ross Barbour as "the Scandinavian Chubby Checker" provided the night's most unique sound while soloing on a mellophone, a cross between a french horn and trumpet with a high, wailing sound similar to the trombone.

Albers also doubled on the bass and trumpet while Barbour provided the percussion and Comstock the guitar sounds. Flanigan, who spent most of the night making jibes at the cities of Keokuk and Fairfield, Iowa, was also well-received with his powerful, pulsating trombone work.

Fire Burns Page Theatre In Shenandoah

No One Injured, But Serious Threat To City Hall

SHENANDOAH (AP) — Fire whipped by strong winds destroyed the Page Theater Tuesday night and threatened the City Hall and an adjoining lumber yard.

"I think we can save City Hall, but it's sure full of smoke," a city official said.

He said the fire started in the theater, burned through the roof and then flames from the fire threatened the City Hall next door and the lumber yard.

The fire broke out about 8 p.m. and was whipped by a 20 mile an hour wind in 6-below zero weather. Two hours later the fire was still burning but had been brought under control.

The theater was owned by the Commonwealth Theater Corporation of Kansas City.

The movie being shown at the time was "The Hustler" starring Paul Newman.

The Townsend Wholesale Grocery Co. was next door to the City Hall. All of its records were moved out but none of its stock.

The high wind sent sparks flying over a two-block area. "It looks like we've got it under control but the winds are awful," the official said.

He said firemen from Shenandoah, Red Oak, Clarinda and Essex were battling the blaze and had watered down the City Hall, the lumberyard and roofs of all nearby buildings to prevent the wind-swept flames from spreading over the area.

Officials said there were no reports of injuries.

All records and items of value in the City Hall were taken out by officials while the fire raged in the theater.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

A fireman said there were people in the theater when the fire broke out but all got out safely. He said he didn't know how many were in the theater.

Galbraith Quits Club Because of Race Rift

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador John Kenneth Galbraith resigned Tuesday from the Cosmos, an exclusive men's club for intellectuals, taking with him his membership nomination for President Kennedy.

The reason he quit, Galbraith told a newsmen, was that the club turned down the membership application of Carl Rowan, a Negro who is deputy assistant secretary of state for public affairs.

Rowan's rejection also prompted Edward R. Murrow, director of the U.S. Information Agency, to withdraw his membership application.

Hard Freeze Cracks Iowa Second Day

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The coldest weather in recent years kept Iowa locked in its below-zero grip throughout the day Tuesday.

The Weather Bureau said that for the first time in several years the mercury failed to climb above zero in any part of the state.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. — William E. Sanders, 43, of Rock Island died Tuesday of exposure to zero cold. He was found, dressed only in light clothing, in a boxcar in the railroad yards Monday.

Early in the day, lows ranged from -8 at Burlington to -18 at Mason City.

Most afternoon readings varied from -5 to -10 below zero.

The Weather Bureau said the icy temperatures will continue at least through Wednesday night.

Highs today are expected to range from -5 to 5 degrees.

The high winds which limited visibility and caused considerable drifting Tuesday will continue today, but are expected to diminish tonight.

A few flurries of snow are likely in eastern Iowa today.

The State Highway Commission said highways are near normal in the state except for some snow-covered areas in the southeast. However, blowing snow has limited visibility and forced many motorists to reduce speeds.

The drifting snow and intense cold caused the closing of scores of schools in the state today, particularly in the western half of the state.

A hard freeze stretched like a rigid blanket from the Rocky Mountains to Maryland. The mercury drove down to zero or lower in at least 14 states and hit the official bottom at -47 in West Yellowstone, Mont.

Snow fell in sections of the Southwest, South, Midwest and East, with 20 inches piling up in northern New York.

Seldom have winter's miseries plagued so many regions at one time. Snow closed schools in Mississippi and Minnesota and hindered travel in Wyoming and New York.

Deaths numbered 13 in new reports, including 4 in Indiana, 3 in Colorado, 2 in Texas, 2 in Montana, 1 in Illinois and 1 in Alabama.

Squalls off lakes Ontario and Erie dumped 20 inches of snow on the Lowville district of northern New York, about a foot on areas in the western part of the state and about eight inches on Buffalo. Zero visibility in the Lowville region kept snowplows off roads.

A four-car accident closed the Buffalo Skyway, and traffic was scrambled on many streets in the city.

Near blizzard conditions developed in eastern North Dakota and western Minnesota.

Unofficial IC Reading Was -12 at 1 a.m.

Today will be even colder than Tuesday, reported a shivering weatherman, who forecast continued sub-zero temperatures and biting wind.

The unofficial Iowa City temperature at 1 a.m. this morning was -12. It was expected to drop still further in the early morning hours.

The mercury here dropped to -12 Tuesday and did not rise above zero all day, the first time in 10 years that this has happened. The last time was on January 29, 1951, when the high was five below.

Unofficial temperatures at 10 p.m. Tuesday were -12 at Dubuque, -10 at Waterloo, and -9 at Cedar Rapids. An overnight low of -20 was expected in the Cedar Rapids-Iowa City area, and lows of as much as -25 degrees in northeast Iowa.

Temperatures dropped to an unofficial state low of 25 below zero at Sibley Tuesday, and no temperatures above zero were reported in the state.

Visibility was reduced to near zero by blowing snow in many areas, clogging many county roads and causing more than a hundred schools, especially in the western part of the state, to close.

January's Blasts Recall July's Sun

By DOUG CARLSON Staff Writer

"Partly cloudy through tonight, scattered showers and thunderstorms northwest today and over state tonight. Warmer south today, highs 85 to 90. Further outlook: widely scattered showers and thunderstorms."

Or maybe you like this weather forecast better:

"Showers and locally heavy thunderstorms today ending tonight. Cooler west and central portion tonight. High in the 80s. Outlook for Friday — fair to partly cloudy and cooler."

No, we're not crazy; a little day-dreaming never hurt, especially when you dream about the weather five or six months ago. Back on July 10 we were grumbling about the high humidity and blistering heat and by August 10, most of us were willing to ship the typically unbearable Iowa weather back where it came from.

Getting back to reality, here is a more up-to-date description of weather conditions in the Iowa City area:

Northerly winds of 20-30 miles per hour will continue to hurl icy air into Iowa and snow flurries were predicted through Tuesday night.

Watson Found Staying with Army Buddy

Muscatine County Sheriff Says He Is Dying of Cancer

By TIM CALLAN Staff Writer

The mystery of the disappearance of David Watson of Muscatine, whose bread truck was found in the Iowa River Dec. 28, was solved Tuesday night.

In an exclusive phone call to The Daily Iowan, Johnson County Sheriff Albert Murphy said that Watson had been found in Seattle, Wash.

The sheriff said that Watson showed up in Seattle about three days ago and went to the home of an "old Army buddy" who did not realize that anything was wrong.

Tuesday night, Watson's friend called another old Army friend in Wilton Junction, who notified the Muscatine County Sheriff.

The Muscatine County Sheriff, who was unavailable for comment at press time, called Sheriff Murphy.

Sheriff Murphy plans to talk to the County Attorney today, but said he has no plans to go to Seattle after Watson. At present, there are no charges against him. "It looks like a family affair down there" (in Watson's home town), Murphy said.

"It doesn't matter what happens," Murphy added. "He is going to die of cancer."

Watson disappeared Dec. 28 after making a bread delivery in Lone Tree. His truck, belonging to the Continental Baking Co., bakers of Wonder Bread, was found nearly submerged beneath a bridge one mile east of Hills (8 miles south of Iowa City); it had gone through the plank railing on the approach to the bridge.

The disappearance brought on a search and a dragging operation lasting six days. Two residents of Hills reported seeing the truck parked near the bridge before it went into the river.

One said the truck was parked near the bridge with its lights out but it put its lights on when the man passed.

The other said he saw the truck from his home going east from Hills toward the bridge. A short time later, he saw it going toward Hills.

The search was officially discontinued on Dec. 31, although some volunteers continued the quest. Watson, 29, has 4 children.

Says Jobs Will Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg said Tuesday a seasonal trend edged unemployment above the 4 million mark in December. But he predicted that the picture will improve in the next six months.

Goldberg told a news conference that an increase of 101,000 in joblessness in December put the unemployment figure at 4,091,000 at the end of 1961.

The unemployment increase in December was in line with the seasonal trend but Goldberg said he hoped for a better-than-seasonal performance in the cold winter months ahead.

The number of jobs fell by 882,000 last month to 44,467,000 primarily because of declining farm activity, Goldberg said.

A key economic indicator — the seasonally adjusted rate of unemployment — was unchanged at 6.1 per cent of labor force. It had dropped sharply from 6.8 to 6.1 per cent in November.

In another development, Goldberg called for peaceful settlement of mid-year steel negotiations and said a shutdown in the steel industry this year "would make no sense at all."

The secretary said he did not believe there would be a walkout when the steelworkers contract expires June 30. There have been reports that administration officials are deeply concerned about a fast buildup of steel inventories by firms seeking to hedge against a strike.

Goldberg also announced that the President's Committee on Migratory Labor will meet Jan. 17 to consider ways to improve economic conditions for itinerant farm workers.

Goldberg based his optimistic employment prediction for the next six months on rising industrial production, personal income and retail sales and the greater purchasing power made possible by price stability.

Despite Goldberg's outlook for the next six months, the December report further dimmed President Kennedy's hopes for a decline in unemployment to 4 per cent by the end of 1962.

Payment for Peace Makes More Sense

As if all the other problems that it faced during 1961 were not enough, the United Nations now finds itself in the precarious position of near-bankruptcy. Expensive attempts to restore and maintain peace in various trouble spots of the world have all but emptied the U.N. treasury.

One of the major drains on the treasury has been the maintenance of a buffer zone in the Gaza Strip. Since 1956 U.N. troops have been stationed there to prevent further armed clashes between Israeli and Arab forces.

The other major outlet for funds has been to finance the peace mission in the Congo. There U.N. forces have played an important part in attempting to quell the ever ominous danger of jungle anarchy between Congolese tribes.

Contingents of troops from U.N. member nations make up these two peace forces. The organization and assignment of these troops was approved by the U.N., and it is that body that must finance the operation.

But its funds are obtained on a contributory basis from member nations. The U.N. has no means to set up the payments on a compulsory basis. Therefore, if some nation — either through inability to pay, or non-approval of the operation — refuses to contribute, the U.N. is powerless.

Such has been the case in both the Gaza and Congo operations. Russia refused to approve either project, hence she will not pay her share of the costs. Neither will her satellite nations, but they are not the only offenders. The Arab nations refuse to pay anything to the Middle East project, and Belgium and France react similarly to the Congo operation.

Other nations have taken the attitude that they should not have to pay if every one does not. As a result, the working capital fund, which once stood at $25 million, now contains nothing.

A proposal to bolster this fund was approved recently by the General Assembly. Under this plan, the U.N. is authorized to issue $200 million worth of bonds.

Some insight into how effective their sale will be has already been provided in the United States. President Kennedy proposed the U.S. purchase of some of these bonds — up to one-half the issue. Immediate opposition from both Democratic and Republican quarters has arisen. Their main argument has been disapproval of U.N. action in the Congo and in Goa. Echoes of the older argument of "Why us, if not others?" have also been sounded.

Kennedy countered this with the suggestion that it might be a good idea if the United States took the lead to prevent other nations from balking on buying their share. Obviously, Russia and the Soviet satellites will balk whether we take the lead or not, but our precedent may be an incentive to other nations.

One congressman, who maintains a constant vigilance upon the nation's purse strings, has announced his firm opposition to the bonds purchase. He contends that it would be an unnecessary drain upon the already overburdened taxpayer.

Such vigilance must be appreciated because wasteful spending can run rampant if uncontrolled. Still, over-zealous thrift can often overlook a worthy cause.

The taxpayers, it seems, would not hesitate contributing to a project whose aim is peace. This assumes a much broader meaning if they realize that abandoning such a project might mean that in the future they might be paying much more for a war effort instead.

Nelson's Scoring Mark

Monday night a tall, blond Iowa basketball player worked around a Northwestern defensive man and scored a quick lay-up. With that basket, Don Nelson, star Hawkeye center, became the highest scorer in Iowa basketball history.

He finished the night with 36 points, giving him a career total to date of 1,206 — 18 points above the old mark held jointly by Bill Logan and Dave Gunther.

Since the beginning of his sophomore year, Nelson has been a steady, ever-improving basketball player. Overshadowed last season in publicity by Big Ten All-Americans Jerry Lucas, Terry Dischinger and Walt Bellamy, Nelson, nevertheless, stood on even ground whenever he played against them. He is definitely a player of All-American caliber.

Last year, when ineligibility stripped away four of the starting five Iowa basketball players, only Nelson, a team man at all times, remained. He was the nucleus of the "new" second semester team — a team which went on to take second in the Big Ten and earn the title of the "Hustling Hawks."

The scoring record set Monday marks another bright spot in Nelson's brilliant career. We congratulate Don on his fine record and wish him and the Hawkeyes continued success in the remaining games.

Cites Prospects for Kennedy Proposals in 1962 Session

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND
As the 87th Congress reconvenes this week it seems that President Kennedy is preparing to present a modest and, on the whole, a moderate legislative agenda.

To ultra-liberal supporters of the Administration, it must seem as though the "missile gap" has been replaced by the "campaign gap" — the distance between campaign promises and Presidential performance. When the Democratic ultra-liberals compare the 1960 Democratic national platform with what the Administration is seeking from Congress, they see the President running behind at least 3-to-1 in redeeming his campaign pledges and fear he just won't ever catch up.

This criticism does not disturb Kennedy. Those who have talked with him at length at Palm Beach recently know that what he most wants to avoid is partisan domestic controversy at a time when the cold war requires the maximum national unity. While the President aims to keep enough "progressive" ahead of conservative opinion to maintain a "progressive image," he does not intend to get so "progressive" as to alienate the political center.

It is this state of mind which in large part shapes Kennedy's 1962 legislative program. Its main outlines — and prospects — are these:

MOST POLITICALLY CHARGED — The bread-and-butter issue which most Democrats believe will most help them win the Congressional elections this fall is medical care for the aging. It got nowhere in Congress last year. It couldn't even get out of committee in the House. The President will press hard again. The outcome is uncertain, but if the bill goes to the floor it will have a fair chance of passing.

Democratic politicians believe they will benefit by this issue — win or lose. If it passes, they will campaign on the achievement. If it fails to pass, they expect to find so many Republicans opposing it that the Democrats will benefit. They note that today there are 17 million Americans over 65 and most of them qualified to vote.

MOST CONTROVERSIAL — This will be federal aid to education. The White House will try again after failing last year because of the parochial school controversy. If President Kennedy firmly maintains his past position he will disappoint many Catholics. If he judges his position by accepting a bill from Congress which extends Government financing to religious schools, he will run the risk of reopening the religious issue which he successfully muted in the campaign by the clear stand he took on separation of church and state.

He wants to work with the Republicans in Congress. But he will not be non-partisan in the Congressional elections. He will travel widely and campaign hard.

On Other Campuses

By ERIC ZOECKLER
Staff Writer

Officials at Michigan State University are apparently so pleased with the functioning of the new coeducational dormitory which opened in September that they have added a new twist to its operations.

The dormitory, occupied by 550 freshmen men and 650 coeds, had provided eating, sleeping and study facilities. But as soon as the students arrived back after the holidays to begin the second quarter they found that their home would also be the place where they could attend their basic freshman courses.

The classes, ZOECKLER being taught in the $3 million Case Dormitory include Social Science, American Thought, language and natural science classes.

"One of the objects of this new academic program is to help cut down the amount of travel a student has to do on campus," Professor Russell Fink, chief academic adviser explained.

Designers planned the hall around the eventual plan to include academic classes within the operation.

Included in the five story building are multi-purpose rooms for classes and social activities and space for a library.

Another coed dormitory is slated to be built on the North Campus at MSU, however, officials have not announced plans for classroom use of the building.

ONE OF THE MOST popularly used study aids, the tape recorder, may be soon outlawed at the University of Texas.

The small transistor recorders, which many students use in lieu of class notes, recently were criticized by University President Dr. Joseph R. Smiley and several deans.

Smiley based his objection on the distraction the machine's cause in class. One dean said that tape recorders are an intrusion of the sanctity of the teacher-student relationship and another explained that the use of the recorders is a violation of integrity and possibly of the copyright privileges of the instructor.

The students use recorders which range in price from just under $25 to $250, and more. Some find that professors will not allow their use in the classroom while others don't seem to mind.

One student explained that he once used a transistor recorder, but found that it picked up too much extraneous noise and that the tape lasted only 15 minutes.

The faculty council was to have discussed the matter at its last meeting, but failed to do so. However, controversy concerning the recorders seems intense enough at Texas that the problem will probably be discussed soon.

A GROUP OF PROFESSORS

at Columbia University recently got into the act of expressing their views on today's civil defense advertisement appearing in the New York Times.

The advertisement, signed by 177 faculty members, states that although the present civil defense program "might save a small fraction of the population in a nuclear war, this potential gain is more than offset by the fact that such activity prepares the people for the acceptance of thermonuclear war as an instrument of national policy."

It asks President Kennedy to explain to the nation, "Just how catastrophic war today would be" then lead the nation in a "race towards peace."

Apparently, Sandi Schauder, a junior at the University of Wisconsin, has learned after being hospitalized twice, that the Twist can bring painful repercussions.

A few weeks ago while doing the popular dance to the song "Sweet Sue," Sandi dislocated her left knee and spent the next week on crutches.

Recuperated, she went to another party, heard the same song, and dislocated the other knee which required an operation to clamp the ligaments back together.

After the operation a doctor told Sandi, "Your knees may give you a little trouble when you're 30 or so," then added, scratching his head, "if you live that long."

Among the numerous pieces of mail Sandi received concerning her injury was a clipping from the Milwaukee Journal quoting a surgeon on how injuries like her's occur.

"The injuries are caused by vigorous rotation that results in strong lateral movements of the knee, thus straining the ligaments." The doctor added that strain causes pain and a person usually stops whatever he is doing. Not so with the Twist, however, because the person apparently doesn't feel the pain because he is hypnotized by the music and rhythm, the article said.

Latin America Needs More Development

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of three articles on the future development of South America. They are based on articles written by State University of Iowa Professors Walter Krause and Robert Flammang in the current issue of the Iowa Business Digest, published by the SU Bureau of Business and Economic Research.)

"Latin America is said to be undergoing a revolution," according to Walter Krause, professor of economics, at SU.

"What is meant," continues Krause, "is that vast numbers of people are not only dissatisfied with the status quo, but are clamoring in their own way for a change they hope will be for the better."

THE CAUSE OF the present-day revolution, according to Krause, can be summed up as "an environment characterized by low income and low well-being — coupled with doubt that patience alone will yield marked improvement, even as there is a growing desire for 'something better.'"

The reason Krause feels that income and well-being are at this depressed level is that there is an over-reliance on raw-materials production instead of industry and manufacturing. This, coupled with the fact that much of the agricultural output is largely in the hands of a few large "estancias" of a few owners of large "estancias" employing many landless peasants who receive only a small share of the income from the crops, keep the majority of the population poor.

With limited market outlets at home due to the vast numbers of poor and the fact that Latin America is a specialized raw-materials producer, "much of their current production is directly dependent upon export outlets. It follows from these circumstances . . . that if anything should go seriously wrong abroad, export markets and sources of import supply stand to be impaired," Krause says.

"THE SITUATION IN Latin America, thus, is one of low per-capita income — with the added undesirable feature that even this low income is subject to considerable instability," he added.

Krause, in pointing out the basic needs of the Latin American economy, lists four major points necessary to assure "greater well-being for greater numbers of people." These are, first, a rise in per-capita income; second, a wide diffusion of the income benefits among the population; third, stability of income on a year-to-year basis, and, fourth, hope for long-term growth.

In prescribing a course of action Krause points out that at present there are two distinct courses: redistribution and development. The gist of the idea behind redistribution is to spread around equally that which already exists or happens to come into being. This involves welfare schemes, land reforms and "nationalization" of large holdings. However, Krause goes on to say, redistribution schemes have little room for optimism if economic development is the goal.

THE BASIC ALTERNATIVE to redistribution is development and the improvement of productive capacity, which, in the case of Latin America, means a decision between increased raw-materials production or industrialization. According to the author, "In Latin America as in some underdeveloped regions elsewhere it is industrialization that fires the imagination. It is associated with riches in the popular mind."

In attempts to provide solutions for these problems no less than five plans of action have been proposed at various times including: Operation Pan American, the "common market" movement, the Inter-American Development Bank, the Act of Bogota, and, most recently, the Alliance for Progress proposed by the Kennedy Administration.

Matter of Fact — Portrait of a Legislator

By JOSEPH ALSOP
The father was the great man of Kensett, Ark. — owner of the general store, owner of the bank, and possessor of much land round about this town of 900 people. With this solid backing, the son entered politics as soon as he finished Harvard Law School; and he was elected County Judge in 1934.

Three years later, the fight to give Franklin Roosevelt his Supreme Court bill killed the mighty Joe Robinson. The congressman from the sleepy rural district which includes Kensett promptly announced for Robinson's Senate seat. Just as promptly, the fledgling County Judge seized the opportunity thus presented to him. After a close fight, he won the vacant seat in the House.

By virtue of the seniority rule, a council of elders always governs the House of Representatives. Besides being a shrewd, personable, pleasant spoken, hard working young man, the new member from Arkansas had that special, rural - Southern respectfulness towards older men. Hence he was marked for promotion from the moment he entered the House. Quite soon as these things go, in 1941, he obtained his seat on the Ways and Means Committee.

He is now in his 12th term in the House. Death and politics have long since moved him up to the chairmanship of the Ways and Means. And the House and the chairmanship occupy just about every moment of his life that is not given to his wife, his two daughters, and his constituents.

HE REACHES HIS office at eight every morning. He works until seven at night, without even pausing to join the other members of the Elders' Council for a little afternoon refresher. Nineteen evenings in 20, he sups at home with his wife. And if he goes out for dinner, it is usually because his constituents have to be shown the pleasures of Washington.

Back home in Arkansas, in the few months between sessions, the routine is no less consistent. He makes it a rule to refuse no speaking engagement in his district, unless he already has a prior one. "When they stop asking you, it's time to start working," he says. So on most days, he leaves his comfortable home in Kensett soon after breakfast, and he rarely returns until well after dinner.

HE HAS HIS other rules, besides the one cited above. "Never ride roughshod over any minority," he warns, "because if you offend too many minorities, they'll one day add up to a majority."

And again, "Never try to trick a fellow member of the House; even if you succeed, you'll pay more in the long run than you gain in the short run." And yet again, "Know your subject thoroughly, and your committee will be more willing to follow you"

91 Killed in Train Crash

Caskets containing bodies of persons killed in the collision of two passenger trains line the Buur Church at Utrecht, the Netherlands

HARMELEN, Holland (UPI) — Dutch railway officials Tuesday set at 91 the "probably final" death toll in the worst train disaster in Holland's history. Queen Juliana broke off a holiday in Austria to hurry home to join in the nationwide mourning and special religious services for the victims of the collision at Harmelen Monday.

Pope John XXIII expressed his "profound grief" over the tragedy to the relatives of the men, women and children killed in the crash between two crowded passenger trains at a railway junction during a heavy fog. With search operations completed through the twisted wreckage of what were once steel coaches Tuesday, railway officials reported:

today. The crash near Woerden Monday in dense fog between an express train and a commuter train killed a reported 91 persons. —AP Wirephoto

"We have counted 91 dead so far and we think that is the final number." At least 55 persons were injured when the blue 11-coach express from Leeuwarden to Rotterdam plowed into the green 6-coach train bound from Rotterdam to Amsterdam. Officials said the engineer of the Leeuwarden-Rotterdam express, which was running 7 minutes behind schedule, apparently ran a red danger signal blanketed by the thick fog. A Dutch State Railways spokesman said the investigation into the crash was "still going on." But it was expected to be hampered by the deaths of both engineers.

Rates To Remain Unchanged—

Fall Dorm Contracts Available Friday

Applications for dormitory reservations at SUI next fall will be available to present residents of the SUI facilities after Friday, it was announced today by T. M. Rehder, director of dormitories and dining services.

Rehder said the dormitory rates for 1962-63 will be the same as those now in effect. He noted also that present rental rates on SUI married housing units for 1962-63 will be maintained.

Students now residing in the dormitories receive preference in retaining the rooms they now occupy if their applications and $50 advance payments are received by March 1 in the Dormitory Assignment Office. After March 1, all applications from present residents and from new students will be assigned according to date of receipt of the application, Rehder said.

Residents of SUI married housing will receive explanatory materials and forms for lease renewal or cancellation in late February. These should be returned by March 9, said Rehder, and new leases will be sent beginning April 13.

Dormitory contract forms for the academic year and for the 1962 summer session will be available at the respective dormitory information desks after Friday.

Women's dormitory occupancy next fall is expected to nearly reach the combined expanded capacity of 2,206 for Burge Hall and Currier Hall, Rehder noted. The men's units — Hillcrest, Quarangle and South Quadrangle — are expected to house some 1,554 students next fall compared with the total expanded capacity of 2,174. South Quadrangle is the only non-boarding dormitory at SUI. Married student housing will be operated at capacity once again, Rehder added. There are 890 married housing units in the barracks parks, Hawkeye apartments and Parklawn apartments.

An addition to Burge Hall with a capacity of 474 is planned to be ready in the fall of 1964. This addition will be directly south of Burge Hall.

Two factors were mainly responsible for the fact that next fall's dormitory and married housing rates will remain at current levels, Rehder pointed out. He explained that projected debt retirement schedules indicated no need for rate increases in the next academic year for debt retirement.

Secondly, he said, the current state of the general economy does not seem to indicate a significant increase in the operating costs.

SUI dormitories and married housing facilities are maintained from the earnings of the system, and expansions must also be paid for from earnings since no tax funds enter into the picture.

Rates in the SUI boarding dormitories range from $880 per academic year for triple or double rooms to $990 for single rooms.

Plan Oriental Art Lectures

A lecture on Chinese painting will be given by Sherman E. Lee, director of the Cleveland Museum of Art, Monday at 8 p.m. in the SUI Art Building.

Entitled "Mind and Brush: The Forest and the Trees in Chinese Painting," the lecture is sponsored by the SUI Department of Art in connection with the current exhibition of Oriental art in the New Gallery of the Art Building. The public is invited to attend the lecture.

Originally scheduled to close Monday, the exhibition will be continued through the month of January. It features works owned by 20 private collectors in Iowa and by the Des Moines Art Center, the Davenport Public Museum and the Iowa Print Group of SUI.

Gallery hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sundays. In the field of Oriental art, Dr. Lee is noted for his new ideas about the art of China and Japan.

A second lecture on Oriental art, the annual Bose Lecture for this year, will be given Jan. 17 at 8 p.m., also in the Art Auditorium.

The lecturer will be Professor Stella Kramrisch of the University of Pennsylvania. Her topic will be "Cave Sculpture of India."

A third program next week connected with Oriental art will be an evening of films on Turkish art archaeology sponsored by the Iowa Chapter of the Archaeological Society. The films will be shown at Shambaugh Auditorium at 8 p.m. Jan. 19.

Communist-Endorsed Gizenga Losing Support of Colleagues

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo — Antoine Gizenga's most influential party colleagues walked out on him Tuesday further splitting the party that once made him a power as the head of the Communist-endorsed regime at Stanleyville.

The self-proclaimed political heir to former Premier Patrice Lumumba also faces the possibility of ouster from his job as deputy premier in the central government and possible arrest. The Congo Parliament demanded that he return to Leopoldville by Wednesday to defend himself against charges of secession.

Felicien Kimvay announced the defection of the strongest wing of Lumumba's former political movement, the African Solidarity party.

Kimvay, vice-president of the party, said Gizenga no longer was president of the party because he had in effect resigned to accept leadership of another movement. Kimvay was referring to Gizenga's call for a convention of Panalu, a new Lumumbist party. The convention never met and the new party never got off the ground.

A smaller wing of the African Solidarity party stuck by Gizenga, however. This small bloc accused the party leadership of "tribalism and terrorism" and singled out Kimvay and Cleophas Kamitau, the influential president of Leopoldville Province, for criticism.

SUI Displays Moore Works

Two small bronzes by the noted British sculptor Henry Moore are on display in the east foyer of the SUI Art Building.

The works are an exhibit in a series sponsored by the Student Art Guild, and will be shown through Feb. 3.

"The Warrior," depicting a mutilated soldier, was loaned for the SUI display from the Blandin Memorial Art Gallery in Fort Dodge and is the only work depicting a single male figure done by Moore. It was used as a model for a large monument located at the Minneapolis Institute of Art.

"Mother with Child on Knee" comes from the collection of Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Noun of Des Moines.

Alexander Soroka, instructor in the SUI Art Department explained that Moore is noted mostly for his emphasis on space and voids as positive elements in the art of sculpture. Moore is featured in a cover story in this month's "Atlantic Monthly."

NEW DESIGN SET ASIDE

The Coralville City Council set aside a new design for the intersection of Highway 6 and First Ave. in Coralville at a meeting Monday night and will wait for further explanation of the proposed changes from the State Highway Commission.

The proposed plan would include a traffic-dividing island on the north approach of First Ave., relocation of three of the present traffic light poles, elimination of the fourth, and the incorporation of new mast arm stoplights already purchased by the city.

An Unpleasant Prospect—

Hawks' Next Job—Stop Hot-Shooting Minnesota

An unenviable task — trying to drag Minnesota out of a first place share in the conference standings — awaits Iowa's basketball team here Saturday in a 3:30 p.m. televised game.

The Gophers defeated Purdue, 81-67, and Indiana, 104-100, for a 2-0 mark and along with Wisconsin (2-0) and Ohio State (1-0) are among the league's undefeated in Big Ten play.

A year ago Hawkeyes also met Gophers in a TV game here — and the result was a 71-46 Iowa victory. The current Iowans wish the assignment were as easy as in 1961, but everything points to a tough game against a hot-shooting band of Gophers.

Minnesota, in scoring 104 points Monday, recorded the sixth highest single game total in Big Ten history. The 204 points by both teams tied the second best mark in this category. And Indiana's 100 points is a league record for most points by a losing team.

Iowa's stand-out center, Don Nelson, the new holder of the Hawkeye 3-year career scoring record, made his record-breaking total in his 59th game. He now has 1,206 points and has 13 games to play. The former mark of 1,188 was made by Bill Logan in 74 games and equaled by Dave Gunther in 66 games.

But some of the other players must start hitting to support Nelson's fine scoring. In the Wisconsin game, Nelson made 39 points while 10 other players combined to score only 40 points.

Kuenn Says Baseball Major Pastime

By JOE GEHRINGER
Staff Writer

Baseball is and will remain the national pastime despite the difficulties the minor leagues are experiencing, according to Harvey Kuenn, shortstop of the San Francisco Giants.

Speaking before a crowd of about 300 at the Iowa City Elks Home, Kuenn said baseball has a quality that keeps it from being either slow or tame, as charged by many critics.

"Baseball has zest and enthusiasm," Kuenn said, "the players go out 100 per cent. The game is our national pastime and will be for years to come," he asserted.

He said there is no thrill to surpass a well played baseball game, with "the quickness of a Luis Aparicio trying to steal second base and a Del Crandell, Yogi Berra or Bob Oldis trying to throw him out."

He added that the major leagues will have to take steps to insure their existence, because they are experiencing competition from other areas.

10 Alleged Basketball Fixers Indicted

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A Superior Court grand jury Tuesday indicted 10 men on basketball bribe conspiracy charges that involved Atlantic Coast Conference and Dixie Classic tournament games in the still-spreading scandals.

The grand jury returned 10 indictments listing numerous counts of conspiring to bribe players involved in big time college games here over the past four years.

The charges against the 10 mentioned the name of a University of South Carolina player, Mike Callahan, not heretofore mentioned in connection with the bribery scandals.

And the counts included point shaving charges involving games in both the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament held in Raleigh in March of each year and the now defunct Dixie Classic holiday tournament.

The indictments listed a total of more than 80 counts against the 10 men who were accused of conspiring to bribe basketball players and fix games by point shaving.

District Solicitor Lester V. Chalmers of Raleigh, who has been working for several months with the state Bureau of Investigation and with authorities in New York, announced the charges.

Those indicted were: Pete J. Martino, Biloxi, Miss.; Dave Louis Goldberg, St. Louis; Steve Lekomotrose, St. Louis; Morris (Moe) Heyison, Pittsburgh; Frank Cardone, Pittsburgh; Joe Israel, New York; Paul Walker, New York; Joseph Hacken, New York; Aaron Wagman, New York; Joe Green, New York.

Speaking of his own career, he said he had realized a life long ambition by playing major league baseball.

Having been traded twice in two years, Kuenn said: "It's quite a shock the first time you're traded. The second time it's not so bad, especially if you go to a winning team."

Kuenn added he had enjoyed being traded to the Giants and expected them to be in the running for the National League pennant this year along with Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Judge Robert Cannon of Milwaukee spoke before Kuenn and praised the Little League and other young athletic movements for teaching boys "how to take winning and losing in stride."

Others on the program were Jack White, Iowa City attorney, master of ceremonies; Bob Oldis of Iowa City, a member of the Philadelphia Phillies organization, and Earl Ripley, Exalted Ruler of B.P.O.E. 590.

Don Nelson Voted Player of Week In Statewide Poll

Iowa's high scoring center, Don Nelson, was named Iowa's Associated Press college basketball player of the week for his spectacular shooting in the Hawks' 91-79 loss to Wisconsin Saturday.

Nelson, moving with fluid ease past Badger defenders, pumped in 39 points, 25 in the first half.

The Hawkeye co-captain missed only three of 17 shots from the field and converted 11 of 18 free throws.

Nelson, 21-year-old senior from Rock Island, has been an Iowa standout since his first varsity game as a sophomore. Monday night he scored 38 points boosting his career total to 1,206, an Iowa record.

Hacken, Wagman and Green are under indictment in New York and Chalmers said they were scheduled to be tried on similar charges in New York this week. Walker, a New York trucking company official, was arrested in New York last week and was returned to North Carolina during the weekend. He is in jail here in lieu of $25,000 bond.

2 Michigan State Cagers Leave School

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Two Michigan State basketball players withdrew from school Tuesday for what coach Forddy Anderson called "a lack of interest in continuing their studies."

Anderson said juniors Dick Hall, last year's leading scorer from Manitowoc, Wis., and Duane Kilbride, a reserve from Kankakee, Ill., left the university Tuesday. Anderson said neither boy was in academic trouble. Kilbride appeared in the Spartans game Monday night against Wisconsin. Hall did not.

Hall, a two-sport star, led Michigan State in scoring last year with 390 points and won the No. 2 singles championship in the Big Ten tennis meet last spring. He was seventh high scorer among Big Ten cagers last year with 227 points as a sophomore.

Michigan State's season record is 5-5 and 0-2 in the conference. The Spartans lost their league opener last Saturday to Indiana.

Ohio State Still No. 1; USC Takes 4th Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The University of Southern California made the biggest advance this week in the Associated Press basketball poll, jumping two notches into fourth place. Ohio State's unbeaten Buckeyes retained their position as the best major college basketball team in the nation.

The Trojans boosted their season record with two weekend triumphs over California to sweep past Kansas State and Villanova, who dropped a berth to fifth and sixth, respectively. Kansas State lost to Colorado last Saturday and Villanova was knocked off the unbeaten list by West Virginia.

The all-conquering Buckeyes trounced Northwestern in a Big Ten tussle to register their 11th straight triumph and corralled all the first place votes cast by 41 sports writers and sportscasters.

This gave Ohio State a point total of 410, based on 10 for a first place vote, nine for second, etc.

Cincinnati, which boosted its season mark to 11-1, and Kentucky, also 11-1, held firmly to their second and third places, respectively.

The Wildcats won their 10th straight Monday night defeating Vanderbilt 77-68.

The top ten, based on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 vote count with first place vote, and records through Jan. 8 in parentheses:

1. Ohio State (11-0) 410
2. Cincinnati (11-1) 363
3. Kentucky (11-1) 357
4. Southern Cal. (11-2) 249
5. Kansas State (10-2) 285
6. Villanova (10-1) 183
7. Mississippi State (10-0) 162

Commission Orders Archie Moore To Sign for Fight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Archie Moore was ordered by the New York State Athletic Commission Tuesday to sign provisionally within 20 days for a light heavyweight title defense against Harold Johnson.

The commission ordered Moore, 46, to sign provisionally for a fight with Johnson of Philadelphia for the undisputed world championship unless some other suitable challenger shows up. No deadline was set for the defense — merely the deadline for signing within 20 days.

Moore, who hasn't defended his portion of the 175-pound crown since last June 10, is recognized as champion in New York, California and Europe.

Johnson, who posted a challenge and a $2,500 forfeit check with the New York commission Monday, is recognized as champion by the National Boxing Association. Johnson won the vacant NBA crown in February, after the NBA had taken it away from Moore in October, 1960.

In Tuesday's order to Moore of San Diego, Calif., the commission stressed that New York rules provide for a title suspension or a revocation if he fails to sign within 20 days.

An 18th Century Biblical concordance is examined by Frank Hanlin, head of acquisitions at the SUI Library, and Mrs. William L. M. Burke, who recently gave the two-volume work to the library. Published by the fathers of a Benedictine monastery in Southern Germany, the unique concordance is from the private library of the late Prof. William L. M. Burke, who was on the faculty of the SUI Art Department from 1951-61.

LIVE MUSIC will emanate from WSUI and KSUI-FM on two occasions this week: tonight at 8, when Charles Treger and William Dopmann appear in recital, and Friday at 8 p.m. when the Iowa String Quartet offers its second concert of the season. It is never the intention of this column to plump for radio reception over in-person attendance, but, if the weather continues severe, we offer it as a means of keeping warm.

ANOTHER CLASSICAL DRAMA, "The Birds" by Aristophanes, is scheduled for 8 tomorrow night. Produced by the University of Michigan, the series (Thursday's play is the second of six) results from a special grant-in-aid awarded after a single play from the same producer had attracted critical acclaim. The introduction to "The Birds" was recorded last summer at Michigan by SUI Classics Professor Peter Arnott (a frequent broadcaster at WSUI).

Campus Notes

Paperback by SUI Prof

"Stuttering and What You Can Do About It," a book written by Wendell Johnson, professor of speech pathology and psychology at SUI, will be available this month in a paperback edition.

First published in January, 1961, the book is designed especially for parents of children who stutter and for adults who have grown up to be stutters.

The paperback edition is being published by Doubleday.

Professor Johnson points out in his book that it should be possible to reduce greatly the number of stutters in the future through application of what has been learned from research on the problem during the past few years.

Underlying the tension and unusual hesitations of speaking that are distinctive in stuttering is the over-concern and doubts of parents about how well or smoothly their child is speaking. As a result the child will learn to doubt his ability to speak smoothly enough and be afraid of what will happen if he doesn't, Professor Johnson says.

Johnson has written three other books and a number of articles on stuttering and has participated in extensive research on the problem in SUI's Speech Clinic.

Executives' Wives Meet

The Executives' Wives Club will meet tonight at 6:30 in the North Lounge of Wesley House.

The group will meet for a pot-luck supper and election of officers. All wives of Business Administration students who have not been notified of the meeting and wish to join the club, should call Doris Melleny at 8-5066.

The Music Library in the basement of Eastlawn is now exhibiting a collection of photographs entitled "Mozart in Paris."

The pictures were made from documents in the French National Library and the Museum of the Paris Opera.

The exhibit, on display through Jan. 18, was loaned to SUI by the French Embassy in New York.

Foreign Service Careers

A representative from the State Department will be returning to the campus Jan. 18-19 to talk to students about careers in the Foreign Service.

An entrance examination has been scheduled for Sept. 18. Students should contact the Industrial and Business Placement Office, 108 University Hall, to sign up for a group meeting.

'Primitive Religion' Talk

Prof. George W. Forell of SUI's School of Religion will present a talk on "Primitive Religion" Jan. 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the Pentacrest Room of the Iowa Memorial Union.

The talk will be given before the SUI Anthropology Club.

Recreation Center Hearing Scheduled

The Iowa City recreation commission will hold a public hearing on Feb. 8 for comments by local organizations and individuals on what they would like to see in a proposed community recreation center.

A special hearing will be held for teenagers on Feb. 6. Both hearings are scheduled to be held in the council chamber of the new civic center.

Approximately 45 larger organizations, especially those organizations primarily recreational in nature, have been invited to comment. The commission stressed that other groups and individuals are welcome at the hearing.

REPORT PAY CUTS

DETROIT (UPI) — Pay cuts amounting to $500,000 went to American Motors Corp. executives last year, a proxy statement for the Feb. 7 annual meeting revealed. AMC President George Romney received $149,211 last year compared with $250,000 the preceding year. Fatal Train Crash

One man was killed and 10 were injured when this eight-unit Illinois Central passenger train derailed near Alta, Iowa Tuesday morning.

Derailed Train Kills 1, 10 Hurt

AURELIA — An Illinois Central passenger train, pushing through bitter cold and blinding snow, was derailed Tuesday, killing one person and injuring 10 others.

The possibility of a cracked rail, a frequent occurrence in intense cold weather, was cited as a likely cause for the derailment four miles east of here.

The 14-degree below zero temperature and blowing ground snow also hampered rescue operations.

The Chicago to Sioux City train was running an hour behind schedule because of the severe weather, officials said. A train crew member said the cold weather might have caused a rail to break. This occasionally happens.

Killed was John Nelson of Sioux City, an express clerk riding in a mail car.

The 17 passengers on the train were in the last three cars which left the tracks but did not overturn. Five passengers were hurt.

Darrel Brown, 65, of Fort Dodge, the train engineer, was trapped in the cab of the lead diesel unit. He was nearly covered with snow before he was freed. He was in serious condition at a nearby Storm Lake hospital.

Authorities said the casualty toll might have been higher had it not been that the derailment occurred during daylight hours and where the tracks parallel Highway 5.

Stolen Goods Rap Nets Poindexter Two 5-Year Terms

Parolee Robert F. Poindexter, 35, pleaded guilty in district court yesterday to charges of receiving stolen goods and was sentenced to two five-year prison terms.

Poindexter had first been charged with breaking and entering but County Attorney Ralph L. Neuzil changed this to two separate charges of receiving stolen goods. Neuzil said that Poindexter will serve one year and 10 days longer in prison on the stolen goods charges. Poindexter was sentenced by Judge Clair E. Hamilton.

His first sentence for receiving stolen goods was made to run concurrently with the remainder of two other sentences he was serving at Fort Madison when he was paroled from there in 1961. The second sentence will be served after all other sentences have been satisfied.

NURSES WILL MEET

The SUI Nurses Alumni Association will meet for a potluck supper, Monday, Jan. 22, and hear a talk by Florence Sherbin, associate professor in the College of Nursing, on "Nursing and Nursing Education in India."

The supper will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Recreation Room of Westlawn. Members are asked to bring table service and a covered dish.

Pantomime III Tickets Ready

Tickets for "Pantomimes III," the next Studio Theatre production, are now available at the East Lobby Desk of the Iowa Memorial Union. Performances will be given at 8 p.m. Jan. 17-20.

This year's production is the first to be produced entirely by a class in pantomime. Dr. James W. Gousseff is teacher of the course and director of "Pantomimes III."

The ten students of the class have been responsible for every phase of the production except the lighting, which was designed and supervised by Nick Scott, G. London, Eng. Scott is a student of Dr. David L. Thayer.

After studying for the first half of the semester the history and influence of pantomime on the dramatic arts, the students began preparing specifically for next week's production. They began a regular exercising program designed to provide them with the physical co-ordination, endurance and flexibility required for the pantomime performance.

The students are earning either two or three hours credit, the difference an hour lecture on a subject fundamental to the study of pantomime. Those students receiving three hours credit have studied and lectured on such subjects as basic movement and the recent studies in psychology on the effects of movement without sound.

All students prepared and presented a ten-minute pantomime program in recent weeks; some of the pantomimes presented were original. One, in fact, required the performer to portray eight different characters.

According to one class member, pantomime is more creative than a conventional acting role. When a pantomime is written, only the basic actions and characterizations are defined, leaving the specific movements needed to convey them to the individual performer.

Tickets are available between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays and between 9 a.m. and noon on Saturday.

Expect Sukarno's War Or Peace Decision in 10 Days

JAKARTA, Indonesia — The question of war or peace with the Netherlands over Dutch New Guinea will be decided by President Sukarno "within a week or 10 days," Indonesia's foreign minister said Tuesday.

But in the meantime, government sources said, Indonesia would not object if U.N. Acting Secretary-General U Thant moved to get negotiations started and sat in on the talks or designated Thailand and the Philippines to participate.

TRAIN CRASH
BERLIN — A collision between two trains in East Germany early Tuesday cost two lives, the official East German news agency ADN reported.

Sukarno's delay in reaching a decision on war or peace was made known as U.S. Ambassador Howard P. Jones called on him in an apparent effort to calm down the belligerent tone sounded by the Indonesian president on a four-day speechmaking tour of the Celebes.

testing...
one,
two...
glub,
glub!

Some say we go overboard, the lengths we go to in testing Ford-built cars at "Hurricane Road"—our wind-and-weather lab in Dearborn, Michigan. And for practical purposes—we do. You might call it "testing in depth."

Ford scientists and engineers have devised a gigantic test tunnel that creates monsoon rains and tornadic winds in a matter of minutes. Super sun lamps boost temperatures from 20 below to 160 above zero. Fog and drizzle, snow and sleet—all at the twist of dials. Huge cylinders beneath test-car wheels imitate every kind of road: from flat, smooth turnpike to rutted mountain trail.

Out of it all comes knowledge of how to build better cars—cars that are built to last longer, require less care, and retain their value better. This constant aiming for perfection is just one more way in which research and engineering are earning for Ford Motor Company its place of leadership.

VIENNA (UPI) — Vienna played a guessing game as to the whereabouts of Vyacheslav M. Molotov Tuesday. The mystery was finally cleared up by an announcement that the veteran Soviet diplomat has not yet left Moscow.

A Soviet foreign ministry spokesman in Moscow, clarifying a statement made Monday, said Molotov will be leaving the Soviet capital shortly for Vienna to resume his post with the International Atomic Energy Authority (IAEA). The exact date was not given.

In its original statement Monday, the Soviet ministry gave the impression that Molotov and his wife had departed Moscow over the weekend and were en route. The spokesman said Tuesday the second statement was to erase the apparent confusion.

Although officials of IAEA and the Austrian Government had no official advance word of Molotov's coming, they kept an eye open for his arrival. Newsmen watched trains and planes all day until news was received from Moscow of the ministry statement.

When the former Soviet premier and foreign minister failed to appear, there was speculation that he may have stopped off along the way for a visit in one of the Communist countries. One report had him vacationing in Slovakia.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry said Monday that Molotov, who has been downgraded in the Kremlin hierarchy because of anti-party activities, was going back to Vienna after having been "on leave" since Nov. 12. He holds the relatively minor post of Soviet representative to IAEA.

At the time of his return to Moscow, it was believed the 71-year-old Stalinist was being summoned in disgrace.
