

Answer to 'Missing Books' Problem

A very frustrating experience is a trip to the library for research work in the reference room and, upon arrival, finding that the needed periodical is not in its proper place. What is more exasperating is not knowing if someone is using the magazine, has used it and left it on a table, or whether it has been "swiped" and is not even in the building.

On the assumption that the publication may be on a table, the great quest in search of the missing magazine begins. This one-man safari is not only tiring and time-consuming to the prospective user, but is disturbing to those who have gone to the library to study.

A quarter-of-a-mile later the periodical may be found in varying circumstances. It may be in use, serving as a prop or pillow, or lying with a stack of other bound or unbound magazines.

The library's policy of asking that books and magazines not be reshelved by the user apparently stems from the belief, or proven fact, that the stacks are safer from corruption if somebody from the library staff does the job.

This may be true, but the problem of getting the most use from a single book in a single day is not alleviated. Asking the library to have an attendant go around constantly picking up books would not only add to the floor traffic, but require additional personnel the library does not have, especially during the busy hours of the night.

The time and energy problem could be eased by placing two or three large tables in the reference room to be used as a central return point for periodicals after they are used. This would, of course, require a little extra effort on the part of the user, but it would be a quick check, if it worked, as to whether a periodical is being used or not.

There is one set of shelves and a table opposite the "C's" and "J's" on which unplaced periodicals are taken but it is used primarily by library assistants when collecting books from the study tables during the day.

This is, of course, a minor problem but its elimination would make work in the reference room more convenient. Putting this idea into practice would require a high degree of student cooperation, but the results would be worth it.

Roscoe Drummond Reports —

Steel Price Fight Wounds Should Be Healed Quickly

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Now that big steel has capitulated to the power of the Presidency and rescinded its price rise, the need is to begin immediately to erase the scars in the battered relations between Government and a large segment of business.

What is most called for is to end the lacerating, divisive controversy as rapidly as U.S. Steel, under tremendous pressure from every arm of the Administration, ended the price increase.

Fortunately and much to his credit, U.S. Steel president Leslie B. Worthington included in his announcement an olive branch to the White House. This was his statement that among the factors which brought about the decision to cancel the price rise was "the desire to remove a serious obstacle to the proper relations between Government and business." There is every reason to expect the President will respond in the same spirit.

THERE SHOULD BE no minimizing the magnitude of the President's victory. Kennedy put all the power and prestige of his office on the line — and he won and big steel lost. It was a significant economic and political victory for the Administration.

The influence and propaganda of the White House, including every action it could generate — Justice Department anti-trust suit, Congressional investigations, massive Defense Department power to direct where steel would be bought — over-weighed all else.

But there were other factors which caused the industry to resolve its own economic doubts on the side of rescinding the increase. On this issue the President had the support of many conservative newspapers. And there was the force of the competitive market. When one of the big companies, Inland Steel, together with Kaiser, adhered to the old price line, it was evident that U.S. Steel would have difficulty selling at $6-a-ton higher. Then when Commonwealth took the lead in rescinding its own price rise, the other companies had to follow or put themselves into an untenable competitive position.

Friday and from 9 to 10 a.m. Saturday. Make-good service on missed papers is not possible, but every effort will be made to correct errors with the next issue.

All of these political, legal, and competitive pressures worked to the same end. They were irresistible. The steel industry, as well as the nation, may well find itself best served by avoiding the price rise because it now has the opportunity to increase profits by increasing the use of steel through lower prices.

IN LIGHT OF this welcome turn of events there is no reason and no room in the national interest for the Administration to allow any pique or hostility to linger in its actions. I doubt that there was any solid basis for an anti-trust suit against the steel companies. But under the new circumstances such action would, it seems to me, be an unjustified harassment and, at an early and appropriate moment, should be abandoned.

The need for all sides is to dissolve the after-effects of the controversy as quickly as possible and to get on with the urgent business of economic growth without inflation.

The resolution of this controversy will be an incalculable boon for two reasons:

1—IT WILL GIVE a strong perhaps a conclusive, underpinning to a wage-price pattern geared to increased productivity. It is a maximum assurance that the peril of inflation is under a long-term check-rein. The steel industry's new labor contract was its most moderate in post-war history. If it had been accompanied by a price rise, the prospect of other moderate labor contracts, as they came up for renewal, would have been thrown to the winds. In appraising steel's decision to rescind the price increase, I would not hesitate to say that the postwar inflationary spiral died as a consequence. No death could be more welcome.

2—THE WORLD MONEY market will breathe a sigh of relief at this evidence that price inflation will no longer imperil the strength of the dollar. The Government's ability to manage and bring to an end the serious outflow of gold reserves is strengthened. There will be a better climate of confidence into which U.S. Treasury officials can effectively move. The drain on U.S. gold is not over, but the danger is lessened and the outlook improved.

On Other Campuses

By ERIC ZOECKLER Exchange Editor

When Bob King, former Iowa assistant basketball coach, takes his family down to Albuquerque, N.M., where he will assume the head basketball coaching job at the University of New Mexico, he may be taking his life into his hands.

Just last week, a wave of "French Ultra" style terrorism hit the UNM campus, according to the New Mexico Lobo, student newspaper.

THE "BOMB-THROWING vandals" have been concentrating on doing several hundred dollars damage to fraternity and sorority houses. Reports indicate that the remaining Albuquerque population is safe, according to the Lobo.

The violence was apparently aimed at Greeks running for Student Council on the Progressive Student Party ticket. The PSP's candidate for student body president is a Negro, the Lobo reported.

The OAS styled attackers reportedly hit several houses with "cleanser bombs" which are made by inserting cherry bombs inside cans of kitchen cleanser.

Many houses reported broken windows and burned rugs as a result of the bombs and Kappa Kappa Gamma and Sigma Chi reported the Greek letters "Theta Nu Epsilon" were painted on their houses.

Theta Nu Epsilon apparently refers to the old Tau Nu Epsilon, a super-secret subterranean Greek pressure group, the Lobo said.

THE TERRORISM was preceeded by several signs appearing on the campus. "If Ed Lewis (Negro candidate) is elected, he'll be a victim of KKK," said one poster.

They then broke into the Lobo offices and posted a sign saying, "Acuff is a nigger lover." Stu Acuff, Lobo editor, has long been a leading figure in the fight for integration in Southern colleges.

Also preceding the outbreak of violence were reports from fraternity presidents of receiving threatening letters informing them that "apathy" in the Greek system must be ended or the author would take necessary measures.

THE PARTY IS over for a number of underage drinkers at Michigan State University.

A false identification card ring, operating from Armstrong Hall serving many residents and MSU students, has been smashed by Michigan State Police.

Authorities wrapped up a long investigation of the ring with the arrest of two MSU sophomores, Theron P. Robinson and Gerald Monkman, a part-time employee of the Michigan Secretary of State's office.

THE SCHEME OPERATED through a loophole in Michigan law which enabled Robinson to obtain birth certificates to use as a basis for false identification, the Michigan State News reported.

Detectives said Robinson got birth certificates from various Michigan county clerk's offices by posing as a student working on a thesis and asking to examine the county death records.

From the records, Robinson would obtain the names of the deceased persons who, if alive, would be over 21 and then request birth certificates for these names, police said.

He would then transfer the information onto special ID cards he printed himself and would sell a kit of three to underage students that could be used to obtain liquor.

Monkman admitted giving Robinson several driver's licenses he stole from the state office at which he worked.

THE HAEFNER REPORT recently received attention in the Iowa State Daily in an editorial headlined, "Daily Iowan Report Indicates Censorship."

The editorial, penned by Iowa State Daily Editor Dave Anderson said the adoption of the ideas presented in the report, "would be only an outward sign of several disturbing changes, all indicative of some measure of censorship."

Concerning the provision for having the publisher or a designated staff representative to be present in the newsroom whenever The Daily Iowan is going to press, the Daily commented:

"EVEN THOUGH the advice of a journalism faculty member can be of extreme value, his presence would hardly be required always at this time except for the purpose of censorship."

The editorial concluded by saying, "The recommendation suggests that The Daily Iowan publish... with a maximum of freedom and responsibility." With the tempting route to censorship left so wide open, it would be difficult for the paper's staff to fulfill the double role.

Give Officials Benefit of Doubt

To the Editor:

I disagree with Walt Keller's method of protesting racial discrimination at the expense of the name of the University of Iowa.

After considering the pressures on the University officials and comparing their action with that of other universities, I feel that they have made a reasonable attempt to end discrimination.

In February Dean Hult stated that the University "deplored" racial discrimination and that any renter proven guilty of discrimination in off campus housing would lose the approval of the University.

The problem is more complex than it appears, however. When an applicant is rejected by a renter, it must be proven that the reason for the discrimination is racial and not personal. This to say the least would involve lengthy and costly investigation and possible litigation. Only when a renter virtually admits before witnesses that he discriminates because of race can any action be taken.

In spite of these complications the University has removed approval in one instance. (This could be checked by changing the circular route of the picket line two hundred feet to the Office of Student Affairs.)

In addition the Board of Student Publications, Inc., has initiated a policy whereby it will not accept advertising from firms who have discriminated. The fraternities will remove their discrimination clauses by 1965. There are additional advances which can be investigated through CORE or SARE. (Investigation of teacher employment, for instance).

Certainly, if responsible, specific charges could be made against the University, picketing would be justified. I fail to see any specifics in any of the articles published by the group. What specifically is the bias report alluded to on April 13 and why must it be produced immediately? A picket of those actually guilty of discrimination would make more sense.

By recklessly attacking the University officials this group detracts from the efficacy of CORE and SARE who use reasonable though less dramatic measures.

If there is such a thing as school spirit among students it should include supporting their University and student government, realizing its complexities, and giving it the benefit of the doubt.

Although your initiative is admirable I feel that your methods are irresponsible; or perhaps indiscriminate would be a better word.

Please specify your attacks on the University.

Defends Peace Corps, Attacks Conservatives

To the Editor:

Miss Slavin's article concerning Kennedy's Peace Corps (April 12) is as incongruous as WELCH's candy in the State Department.

Her comparison between the Soviet's youth organization and the peace corps is completely unfair. There is absolutely NO pressure exerted on the young men and women to join the Peace Corps. Mainly, these young Americans wish to shape the world for a better tomorrow for the underdeveloped nations as well as our own. But, alas! the strong conservative defies the future as being synonymous with the past.

Since we compete against Russia in economics, armaments, propaganda and ideology, it seems quite justifiable that we compete for the approval of the merging nations of Africa and Asia. And the building of a strong Peace Corps can be an important instrument in winning the new nations approval on a humane level. But, of course, growth — in any fashion — is not congruous with the conservative mind.

I fear the conservatives are the only living species on earth that refuse to recognize regulated growth as a means of attaining a better future. Even trees — with the possible exception of BIRCH — realize they must grow or be overshadowed by others in their quest for a place in the SUN.

Germany's Neo-Nazism

When William L. Shirer, author of "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," spoke on campus last semester, he devoted part of his speech to the rise of neo-Nazism in West Germany. He commented on the number of ex-Nazis in the Adenauer Government. He said he was especially disturbed by the open pro-Hitler opinions expressed during a soldier's reunion. At that time, which was several years ago, a German friend of Shirer's told him the reunion of General von Ribbentrop's men was "much like the old days."

A recent editorial in The New York Times criticized sarcastically the way West German elementary schools present the history of the Second World War. Hitler's massacre of the Jews is underplayed; the German people are depicted as being almost wholly ignorant of the crimes against the Jews. Some textbooks blame Churchill for "prolonging the war by refusing to make peace." The editorial concluded: "We have been expecting it (something better in history teaching in West Germany) with increasing impatience, for a long time."

A Jewish woman from New York, who lived with her husband while he taught sociology at the University of Frankfurt for a year on a Fulbright grant, wrote a critical article for a German magazine, "Iwen." She regarded the Germans, generally, as a "suspicious mass." She described the former Nazi concentration camp at Dachau as a "national altar." Germany, to her, was "like a cemetery full of ghosts."

Letters, which came to the magazine in response to her article, were mixed in tone. Fifteen per cent were favorable, the rest were either "anti-semitic, nationalistic, arrogant, stupid or friendly," according to the magazine's editors.

The woman's husband fled Germany with his parents in 1938 at the age of 11.

The latest incident of anti-Semitism in West Germany occurred this week at a meeting of a German society. A speaker was criticizing the Jews for their ritual slaughter of animals. He said it was cruel. A voice shouted, "They (the Jews) should go where they came from." Most of those present applauded.

The society is called the German Society for the Protection of Animals.

Ross Recommends Iowa Have Governor in Fact And Name

A seven-point program of changes to make the governor of Iowa "the chief executive in fact as well as in name," was outlined Tuesday by Russell Ross, associate professor of Political Science at SUI.

The seven-point program was: The governor must have a four-year term rather than two as provided in the 1857 constitution. 2. A governor should continue to be allowed to succeed himself. Iowa should not fall into the trap of prohibiting reelection of the governor, as have 15 other states. 3. The governor should be allowed to appoint a single director as head of administrative agencies, thus abolishing such boards and commissions as the Tax Commission, Board of Control and Liquor Commission. The directors would be accountable directly to the governor. 4. The governor should have an item veto. Iowa is one of only eight states where the governor does not have power to veto parts of a piece of legislation without killing the entire measure. 5. An executive amendment procedure should be given serious consideration. Under this procedure a governor can send a bill back to the legislature with minor changes and indicate that he will sign the bill if the legislature accepts his recommended changes. 6. The governor should be allowed to reorganize administrative agencies by proposing reorganization to the legislature. If no action were taken by the legislature within 60 days, the reorganization would automatically become effective. About half the states now have this practice. 7. The governor can function best if annual sessions of the legislature are held, allowing for annual budgeting. Under this plan, one session is for general law making and budgetary matters, and the second session is concerned exclusively with appropriations and taxes.

Ross, former administrative assistant to Gov. Norman Erbe, addressed the state council of the League of Women Voters of Iowa at Newton.

Seebeck vs. City: $18,000—

Court Hears Damage Suit

By JOE GEHRINGER Staff Writer

Louis Seebeck Tuesday ended the first day of testimony in his $18,000 damage suit against the city and three city officials by testifying that he had never been notified that his permit to move a house through the city had been revoked.

Seebeck appeared in Johnson County District Court, presided over by District Court Judge James P. Gaffney of Marengo. Seebeck, of West Branch, brought the suit against City Manager Peter F. Roan; Roan's administrative assistant, S. W. McAllister; City Engineer Fred Gartzke and the city.

The suit resulted from action taken Dec. 9, 1959 by the city in demolishing a house Max Yocum, present City Councilman, was moving for Seebeck. Roan said the house was blocking the street and the action was deemed in the best interest of the city.

Seebeck, who testified most of the afternoon, said he had begun to move the house and was told by an Iowa City policeman to stop or be arrested.

He said he conferred with city officials and decided to seek the legal counsel of William Bartley, but by the time Bartley arrived the city crew had begun to demolish the house.

Seebeck said the house was a total loss.

In the morning session, four lawyers presented opening arguments to a jury of six men and six women, selected Monday.

Adam Kreuter of Cedar Rapids, representing Seebeck, claimed the route the housemovers were using on Magowan Street had been measured and the house would have gone through.

The city contends that although Seebeck had a permit, he had not checked with the city forester to make sure the house would clear trees bordering the route.

City Attorney William Sueppel, said the house-moving crew had trimmed trees without consent of property owners, and that city officials received numerous complaints.

Sueppel said Seebeck was reminded to move the house back over the Magowan Street route several times, but refused to do so.

Sueppel said the house was torn down to benefit the public and that it was the city's responsibility to keep the streets clear.

Sueppel said the house was stopped when more trees needed to be trimmed, but property owners would not consent.

D. C. Nolan, representing Roan, said Roan ordered the house torn down as a city official performing his duty and that he was not liable in the suit.

William L. Meardon, attorney for McAllister, said McAllister was performing his duty, as were the men who tore down the house.

Attorney William H. Bartley, also representing Seebeck, examined the witnesses.

The chief witness of the morning was City Clerk Walker Shellady. Bartley produced a record of a permit issued to house-mover Max Yocum for a period dated Dec. 9-16, 1959 and Shellady said he had never been notified it had been revoked by the city.

Shellady added that he had signed the permit, although it bore City Manager Peter Roan's signature.

Shellady said no action had ever been taken by the city council on the permit and produced the minutes for October, November and December Council meetings of 1959.

10 Groups Advanced In U Sing Competition

University Sing contestants gave such good performances Monday night that the judges found it impossible to limit the field to six finalists.

Judges Daniel Moe, Wendell Whalium and Joseph Noble finally decided that "the high quality of the performances rendered here tonight necessitates promoting ten chorale groups to the finals May 6 rather than the six we originally planned."

Semi-finals chairman Karren Egger, A2, Cedar Rapids, announced that the contenders will include six mixed choruses; three women's groups, including two sororities and one house in Burge; and one medical fraternity, Phi Beta Pi, which has won University Sing for the past two years.

Clara Daley House of Burge Hall, and Currier Hall were eliminated from the competition for the golden trophy.

Charles Dick, A2, Hampton, will be master of ceremonies for the University Sing finals which are part of Mother's Day weekend.

Selections ranged from the popular "Moon River" and "Climb Every Mountain," to obscure spirituals such as "Ain't That Good News" and "The God That Abraham Praised."

The finalists in the mixed choruses division are Alpha Phi and Delta Chi, directed by Kay Arnold and Jim Morrison; Delta Gamma and Sigma Pi, directed by Ron Oxendale; Gamma Phi Beta and Sigma Nu, directed by John Quinn; Kappa Alpha Theta and Delta Tau Delta, directed by John Appel; Kappa Kappa Gamma and Sigma Phi Epsilon, directed by Susie Gaylord and Corky Kress; and Pi Beta Pi and Alpha Tau Omega, directed by Muriel Pfister.

The finalists in the women's groups are Alpha Delta Pi, directed by Cynthia Carter; Delta Zeta, directed by Ann Howard; and Maude McBroom House of Burge, directed by Marilyn Mortley.

The finalist in the men's groups was Phi Beta Pi, directed by Alex Lund.

'Oldtime Jet' Kills Motor, Is Grounded

An F86-L Sabrejet cut its engines for the last time Tuesday after it landed at the Iowa City Airport. The jet is now destined for a new tour of duty as a display piece.

The plane was donated to the Arnold Air Society, a group of AF-ROTC cadets, by the Iowa Air National Guard. The F-86 is outdated and now being replaced by the F-89.

The plane was the last F-86 that the Air National Guard had. "Many groups are asking for these planes and apparently getting them," said Cadet Airman 2/c Grant Polk, A2, Lake Park.

Cadet Lt. Col. Joe Kennedy, A3, Iowa City, corps adjutant, requested the Air National Guard for the plane.

Polk said the plane would be put on display either at the Iowa City Airport or City Park.

"Many people will get their first chance to see a jet plane," he said, "and it will be of special interest to many of the cadets."

The engine and all classified parts will be taken out of the plane and will be polished. The cadets would like to mount it on a concrete stand at the airport, Polk said. However, all plans are tentative.

Dance Show Set For April 27-28

The SUI Orchestral Club, a modern dance organization of the Women's Recreation Association, will present its annual concert at 8 p.m. April 27 and 28 in Macbride Auditorium.

The concert, "Orchestris in Modern Forms," will feature 20 dance numbers presented by 13 Orchestris women under the direction of Mrs. Mary H. Juare, instructor in physical education.

Club President Martha Liemann, A3, Spirit Lake, said preparations and rehearsals for the concert have been going on since last fall.

The SUI Dance Club, a smaller organization of the Women's Recreation Association, will assist the sponsoring club in the concert, she added.

All the dance numbers, Miss Liemann said, have been choreographed by Orchestris members, and represent a broad concept of subjects related to different historical periods.

The dances will present varied studies in the elements of dance, depicting cultures ranging from primitive to modern, she added. Miss Liemann said the Orchestris will trace the medieval and pre-classical periods, and come up to the modern times spanning the movements of impressionism and modern jazz.

Orchestris members, she said, organized two rummage sales during the year to raise funds for the costumes to be used in the concert.

They are also helping to make the costumes designed by Marcia C. Thayer, G, Coralville, who is director of the Dance Club.

John Lewers, A1, Cedar Rapids, who has composed some of the music for the concert, will play the piano for the Orchestris.

The concert is open to the public. Tickets can be purchased for $1 at Women's Gymnasium, Paper Place, and Whetstone's.

IS QUEEN ELIZABETH WORTH HER KEEP?

The Queen costs British taxpayers more than $1,000,000 a year. A few critics gripe. Yet most of her subjects are happy to foot the bill. Public Favors JFK's Stand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House Tuesday reported overwhelming public response in favor of President Kennedy's action in the steel price situation and Democratic leaders said his "victory" strengthened his hand in Congress.

At the same time, the administration appeared to be trying to avoid any impression that it was in a mood to crack down on the industry for last week's abortive price rise. To this end, it was said to be considering creation of an impartial panel to study steel prices and profits.

Reddington's Single Gives Iowa 4-3 Win Over Bradley

By Staff Writer

Joe Reddington's clutch single with one out in the ninth inning gave the Hawkeye baseball team a 4-3 win over Bradley here Tuesday afternoon.

The narrow victory, registered after Bradley fought back from a 3-0 deficit, was Iowa's second straight win over the Braves and brought the Hawks' season mark to 6-3-1.

Today the same teams meet in a 3:30 game on the Iowa diamond. Neither the Bradley coach nor Iowa's Coach Otto Vogel has announced his starting pitcher.

Reddington's clutch hit Tuesday brought a quick finish to a deadlock which had all the earmarks of an extra inning game.

Iowa had threatened to break the tie in the eighth inning when first baseman Howard Kennedy lashed a triple to deep left center with no men out. But Jim Farley struck out Bob Sherman, forced Dick Lee to ground out to second and nailed Ron Isler on a pop-up to shortstop to get out of danger.

Bradley's ninth inning batsmen were a soft touch for winner Tom George, who retired the dangerous part of the Brave lineup, including a strike out of huge cleanup man Ed Wodka.

In the home half of the ninth, Jim Freese grounded out to second and George walked, advancing to second on a passed ball. Iowa's leading hitter, Paul Krause was walking intentionally to set up a force play situation, but Reddington promptly nullified all strategy with his game winning single to left.

The Hawkeyes scored their first three runs on only two hits. After Freese walked and George popped up to the catcher, Bradley pitcher Tom Farley thumped Krause on the helmet putting men on first and second.

After Reddington's infield single loaded the bases, Ron Isler struck out swinging. But Kennedy drilled a single to center scoring Freese and Krause and sending Reddington to third. Reddington then scored when an attempted pickoff throw got by the third baseman.

Bradley ruined George's shutout bid in the fifth when Farley walked, took second on a fielder's choice and scored on Ted Bruington's single to center.

The Braves tied the score in the sixth on three-straight singles, an infield error and a run-scoring ground out to second.

Iowa used only nine men throughout the game and managed seven hits to Bradley's eight. Reddington, Isler and Kennedy each collected two hits and Lee added another.

Bruington and Steve Karch led the visitors with two hits each.

After today's game, the two teams travel to Peoria, Ill., for a four game series ending Saturday with a doubleheader.

Late Rally by Pirates Tumbles Hapless Cubs

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates scored six runs in the last two innings Tuesday to come back from a five-run deficit and defeat the Chicago Cubs, 10-6, for their sixth straight win.

The defeat extended Chicago's losing streak to seven games without a victory. Pittsburgh has yet to lose this season.

The Cubs tied a major league record by using five pitchers in the eighth, but all the damage came against Calvin Koonce, Barney Schultz and Jack Warner. Koonce, who had allowed only one hit in 3 2/3 innings in relief, walked Dick Stuart to open the inning.

Schultz then took over and hit Donn Clendenon before Don Hoak doubled to tie the score and bring in Warner to pitch.

Don Leppert clubbed a single to drive in Hoak with the winning run.

In the ninth, two walks, an error, Leppert's single and Bill Mazeroski's triple accounted for a trio of runs off pitcher Tony Balsamo.

The Cubs blasted Pirate starter Tom Sturdivant for five runs in the first inning on homers by Lou Brock and Ron Santo, a triple by Ernie Banks a double by Ken Hubbs and a single by George Altman.

But the Pirates cut the deficit to one run on Leppert's homer in the second and singles by Stuart and Clendenon, Hoak's double and Leppert's sacrifice fly in the fourth. The latter uprising finished Cub starter Jack Curtis with Koonce taking over.

The last of four Pittsburgh hurlers, Harvey Haddix, working three innings, was credited with the win, and Schultz took the loss.

Hubbs, the Cubs' rookie second baseman, was the batting star with four singles and his double to boost his batting average to .355.

Elliott Retires; Won't Meet Snell in Mile

FULBURN, England (UPI) — Herb Elliott, the Australian wonder runner who broke four minutes for the mile 17 times, hung up his spiked shoes Tuesday because "I realize that I am no longer interested in smashing records."

Elliott's retirement, because of his loss of interest and inability to train while studying at Cambridge University, meant that he is passing up the anticipated "dream mile" in the Commonwealth Games this year against New Zealand's Peter Snell, who broke Elliott's mile record in January.

"I would like to have had a crack at Snell," Elliott admitted at the little cottage here where he lives with his wife Anne and their two small children. Another child is expected in September.

Told that track fans throughout the world also would regret his not meeting Snell, Elliott said, "They'll get over it."

"New men will come again" Elliott predicted. "I could not go on against Snell. I would not be true to myself and, above all, I would not be honest with Australia and the Australian people."

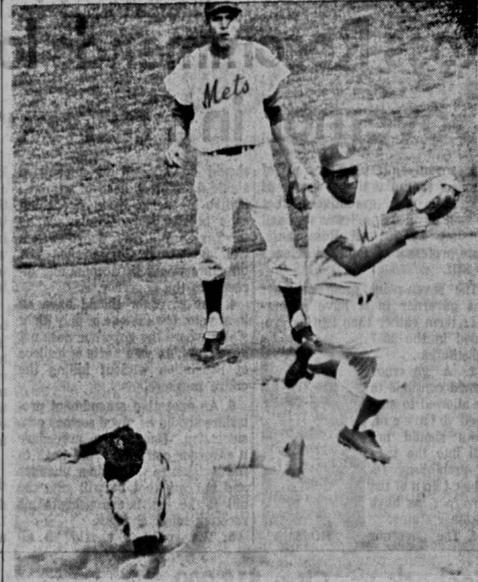

In Auckland, New Zealand, Snell said he was disappointed at Elliott's announcement, but said he understood Herb's reasons and probably would do the same thing in his place.

Elliott's record of 3:54.5 set at Dublin on Aug. 6, 1958 stood for 3 1/2 years until Snell barely shaded it with 3:54.4 at Wellington, New Zealand, Jan. 27, 1962.

Snell said he realized that Elliott's studies and duties as a family man prevent him from training properly.

"I wouldn't have been satisfied, nor would any runner, to have met and beaten Herb when he was below true peak form," said Snell.

Although his mile record has been broken, Elliott retains the world record for the so-called "metric mile," the 1,500 meter run, of 3:35.6 which he set in winning that event at the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome. Snell won the 800-meter title at Rome.

Down and Out

Jim Pendleton, Houston Colts outfielder, is nipped at second on the first half of a second inning double play against the New York Mets at the Polo Grounds in New York Tuesday. Mets shortstop Felix Mantilla makes a leaping throw to Gil Hodges at first to complete the double out as second baseman Rod Kanehl backs up the play which started with Hal Smith's grounder to pitcher Jay Hook.

Colts Hand Mets 5th Straight Loss

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Buddin hit a three-run homer off Herb Moford in the 11th inning Tuesday as the Houston Colts handed the New York Mets their fifth straight defeat, 5-2, in the first meeting of the two new National League clubs.

Houston opened up a 2-0 lead in the sixth on Norm Larker's two-run 375-foot home run into the lower right field stands, following the second of three straight singles by Roman Mejias.

The Mets got one unearned run off Jim Golden, the relief man. Gus Bell's homer into the upper stands in right with two out and nobody on in the ninth tied the score.

Sox Shutout Twins, 8-0

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Chicago's rookie Joel Horlen hurled a brilliant six-hit, 8-0 shutout over the Minnesota Twins Tuesday as team mate Floyd Robinson drove in seven runs with a home run and two doubles.

The 24-year-old right-hander was in complete command in gaining his first victory after a 1-0 loss last week to Los Angeles. Horlen also picked on the Twins for his second major league triumph. He beat them last Sept. 4 in his White Sox debut as a relief pitcher.

In shutting out the Twins, Horlen borrowed a chapter from starter-José Camilo Pascual, who suffered his first defeat after blanking Kansas City 8-0.

The White Sox jumped on Pascual for two runs in the first inning. The Twins' ace right-hander gave up a walk to Joe Cunningham on four straight balls, then Robinson smashed the first pitch for a 870-foot homer over the left center field fence.

Robinson lofted a fifth inning double that drove in two runs and crashed a long wrong-field double in the ninth that glanced off the outstretched glove of Harmon Killebrew and brought in the Sox final three runs.

The 23-year-old halfback was drafted in the eighth round a year ago while he was still in college. He will report to the Browns' training camp early in July.

Yanks, Led By Skowron Whip Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — The lower half of the explosive New York lineup supplied the power Tuesday night as the Yankees whipped the Baltimore Orioles 8-3.

Bill Skowron drove in three runs on a pair of hits, while Elston Howard and Clete Boyer each collected three hits and two RBIs.

Boyer and Skowron hit solo homers, with Skowron's 330-foot drive into the left field bleachers breaking a 3-3 tie in the seventh inning. Skowron was the first batter faced by Dick Hall, the second of Baltimore's five pitchers.

Boyer, who leads the Yanks with 9 hits in 13 trips to the plate, then doubled and scored on another double by Bobby Richardson. That finished Hall, and put New York ahead 5-3.

Tigers Rout Washington

DETROIT (AP) — Billy Bruton paced an assault of four home runs in support of Jim Bunning's sparkling pitching Tuesday and the Detroit Tigers routed the Washington Senators 9-2.

Bruton cracked a three-run homer and a run-producing single for his first four runs batted in of the season. Al Kaline, Dick Brown and Norm Cash also homered as the Tigers banged out 11 hits off three Washington pitchers.

The first six runs were yielded by loser Bennie Daniels, who stopped Detroit on five hits opening day.

Brown and Cash hit their home runs off Ray Ruppelmeier. Brown, coming out of a slump that caused him to be benched, had three hits. Washington . . . 100 000 100—2 7 0

Donovan (2-0) struck out six and walked three. He was in trouble only once. A fine throw by right fielder Willie Kirkland in the first inning cut down Ed Bressoud at the plate as he tried to score on Gary Geiger's single, keeping Donovan's shutout intact.

Bill Monbouquette (1-1) who pitched 12 scoreless innings against the Indians in his last appearance, stretched it another three innings.

Walter Krause, professor of Economics, will deliver a paper, "Current Issues in Foreign Aid," at the annual meeting of the Southwestern Social Science Association in Dallas, Tex., Thursday through Saturday.

Krause has been long associated with the U.S. Department of State in technical and administrative capacities, both abroad and in Washington. He was a member of the U.S. delegations to the U.N. Conference on Economic Development in Bangkok, Thailand, 1955, and to the Colombo Plan Conference in Saigon, South Vietnam, 1957.

Good Listening—Today on WSUI

THE "RESURRECTION" SYMPHONY of Gustav Mahler will be the stereo feature at 7 p.m. The recorded performance is that of the late Bruno Walter. Because of the length of the Mahler work, the University Choir Concert, recorded March 28, will not begin on WSUI until about 8:25.

OTHER MUSICAL EVENTS of note today include the Monteverdi Vespers at 10 a.m. and The Seven Last Words of Christ by Dubois at about 1:10 p.m. The first of three Lessons of the Tenebrae, by Couperin, will be heard tonight at 6. Principal offering tomorrow morning will be a BBC ceremony called The Stations of the Cross.

LISTENERS TO FM (KSUI-FM, that is) are hearing their fair share of Easter music, too. Tonight, for example, the St. John Passion, not included in WSUI's schedule, will be broadcast in entirety from 91.7 megacycles. KSUI transmits

A NIGHT WITH THE CRIME SQUAD
Under cover of the San Francisco fog, anything can happen: rape, robbery, murder. And it's the job of the S Squad to stop these crimes before they start. This week, a Post writer tells how a squad of undercover cops cracks down on hoods. Shows how they keep their activities hushed up. And gives an hour-by-hour report of a typical night's police work.

Osburn Tells Function Of Analog Computers

A SUI professor, who has gained nationwide prominence for his work with analog computers, presented a paper at a National Science Foundation (NSF) Symposium April 13-14 at Michigan State University.

James O. Osburn, professor of chemical engineering, discussed the use of the analog computer as a teaching aid. His work in this field is known as a result of his research sponsored by a grant from NSF.

Osburn reported on the present situation of analog computers. Others in the field presented their findings and experiences.

He cited the increase in the use of analog computers in the last five years. The computers are being used for research and experimentation in several departments of the university including electrical engineering, mechanical engineering, and medicine.

Osburn, explaining the use of the computer, said that it works on a system of simulation. By simulating actual conditions, the solutions to problems are possible.

At the present time Osburn is continuing research on the application of the analog computer to biological problems. This work is supported by the Charles F. Kettering Foundation with a two-year grant.

A typical biological problem for the analog computer might involve predicting the movement of a substance in the body as it moves in the bloodstream. All data concerning the substance can be traced by simulation. The rate of movement from one part of the body to another also can be estimated.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Income received by Americans hit another new high in March as business advanced across a broad front.

The Commerce Department reported Tuesday that personal income climbed by $2 billion to a yearly pace of $43.3 billion — a record — as payrolls expanded in manufacturing, state and local government, services and distribution.

Parking Racks For Bicycles Installed Here

New parking racks with capacity for 200 to 250 bicycles have been installed around the campus for SUI bicyclists, brought out of winter wraps by the advent of spring.

The most obvious of the racks are those installed for 56 bicycles at the north end of Macbride Hall, and for 66 bikes at the south end of Schaeffer Hall. These racks have been set in concrete slabs.

R. J. Phillips, SUI physical plant superintendent, pointed out that the racks have been placed close to streets in order to give convenience to the riders, and to remove any necessity for riding along the sidewalks.

Other racks have been installed since last fall at the Chemistry Building, University Library, Burge Hall, and Quadrangle.

Although they have presented no great problem so far, a large number of motorcycles and motor-scooters are being parked at the bicycles racks, Mr. Phillips noted. One bad aspect of this has been the leakage of oil from crankcases onto the concrete slab, he added.

Phillips emphasized that the new racks are designed for the convenience and safety of riders and pedestrians.

Record 100 Picketers Walk In Race Bias Demonstration

By STEVE SANGER
Staff Writer

Five SUI professors were among the more than 100 persons picketing Old Capitol Tuesday. SUI President Virgil Hancher crossed the picket line on the way to his office, but made no comment on the demonstration.

The ninth demonstration since April 5, it was the largest to date. The sit-in at the Office of Student Affairs continued for the second day. Four students remained in the office from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Sit-in participants are "waiting for news of the Huit investigation." M. L. Huit, dean of men, is conducting an investigation of 10 charges of racial discrimination in off-campus approved housing brought by The Daily Iowan in late February.

Huit is out of town and will not be back until Thursday.

Purpose of the picketing "is to protest University inaction on discrimination on and off the SUI campus, including bigotry in housing, employment and barbershops," according to Walter Keller, G. Brooklyn, N.Y., leader of the demonstrators.

The names of some of the picketers Tuesday and their reasons follow:

James Murray, associate professor of political science: "I don't think the University Administration condones discrimination, but it certainly is not above suspicion."

Donald W. Sutherland, assistant professor of history: "I am more or less incensed that the Huit report is apparently forgotten. I hope that the campus can either hear some news of it or learn why there has been such a delay."

Anthony Costantino, associate professor of general business: "My thought on the subject of discrimination is that people like Hancher and Huit should speak out loud and clear and speak again and again and again."

David Gold, associate professor of sociology: "In picketing, I am simply following President Hancher's own prescription. He has, on a number of occasions, publicly suggested that the University should be a moral and intellectual leader in Iowa and the community."

Lane Davis, associate professor of political science, remarked he would "stand with the statement" made by former student body president John Niemeyer, Friday. Niemeyer, while picketing, said, "I decided to start putting my money where my mouth is."

R. V. Cassill, author of the best-selling novel, "Clem Anderson," and an instructor in the Writer's Workshop, said, "We are all interested in the University making an announcement on the impropriety of racial discrimination."

A Negro football player, David Watkins, A4, Leavenworth, Kans., had this answer: "A great amount of segregation exists in Iowa City, especially in barbershops. When I saw that picket sign about barbershops discriminating, I decided to join."

"Also, a Negro can't rent a decent place to live. Only hard-up landlords will rent to us. Our money is as good as anyone's."

A dozen Negroes were present including football players Al Hinton, Felton Rogers and Dayton Perry; and Seymour Gray Jr., member of Student Senate.

Allin W. Dakin, administrative dean, crossed the picket line, and commented, "Quite a crowd today, isn't it?"

The Rev. Khoren Arisian Jr., minister of the First Unitarian Society, had this to say: "Picketing is simple, effective and public. One ought to stand up and be counted. One should put his action where his mouth is."

Keller said the picketing and sit-ins will stop after today, but will resume next Tuesday after the Easter recess. They will go on indefinitely because "Huit or Hancher has not made any kind of statement," he added.

OAS Strikes in Algiers; Blows Up Newspaper

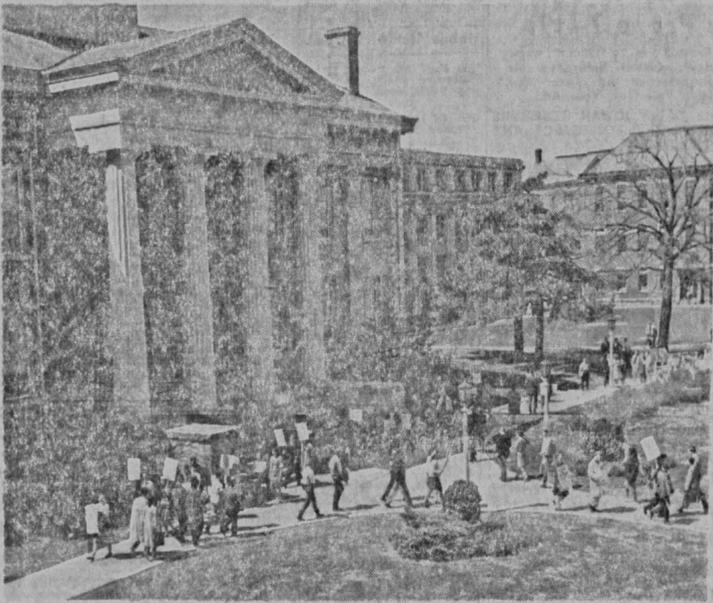

ALGIERS (UPI) — European Secret Army Organization (OAS) terrorists blew up the office of a leading newspaper in downtown Algiers Tuesday and OAS gunmen in Oran mowed down groups of Moslems.

Reports from Oran said about 20 Moslems were killed by roving OAS gangs. Other Moslems were killed in Algiers and Philippeville to raise the terror total since Jan. 1 to 3,709 killed and 8,012 wounded.

Picketing Continues

James Murray, professor of political science, (center) was one of five faculty members who joined in Tuesday's picketing of Old Capitol. Tuesday's group was the largest since the demonstrations began April 5.

Msgr. Conway Explains 1962 Ecumenical Council

"To lay groundwork for the eventual reunion of Christians and to make necessary reforms in the Church to make it more desirable," are likely to be two of the subjects to be treated by the Ecumenical Council the Rev. Msgr. J. D. Conway told the Kiwanis Club Tuesday.

The Ecumenical Council, which will meet in October and continue until dismissed by the Pope, was called in 1959 by Pope John XXIII. The last Ecumenical Council was called in 1870.

The Rev. Msgr. Conway said it was a long process leading toward reunion, a complex subject. However, he added, the spirit of the people and the work done by theologians tend to support reunion.

Over 15 bound volumes of suggestions for topics to be taken up by the council were submitted to the Vatican, Msgr. Conway added.

The Council, which will meet in the nave of St. Peter's Church in Rome, will conduct its session entirely in Latin.

Msgr. Conway said that an Ecumenical Council of the type to be held in October usually results in some important reforms within the Church.

Delegates to the Council are bishops, cardinals, and heads of orders. About 3,000 are scheduled to attend. This number of delegates would make the Ecumenical Council the largest ever to be held.

The Rev. Msgr. D. J. Conway is pastor of St. Tomas Moore Chapel, and is director of the Catholic Student Center.

Khrushchev Turns 68 Without Red Fanfare

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Khrushchev was 68 years old Tuesday.

In keeping with custom, the Soviet press and radio did not mention the birthday and there was no public fanfare.

If Khrushchev celebrated the occasion, he probably did it with his family and perhaps a few friends at his spacious town house overlooking Moscow or at the country house outside the capital.

JFK Confers With Chairman Of U.S. Steel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy and U.S. Steel Board Chairman Roger Blough, denounced less than a week ago by the Chief Executive for the abortive steel price rise, held a "useful and cordial" conference at the White House late Tuesday.

The Administration promptly let it be known that the meeting was arranged in New York last Friday, apparently after U.S. Steel decided to cancel the price hike. One official said it stemmed from the President's wish to have cordial relations with business.

Thus the unheralded 45-minute meeting between the President and Blough appeared to be an attempt to heal wounds left by the angry dispute. The attitude at the White House was in sharp contrast to the President's denunciation of U.S. Steel last Wednesday for raising its prices.

The price rise was rescinded late Friday under the weight of Kennedy's spirited attack and the decision of other so-called "big steel" companies not to follow the lead of U.S. Steel.

Blough arrived by a rear entrance to the White House and met alone with the President at 6 p.m.

Despite the two-fisted manner in which Kennedy assailed "a tiny handful" of steel executives last week for raising prices, Administration officials painted a somewhat different picture after Tuesday's conference.

One such official said the President wanted to have "a responsible and cordial relationship with business interests" and that this had been Kennedy's aim since taking office.

Last Friday when Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg was in New York talking with U.S. Steel officials about rolling back the price increase, he learned that Blough planned to be in Washington Tuesday.

From these New York talks came a decision that it would be useful to both sides, Government and steel, if Blough met with the President while he was here. Thus the meeting was set up but not announced.

Kneeling, Excommunicant Begs Prelate for Mercy

NEW ORLEANS, La. (UPI) — On her knees, a woman excommunicated in a segregation dispute begged the mercy and forgiveness of the Roman Catholic archbishop of New Orleans Tuesday. But she said, "I didn't back down on my stand even after he refused to bless me."

Mrs. B. J. Gaillot, 41, one of three excommunicated Monday by Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel, appeared at the archbishop's residence at midmorning. The 35-year-old prelate was leading a group of women pilgrims in a prayer on the lawn in front of his residence.

MRS. GAILLOT They knelt before a tall white statue of Our Lady of Fatima.

"On my knees I begged his forgiveness, but Satan intervened and he would not listen to me," she said.

The archbishop's order also excommunicated political leader Leander Perez Sr., of nearby St. Bernard and Plaquemines parishes, and Jackson B. Ricau, executive of the White Citizens Council.

Two of the women in the pilgrimage group grabbed Mrs. Gaillot and tried to prevent her from reaching the archbishop, but she
