Kennedy Speaks on Tax Bill, Court Decision, A-Test Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy strode directly into the battle over his tax bill Thursday and Democratic forces in the House presented him with a big victory a few hours later.

The President, at his news conference, disparaged Republicans for opposing the measure which calls for new incentives to businesses to modernize their plants, and for withholding income taxes on dividend and interest payments.

When the showdown came late in the day, House GOP forces lost 225 to 190 in a vote to strike out those major provisions. A second, 219-196 rollcall then passed the bill and sent it to the Senate.

Kennedy put himself smack on the firing line at a news conference, which also produced news of the retirement of Supreme Court Justice Charles Evans Whittaker, bleak prospects for a nuclear test ban, an appeal for state legislatures to give city voters equal representation and a word of appreciation to the Soviets for proceeding "with care" in the Berlin crisis.

Immediately after the conference, the White House issued a statement elaborating Kennedy's position on nuclear test controls. It was generally a reiteration of this country's demand for international inspections, which the Soviet Union rejects, to check against violations. And it acknowledges that "we seem to be at a real impasse" with the Soviet.

Responding to a question about the Supreme Court decision entitling federal tribunals to hear cases challenging the apportionment of seats in state legislatures, Kennedy said there was no sense to the charge leveled by some Southerners that the court overstepped its bounds.

Kennedy supported the argument that city voters lack proportionate representation in legislatures that don't apportion seats according to population.

"To have each vote count equally is, it seems to me, basic to the successful operation of a democracy," Kennedy said.

On the continuing crisis scene, Kennedy said that to push too hard in Berlin "would lead to all sorts of hazards." Maneuvering with care could bring about a happy solution, he said, though none has developed.

Kennedy wearing a gray suit and a matching tie, caused some chuckles at his 10th news conference in the last 11 weeks.

Unquestionably a candidate for re-election in 1964, Kennedy was asked if: 1. He would seek the presidency if he had it to do all over again; and 2. if he'd recommend the job to others.

"Well," he replied, "the answer is first, 'Yes,' and the second is 'No.' I wouldn't recommend it, at least for a while."

House Approves Tax Bill After JFK Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A few hours after President Kennedy made a public appeal for passage of his pending tax measure, the House approved it Thursday over determined Republican opposition.

A GOP effort to return the bill to committee with instructions to cut two major Administration provisions was beaten 225 to 190. Final passage followed a little later on a 219-196 vote.

The measure now goes to the Senate where it is given a good chance to pass without major changes — but only after prolonged committee hearings and floor debate.

On the crucial recommitment test, the Republicans held their ranks solidly but were able to rally only 27 Democratic votes. On final passage, 34 Democrats voted against the Administration while a lone Republican — Rep. Richard H. Poff of Virginia — sided with the majority.

Republicans centered their fire on two main provisions. One would require withholding income taxes of 20 per cent on dividends and interest payments. The other would allow 7-per-cent tax credits for business expenditures on modernization of production facilities.

As submitted by the Administration, the measure would have balanced loss of revenue through the business tax credit program by tightening of collections in several areas in addition to the interest and dividend withholding.

These would have included virtual elimination of income tax deductions for business entertaining plus much heavier imposts on income earned overseas by American companies and individuals.

As a result of changes made in the House Ways and Means Committee, the anticipated additional revenues are expected to fall some $600 million short of the losses due to the incentive tax credits.

Hearings on the measure are to begin Monday before the Senate Finance Committee headed by Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) and are expected to last at least four weeks.

As passed by the House, the bill pleases neither the liberals nor conservatives of the Senate. The former would like to see the originally proposed loophole tightenings restored and will exert pressure in this direction. Conversely, the conservatives dislike the dividend-withholding and other provisions and will try to eliminate or water down these.

Sen. Hruska: JFK Seeks More Power

Roman L. Hruska, Republican senator from Nebraska, accused the Kennedy Administration of "grabbing for power," at Thursday's meeting of the Young Republicans.

Senator Hruska also was interviewed by Daily Iowan reporters before his speech.

"The efforts of the Administration," Hruska said, "has been to increase the size and scope of the Federal Government."

"That's not liberalism, that's reactionary," he charged.

Kennedy wants to take for himself the authority to cut taxes, distribute money for public works, reduce tariffs, and appropriate foreign aid via a five-year plan, he said.

"These are duties that belong to the legislative branch," he said. Hruska also opposes the Administration plan of buying bonds from the United Nations at 2 per cent for 25 years. "The U.N. can't expect the United States to foot all its bills," he said.

Seventy-two nations have not paid their share of the expenses in the Congo operation and 74 nations have not paid their share of expenses in the Egyptian-Syrian dispute, he said.

If these new developing nations think they can outvote the "rich uncle" and make the United States pay most of the bills, then a new way to solve international problems must be found, he said.

Hruska said he favored the Republican bill of loaning the U.N. money for three years at 4 per cent interest.

The senator also spoke against federal aid to education. He said a survey by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare showed that almost all school districts could afford to build new school buildings without federal help.

Control belongs to the local school boards, not the national Government, he said.

The Young Republicans also elected officers Thursday night. Ivan Ackerman, L2, Allison, was elected president. Others elected are Candy Lamb, A3, Des Moines, vice president; Jan Ackerman, A2, Iowa Falls, secretary; and Gene Kregel, A3, Burlington, treasurer.

POETRY READING

The English Department and the Union Board will present another in the series of poetry readings on the Sun Porch of the Iowa Memorial Union today from 4:15 to 5 p.m.

Catherine Davis, G, Iowa City, and Annette Basalyga will read their own compositions.

Calls Visit 'Fascinating'

Jackie Returns from Tour

(Combined from Leased Wires)

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy welcomed his wife home Thursday night from her 16,000 mile, semi-official visit to Asia which she described as the "most fascinating experience imaginable."

The President was waiting at Washington National Airport when the First Lady landed here aboard the family plane, the Caroline, after a flight from New York. They left immediately for the White House where their children, Caroline and John Jr., waited.

Mrs. Kennedy arrived radiant and refreshed from a three-day stopover in London where she rested from her India and Pakistan travels.

Mrs. Kennedy said the people she met in Pakistan and India were kind to her. She said this was "because I was the wife of the President, so the people were showing their affection for him and he should have been there to receive it."

During the First Lady's 22-day trip she won over Government heads and ailing Indian children with the same easy charm.

Mrs. Kennedy, wearing a navy blue suit and hatless in a light rain, was cheered by 300 persons as she left for London Airport to board a commercial jet. She held up the flight for 12 minutes because she was late.

As she said goodbye to her sister, Princess Radziwill, who accompanied her on the tour of India and Pakistan, a truck marked "4 Buckingham Palace" unloaded Mrs. Kennedy's luggage. It included a number of gifts from her hosts in India and Pakistan and some antique china she bought Wednesday after lunching with Queen Elizabeth.

Justice Whittaker Resigns Because of Failing Health

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Charles Evans Whittaker, physically exhausted from work, resigned Thursday to save his health. President Kennedy announced he would name a successor shortly, his first appointment to the high bench.

The resignation, effective Monday, was announced by Kennedy with "extreme regret" at his news conference. The President said the 61-year-old Whittaker was stepping down at the direction of his physician for reason of disability.

Whittaker, a Missouri Republican who has served five years on the Supreme Court, entered Walter Reed Army Medical Center here March 6. He has been absent from the court on the last two Mondays when rulings were issued and has written only two decisions this term.

The justice issued a statement through his office saying he had "reached a point of physical exhaustion from the great volume and continuous stresses of the court's work." He said his doctors told him a return to the bench would "unduly jeopardize my future health."

In the court's liberal-conservative division, legal observers considered Whittaker a member of the conservative bloc. In cases involving a clash between Government authority and individual liberties, he most often cast his vote for Government authority.

Praising Whittaker's work on

Mrs. Kennedy's visit to Buckingham Palace was the final highlight of a trip filled with memorable occasions. Among these were a visit to the fabled Taj Mahal by moonlight, a trip up the rugged Khyber Pass, a meeting with Pope John XXIII, and lunch with Italian President Giovanni Gronchi.

Operation 'Hike Dike' May Save Sioux City

Thousands of persons fought a wearisome—and sometimes losing—battle against the ravages of floods across Iowa Thursday.

Hundreds of families abandoned their homes in the face of some of the worst flooding in recent years. Others refused to be driven away by the rising rivers, swollen from rapid melting of the winter's heavy snow.

There was hardly a river town across the northern half of Iowa that wasn't feeling the effects of flooding or taking precautions against it.

The critical areas were Sioux City, Cherokee, Charles City and Marshalltown.

"I've lived here all my life, but I've never seen it this bad," said Ralph Hartwig, 40, Cherokee farmer, as the Little Sioux River inundated about 25 blocks of his home town of 7,724.

"We got our pumps in here trying to get the water out. We're usually trying to pump for water," Hartwig added.

Floodwater was up to four feet deep in Cherokee, and the Weather Bureau said a crest of 25 feet was expected Friday. The river was now a foot below that figure.

In a little, white bungalow, surrounded by four feet of water, sat a long-time Cherokee couple, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Laymon.

"We've always lived high and dry," Mrs. Laymon told a newsman who rowed out to her house. "But I guess we better leave pretty soon. It's not good for Chester to get nervous."

City Manager Connie Bodine of Sioux City said late Thursday, "I am more optimistic than I was that we can contain the Floyd River flood crest Friday."

The Floyd, which meanders for 10 miles through this city of 89,000, was up to 21.5 feet and expected to crest between 22 and 23 feet.

"Our operation 'Hike Dike' is 95 per cent complete," Bodine said. An estimated half-million sandbags have been used to raise the levee two feet.

"This will be the acid test for all our labors," said National Guard Col. Fred Tinker. He said the dikes have been weakened in several places by leaks and sandbags.

About 400 persons were evacuated from the northeast side of Sioux City, but a few others remained in their homes despite an official order that they all leave.

Tinker said a similar evacuation order was issued for the Riverside area along the Big Sioux River on the west side of the city. About 50 families were expected to leave later Thursday. The Big Sioux posed a threat for the weekend.

The National Guard had 570 soldiers on duty in Sioux City. "The troops are quite weary and being rotated," Tinker said.

A weather-beaten oldtimer who has seen a lot of floodwater in his lifetime took a look at the turbulent Floyd River Thursday night and said:

"I think we have her licked." Earl N. Edwards, 78, of Sioux City, expressed the optimism that city officials and hundreds of volunteer workers were beginning to feel as the Floyd neared its crest.

At Charles City, population 9,964, approximately 40 families were forced from their homes as the Cedar River, which caused millions of dollars in flood damage to eastern Iowa last year, climbed over its banks.

Lee Albaugh, Charles City mayor, said ice jams upstream probably prevented a lot of water from coming down.

The mayor of Marshalltown, W. B. Crosby, appealed to other central Iowa towns for volunteers to help strengthen and sandbag an earthen dike protecting his city of 22,521 from the Iowa River. Schoolboys were called from classes to help.

Crosby said 200 to 300 houses would be affected if the soggy dike was breached.

Colder weather Thursday slowed the thawing process and gave some relief to the swollen rivers. However, the raw weather added to the discomfort of the flood fighters.

Temperatures Thursday night should drop below freezing over much of the state and remain cool today under partly cloudy to cloudy skies.

Eight bridges in Ida County were awash or closed and a number of highways were blocked by high water.

The Cedar River situation:

Charles City — A slow rise has brought the river to 17.25 feet with a crest of 18 to 19 feet anticipated. Flood stage is 12 feet. About 200 civil defense, 50 guardsmen and 150 high school youths patrolled the dikes and laid sandbags. A kitchen was set up to feed evacuees. Mayor Leo Albaugh said the river between Floyd and St. Ansgar was within its banks.

Waterloo — The river was 6.5 feet below the expected crest of 19 feet Sunday. Flooding was reported in the Sherwood Park area, where some families left their homes. Nearby Cedar Falls also had flooding.

Cedar Rapids — A 16-foot crest on Tuesday was forecast. Flood stage is 13 feet.

Hancher: 'No Opinion' on SPU Pickets

President Hancher had "no opinion whatsoever," Thursday on the Student Peace Union's (SPU) plans to picket the Military Ball Friday. Hancher's office Friday afternoon and his home that night to protest compulsory ROTC.

Duane Sanger, AI, Iowa City, head of the SPU committee to abolish compulsory ROTC, said Thursday he expected about 100 persons to demonstrate at the Iowa Memorial Union where the dance is being held at 8 p.m.

Earlier, SPU President Richard L. Talcott, AI, Des Moines, said, "The purpose of the picketing is to focus attention by a dissenting campus voice on compulsory ROTC and we think this is the most effective way."

Sanger said the picketing of Hancher's office will begin at 3 p.m., at the ball at 7 p.m. and "a small group will demonstrate in front of Hancher's home after the ball begins."

Col. M. N. Mikulak, head of Air Force ROTC, and William N.

Holm, head of Army ROTC, had no official opinion on the proposed picketing of the ball.

Colonel Holm did say he thought it was, "too bad it had to happen." He said it was not the proper way for the SPU to express its views, but that they "have a perfect right to do it."

He expects no trouble.

Both officers said any cadet who pickets in uniform would be violating regulations and would be dealt with accordingly.

Sanger said he knows of no students or sympathizers from off the SUJ campus who will picket. Last year, when the ball was picketed by more than 100 persons, students from Grinnell College as well as SPU and the Socialist Discussion Club participated.

SPU, in an instructional pamphlet to be handed out to marchers, says it is not opposed to the Military Ball, but that it is a symbol of compulsory ROTC.

The pamphlet directs the demonstrators to remain passive if heckled or physically attacked.

An SPU petition, circulating among students and faculty and which will be distributed to interested persons during the demonstration, will be presented to the State Board of Regents and President Hancher sometime in April.

It states:

"The compulsory ROTC requirement at SUJ should be discontinued. The compulsory program forces uninterested students into a course of questionable academic value and consequently detracts from both the student's education and an effective voluntary program."

Issue Applications For Senate Posts

Applications for Student Senate executive positions, both commissioners and committee posts, are being mailed to all SUI housing units. The applications are also available beginning today at the Union Information Desk.

The completed applications must be returned to the Senate office in the Union by 4:30 p.m., April 6. Interviews for the positions will begin April 9. Applicants will be contacted about the time of their interviews.

Applications are also available for three married Student Senate representative positions and one town women position. These applications are available at the Union Information Desk and must be returned to the Senate Office by 4:30 p.m., April 6.

The Right Stand, The Wrong Method

When spring comes, a student's fancy turns to . . . Well, usually it does, that is.

It's spring again at SUI (we hear), and with the advent of spring comes the announcement that pickets will be flowering around President Hancher's office this afternoon. For an encore they will greet Military Ball patrons tonight with placards high.

The picketers' cause is much the same this year as it was last year. They have chosen the picket line as the most effective way to focus attention upon their drive to abolish compulsory ROTC at the University.

In this column about two weeks ago, we stated our stand in favor of abolishing compulsory ROTC. Our position remains the same. But, we cannot agree with the method the Student Peace Union (SPU) has chosen to publicize a similar position.

Picketing is hardly the device to achieve any results. Chances are, any demonstration such as this will be looked upon by the Administration as just another prankish whim of college students. Reception to it will undoubtedly be as cold as this spring's weather has turned.

True, the picketing may keep the issue in the limelight, but at what price publicity? It could just as easily reverse it into a lost cause.

If the SPU really is sincere in their efforts to eliminate compulsory ROTC, they should first adopt a more sensible and mature attitude and method. The proper way, we believe, was partially demonstrated by the group's efforts to secure signatures on a petition, which will be enclosed with a letter to President Hancher and to the State Board of Regents.

This is one way, but more exist. Collective effort with the Student Senate in presenting a resolution to the Committee on Student Life is an alternative method.

Beyond this, representatives should secure an appointment with Administration officials who are in a position to effect the change. At such a meeting, the representatives should have their case well-organized so that they might discuss the issue intelligently.

One thing apparently overlooked by many is that abolishment of compulsory ROTC is not in the hands of the University alone. The Defense Department and the various military services involved also have a say. Although it will take longer, a comprehensive argument will be most convincing to these other groups, as well as to University officials.

A deliberate, well-considered effort, we believe, will achieve better results than any "screaming mimie" attitude could ever accomplish.

A Fine Performance

In a year when Iowa's football and basketball teams have had mediocre seasons it is easy to lavish praise on a so-called "minor sport" group which wins a championship.

But we hope that Iowa's wrestling team would receive considerable praise even if the football team had gone to the Rose Bowl and the basketball team won the national championship.

Certainly no Iowa athletic team has ever worked harder to win a conference championship than Coach Dave McCuskey's squad, and no Big Ten champion ever entered a national meet with a better competitive spirit.

Many Iowa fans know that Hawkeye Sherwyn Thorson pinned, and struggled his way to the heavyweight title, that 130-pound Tom Huff placed third in his division, and that their other teammates scored enough points to give Iowa a strong third in the National Collegiate meet.

But lest people think Iowa's wrestlers compiled their fine 7-2 record through natural ability alone, or even luck, we think it necessary to look briefly at McCuskey's practice program.

Each wrestler spends hours of grueling practice each week in the stifling, hot wrestling loft of the Iowa Field House, and, as on other athletic teams, each Hawkeye must earn his starting position week after week.

To McCuskey, even the All-America is only as good as his current performance and must prove it by wrestling any teammate who challenges his right to start a match.

Judging from Iowa's third place finish in the collegiate finals at Stillwater, Okla., last Saturday and from the Big Ten championship, we think McCuskey has gotten peak performances from a group of fine athletes.

To all connected with Iowa's wrestling team, we give an enthusiastic "Well done."

Juan Peron—After 7 Years His Popularity Remains High

By STEVE SANGER Staff Writer

The political crisis in Argentina has brought back into the news the name of Juan D. Peron, Argentine dictator for many years who was overthrown in 1955.

Argentina's present grave difficulties were brought about by President Arturo Frondiz's decision to permit free elections. Since Peron's fall, his followers have not been allowed to run for public office. However, Frondiz, a long-time opponent of Peron, lifted the ban and the Peronistas polled 40 per cent of the vote. Buenos Aires, home of a third of the Argentines, was won by the Peronistas. These friends of Peron have openly favored a return by Peron to his dictatorship.

THESE VICTORIES HAVE been nullified by a presidential decree and Frondiz himself was sacked by the military. He has been President since 1958 when he replaced a military Government. Why is Peron, now in exile in Spain, feared by the Government and so popular with the voters? Here are the highlights of his rise and fall.

Peron came to power in 1943 after Argentina had been ruled by generals for many years. Peron, an army colonel, sensed the need to cultivate the desires of the workers, "the shirtless ones," and gained their support. Also, the conservative classes backed him for his pro-fascist ideas. He once called Benito Mussolini, "the greatest man who ever lived."

PERON ACTED AS the power behind the President from 1943-1946 as head of the agency in charge of welfare and labor. It soon became evident that he had a bias against the employers and a popular sentiment became fanatical in his favor. He was literally swept into power in 1946 after a mad demonstration organized by Eva Duarte galvanized worker support. She was his mistress and later his wife. Exhibiting a demagogic genius, Peron consolidated his power by making concessions to the Roman Catholic Church, thus winning it to his side and splitting any posible conservative opposition. Peron helped the Church take over the schools and he increased Church subsidies. He was called the "Christian alternative to Communism and capitalism." He had the army's strong backing.

AS PRESIDENT, PERON began to enforce and create reform laws such as minimum wages, compulsory union membership for peasants, revised tariffs, improved medical care for all and he nationalized foreign trade in foodstuffs.

At the same time, Argentina became a police state. In Buenos Aires alone, there were 30,000 police. New York City, three times as large, has 20,000. Fear reigned. Anyone caught reading anti-Peron pamphlets was imprisoned. The prisons were full of political prisoners. Torture was common. Peron took over the universities by appointing personal stooges as rectors. In 1951, the great independent newspaper, La Prensa, was suppressed. The Government appointed top union officials. Labor became an instrument of the state which could call strikes against any businessman, foreign or domestic.

HOWEVER, IT WAS thought that Peron had strong popular support. Time magazine estimated in 1953 that 50 per cent of the people wanted Peron because he had given them a feeling of importance. He had convinced the working classes that he was running the country for them. In the fall of 1955, Peron was overthrown by a military coup which was aided significantly by the Catholic Church. The reasons for this fall are highly complicated and even persons knowledgeable of Argentine politics are unsure of them. Peron was hated by the rich with a fervor usually reserved by them for left-wing dictators. But Peron was a self-admitted fascist. Although Peron didn't nationalize industry, he did harass the conservatives by his labor policies. Landowners, especially, disliked his organization of the peasants. Many army officers were from this class and resented

Friday and from 9 to 10 a.m. Saturday. Make-good service on missed papers is not possible, but every effort will be made to correct errors with the next issue.

The elections are over, and once again the campus has returned to normalcy — one of the many returns each year to a stage of disorganized confusion and the nonsense of getting an education. Iowans are crowing that they really don't give a damn whether there's a California or not. I never did and didn't really care whether there was an Iowa for quite a while.

COMMENTS ON THE WORLD SCENE: Harry Truman, still givin' them hell 10 years later says: "The John Birch Society is nothing but a modern KKK without frock coats or Revolutionary (oh, that Jackie Kennedy rides the camels in Pakistan. But Mrs. Kennedy, who ever heard of tight skirts and side saddle on the frontier? (Even the new one)."

Once again, a small but vocal part of the SDC-SARE combine has proven that those organizations provide more of a playground for their members than a tool for constructive action in social relations. The impolite (and that's mild) reaction to the candidates at Tuesday night's "meeting" casts doubt on the sincerity of the members. Challenge to those who profess liberalism by membership in those groups: Prove your liberalism. Offer constructive action to improve race relations and other social inequalities. Come from behind your guise of artificial liberalism and phony intellectualism (even the beard) and prove you are working for improvement. We're tired of your pickets, lofty platitudes, noise-making, and inaction.

ONE OFTEN WONDERS what new excuses instructors will come up with to explain failure to return papers and tests. Latest "jewel" from one of our finest: "Didn't get them graded because the sun came out and it was so nice outside that I just didn't feel like working." Bet the same instructor said in his next breath: "However, we will have another exam tomorrow and your papers are due next Tuesday."

Am hoping that all the new student officials will take the job seriously and show a little less of the personal glorification bit we got in the campaign. Just a little reminder to those newly elected senators, etc. that they are supposed to represent the "student" (as in student body) and not the students (as in self).

NOTE IN the campus paper of a leading eastern university: "Students are reminded that all students must be out of the Commons Bar by 11:30. Male students will not be allowed inside the women's residence halls past 12:30." And at SUI, we have pious little platitudes from Burge and Currier Councils: "No necking inside the dorms."

With the Supreme Court ruling concerning rural domination of state legislatures, many of Iowa's Republicans are getting a bit uneasy. Won't it be awful when our legislature is finally forced to give fair representation to the city majorities. Why, that's almost American.

About face, John Niemeyer, retiring smiling as Student Body President, deserves credit for advances in student government under his reign. Despite his shortcomings, Niemeyer has done more for student government at SUI than has ever been done before. Even Ike wasn't that bad.

BEST MOVIE OF THE WEEK: "Summer and Smoke." WORST MOVIE: "The Long Rope." SUGGESTED READING: "How to Convince the SUI Administration that We All Want a Longer Spring Vacation Without Burning Down Old Capitol," or textbooks — midterms are here.

University Choir Concert — Lack of Polish But With Bright Moments

By DOUGLAS RINTELL Reviewed for The Daily Iowan
There were brief moments when, while singing a Benjamin Britten cantata, the University Choir rendered a mixture of rich tonal color and fine interplay between solo and full chorus. These moments in the choir's second public concert were unfortunately sparse; most of the offering, performed Wednesday evening at the First Methodist Church, displayed an unevenness in singing and a general lack of polish.

IN THE BRITTEN selection, "Rejoice in the Lamb," a cantata in 10 sections, the choir presented the highlight of the evening. Accompanied by Prof. Gerhard Krapf playing the organ, the 50-voice choir, led by Dr. Daniel Moe, exhibited the range of its singing competence.

Here was combined the gentleness of the opening theme and first Hallelujah chorus with the spirit of the second section, in which man and beast praise God, and the intensity of the eighth section the adoration of the Deity through music. Especially notable were the performances of two soloists, alto Sue Bales and tenor Guy Hargrove, both of whom sang with clearly delineated variation in dynamics.

A selection by Bach, "The Spirit Also Helpeth Us," lacked strength and provided a clear-cut division between the softness of the andante movement and the attempted power of the chorale section. The choir seemed to have difficulty with the extremes and were often shrill in the high register and rough in the low.

THIS PIECE WAS accompanied by an eight piece instrumental ensemble, generally overshadowed but for the piping of an oboe.

The four opening selections, sans accompaniment, were weak and muddled. The choir failed to sing clearly and appeared, at times, to demonstrate a mass of musical sounds rather than a harmony of trained voices.

In the "Easter Te Deum," composed in 1956 by Dr. Moe, the choir sang the words of Michael Thwait's poem. The variety in moods offered good contrast which the choir only aimed to produce. Again the moments of strength were not captured and voices seemed to strain excessively.

THE "SIXTY-SEVENTH Psalm" by Charles Ives was most interesting in its presentation of male voices singing in G minor while female voices sang in C major. The variation provided an agreeable harmony handled without much difficulty by the choir.

Of the remaining selections, "Die Mit Trauen Saen," by Johann Herman Schein, was marked by the clarity in singing and the harmonies effected especially in the opening fugue-like section. "Hosanna to the Son of David" by Orlando Gibbons lacked color and was basically static.

It was in the final piece though that the choir transcended the weakness shown in the first portion of the program with the moderate power of the last Hallelujah.

Letters to the Editor — Wrong Hyde Park

To the Editor:
I was somewhat more than irritated after reading Eric Zoekler's "On Other Campuses." As a result, I find it necessary to write another letter to you.

Zoekler speaks of a "new creation" at the University of California at Berkeley, a kind of open forum for public speaking. Well, this new creation has been going on at other campuses for years, notably at the University of Michigan. Several times a year, hundreds of students there congregate on the Diag to express their views in the tradition of Hyde Park. I would think that a person writing a column on other campuses would have known that.

Also, in his reference to Hyde Park, Zoekler seems to be both uninformed and misinformed. I am a native of New York City and I have never heard of a Hyde Park in Greenwich Village. The only Hyde Park I know of in New York is the late President Roosevelt's home, which is some distance north of the Village. I suspect Zoekler was thinking of Washington Square, which has achieved some fame as the site of many demonstrations. It is true there is a Hyde Park famous for "soap box" public speaking, but that Hyde Park is in London.

In the future, I think it would be a good idea for columnists to know what they are talking about before committing themselves to print.

Jeff Friedman, G 530 N. Clinton

Letters Policy

Readers are invited to express opinions in letters to the Editor. All letters must include handwritten signatures and addresses, should be typewritten and double-spaced and should not exceed a maximum of 375 words. We reserve the right to shorten letters.

EDITOR'S NOTE: When Mr. Zoekler speaks of the "new creation" at the University of California, we suggest he mean just that — if it is new to the University of California, not new in the sense of being the only one in existence.

University Bulletin Board

University Bulletin Board notices must be received at The Daily Iowan office, Room 201, Communications Center, by noon of the day before publication. They must be typed and signed by an adviser or officer of the organization being publicized. Purely social functions are not eligible for this section.

Communists claim "religion is the opiate of the masses." But the Soviet Ambassador to Mexico, Vladimir Ivanovich Bazikan, late last month attended a memorial service for the recently deceased Empress of Ethiopia at the Orthodox Cathedral in Mexico City. He sat up front. Diplomatic eyebrows rose when Bazikan marched to the altar rail and received Holy Communion, as did various non-Communists envoys. Reports here said the Russian was "flustered" in his religious role.

Rep. Thomas Morgan (D-Pa.), ran into heavy anti-Kennedy flak at Uniontown, Pa., the other day when he made a speech about the progress of the Administration. Unemployment is over 20 per cent in that bituminous coal region. The miners gave the Congressman the sharpest edge of their tongue and demanded action from Washington. Morgan, who is chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, never could get a word in about the Administration's foreign policy.

What is a Binki?

Two SUI Students Design, Manufacture, Sell Binkies

It seems amazing what college students can come up with these days when they put their heads together. The repercussions of what happens when two ambitious students contrive a way to "start a new college fad and make a little money too" (as one of the creators put it) will soon be evident on the SUI campus. The story behind the project, originated by Pam Wiggins, A1, Park Ridge, Ill., and Frank Patton, A1, Wilmette, Ill., begins a couple of months ago at semester break.

During the vacation Pam and Frank sought ways to make some money. They hit on the idea of manufacturing a type of beach dress to sell to coeds at SUI. "Pam's mother named the mu-mu type garment a 'binki' after the Wiggins' pet-parakeet," Patton related.

When Pam and Frank came back to school they started right in on their project. Pam bought some sailcloth (high quality cotton cloth) and made a "binki" from a pattern she had altered considerably for her purpose. Patton said, "Pam did all the designing of the 'binki' and the making of the original one; she does the art work, and I take care of the business aspects."

Frank's job was to arrange for the manufacturing of the "binki," if Pam could sell their product. She could and did. In four hours Pam sold 100, and another girl working in one of the sorority houses, sold 32 in just one evening.

Their original idea was to sell the "binki" only on the SUI campus, but now they were going to try to start a nationwide fad with their new product. Frank sent out letters to some of the girls in his high school graduating class offering them a chance to sell the "binki" and start the fad on their campuses. "We got 52 replies, all very enthusiastic."

"Now we have girls all over the country selling for us, in California, Mississippi, at Wellesley, and all the Big Ten schools. We are working on getting the 'binkies' produced now."

"Lawyers, clothing manufacturers and retailers, instructors and students all say that the 'binki' could become an overwhelmingly popular national fad. Then there are some like my fraternity brothers who think I'm crazy," Patton commented.

The fact that a new fad may soon hit the colleges across the nation is not so amazing, for fashion fads come to the surface with every new season. It is not even amazing that SUI may be the leader of this "binki" craze. The amazing, and delightful, thing about the fad, if it does snowball into success, is that two freshmen students originated the idea themselves, patented their name and product, and are now carrying out the business and financial details of the manufacturing, sale, and distribution of their product.

Pam and Frank seem to be having a lot of fun with their new brainchild. "My mother and friends can't believe the possibilities our idea has. Pam and I have put a lot of time and hard work into the project; we want to get a national fad started. There are lots of places the 'binki' can be worn — in the dorm or home for sleeping, lounging, or studying, on the beach, over a bathing suit, while sailing, to summer school, and in resort towns on the streets."

What are the possibilities of the "binki" becoming a national fad? Patton says that he now has 57 girls selling "binkies" outside Iowa. Every girl who buys one now is being offered a chance to sell the "binki" this summer. Each girl who buys a "binki" this summer, according to Patton, will be offered a chance to sell the "binki" next fall at her college. If everyone is half as successful in selling the "binki" as Pam was in four hours, over a million "binkies" will be sold.

There are a lot of "ifs" involved in the possibility of the product's success, but the amazing thing about the whole phenomenon is that two SUI-owans put their heads together and came up with this gigantic idea. Just what is this "binki"? It is a perfectly plain, scooped neck, sleeveless dress. It is gathered on to a yoke, and it comes in any color the purchaser desires. It is short (an inch above the knee), and is purposely made plain so each girl may personalize her own with decorations.

It may soon become a nationwide fad among the college coeds!

Paret Still Unconscious; Still Critical

NEW YORK (AP) — Former welterweight champion Benny (Kid) Paret, unconscious for the fifth day and in a moderate coma, occasionally moved his arms Thursday.

The latest bulletin from Roosevelt Hospital, however, reported his condition unchanged.

The report added that the 25-year-old Cuban, does not recognize people.

Paret was knocked out by Emilio Griffith in the 12th round of their title bout at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Doctors said Paret's condition was critical and that he had only a slight chance to live.

Paret's mother, Mrs. Maxima Crespo, said in Havana Thursday that she hopes to fly to the United States. She said a flight to Miami is being arranged through the Cuban National Physical Education Institute.

Mrs. Crespo, 56, added she does not speak English.

Interviewed at the home of a sister, Mrs. Crespo said she believed her son would recover.

"But I have delivered my hopes to the great power of God," she said, "I never wanted him to fight. I don't want him to fight any more."

Dr. Manuel Acosta, Paret's personal physician, talked to hospital authorities and admitted there was only a slight chance that Paret would recover. Two neurologists said that, at best, the fighter's chances were less than 5 in 100.

Old Archie, Lavorante Meet Tonight

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Archie Moore, stripped of his light-heavyweight title claims virtually everywhere but California, goes after serious consideration in the heavy-weight ranks tonight when he meets Alejandro Lavorante of Argentina in a 10-round bout.

Lavorante, the third leading heavyweight, accepted the Moore bout not only because of its attractiveness at the gate but also as a springboard towards a possible eventual title bout.

For despite Moore's age, variously listed at between 45 and 48 years, the veteran ranks as one of the all-time great fighters and a victory over Lavorante would put him in a position to challenge the winner of the Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston bout this summer.

Although no title is at stake, the bout has proved of keen interest to the public and a crowd of some 12,000 was anticipated in the Sports Arena with a gate of around $100,000, largest in the nation this early in the year.

The battle of youth against experience left fight fans up in the air in attempting to pick a favorite. Lavorante, 25, was not born when Moore started boxing around 1935.

But the tall Argentinian in 21 professional fights has emerged as one of the world's top heavyweights. And if Lavorante can avoid Moore's almost certain effort to score an early knockout, many experts believe he has a chance to defeat the canny veteran.

Moore is in amazingly good condition and comes into the ring at around 192 pounds as expected.

But Lavorante's followers point out that the Argentinian will have a weight advantage of nearly 20 pounds at around 210 and he stands 6-feet-4 to Moore's 5-11.

3 Iowa Gymnasts Compete in NCAA

By GARY SPURGEON
Staff Writer

Three members of Iowa's gymnastics team begin competition today in the NCAA gymnastics meet at Albuquerque, N.M. The three performers representing the Hawkeyes are George Hery, Larry Snyder and Russ Porterfield. Hery and Snyder will compete on the trampoline while Porterfield will be vying for honors on the high bar.

Hery is only a sophomore and was the team's leading scorer this past season. He finished third on the trampoline in the Big Ten meet. He will also be competing in tumbling and free exercise.

Snyder was the second place finisher in the Big Ten competition on the trampoline. This event is Snyder's specialty and he holds the distinction of being a former national trampoline champion.

Iowa coach Dick Holzaepfel is optimistic about the chances of Hery and Snyder. He said, "These two men are real good on the trampoline. There are none better. Their success will depend on how well they hit their routines."

Porterfield finished ninth in last season's NCAA meet. However, Holzaepfel indicated that Porterfield's work is cut out for him in that the competition in the high bar is very tough.

The Iowa coach said it would be difficult to single out a favorite for the team title due to the method of scoring.

AFL Attorneys Finish Presenting Evidence

BALTIMORE (AP) — Attorneys for both sides in the American Football League's $10,000,000 anti-trust suit against the National Football League completed presentation of evidence Thursday as testimony from rebuttal witnesses ended.

Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen, hearing the case without a jury in U.S. District Court, set April 25-26 for final arguments, with briefs due on the first day. Reply briefs are due five days after arguments.

Baseball Team Ups Practice Pace; 1st Game Next Week

Out of the cramped confines of the Field House to the open air diamond at last, the Iowa 26-man baseball squad is stepping up its practice pace for the season's opener April 6 against Western Illinois at Macomb.

The 32-game schedule includes 17 games with three midwestern teams before the Big Ten opener here April 27.

Coach Otto Vogel, in his 34th year as coach here, definitely has seven major letter-winners, with the possibility of two additions later. He says that in general the squad is somewhat shallow and he must rely upon untried talent more than usual.

"It's up to the sophomores to develop as fast as they can. Some can become capable players when they gain experience. Hitting could be better than in 1961, at least it appears better now, and I think our fielding will improve over that of last season," Vogel declared.

The effort to emerge from the lower regions of the Big Ten (eighth with 4-9 in 1961) will be led by the No. 1 pitcher of the last two seasons, Ron Reifert of Muscatine. Reifert had a 6-5 mark last year and 3-3 in the conference and his earned run average for all games was 2.68 in 80 2/3 innings. He led the league in complete games, five, and tied in innings pitched, 47.

Reifert is one of nine pitchers, four of whom are lettermen. Bruce Butters, bothered by a sore arm in 1961, could be a winner, for the Central City senior has lots of stuff if he can hold his control. Butters has 1-2 last year and ERA of 5.72 but pitched only two complete games and 28 2/3 innings.

Other veteran pitchers are Howard Friend, Bethpage, N.Y., senior with 1-4; and Tom George, West Des Moines, senior who worked only 24 2/3 innings in six games and had 0-1 and a 4.68 ERA.

To support the veterans, Vogel has sophomores Carl Brunst, Maywood, Ill., Dale Miner, Luzerne, both of whom now are bothered by sore arms; Ron Stroup, Corwith; Jack Willard, Bettendorf; and Art Massucci, Jr., Royal Oak, Mich. Of all the pitchers, only Friend is a left-hander.

Minor lettermen Dick Mowen, Algonquin, Ill.; and Jerry Wilson, Blairstown, along with sophomore Jim Freese, Muscatine, are likely to share the catching work. If Freese, the basketball player, develops, he could be the best.

Changes always are possible but now it appears that three lettermen and a sophomore will form the infield. Howard Kennedy, Omaha, Neb. senior, is the leading first baseman; Dennis Henning, Calamus, second base; Ron Isler, Staten Island, N.Y., shortstop; and Bill Niedbala, Beaver Falls, Pa., third. If Bill Illiff, Camanche, regular shortstop in 1960 but ineligible last year, reports he can help the infield.

Two 1961 football halfbacks, Brewer Gives Up Comeback; Retires

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Tom Brewer, once an ace of the Boston Red Sox pitching staff, Thursday gave up in his bid for a comeback and retired from the game.

Brewer, 30, who won 19 for the Red Sox in 1956, had been working out with the team this year on a conditional basis. In his last full season — 1960 — he had a 10-15 mark.

Brewer said arm trouble caused him to quit and he will return to his South Carolina home.

Brewer had seven full seasons with the Red Sox during which he won 88 games and lost 80. His 19-9 mark in 1956 was his best, but he won 16 and lost 12 the following year. He appeared in the 1956 All-Star game for the American League.

Prep Track Teams To Hold Meet Here

The biggest track meet in the country gets underway today at 6 p.m. as the first of 5,156 high school trackmen converge on Iowa's Field House.

Cherokee will be out to defend its Class A indoor title as 1,504 athletes compete tonight. Saturday Class AA competitors will try to wrest the state title from Des Moines Tech. This session starts at noon.

A week later, April 6 and 7, Class B and C teams will invade the Field House, with 1,535 men from 80 Class B schools and 974 from 71 Class C schools vying for championships.

DI Gets Mascot From Arkansas

By FRAN SMITH
Staff Writer

Lil' Shep, 5-week-old granddaughter of Irving Finster's venerable coon hound, Old Shep of Twin Hooks, Ark., arrived in Iowa City Thursday to become The Daily Iowan mascot.

She was presented to Jerry Elsea, sports editor, by Finster in appreciation for the publicity Old Shep has received on a Iowan sports pages.

Iowa coons took the news news too gladly because Lil' Shep's fabled grandfather holds the international coon hound award for breeding most coons in a single season — 127.

Before Finster left Iowa City, he told The Daily Iowan, "Lil' Shep is the most promising coon hound to come out of our kennels since Old Shep himself. However, her road to fame may not be as easy as Old Shep's has been because unlike her coon dog progenitor, Lil' Shep is a beagle."

VOGEL

Paul Krause, Flint, Mich., and Bob Sherman, Durand, Mich., are top outfield candidates. Both are big and strong with good baseball backgrounds.

The other outfield job probably belongs to Joe Reddington, Orient, the basketball guard; Dick Lee, Norway, and Russell Prince, West Chester, Ill., are additional candidates and Prince could do some pitching. The gymnast, George Hery of Union, O., may join the outfield squad.

Among other players who hope to help are Curtis Livengood, Des Moines, 1b; Bob Anderson, Victor, e; and Keith Hansen, Delhi, infield. Letterman Matt Szykowny, leading batter of 1961, has not reported and his plans are not known to Coach Vogel.

Fifteen of the 32 games are with Big Ten opponents. There are 14 home games, 11 between April 9 and 28.

Rare Disclosure; Ike Tells Scores

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower paid a repeat visit to watch the Los Angeles Angels in an exhibition ball game Thursday and made a rare disclosure — his golf score.

He told newsmen that he shot six pars and a birdie on the first seven holes. Then he hit the water on the eighth and finished the nine holes with a 3-over par 39 for the Eldorado Country Club course.

It was Eisenhower's first visit to see the Angels since he paid a surprise visit a year ago.

Streets in Poor Shape After Rough I.C. Winter

By LAEL MOE Staff Writer

If you think Iowa City streets were in worse shape this spring than in recent years, you're right, said Lee R. Beals, Iowa City street superintendent.

Beals said this has been one of the roughest winters on streets he has seen. He added that the rough street problem isn't confined to Iowa City.

Public Works Director Lane H. Mashaw said many cities in the vicinity of Iowa City haven't progressed as far toward completion of filling potholes as Iowa City crews. Mashaw said the hole-filling project here is almost completed for the time being.

Iowa City street repair crews have used more than 100 tons of patching asphalt since March 13. The material used is mixed at a plant in Marion. It consists of bituminous oil at 250 degrees mixed with fine gravel. Beals said it is about the best patching material he has found.

The only better material, he said, is hot-mix material, which uses a heavier oil and is mixed at a higher temperature with gravel. He said this is available only when an asphalt paving contractor is mixing it for a job. This will probably be obtainable later this spring.

Both men attributed the rough streets to several causes. The streets didn't dry off all winter, and every day when some of the ice melted, water would run into surface cracks, widening the cracks when they froze. According to Mashaw, the amount of damage from this is dependent on the number of melt-freeze cycles, more than any other factor.

Heavy equipment necessary to clear the ice from the streets was also blamed for some of the damage. Beals said an effective parking ordinance could alleviate part of the problem by enabling crews to move snow from the streets before it melted and froze.

Many of the streets in exceptionally bad shape this spring probably should have been repaired a few years ago, Mashaw said.

A number of streets, including North Dubuque street, were armor coated last fall, and are badly pitted in spite of this. Mashaw said this is due to the weather turning cold too soon after the job was finished.

He explained that armor coat, which is a layer of hot oil with pea-gravel on top, must be worked into shape by traffic in warm weather. The weather turned cold last fall before the oil could bond with the street underneath.

Some of the worst potholes this spring were, and still are, at railroad crossings and along the Rock Island Lines tracks on Maiden Lane. Mashaw said repair responsibility in those cases rests with the railroad.

He said his responsibility is to persuade the railroads to repair them. Last year it was necessary for the City Council to approach the Interstate Commerce Commission to have the railroad repair some crossings.

Last fall, Mashaw made a report to the City Council recommending that a large number of streets be armor coated this summer. He also recommended that from Van Buren street to Dodge two blocks of Washington street, street be paved with concrete.

SUI Chorus And Orchestra Set Concert

SUI's Oratorio Chorus and the Symphony Orchestra will present a concert Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Main Lounge of the Union. Daniel Moe, assistant professor of music, will conduct the concert.

Tickets are free to the public at the Union. If all tickets have been distributed by Tuesday, persons without tickets will be welcome at the dress rehearsal Tuesday at 7:15 p.m. in the Union.

The program will open with the premier performance of Moe's own work, "Te Deum."

The text of this composition is a hymn of praise that has been in use since the fourth century.

Moe completed the "Te Deum" in July, 1961. It is the most recent of his numerous choral compositions, and was his doctoral dissertation at SUI.

The concert Wednesday evening will close with "Missa Solemnis in D minor" ("The Lord Nelson Mass") by Haydn.

Soloists for the Mass will be Mrs. Murray Engelhart, Iowa City, soprano; Mrs. Shirley Teuber, graduate assistant in music, alto; Eric Gier, G. Minneapolis, Minn., tenor; and Dale Ganz, G. Lincoln, Neb., bass.

Red Guards Flee When Berlin Tear Gas Battle Erupts

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berlin police routed Communist guards in a tear gas duel along the East-West Berlin border Thursday.

A Western police spokesman said Communist police hurled six tear gas grenades across the border of the French sector Wednesday in an attempt to drive a Western patrol away from the border barricade.

The West Berlin patrol returned the attack by hurling 10 tear gas grenades, the spokesman said, and the Communist guards fled when the wind shifted against them.

The incident occurred as Communist police patrols searched the refugee wall area for more tunnels like the one in which they killed a young West Berliner who had led numerous refugees to heaven in West Berlin.

Ex-Priest in Court

Walter Ryan (right), an ex-communicated priest, arrives at Superior Court in San Francisco, Thursday, to appear on charges by his wife, Alice, of failure to support his children. The wife is suing the Catholic Church for $2,375,000, charging the church spirited her husband away. Ryan termed the charge ridiculous. He said he contributed more than $10,000 since leaving home in May 1955. His wife and four children live in Glenn Head, Long Island. His attorney, Thomas O'Brien, is at left.

New WSUI Series

The first in a monthly series of discussion programs will be broadcast by radio station WSUI Monday at 8 p.m. The series, "University of Iowa Radio Forum," will feature the comments and opinions of SUI staff and faculty members on current issues and problems of the day.

Subject of the first of the half-hour programs will be "The Future of the Iowa Economy." Participating will be Prof. Clark Bloom, assistant director of the Bureau of Business and Economic Research; Loren Hickerson, executive director of the SUI Alumni Association; and Prof. Russell Ross of the Department of Political Science.

Permanent moderator of "University of Iowa Radio Forum" is Orville Hitchcock, professor of speech.

"The Future of the Iowa Economy" will be repeated on WSUI at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Sports Day Today

The Women's Physical Education Department is host today to 144 Iowa high school girls at Sports Day. SUI physical education instructors and majors will conduct a program of team and individual sports activities including swimming, trampolining, volleyball, folk dancing, rhythmic gymnastics, bowling, and apparatus work.

Rusty McClone, A2, Port Byron, Ill., chairman of Sports Day, said the aim of the event is to "inform high school girls of opportunities in fields of recreation, physical education, and physical therapy which are available to them."

Rose Hill, G, Toronto, Canada, will demonstrate rhythmic gymnastics. After morning activities the students will have a luncheon in the Union. An informal tea for the participants will be at 3 p.m. in the social classroom of the Women's Gym.

Sing Applications Due

Application blanks for University Sing are due today at 4:30 p.m. in the Office of Student Affairs, 111 University Hall.

The finals of University Sing competition will be held during Higher's Day week end, May 5.

Astronaut Claims He Was Scratched Because of Fear

SPARTA, Wis. (UPI) — Astronaut Donald K. (Deke) Slayton said Thursday that "ignorance of the problem and resulting panic" caused him to be scrubbed from America's next orbital flight because of a heart defect.

He indicated in letters to hometown friends that he hoped future decision in Project Mercury would be "based on fact rather than fear."

Slayton, 38-year-old Air Force major, has been scheduled to follow astronaut John Glenn into space until he was scratched in a surprise move by the National Aeronautical Space Administration early this month.

He said at Houston, Tex., Tuesday that he hoped to be cleared shortly for future space flights and was planning on taking part in the Gemini and Apollo moon shots. Slayton wrote Sparta Mayor Ralph Osborne that his own disappointment in being scrubbed from the next orbital attempt was "relatively unimportant."

"The possible damage caused to the national and international confidence in our manned space program is of great concern," he said. Slayton told William Normyle of the Milwaukee Journal by telephone from Langley Field, Va., that he had not expected the letters to be published and did not mean "to sound so strong."

Normyle quoted Slayton as saying there was an apparent, understandable "difference of opinion among the medical fraternity" on his physical condition.

Those who ruled against the flight, the Journal reporter quoted Slayton, "aren't as close to this whole program as Bill Douglas, the astronauts' special doctor and the others."

Slayton, replying to a consoling telegram sent him by Osborne, said "every effort is being made to realign things into their proper perspective and we hope to salvage most of the prestige lost."

Man in the News—

Fronzizi ('Thin Man') Forsook Nationalism

By United Press International Dr. Arturo Fronzizi was Argentina's first freely-elected president in three decades, but he was forced from office at the half-way point of his eight-year term with most of his reforms still incomplete.

In that four years, the slim 53-year-old son of an Italian immigrant family made it his goal to place Argentina's economy on a firm basis after years of extravagance by Juan D. Peron and the dictators who preceded him.

But ironically, Peron's supporters led to Fronzizi's fall. They won sweeping victories in the March 18 provincial elections. The nation's military leaders, fearing a resurgence of Peronist strength, immediately began pressure for his resignation because he had permitted Peronist candidates to run for office for the first time since 1955.

Fronzizi, a career politician since 1928 with the help of the 1,500,000 votes of the Peronist faction, but he quickly disillusioned their hopes for a return to the handout state.

Instead, he imposed a regime of strict austerity, designed to shore up the Argentine economy and enable it to attract the foreign investment needed to develop its vast resources.

Although Fronzizi had been a long-time advocate of a nationalized oil industry, he called in American companies to improve Argentina's production and soon wiped out its $250-million annual outlay for foreign oil.

Behind the scenes, members of his own Intransigent Radical party protested his abandonment of nationalistic policies, he turned more and more to financial help from abroad, and received in one lump a $329-million loan from the United States.

Fronzizi had tangled with both Peron and the military before and has come out on top. The former dictator repeatedly jailed Fronzizi, both for political activity and his acid criticism of Peron. The last time was in 1952. When Peron was ousted three years later, Fronzizi played an active part in the nation's revived political life, and when elections were held in 1958 he became president.

Fronzizi's personal austerity matches the economic program he tried to push through for Argentina. So thin that his nickname is El Flaco, the thin man, he has an ascetic face, a high forehead, and wears heavy horn-rimmed glasses.

The eighth of nine sons of an Italian mason, he first gained national prominence when he fought Peron in the Chamber of Deputies in 1946.

Fronzizi had entered politics while still at school in Buenos Aires. He was as uncompromising as a student as he was in later life against Peron.

He was selected as the top student of his class, but when he learned that his honor diploma was to be presented by dictator Jose F. Uriburu, he refused to accept it.

McKean To Present Three Lectures on 'Integrated Bar'

Dayton D. McKean, dean of the law in their state. This has been Graduate School and professor of political science at the University of Colorado, will give a series of three Shambaugh Lectures April 10-12 at SUI.

Entitled "The Professions in Politics: The Special Case of the Integrated Bar," lectures will be presented at 8 p.m. in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol.

On April 10, Dean McKean will speak on "The Professions in American Politics." "The Law and the Lobby" will be his subject April 11, and he will discuss "The Rise of the Integrated Bar Movement" on April 12.

"Integrated bar" refers to the procedure of permitting only those lawyers who are members of their state bar association to practice

Senate's Guido Takes Over In Argentina—For How Long?

BUENOS AIRES — Senate President Jose Maria Guido stunned the armed forces Thursday by suddenly stepping up to the presidency of Argentina without notifying the rebellious military leaders who deposed and banished President Arturo Frondizi.

The new president calmly dismissed speculation that the commanders might throw him out.

There was a tense, confused interval of nine hours between the exiling of Frondizi on a naval island and Guido's unprecedented and almost private oath-taking ceremony in the Supreme Court.

Guido's sudden action — after hours of refusing military pleas that he take the office — touched off a wave of anger among the top brass, creating an impression that he might not be allowed to wield executive power.

There were rumors about that Gen. Raul Poggi, army commander.

Dr. Arturo Frondizi left office with most of his reforms incomplete. For profile of the "Man in the News," see . . . Page 5.

er in chief and a leader of the bloodless coup that ended Frondizi's four-year regime early Thursday, had sworn himself in to replace Guido.

But in a pre-midnight news conference, Guido was a picture of cool confidence, declaring: "At no moment did General Poggi assume the presidency."

As senate president, Guido was first in line for the job; the vice presidency has been vacant.

What stunned the military was Guido's lightning change of mind. Throughout the day there were indications the generals and admirals were urging him to take office to preserve the impression of constitutional procedure. But he had appeared reluctant.

Then he suddenly took the oath before the Supreme Court with no advance notice and went off to Government House, where he plunged into a round of conferences to push ahead with plans for a new government.

Hours before, Frondizi embraced his tearful wife and then was flown off to an isolated navy island in the River Plate estuary for detention.

As the transfer of office occurred, Guido, a lawyer and member of Frondizi's Intransigent Radical party, said he was ready to call for elections.

With a new president in office, the military rulers opened a way to solve their No. 1 problem left by Frondizi's ouster — the formation of constitutional government that would avoid outright military rule.

But their second big problem — how to deal with the 2.6 million voters who still cling to ex-dictator Juan D. Peron who dogged the days of Frondizi throughout his four years of rule — remained.

Behind the Peronist peril lies the grave economic sickness inherited from a decade of Peronist dictatorship which Frondizi's auterity policies fell short of curing. The reaction to the coup by the believers in Peronism — backed by some 100,000 underground Communists and Castroites — could be violent. So could be the effect on Argentina's angry students who fear another military dictatorship may try to control their thinking.

In a long communique explaining their action, the military leaders declared they were shelving Frondizi because he lacked the moral and political fiber to unite the nation again and lead it against the great social disturbances threatened by resurgent Peronists.

Repertory Theatre Holds Tryouts Today, Saturday

Tryouts for the 1962 Summer Repertory company will be at University Theatre from 2 to 5 p.m. today and Saturday. Interested persons may attend either session.

Candidates will read from each of four plays: "Much Ado About Nothing," "The Miser," "Death of a Salesman," and "The Madwoman of Chailot." The repertory company of 16 men and 8 women will be cast immediately following the final day of tryouts. The specific roles will be assigned and the actors notified when commitments are received from those selected.

Company members will work on at least three of the plays and do technical work, such as costuming, lighting, and properties, for the fourth play.

Students may receive up to six hours of undergraduate or graduate credit for their work. Housing and summer session registration information can be secured by writing the director of summer sessions.

The repertory plays will be directed by University Theatre faculty members and one graduate student, David Schaal, assistant professor of television, will direct

"Death of a Salesman," John Terfloth, instructor in dramatic arts, "The Miser," James F. Gousseff, instructor in dramatic arts, "Much Ado About Nothing," and David Lamphier, G. Painesville, Ohio, "The Madwoman of Chailot."

Rehearsals will begin June 5, and continue for a month. The first play will open July 6, with the others following in nightly rotation until the 16th performance closes the season on July 24.

Meany Says Each Recession Since '49 Left Deeper Scars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany said Thursday that each of the four recessions weathered by the nation since 1949 left deeper scars on the economy and a longer line unemployed.

Administration's plan before the House Public Works Committee. The proposal also was endorsed by Govs. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania and John B. Swainson of Michigan.

The committee is considering legislation to grant the President standby authority to start a public works program when the labor force. Meany said this figure increased after each succeeding recession until after 1961, it leveled off at 5.6 per cent.

Meany said he was concerned about an "ominous change in the pattern of our economic recovery" after each of four recessions since 1949.

He said that one year after the 1949 recession, the unemployment rate stabilized at 4.1 per cent of the labor force.

Albright To Speak On 'Samuel' at 8 p.m. Wednesday

"Samuel," the third in a series of lectures on biblical personalities, will be presented Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Shambaugh Auditorium by Dr. W. F. Albright, visiting professor in the School of Religion.

Albright, who is professor emeritus at Johns Hopkins University, said the lectures are not biographical sketches. He said they discuss the place of biblical men in the history and religion of Israel.

Albright said Samuel "was the founder of the prophetic movement in Israel and the source of some of the most important theological ideas in the development of Israel's faith."

The lectures will continue April 17 with "Elijah," to be given at 8 p.m. in Shambaugh Auditorium. The concluding lecture, "The Book of Job Against the Background of Its Time," will be given May 7.

Albright has directed and co-operated in many southwestern Asia expeditions and has published several books.

1,182 Invaders Charged

Castro Begins 'War Trials'

HAVANA (UPI) — The Castro regime Thursday put 1,182 war prisoners on trial behind closed doors at heavily guarded Principe prison in Havana's suburbs.

It was the biggest mass trial in Cuban political history. The official charges against the prisoners, captured after last April's abortive Bay of Pigs invasion, were not disclosed.

Havana radio as heard in Miami, Fla., said the prisoners were accused of carrying out a "treacherous attack" against the Cuban people at the "direct instigation of the imperialistic Government of the United States."

Havana radio said trial board secretary Capt. Narciso Fernandez read the "charges" against the prisoners and that the reading took up most of the first session.

The Government denied the prisoners the right to counsel of their choice. It rejected an appeal that a token delegation of relatives or friends be permitted to attend the proceedings.

A five-man military tribunal sat in judgment on the captives, many of whom belong to some of Cuba's best known families.

Western newsmen specifically were barred from attending the trial, presumably being held in the outdoor patio, or courtyard, of the prison, once a fortress in Spanish colonial times.

The Government reserved press coverage to representatives of the local press and "friendly countries," presumably those behind the iron curtain and Communist China.

Outside Principe's two barred gates — the prison covers a city block on a hill overlooking the city — some 1,000 relatives and friends of the prisoners milled about restlessly awaiting news of their capture. The prisoners were paraded en masse before cameras and microphones in a "show" while a "jury" of Cuban newsmen cross-examined them.

Among the defendants Thursday were the three leaders of the invasion, Brig. Jose San Roman and civilians Manuel Artime and Eneido Oliva. At one time the Castro regime offered to exchange them for the release by the United States of Harry Winston, Negro Communist leader; Francisco (the Hook) Molina, sentenced to 30 years in New York after a cafe brawl in which a young girl was killed, and Pedro Albizu Campos, aged and ailing Puerto Rican nationalist leader.

Castro also encouraged efforts on two occasions to ransom the prisoners for tractors but arbitrarily ended the offer March 29.

Other hundreds attended religious services to pray for the prisoners.

All of the defendants are Cubans. They represent the invasion troops who surrendered after 72 hours of combat on Giron Beach when ammunition and food supplies ran out.

However, the Government executed five by firing squads last September after conviction of "common crimes." Another nine prisoners received 30-year prison terms.

The only Government press release on the proceedings identified the trial board members and those local and "friendly" newsmen authorized to enter the prison.

Civilian militia troops cordoned off the prison at 30-foot intervals. Three radio-equipped police prowlers were posted at each gate. Ten months ago, shortly after their capture, the prisoners were paraded en masse before cameras and microphones in a "show" while a "jury" of Cuban newsmen cross-examined them.

"THE GYPSY BARON" — an opera, by golly — will be heard tonight at 8 in place of the Chamber Orchestra Concert previously scheduled. (No, the opera is not by golly, it's by Johann Strauss, Sr.) Several distinguished singers are cast in "Der Zigeunerbaron": Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, Nicolai Gedda, Erika Koth, and Monica Sinclair. Otto Ackermann presides over the production with the Philharmonia Orchestra and Chorus. Actually, it's more of an operetta than an opera.)

THE MONTESSORI METHOD educating young children has aroused considerable interest in the community (partly because of Bookshelf reading, a season or so ago, of Dr. Montessori's "The Sorbering Mind"). Monday at 8 p.m., WSUI's Evening Feature will treat the subject of the Montessori "school," and people training in the method will explain its workings.

THE WORLD OF THE PAPERBACK is the new replacement for Press Profile, Saturdays at 5 p.m. TONIGHT'S FM FEATURE: the very same "Gloria," by Poulenc, as was a part of the SUI Christmas concert this season.
