The Mercy Day Plan Should Be Continued

From all indications, SUI's first "day of mercy" was a success.

Last Thursday was designated as mercy day - a day in which classes were called off in all five different colleges at SUI, for the purpose of doing good in the community. It was a long day for most of the students, but it was justified by the results. Several students interviewed said that they felt that the day was definitely worth while.

When approval was given, it was also apparent that there was no lack of students who were enthusiastic about the plan. While the official word was that there would be no official recognition of the day, the students themselves set the tone for the occasion. Many of them participated in the various activities on their own initiative.

"I think it was a good idea," said one student. "It was nice to see so many people doing good things." Another student added, "It's good to see that people can work together for a common goal." A third said, "I wish we could do this more often." The common sentiment was that the day was a success and that it should be continued in the future.

World Questions for What We Are Saving Children

By ERIC BEARDEN

A five-year-old speaker, talking with a United Nations medical scientist as we stepped reception at the 1st Annual Reception for Northwestern Illinois, the biggest of the world of medicine in the morning. The scientist had been asked to conduct a tour of the local disease districts and inspect the "ozone" districts, "ozone" districts receive monthly visits to every family in the city.

I ask: "What are you doing in the morning?"

"I am going to the store to buy the things the children don't have," replied the speaker.

"What are you bringing to the store?"

"I am bringing money to buy the things the children don't have," replied the speaker.

"What are you going to buy with the money?"

"I am going to buy clothes, food, and medicine for the children," replied the speaker.

"How much money are you going to spend?"

"I am going to spend as much money as I can," replied the speaker.

"What are you going to do with the money after you have bought the things?"

"I am going to give the money to the children," replied the speaker.

"What are you going to give the children?"

"I am going to give the children food, clothes, and medicine," replied the speaker.

"How are you going to give the children the money?"

"I am going to give the money to the children in person," replied the speaker.

I am really impressed by this five-year-old speaker's dedication and determination.

Letters to the Editor –

"Feudin' Twosome"

To the Editor:

Two doctors, Dr. John Q. Jones and Dr. Sam B. Smith, have been working together for many years. They have been known to argue and feud, but they have also worked together on many projects.

"Just what kind of a relationship do you think you have with Dr. Smith?"

"We have a complex relationship," replied Dr. Jones. "We argue and feud, but we also work together on many projects."

"What kind of projects do you work on?"

"We work on medical research projects," replied Dr. Jones. "We also work on public health projects."

"Why do you argue and feud?"

"We argue and feud because we have different ideas," replied Dr. Jones. "But we respect each other's ideas and we work together on projects."

"Why do you work together on projects?"

"We work together on projects because we have a shared interest," replied Dr. Jones. "We have a shared interest in medical research and public health."
AF, Navy Commanders Testify Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Navy and Air Force commandants testified Monday before a House Armed Services Committee hearing on the Navy's role in the Mediterranean. The two service chiefs were asked about their views on the current state of defense spending and the need for additional funds.

The committee heard from two top military officials, with Navy Secretary Thomas H. Moorer and Air Force Secretary Harold Brown. They discussed issues such as procurement, personnel, and strategic planning.

The hearing was held to examine the nation's defense priorities and the effectiveness of the services in carrying out their missions. The committee, chaired by Rep. William B. Harman, D-Md., heard testimony from other military leaders as well.

Washington (UPI) - Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said Monday that on the basis of the present information he would have to vote against President Kennedy’s nomination of Dr. Robert McNamara to head the Central Intelligence Agency.

"I have not been able to find the 'total package' of information" in National Security Council documents that McNamara’s nomination is in the "negative vote" in my judgment," Mansfield said.

Mansfield said he would offer an amendment to the bill when it reaches the Senate and would vote against it only if the amendment is defeated.

"I feel a certain obligation to the Senate and to the American people in this case," he said.

The amendment contains language that would prevent a vote on the nomination.

President Kennedy nominated McNamara for the post Tuesday.
