Rusk Clashes With Gromyko On Arms Ban

Demand for Guarantee Against Underground Tests Dropped by U.S.

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and Russia presented sweeping disarmament proposals Thursday that clashed head-on over the issue of controls to prevent cheating. Russia then rejected a new Anglo-American plan aimed at halting nuclear testing.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, appearing before the 17-nation disarmament conference, called for a speedy 30 per cent reduction in world arms and nuclear delivery vehicles and a global warning system to prevent war by surprise or accident.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko countered with a draft treaty for general and complete disarmament within four years, creation of an atom-free zone in central Europe and conclusion of a non-aggression pact between NATO and the Communist Warsaw pact countries.

The West presented a modified plan containing two major concessions: the United States dropped its long-standing demand for special arrangements to guarantee against underground tests and reduced the number of inspections it had been asking to police a nuclear test ban on Soviet territory.

American nuclear negotiator Arthur H. Bean, accompanied by British Minister of State Joseph Gødber, presented the revised proposal in hopes of breaking the nuclear test ban deadlock before the United States resumes atmospheric testing next month. Tsarapkin's answer was no.

The disarmament conference — with France absent — held its first working session at the Palais des Nations to hear Rusk and Gromyko.

The presentations were marked by a verbal clash between Gromyko and Rusk. Gromyko said the United States dealt a "painful blow" to the arms talks by announcing resumption of atmospheric testing.

Rusk, addressing the first working session of the 17-nation conference, outlined a four-point program he said could be taken "without delay" and called for an early agreement to end nuclear weapons tests.

The four points:
• "A 30 per cent cut in nuclear vehicles and major conventional armaments."
• "That further production of any fissionable material for nuclear weapons use be stopped."
• "Specific worldwide measures which will reduce the risk of war by accident, miscalculation, failure of communications or surprise attack to include advance notification of military movements, establishment of observation post."
• "An urgent search for mutually acceptable methods of guaranteeing the fulfillment of obligations for arms reduction for progress without sacrificing safety."

Kennedy Requests Congressional Help For the Consumer

Says Buyer Needs More Information

Maze of Confusion, Misinformation Plague Consumer, Says Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) President Kennedy put aside global problems for the moment Thursday and fired off a 4,500-word plea for the American consumer — the men, women and children he pictured as caught in a maze of misinformation and compounded confusion.

In a special message to Congress, Kennedy outlined a series of requests, recommendations and proposals designed, as he put it, to "alert every agency and branch of government to the needs of our consumers."

Among other things the President called for action to assure safe and effective drugs and cosmetics, installment contracts that show the true cost of credit, truth in package labels, and TV sets that will bring in many more channels.

"Consumer choice is influenced by mass advertising utilizing highly developed arts of persuasion," Kennedy said. "The consumer typically cannot know whether drug preparations meet minimum standards of safety, quality and efficiency. He usually does not know how much he pays for consumer credit; whether one prepared food has more nutritional value than another; whether the performance of a product will in fact meet his needs; or whether the 'large economy size' is really a bargain."

In addition to calling for passage of legislation, some of which already is before Congress, Kennedy announced he is taking these steps to correct what he called failures in governmental machinery:

1. Directing his Council of Economic Advisers to create a consumers' advisory council.

2. Instructing various federal agencies to designate special assistants on consumer problems.

Kennedy's proposals would add about $10 million to present budget programs, a figure he termed very modest in terms of the benefits that should accrue.

In the food, drug and cosmetic area, Kennedy urged legislation to assure better, safer and less expensive drugs. He said the more than 9,000 new drugs developed in the last 25 years have saved countless lives, but they also present hazards as well as benefits.

Kennedy said simple, common names should be assigned to drugs "to avoid confusion and to enable the purchaser to buy the quality drugs he actually needs at the lowest competitive price."

Sen. Estes Kefauver, (D-Tenn.), whose Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee has been conducting hearings on this subject, expressed disappointment that the President did not recommend compulsory licensing of drug patents.

Kefauver is author of a controversial bill that would shorten exclusive manufacturing rights on patented drugs from 17 to three years.

On TV sets, Kennedy endorsed legislation to require manufacturers to make sets that will receive the 70 UHF channels as well as the 12 VHF channels to which most sets now are limited.

Fane, Miller, Schantz Discuss Issues of Student Government

By NORM ROLLINS and JOAN ANDERSON Staff Writers

SUI's three Student Senate presidential candidates continued their campaigns Thursday night before a joint meeting of Inter-Fraternity Council and Panhellenic Association.

Quentin Miller, declaring he isn't the Greekiest of the Greeks, and Larry Fane, admitting he is an underdog, set the atmosphere for the meeting.

Fane, in reference to the other candidates, said neither a person running his campaign as a joke nor as a means of seeking personal satisfaction could make a good president.

"The candidate running his campaign for fun would sit back and laugh having won, while the candidate running for satisfaction would be satisfied once he had won," Fane said.

He cautioned voters to use discretion in choosing a leader. "We can't have gold-brickers," he said.

"I realize we are probably underdogs," Fane said, "but that is no excuse to make political deals."

Fane said that if he and Chuck Coulter, his vice-presidential running mate, are elected, they will be able to award offices on merit, not political promises.

"The new Senate will need enthusiasm, and progressive and rational leadership," Fane said. "We believe we have the right desires in mind for the Senate."

Coulter said, "No matter what your personal opinion of Student Body President John Niemyer is, you must admit that student government took some progressive steps, under him."

"The Senate was given a lift by Niemyer," Coulter said, "but it needs to be put on its own two feet. It shouldn't be laughed at or be left to fall."

Miller said he thinks Iowa City, "which doesn't do much for SUI, might like to kick in a big old house or two for the use of recipients of Project AID scholarships."

Miller suggested that community groups could supply furniture, and maintenance. He said the mayor and councilmen seem to like the idea. "The idea is," Miller said, "to extend the benefits of Project AID as far as possible."

Miller said Fane's plank concerning a married students' organization, was originated by his running mate, Boyd Critz, in a resolution to the Senate.

Miller said, "Fane probably felt that he could safely use the idea, since it soon sank into obscurity through Niemyer's neglect."

"Incidentally," Miller continued, "I can assure you that this would not sink into obscurity under Miller and Critz."

One of Mark Schantz's suggestions is to set up an all-University president's council consisting of the dean's council consisting of the heads of all campus organizations and to include President Virgil Hancher. Miller referred to this as a "colossal shin-dig" and suggested that the members would not have enough problems in common to make the group feasible.

Schantz said all housing units and University organizations should work together, and with his background, coupled with Larry Seufferer, his running mate, mutual goals can be accomplished.

Schantz's goal for Project AID is $25,000 by 1963. He said concerts, industry, auctions, variety shows and other organizations can all help to attain this goal.

"The auction failed because of lack of Greek support," Schantz said, "and so more important support must be given this important project."

Schantz also suggested an all-University president's council to enable various organization presidents to discuss student problems.

"Communication has been lacking between the Administration and the student body," Schantz said, "and this council would give the Administration an opportunity to explain its stand on campus issues. This would also give the students a chance to present their side."

Businessmen Split Over Summer Savings Time

By ERIC ZOECKLER Staff Writer

A slight majority of Iowa City businessmen are not in favor of opening their stores one hour earlier than usual during the summer, a Daily Iowan survey indicates.

The survey was taken to measure reaction to a resolution proposed by Iowa City City Councilwoman Thelma Lewis asking that stores with standard 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. hours switch to an 8 to 4 operation if the city remains on standard time this summer as expected.

Theory behind the measure is that earlier hours would give retailer and employes an extra "light" hour and would provide cooler shopping hours for customers. The plan would also act as an alternative for daylight saving time, which has been in operation the last two years.

Mrs. Lewis first introduced the resolution at the Feb. 15 meeting of the City Council, but it failed to receive a second. Mrs. Lewis said later she would consider the measure again if the daylight issue was defeated or became stalemated.

Of the businesses polled, the Iowan received 67 replies. The votes were:

In favor: 27
Not in favor: 34
No opinion: 6

Those not in favor of the plan represent only 50.8 per cent of those polled, while 41.9 per cent voted affirmative. Most of the nine per cent voicing no opinion said they would go along with the wishes of the majority.

Each businessman was given an opportunity to express the reason behind his vote. Many were very outspoken, both pro and con.

One said, "Our office has opened from 8 a.m. and closed at 5 p.m. for 30 years, and that's the way we want to keep it."

A member of the opposition asserted: "We are open to serve the public, not ourselves."

"Shoppers usually don't begin drifting in until 10 a.m. as it is now, so I doubt that we would see anyone at 8," said another "no" voter.

One affirmative voter, when asked why he wanted the new hours, answered: "Play golf."

"It's a wonderful idea," answered another. "I don't want to give the sun an extra hour to burn up my grass, but we shouldn't fool around with God's time (by instituting daylight saving time)."

Another said he approved of the plan, because the working man "sees his family for only a short time and can not enjoy the growth of his children. This (proposal) would enable him to do much more."

Final tally indicated the small businesses favor the summertime hours, whereas larger firms voted in a block against it.

Businesses with irregular hours, such as taverns, restaurants and movie theatres were not included in the survey.

Plane Carrying U.S. Troops Presumed Down in Pacific

GUAM (Friday) (UPI) — A Flying Tiger Line Constellation with 107 persons aboard including 93 U.S. Army troops and three South Vietnamese military men was long overdue today on a night flight from Guam to Manila and was presumed down at sea.

The crew of 11 included four women.

A massive air and surface search from U.S. bases throughout the Western Pacific was organized immediately. Planes flew from as far away as Naha, Okinawa.

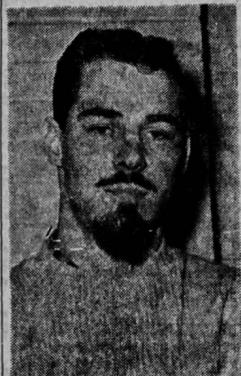

The four-engine propeller driven "Super H" Constellation vanished only a little more than an hour after leaving Guam. The 1,600-mile flight normally takes the Constellation about six hours.

Final destination of the troops was not immediately announced.

The overseas flight originated at Travis Air Force Base near San Francisco at 9:56 p.m. (PST) Tuesday. The plane made stops at Honolulu, Wake and Guam.

Weather in the Guam area was reportedly fairly good. There had been no rain in the 24 hours preceding the plane's disappearance. There was an overcast to 20,000 feet with some clouds above that.

The last report from the plane, commanded by Capt. Gregory Thomas, 48, Red Bank, N.J., said it was flying at 18,000 feet and was on course and on time. He

Personality Profile—

Miller Hits 'Machine Element' In Senate Presidency Race

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of three personality profiles of the candidates for student body president.)

By NORM ROLLINS Staff Writer

Quentin Miller, candidate for president of the student body, says he expects the campaign to be a difficult one because of what he calls a "machine element" in student politics.

"I'm not a protest candidate," Miller said, "but the machine element is one of about half a dozen things that makes me seek the office of president."

"I don't think student government should be dominated by the button-down mind, nor do I think a position of this importance should be handed to anyone on a silver platter."

Miller, a member of Alpha Tau Omega social fraternity, expects the campaign to be a difficult battle because he is opposed by several political elements. "I am opposed by organizations of proven efficiency in political matters. I have never been identified with the Greek cause, nor with the Independent cause."

Miller said he will operate his campaign on the assumption there is essentially no divergence of interests between the Greeks and Independents.

Miller said his administration would be run on the same basis. "We are, I believe, witnessing the decline of a fictitious facalism created by student politicians playing on the excitability of some of our students.

"The welfare of the University and of the majority of the student body," Miller said, "can never be compromised by factional differences. The carefully formulated dictates of mature opinion must always be the guide to effective student government."

Convinced that a common interest in the welfare of the student body will unify the various campus factions, Miller said common interest must never be forgotten.

"It's important to unify the great variety of people and interests at SUI," Miller said, "not forgetting that we are bound by a common interest in the welfare and eminence of this great campus."

"This is the attitude that must prevail in student government. Our endeavors and goals must be in line with this purpose."

Miller, serving as chairman of the Senate faculty poll committee, said he is beginning to question the value of the Senate poll on faculty competence.

"This poll will cost at least $600. The Senate can spend the money for something more worthwhile."

"The idea of this poll is to publish the results for everyone."

Eeeek!

You Aren't Drunk, That WAS a Green Mouse!

SUI law students probably thought they were having hallucinations Thursday, but they can rest assured that they weren't: Those WERE green mice!

The barristers quickly formed a posse to round up the hard, shortly after the critters had been released in the new Law Building by celebrating engineering students early Wednesday.

Our informant (who appeared quite sober) said he thought the lawyers were pretty successful in catching them. But he said they were so busy with the chase that they didn't have time to make an accurate count of them. He swore the mice had been dyed "a real pretty shade of green — but I doubt if they were Irish."

He said he thought most of them were turned outside, with one possible exception:

It was rumored that one of the tiny ambassadors of the engineers' Mecca Week was taken to a local pub and indulged in green beer.

At last report, he was roaring drunk. Keep your cats inside, boys!

Schedule Lecture By Father Henry

Father Paul Henry, S.J., European scholar, will present an SUI Humanities Society Lecture Monday at 8 p.m. in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol. His subject will be "The Origin of the Idea of Creation."

A professor at the Institut Catholique de Paris, Father Henry is a visiting professor in SUI's Philosophy Department and the School of Religion for three weeks. The Humanities Society Lecture will be his only public talk while staying here.

Father Henry taught at SUI during the 1956 spring semester and gave a Humanities Society Lecture in March of that year.

A native of Belgium, Father Henry is known to scholars as the world authority on the "Text" of Plotinus, a third century, A.D., philosopher considered the founder of Neo-Platonism, one of the chief strands in Western philosophy history.

Let's Break It Up — With a Week Vacation

Spring is supposed to be a gay time. With balmy breezes playing through the budding branches, and a warm sun to thaw winter-hardened moodiness, it's supposed to be a time for rejuvenation from the rigors of winter. And, continual ice and snow and frigid slashing winds aren't the only rigors that build up frustrations to the bursting point.

Take a student, for instance. Not only has he endured the chilling gray of that long wintry stretch, he has also had to plow through a mid-winter pile of drifts known as finals. There's still really no break then, for he immediately must trudge on once more into another semester's classes.

So, by the time spring begins to brighten the drab surroundings, he has already sloughed through at least six months of books, classes, tests. . . .

Well, like we said before, spring's supposed to be a gay time. It's supposed to be a time to rebuild your energies. What's needed is some kind of a break to let students do just that. But, for SU-Iowans, it looks as if there is no relief in sight.

Instead, it appears the misery is to be compounded this year. The weatherman, in one of his extended forecasts, says the winter is not quite ready to leave yet. So, that has to be added to facing another three months straight of bookwork.

Oh, there will be a break all right — a four-day weekend at Easter — but that's more of a crack than a break.

Not much can be done about the weather, and it's too late now to attempt to throw off this year's University schedule. So, it seems students will just have to grind it out for the rest of the semester.

But what about next year and the years after? Something can be done about that, and such action should be started right now. The University should arrange its future annual schedules to allow for a spring semester vacation in much the same way it allows for a Christmas vacation during the fall semester.

Spring vacation needs not be as long as Christmas vacation. With only a little more than two months of school remaining after Easter, it's quite different from the five months left after the holiday season. A week-long vacation would be sufficient.

Where could this extra week be picked up? The most logical place is at the beginning of the school year.

Registration and classes could be started one week earlier. Take this year, for instance. Registration didn't start at SU until Sept. 18, while nearly every other school in the state and in the Big Ten had started a week earlier. A one-week vacation in the spring would more than compensate for that early start in the fall.

Most of the benefits of such a vacation have already been voiced in Letters to the Editor on this page in the past. It seems unnecessary to expand upon the fact that it would give students a much better chance to make contacts for summer jobs. Or that it would give some much-needed extra time to polish up term papers. Or that it would be a very welcome breather before starting another round of finals.

Aside from all these, it's just as important to mingle a little gaiety with the seriousness of a college education. Just as spring breaks up the somber monotony of winter, so too can a week of relaxation break up the routine of a semester's studying. A week-long spring vacation at Easter would be the perfect springboard for a dazzling finish in the final lap of school.

Newsroom Sensationalism (A Farce in One Act)

By PHIL CURRIE

(Scene: The newsroom. Three reporters are huddled around the short-wave radio set — newly installed. As the curtain rises, the first reporter, wearing earphones connected to the radio, speaks.)

First reporter: Quiet. I think I've picked up Radio Moscow.

Second reporter: Whadda they saying? Whadda they saying?

First reporter: I don't know. It all sounds like Greek derivative to me.

Second reporter: Take it down anyway. We gotta have an on the spot report — no in-betweens, no wire news — just straight on the spot report. Take it down.

First reporter: It's fading out again. Now I've got London.

Second reporter: It's the BBC, huh? Good. Take it down!

First reporter: No, not the BBC. It's that commercial network. All we can get is those damn Lone Ranger re-runs.

Second reporter: The Lone Ranger is big over there, huh?

First reporter: (Listening more intently to the radio) Wait a minute. I've got something!

Second reporter: Where? Hong Kong? Viet Nam? Paris? Iceland? Old Capitol?

First reporter: Who the hell is Lonesome Gus?

Second reporter: Lonesome Gus?

Third reporter: (Grabbing for the earphones) Lonesome Gus's Old Time Hits, Little Rock, Ark. It's a good show.

Second reporter: (Pushing third reporter away) Come on. Come on. We gotta get foreign news.

First reporter: All right, all right. I've got something else. It's a Moscow station again.

Second reporter: What's it saying?

First reporter: (Listening even more intently) I don't know — I think it's their jamming network.

Second reporter: Can't you get anything on that radio?

First reporter: (Standing and looking very irate) Well, if I spoke French, I could cover France. If I spoke German, we'd have Germany. If I spoke Icelandic, we could report about Iceland. But all I speak is U.S. of A. (Now shouting) BESIDES I CAN'T HEAR WITH ALL THAT NOISE.

Third reporter: (Also shouting) What is that noise, anyway?

Second reporter: It's those guys

(The scene shifts to the editorial corner where three men are gathered around a table made of wild oat husks. The corner is dark and smoke filled. The men, smoking big, black Cuban Crooks, are all sinister looking. The only sign of brilliance in the otherwise drab corner is a big YELLOW newspaper on the wall and a semi-lit portrait of William Randolph Hearst, Senior.) As the lights come up again, a man, dressed in a black cloak, stands:

First man: Heh, heh, heh. That was a good headline we had the other day on how the "Soviets May Annihilate the U.S. — Soon." Our eight-hour planning session, coupled with the cooperation of the sensational UPI lead at our request, made it possible to up our newsstand circulation by three. That writer who purposely created the sensational headline was really thinking right down the old party line.

Second man: Yah. It's going to be hard to follow that issue.

Third man: That was a good issue. Even some of the smaller stories really had that SENSATIONAL quality. Did you notice the headline: "10-inch Snow Batters Iowa." R-a-c-y! We could have used "Falls" on Iowa, or "Drifts" on Iowa, but instead we chose the word "Batters." That's good SENSATIONALISM!

Second man: Yah. It's going to be hard to follow that issue.

STILL ANOTHER EXAMPLE of our student government's "representative" and "fair" legislation: Our Senate Wednesday also defeated a proposal giving Town Men five representatives. They now have four. Led by such "power bloc leaders" as Ron Andersen, the Senate has once again successfully denied fair and equitable representation to the largest constituency on this campus.

And — bear with me — just one more comment on student government. One of the platforms offered in the great campaign is one of the funniest — funny because it is so ridiculous — platforms ever. They admit that student government here is a farce. I can't help but wonder if it is not candidates of this type who perpetuate the farce.

THOUGH DON NELSON has failed to impress the "sports experts of America" as a first team All-American, there are still some of us who think he is. Though we try hard to hide the sour grapes, we must wonder what it takes to be an "All-American."

More snow and more blow — referring, of course to the multitude of campus politicians. They give us words of wit and wisdom, offer positive programs for the betterment of all studentkind, blast this and praise that, make promises, and hint threats. Like I said — a lot of blow. For what, truly, is student government at SU? A challenge to the candidates: Show us that our government means something. Make it mean something.

COMMENTS ON THE WORLD SCENE: Still another summit conference. (How many since Yalta?) I think they just play a game of cards or roll dice, and the loser gets to break up the conference. And Nixon says he almost quit in 1952. I'm glad he didn't or the Republicans might still be in power.

HATFIELD

People often criticize the Administration of this University for being backward, provincial, stodgy, motherly, etc. May I suggest that this description is also aptly applied to the students — or at least our "representative" body, the Student Senate. Case in point: At its last meeting, the Senate defeated a resolution which would ask that the privilege of living in unapproved housing be given to juniors and seniors. Yes, these are our representatives. After all, even a college upperclassman still needs the firm and steady guiding hand of the University, the Senate, and some landlord who couldn't care less.

Headline Draws 'Irresponsible' Charge

To the Editor:

I must protest against the palpable distortion apparent in the headline "Believes Soviets May Annihilate U.S. — Soon," which appears at the top of the front page of Tuesday's Daily Iowan. If the story is read carefully, it can be seen that Air Minister Julian Amery, whose address Monday night to the House of Commons is the topic of the story, did not say that the Soviet Union might annihilate the United States as soon as it got around to it, which is the impression given by the headline.

Amery said that he believed that the "Soviet Union quite soon WILL BE ABLE to annihilate the United States." But he made it clear that the Soviet Union "have no such capability at present."

There is a significant difference between asserting that the Soviet Union in the near future will probably possess the CAPACITY to annihilate the United States, and asserting that they soon "may," which gives the impression that it is fairly likely to occur. The word "may" usually is taken to imply permission or likelihood. "Can" would have been a better choice for the head.

This headline, which gives an impression not warranted by the news story below it, seems to me to be a prime example of irresponsible and careless journalism on the part of The Daily Iowan.

Need Choregi Review

To the Editor:

Last Sunday in the main gallery of the Art building, a new group on the campus called Choregi sponsored Peter Arnott's production of Medea. This production was the finest thing that I have seen this year. In his reading, Prof. Arnott attained the highest excellence in a dramatic production in the entire play in one unified sweeping action. He made the characters come to life. He portrayed a vast range in emotion from such diverse poles as kindness and hate. His use of the marionettes centered my attention on the thing itself.

Why then, I ask, is there no review of this event? It is true that this production appeals to a smaller audience than other things do. But this segment of the community is equally as important and vital as the other segments. It seems to me, that the serious tragedy lies not within the play itself but in the contest between the SU Queen Candidates and Medea.

Poorly Chosen Picture

To the Editor:

The combination of photograph and headline of the front page report of the visit of Mrs. John F. Kennedy to the Ghandi shrine appearing in the March 13 issue of The Iowan is an example of extremely poor taste. I feel that an explanation and apology is in order, especially for the benefit of Indian students on this campus who might otherwise be left with the impression that Mrs. Kennedy displayed a very irreverent attitude at the shrine.

'Different View' of the Burge Parking Problem

To the Editor:

Perhaps this should appear not only once but several times among your Letters to the Editor. We hope that the residents of Burge Hall would learn that the two driveways directly across from the entrance to Burge are private property of tax paying citizens and are not for the use of dormitory parking.

Time after time, since the opening of Burge, these driveways have been blocked so the owners and their tenants and friends cannot use them. With the more than 2,000 residents of Burge and Currier Hall, and almost without any parking at all does present a problem, but we hope before the eight-story addition to Burge Hall is built that the students are furnished some place to park their cars.

McNamara Says B70s Wouldn't Help Much

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara told his powerful congressional critics Thursday that the B70 bomber would make no significant contribution to U.S. airpower by the time it could be produced.

By then, he said, U.S. missiles and other bombers could practically destroy enemy targets — even after a nuclear attack — and any new B70's would not make much difference, even if it could be produced.

At the same time, McNamara disclosed he had made what appeared to be a concession to chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the Armed Services Committee and other advocates of the controversial 2,000-mile-an-hour bomber.

He said he had ordered the Air Force to submit within four to six weeks a $50 million research program to develop intricate radar and data processing equipment needed to convert the B70 concept into an RS70 combination strike-reconnaissance aircraft.

The Air Force has dropped its original concept of using the B70 solely as a bomber. It has renamed it the RS70 and sees it roaming enemy territory at more than 70,000 feet to check damage by missiles, spot new targets and loose missiles against them.

McNamara issued a statement and held a news conference to give his reasons for opposing Vinson's request that Congress pass legislation "ordering" the Administration to spend $320 million more on the B70 than it wants.

Emphasizing the strength of U.S. missile and bomber forces by 1967 — the earliest the B70 could be produced in force — McNamara said it was clear "that the RS70 program . . . would not add significantly to our strategic retaliatory capability."

The addition of 150 RS70's at a cost of $10 billion "would not appreciably change this result," he said.

McNamara foresaw a possible role for such a plane if the nation became involved in a conflict that did not call for an all-out nuclear counter attack.

He said there might be a place for 2,000-mile-an-hour reconnaissance plane that could unleash airborne missiles against selected targets. But even then, he thought that present bombers — the B52 and B58 — could do almost as well.

However, he said he had ordered the Air Force study to determine if the electronic devices necessary for such a plane can be developed.

Kennedy Signs Bill To Train Unemployed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Thursday signed the manpower training bill he had given top domestic priority and hailed it as perhaps the most important full-employment legislation in 16 years.

The new law, enacted only two days ago by Congress, authorized a three-year, $435-million program designed to take up to one million Americans off relief rolls by training them for new jobs.

Unemployed workers, forced into idleness by automation or disappearing markets, will be given free vocational schooling or on-the-job training for as much as a year. Those who must leave home to attend courses could get up to $5 a day for expenses.

Kennedy also appealed to Congress for passage of all the other measures he has recommended "for achieving a high and stable level of employment." The manpower training bill was the No. 1 domestic item in the President's January State of the Union Message.

Secretary Abraham A. Ribicoff of the Health, Education and Welfare Department, which will help administer the program, said it would be a major weapon against unemployment and the dependency of some Americans on relief checks.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Administration is hoping Congress will get tougher with some classes of taxpayers than its work on a revenue revision bill so far indicates, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon said Thursday.

As the bill now stands, it would give business tax concessions estimated at $1.8 billion to spur plant modernization, and would recoup part of the revenue by a variety of tightening changes.

But the gap during the first year of operation is estimated at from $60 million to more than $1 billion. And during that year — beginning next July 1 — President Kennedy had forecast a closely balanced budget.

Dillon, appearing before the House Ways and Means Committee on the Administration trade program, wouldn't agree with a Republican questioner, that the bill as approved by the committee for House action is a "budget buster" to the extent of at least $1 billion.

But he said, "I would hope there will be some additional revenue before Congress finishes with it — some changes made."

Apparently the only chance of such changes would be in the Senate, where some members are expected to try to include repeal of the special exclusion and tax credit for dividend income written into the tax laws during President Dwight D. Eisenhower's Administration.

Kennedy advocated such repeal and estimated it would bring in $450 million a year. The Ways and Means Committee took no action on this item.

Except for the special treatment of dividends, the committee went at least part way with most of Kennedy's revenue-raising recommendations. But in almost every case it scaled down the changes that would have brought in more funds.

Viet Cong Guerrillas Raid Civil Guard Post, Kill 23

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Communist guerrillas Thursday ambushed a South Vietnamese civil guard company in a savage attack with mines and small arms, killing 23 Government troops.

Another 40 guardsmen were missing and several were wounded. The ambush took place in "zone D," the large Communist-controlled area 40 miles north of Saigon and only five miles from an American-South Vietnamese airfield.

It marked the third time in little more than two weeks that a civil guard company had been virtually wiped out by the Viet Cong guerrillas. But a Government communique issued Thursday said Government forces scored a telling strike against the Communists in another area.

It reported 63 Viet Cong rebels were killed in the Dam Doi district, about 125 miles southwest of Saigon, in a mopping up operation that began last Thursday.

Government troops also destroyed four Viet Cong buildings, eight boats, two arms plants, one ammunition dump and one food warehouse, and seized a large quantity of arms, the communique said.

An estimated 200 rebels prepared Thursday's ambush, operating out of hideouts in the 2,600-square mile zone where they have comparative freedom of movement.

After the attack, the rebels slipped back into the jungle, taking along most of the convoy's American-supplied arms.

OAS Kills 6, Gang-Style

AGIERS (UPI) — A Secret Army Organization (OAS) execution squad lined up six social workers against a wall Thursday and killed them with a burst of 100 machine-gun bullets.

Earlier, OAS commandos cruising in a car pulled up to a bus stop and killed 10 Moslems waiting to go to work. A witness said a man leaped out of a car, sprayed the crowd at waist-level with a sub-machinegun.

These and other assassinations apparently aimed at provoking a toll of 28 dead and 30 wounded. The toll since the OAS terror campaign began Jan. 1 rose to 1,673 dead and 3,819 wounded.

The six executed by the OAS commandos were directors of the country's social centers service which provides night schools and medical and other aid for Moslems. Three of them were Europeans and three were Moslems.

Witnesses said six OAS men dressed in French Army uniforms burst into a meeting of 19 directors of the service by shooting the lock off a door at its headquarters.

Police said the six men were inspectors of the Algiers Academy. One was Mouloud Feraoun, well-known Algerian literary prize winner and friend of the late Albert Camus. The gunmen's shots wounded him and he died later in a hospital.

Name Des Moines Man To Conservation Post

DES MOINES (UPI) — Arden H. Mead, 52, Des Moines, Thursday was named chief of administration for the Iowa Conservation Commission as Director Glenn Powers announced a series of personnel changes carrying out a reorganization program.

Mead, a former manager of a wholesale farm equipment firm here and at Omaha, Neb., will be paid $7,800 a year. He began work with the commission March 9, taking over the duties handled in recent months by Lester F. Faber, Urbandale, who has been acting chief of administration.

Faber was assistant director until an administrative shakeup last year when that position and the job of personnel director were abolished.

Urges Vote on Brazil's Government

BRASILIA (UPI) — President Joao Goulart urged Congress Thursday to hold a national referendum on whether to continue Brazil's parliamentary form of Government instituted only last year.

Goulart referred to the political crisis of last August when Congress amended the constitution to substitute the parliamentary for the presidential form of Government. The substitution was intended to allay the opposition of the military to Goulart's succession to the presidency after the surprise resignation of President Janio Quadros.

Several Prospects Among Freshman Hawkeye Cagers

By GARY SPURGEON
Staff Writer

Intense desire, hustle, and aggressiveness are the three most important assets that Iowa's freshman basketball team has to offer when it moves up to the varsity level next winter.

This is the notion advanced by Coach Sharm Scheurman and his staff as they wind up the current season and begin to make plans for next year's team. This includes, among other things, finding a replacement for the fabulous Don Nelson.

There appears to be no freshman who will be able to step in and fill Nelson's shoes, but the staff is optimistic about the quality of this year's freshman squad.

Scheurman said, "Their intense desire is their biggest quality and we feel they will be a valuable help to the varsity. Just how much the boys improve will play a bearing on how they will help us. We feel that some of these boys are going to play basketball here at Iowa."

Freshman coach Dick Schultz indicated that the team has the quality of last year's freshman team although it is not as large in number. He pointed out that the team turned in some good performances in this season's freshman games against some stiff competition.

Scheurman concurred with his assistant when he stated, "The freshmen gave our second team quite a run for the money anytime we scrimmaged and at various times four or five boys stood out."

The Hawkeye head man was referring to the top five freshmen prospects. Schultz listed the top five as Terry Lyons, Mike Denoma,

OLD SHEP IMMORTALIZED

Don Faes, Fred Riddle, and Jim Rodgers.

Schultz said, "Rodgers is the best all-around player at this stage of development. He is a good offensive and defensive ballplayer for his size."

Riddle, who occupies the guard spot opposite Rodgers, is considered a varsity prospect for next season. Schultz said Riddle was handicapped because he was out for football and, consequently, reported for basketball practice late. However, Riddle has come on real strong and has developed into a real good outside shooter.

Rodgers and Riddle, both 6-3, are considered by many as the top guard prospects to enter Iowa in the last few years. Concerning this point, Schultz commented, "Rodgers and Riddle are intelligent boys and have good basketball sense. Anyone who has seen them play would have to concede that they have very good potential. It, of course, depends on how well they progress next year."

The top center prospect to emerge from the team is Don Faes. The Herman, Missouri boy is the tallest basketballer in Iowa history. He stands an even seven feet. Schultz said that the staff knew Faes was two years from being a top flight prospect when they recruited him, but that he had improved defensively and on his inside moves.

The forward positions were held held down by Terry Lyons and Mike Denoma. Lyons, a former Clinton star, is considered by Schultz as a good defensive player. Schultz also said, "We feel his shooting improved more than average."

Denoma stands 6-6 and is from Rock Island, Illinois — the home of Scheurman and Nelson. "Whatever he lacks in natural ability, he makes up for in aggressiveness," said Schultz.

Outside the first five, Bob Gehard and Jim McAndrews were mentioned by Schultz. He said, "They have contributed a lot to the team through aggressiveness." He added that McAndrews could be a top prospect if he added a little weight and that Gehard had a problem because of his height. He stands only 6-2.

Other squad members who might become varsity performers are Jerry Davidson, Bernie Witry, Gene Pauley, and Roger Lawson. Schultz cautioned against getting excited over the help the freshmen will give the varsity. "We feel that we shouldn't get too encouraged with the freshmen. They have to prove themselves in their sophomore and junior years," he said.

Holzaepfel Plans 'Iowa Open' Gym Meet for April

A gymnastics meet designated as the "Iowa Open" has been scheduled at SUI April 14 by Coach Dick Holzaepfel for the purpose of promoting the sport.

The affair will welcome college or high school gymnasts from anywhere, Coach Holzaepfel said, since the meet is not limited to residents of Iowa.

Competition will be held in two sections. No team championships will be decided, since the competition is solely on an individual basis.

High school students will compete in the morning of April 14, with collegians or other older athletes in action during the afternoon.

These are the events to be contested: free exercise, trampoline, side horse, horizontal bar, parallel bars, still rings and tumbling. These are the standard events of the intercollegiate gymnastics meets.

In order to determine the amount of interest in such a meet, Coach Holzaepfel asks that coaches or athletes write or call him. He should be addressed as follows: Coach Dick Holzaepfel, Department of Athletics, Field House, Iowa City, Iowa. His office phone number is 338-0511, Ext. 2355.

FISH & CHIPS
BAKED FISH FILLETS à la RED DOT

AN ORIGINAL RED DOT POTATO CHIP "FISH & CHIPS" RECIPE — By Esther Easton

1/2 cup melted butter or margarine
1/2 teaspoon herbs (rosemary, chervil or tarragon), optional
6 fresh or defrosted frozen fish fillets (3 to 6 ounces each)
5 1/4 cups whole potato chips crushed to make 1 1/2 cups finely crushed potato chips

Mix together butter and herbs. Arrange fillets, skin side up, on shallow baking pan. Brush with butter mixture, sprinkle generously with crushed chips; turn and repeat process. Drizzle remaining butter over chips. Bake in lower half of hot oven (400°F.) until tender, about 20 minutes. Serve plain with Burgundy sauce or creamed vegetable, cheese, caper, creole or tartar sauce, as desired. Yield: 4 generous servings.

Why you should open a window before you close the door of a Volkswagen.

Don't laugh. Every now and then a new VW owner brings his car in to ask why the doors seem hard to close.

The reason is that the VW is practically air-tight. With the windows up, the door meets a solid wall of trapped air. So it takes a little extra push to close it. Unless you open a window just a crack to let the air escape.

It happens because every last VW part fits just so. (When you've been making the same basic car as long as the VW people have, all the wrinkles get ironed out along the way. For good.)

And still, there are 3,500 men who do nothing else but inspect every operation all down the Volkswagen line.

When you come in to drive a new VW, you might make this test: It's the very same one that is made during the final inspection of every finished VW.)

• Crank up all the windows and try to close a door. Gently.

If it doesn't work, you know the VW's perfect.

Poetry Reading Today

Rhodes Dunlap, professor of English, will read poetry selections from Herrick, today on the Sunporch of the Union from 4:15 to 5 p.m.

The reading is being sponsored by the Union Board Fine Arts Committee and the English Department.

Attend Music Parley

SUI's Brass Ensemble, directed by William Göwer, associate professor of music, will perform at this year's Music Educators' National Conference Sunday at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago.

Professor Himie Voxman, head of the Music Department, and Prof. Philip Bezanson of the music faculty will attend the conference today through Sunday.

Members of the ensemble are: John Beer, SUI music instructor, and Douglas Van Horne, A1, Hancock, trumpet; James Miller, G, Greeley, Colo., horn; Gordon Hallberg, G, Moline, Ill., and John Smith, A4, Burlington, trombone; and Chester Schmitz, A3, Independence, tuba.

SUlowan in Recital

Gordon Hallberg, G, Moline, Ill., will present a trombone recital Sunday, March 25 at 7:30 p.m. in North Music Hall.

Hallberg will be accompanied by Margaret Pendleton, assistant professor of music, on the piano, and assisted by John Beer, instructor in music, trumpet; Paul Anderson, associate professor of music, horn; Doug Van Horne, A1, Council Bluffs, trumpet; James E. Miller, G, Greeley, Colo., horn; and Chester Schmitz, A3, Independence, tuba.

Rifle Match Here

Rifle teams from eight Midwestern universities will compete in the National Rifle Association Intercollegiate Match at the SUI Armory Saturday.

International Carnival

SUI's annual International Carnival will be held at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the International Center. Proceeds will go to the "Americans Meet the World" scholarship fund. The fund will send an American student abroad for a year.

About $500 has been raised since 1956 for the fund, whose target is $1,000. Last year approximately $70 was raised. Tickets for the carnival are sold out.

Collins Radio Co. Given High Award by Navy

CEDAR RAPIDS — The Navy's highest civilian award was presented Thursday night to Arthur A. Collins, president of Collins Radio Co.

The Secretary of the Navy's Distinguished Public Service Award was given to Collins for inventing and developing airborne communications, electronic navigation and high speed data transmission equipment for the Navy.

Medicine Lecture

Dr. Murray L. Barr, professor of microscopic anatomy, University of Western Ontario, London, Canada, will present a College of Medicine Lecture here Monday, speaking at 4:10 in the Medical Amphitheater of the SUI General Hospital. Dr. Barr's topic will be, "Human Cytogenetics in Relation to Sex Development."

U Sing Applications

Applications for University Sing are due on March 30. The event, sponsored by the Associated Women Students, will be performed May 6.

University Sing is one of the scheduled activities of the Mothers' Day Weekend. The 1962 theme, "Shower of Songs", has no restrictions as to the choice of songs.

Each housing unit may enter a group of 20 to 60 people, but is limited to six minutes to present their songs. Men and women's groups may combine if they wish.

The plan was not satisfactory for the last Senate, because some Senators feared that instructors would be sighted by the poll."

Miller added that some instructors would be unhappy with the poll because student opinion might go against them. "Many teachers aren't popular, not because they are poor teachers, but because they are eccentric."

"This could cause harmful results if the poll were widely published. Courses could even be boycotted."

Miller said if the next Senate wants to conduct the poll, there should be care that unthoughtful student response be eliminated.

"If the new Senate wants the poll, and if there is a meeting of the minds between pollsters and the Senate, then the poll should be taken."

Miller was appointed chairman of the pollwatchers committee, but resigned the position upon announcing his candidacy for president.

Communication between the student body and the University Administration is also important to Miller. He said that student sentiment must be presented more clearly and directly to administrators.

"Student government is never run for its own sake, nor just on the principle that there has to be a student government, but rather because there are important ends for the students, the campus community, and for the state."

"There are tremendous resources of intelligence and ideas at SUI, and they have only begun to be utilized to attain those goals."

Panhell Elects

Nancy Files, A3, Cedar Rapids, was elected president and Debbie Ziffren, A2, Rock Island, Ill., vice president of the Panhellenic Association at its meeting Tuesday.

Elected secretary was Sue Whitacre, A3, Cedar Rapids, and treasurer was Connie Maxwell, A2, Kewanee, Ill.

WSUI

At 910 Kilocycles
By LARRY BARRETT
Written for The Daily Iowan

SOME OF THE FINEST TEAMS in U.S. basketball will be competing this weekend in Iowa City under the banner of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Ohio State and Kentucky, traditional powers in the cage classic, are among the teams meeting tonight and tomorrow night. WSUI will carry the four games which will determine the regional winner here; other weekend tournaments in the country will produce three more victors and the quartet will compete for the national championship in Louisville, March 23 and 24.

THE OPERA "FIDELIO", by Beethoven, is tonight's FM feature. KSUI, 91.7 megacycles, broadcasts from 7 to 10 p.m.

Honors Law Building Dedication—

Show Daumier Lithographs

Forty-six lithographs by Honore Daumier depicting facets of legal proceedings will be shown Tuesday through April 10 in the Mezzanine Gallery of the Art Building.

The Art Department is presenting the display in honor of the College of Law's dedication of the new Law Building. The Owen and Leone Elliott Collection, Cedar Rapids, loaned the prints.

Prof. Frank Seiberling, head of the Art Department, said, Daumier was interested in people of the legal profession from his teens, when he served the courts as a messenger boy, until the end of his career. Most of the lithographs to be shown at SUJ were made between 1845 and 1848.

In 1831 Daumier was sentenced to six months in prison for a widely humorous but debasing caricature of the King's ministers as charwomen.

In all, the artist made some 4,000 different prints. These were often printed both in the periodical for which it was originally intended and on better paper for later sale, Seiberling said.

I.C. Guild Gallery To Show SUJlowan Bagley's Paintings

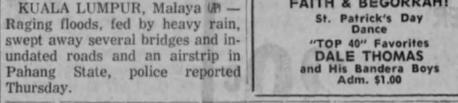

An exhibit of paintings by Wayne Bagley, graduate assistant of art, will be shown at the Iowa City Guild Gallery, 130 1/2 S. Clinton St., beginning Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m., and continuing for three weeks.

The exhibition is open to the public, free of charge.

Bagley paints in the modern, abstract idiom. Born in Kenvir, Ky., he received his B.A. degree from the University of Louisville in 1958, where he worked on a Ford Foundation Grant.

Before coming to SUJ, he studied with Mary Spencer Nay, Edgard Pillet, and Ulfert Wilke on a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship.

In 1959 and 1960 he was awarded the Rome Prize Fellowship. He returned from Italy last fall and is now studying at SUJ under Byron Burford, professor of painting.

Asks New Building Plan for Regents

CLARINDA — State Rep. Vern Lisle (R-Clarinda) said Thursday that a long-range building program for the State Board of Regents should be given serious consideration by the next legislature.

"We are all aware of the need for additional facilities at our institutions of higher learning to meet the great influx of students in the next several years," Lisle said in a letter to members of the Legislative Committee on Institutions of Higher Learning.

Lisle, who is chairman of the committee, quoted the governor as saying that capital appropriations may have to be trimmed by the next session because of a depletion of the treasury surplus.

Lisle added that he will ask the Legislative Research Bureau to compile a complete historical record of capital financing of academic facilities for Regent's institutions.

Veterans Hospital Marks Tenth Anniversary Today

The tenth anniversary of the Iowa City Veterans Administration Hospital will be commemorated today with a formal program at 7:30 p.m. in the hospital's main lobby.

SUI President Virgil M. Hancher and Iowa City Mayor Orr Hudson will speak. Recognition will be given employes and volunteers who have served the hospital since its opening.

A social hour will follow the speeches. Dr. J. Gordon Spendlove, hospital director, told employes "Let us rededicate ourselves to the task ahead, that we may continue to provide the best care and treatment to those who apply for admission to the hospital."

Spendlove called the past ten years "a decade of service." He released the following statistics on the hospital's operation during that period:

Approximately 40,000 veterans were admitted for treatment. Of these, 39,000 have returned to their communities.

2,600 persons have earned full or part-time salaries at the hospital.

Approximately $50 million dollars has been paid in salaries and for the purchase of supplies and equipment.

In 1963, $1.04 million has been provided for the expansion of the research program.

Over 1,800 volunteers have contributed over a half million man-hours of service. Thirty-two have served ten straight years — four for more than 10,000 hours.

Thirty-five volunteer service organizations have given assistance to every division of the hospital.
