Orbit Flight Delayed Until Next Week

Flaw in Parachute Mechanism To Keep Carpenter on Ground

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The civilian space agency announced Thursday night that it has postponed the scheduled orbital mission of astronaut Scott Carpenter until next Tuesday because of technical difficulties in the space capsule's parachute mechanism.

The flight had been set for Saturday, but was called off at a late-evening meeting attended by Carpenter and officials of the Project Mercury men-in-space program.

The federal space agency said the new postponement in the Carpenter shot stemmed from "irregularities" that had been noticed in the three-orbit flight of fellow astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. last Feb. 20.

At first, it was believed the problems in the system, which automatically opens the capsule's giant parachutes to slow it for an ocean landing, were "random."

But, scientists added, "further analysis of the data from the Glenn flight revealed possibilities of similar malfunctions" in the flight of Carpenter's "Aurora-7" space capsule.

Mercury officials said additional sensing instrumentation would be installed in the apparatus between now and Tuesday, and that some changes in the related electrical system would be made.

In an official announcement, the federal space agency quoted Carpenter as terming the delay as part of the continuing process toward a greater reliability, taking advantage of past flight experience.

"It gives me a better chance to work with confidence," he was quoted as saying.

The delay also gave scientists some hope for a clearing of weather which already has threatened to foul up one of the main landing areas Saturday.

After running along smoothly for several days, the progress of the countdown toward the Carpenter flight was disrupted within a matter of hours by a forecast of bad weather, the crash of a plane which apparently wiped out a 14-man emergency recovery team, and finally by the announcement of the parachute system troubles.

Miller Speaks at Governor's Day—

Cooperation, More Military Needed in Push-Button Age

By JOE GEHRINGER Staff Writer

If the United States is to maintain itself, in the age of the push-button war it must be done by a combination of strong state units,

Kennedy Says FBI Probing Estes Scandal

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy said Thursday the FBI and other Government agencies are pressing their investigation to determine "whether any federal employe or member of Congress was involved" in the Billie Sol Estes scandal.

Kennedy, disclosing that 75 FBI agents have been assigned to the case, noted that action has already been taken against some Agriculture Department employes and he told his news conference:

"This government is staying right on Mr. Estes' tail."

Kennedy's statement that the Justice Department and Internal Revenue Service have been conducting "a very thorough investigation" of the tangled affairs of the Texas promoter followed the formal ordering of a full-scale Senate probe.

The go-ahead for a series of public hearings that may reach into high echelons of both the Kennedy and Eisenhower administrations was voted by the Senate's Permanent Investigation subcommittee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.).

How soon the hearings will start was left open.

Kennedy obviously was primed for what turned out to be the first question put at his news conference — the Billie Sol Estes affair.

The President twice emphasized that the 37-year-old Texan's financial manipulations were first brought to public attention when the Federal Government indicted him April 5 on fraud charges.

"This matter came to public attention because this Administration indicted Mr. Estes, before a state agency in Texas or any place else moved," he said.

Kennedy conceded that of 2 million federal employes some succumb to pressures of those who attempt to influence them, "as a result of congressional intercession of as a result of special favors in the Administration."

increased military might, and co-operation of every citizen, Maj. Gen. Junior F. Miller, Iowa Adjutant General, said Thursday.

Miller spoke before about 200 ROTC faculty and cadets at a luncheon in the Main Lounge of the Union, following his review of the troops for the 78th annual Governor's Day.

He said, "We no longer have the security of two oceans in defending our nation as in days of old. In this modern push-button world, there is the danger of the thermonuclear attack."

He said the ability to recover from an attack depends on the strength of the states on their own resources because federal agencies and control might be unavailable.

Miller emphasized the position of the United States today requires the creation of a larger military establishment to meet world-wide commitments.

"If we are to be recognized as a first class nation we must be willing to pay the price," he continued.

"The defense posture of this nation and the security of our way of life is the responsibility and concern of every citizen, and every citizen should give not only his money, but his time to preserve our way of life," he said.

He said President Kennedy has stated that it is the responsibility of every citizen to work with agencies of the Government in times of anxiety.

"We, the people, must support these public and Government agencies — and our Government leaders must generate programs worthy of support," he said.

Miller praised the ROTC programs saying they play an important role in our defenses by providing future officers and by training men in the qualities of leadership.

SUI President Virgil M. Hancher introduced Miller. Miller replaced Gov. Norman A. Erbe who is recovering from an illness which hit him while he was attending the Seattle World's Fair.

Michael Arganbright, SUI ROTC Corps Commander, who received the Air Force ROTC Ring and Association Awards, introduced the speakers.

At a press conference before the luncheon, Miller said he is in favor of President Kennedy's desire to strengthen national defense, but is opposed to Defense Department plans to cut back the National Guard and reserve units.

Miller said the Defense Department plans to have a few "top priority" units ready for action and to retire the others to "paper organizations" that can be picked up again when needed.

Miller said he favors the maintenance of the Guard units although they have a lower percentage of their men ready for combat. He explained that it was determined recently in conference that it takes thirteen weeks to prepare a unit for combat no matter what its present size of strength is.

He said the unfavorable reaction to recent call-up of National Guard units is a result of poorly-kept records and the central offices' lack of familiarity with the problems of local units.

He suggested Guard and Reserve units be put on a local basis similar to the Selective Service System so local problems could be evaluated before members were called.

He described the situation in Laos as "alarming" and said he believed it is a political maneuver "to keep the pot boiling."

"I feel strongly about the position the United States is taking in facing up to the world situation," he said.

He said he believed the sending of troops to Berlin prevented war, but called the move a calculated risk that "someday may catch up with us."

Kennedy Says Cease-Fire Must Continue

Some Indications That 3 Princes Will Meet Soon for Negotiations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy said Thursday the United States is counting on the three rival princes of Laos to agree on a "government of national union" that would avoid general war in the jungle of Asia.

He told a news conference there were indications that the three princes — pro-Western Premier Boun Oum, neutralist Souvanna Phouma and pro-Communist Souphanouvong — would meet for talks soon. However, there were somewhat contrary reports from the Far East.

The President was unable to say how long U.S. troops ordered to Thailand in the face of Communist victories in Laos might be kept there. Noting that they had just arrived, he said it would depend on conditions in Thailand on other areas.

Asked what he would consider an effective cease-fire in Laos, he replied that he would prefer to see the Communist troops withdraw to the positions they held before they broke the cease-fire last week with a surprise attack.

But he added: "Peace along the line that now may exist is essential." The Communist-led forces, having overrun northwest Laos, are now near the Mekong River border of Thailand. Some U.S. troops sent to Thailand by the President are near the border.

Appealing to the Laotian princes to "produce a national government of national union," the President said:

"I have already indicated the great hazards of a shooting war in Asia. In Asia, it is our object to bring about a diplomatic solution which will make the chances of such a war far less likely."

Reports from Laos were less optimistic than the President about any early meeting between the quarreling princes. A dispatch from Vientiane said that Prince Boun's right-wing strongman, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, showed little enthusiasm for talks with neutralist Souvanna.

Before leaving Taipei, where he obtained support from the Chinese Nationalists, Boun said in a formal statement that "we would like very much to enter a joint government." He added that there would have to be an agreement by the neutralists that Laos would not be communized.

The President told his news conference he continued to hope that a coalition government could be formed. He said latest intelligence reports contained no word of a further breach of the cease-fire.

During the conference the President also:

• Said the question of a United European political federation is one for the people of Europe to decide. The interest of this country, he said, is the freedom and defense of Europe involves the freedom and defense of the United States.

• In the matter of French and German complaints about U.S.-Russian talks on Berlin said "we wish to have some voice because if the moment of truth comes" the United States would have to carry the major burden in defending the city.

• Spoke out against French President Charles de Gaulle's theory that France should develop its own nuclear deterrent. He said the United States advocates a defense based on NATO instead, and if individual nations start developing their own nuclear arsenal, an increasingly dangerous situation would be created.

• Asked about news reports that he had decided to name Robert C. Weaver as secretary of the Health, Education and Welfare Department upon the expected resignation of Secretary Abraham Ribicoff, the President said "I have made no decision."

• Said the Administration was keeping in close touch with the breakup of negotiations over railroad work rules.

Play Review—

'Mattress' Seen As A Sheer Delight

By DOUGLAS RINTELL Written for The Daily Iowan

If one sought the polish of perfection, he would not find it in "Once Upon A Mattress" as performed last night for the benefit of Project AID. What abounded in this production based on the legend of the princess and the pea was a bubbling excitement that can only be called sheer delight.

From the lilting melodies by Mary Rodgers to some superb performances, notably those of Patricia Schumbach as a domineering queen and Paul Pancotto as a drab crown prince, McBride Auditorium was aglow with the happiness of a shining musical event.

There were moments at the beginning of the play when the narrating minstrel's voice became inaudible or when the romantic and comic duet of the court's chief knight and the queen's lady-in-waiting seemed terribly off key. But when Winnifred the Woe-Begone swam the moat and entered the stage, there was a sigh and a steadily upward climb thereafter.

The story related a variation of the legend in which Dauntless, the prince, must marry first in order for the young folk in the kingdom to follow his lead to the state of matrimony. Not wishing to lose him, Dauntless' mother, Queen Aggravain, prepares tests for the girls who come to the court seeking the hand of the prince, tests which will reveal the true character of a genuine princess. Unfortunately, the tests, unbelievably unfair, cannot find Dauntless a wife until the entrance of the Maid of the Marshland, Winnifred.

The queen's test now becomes one of sensitivity; she will place one pea under twenty mattresses. A true princess, she explains, could never sleep under such circumstances. When Winnifred appears after her examination she is dead tired, black-and-blue and the wife, finally, of Dauntless.

In the role of Winnifred, Mary Sue Grove, captivated a fictitious court and a very real audience. Her renditions of "The Swamps of Home," recalling happy days in the muddy wasteland of her far-off kingdom, and "Happily Ever After," a tuneful comparison with Cinderella, Snow White and Rapunzel, were comically wonderful.

The high point of the show, though, was the rousing finale of the first act. Here, Dauntless sings his love song, "I'm in love with a girl named Fred." Mr. Pancotto and Miss Grove led the ensemble in a spirited romp, the impression of which seemed to linger throughout the slowly paced second act.

There is no better way, perhaps, to hold the memory of "Once Upon A Mattress" than to remember the lyric to the minstrel's opening song: "You can tell a lad, by her elegant hair; but a genuine princess is exceedingly rare." Last night's heroine was "a genuine princess" in a rarely found good-natured musical.

Pickets To Protest Beauty Shop Bias

By STEVE SANGER Staff Writer

Blackstone Beauty Salon, 118 S. Dubuque St. is expected to be picketed today beginning at 9:30 a.m., to protest an incident involving a Negro woman student Thursday.

The student, Ora Ann Elliott, A1, Austin, Tex., said she tried to get an appointment to get her hair shampooed and set at Blackstone's and was refused.

Iowa City Mayor LeRoy Mercer and William F. Suplee, city attorney, have been notified. Ralph L. Neuzil, county attorney, was unavailable Thursday, but will be notified today.

Legal authorities were notified because of a "possible violation of an Iowa law," which forbids unequal treatment of persons in public places, according to Walter Keller, G. Brooklyn, N.Y. Keller supervised the students who tested Blackstone's, one other beauty shop and two barbershops, "to see if Negroes would be treated equally."

After Miss Elliott left Blackstone's, she went to Townner's Beautycraft, 10 S. Clinton. She said she received an appointment with "no fuss."

While Miss Elliott was at the beauty shops, two Negro men students, with white friends for witnesses, went to two different barbershops. They each were given haircuts.

Diane Klug, A3, Cedar Rapids, and Martin Johnson, G, Des Moines, both white, worked in conjunction with Miss Elliott. The account of the three follows:

Miss Klug, with Johnson, went to Blackstone's at about 12:40 p.m. Miss Klug asked for an appointment to have her hair shampooed and set. She was told by the receptionist that time was available at 10:30 Monday morning and anytime after 1:30 Monday afternoon. Miss Klug took the 1:30 p.m. appointment.

They met Miss Elliott a few minutes later, told her the times that were open. The Negro student went to Blackstone's and asked for a Monday appointment to get her hair shampooed and set.

The receptionist told her, "Wait, I'll get someone else to talk to you."

Another woman came to the counter and thumbed through the pages of the appointment book. She told Miss Elliott, "No time are open Monday."

Miss Elliott "just stood there" and then asked her about the next week. The reply was, "No, I don't think any of the operators would be willing to do it. We don't have the facilities."

Miss Elliott said, "But all I want is a wash and set." She left, went to Townner's and got an appointment. She said later that she has gone twice to the University College of Cosmetology, Inc., 21 S. Dubuque St.

Later in the afternoon, two Daily Iowan reporters went to Townner's and asked if special facilities were needed to do a Negro woman's hair. Townner's receptionist said her establishment "didn't use anything special."

When the two reporters went to Blackstone's to talk to the owner, Mrs. Noel Harrison, 1804 Glendale Rd., they were told by the receptionist that she was unavailable then and would not speak to them later either. She could not be reached by telephone Thursday night.

M. L. Huit, dean of students, was notified of the Blackstone incident by the students involved. He told the Iowan he would rather not comment until he knew more of the details. "It looks like a matter for the civil authorities, not the University," he said.

Nixon Backs Kennedy In Thailand Decision

PASADENA, Calif. — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon says he supports President Kennedy's action in sending troops to Thailand.

In an interview with the Pasadena Star News, Nixon said he saw the President's move as "a welcome change from the effort to urge on Laos a coalition government including Communists."

Nixon added that "coalition government with the Reds is not possible. We must make it clear to the world that we will stand with our Allies."

Arrives at Reviewing Stand

Project Aid's Play Deserves SUI Support

The second performance of "Once Upon A Mattress" will be presented tonight at 8 in Macbride Auditorium.

The proceeds from the musical comedy go to Project AID, which is raising money to provide scholarships for deserving students.

Those people responsible for the successful production of the show are to be congratulated. They have donated freely their time and efforts for a worthy cause. The director, actors, stage crew, and many others responsible for publicity, ticket sales, and general promotion of the production have worked for its success with no financial retribution.

These people have already done their part to help this AID project. There are, however, still many people who can make the whole thing a smashing success by their participation — the SUI community.

Tickets are $1. The show will be presented again tomorrow at 2:15 p.m. and 8 p.m. A small contribution to a big cause, but if enough people make that small contribution, Project AID will get a big boost.

Support Project AID by your attendance at "Once Upon A Mattress." Help Project AID, help SUI.

Free Ducats to Dixie

Again it has been left to Harry Golden, the free-swinging editor of the Carolina Israelite, to shine the guiding light through what everyone else was ready to concede a darkened, entangled mess.

Once again applying his pat formula for solving modern man's complexities — simplicity — Golden has offered to pay the return trip home for the Reverse Riders after their "northern vacations" are over.

It is Golden who strides softly through the mire, examines the evidence and concludes rightly that the whole mess is a joke — albeit a cruel one.

One only plays into the hands of a prankster by screaming at a hotfoot; that, after all, being the object of the game. To conquer the prankster one has only to smile through the pain and return the hotfoot at the opportune moment.

It isn't easy to smile at foolish pranksters, but there isn't much choice after smelling the burning shoe leather.

We're left with the alternatives — scream and concede the prankster his game or drive home a counter blow.

Nobody's Laughing

It isn't funny or cute to be forced out of bed at four in the morning — especially by a deafening loud fire alarm. Quadrangle dorm residents were again forced outside Wednesday night by a false alarm.

But the loss of sleep isn't the only inconvenience. If room keys are left behind, you're locked out. If you're cramming for the big test at 8:30 the next morning, you're out of at least 45 minutes study time.

We cannot see what pleasure or kicks any college student could possibly get from setting a false fire alarm. If he laughed, he probably laughed alone because a sense of humor in the early morning is pretty small.

Greater implications can also be drawn from a false alarm. It costs the University money to enlist the aid of the Iowa City Fire Department, and it costs the Fire Department time and money to send its men and trucks out on a call.

A dormitory fire drill is excellent. It is essential to determine resident exit routes, and needed exits. But false alarms aren't necessary — and not at all funny.

Evidence has been discovered that at one time some strange people must have lived in this country. Historians have dug up evidence of a race of people who lived at home, paid their bills, and spanked their children when they needed it.

Grows Like Magic

Administration Should Clean House in Estes Scandal

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Sen. John L. McClellan, (D-Ark.) has made the right — and inevitable — decision in announcing that his Senate Subcommittee on Government Operations will investigate the Billie Sol Estes scandal.

"Sufficient facts," he says, "have already been discovered to warrant a full-scale investigation and public hearings."

They sure have. Take the case of Assistant Secretary of Labor Jerry R. Holleman who has just resigned because he could see that it would soon come out that he had accepted a $1,000 gift from the indicted Texas cotton allotment manipulator.

Here is a sub-Cabinet official who allowed Estes to provide his air travel on one instance, who asked Estes to pick up the $2,413 cost of a reception given by Secretary of Labor Goldberg — who said no when he heard about it. Then, at about the same time, Mr. Holleman raised with Billie Sol his personal financial difficulties and took $1,000 from him.

But has Mr. Holleman in his own judgment violated any ethical standard or committed any offense against good government? He blandly says no, and he has the unmitigated gall — or so it seems to me — to affirm his innocence in his letter of resignation to President Kennedy.

WHY DID he tell the President he was resigning? Because he had done anything improper? Oh, no. He said he felt he should resign because "the incident (of taking money from Estes) will be misunderstood."

Misunderstood? The truth is that Assistant Secretary of Labor Holleman in his relations with Billie Sol Estes committed the same offense as did Sherman Adams in his relations with Bernard Goldfine. He accepted large gifts from a man doing business with the Federal Government, including business with the Labor Department which Mr. Holleman was administering.

Mr. Holleman wants the public to think that the only reason he needed to resign was that his offense would be "misunderstood" and that this "misunderstanding" would "embarrass" the Administration.

This is pretty shabby stuff. It should be clear that Mr. Holleman had to resign because his offense was understood not misunderstood. I doubt that President Kennedy thinks it is right for officials of his Administration to accept gifts from people doing business with the government if they will not be "misunderstood."

I would expect the President to show some of his authentic anger about this and make it clear that it isn't just embarrassment he wants to avoid, but rather that it is such shabby conduct that he will not tolerate it.

There are other unexplained facts which warrant Sen. McClellan's promise of a full-scale public airing. A disturbing example is the action of the Department of Agriculture enabling Estes to store grain on the basis of a bond far lower than required of other vast surpluses of government storers.

It was not just the Department's granting of this overly modest bond which did Estes the greatest benefit. The first one-year $700,000 bond was required of Estes beginning in Feb. 1961. It was based on a falsified accounting.

The Department considered making it $1 million for 1962, but an official of Agriculture ruled against the increase, which thus permitted Estes to escape a new examination of his finances by certified public accountants. The real favor to Estes was not merely the low bonding, but the decision allowing him to escape further accounting.

ONE DEPARTMENT official involved in this action has been transferred to another job. If this official did no wrong, why should he be transferred? If he did wrong, doesn't this transfer leave an impression of a cover-up?

Obviously, Sen. McClellan's committee and staff can't afford to waste any more time. The word from Texas is that records are beginning to disappear. There is one particular record which Billie Sol called his "Washington Project." It shows unspecified payments to unspecified people of $243,000.

I should think the Administration would want to clear this thing up — and clean it up — fast and fully.

Hot weather is here and finals are coming. Studies (academic and naturistic) have gone to the riverbank. Real suntans are taking the place of tube-tans. And the sale of beer and liquor in Iowa City continues to soar. Women are replacing short dresses with more becoming short shorts (at least the leer doesn't have to stop right above the knee).

COMMENTS ON THE WORLD SCENE: The situation in south-eastern Asia is so tense that officials are predicting another population explosion in the near future. (So many young men are getting married now to avoid the draft and then there is always the possibility that somebody will push a little button and explode in another way.) And the Administration is so worried about Billy Sol Estes that it is going to send the family on a lecture tour to tell the American public about Teapot Dome and Sherman Adams.

The Student Senate is hesitating to drop Town Men representative Jim Rogers, from the Senate despite the fact he dropped school April 25. It is just a bit ironic that Rogers tried to eliminate one of his fellow Town Men from Senate candidacy on the grounds that he wasn't a full-time student. Rogers is taking 3 hours of special research which is a defense for those who want to keep him. Why the hesitation?

Project AID, probably the best idea ever to come out of the Senate, is currently sponsoring a musical "Once Upon A Mattress." A good show for a worthy cause, every SUI student should support it. There aren't many places in this town where you can have such good entertainment at reasonable prices — one dollar.

The Daily Iowan's fabulous softball team will face the Union team again this Sunday. We should win this one because we have promised to editorialize for higher wages if they aren't too tough. No other serious challenger to our so far undisputed perfect record? We have yet to score more than our opponents but after all, "It matters not who wins or loses and all that rot."

At SUI, our biggest problem is discrimination. At State College of Iowa, it's that most students can't spell bourgeoisie. SCI's student newspaper complains that the Des Moines Register only emphasizes the bad news about the college and a reader points out that the Register also has misspelled the word (I'm afraid to write it more than once) in one of its editorials. The Register countered that the reader (a SCI prof) copied the word wrong but admitted they had used the wrong gender of the French adjective. Meanwhile, the college paper is raving that no one uses the word that much anyway.

The retiring staff of The Daily Iowan has had periodic fretting sessions in the last few weeks bemoaning the incompetence of the new staff. This seems to be an annual event. Despite the fretting, and to the dismay of the "Village Voice" fans and their like and President Hancher, the Iowan seems to live on.

The boss lady at Vassar recently issued an edict against promiscuity at that school. Some girls quail because they thought she was out of line. The ones who stayed apparently feel there's not much she can do about it anyway.

BEST MOVIE OF THE WEEK: Romanoff and Juliet (although it has been here before and hasn't improved since). WORST MOVIES: "Rome Adventure," "The Misfits," and there are several bad ones at the passion pit. SUGGESTED READING: The "Old Geste" page in Wednesday's Daily Iowan.

FINK OF THE YEAR: A careful survey of the weekly awards of Fink of the Week reveals that one person has been it so many times that he easily qualifies for the distinguished title of Fink of the Year, and since this is the beginning of a new year as far as this paper is concerned, the award shall be made. To none more deserving could it go, the winner is Ron Andersen, A3, Dike.

Letters to the Editor— Raps Hatfield Article

To the Editor: I would like to quote William Cowper to Larry Hatfield: "The man that dares traduce, because he can with safety to himself, is not a man."

Larry Hatfield's thoughtless condemnation of the state of Iowa in Thursday's DI indicates that he has never been out of Iowa or he is unbelievably immature. Larry Hatfield would have some sacrifice something; but, he gives no indication of what. Any punk can blindly suggest that changes should be made without supporting his theory with possible solutions.

I think, very seriously, that Larry Hatfield should realize, in his position, that he must write intelligently and prudently and use every resource to convey honest and reliable material in his editorials.

For example, I would suggest that he take a drive up to Black Hawk County and observe the many new public and private buildings and the fine new highways leading into the very progressive city of Waterloo.

And, while there, for his own necessary journalistic development, he might look up other facts before shooting off his mouth. He criticizes the town of Mechanicsville, but I doubt if he has taken time to drive over to get first-hand information.

The fact that he holds a responsible position with the DI, doesn't entitle him to clutter up the newspaper with every meaningless whim that comes into his little mind. Learned people discriminate in their reading just as they do in their buying habits.

Larry Hatfield could do something beneficial for the people of Iowa. He could change his mind and leave the state, and quickly, before he writes any more editorials.

Hope for Less Bias

To the Editor: With reference to Mr. Currie's excellent editorial article of May 15 — may I say that I agree that we need to force whites to mingle with colored people and give themselves a chance to see that there is no significant difference between them.

Although Married Student Housing has many serious faults — crowded conditions, high rent, etc. — it does have one tremendous advantage. In the housing areas all races have a wonderful opportunity to get to know each other and to become friends if they want to, or to be just good neighbors if they want to, or to dislike each other and leave each other alone if they want to. At any rate, no one is deciding for us from what group we are to be permitted to choose our friends.

This situation is particularly valuable for those students (like myself and my husband) who grew up in small Iowa towns with their homogeneous populations. For many, this is our first chance to get out of our "small, small white worlds." I am particularly happy that our children can grow up in a heterogeneous environment — at home and at school — and can grow up with friends on the basis of individual characteristics and grant to all their personal and civil rights as dignified human beings.

I am optimistic that the next generation of decision-makers will be much less biased than ours is, due to forced school and housing integration. So, for a policy of non-discrimination in Married Student Housing, I am grateful to the administration of the University. I hope that they will find some incentive — economic or otherwise — to convince private landlords to adopt a similar policy.

Books — In the Browsing Room

The following books are newly arrived in the Browsing Room: "1975: and the Changes to Come" by Arnold B. Barach and the Kiplinger Washington Editors. A dramatic forecast in pictures and text of the pattern of life ahead in communications, transportation, education, investments, business and the home; based on social developments that can be accurately predicted and on technical innovations that are already a certainty.

Leslie Greener. As the High Dam rises on the Nile forming a 300-mile long lake an ancient country rich in prehistoric relics and monuments of Egyptian, Roman, Turkish and Christian art is disappearing. The book gives the reason the dam must be built, examines the loss to human knowledge it may involve and describes in personal terms what certain individuals and groups are doing to try to save as much as possible.

"The Whispering Land" by Gerald Durrell. The author of "A Zoo in My Luggage" again writes of some animal "best friends," this time from Patagonia and a tropical paradise in Argentina. His descriptions of foxes, fur seals, guanacos, rheas and various birds is as lively and evocative as a film.

"Goya: A Pictorial Biography" by Vyvyan Holland. Goya's remarkable character is brought to life by a fascinating and illuminating text illustrated with 120 photogravure illustrations and four color plates.

ROME (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor's trip to the island of Ischia to shoot scenes with her leading man, Richard Burton, has been postponed again until at least June 4, a spokesman for the "Cleopatra" film said Thursday.

The co-stars, still being seen together regularly in Rome night spots, originally were scheduled to travel to the Bay of Naples island May 14. The date was then put off until May 21.

Since Miss Taylor is scheduled to do 10 days of filming on Ischia, Thursday's announcement means she will continue to draw salary until at least June 14. Every day the 30-year-old actress appears before the camera or is "on call" for filming, she receives something in excess of $9,000. The studio has not confirmed persistent reports that her daily salary, including expenses, is $14,000.

Runners at Big 10; Hawks in Crucial Test

Cretz Says: 'Hope We Get Within Top 4'

By HARRIETT HINDMAN
Assistant Sports Editor

A record-setting mile relay team, two good distance men, and a flashy speedster named Bill Frazier lead Iowa's track team into the two-day Big Ten Championship meet at Purdue this afternoon.

Iowa Coach Francis Cretz expects a good showing from his Hawkeyes. "I hope that we'll be able to finish in the top four," Cretz said. "The teams to beat are Michigan, the defending champion, Michigan State and Wisconsin."

One of Iowa's top performers undoubtedly will be Frazier, who set a new Iowa record of 1:50.2 in the 880-yard run last Saturday. That time was one-tenth of a second from the Big Ten record of 1:50.1. Frazier's strongest competitor in the half mile, providing he runs this event, will probably be Ergas Leps of Michigan who won the race last year in 1:54.4.

Cretz expects to be in the discussion with, among others, the sophomore from Princeton, who will compete at a meeting of the Big Ten coaches Thursday night.

Before leaving Iowa City, the coach said, "He'll probably run the 880 and the quarter. I know he could win the 660 if he competes, and I think he could win the 880, too. If Frazier runs the half, that will give Roger Kerr a chance to finish high in the 660."

Other high finishes for Iowa are expected to be in the discus throw, with Floyd Webb competing; the 660- and 880-yard runs, in the low hurdles and the mile relay. Gary Hollingsworth, Gary Richards, Bill Frazier and Roger Kerr will run the relay. Hollingsworth will replace Tom Egbert who ran the first leg of the race at Drake Relays April 28 when the Hawkeyes set a new Iowa record of 3:12.7. Egbert hurt his leg in the meet with Northwestern last Saturday, and Cretz says that he has been pleased with Hollingsworth's performances.

Jim Tucker and Gary Fischer are Iowa's hopes in the mile run. Tucker will also compete in the two-mile. Cretz commented, "It's hard to run the mile and two-mile in that order; it's much easier to run the two-mile first. Tucker's performance in the two-mile depends on how he comes out of the mile."

Four Hawkeye runners will compete in the quarter mile. Bill Mawe, Fischer, Ralph Trimble and Frazier are the men Cretz says is counting on to come through.

New Opponents Slated for Cagers

The Iowa basketball team will play in two December tournaments and will meet two new opponents next season.

The Hawks, who open the 1962-63 season Dec. 1 at Evansville (Ind.) College, will participate in the Kentucky Invitational Tournament at Lexington Dec. 21 and 22 and the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore. Dec. 26-29.

Two new opponents — Clemson College of South Carolina and Ohio University — will meet Iowa here. Fourteen Big Ten games have been slated, half of them to be played here.

The schedule:
Dec. 1 — Evansville college at Evansville, Ind.
Dec. 10 — St. Louis U. at St. Louis
Dec. 15 — Ohio U. here
Dec. 17 — Clemson here
Dec. 21, 22 — Kentucky invitational tournament at Lexington, Ky.
Dec. 26-29 — Far West Classic at Portland, Ore.
Jan. 5 — Illinois here
Jan. 7 — Michigan here
Jan. 12 — Minnesota at Minneapolis
Jan. 14 — Wisconsin here
Jan. 19 — Ohio State here
Jan. 21 — Michigan State at East Lansing
Feb. 2 — Loyola at Chicago
Feb. 9 — Northwestern at Evanston
Feb. 16 — Purdue here
Feb. 18 — Indiana here
Feb. 23 — Ohio State at Columbus
Feb. 25 — Michigan at Ann Arbor
Mar. 2 — Northwestern here
Mar. 4 — Wisconsin at Madison
Mar. 9 — Illinois at Champaign

Hold Still, Marsh!

Marshall Bridges, Yankee pitcher, gets final check by trainer Don Seger after being floored by a line smash off his forehead from the bat of Boston's Pete Runnels. Bridges returned to the mound to win his first American League game, beating the Red Sox 2-1 at Boston Thursday, which moved the Yankees into a tie with Cleveland for the league lead.

Wilkinson, Schrier In Big 10 Semis

MINNEAPOLIS — Iowa's Steve Wilkinson, Mike Schrier and the Hawks' No. 2 doubles team advanced to the semi-final round of the Big Ten Conference tennis tournament here Thursday.

Wilkinson whipped Ohio State's John White, 6-3, 6-0 to advance in the No. 1 singles bracket. The Sioux City junior meets No. 1 seed Ray Senkowski of Michigan today. Senkowski is defending conference singles champion.

Schrier defeated Mike Hannas of Purdue, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1 in the first round and Illinois' Bruce Stafford, 6-4, 6-3 in a preliminary match. Schrier receives a tough challenge today from No. 1 seed Jim Tenney of Michigan in the fourth singles competition.

Schrier and Wilkinson teamed to provide one of the day's most exciting matches in downing Tom Boatman and Frank Noble of Illinois, 4-6, 7-5, 6-3 in the No. 1 doubles match.

The Iowa duo was down 5-3 and three match points in the second set and rallied for the win. Schrier and Wilkinson defeated the Buckeyes' John Thomas and Jim Weaver in an earlier match, 6-2, 6-3.

The day's big surprise came when Iowa's Denny Ellertson and Dave Strauss, seeded No. 1 in the second doubles bracket, "upset" Northwestern's Ken Paulson and Skip Gage, 11-9, 6-2. The Wildcat team was regarded as the tournament's best in its respective spot, but had not played together enough this year to deserve a seed.

The Hawks finished the day tied with Illinois and Indiana for third place with 14 points behind Michigan with 27 and Northwestern with 24.

Giants Lose To Cardinals

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — St. Louis scored an unearned run off Billy O'Dell in the ninth inning Thursday and beat San Francisco 1-0 behind the six-hit pitching of Bob Gibson.

It was Gibson's fifth victory against two losses. He struck out 10 Giants and often had them swinging late at his blazing fast ball.

In the ninth, Red Schoendienst singled to left with none out. Julian Javier, running for Schoendienst, stole second with one down and moved to third when Ed Bailey's low throw went into center field. Javier scored on Charley James' two out single to deep shortstop.

Gibson gave only one hit until the sixth inning. He was in constant trouble from then on. Jim Davenport doubled with one out in the seventh. Jose Pagan smashed a liner past second but Schoendienst flashed to his right, grabbed the ball and doubled off Davenport.

Baseball Team Could Play Spoiler Role

By GARY SPURGEON
Staff Writer

The role of spoilers has been assigned to Iowa's baseball team this weekend as it heads into the crucial portion of the schedule. The Hawkeyes are on the road against Purdue today and move over to Champaign for a doubleheader against Illinois on Saturday.

The Hawks have a chance to spoil Illinois' bid for a share of the Big Ten title. The Illini are one game behind Michigan in the conference standings. Three Illinois victories and a Michigan loss this weekend throw the race into a final deadlock.

Coach Otto Vogel's squad also will be out to better their own standing. The team is currently resting seventh place, but three victories would boost them into the first division.

Vogel is going all out for a victory at Purdue today. He named either Dale Minor or Tom George as his starting pitchers. Saturday's pitchers will depend upon the number of hurlers that will be needed today.

The Hawkeye pitching staff has been reduced by injuries to only five. The most recent injury was suffered by Carl Brunst, who broke his collarbone last week.

The Iowa lineup will be the same that has carried most of the load during the first part of the season. Centerfielder Paul Krause is the team's leading hitter with a .351 batting average. Flanking him in right field is the team's second leading hitter, Bob Sherman, who is batting .316 and has 19 RBI's. Joe Reddington will be in left field.

The infield will consist of Howard Kennedy at first, Dennis Henning at second, Ron Isler at shortstop, and Dick Lee at third base. Jim Freese will handle the catching duties.

Purdue has a 3-9 record in Big Ten play and holds down the ninth place spot in the standings.

The Illini are apparently pulling out all stops to defeat the Hawkeyes. Coach Lee Eilbracht has switched his usual Friday pitcher, Tom Fletcher, to the Saturday assignment. Fletcher is the top pitcher in the Big Ten with a 0.25 earned run average. Fletcher stands to become the most effective hurler in Big Ten history if he gives up one earned run or less in nine innings this weekend.

The Illinois hitting attack is led by catcher Lloyd Flodin with a .389 average. Rightfielder Bud Felichio leads the RBI department with 22 and Jerry Renner is the home run leader with four.

Yanks Tie For Lead; Beat Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — The daring base running of Mickey Mantle led to an unearned ninth inning run Thursday and gave New York a 2-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox and elevated the Yankees into a first place tie with idle Cleveland.

Mantle, who drew the only base on balls in the game, walked to open the New York ninth. After one out, Mantle stole second base and dashed to third on catcher Jim Pagliaroni's wild throw. He scored from third on Elston Howard's sacrifice fly.

The Yankees, gaining two wins in three Boston tries to wind up a brief road trip, were held to five hits by the veteran Conley. Reserve New York outfielder Joe Pepitone had three of those hits.

His eighth inning double set up the first New York run and he scored on Tom Tresh's single.

That score, after Conley had blanked the Yankees for seven innings on just three hits, offset Boston's only run of the game. In the second inning, singles by Pagliaroni and Gary Geiger and Carroll Hardy's sacrifice fly produced the only Boston score.

New York reliever, Marshall Bridges, gained the victory while pitching the final two innings and surviving a line drive to the jaw that decked him in the eighth inning. Bridges gave up only one infield hit while facing just seven Boston batters over the last two frames.

Bridges was relieving veteran Yankee Bob Turley who was making his first start in nearly a year. Turley retired for a pinch hitter after seven innings during which he allowed Boston just one run and two hits. Turley set down the last seven batters he faced in order.

Conley gave up only five hits, three of them doubles, walked only Mantle in the crucial ninth, and struck out six Yankees.

New York's first run, though it was earned, was tainted because pinch-hitter Yogi Berra reached base with two out when he swung at a wild pitch third strike. Pepitone, who had doubled, moved to third on the play and scored on the Tresh single.

Yankee home run king Roger Maris, removed from Wednesday night's game with a leg injury, did not start Thursday's but appeared as a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning. He flied out in his pinch-hitting attempt.

Belinsky, who pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the Orioles two weeks ago in Los Angeles, added a 10th hitless inning Thursday night before Boog Powell hit a 400-foot line-drive home run in the second inning, scoring Gus Triandos who had walked.

Doubles by Jerry Adair and Triandos, plus a walk to Powell, brought on reliever Dean Chance. Chance gave up a double to Brandt, completing the six-run assault on Belinsky.

Call Him 'Swamp Fox' —

Frazier Loves To Run, Win

They call him the "Swamp Fox," but Big Ten trackmen may better term him the "Flying Tiger" the way he moves around the cinder-paths.

For sleek, red-headed Bill Frazier is a fast one — he holds three SUI records at the present time — and is a threat to Big Ten foes in any race.

Francis Cretzmeier enters him in this weekend at the Big Ten championships at Lafayette. Last Saturday he bettered the CRETZMEYER Iowa record in the half-mile run in the time of 1:50.2, one of the top marks in the country this year. The week before he set the school record in the 660 with a time of 1:18.7. The time for the 660 also was faster than the Big Ten record in that race. And last winter, in the Big Ten indoor championships, he won the 600-yard run in the Iowa record time of 1:12.2.

"I really don't know his potential, but it looks great," Cretzmeier says. "Right now he shows more promise than any other man I've had here, with the possible exception of Charles (Deacon) Jones, the Olympic runner."

A graduate of North Scott High School at Eldridge (Bill's home town is Princetown), he's the best 220 man on the Iowa squad, as well as the fastest in the 660 or 880. Only Roger Kerr, the Wapello junior, is in the same class with Frazier in the quarter. Frazier has run in every relay from the 440 to the two-mile this spring — and has done well in all of them. He simply loves to run.

Cretzmeier's big problem at the current time with the modest sophomore is where to run him in the Big Ten meet. As indoor champion at the 660-yard distance, and with a time under that of the Big Ten mark for the 660, he is a cinch for the role of favorite in that race. But he also stands a good chance to win the half mile. And Big Ten rules allow the runner to compete in only one of these two events, so "Cretz" indeed has a problem. Frazier will also run on the crack Iowa mile relay team, which could come home a winner.

In high school, Bill didn't have the opportunity to run on a cinder track at any time other than meets. Gravel roads and the inside of the football field served as the proving ground for this speedy, freckle-faced lad.

Another practice area that feels the light touch of his flying feet is the Iowa campus. A member of the SUI staff once asked him about his habit of running about campus and Bill replied: "I'm usually late, so I have to run."

As a high school junior, Bill won the half mile in the state meet. The next year he won the indoor event, but a foot injury kept him from placing in the outdoor meet. At the Drake Relays that year, he anchored the mile relay and medley relay teams with clockings of :50 and 1:53 respectively.

When he ran 1:50.2 against Northwestern, the Iowa record, his closest rival was some six seconds back. Frazier runs his best when he comes from behind but he led all the distance and had been pushed probably would have gone faster.

Where did the name "Swamp Fox" originate? As a senior in high school, he and some companions were boating during the early spring when snakes that had taken refuge in trees because of high water dropped into the boat. He was relating this tale at practice one evening, when Cloyd "Spider" Webb pinned the nickname on him.

Golf Team's Aim in Big 10: Remain Out of 2nd Division

By JOE GEHRINGER
Staff Writer

Iowa's six-man golf team, with Coach Chuck Zweiner at the helm, enter the Big Ten tournament at University of Illinois, Champaign, today with hopes of staying out of the second division.

With a mediocre dual meet record of 4-9-1, the Hawks have little chance to cop the championship and will have a real battle to make the first division, according to Zweiner.

In addition to the stiff competition, the Hawks will be without the services of one of their top men, Chuck Mullen. Mullen does not play in out-of-town meets because of the pressure of his studies in the College of Law.

Members of the squad making the trip are Dave Bollman, J. D. Turner, Bob Gitchell, Bill Brandenberger, Mark DeVoe and Herbert Knudten Jr.

Undeclared Purdue, defending NCAA champion, is the favorite in the meet to be staged on the tough 72-par Savoy course.

The Boilermakers racked up the second best five-man team score on the tough Savoy course this season.

Indiana is the darkhorse of the meet, with its finest dual meet record — 15-3-1 — since 1930.

Although the Hoosier's don't have the standouts to make a run for the individual crown, they are a threat in the team running.

The 18-hole course itself will probably create problems for all 60 competing golfers.

Completed in 1950, the course was the scene of the championship in 1930 and has since proved the most difficult in history of the conference.

Hultman Hits Legal Drink Sales Plan

DES MOINES (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Evan L. Hultman said Thursday it was "only a dream" to believe that legalizing the sale of liquor by the drink would simplify law enforcement.

"You always have the same basic problem," Hultman said, "whether you have prohibition, liquor by the drink or the present Iowa law banning liquor sales across the bar with a state monopoly on package sales in state stores."

He said some of the basic problems under any form of liquor law included "bootlegging" and drunk-and-drivers.

Hultman said it was a false assumption that legal sales of liquor by the drink would yield more than $10 million a year to the state treasury. He pointed out that net profits from package sales in state-owned stores during the last fiscal year was only $6.5 million.

Hultman, a Republican candidate for re-election, took issue with state revenue through license fees. The attorney general said Hughes, a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, indicated he favored splitting the license fees with local governments.

Thus, Hultman said, part of any additional revenue would not even go to the state.

He said if the purpose of a liquor by the drink law was to increase state revenue, the goal could be accomplished easier and more efficiently by boosting prices of package liquor in state-monopoly stores.

Friday, through Sunday at University Hospitals. About 65 delegates, including 17 teachers are expected to attend.

Sharon Kay Dolan, A4, Grimes, will give a piano recital Sunday at 2 p.m. Also on Sunday, Nancy Kramer, A4, Remsen, a mezzo-soprano, will present a recital at 4 p.m. She will be accompanied on the piano by Malcolm Westley, G, Coralville. At 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Susan Ogg, A4, Adel, will present a piano recital.

Fidel Castro Like 'Mad Dog,' Says Texas Legislator

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Texas congressman told Mexican legislators Thursday that Fidel Castro is "like a mad dog that must be destroyed by its owner or his neighbors."

Rep. J. T. Rutherford (D-Tex.) made the comparison in presenting a paper setting forth the U.S. position at the second interparliamentary conference here.

"Castro can be compared to a rabid dog, who if his owner doesn't destroy must be destroyed by the neighbors in self-defense," Rutherford said.

Rutherford argued that "where people cannot speak for themselves freely, there can be no self-determination."

He said Americans recognized that some of the difficulty in forging a united inter-American policy on Cuba was due to a historic distrust and lack of understanding of U.S. intent.

Announce Plan To Expand Hoover Park

WEST BRANCH (UPI) — An addition to the Herbert Hoover Birthplace Park, including tourist accommodations and plans to lure inter-state travelers to the park, were announced here Thursday.

The Greater Iowa Development Corporation of Waterloo said a complete visitors center would be built on an 87-acre site next to the Hoover birthplace shrine.

The land extends southward to an interchange with Interstate 30, which is to be opened to traffic this summer.

Plans call for construction of a motel, restaurant, a gift shop, service station and possibly an exhibit building containing antiques and items concerning Iowa's history.

Signs and other promotions will be used to attract interstate tourists as well as Iowans to the park.

The Hoover park now consists of a 28-acre landscaped area including a new library and museum containing Hoover's papers, his restored cottage birthplace, a statue given the former president by the people of Belgium after World War I, a reconstructed blacksmith shop operated by his father and picnic shelters for visitors.

"We plan to make this one of the outstanding tourist attractions and historical centers in Iowa," said Niles Hollingsworth, of La Porte City, executive vice president of the development company.

Dental Hygiene Freshmen Capped by Senior Class

First-year students were capped by members of the senior class.

Journalism Staff And Students To C.R. Meeting

Three faculty members of the SUI School of Journalism and several students in the radio-television sequence will attend the annual spring meeting of the Iowa Radio Television News Association (IRTA) at Cedar Rapids today and Saturday.

The faculty members are Dr. Arthur M. Barnes, professor of journalism, head of journalism graduate study and secretary-treasurer of the IRTNA; Dr. Ernest F. Andrews, assistant professor of journalism, head of the radio journalism sequence and news director of WSLI; and Rod Gelatt, assistant to the director of the School of Journalism.

Gelatt will address the convention Saturday morning, reporting some of the findings of a study of the attitude of Iowa district court judges and county attorneys about news coverage of court matters.

The publication reported the girl was in a hospital for mentally handicapped children and suggested "her resorting to eating these long stringy-type things must have been to assuage her feelings of insecurity."

LONDON (UPI) — Surgeons who operated on a 6-year-old girl found in her stomach 118 black shoelaces, 8 ankle socks and 20 pieces of hair ribbon, the Nursing Mirror said Thursday.

State Schools Spokesman Says Farm Needs Declining in U.S., Europe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A leading spokesman for state universities said Thursday that the need for farm land and labor would continue to decline in America and Europe.

John T. Caldwell, president of the Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges, said this shrinkage would be matched by an increase in the demand for agricultural technical knowledge.

Such knowledge, he said, enabled America to double its food output from the same amount of land with half the labor in the past 50 years.

In a speech before the World Food Forum Caldwell said that a similar trend existed in western Europe.

If these trends continue, Caldwell said the results would include:

- Greater specialization in agricultural production.
- Increased farm management problems.
- More cooperation between the farmers and those processing and distributing his goods.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A leading spokesman for state universities said Thursday that the need for farm land and labor would continue to decline in America and Europe.

John T. Caldwell, president of the Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges, said this shrinkage would be matched by an increase in the demand for agricultural technical knowledge.

Such knowledge, he said, enabled America to double its food output from the same amount of land with half the labor in the past 50 years.

In a speech before the World Food Forum Caldwell said that a similar trend existed in western Europe.

If these trends continue, Caldwell said the results would include:

- Greater specialization in agricultural production.
- Increased farm management problems.
- More cooperation between the farmers and those processing and distributing his goods.

Gluttons Galore—

Dolphins Ready for Ice Cream Feast

SUI's Dolphins, men's honorary swimming fraternity, will try to prove once again that they are the world's gluttons in the 33rd Annual Dolphin Glutton Ice Cream Eating Contest Saturday.

Emeritus David Armbruster will eat his customary one pint. The rest of the Dolphin members will make more valiant efforts to make plops of themselves.

Both gymnasts and swimmers will compete, and the swimmers are expected to out-eat and out-digest the gymnasts (as usual).

Hillcrest Lets Andersen Keep Seat in Senate

Ronald E. Andersen, A3, Dike, kept his post as student senator after a three-hour hearing before the Hillcrest judicial committee Wednesday night.

Andersen was brought before the committee on a charge of excessive absences from Hillcrest General Council meetings. Penalty for missing more than two consecutive meetings is automatic removal from office.

Carlson was also charged with violating the attendance clause. The issue was dropped when it was found that no official records were kept of student senators' attendance at Hillcrest Council meetings.

False Fire Alarm Sounded in Quad

Firemen were called to Quadrangle Dormitory early Thursday morning in answer to what was apparently a false alarm. Fire investigators found no trace of a blaze.

Andersen's case was the second of the year involving an attempt to remove a Hillcrest senator from office. Earlier in the year impeachment proceedings were started against Doug Carlson, A3, Davenport.

Andersen said he was happy with the decision reached by the committee. It not only clears up the question that I am one of Hillcrest's student senators, he said, "but also should lead to a number of greatly needed revisions in the Hillcrest constitution."

Presented by Pall Mall Famous Cigarettes

The mover is more of a girl scout than a girl watcher.

LESSON 12—Watching at a beach or pool

When watching at the beach or pool it is not necessary to keep moving. In fact, it is unwise to move at all, unless the watcher actually enjoys swimming. In such cases he should swim.
