At Last, Chances Look Good For Glenn's Adventure Today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. space agency moved swiftly ahead Monday night with plans to rocket astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. around the world today. Mercury Operations Director Walter Williams gave the word to start the crucial second half of the countdown at 11:30 p.m. (EST). So encouraging was the forecast a midnight weather briefing was called for the mission.

Barring some unforeseen change in the weather, or other hitch, the chances were counted good for sending the Marine lieutenant colonel skyward sometime between 6:30 a.m. and 11:30 p.m. (Iowa time) today.

A late afternoon weather report said conditions in the Atlantic recovery areas "appeared favorable for the mission."

The only fly in the weather ointment was that the Cape Canaveral launch area might be covered with broken clouds. However, commanders of the Mercury astronaut project hoped that, if this occurred, they might find a hole in the clouds to shoot Glenn's Atlas rocket through.

The final countdown actually covers six hours of tests, checks and preparations, but the count will extend over a period of built-in "holds" during which any final needed corrections could be made.

DI Awarded 1st Place in Press Contest

The Daily Iowan Monday was named a first place winner in a contest for members of the Inland Daily Press Association (IDPA). Announcement was made at the Winter Meeting of the Association in Chicago.

Judges considered 246 papers in five classes in the contest, which is sponsored by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism. The Daily Iowan placed first in the category for newspapers printed on flatbed presses. The contest was open to all daily newspapers that are members of the IDPA.

Winners were chosen from those judged superior in effective news, advertising and picture display, readability, and general eye-appeal. Each newspaper submitted their Nov. 28, 29, and 30, 1961, issues for the contest. The Daily Iowan's Nov. 30 issue was the Christmas edition.

Fred Pownall, publisher of The Daily Iowan, received the award for the newspaper. Leslie G. Moeller, director of the SUI School of Journalism, also attended the meeting.

Other first place winners were: Goshen (Ind.) News, for newspapers on rotary presses, under 10,000 circulation; Marion (Ind.) Chronicle, newspapers of 10-20,000 circulation; Kankakee (Ill.) Journal, newspaper of 25-75,000 circulation; Akron (Ohio) Beacon-Journal, newspapers of 25-75,000 circulation.

Defense Chief Is Praised By Goldwater

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) Monday praised Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara as "one of the best secretaries of defense ever — an IBM machine with legs."

Goldwater said McNamara had set up an "excellent" budget system in drawing up his proposed $50 billion defense budget.

Goldwater, speaking at the University of Buffalo, said he would have given naval and air support to last year's abortive "Bay of Pigs" invasion of Cuba. But he said he believed the economic embargo recently clamped against Cuba would be the undoing of Castro.

Goldwater said the United States had nothing to fear but ignorance in the "ideological war" with communism.

"We're in a different type of war and we're not geared for it," he said. "It is an ideological war, we are fighting a philosophy."

Asked about his feeling toward the John Birch Society, Goldwater said all he knew was that it was "anti-Communist."

"I am in complete disagreement with Birch Society founder Robert Welch, but you cannot blame an entire group for the actions of a few," he said. "People are getting excited over nothing."

shot, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the good weather was expected to continue through Wednesday.

As the 11th date for his great adventure neared, Glenn reported he was ready. He reiterated that he was not the least perturbed by the delays stretching back to last Dec. 20.

Speaking to newsmen who found him in a Cocoa Beach barber chair, Glenn said postponements are of no consequence, because:

"I have been training and waiting for three years, and a few more days won't matter."

The hope is to propel Glenn three times around the world in a spindling journey lasting four hours and 50 minutes.

If need be, the trip could be cut to two orbits, or one.

Experts still planned to huddle, keeping their eye on the weather reports.

Similar 11th-hour meetings last week forced postponements of this flight on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Those delays were caused by storms which churned dangerous waves in the Atlantic recovery area east of Bermuda where Glenn's capsule would land if the mission aborted because the Atlas failed to achieve proper speed or injected the craft into the wrong orbit path.

The storm has moved out of that area and conditions in the zones where Glenn would impact after one, two or three orbits were reported satisfactory.

Ironically, while the Atlantic weather has been bad, skies and seas around Cape Canaveral have been near-perfect for several days. Now a reverse situation appears possible.

Two Captured In Plainfield Bank Robbery

$15,000 Recovered; Same Men Sought In Rock Falls Holdup

PLAINFIELD (AP) — Two bold bandits held up the Farmers State Bank of Plainfield Monday and took $15,000 in the second robbery at the bank in a month.

The loot was quickly recovered and within five hours, the State Highway Patrol said, two men identified as the robbers were in custody.

The patrol said Gene Rasmussen, 34, was apprehended in his home town, Mason City, and the other man, Kenneth James Truesdell, 31, of Waterloo, was captured at Nashua after a house-to-house search there.

Officers said Rasmussen was captured in a household furniture store after Mason City police received an anonymous tip.

Bremer County Sheriff Harley Ehlert said Truesdell gave himself up and was not armed when taken.

He was in the cab of a truck near the site of the construction of a new addition to the Nashua High School.

The sheriff and other officers had gone there on a tip that a man had been seen around the place.

Both men were wanted for the Feb. 3 robbery of the Rock Falls branch of the American State Bank of Mason City in which $1,334 was taken.

Nashua police said they were holding Bonnie Harding, 17, Ventura, Iowa, girl, who was picked up at a Nashua ice cream stand. Police said the bandits dropped her off at Nashua while they robbed the Plainfield bank but were unable to pick her up because they were pursued.

No charges were filed against her immediately.

The FBI joined the hunt for the pair Monday.

The robbery at the Plainfield bank was the second in a month.

Ross Ray Carroll, 68, of Charles City, staged a holdup there last Jan. 17 and fled with $9,425. He was arrested at his home 73 minutes later and sentenced to five years in prison last Feb. 12.

Russell Spearman, bank cashier, said the men Monday entered the bank about 2:10 p.m.

One of them brandished a gun and said: "We want to make a withdrawal of $9,425 — the same as the other guy did."

Louisiana's 7th Evasion Isn't Constitutional

Declares Local Option Denies Negro's Right To School Attendance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled unconstitutional Monday a Louisiana local option law which allowed counties to close public schools rather than desegregate.

The court took the action without comment by upholding a lower court decision which condemned the 1961 statute as an "experiment with ignorance."

It marked the seventh time that the Supreme Court has repudiated laws passed by the Louisiana legislature in an effort to prevent desegregation.

Meanwhile, the Justice Department asked a federal court to strike down Mississippi's terminal segregation laws and order the strike down Mississippi's terminal segregation signs outside a railroad and two bus terminals.

The Louisiana local option measure was enacted at a special session in February, 1961. It authorized referendums so that Parish (Louisiana County) voters could express a preference for no public schools or mixed schools. County school boards were to act on the basis of the vote.

The case which reached the Supreme Court Monday originated in St. Helena Parish, a rural county on the Mississippi border. A vote there in April, 1961, was 1,147 to 57 to close the schools rather than integrate. Only four of an estimated 4,700 Negroes in the county were said to have turned up to vote.

A three-judge federal panel in New Orleans struck down the law last Aug. 30.

The three judges said: "This is not the moment in history for a state to experiment with ignorance."

They said they held the Louisiana law unconstitutional because:

- It was a "transparent artifice" to deny Negro children their right to attend school regardless of race.
- It discriminated against all children of the parish where schools were closed.

In other actions, the Supreme Court:

- Refused to order the Georgia Supreme Court to cancel new hearings over the political use of dues obtained under a railroad union shop agreement. The case involved an eight-year-old suit in which six workers objected to use of their dues payments by the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks. At the New Georgia hearings, 14 railway unions would be required to produce financial records.
- Turned down an appeal of four Negro clergymen seeking to nullify libel actions against them in Alabama. The ministers are the Revs. Ralph Abernathy and S. S. Seay Sr. of Montgomery, F. L. Shuttlesworth of Birmingham and J. E. Lowery of Nashville, Tenn.
- Refused to interfere with a ruling allowing the use of wiretap evidence obtained by New York state police in a Buffalo lottery trial.
- Denied a hearing to a Fresno, Calif., lawyer, Vincent D. Todisco, who protested that recorded conversations were used in his conviction of attempting to bribe an internal revenue agent.
- Ordered a hearing to determine whether John Machibroda, now serving a 40-year sentence at Alcatraz, was induced to plead guilty to bank robbery charges through the promise of a light sentence. The court split 6 to 3 in ordering a review of his trial at Toledo, Ohio.

HANCHER TO SPEAK

JFK Asks 'Insurance' To Prevent Recessions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy asked Congress Monday to write the nation an insurance policy against future economic "rainy days" by giving him standby power to pump up to $2 billion into public works.

Kennedy spelled out details of the anti-recession plan, first proposed in his State of the Union message last month, in a letter and a draft of the proposed bill sent to the Senate and House.

Stating that the nation is making a satisfactory recovery from the 1960-61 recession, he reiterated his view that "the time to repair the roof is when the sun is shining."

The other half of Kennedy's anti-recession proposal, mentioned in his State of the Union speech but not yet sent to Congress, would give him standby power to cut income tax rates temporarily in times of recession. Congress takes a generally dim view of both proposals.

In his letter Monday, the President asked for authority to spend up to $2 billion on jobs — creating public works projects whenever the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate rose a total of at least 1 percentage point in three of four consecutive months or four of six consecutive months.

The President also would have to determine that use of the standby power was a necessary and that the job situation had not been created by a major strike or some other special development.

The plan, which automatically would be terminated in 12 months unless extended by Congress or shortened by the President, would:

- Allow a $750 million increase in direct federal spending for already authorized public works projects, including resource development, conservation and other federal programs.
- Provide $750 million in grants to be matched by state and local Governments for capital improvement programs.
- Authorize $250 million in loans for state and local Governments unable to provide matching funds.
- Set up a reserve of $250 million to be allotted to any of the other three programs as circumstances might warrant.

City 'Where the Boys Are' Ready for Student Hordes

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the lower Atlantic coast resort city, is preparing for the annual March and April onslaught of college students.

In a plan to prevent the rioting associated with the influx of thousands of college students on spring vacations, public-spirited citizens are working with municipal officials to offer vacationing students interesting and varied recreation and entertainment programs.

Most of the day and night activities will center on the beach made famous in last spring's well-timed movie "Where the Boys Are". A single special area will be the focal point for live music and dancing. Bonfires will be permitted under the supervision of the fire department.

The city's recreation department will construct a large bandstand, which during the day will be used for bathing beauty contests and other forms of entertainment, including the popular twist and limbo.

Competitive events planned will include beach basketball, volleyball, ocean swimming and "mailman carry."

Arriving students will be greeted in "Hello Booths" in three beach locations, where hospitality passes will be issued and housing information distributed.

The hospitality passes, issued on the presentation of college identification or current registration cards, will entitle students to admittance to all recreation and entertainment events. A fee of 15 cents will be charged for the passes.

Presidents and deans of several universities will join the students this spring and will be guests of the city's leading hotels.

Dr. Celm E. Bininger, chairman of the civic planning group, envisions the development of a closer relationship between students and residents by offering the latter the opportunity to invite students into their homes, clubs and churches.

The aim of the planning committee, Bininger said, is to "make the spring visitation of students pleasant for all concerned."

Peace Talks Not Over—

Rebel Switch Jolts French

PARIS (UPI) — The French Government announced Monday that France and the Algerian rebels had reached a cease-fire agreement in Algeria. But the rebels later jolted French officials by saying the peace talks were not completed.

Despite the confusion, the outlawed Secret Army Organization (OAS) launched a new campaign of terror in Algeria to support its demand that Algeria remain French.

In Algiers, a jeering European mob burned a car ambushed by OAS commandos. There were more bombings, kidnappings and murders.

A statement released in Paris by the French Government and attributed to "authorized French quarters," said Algerian Affairs Minister Luis Joxe ended the peace talks Sunday night at a secret rendezvous in France near the Swiss border, bringing near an end to the seven-year-old war in Algeria.

A Government spokesman said later the agreement covered the draft of a cease-fire pact and a political settlement under which Algeria is expected to become an independent republic this year despite the violent OAS opposition.

The rebel leaders returned to their headquarters in Tunis and said the talks are not over although they are progressing well.

Officials both here and in Tunis recalled that any draft agreement must be approved not only by the rebel Government-in-exile in Tunis but also by the Algerian rebel Parliament, or National Council of National Council of the Algerian Revolution (CNRA).

It was announced in Tunis that the exile Government will meet there Tuesday and that the National Council will meet in the Libyan capital of Tripoli on Wednesday.

French officials said the Algerian delegation apparently felt unable to announce full agreement until the draft has been approved by the National Council. They recalled that from the outset a final, public meeting of the two sides has been planned for the signing.

The new outbreak of violence in Algeria by the OAS exploded soon after French newspapers appeared with banner headlines reporting an agreement on a cease-fire.

Niemeyer's Keg - Not Really So Humorous

Last week, Student Body President John Niemeyer, presented a prize to the Gamma Phi Beta social sorority for contributing the item to the Project AID auction which sold for the most money. Niemeyer, following a promise to give the highest contributor a gift, selected a keg of beer as his prize.

That selection was indeed unfortunate — and unfortunate in a number of ways.

The main thing wrong with such a presentation was that possession of a keg of beer, under University regulations, is strictly taboo. The University regulations specify: "The possession or consumption of beer . . . by any student in violation of University regulations or laws of the state of Iowa is cause for dismissal or other penalties," and "the possession or consumption of beer by any student on campus or within . . . a charter house . . . is cause for dismissal."

The sorority did not want the beer — understandably so.

The decision to present the beer came at Niemeyer's suggestion to a Project AID committee which gave its approval.

Niemeyer generally exercises better judgment. Although he was no doubt acting in good faith, he apparently was also acting without thinking. It was he, along with some friends, who delivered the beer to the sorority. Niemeyer contends that he did not take the beer into the sorority, therefore, he did not break the regulation which states the beer must be in the house.

We would suggest that the regulation interprets "house" to also mean "grounds," but this is a fine point. At any rate, Niemeyer is not exempt from blame or guilt.

We are the first to concede that Niemeyer's action was a friendly gesture; the presentation of a keg of beer by any other person might not be too out of place on a university campus.

But the fact that such a presentation, definitely against University regulations, was made by the Student Senate President makes it a much more serious thing, Niemeyer, as the highest elected officer representing the student body, set a poor example when he broke that regulation. His disregard for one University regulation may indicate to students that they may disregard any of them.

Equally serious is the fact that the Project AID name was involved in the incident. Project AID, aimed at raising money so that needy students may attend the University, is indeed a fine cause. Heretofore, all things connected with it have been strongly supported by alumni, the community and the students.

But when those representing Project AID become involved in an incident violating University regulations and state laws, they are endangering further support for AID. The university students may forget the incident; persons outside the university — alumni, Iowa Citizens, people across the state — may not.

In explaining his action to the Student Senate Wednesday, Niemeyer reported that being a non-Greek, he has difficulty reading Greek letters. "Therefore, I mistook the Greek letters WCTU for Gamma Phi Beta. The reaction of the upright Christian group of young ladies at the WCTU house was extremely entertaining."

Putting the entire event in a humorous light may satisfy some. We believe, however, that Niemeyer's actions were more serious than he would have the Student Senate and the student body believe.

In the future, Niemeyer should think twice before performing such a senseless act. The students and Project AID deserve more responsible leadership. —Phil Currie Safety on Sidewalks?

Apparently the snow and cold has no intentions of leaving us yet. And until the long awaited departure occurs, SUI students will continue to be subjected to the dangers of getting to and from class.

The SUI snow removal crews generally do an adequate job of removing new snow (at least better than Iowa City crews do), but they only get down to within about an inch of the sidewalk.

It is true that the University puts sand on some of the more treacherous hills on campus like the Jefferson Street sidewalks, but what about the level places? Many students find it difficult, if not impossible, to walk across even the Pentacrest, without falling flat on their "pride."

The steps on the west side of Old Capitol and other places are miniature ski slopes. This hazard should be eliminated by simple use of ice chippers.

We know that complete snow and ice removal is a problem for the University, but if it can't clear the sidewalks, at least put a little sand on the ice-walks.

Will 'Informed,' 'Uninformed' Be Future Political Tags?

By ERIC SEVAREID

They are few and faint, but we herald with joy the signs that the rebellion is beginning at last and that our common speech may not, after all, perish from rhetoric.

The other night, as our plane was bumping toward its gate at Idlewild after a choppy flight from Chicago, the stewardess did not announce, "on behalf of the crew and myself, it was a pleasure to have you aboard Flight 123, thank you for flying American, and we hope to see you again real soon."

INSTEAD, SHE SAID, "It was a pleasure having you aboard Flight 123, although those of you suffering from indigestion may have different sentiments."

It is possible, of course, that this was her last flight before quitting to marry a real estate operator, but we heard the thought that she was just sick and tired of canned, and therefore meaningless phrases. Somewhere in her subconscious she knew that petrification of the common language tends to petrify common sense.

The effect on this reporter was doubly electrifying because we had been reading on the flight a speech by Prof. Philip Hauser, the University of Chicago sociologist, who maintains that the continued use of the words "liberal" and "conservative" in terms of the national debate on the size and activities of Government in the realm of social problems constitutes an example of "cultural lag," and bears no relation to realities.

The reality is, he contends, that the fantastic increase in population densities in our urban areas, where most Americans now live, has produced a "social morphological revolution" on top of the industrial, commercial and scientific revolutions, and that to argue about "big Government" as good or bad per se is to confuse the 20th century with the 18th or, for that matter, with Ancient China. He contends that the America of the forefathers had more in common with the China of 2,500 years ago than it does with America today.

AND ALL WE are doing, if we are Goldwater Republicans, is to rewrite the ancient sage, Lao-tse, who said: "The state should be governed as we cook small fish, without much business." And, "The multiplication of prohibitive enactments increases the poverty of the people; the more display there is of legislation, the more thieves and robbers there are."

All we are doing, if we are ADA Democrats, is to re-write the almost equally ancient sage, Confucius, who said: "As men are constituted, the thing most important to them is Government." And, "To centralize wealth is to dispense the people; to distribute wealth is to collect the people."

Hauser says, "Despite the dominance of the political and economic principles of the founding fathers . . . the record shows that the functions of American Government on all levels have continuously expanded and multiplied in the course of our history, and that the expansion has been largely without regard to the complexity of the political party in power . . . the proliferation of governmental functions is evidence of the tremendous power and ability of social forces to ride roughshod over political philosophies and ideologies."

HAUSER ARGUES that the place has changed and so have the problems, not only in degree but in nature and that it's time we take our leave of both Lao-tse and Confucius. We can only do that, he thinks, by taking our leave of the "conservative-liberal" dichotomy and approaching the new problems from the non-ideological stance of "social engineering." The engineer types, very slowly coming into their own, are the city manager, the social worker, the criminologist, the "professional" business man and the "professional" politician. This is the "informed" approach, says Hauser, mixing what is appropriate from "liberalism" and what is appropriate from "conservatism."

Hauser endorses the remark of Walter Lippmann, that "every truly civilized and enlightened man is conservative and liberal, and progressive."

Granted all this, the future of political debate looks a little murky. We can imagine a candidate proudly campaigning as an "Informed," but not one proudly campaigning as an "Uninformed."

Unless, of course, the full truth of the statement by another, anonymous and modern Asiatic sage should be accepted by the populace at large. It was an Indonesian who said to the Reverend John A. Mackay: "If you are not fully confused, you are fully informed."

Communism Courses Need To Be Taught

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

I suspect that the questionnaire test given to groups of U.S. soldiers will show that the GI's do not know any more — or any less — about Communism than most other people.

Sen. John C. Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Subcommittee investigating the censoring of speeches by the military, suggests that service men spend several hours a week studying Communism and the U.S. system of Government.

Quite possibly some troop indoctrination on what the Soviet bloc is up to, and why it requires the United States to put its young men into the armed forces, is useful.

HOWEVER, THE NEED for thorough, factual education on Communist methods, purposes, and policies is not primarily a troop need; it is a national need.

I am talking about sound education dealing with Communism in depth and specifically contrasting its doctrines and objectives with the American system of freedom under law.

Such courses as these ought to be required in high schools and colleges throughout the country. If they were, there would be little need for additional troop indoctrination.

Nothing adequate is being done.

A SPECIAL COMMITTEE of the American Bar Association headed by Lewis F. Powell of Richmond, Va., formerly chairman of the Richmond School Board, finds that, with rare exceptions, courses on Communism in the schools are "conspicuously absent." It shows that the high school curriculum in the social sciences today is just about what it was 30 and 40 years ago.

The Bar Association committee is encouraging high schools and colleges to establish up-to-date courses on Communism with the goal of creating "more than an uncomfortable awareness that Communism threatens freedom and our country."

"It means," the Powell report stresses, "a great deal more than creating feelings of fear, antipathy, or hatred. The real need is for widespread knowledge in depth."

THE REPORT warns against trying to make education about Communism a form of counter-propaganda. On this point it says — and I think rightly:

"In America, the education process is closely and properly related to a principal objective in our society — freedom of the individual. This obviously includes freedom and capacity to think and make national choices. In light of these great traditions, the subject of Communism (like any other subject) should be taught factually, thoroughly, and objectively."

"This is indeed in our national interest as American students jealously reserve to themselves the right to make rational choices, and they would be the first to resent — or later be disillusioned by — teaching which departs from these traditional standards."

THIS IS WHY the content of courses and teaching of Communism should remain the responsibility of school authorities.

In implementing such a program the American Bar Association report wisely counsels that "great care be exercised to avoid — in fact and in appearance — all implications of domestic politics. As the subject of Communism tends to evoke extreme and emotional reactions special care must also be exercised to avoid extremist influence of both the right and the left, and to refrain from branding as 'pink' or 'Communist' differing or unpopular views."

The need for troop indoctrination is peripheral. The overriding need is for a clear, steady public awareness, which will not be lulled into apathy or misled by passing shifts in Soviet tactics, of what the Communists are trying to do to the free world.

We face many years, if not many decades, of continued conflict. To win the cold war we must know why we have to achieve sustained public support of the sacrifices and measures needed to win. The place to begin this education is in the schools and colleges.

Letters to the Editor —

'Naive Iowans'

To the Editor: I was interested in an editorial appearing in the Sioux Falls Argus-Leader and am sending it down to you.

The editorial: Not so impressive was a production last week at the University of Iowa in Iowa City.

It was called "a pause for peace" — a period during which the students and many faculty members made much of the fact that they were in favor of peace and against war.

The project, according to the Associated Press, was instigated by students and faculty members. Many students left classes to join in a mass meeting at which the advantages of peace were set forth. It was described as "a general strike for peace."

As a concluding feature, some 1,200 persons signed a telegram sent to President Kennedy advising him that these Iowans favored peace.

We doubt that the Iowa telegram came as a surprise to the President or to members of Congress who were contacted as well. Most certainly they knew that Iowans, in common with Americans, favor peace.

And surely the Iowans were not so naive that they assumed that either President Kennedy or the members of Congress advocated war.

So, it seems, the entire maneuver was an exercise in futility — a childish assumption that a mere expression against war would be of any value or serve any purpose.

Much more useful would be a conference devoted to the study of the ways and means of averting war. Entirely useless and quite stupid was the project at Iowa City.

It is heartening to know that there are "naive Iowans" who will stand up and support their ideals rather than sink into a state of complacency. I would be inclined to think that the Argus has completely ignored the real significance of that mass meeting in Iowa City.

It might be a good idea if all Americans would occasionally reaffirm their support and faith in our country and its democracy.

The Logical Choice

To the Editor:

As many of its leaders stated, the "Pause for Peace" brings up many questions pertinent to our times. Their goal is world peace, the end product being a free, prosperous, moral mankind.

No one argues with the goal, but the ways and means are debatable, and I disagree with the "Pause for Peace" approach. The articles and speeches rationalizing this approach have argued that our primary concern is the danger of war. The arguments are quite cogent, within their own select context.

THEIR RATIONALIZATIONS are fallacious and misleading, at best, as their arguments are based on the exclusion of the primary counter-argument — the danger of Communism. To justify this charge, I will put the "danger of war" and the "danger of Communism" arguments into their proper context.

In the free world there are basically two opinions on the world crisis. One is concerned with the horrors of nuclear war; the second with the danger of Communist world conquest and the associated evils, such as the annihilation of human freedom and thus Christian civilization.

Within the context of the first, people assert that our first goal must be disarmament, starting with a nuclear test ban and eventually total disarmament, except for a U.N. "peace force." These people are seldom concerned with the threat of Communism. Within this framework are many kinds of groups, including "Pause for Peace" enthusiasts. One of our problems is most people know so little about modern warfare, nuclear weapons, and fallout, that we may believe at least some of the propaganda.

Speeches, articles and conversations concerned with the threat of Communism are less numerous, probably because even less is known about Communism. They pass lightly over opposing arguments — the consequences of nuclear war — and usually hold that the danger of Communist conquest is already acute, and may soon become all but inevitable. Within this context, the first goal is resistance to Communism, usually carried through to partial or even total victory.

BOTH THESE ARGUMENTS contain much truth, and together they form a dilemma; either the danger of war or the danger of Communism; "peace" — or freedom. And like it or not, we are confronted with BOTH. Therefore we must grasp both horns of our dilemma or be impaled.

Does this mean that a prudent man will be against both war and Communism? Theoretically, yes — but in practice, no. In practice we must have one enemy. If war comes, the Communists will be the enemy. So every move that blunts, stops, or defeats Communism is also a blow against war.

We must choose an enemy. We cannot vacillate as in the past. The logical choice is Communism.

Merely Sizing 'Em Up

To the Editor:

I don't know whether your news account of Feb. 15 concerning my participation in a luncheon "to honor" Russel Kirk was the consequence of an excusable reporting error or a not so subtle use of Madison Avenue technique to imply endorsement of Kirk's ideas.

No such purpose was expressed in the letter of invitation.

Frankly, I would not want this sort of thing to discourage exploration of political and social opinions which may be personally unacceptable. It's stimulating to one's nervous system to read a long article eulogizing — R. Gross in the "Register" or to have lunch with Russel Kirk. But without being ungracious I want to make clear that like that fine American-traditionalist Samuel Clemens, I lunched neither to honor nor dishonor Kirk, but merely to "size 'em up."

Tickets for Pantomime By Cilli Wang Available

Tickets to the program by Cilli Wang, pantomimist, at SUI Wednesday evening are now available in the East Lobby of Iowa Memorial Union.

Miss Wang, an internationally famous actress, will appear Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Main Lounge of the Union. With the aid of some 500 pounds of equipment which she designed and made herself, she will present a program of pantomime, puppetry, and dancing.

Already a favorite in Europe, the Viennese performer has developed a large following in the United States since her 1957 performance at the Bucks Country Playhouse in Hope, Pa. She has since appeared on the George Gobel and Ed Sullivan television shows.

In Holland, her adopted country, Miss Wang was first seen in the Erika Mann show when she brought to life the little boy of the nursery rhymes who refused to eat his soup and slowly died as a result.

Next she developed her "Tyrotese," a parody of inanimate dancing which is still in her repertoire today. In the number, it is shown how dancing must not be done in the formless, joyless trudging along of a dull character.

A serious note underlies all Miss Wang's joking. She is a true clown whose fun seems superficial only at first encounter. As her clowning continues and we are able to analyze it a little, we find we are laughing not at Cilli Wang or her projected self in the characters she creates — we are laughing at ourselves, sometimes with a slight melancholy and sometimes with all our hearts. Yet there is neither mockery or disdain in her exaggerated presentation of men's deficiencies.

Expect Heavy Toll In German Floods

HAMBURG, Germany (UPI) — Ninety helicopters flew rescue missions around flood-devastated Hamburg Monday where a city official said privately that he feared the great port's streets may yield a total of 400-500 bodies when the waters finally recede.

A spokesman for the Hamburg City Council said that 208 bodies have been recovered so far in the Hamburg area alone and that more still were being found in the inundated streets, wrecked houses and cars.

The announcement brought the official death toll for all Germany to 256. The weekend of heavy rains driven by screaming winds, blizzards and alpine avalanches took at least 291 lives throughout Europe.

The Hamburg City Parliament in an emergency session proclaimed three days of official mourning for the flood victims. A mass funeral of all recovered bodies was scheduled for Wednesday.

Disaster workers dynamited two canal locks to let the water, littered with the floating bodies of dead animals and debris, flow down to the Elbe River and back out to the North Sea.

In Hamburg more than 100,000 persons were estimated still homeless.

In Vatican City, Pope John XXIII expressed his "deep sorrow" for the victims of Germany's worst winter storm. He said he would send financial aid for the survivors.

American, British and West German military helicopters fanned over the North Coast area, hauling food, clothing and medical supplies and bringing additional sandbags to shore up straining dikes.

Five members of German Army rescue teams died while trying to take some of them to safety Monday.

Road and train traffic south of the city was still cut off. Three days after hurricane-force winds set a devastating six-foot wave rolling through the city, communications to Hamburg's 2.8 million residents were uncertain.

To Offer Far East Course

Six courses on the Far East will be offered in an inter-departmental Summer Institute on the Far East beginning June 12 at SUI.

The eight-week institute is especially designed to help Iowa high school and college instructors improve their handling of the problems and materials on the Far East in their teaching, as well as aid college students in intercultural understanding, said Prof. Y. P. Mei, director of the institute.

Courses to be offered are Survey of the Far East, Survey of Japan, Survey of India and Pakistan, Great Books of China and India, Oriental Art, and Geography of Asia.

Iowa, 2 Neighbors Agree To Reciprocal Sales Tax

DES MOINES (UPI) — The terms of a tax agreement among Iowa, Illinois and Missouri to settle a use and sales tax controversy among the three states were announced Monday by Gov. Norman A. Erbe.

The informal agreement calls for merchants in each state to collect the use tax of the other states on sale of goods taken to and used in the other states.

The pact, the first of its kind in the nation, resulted from a meeting among tax officials of the three states to resolve the question of which taxes should be paid to merchants on Mississippi River towns.

The problem arose after Illinois officials began trying to collect the 3½ per cent Illinois use tax from Iowa and Missouri merchants. Illinois tax officials charged their residents were beating the tax by trading in Iowa and Missouri, both of which have 2 per cent taxes.

Eastern Iowa merchants appealed to Iowa officials to work out some kind of agreement, especially after Illinois authorities said they would make the tax collections retroactive to an earlier date.

The agreement was jointly announced by Erbe, Illinois Gov. Otto Kernor, and Missouri Gov. John M. Dalton.

Here is how the plan, which takes effect immediately, works:

When an Iowa merchant sells goods destined for use in Illinois, he will collect the 3½ per cent Illinois tax, rather than the Iowa 2 per cent levy. The Iowa merchant will be required to register with Illinois as one of that state's tax collectors, and submit the tax to Illinois.

The same rule will apply for merchants in Illinois and Missouri for goods purchased for use in another of the three states.

How is L.B.J. getting along with his boss?

In public, Lyndon Johnson and J. F. K. shower each other with praise. But in the past, there's been some friction between the V.P. and White House staffers. In this week's Post, you'll learn how big a part Johnson plays in White House decisions. And whether he still has his eye on the Presidency.

Compositions By SUIowans In 2 Concerts

Two public concerts of compositions by SUI students have been scheduled for Friday and March 9 at 8 p.m. in the North Music Hall, the Music Department has announced.

The concerts, which are held yearly by the Music Department, are arranged in conjunction with the annual Midwest Composers Symposium. Original compositions are chosen to be sent to the symposium.

SUI has participated in the event or the past 11 years. The symposium is held in rotation at each of four universities — Northwestern University, the University of Illinois, the University of Michigan and at SUI.

This year's symposium will be held at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor May 18-19. Each of the participating universities will give a chamber music concert of works composed and performed by its students.

There will also be an orchestral program containing at least one composition from each university.

The first of the programs at SUI will be presented on Feb. 23 and will include the following numbers: Fanfare for Brass Septet by William Bunch, G. Keokuk; Sonata for Clarinet and Piano by George Mellett, G. Iowa City; Quartet for Brass, by Richard du Bois, G. Cedar Rapids; Canzona for Brass by F. W. Teuber, G. Flint, Mich.; Sonata for Piano by Charles Dodge, A2, Ames; and Brass Quintet by Frederick Tillis, G. Marshall, Tex.

To Hold Public Meeting On Recreation Center

A public meeting will be held by the Iowa City Playground and Recreation Commission March 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the council chambers of the new Civic Center.

The meeting is to determine the extent of community-wide support for a fund drive to build a new recreation center. Kent Angerer, commission president, said the commission has tentative plans for a $500,000 to $600,000 building, but that support was voiced at a meeting held last Thursday for a million-dollar building.

The commission also has invited opinions of local organizations on the possibility of conducting a fund drive.

Hawkeyes Beat Spartans; Snap 5-Game Loss Streak

By JERRY ELSEA
Sports Editor

Iowa's basketball team broke a 5-game losing streak here Monday night defeating cold-shooting Michigan State, 59-51.

The Spartans, experiencing an obvious letdown after playing an inspired 80-72 losing effort against powerful Ohio State Saturday night, hit a miserable 27.9 per cent of their field goal attempts.

The Hawkeyes shot a lack-lustre 35.4 per cent and out-rebounded the visitors 40-35.

All-Big Ten center Don Nelson led all scorers with 21 points bringing his record career total to 1,421. Most of Nelson's seven field goals were lay-ups lofted over the out-reaching arms of two or three defenders.

Guard Matt Szykowny scored 14 points, grabbed 8 rebounds and proved valuable with a series of steals and quick passes setting up Iowa baskets.

Szykowny's backcourt partner, Joe Reddington, chipped in with 12 points and speared a number of Spartan passes.

In the opening minutes, the Hawkeyes threatened a run-away leading 9-2 after 3 minutes had passed. But Michigan State, at times employing a full-court press, forced Iowa into sloppy play and tied the game 30-30 shortly before the half.

Dick Shaw scored on a follow-up and Joe Novak hit a 20-foot jump shot to give the Hawks a 34-30 halftime lead.

Iowa's shooting game cooled off after intermission and 8:46 elapsed before Joe Reddington hit a jump shot to give Iowa a 37-36 lead.

Michigan State, at the time was experiencing a similar scoring famine.

Both teams continued to pepper the basket with little success until Nelson scored nine points in two minutes and Iowa was out of danger, 56-46 with 4:07 remaining.

The win brought Iowa's record to 10-10 overall and 4-6 in the conference. Michigan State is 7-12 and 2-9 in the Big Ten.

The Hawkeyes, who lost to Indiana 72-69 Saturday night, will face Michigan in the Field House this Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Reddington Leads the Pack

Iowa's Joe Reddington (44) brings the ball down court, pursued by Michigan State's Pete Gent (30). Trailing the play is Hawkeye Matt Szykowny (11). Reddington had a personal rooting section in Monday's game as 40 people from Orient, his home town, made the trip to see the junior guard score 12 points and play a good floor game.

Jimmy Rayl's 34 Leads Hoosiers Past Wolverines

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Jimmy Rayl scored 34 points Monday night and ran his free throw streak to 32 straight, a Big Ten record, to lead Indiana to an 86-77 basketball victory over Michigan.

Rayl, the Big Ten's second-ranking scorer, eclipsed the old conference mark of 29 consecutive free throws established by Wisconsin's Dick Miller in 1955-56.

Rayl hit 12 consecutive foul shots against Wisconsin last Monday night, and connected for 11 straight against Iowa Saturday. The slender 6-2 guard broke the league mark with 3:15 remaining in the first half Monday night when he bagged the first of a one-and-one award from the foul line.

Both teams battled on even terms through most of the first half and the Hoosiers pulled ahead to take a 43-38 halftime edge.

Michigan went ahead for the first time after the intermission when John Oosterbaan hit a 12-foot jump shot for a 57-56 lead with 13:37 left to play.

The score was tied at 57-all, 59-all and 61-all before Michigan took another brief lead at 62-61. But Rayl hit the first of two free throws and the Hoosiers went in front to stay.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Big Ruff, stellar coon dog from Cut and Shoot, Tex., now holds the record for most coons treed (133) in one year, officials here decided Monday. Irving Finster's near legendary hound, Old Shep, was former record-holder with 127, but in three less meets. The decision is expected to be appealed by Finster and Old Shep.

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The University of Cincinnati Monday night defeated Bradley 72-57, before 8,075 delirious fans to move into a tie with the Braves for the Missouri Valley Conference lead.

The victory kept alive the hopes of the defending national champions for an unprecedented fifth straight NCAA tourney berth. Both teams have identical 9-3 conference records with one league game each to play.

Ron Bonham, hitting a deadly jump shot, led the Bearcats on a 12-2 run that broke a 9-9 tie and sent Cincinnati in front to stay 21-11 after nine minutes of play. Bonham scored 16 of his game high 20 points in the half and six of them during the go-ahead streak.

This Program is designed to develop young men for careers in life insurance sales and sales management. It provides an initial training period of 3 months (including 3 weeks at a Home Office School) before the men move into full sales work.

Those trainees who are interested in and who are found qualified for management responsibility are assured of ample opportunity to move on to such work in either our field offices or in the Home Office after an initial period in sales.

The Connecticut Mutual is a 115-year-old company with 520,000 policyholder-members and five billion dollars of life insurance in force. Aggressive expansion plans provide unusual opportunities for the limited number of men accepted each year.

Iowa Wrestlers Lose To Rugged Oklahoma

Iowa's wrestling team lost a 17-10 dual meet here Saturday afternoon to the Oklahoma Sooners, in its only non-conference meet of the year. The Hawks were able to take just two wins and a draw in the final home appearance.

Sherwyn Thorson, 1960 NCAA heavyweight runnerup, made his debut a very successful one, pinning Sooner heavyweight Von Henry in 4:46. The two wrestled to 0-0 first period draw. Then Thorson went into a 2-0 lead by scoring on a reversal, just before pinning Henry.

The only other Iowa win was Tom Huff's 6-2 victory over Joe Chamberlain in the 137-pound match. Huff, who probably worked harder for his win than he has all season, now is unbeaten in six straight dual meets.

Hawkeye 123-pounder Francis McCann gained a 4-4 draw in his match with Wally Curtis. Steve Combs, Iowa 157-pounder, lost his first match in five starts, dropping a 3-1 decision to the Sooners' Skip Perillo, who has been National AAU 160-pound runnerup three times.

Sooner 130-pounder Mickey Martin, third in the NCAA last year, handed Iowa's Norman Parker his second loss of the year.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Kentucky got a 38-point performance from Cotton Nash Monday night and needed it to beat down a scrappy Vanderbilt, 87-80, and keep pace with Mississippi State in the Southeastern Conference race.

It was the best scoring show of the year for Kentucky's sensational sophomore, but the rest of the Wildcats were sluggish on defense and outfought under the boards much of the way.

Good Listening— Today on WSUI

By LARRY BARRETT
Written for The Daily Iowan

THE PROVOCATIVE TALK delivered at SUI on Feb. 9, by University of Illinois psychology Prof. Charles E. Osgood was recorded for broadcast this evening at 8 on WSUI. Called "The Human Side of Policy in a Nuclear Age," Osgood's talk was offered in support of his advocacy of a peaceful alternative to nuclear war: Gradual Reciprocity in the Reduction of Tension. The simple meaning of his program is that we can have, if we are bold enough to insist on it, some imaginative "initiatives" toward peace that do not depend, for their "credibility," on a spiraling arms race. Osgood has spent a part of the last several years in developing and promoting what has come to be called the "GRIT" plan which is designed to achieve an alternative other than "Red or dead." In a move unusual for Broadcasting House, listeners will be asked to mail some indication of their reactions to Osgood's plan.

WILLIAM WARFIELD, another recent guest on the SUI campus, was interviewed before his recital last Wednesday evening. He spoke easily and effectively, I thought, about a variety of musical matters. From first hand knowledge, I can recommend today's broadcast of the interview at 2 p.m.

"MAN AND MEANING in Contemporary Jewish Literature" is the title of Professor Schwarz's classroom broadcast at 11 a.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays. Today, e.g., is a Tuesday.

Raise Public School Aid $8 Billion—Administrators

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The Resolutions Committee of the American Association of School Administrators (AASA) proposed Monday that the federal Government pump an astronomical $8 billion more a year into the public schools.

This is 10 times the amount requested by President Kennedy, and is by far the largest program of federal aid to education ever suggested. The Administration's current proposal is for $2.5 billion, spread over three years.

The resolution will be debated by the full convention of the AASA Wednesday morning. If it is approved, as expected, it will become the basis for the Association's legislative and lobbying platform.

The resolution calls for direct federal grants to the states of at least $200 for each of the 40 million public school pupils enrolled from kindergarten through publicly supported junior colleges.

The states would use the money as they saw fit, for such as classroom construction and teacher salaries, with no federal strings attached. Current estimates are that the United States is spending slightly more than $14 billion this year on

U.S., Britain Plan Trans-Atlantic TV Net Via Satellite

LONDON (AP)—The first live television pictures from Britain to the United States may flash across the Atlantic this summer from a bleak but historic site on the rugged Cornish coast.

From a satellite to be launched May 22, the signals will be picked up by a newly erected ground station in Maize and the picture appear in American homes across the nation.

The feat already is being heralded as significant as Marconi's first radio signal across the Atlantic 61 years ago.

The British transmitting station is going up now at a cost of $12 million. It is only a mile from the site used by Marconi for his first faint transmissions.

From Britain, the first live picture reaching the United States is likely to be a saw tooth. That is the trade term for a signal passing from black to white on a test screen. Such capability tests are expected to continue for a couple of weeks before the new link tries its hand at a live subject — possibly a London street scene or an interview with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Rumors Link Liz And Leading Man

ROME (UPI)—Elizabeth Taylor, apparently recovered from a case of food poisoning, left a Rome hospital Monday on the arm of her smiling husband Eddie Fisher, while her leading man denied "uncontrolled rumors" of romance.

The 29-year-old film star was rushed to a hospital Saturday evening and given emergency treatment.

Richard Burton, who plays Marc Antony to her (Cleopatra) in the long-delayed movie "Cleopatra," issued a statement expressing regret that he had become "inadvertently involved" in "uncontrolled rumors."

Burton said they had been "close friends for over 12 years."

Prof Says: Save Your Rebel Money

Hold on to your Confederate money, the south may rise again—at least as far as cash is concerned.

So says Theodore Weissbuch, professor of English and a nationally known numismatist at SUI.

He said that because of collectors' interest, Confederate money has more value today than it did at the end of the Civil War. An example of this, he said, is the once-worthless Alabama $1,000 note, which is now valued at nearly its face value.

Weissbuch said the value of Confederate money during the war was lowered due to a large amount of counterfeiting and issuance of "shimplasters" or worthless money.

South led to the producing of local currency, he said. This was followed by counterfeiting, and eventually led to a total lack of confidence in Confederate bills.

This was one of the major factors in the South's downfall, he said.

Weissbuch explains that in anticipation of the war, hoarders in both the North and South had stored a large amount of gold and silver coins. As a result, both sides, and particularly the South, were hit by a wide variety of colorful paper money which was issued by state treasuries, banks, merchants, cities, businessmen, railroads, and turnpike companies. Records show that even barbers, bartenders and butchers were in the act.

Counterfeiters were perhaps the most important money producers, Weissbuch said. Their job was made easy by the fact that much of the legal tender was crudely made. Consequently, not a great deal of effort was put into making the phony product. The Confederates constantly tried to battle counterfeiters but to no avail.

As the amount of worthless money increased there was a drop of confidence among the people of the South in both their money and their cause. Weissbuch added that the Union, aware of the South's plight, armed invading soldiers with counterfeit bills. A flock of phony currency followed General Sherman's march to the sea.

Old Law Building To House Several SUI Departments

Several departments will soon have new homes in the old Law Building, now called North Hall, according to Ray Mossman, University business manager.

Departments moving into North Hall are Personnel, Architectural, Dormitory Administration, and Physical Plant and Maintenance.

The University maintenance crew is working to make space available for these departments, said Raymond Phillips, superintendent of physical plant and maintenance. Phillips said the Personnel Department should be able to move into the building in about six weeks.

Mossman said plans are being made to make the old law library into two floors, giving the building four floors instead of the present three. There are also plans to install an elevator in the building.

The conversion of the library into two floors will be a contract job, which will be awarded sometime in May, Mossman said. He hopes the job will be completed by the beginning of fall classes.

West Increases Flights Despite Russian MIGs

BERLIN (UPI) — The Western Allies increased military flights in the Berlin air corridors Monday in defiance of Russian MIG jet fighters zooming nearby and a new official Soviet warning of "unpleasant" things that could happen.

Regular commercial flights also continued although the Russians demanded sole use of the Berlin-Hamburg "north" corridor for three hours Monday. Passengers aboard a Pan American flight from Hamburg said they saw two MIGs flying about 500 yards away.

Forms Out For Campus Politicians

Application blanks for the all-campus election on March 28 are available for the Student Senate positions of president, vice president, and Town Men and Town Women representatives at the New Information Desk of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Student Senate presidential and vice presidential candidates will run on the same ticket this year, in contrast to previous years when the vice president was selected by the Senators.

Student Board of Publications applications are available at the New Information Desk and at Room 205, Communications Center.

All other organizations in the all-campus elections — Union Board, Associated Women Students and Women's Recreation Association — will set up slates within their respective organizations.

Candidates for senior class officers will be selected from applications sent out to individual housing units.

Application blanks must be returned to the New Information Desk by 4:30 p.m. March 5.

Fall from Seventh Story Kills Magazine Editor

CHICAGO (UPI) — George A. Brandenburg, Midwest editor of Editor & Publisher magazine, fell to his death from the seventh floor of an office building Monday.

Police said Brandenburg, 56, was identified from papers found in his pockets.

A hallway window on the seventh floor was found open, police said.

Brandenburg had been with Editor & Publisher since 1931. A native of Elgin, Ill., he began his newspaper career with the Elgin Daily Courier.

in what American officials called a "tough" note. It rejected allied protests against Soviet efforts to limit their use of the three 20-mile wide corridors linking West Berlin to the West. Text of the note was published Monday.

Western officials said other Russian MIGs were sighted Monday during the flights over East Germany. They said these MIGs made no attempt to buzz or otherwise harass either Allied military transports or commercial planes.

In Washington, State Department press spokesman Lincoln White said United States planes "will continue to fly at altitudes which best suit their own convenience" on flights to West Berlin. He said that the corridors were established "for access to Berlin and no legal hocus pocus can change that."

On the ground, West Berlin police reported nine shots were fired apparently at would-be refugees, behind buildings the Communists have walled up on Bernauer Strasse.

West Berlin police also reported that an American woman tourist was held for 10 hours by East German police Sunday and an East German woman was shot while trying to flee from East Berlin.

They identified the American as a Mrs. Frieda Paul, "of Wisconsin," and said she was held because she was carrying two picture postcards of the Berlin wall when she visited relatives in East Berlin.

Old Gold Fund Nets $75,000; Allocation Hiked

SUI alumni and friends gave $75,361.28 during 1961 to the Old Gold Development Fund (OGDF) to support research, student aids and other projects.

The year-end OGDF allocation of $50,324.46 was 50 per cent above a year ago. The fund also makes a mid-year allocation each July.

The increased support of OGDF was largely a result of special campaigns including "teletunds" (mass telephone solicitation) conducted last fall. In order to further expand the scope of OGDF, "teletunds" are now being organized in every Iowa county and major cities throughout the United States.

Organized in 1956, OGDF has allocated nearly a third of a million dollars for University projects during the past six years.

Allocated this year was $13,000 for scholarships for SUI students.

Several research projects are being supported by OGDF funds including primitive arts studies, archaeological excavations, pharmaceutical aerosol studies, a day-night efficiency study, and dental pulp capping and cavity preparation studies.

Public Hearings Tonight At City Council Meeting

Two public hearings, both on disposal of property, are scheduled for the Iowa City Council meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Civic Center.

One of the properties, at 31 Glendale Ct., is to be sold. The other hearing concerns the alley west of the Engineering Building, which SUI has asked Iowa City to vacate and sell to the University.

Pending ordinances, including one formally putting most city employees on a 42-hour week and one adopting a new electrical code, are due for the third and final meeting.

Stacking the Decks

Loading bridge boards in preparation for SUI's competition in the National Intercollegiate Duplicate Bridge Tournament are Richard L. Halverson, A2, Sioux Falls, S.D., and Jean Smith, B3, Des Moines, Ill. Students wanting to enter the contest scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Cafeteria may sign up at the hostess' office in the Union by Wednesday noon. A $2 entry fee may be paid on the competition nights. Contestants must provide their own partners.

GOP Presses for Showdown On Urban Affairs Department

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield Monday postponed a Senate vote on President Kennedy's urban affairs plan then quickly reversed himself when Republicans moved to force a showdown in the House first.

In the complicated parliamentary maneuvering with heavy political overtones, Mansfield first announced that plans to bring up Kennedy's proposed new department of urban affairs for a Senate vote by today had been put off.

An attempt to force a House vote Wednesday was immediately launched by Republicans. The House was expected to kill the proposed new department, for which Kennedy has said he would name a Negro secretary.

If the House acted first, Senate Republicans might not have to stand up and be counted on the politically sensitive issue.

Reds Halt Attacks In Laos for Talks

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Pro-Communist rebel forces apparently have suspended attacks on Nam Tha pending the outcome of renewed efforts by the rival Laotian princes to reach agreement on a coalition Government of "national unity" for this Southeast Asian kingdom, observers said Monday.

Reliable sources said there had been no fighting around the northwestern Laotian provincial capital since Friday, the day before "neutralist" Prince Souvanna Phouma arrived in the royal capital of Luang Prabang for audiences with King Savang Vathana and talks with right-wing Laotian leaders.

Souvanna said he expects to fly to the administrative capital of Vientiane Wednesday to reopen talks with Premier Prince Boun Oum.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former gambling czar Mickey Cohen was charged Monday with beating and kicking a Teamsters Union picket within 24 hours after he was released from county jail on $100,000 bail.

Cohen, now appealing to the U.S. Supreme Court his 15-year sentence for income tax evasion, faced two counts each of battery and disturbing the peace for purportedly ripping a picket sign from Thomas Spivey, 39, North Hollywood, last Saturday, and striking him.

Justice William O. Douglas had ordered Cohen be freed pending appeal of the income tax conviction.

With dependable dry cleaning, it's the little things that count . . . little things you can't see. For example, proper steam regulation to prevent fiber injury, proper neutralization and complete flushing of chemicals to eliminate fiber deterioration, and fiber classification to eliminate static electricity and soil retention.

Dependability also means careful alteration and fair dealing in adjustments. We at Paris know that a happy customer is one of our best customers. So for those extra "little things that count" . . .
