CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — An explosion wrecked a fall-out shelter under construction in northwest Cedar Rapids Friday.

The explosion and resulting fire scorched the paint on the rear of the Joseph L. Duffy home but caused no serious damage except to the fall-out shelter.

SUI Opera Tonight at 8 In Macbride

By BYRAN REDDICK
Staff Writer

The year's second Opera Workshop production opens tonight at 8 in Macbride Auditorium. "Dido and Aeneas" by Henry Purcell, edited and arranged by Edward J. Dent, will be presented.

Based on "The Aeneid" by Vergil, the opera concerns the love of Dido, Queen of Carthage, for Aeneas, refugee from a destroyed Troy. Aeneas has been commissioned by Fate to establish the great Roman civilization, and as a result is not free to realize Dido's amours.

The arrangement of the opera by Dent dates to the early 1950's when the English editor and arranger transposed Purcell's original score for the harpsichord and chamber orchestra.

According to Seigfried Schoenbohm, G, Iowa City, stage director for the production, Purcell's original opera was in the baroque tradition ascribing many of the character's motives to the whims often found within the genre. For the production here, however, the gods which appear in "The Aeneid," particularly Venus and Apollo, have reassumed the roles which Vergil assigned to them.

Prefacing the opera itself will be the rarely performed Prologue in the form of a pastoral masque, featuring dance by members of the Dance Workshop of the Department of Physical Education, and a harpsichord score.

The cast, which has been rehearsing since Thanksgiving, includes Elizabeth Allen, G, North Caldwell, N.J.; as Dido; Wayne Caldwell, G, Osceola, as Aeneas; Murray Fisher Engelhart, wife of Dr. R. S. Engelhart of the SUI Department of Psychiatry, as the queen's lady-in-waiting; and Patricia Schmulback, A3, Cedar Rapids, as a sorceress.

Choreographer for the production has been Marcia Thayer, graduate assistant in the Department of Physical Education for Women. The chamber orchestra and chorus will be conducted by Malcolm Westly, G, Mason City.

Name Interdorm Royalty Tonight

The SUI Interdorm King and Queen will be crowned tonight at the end of the intermission at the "Snowball" dance to be held from 8 to midnight in the Union.

Hal Weise and his orchestra will play.

Candidates for king are Richard Sartor, A3, Princeton, N.J.; Theodore Ribaud, A2, Demarest, N.J.; Thomas Pelz, A1, Charles City; Mickey Myrick, A2, Lake Park; and Robert Cramer, B3, Boone.

Candidates for queen are: Sheila Trace, A1, Wilmette, Ill.; Marge Anderson, A1, Palatine, Ill.; Virginia Martin, B3, Burlington; Gloria Evans, A1, Monona; and Mary Niemeyer, A1, Elkader.

Parsons Gives SUI 'Friendship Bowl'

A silver punchbowl and tray were presented Friday to Iowa Memorial Union Board officers by officers of the Parsons College student government as a "symbol of respect and affection" between the two student bodies of the two institutions.

Dennis Whan, a Davenport senior and Parsons student body president, made the presentation to Norman Nichols, A4, Osage, Union Board President. Whan said that the Parsons students think that this is one way to say they are sorry that one of their students stole the Herky the Hawk rug from the Union.

George D. Kloek Jr., 20, White Plains, N.Y., a former SUI student, was expelled from Parsons Tuesday after he admitted stealing the rug from the Union the night of Jan. 4.

When said he hoped that the presentation would be the end of the unfortunate affair and the beginning of improved relations between the two schools.

Engraved on a silver ladle tray which, with the punchbowl and large silver tray comprised the three-piece set, were the words, "To the Students of The State University of Iowa, Presented by the Students of Parsons College, as a Symbol of Respect and Affection, January 19, 1962."

Mike Brouwer, director of student activities at Parsons, said the idea of a fund was conceived last Tuesday afternoon and got under way on Wednesday. He said Herky the Hawk jars were all over the campus in the major buildings.

When Parsons was notified that Kloek had agreed to pay for damages to the rug and the fund might not be accepted, they decided to continue to use the money for its original purpose as a gift to SUI.

In accepting the gift of the silver set for the Iowa Memorial Union, Nichols told the Parsons visitors, "We are happy to accept this magnificent gift as a token of friendship between the students of our schools. Since the individual responsible stepped forward to admit his involvement and arranged to make restitution for the damage to our rug, we have regarded this as a matter of individual responsibility and one for which it would have been most unfair to blame the Parsons College student body."

The punch bowl and tray are on display in the trophy case outside the Gold Feather Room in the Union.

The News In Brief

(Combined From Leased Wires)

A SNOW STORM drove across the Middle West Friday, closing the schools in half a dozen states and slowing traffic to a tedious crawl from the Central Plains to Indiana.

The new winter storm left Kansas City, Mo., under a 21-inch blanket of snow, blocked transcontinental highway U.S. 66 in southern Missouri for hours, and powered up the Ohio River Valley into the Appalachians.

Morning rush hour traffic was snarled in St. Louis, where the snow accumulation built up to 7 inches before noon, and in Chicago, where the northern fringe of the storm was expected to deposit up to 7 inches.

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo — The Sola Roman Catholic mission and girls' school in north Katanga apparently have been overrun by rebel Congolese troops, the United Nations reported Friday night.

A spokesman said reconnaissance pilots brought back word that houses in the remote village were afire and the mission compound deserted.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — Foreign Minister Homero Martinez Montero submitted his resignation to the National Council Friday almost on eve of the Inter-American foreign Minister meeting on Cuba Monday.

His action followed inspired press attacks by the Herrrista political faction of the nine-man council which rules Uruguay under the presidency of Eduardo Victor Haredo. He also had complained that instructions to the Punta Del Este conference were too vague.

DES MOINES — Robert D. Dilley, 35, of Des Moines, a member of the John Birch Society, obtained nomination papers Friday to seek the Republican nomination for Congress in the 5th Iowa District.

Dilley said he is concerned "over the departure of our nation from the fundamental principles on which it was founded, as expressed in the Holy Bible, the Declaration of Independence and the United States Constitution."

Laos Princes Agree on New Government

Boun Oum Still Has Some 'Reservations' On Cabinet Make-up

GENEVA (UPI) — The three feuding princes of Laos announced agreement Friday on a coalition Government aimed at ending the civil war in Laos. The agreement came after U.S.-backed Prince Boun Oum retreated from his previous tough stand.

Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, premier-designate in the new Government, said the agreement with Boun Oum and the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels of Prince Souphanouvong "will provide a firm basis for future peace."

But he admitted that Boun Oum had expressed "reservations" on the composition of the cabinet and would consult his royal Laotian Government colleagues before giving final acceptance.

Western officials were cautiously optimistic. One source pointed out that the agreement still could collapse if Boun Oum renewed his demand for the key posts of the defense and interior ministries.

The three princes, who met here at the behest of the 14-nation conference on Laos, agreed to allot four cabinet seats to the Boun Oum faction, four to the rebels, and the remaining eight to Souvanna's neutralists, including the premiership and the defense and interior posts.

Souvanna said Boun Oum had requested the defense and interior ministries once again in Friday afternoon's two and one-half hour meeting. "Although Prince Souphanouvong and I were in accord that these two, together with the ministry of foreign affairs, should go to the neutralist party."

Dirksen Files Petition For His Third Term

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Sen. Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.) filed nominating petitions in his quest for a third term Friday and said a big issue facing the country is its relations with the United Nations.

Dirksen said he hasn't formulated a position as yet on the President's request for U.N. bond support, but that "the country is certainly vocal about it and generally quite opposed to picking up half of the $200 million bond issue."

Labor Leaders Hail New 5-Hour Day

NEW YORK (AP) — New York electricians' success in winning an unprecedented, five-hour work day was hailed Friday by labor as a striking breakthrough in a nationwide effort to cut unemployment. It also was tabbed a pattern-setter for other unions.

The victory was achieved despite opposition from President Kennedy, who has repeatedly spoken out against reducing the work week under the present economic situation and world trade competition.

Expressions of jubilation were quick in coming from other segments of the labor movement. In a message of congratulations to the electrical union, the New York Central Labor Council said:

"This victory will have profound influence on national thinking on automation and full employment. Only the shorter work week can end joblessness of millions of our fellow citizens, and your victory is certain to lead to immediate and successful attempts to cut the work week so that we may achieve a full employment economy."

In another statement, the labor council called on all affiliated unions to demand shorter work time in all contract negotiations hereafter.

The next big push may come in the nation's giant steel industry, where a dwindling number of workers is required to operate mills.

The New York electrical workers won a contract calling for a five-day week, with five hours daily at regular pay and one hour at time and a half. They previously had worked six hours a day at regular pay and one hour at time and a half.

At the outset of negotiations, the union had demanded a four-hour day. The 9,000 electricians, employed by 600 contractors in the city's $1 1/2-billion construction industry, also got a pay raise of 56 cents an hour.

The electricians got their new contract after a strike which forced a shutdown of almost all major construction in the city. They resumed work Friday.

Harry Van Arsdale Jr., a 56-year-old labor leader, is head of Local 3 of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. That group won a five-hour day work contract in a strike against New York City's multi-million dollar construction industry.

Also Pledges Firm Stand For Berlin

Defense Set-up Is Outlined in Senate Committee Hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara declared Friday that America's Armed Forces could destroy Russia's ability to wage war even after absorbing a surprise atomic attack by the Soviets.

He coupled the implied warning to the Soviets with a pledge to stand firm in Berlin. Although Moscow seems to be seeking the virtual surrender of West Berlin, he said, "the slippery road to appeasement can only lead to our isolation and ultimately to disaster."

Testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee on the new McNamara also said the United States would use nuclear weapons in a limited war if necessary despite its buildup of conventional forces.

Here is the defense picture painted by McNamara for the present and future years:

Retaliatory Strength: The United States now has about 50 intercontinental ballistic missiles. By the end of 1964 it will have about 1,034 — 128 Atlas, 54 Titan I, 54 Titan II and 800 Minutemen. By the end of the next fiscal year, it will have 14 wings of B52 bombers, or 600 planes. Each B52 can carry nuclear-clear-tipped Skybolt missiles which can be launched 950 miles from the target. The Air Force also will have two wings of supersonic B58 bombers and hundreds of medium-range B47's. Construction of missile-firing Polaris submarines will be stepped up.

Reserves: McNamara recommended that 30,000 paid civilian Army reservists and National Guardsmen be cut from the current 700,000. The number of paid Air Force reservists would be increased by 1,000 to 61,000. Authorizations for drill-paid Navy and Marine reserves would remain unchanged at 125,000 and 45,500 respectively.

Continental Defense: No matter how much money is spent "we simply cannot in this day and age provide an absolute defense for the continental United States." But to do the best job possible, the Administration wants to spend $2.1 billion for defense against any attacking bombers or missiles. This includes funds for continued research on the Nike-Zeus, but no production money for the anti-missile missile. In this connection, McNamara warned that Russia "probably already has some missile-firing submarines, a few of which may be nuclear powered."

Civil Defense: By next July, civil defense officials will have completed the first phase of a survey identifying about 50 million shelter spaces in existing buildings, tunnels, subways and the like. But it will take several more years to stock them — and about 220 million are needed. The record $695 million budgeted for civil defense includes funds for an advanced civilian warning system.

Manned Bombers: McNamara opposed buying any more manned bombers even though Congress voted funds for them last year. He said the Defense Department also has decided that the B70 super-bomber should not be developed as a full weapons system. Consideration is being given to recasting it as a reconnaissance plane and mop-up bomber.

Cold War Situation: McNamara said the rapid buildup of U.S. conventional forces "has done much to stabilize the Berlin situation." But cold war crises may "occur frequently in the years ahead." After citing Berlin, Viet Nam, Laos and Cuba, McNamara said "serious instability" elsewhere may give the Communists opportunities to "enlarge the area of struggle."

Capture Two Suspected of I.C. Holdups

The two Iowa City men suspected of the three recent local gas station holdups were captured at West Liberty Thursday night and have been taken to Davenport where they face armed robbery charges.

Clifford Clark, 38, 725 Page St., and Leland D. McRoy, 35, 713 E. Burlington St., were stopped at a West Liberty road block Thursday night by Highway Patrolman Mark Irvin and West Liberty Police Chief Robert Brown.

The suspects are believed to have been returning from robbing a Davenport gas station. When seized they were driving a 1956 Cadillac. Davenport police say they have a witness who remembers seeing a black Cadillac near the scene of the Davenport robbery which took place around 9 p.m. Thursday.

Iowa City authorities believe that the two did commit the Iowa City holdups. However, the two suspects were returned to Davenport because the Davenport police have more evidence against them.

Prior to the Davenport robbery, Iowa City Detective Sergeant Paul Hoffer and Deputy Sheriff Donald Wilson trailed the two men from Iowa City to Davenport but lost them in traffic just west of Davenport.

Senate Discrimination Resolution Discussed

A Student Senate resolution on discrimination Friday was referred to a committee for recommendations after consideration in a closed meeting of the Committee on Student Life (CSL) Friday.

Three other Senate resolutions were passed at the meeting. They concerned (1) allowing the Senate to amend its constitution without CSL approval, (2) providing that the Senate vice president be elected at all-campus elections, with the president, and (3) changing the method of selection of traffic court justices.

Sent to a committee was a resolution involving the classification of University recognized organizations on the extent of discrimination practiced by them.

The resolution requests that all such organizations submit to the Office of Student Affairs copies of their constitutions, by-laws, and initiation ceremonies. These papers would be on file so written discriminatory clauses would be evident.

Also contained in the resolution was a recommendation that the classification of organization ac-ording to discrimination be listed in the student directory with the organization.

The resolution was passed by the Senate last spring.

Ted McCarrel, dean of student services and chairman of the Committee on Student Life, said he thought the committee definitely felt that the University should move further in requiring existing organizations not to have restricting clauses.

Originally the Senate needed the approval of the Committee on Student Life for any amendments to its constitution. The committee has now accepted an amendment to the Senate constitution providing that the constitution can be amended without the committee's approval if the change does not materially affect the Senate's powers.

The third resolution increases the number of traffic court justices from five to seven and gives the student body president the right to appoint them.

McCarrel said the committee will meet again when the group studying the discrimination resolution finishes its work.

President, Thant Confer in New York—

Kennedy Reaffirms Support of U.N.

(Combined From Leased Wires)
NEW YORK — President Kennedy reaffirmed U.S. support of the crises-ridden United Nations in a two-hour meeting with Acting Secretary-General Thant Friday.

The U.S. Chief Executive flew in specially from Washington for his first meeting with Thant, arriving without hat or coat in 23 degree weather. They covered "major issues" ranging from the Dutch-Indonesian dispute over West New Guinea to the controversial $200 million U.N. bond issue and the Congo "peace" operation.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger described the lunch-time get-together in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel suite of U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson as "very cordial."

Kennedy, who is seeking congressional permission to buy up $100 million of the U.N. bonds, earlier had acknowledged in a speech in Washington that America was faced with a gold and dollar shortage, that "goes to the heart of our survival."

But he told 1,000 businessmen attending a U.S. Treasury bond conference the problem — linked to the costly maintenance of U.S. troops overseas — would "be defeated" if U.S. exports were raised 10 per cent a year. He called on both business and labor to exercise restraint in the wage increase-price increase cycle to make the goal possible. He added that his Administration has no thought of bringing home U.S. troops stationed abroad to cut down the dollar outflow.

If price stability can be maintained for another year, Kennedy said, "and we can increase our exports by as much as 5 per cent it will mean a reduction of $1 billion in our balance of payments deficit."

"A 10 per cent rise in exports and our balance of payments deficit is defeated," he said, adding: "We spend $3 billion a year in maintaining our forces abroad. This effects our balance of payments problem, so the need to solve this problem cuts right to the heart of our national security."

Salinger declined to mention specific matters covered by the President and Thant but said, "It is fair to say they covered the major issues before the United Nations."

One of the most urgent issues currently confronting the General Assembly was the war-threatened dispute between Indonesia and the Netherlands over control of Dutch New Guinea (West Irian).

The violence-scarred U.N. efforts to bring peace to the Congo and the threat of bankruptcy stemming from the costly operation were other problems facing the world body.

Making Mountains Out of Molehills

It's frequently heard in some quarters that Americans are developing a mole-like psychology about the threat of nuclear war. It's asserted that by building subterranean shelters, people are resigning themselves to the inevitability of catastrophe and have lost that human quality which was supposed to spring eternal.

This complaint, we suggest, has no basis in fact. Certainly, with the world situation so ominous and the world's weapons so lethal, it is hard to fault a man who tries to make what provision he can in guarding his family against at least the secondary effects of an atomic exchange.

But this interest in shelters doesn't seem to add up to the "craze" we hear so much about. Rather, it is one minute part of the nation's general activity — activity that reflects infinitely more concern with a contiguous future than with the horror of a possible holocaust.

In New York City, to cite a particularly symbolic example, there are plans to erect great skyscrapers on stilts to make use of the air space above expressways and railroad yards. Similarly, throughout the country the landscape is forever changing as men continue to build their factories and bridges, houses and highways, ballparks and barbecue pits.

Indeed, it doesn't require a keen eye to see, on every hand, people preparing for a recognizable tomorrow in all the usual countless ways — weighing political issues, pondering business problems late into the night, debating the future's educational and intellectual needs, re-seeding the front lawn, putting money in the bank. Neither each morning's screaming headlines nor the interest in shelter building that they have caused are transforming Americans into moles.

Perhaps those who make mountains out of molehills are the ones who reveal the real blindness about the national character.

Big Fat Nick

(With Apologies to Big John)

Every day at the U.N. you could see him arrive; He stood five foot one and weighed three ninety-five. Kinda scrawny at the shoulder and broad at the hip, Everybody alive would like to burst his lip, Big Nick.

Everybody seemed to know where Nick called home, Because he flew into town in a Russian nose cone. He mouthed off a lot; he wasn't quiet or shy, Every time he spoke he'd either cuss you or cry, Big Nick.

Most people knew he came from Moscow town, Where he ordered his men to shoot American planes down, And some crashing blows with a shoe in his hand, Made all America hate that bald headed man, Big Nick.

Then came the day while they were testing a bomb, Russian soldiers started crying and screaming for their "mom," The soldiers were frightened, their hearts beat fast, All of them thought they had breathed their last, even Nick, Big Nick, Big Nick, Big Fat Nick.

Through the dust and the smoke of atomic fallout, Walked a short fat man with his teeth knocked out, Grabbed a ten-ton bomb and gave out with a groan, And like a dying oak tree he just lay there and moaned, Big Nick.

With Russian tanks they started across town, Until they ran across fatty lying on the ground, The bricks and rubble covered over that man, All you could see was one grubby hand, of Big Nick.

Now they never did bother Nick's self-made grave, The only marker was a hickory stave, These few words were printed in the dirt, At the bottom of this trash lies a BIG BIG JERK, Big Nick, Big Nick, Big Fat Nick.

U.S. Probably Will Start Atmospheric Tests in March

By JOSEPH ALSOP

A momentary flurry here was caused by the surprise announcement that the United States was now willing, and even anxious, to merge the interminable nuclear test-ban negotiations into the broader, still less encouraging negotiations about general disarmament.

In reality, there was a simple motive for this decision to accept a long-standing long-resisted Soviet proposal. In the opinion of the President's able disarmament advisor, William C. Foster, the nuclear test-ban negotiations had reached a stage of hopeless deadlock. Therefore Foster advised that the merger would avoid further waste of time and negotiating manpower.

The flurry was caused by momentary, quite incorrect suspicions that the decision had another, less obvious motive. It was suspected in some quarters, in fact, that the move would somehow limit the freedom of the United States to resume nuclear testing in the atmosphere.

THE SUSPICION, as it happens, was groundless; but the fact that this simple, practically motivated decision aroused such a suspicion is decidedly indicative. It indicates the existence of a concealed but active contest inside the Administration, on the grave issue of atmospheric nuclear testing.

The latest and most interesting round in the contest was linked to the President's message on the State of the Union. To the surprise of both the State and Defense Departments, one of the preliminary drafts of the message included an offer by the President to cease testing if the Soviets would also agree to do so. There is controversy about the actual language of the offer, which is now buried deep in the White House files. But it at least appeared as the beginning of a return to the Eisenhower-era unopposed moratorium on tests. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and the Pentagon leaders strongly opposed making the offer. The controversial passage was then dropped from the message.

PRECISELY WHERE the aborted scheme originated, and just who sponsored it, are both impossible to determine. Too much should not be made of it, since the early drafts of the State of the Union message are notorious hold-alls. Nonetheless, the incident suggests that the opponents of a resumption of atmospheric nuclear testing are both active and persistent. On the other hand, these opponents clearly have an uphill contest on their hands, since both the Secretary of State and the Pentagon bosses lined up so firmly against them.

Besides the usual arguments about "world opinion" and about "heating up the arms race," the opponents of testing are reportedly using the argument that American atmospheric tests will cause difficulties for the U.S. delegation at the U.N. Ambassador to the U.N. Adlai Stevenson wrote the President that he "deplored" any resumption of U.S. testing, when the issue was first pressed in sharp form by the impressive series of Soviet tests.

Thus any atmospheric tests are highly unlikely during the next six weeks or so before the end of the present session of the U.N. General Assembly. Meanwhile, however, all necessary preparations for atmospheric tests are being made as rapidly as possible by a special task force. The man in charge is Maj. Gen. Alfred D. Starbird, the Army weapons expert formerly attached to the Atomic Energy Commission.

A SHORTENED PROGRAM of the most desirable atmospheric tests has already been agreed upon. Negotiations are in progress with the British for the use of the most suitable test site in the Pacific, Christmas Island. If these negotiations fail, Johnson Island will be used for the larger tests; and there will be at least one test — probably the first one — on American continental soil.

The proponents of atmospheric testing have on their side of the contest a considerable array of solid, practical arguments. Perhaps the most impressive of these is the evidence that the Russian test-series gave the Soviets a short-cut method of triggering an H-bomb, on a new principle not yet exactly understood by our scientists.

The President very sensibly wants to delay any announcement of resumed atmospheric testing until the last possible instant, in order to reduce the inevitable clamor from the alleged voices of "world opinion." Thus the formal decision will also be delayed until all is in readiness. But it seems a money-making bet that there will be American atmospheric tests, possibly as early as March, and almost surely before the end of June.

And Now The Office Is Closed

By PHIL CURRIE

Friday — one week ago — on a cold, but friendly day, an old gentleman of 87 years was laid to rest in a Mason City cemetery. It was a sad occasion for the city as well as the family, for he had stood tall as a leader and friend in the community of 30,000 throughout his life.

He had lived a long life — and a full one. By the time I knew him, he had already lived 66 years of it. His son has told me of many of their earlier experiences together.

"DAD AND I used to play golf," his son once said. "I'd smack out the ball a terrific distance, but invariably it would slice or hook. Then Dad would swing. His ball went only about half as far in distance, but it went straight out. We usually ended up with the same score."

The man himself was just like his golf drives — straight and true. He was from what many now call the "old school." He was a devout Methodist and followed the ritual to the letter — no drinking, smoking or swearing. As long as I knew him, I never heard him raise his voice to anyone. He had done so, I am told, when he was building his business.

"Frank used to play golf," his son once said. "I'd smack out the ball a terrific distance, but invariably it would slice or hook. Then Dad would swing. His ball went only about half as far in distance, but it went straight out. We usually ended up with the same score."

"Sometimes he did it forcefully,"

KEEPING THOSE employees hopping brought results. When he entered the hardware business with his dad (he said he was a nuts-and-bolts peddler) some 70 years ago, it was in a one-front three-man establishment. Under his guidance it grew. Today it is three times bigger in footage and employs more than 11 times as many persons.

The thing that stood out most about him in his later years was that he didn't think he was old. I guess he never read the book that says when you reach a certain age you must slow down and act old. Until the final weeks of his life, he remained quick, snappy and straight. And he used to take walks — as brisk as any of Truman's morning jaunts. I'd wager!

Chief among his assets was his lasting wit. I recall one evening when the family went out for dinner at a restaurant where the food was good and the lighting, very poor — only two candles and a weak overhead bulb were anywhere in sight.

A WAITRESS BROUGHT the menu and he started to read it. He looked about the room, squinted at the menu, and said with a chuckle, "Guess I should have brought my flashlight. I've been told the next time he went there, he pulled out a pocket flashlight and rattled off an order. That's just a rumor however. It might not be true.

He possessed a multitude of friends, but throughout his life he placed his family above all else. He talked often of experiences with his family. The story that seemed to always bring a chuckle was the one which he told only once. His son recounted the details.

During the time of the World's Fair, the whole family piled into the old car and headed for Chicago. The son was driving as they entered downtown Chicago and turned onto a crowded street. A street car moved down the middle; cars were parked along the side; another car was in the lane to their right, traffic was heavy behind.

JUST AT the time the son moved to pass the car adjacent to theirs, they caught up with the street car. The squeeze was too tight and in the scramble, a fender was cleanly ripped from their car. The old boy took a quick look at the situation. He saw the worried look on his son's face and also the mass of traffic behind. He saw, too, that no real harm had been done except to their car.

The solution seemed simple: "Never mind the fender, son," he shouted, "Just keep a-going."

They kept a-going. He loved that family. His kids gave him rough times as well as smooth. So did the grandchildren. But he stuck by them and they, in turn, got through their crises.

Four years ago his wife died; now he's gone. He left behind a fine daughter and son, two attractive granddaughters, a great-granddaughter filled with the spice and vinegar he boasted, one grandson in high school, and a second, a senior at Iowa.

The old timer and I used to have a small joke between us. One year, before leaving for school here, I mentioned to him that while I was gone, he'd have to keep the New York office running. (There was no New York office.) He promised faithfully to do so and said he would sell the stocks when the price was right. (There were no stocks.) After that, each time I saw him, he ex-

Or So They Say

A new invention is being claimed for Russia. It's a hotel room television set that watches the occupant.

—(W.E.H.) Mason City Globe-Gazette

When you have a cold, some doctors fill you so full of drugs that if you sneeze, you'll probably cure two or three other people.

—Adair News

Let's learn from the mistakes of others. We can't live long enough to make them all ourselves.

—St. Ansgar Enterprise

His thoughts were slow, his words were few, and never forgot to gladden; but he was a joy to all his friends — you should have heard him listen.

—Nora Springs Advertiser

Horse and Buggy

Believe it or not, even at its dangerous worst, the automobile, proportionately, never was as great a killer as the horse!

In 1909, for example, 3,850 persons lost their lives in accidents involving horses and horse-drawn vehicles. The horse was not driven more than 500 miles a year.

On a mileage basis, compared with the automobile's average of 10,000 miles a year, the horse was twice as deadly as the automobile.

New Flu Strain Reported Here

Dr. Chester I. Miller, director of SUI student health, said Friday that a "small number" of influenza cases, resulting from an as yet unidentified strain had been reported by SUI students during the past week.

He added that laboratory tests, scheduled for completion early next week, are now being conducted to identify the strain.

It's still too early to determine the proportion the flu will hit, he said.

Miller said the reported cases have been characterized by colds, sore throats and fevers.

He added that about 1,300 students have received flu shots since the program began in October.

He advised persons who had a shot last year that they need only one. Persons who have not had shots need two — three to four weeks apart. No appointment is needed for the shots.

Illness Keeps 99 Out At Coralville Schools

Ninety-nine elementary and junior high school students were absent from classes in the Coralville school system Friday.

This is about 16 per cent of the total number of students in Coralville. School officials said that most of the absences were due to the flu, mumps and measles.

Some of the Iowa City elementary schools also reported increased absences due to illness, but Coralville is apparently the hardest hit by the epidemic.

Demo Byrd Criticizes Kennedy Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) predicted Friday that President Kennedy's fiscal 1963 budget would produce a $1 to $5 billion deficit instead of the $500 million surplus foreseen by the President.

Byrd, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, joined Republicans in criticizing Kennedy's record peacetime $92.5 billion budget for the 12 months starting July 1. Most other Democrats called it a sound fiscal document. Byrd said the President's spending estimates were too low and its tax collection estimates too high. To get the $93 billion in receipts predicted by Kennedy, he said, there would have to be no strikes and income levels that could be inflationary.

"This is no time for double-talk with respect to the state of our fiscal affairs," Byrd said in a statement. "They are in serious shape. We need the facts in a simple and straightforward statement."

The Virginia Democrat announced earlier that his committee would undertake a major fiscal inquiry, using as a springboard the President's request for a $10 billion increase in the national debt ceiling.

Byrd said the President's "paper thin" surplus could be reached only by congressional action which was doubtful at best. He referred specifically to Kennedy's proposals for postal rate increases, cuts in farm price supports and a reduction in aid to schools crowded by children whose parents live or work at nearby Federal installations. Pointing to spending increases in the budget, Byrd said the Department of Health, Education and Welfare would boost its spending by $714 million, an increase exceeded only by military and space programs. Byrd noted there have been 26 deficits in the past 31 years and "there will be another deficit next year."

It is beyond a doubt, a most beautiful, literally colorful and motion-filled version of the tragedy that dwarfs any 'Othello' constricted by the confines of stage and proscenium arch. Burgeoning drama that stands among Shakespeare's best."

Iowa Seeks Comeback Against Winless 'Cats

By HARRIETT HINDMAN Staff Writer

Iowa's basketball team closes first semester play tonight at 8 p.m. in a return match with Northwestern at Evanston, Ill.

The Hawkeyes, now 2-2 in conference play, will be trying to get back in the win column after a 56-55 last-second loss to Michigan here Monday night.

Northwestern is still looking for its first conference victory after losses to Iowa and top-rated Ohio State and Purdue.

Iowa defeated Northwestern, 74-69, in a closely contested game on the Field House court Jan. 8. Tonight, the Wildcats will have the advantage of the home floor.

"I think that playing on the home court makes a big difference," Iowa coach Sharm Scheuerman said Friday. "Especially for us. We are undefeated on our floor, but we have won only two games away from home, and one of them was from Penn State on a neutral floor."

Tonight Iowa will have to worry about not only guards Bill Cacciatore and Ralph Wells, who led Northwestern in the last Hawkeye-Wildcat game, but will also be faced with the problem of Rich Falk.

Falk, a fast developing sophomore guard, collected 26 points in Northwestern's 90-74 loss to Purdue. He is a good shooter and leads the Wildcats in shooting percentage with .489.

Other Northwestern starters will be John Miller, 6-5 forward, and Dave Bone, 6-6 center.

Iowa will start the same five who started against Minnesota and Michigan. Sophomores Andy Hankins and Doug Mehlhaus will be at forward; high-scoring All-America candidate Don Nelson at center, with Matt Szykowny and Joe Reddington starting at the guard positions.

Reddington's defensive play against Cacciatore was a key factor in Iowa's previous win over the Wildcats.

Jerry Messick, Gary Lorenz, and Joel Novak will handle top Iowa relief assignments.

Discussing Iowa's preparation for the Wildcats, Scheuerman stated "Wednesday we practiced against the straight man-to-man, and Thursday against the zone."

"We were shooting real well against the zone in practice Thursday, extremely well. If we shoot anywhere close to that against Northwestern, we will do all right."

"It wouldn't surprise us a bit to see Northwestern come out in a zone against us. They used the zone against Purdue and Dischinger. Don (Nelson) had 36 against them last time, so they will probably try to stop him and make us prove ourselves from the outside, which we are going to have to do," Scheuerman added.

Northwestern's zone held Purdue's Dischinger, who is averaging 29.3 points per game, to a total of 20 and allowed him no field goals in the first half.

Iowa's next game will be a non-conference meeting with Creighton University here Feb. 3.

Gymnasts Meet Top Rated Spartans and Wolverines

By GARY SPURGEON Staff Writer

Iowa's gymnasts will put their undefeated record on the line today when they face both Michigan and Michigan State at East Lansing.

The meet will be a clash of Big Ten gymnastics powers. Each team will oppose each of the other two squads, thus, pitting the Hawkeyes against both of the Michigan schools.

Iowa coach Dick Holzaepfel considers this one of the biggest weekends on the schedule. He said, "We have four tough meets and these are two of them."

Holzaepfel also said the two Michigan squads have two of the strongest teams that they have had in years. He said that both teams have considerable depth on every apparatus.

The Iowa coach rates his team's chances of victories over the two squads as a tossup. "The team that wins will be the team that will be hitting its routines," he said.

"We will be potentially capable of defeating either team if we hit our routines," said Holzaepfel. However, he added this would demand a considerable amount of consistency on the part of the Hawkeyes.

Holzaepfel will be using practically the same lineup that has carried his team through the whole season. Leading the team will be sophomore George Hery, the team's leading scorer.

Last Saturday, Hery took first place in the trampoline and tumbling in Iowa's victory over Navy Pier of Chicago.

Jon Cada, who was ill a week ago and still managed to win the still rings, is expected to be in top condition for the meet. Others making the trip for the Hawkeyes include Joe Roos, Russ Porterfield, Bob Schmidt, Jim Liddel, Hans Burchardt, Jon Boulton, Drew Mawhinney, Roger Gedney, Ed Wilson and Keith Spaulding.

These two meets will be the team's last two until after finals. The Hawks will resume competition Feb. 3, against Wisconsin in the Iowa Field House.

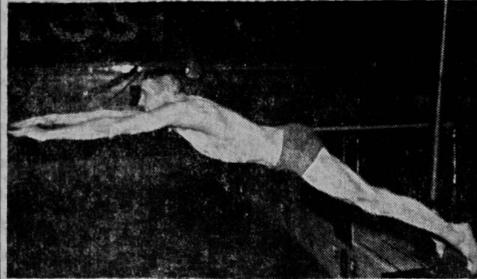

Bluehawks Win

The University High Bluehawks won their third Eastern Iowa Hawkeye conference game here Friday night, defeating the Springville Orioles 68-54.

The Blues moved ahead 16-11 at the end of the first period, and lead at halftime 26-21.

The Blues outscored the Orioles 25-14 in the third period, to take a commanding 16 point lead.

Spitzer was leading pointmaker for the Blues with 18. High point men for Springville were Dennis McMahan, 15 and Dave Reed 12.

Holds World Record

Minnesota's Steve Jackman is one of the top attractions at the Hawkeye-Gopher swimming meet this afternoon at the Field House pool. Jackman holds the world's record in the 50-yard free-style.

Hawkeye Swimmers Host Strong Minnesota Team

By Staff Writer

Iowa's swimming team, 1-1 in Big Ten competition, will host a formidable Minnesota squad today in a dual meet in the Field House pool. Races will begin at 2:30 p.m.

The Hawkeyes, 59-46 winners over Wisconsin but 75-30 victims to Michigan State, should be hard-pressed to beat the Gophers, who boast two All-Americans and a well-balanced, predominantly junior team.

Minnesota has defeated Northwestern 63-35 and lost to Ohio State, 60-41, in addition to winning a non-conference meet from Gustavus Adolphus.

Leading Minnesota's point-makers is Steve Jackman, who last year set national collegiate records in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle. Jackman, when at top form, is one of the fastest swimmers in the world over a short distance.

The other All-America performer, Steve Milota, will offer Iowa stern competition in the individual medley and breaststroke.

Minnesota also has a fine freestyle relay foursome, anchored by Jackman, and gets top performances from breaststrokers Norm Solberg, Dave Collin and Virg Luker.

Coach Bob Allen's Hawkeyes, stormy winds and rain failed to halt the sub-par shooting of Hoosier Joe Campbell who grabbed the midway lead Friday in Bing Crosby's $50,000 golf tournament with a 36-hole score of 138.

Bundled in foul weather gear, the former National Collegiate golf champion from Purdue toured the treacherous Pebble Beach course in a one-under-par 71 while most scores were soaring into the gale-force winds.

"I don't believe conditions for playing golf could be much worse," the 26-year-old pro from Pendleton, Ind., said. "But it seemed like every time I hit a poor shot I got a good break."

The best break came at the 13th hole when Campbell hit out of a wet sand trap and the ball dropped into the hole, 35 feet away.

That shot eventually became his one-stroke margin over 23-year-old Jacky Cupit, a Texan who also had a 71 at Pebble Beach and a 139 total.

Ken Venturi of San Francisco, who won the Crosby two years ago, slipped into third place with a 69-142. He played the Monterey Peninsula County Club on his second round.

Pro Bob McCallister from Yorba Linda, Calif., and Los Angeles outfielder Albie Pearson maintained their lead in the pro-amateur division with the best ball 69-64-123 at Cypress Point.

The storm tossed both young Phil Rodgers and 52-year-old Chuck Congdon, who shared the first-round lead with Campbell at 67.

Rodgers, of San Diego, carded 75 for a 142 that still left him in good position. Congdon, of Tacoma, Wash., skidded to a 78 and 145.

Joe Campbell Gains Crosby Classic Lead

Matmen Aim for 3rd Straight over Spartans

By GEORGE KAMPLING Staff Writer

Hawkeye wrestling coach Dave McCuskey sends his grapplers after their third straight Big Ten dual win here tonight when they face defending conference champion Michigan State.

The meet, which begins at 7:30 p.m., will be held on the Varsity basketball floor in the Field House.

The Hawks have beaten Illinois and Northwestern, while the Spartans finished second in a quadrangular meet, (won by Minnesota), and were held to a tie last week with Indiana. Michigan State faced State College of Iowa in a dual meet Friday night at Cedar Falls.

Coach McCuskey has been "mightily pleased" with the young Iowa team in its matches so far this year. Only one of the Hawk grapplers, Sydney Walston, 147, is a senior "They have been doing a wonderful job," said McCuskey.

"The meet should be a real good one," said the Iowa mentor. "Michigan State is pretty strong, but at the same time Indiana tied them."

"Michigan State has lots of strength in the lighter weights and also in the heavier weights," continued McCuskey. "We're stronger in the middle probably, but we will have to win early in the match if we want it, as we are not strong at either 177 or heavyweight."

Four of Iowa's wrestlers are undefeated with Tom Huff, Lonnie Wieland, and Walston all having two victories and Steve Combs, one. Combs missed the opener against Illinois because of leg injury, but pinned his opponent at Northwestern last week.

The Spartans lost five lettermen from last year's championship team, including Norman Young, Big Ten and NCAA champ in the 137-pound division. Other lettermen gone are Mike Senzig, heavyweight, and Duane Wohlfert.

Leading the Spartans are 167-pounder John McCray and heavyweight John Baum. Baum was unbeaten in three starts going into last night's match at Cedar Falls and McCray was 2-1. McCray finished second at 177 in the Big Ten meet a year ago and finished with an 8-3 record after a late start due to early injuries.

Baum was the highest point maker on the Spartan team in 1961, and was runner-up in the conference meet.

CROSBY ILL

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Bing Crosby was missing Friday for the first time from the annual national pro-amateur golf tournament he conceived in 1937 to support charities.

The crooner is recuperating in Los Angeles from a recent kidney stone operation and probably will not be able to come to Pebble Beach, said his brother, Larry.
