

Two Petitions Near Climax, Anti-ROTC Protest Retired

By STEVE SANGER
Staff Writer

This spring several petitions have been circulating on the SU campus. A report on three of the most important ones follows.

Larry Barrett, in charge of the faculty petition which charges "subversion" of University racial policy because of outside pressures on fraternities, said Tuesday the petition will be submitted to an official group by "the end of the week."

Barrett said the petition, written by James Murray, associate professor of political science, and John S. Harlow, associate professor of general business, has reached a "broad spectrum of the faculty including almost every department in the University."

"This petition has a substantial number of signatures. Either the Board of Regents, the Faculty Council or President Virgil M. Hancher will be given the petition," Barrett added.

The faculty petition charges a "conspiracy to circumvent University policy prohibiting race as a criterion of fraternity membership," and that "overt pressure" has come in the past from outside sources to dictate the conditions of membership in fraternities at SU.

These allegations refer to the Delta Chi-Andy Hankins deplugging incident in the spring of 1961. The faculty petition asks for a "prompt and thorough inquiry" by Hancher into its charges of "subversion" and "conspiracy." It does not ask, specifically, for a reopening of the Hankins case.

A student petition with about 300 signatures, in support of the faculty petition will "probably" be dropped because of a recent resolution passed by the Committee on Student Life, according to Donald Kash, G. Macedonia, Kash, with Richard Wells, G. Charlotte, N.C., wrote the petition.

The Committee, on May 15, resolved that local student organizations should be able to have free choice of their members without restrictions caused by color, race or national origin. Any organization, old or new, which did not comply with this rule by Oct. 1, 1965, would not be recognized by the University.

Kash said, "Our complaint involved the problem of local autonomy of student organizations and the committee's statement dealt with it adequately. We are hoping its intent will be carried out."

The oldest petition, which called for the abolition of compulsory ROTC at SU and was sponsored by the Student Peace Union, was signed by about 300 persons. But it will not be turned in to any official body.

Duane Sanger, Al, Iowa City, chairman of the SPU committee in charge of the petition, said it was thought that "not enough signatures were gathered."

The intention had been to send the petition to the State Board of Regents and President Hancher. A letter asking for abolition was sent to the Board several weeks ago. SPU conducted a picketing demonstration at the Military Ball, March 30.

Sanger said a concentrated drive is planned by the peace group at SU registration this fall in an attempt "to discourage incoming students from signing up for ROTC."

700 Sign Petitions Here Protesting End of Clowns

Last Wednesday's announcement by the Board in Control of Athletics to eliminate the Iowa clowns has resulted in nearly 700 signatures on petitions to counter this action.

Jim Gebbie, A2, Hawarden, originator of the petitions, reported 310 signatures from fraternities and sororities. Ralph Hillman, A4, Essex, retiring captain of the clowns, said that 345 signatures were obtained in Hillcrest during Tuesday's lunch hour.

Hillman said that the petitions have also been circulated in some classes. He said one class was interrupted to obtain signatures.

Hillman said that this summer he and the other clowns would try to contact as many persons as possible, asking them to send letters to the Board in Control of Athletics protesting the discontinuance of the clowns.

He also said that he hoped the petition would be signed by alumni, athletic fans and parents of SU students.

In September, according to Hillman, all materials favoring the continuance of the clowns will be submitted to the Board in Control of Athletics in the form of an appeal. "These items will include the petitions, letters to the editor and fan letters from around the nation," he said.

Neither Hillman nor Gebbie could give a reason as to why the clowns were dropped.

Safety Warning Issued by Council

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thousands of holiday travelers set out Tuesday to pursue pleasure in town or country on Memorial Day.

They headed for resorts, races, baseball games, beaches, mountains and visits with kinfolk.

The National Safety Council figured that, at one time or another Wednesday, almost all of the nation's 76 million registered vehicles will be in motion.

The council has estimated that as many as 120 or as few as 80 Americans could lose their lives in traffic accidents in the period that began at 6 p.m., local time, Tuesday and will end at midnight tonight. The toll, the experts reckoned, would rise or fall in keeping with the degree of common sense employed by motorists.

There have been two other one-day celebrations of Memorial Day since World War II — on days that occurred on or near midweek.

The low in single-day fatalities was reached in 1951, when 81 persons died in traffic accidents and a total of 129 perished in accidents of all types. The high for a one-day observance was in 1956, when traffic deaths numbered 109 and the deaths in accidents of all types totaled 174.

To provide means of making a comparison, The Associated Press checked fatalities on a recent midweek period of 30 hours, the same time span as the Memorial Day tabulation period. It was from 6 p.m. Tuesday, May 15, to midnight Wednesday, May 16. The count showed 69 deaths in traffic, 4 in boating, 22 drownings that did not involve boats and 20 in the miscellaneous bracket for an overall total of 115.

The bugles blow today over the graves of Americans around the world. But notes are those of taps, not of charge. In 1962 there is thanksgiving as well as memories.

Although it might have appeared to a first time visitor that there was nothing but pandemonium on the exchange floor, the tremendous crash was handled with efficiency despite what obviously was panic-inspired selling early in the day by small shareholders.

Carleton Green, an investment counselor who first came to the exchange in 1922, said the scene Tuesday was far different from the days of 1929 and the early 1930s, when brokers actually fought on the floor trying to sell their stocks first.

He told the crowd he did not consider himself a hero, and said his pretty blonde wife, Rene, should get credit for "everything I am now."

But he said he hoped the degree — which he missed in 1949 when he failed a course in heat transfer — could be justified by the "unique" education in the subject he received during the fiery reentry of his space capsule Aurora-7 last Thursday.

At a later news conference, Carpenter said space travel would be man's supreme achievement as an explorer.

He said there was no indication the crash was caused by a structural defect in the aircraft.

"This was an extraneous matter," he said, expressing belief it was caused by "a high velocity explosion" in the right, rear lavatory of the airliner.

There was a "strong residue of sulphur" on the wreckage, he stated, adding: "This is characteristic of explosions of this type."

The stewardess was believed to have been seated in the rear of the plane at the time of the explosion. Boyd did not name her but CAB investigators have examined the body of stewardess Joyce Rush, 23, at Odessa, Tex.

"In her body were a number of metal particles which were described as shrapnel," Boyd said. He would not comment on whether a love triangle might have been involved in the disaster, a point raised by Chairman A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D-Okla.), referring to a story in the newspaper Chicago's American.

Market Makes Upturn

Happy Brokers Celebrate End Of Wild Day

Visitors Gallery Full; Public Waits Outside For Look At Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — Brokers on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange blew off steam in a wild demonstration of shouting and whistling Tuesday at the end of the two most tumultuous market sessions since the great crash of more than 30 years ago.

The day started grimly and with a tremendous selling rush continuing Monday's nosedive. Then, at noon, an upward turn in basic stocks began to appear and the muffled roar from the pit of the 59-year-old building rose to a crescendo.

President Kennedy came in for a barrage of uncomplimentary remarks from brokers during the day. In late morning, when the market seemed to be heading even further down, one turned to another on the elevator of the exchange, across from the treasury steps where George Washington took his first oath of office.

"What a rat-race," he said. "I hope it's a suitable birthday present for Kennedy."

The public formed long lines waiting to get briefly into the visitors' gallery and they broke the exchange record of 5,000 daily spectators. Photographers, television cameramen, audio men with tape recorders, and reporters recorded the sights and sounds below.

There were between 800 and 900 of the exchange's 1,366 members on the pit floor when trading began. That many usually show up in the course of a day but seldom is there such a turnout at the opening — and many were there 45 minutes before the 10 a.m. start.

It is forbidden to run on the floor of the exchange but spectators, Tuesday saw some of the fastest walks outside the Olympic marathon. Most brokers skipped lunch. A few had sandwiches brought in and one dignified man was seen cutting up a foot-long submarine sandwich with his pen-knife.

The 2,000 brokers and assistants on the floor — there are no women working there — raised an angry chorus of boos shortly after 2 p.m. when the ticker fell two hours behind the trading. It meant working late into Tuesday night for many of them.

Although it might have appeared to a first time visitor that there was nothing but pandemonium on the exchange floor, the tremendous crash was handled with efficiency despite what obviously was panic-inspired selling early in the day by small shareholders.

Carleton Green, an investment counselor who first came to the exchange in 1922, said the scene Tuesday was far different from the days of 1929 and the early 1930s, when brokers actually fought on the floor trying to sell their stocks first.

Investor, 12, Looks for Slow Recovery From Worst Setback of Trading Career

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Pete Harper looked Tuesday for a recovery from the worst setback of his investing career. But his broker said Pete — who's only 12 — was doing better than many adults.

Pete figured he was $42 behind on his investment in his four-stock portfolio on the basis of Tuesday's prices. Some of his stocks, however, showed signs of rallying.

Pete, who has traded in stocks since he was eight, looked for an eventual recovery, although he said it might be several months away.

He consulted with his broker during the day and scanned the market for possible bargains.

The broker said that while Pete was behind "he's above average for this market."

Pete got into stock buying with a gift of a natural gas issue. He sold that — at a profit — and bought other stocks to put together a $340 portfolio. Then a dip started and Tuesday he figured his value at $298.

"At one time I was quite a bit ahead," he said. "But you never can tell."

The present market is especially hard to figure, Pete said. A utility stock he owns weathered a sharp market fall earlier this price increase started selling in dropped nearly $7 but Pete saw hope in Tuesday's price, which showed the first rise since it headed downward.

"It surprised me that it went down," Pete said, "because last year's earnings were up even in a recession."

Pete attributed the market break largely to selling by small investors. He contended President Kennedy's action in the steel price increase started selling in many stocks which were overpriced and that this in turn led to a lot of emotional selling.

"Some of those stocks had to come down because they were overpriced," he said, "but others I don't know what you could blame besides Kennedy."

His broker supported Pete's analysis. Pete, he said, "is better acquainted with the market than many investors. He looks at the fundamentals."

Fast Trading Sees Tickers Hours Behind

Statements of Officials In Washington Trigger Heavy Buying Demand

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market shook off its hypochondria Tuesday and staged one of the wildest afternoon rallies in the history of the New York Stock Exchange.

With the tickers, capable of printing 500 characters a minute, running an almost unbelievable two hours and 23 minutes late in recording stock transactions at closing time, most issues had recovered not only their sharp morning losses but also a good deal of the deep declines suffered Monday.

Generally, market experts attributed the rally to a feeling that emotional selling had pushed prices down more than was warranted and that many issues were selling at "bargain" levels. This belief was supported by courage-brustering statements from three top administration officials which triggered a heavy influx of demand from board rooms and institutional headquarters across the nation.

Traders heard shortly after midday when the rally began that Secretary of Commerce Hodge had recommended a corporate and personal tax cut, possibly this year.

Demand was further fueled when Treasury Secretary Dillon emerged from a conference with President Kennedy and said top government leaders were in agreement that the huge stock market slump which has been gathering momentum since the first of the year was not economically justified.

Walter Heller, the President's top economic adviser, chimed in to give emotional sellers pause for thought by pointing out that "the worst slide occurred when all indicators on the economic front were moving up . . . not a little bit, but moving up rapidly."

Most Wall Street sources believed that the selling had been stemmed initially by a strong demand for big institutions such as insurance companies, pension funds, mutual funds and investment banking houses which apparently felt they had a golden chance to replenish portfolios — never filled after 1961 selling for tax purposes — with new issues at "bargain" prices. This thesis was borne out by the fact that it was the blue chips of long-term investment quality which were the first to rally.

The small investor, generally thought to be the chief seller in recent market declines, heaped on the bandwagon when he saw the trend change for the better and began buying back. "Strong" issues he had sold earlier in the year above current levels.

How long will the rally continue? It depends on a combination of things: How the people show their attitude toward the economy by consumption of goods, how business sees prospects for expansion whether the attitude of government seems friendly.

L. O. Hooper of W. E. Hutton & Co. said that the day seemed to have been a "full blown selling climax" and that as usual it was followed by a strong advance. He expected it to continue when trading resumed Thursday after the one-day Memorial Day holiday.

The holiday would not be a day off for many Wall Street houses. They were told to keep their offices manned for the cleanup of the overwhelming paper work left after the record transactions of the past two days, and to answer investors' queries.

SIOUX CITY (AP) — The fate of Mrs. Sarah E. Thompson Sheppard, 24, accused of smothering her infant daughter, was placed in the hands of a District Court jury Tuesday night.

FBI Brought In To Help Solve Rural Slaying

UNIONVILLE (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation became a part Tuesday of the search for a young man sought in the slaying of five relatives on their southern Iowa farm.

A Des Moines U.S. Attorney Donald A. Wine authorized the filing of a complaint in Federal Court charging Gayno Gilbert Smith, 24, with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for the killing of his aunt, uncle and three cousins on their farm near Martinsburg Saturday night.

Meanwhile no new leads have turned up in the Unionville area where Smith abandoned his car and where the search has been concentrated.

Murder charges were filed against Smith in the Keokuk County District Court at Sigourney and the county attorney there asked for the aid of the FBI.

This was a preliminary step before federal agents could enter the case.

At Unionville, a state highway patrolman said the trail of Smith "is getting awfully cold."

"We haven't come up with a thing that gives any indication of his whereabouts."

A search in this wooded, hilly southern Iowa area continued Tuesday. Sheriff Paul Thomas said "our roaming patrol of the area near Unionville will continue until this thing is settled."

Smith's car was found abandoned on a road two miles west of here Sunday afternoon.

Circus Class Commencement—

1902 Grad Recalls Old Days

By LOIS LESHYN
Staff Writer

Commencement exercises of today might seem rather dull to Mrs. S. K. Slemmons, 717 Rundell St., a spirited 84-year-old who was a member of the "circus class" of 1902. Mrs. Slemmons chuckled when she thought of the events connected with her graduation from SU.

In 1902 the theater building which had been used for the senior play, baccalaureate and commencement burned. This was just a few months before graduation.

Consequently, the University rented a circus tent to provide a place for these events. In keeping with what was represented by the tent, the graduating class presented a 3-ring circus instead of a play.

Circus posters dotted the campus and Iowa City. The big show began with a parade up and down Clinton Street, Mrs. Slemmons said. Members of the class were decked out in rented costumes of all types.

Memorial Day Now Quieter—And Happier

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

Memorial Day has many meanings for Americans.

For most, it transcends the memories of any one war, is a reminder of the men who died in all the uniforms which Americans have worn into battle; blue, gray, khaki, white, homespun or deer-skin, or merely rags honored by service.

It's quiet in the Arlington glade, and in the great field of crosses above Omaha Beach — quiet along the Marne, the Rhine, the Rapido and the Yalu. It's quiet at Sidibou-Zid and Gafsa. At Palermo and Anzio. At Metz and in the Huertgen Forest. At the Alamo and in Manila Bay. At Yorktown and Bunker Hill, and along the Delaware.

At Guadalcanal and Peleliu, Pearl Harbor and Okinawa.

And perhaps best of all, it's quiet about Bull Run and outside Richmond, where 100 years ago Robert E. Lee took up the city's defense, and America began to prepare for Chickamauga — and for Appomattox.

The bugles blow today over the graves of Americans around the world. But notes are those of taps, not of charge. In 1962 there is thanksgiving as well as memories.

Home Town Cheers Scott, Gives Degree

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Astronaut Scott Carpenter got a hero's acclaim Tuesday from his home town for his space flight five days ago, and a degree from his university he missed 13 years ago.

He gave back a prediction: that man will go to the moon "in the near future."

The 37-year-old Boulder native, on the second day of a 2½-day triumphal Colorado homecoming, received a degree in aeronautical engineering before a cheering crowd of 15,000 persons in the University of Colorado football stadium.

He told the crowd he did not consider himself a hero, and said his pretty blonde wife, Rene, should get credit for "everything I am now."

But he said he hoped the degree — which he missed in 1949 when he failed a course in heat transfer — could be justified by the "unique" education in the subject he received during the fiery reentry of his space capsule Aurora-7 last Thursday.

The News In Brief

Combined from Leased Wires

VIENTIANE (UPI) — Informed sources said today pro-Communist rebels in northwestern Laos have launched a new offensive against loyal troops around Ban Houei Sai and sent them fleeing across the Mekong River into neighboring Thailand for the second time this month.

JERUSALEM — Adolf Eichmann's attorney prepared a clemency appeal to the president of Israel as his final effort to save the former Nazi colonel from hanging. The Israeli supreme court earlier rejected Eichmann's appeal from the death sentence meted out to him for his part in the World War II slaughter of 6 million Jews.

GENEVA — The Soviet Union stunned the 17-nation disarmament conference Tuesday by reneging on an East-West agreement condemning war propaganda. American Ambassador Arthur H. Dean angrily lashed out at the Soviet turnabout and said it "proves the Russians cannot keep their word even over the weekend."

Dean and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin — as co-chairmen of the conference — had drafted the agreement last Friday.

Western delegates met Tuesday expecting the agreement to be read into the conference. They were thunderstruck by the Soviet diplomat's sudden reversal, and his demand for far-reaching changes in the draft.

"The Soviets have blown up discussion of the whole matter," Dean said. "They have scuttled the question for reasons known only to themselves."

The Soviet move wrecked one of the only two concrete agreements reached by the conference. It came only three days before the parley is scheduled to submit a "progress" report to the United Nations disarmament commission in New York.

Zorin said "events in recent days" and the current situation in West Germany, Laos and South Viet Nam were responsible for the Soviet switch.

MADRID — The worst labor crisis in the history of Spain since the civil war appeared over with miners and industrial workers returning to their jobs following an appeal from Generalissimo Francisco Franco and official promises of wage increases.

Probe Centerville Disaster—

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high velocity sulphurous explosion drove metal particles into the body of a stewardess and wrecked an airliner that crashed near the Missouri-Iowa border last Tuesday, senators were told Tuesday.

Chairman Alan S. Boyd, of the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB), appearing before the Senate Aviation Subcommittee, did not specify the explosive involved in the crash of the Continental Airline jet. Forty-five persons were killed.

But in reply to a question whether examination of the wreckage indicated something other than a time bomb blew out the side of the plane, he said: "We are satisfied of the cause," but are not yet able to say whether the blast was from dynamite caps, sticks of dynamite or something else.

He said there was no indication the crash was caused by a structural defect in the aircraft.

"This was an extraneous matter," he said, expressing belief it was caused by "a high velocity explosion" in the right, rear lavatory of the airliner.

There was a "strong residue of sulphur" on the wreckage, he stated, adding: "This is characteristic of explosions of this type."

The stewardess was believed to have been seated in the rear of the plane at the time of the explosion. Boyd did not name her but CAB investigators have examined the body of stewardess Joyce Rush, 23, at Odessa, Tex.

"In her body were a number of metal particles which were described as shrapnel," Boyd said.

He would not comment on whether a love triangle might have been involved in the disaster, a point raised by Chairman A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D-Okla.), referring to a story in the newspaper Chicago's American.

The story said investigation was centering on a man and woman who made reservations to return to Kansas City aboard the plane after coming to Chicago separately and meeting there.

Boyd, describing the plane's last moments, said some passengers had time to don oxygen masks after the explosion and before the crash, and the pilot had let down the wheels in an effort to make a landing.

Papers and bits of wreckage were spread over a 70-mile distance, indicating the plane's course after the blast, he said.

Meanwhile, at Centerville, Ia., John S. Leak, the CAB's chief structures engineer, pinpointed the location of the explosion in the bag disposal compartment of the lavatory. He told reporters this spot — 1,415 inches from the nose of the plane and 30 inches above the interior floor — was located by a study of the manner in which the metal was bent.

Replying to questions, he said the explosive material could have been carried into the lavatory in small pieces and would not necessarily have required a large container.

There has been some speculation it might have been contained in a briefcase, bearing the initials T.C.D. or T.G., found among the debris.

Courts Can Provide Continued Redistricting

One reason for unfair representation in many states is that state constitutional provisions are not observed and there hasn't been any way to enforce observance.

The U.S. Supreme Court decision in the Tennessee case provides relief for this situation. The decision expresses conviction that the federal courts can "fashion relief" — which means that the courts can, if necessary, draft a redistricting plan.

Iowa legislators who voted in 1961 for the Shaff reapportionment plan took the same view. Under this plan, the Iowa Supreme Court could be called upon to draft and put into effect legislation for redistricting the Senate.

There are strong arguments for and against the Shaff plan, which provides for a House of one representative from each county and a Senate of 583 members from population districts which vary by no more than 10 per cent. But irrespective of the merits of the plan so far as providing "fair representation" is concerned, the proposal is one that has guarantees of redistricting the Senate every 10 years to take into account population changes. In this respect, at least, the proposed constitutional amendment would be a change for the better.

Senate redistricting would be the duty of the Iowa Supreme Court if reapportionment wasn't put into effect by the Legislature.

A commission of 10 members, five members each to be named by the state central committees of the two major political parties, would have the duty of drafting a redistricting plan every 10 years. If the central committees did not name commission members, the Supreme Court would select them.

The second redistricting step calls for the committee to submit to the Legislature a plan approved by seven of its members. The Legislature could amend the plan. If the committee did not submit a plan, or the Legislature did not approve a redistricting law, the Supreme Court would redistrict the state itself.

The Legislature might approve redistricting which did not abide by constitutional provisions. There is a remedy for this. Any 10 legislators could ask the Supreme Court to determine the constitutionality of the redistricting. If the court found that redistricting did not substantially comply with the State Constitution, the court itself would decree the reapportionment.

Failed To See God

Cosmonaut Titov was pretty pathetic when he sought to defend the Godless communism into which he was born. Here's what he said:

"Some people say there is a God out there, but in my travels around the earth all day long, I looked around and didn't see him. I saw no God or angels." Then he added this:

"I don't believe in God, I believe in man, his strength, his possibilities and his reason."

Once an intourist guide in Kiev expressed the same viewpoint in almost the same party line language.

A simple question was put to him:

"What put life into that tiny blade of grass?"

After a bit of stammering, the guide predicted that "some day science will answer your question."

Spaceman Titov was seeing God and His work all about him and simply failed to recognize it.

Telephones on Planes

Pretty soon now a traveler thousands of feet in the air will be able to pick up a telephone and talk to anyone on the ground who has a phone. We guess this development was inevitable, and we suppose it's progress.

But we can't help thinking that the airplane has been man's last refuge from that ubiquitous and often insistent instrument. A traveler flying from, say, New York to California nonstop could be sure of several hours of virtually uninterrupted reading, or dozing. As the telephone has made its way into ships, trains and automobiles, the only escape from it has been to take flight.

So now the garrulous will be able to send their voices from the air to earthbound associates and friends. Worse, of course, is that people on the ground — well-wishers, creditors, salesmen, wives — will be able to telephone the traveler.

With movies already aloft, about the only freedom remaining to the air passenger is freedom from TV. And we suppose that won't last forever. —The Wall Street Journal

Bamboo Curtain

Exodus to Hong Kong Has Chinese Reds on Spot

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

The tragic plight of the mainland Chinese, caught in one of the worst agricultural failures since the Communists came to power, evokes the compassion and the anxiety of people all over the world.

There is no way to measure the magnitude of the hunger and famine which multitudes of Red Chinese are now experiencing and which they are frantically trying to escape through the tiny hatch to Hong Kong.

FOR SOME REASON — either fear of their own people or fear that admitting the truth would be too great a blow to their prestige — the Communist officials of the Peking government wish to conceal the facts. But the curtain is parted enough to reveal that grievous undernourishment is widespread and is becoming worse.

The evidence is that it is becoming worse in the fact that thousands upon thousands of Chinese from the countryside and from the cities of southeast China are continuing to descend upon the already overtaxed facilities of this little corner of freedom which is British Hong Kong, the only avenue of escape.

Man's instinct to want to come to the aid of his fellow man in distress is handicapped in this instance because of the fear, the unwillingness, the refusal of the Chinese Communist regime to proclaim its needs frankly and openly and take its problem to all the nations which would be prepared to help.

It would seem reasonable for Red China to turn to the Communist bloc for help. But for political reasons Red China does not relish pleading for help from Nikita Khrushchev. Furthermore, agricultural failure is a recurring feature of the Communist system. Food production continues to lag in the Soviet Union and only this week the Communist regime in East Germany asked West Germany for $6 million in credits, mostly for the purchase of food.

SOME ALLEVIATING steps are being taken. The International Rescue Committee, which maintains housing and food relief programs in Hong Kong for the Chinese people fleeing their homeland, hopes to ease "this fantastic human crisis" by expediting the Nationalist Chinese offer to take 50,000 more refugees on Taiwan.

The United States is prepared to send additional food shipments to Formosa and Hong Kong to help feed the new arrivals, and President Kennedy this past week said that 5,000 to 6,000 Hong Kong refugees will be admitted to the U.S. in the immediate future under emergency laws.

THERE IS NO quick or easy solution to this tide of misery which continues to flow into Hong Kong's inadequate arms. Resettlement is slow and costly. There is no evidence thus far that the Peking government is prepared either to state openly the full size of the problem or to invite the rest of the world to help. President Kennedy has said that no request for food has come from Red China.

There is, indeed, no authoritative explanation of why the Communist regime has recently been letting — almost encouraging — its discontented people flow through the once heavily guarded gateway to Hong Kong.

Has the gateway to Hong Kong been opened intentionally either as a means of trying to suffocate the little British Crown Colony or as a means of getting rid of some of the people the regime cannot feed? Or has the gateway burst open by a breakdown in the discipline of the Communist border guard?

In the last day or so the Communist border patrols have been tightening their vigilance, reducing, though not yet closing off, the exodus. The explanation which seems most plausible is that the Communists first let it be known that disgruntled people might find it easy to escape. Then, surprised by the massive outflow, decided they better try to stop it. In any event, it is clear that the internal situation in Red China is more desperate than has yet been realized.

New Dances, Old Ideas and Bones — Deal Him Out

By JOHN CROSBY

I hail from the cheek-to-cheek school of dancing. And never mind when that was, Junior. It was a long time before you were born. Dancing then was a relatively simple thing. Almost anyone who could stand erect could master it if he could count to three — or even if he couldn't. And two people usually held on to one another and did the thing together, grotesque as that idea seems in the light of contemporary practice.

Well, that's how it was, Junior, back in the Stone Age of my adolescence. But my goodness gracious (I have stronger exclamations. Send a dime and a stamped self-addressed envelope), the sheer physical demands on the young today for a dance floor tax my credence.

EVERYONE ELSE seems to take the thing for granted. They watch awhile and then go out on the floor and do it. Am I alone in finding these things awfully tough? I was baptized the other night in the Hully Gully and promptly retired from the dance floor forever. I mean I've been through the Charleston, the Lindy Hop, the Big Apple, the Jitterbug, Rock 'n' Roll, and the Twist.

The Hully Gully, which seems now to be sweeping up a storm in Le Club and some of the more fashionable parties in New York is — well, let's see now. It's got a bit of the Twist. A bit of the square dance. A touch of the Radio City Rockettes. Quite a lot of Jerome Robbins. A breath of Pavlova and just a whisper of Nijinsky. Put them all together and they spell Hully Gully and deal me out, kids.

It's not that I'm not physically up to it. It's — well, I can't remember that many steps. Kick. Take three steps sideways. Kick the other way. Wiggle your fanny three times. Go backward. Two skips forward and — aw, come on, fellows. If I wanted to be choreographed, I'd have joined the City Center Ballet. Actually, if you see a well-trained group do the Hully Gully it's very suave, very eye-filling, very professional.

PROFESSIONAL? I didn't think that was the idea of ballroom dancing. I can remember when you held the girl in your arms, swaying a little here and there, and murmured into her shell pink ear: "Whyn't you get rid of that twerp and slip outside with me. I know the most interesting elm I'd like to show you," and other ploys.

You can hardly say anything like that dancing the Hully Gully. You're too busy counting: one, two, three, kick. And she's got her own private thoughts: back three steps and reverse. Actually, you don't see much of each other anyhow in the Hully Gully. Or, for that matter, the Twist. Dancing started to become a solo enterprise, it seems to me, when the cha-cha got to be hot stuff. I saw that for the first time in Bogata in 1958, a couple dancing clear across the floor from each other. I know girls now who do the Twist all by themselves in front of a mirror. For exercise, they'll tell you.

What on earth are we coming to? Understand, I don't want to reverse any of these historic trends. I just want to call attention to them.

KILLER JOE PIRO who has taught everyone from Shirley Booth (the Lindy Hop) to the Duchess of Windsor (the Hully Gully) didn't exactly invent the Hully Gully, but he — as he says — "put it together."

Killer Joe says: "American people like to do their own dances now. As we lose the friendship of Latin American countries like Cuba, we move away from dances like the cha-cha and the mambo. Now that we're becoming friendly with the Asian countries and the African countries, their kind of dancing will be coming in next. Our culture is now going backwards. We're working here on the Jitterbug Twist." (I just thought you'd like to know what little horror is in prospect for your spinal cord.)

I think modern ballroom dancing is getting more complicated, more professional, more physically and intellectually demanding than ever. In fact — looking both ways before I cross this street — I think it's not too much to suggest that more is demanded of the amateur on a dance floor these days than was demanded of chorus girls by Mr. Flo Ziegfeld in the '20s.

What I want to know is after the Hully Gully, whither? What's next? You, already, have to arrive at a party with your own masseur, a towel, and a portable shower bath. What then? Already the dance floor looks like "West Side Story" in its wilder moments.

If we ask all this of ourselves, what are we going to demand of Fred Astaire? Or Jerome Robbins? They'd better be prepared to make 26-foot leaps and 22 en-trecats. Anything less, your 13-year-old daughter does better.

The action of the Board in Control of Athletics was unexpected and we feel not enough reasons have been given to justify the action.

To the Editor:

To say that I was shocked would be an understatement, rather I could not believe my eyes when I read that the Iowa Clowns would no longer perform at football and basketball games, would no longer make the hearts of children crippled by paralysis laugh and delight in their world of braces and crutches, and would no longer add a little something extra to the spirit and fight that make this University great.

A Clown's Lament

To the Editor:

To say that I was shocked would be an understatement, rather I could not believe my eyes when I read that the Iowa Clowns would no longer perform at football and basketball games, would no longer make the hearts of children crippled by paralysis laugh and delight in their world of braces and crutches, and would no longer add a little something extra to the spirit and fight that make this University great.

The Clowns have been part of this University for many years and the spirit they have created, no matter how minute it may be, has in its own way symbolized the heartaches and joys of a student body. It is this student body that is their audience, their life and I would hope their greatest supporters.

It's difficult for me to understand of what possible damage that the clowns do, but I can only say that I would hate to see the day come when the administration and perhaps the student body become so hard and business-minded that it can turn its back on such a worthwhile endeavor. Look behind the painted faces, and the crazy antics and you'll see students — students who are attempting to convey the spirit, the laughter and the fight of a great university. Do away with the clowns, and you will be destroying part of the spirit of SUI.

Was Board Justified?

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Daily Iowan has waived the customary 375-word limit on this letter to give the captain of the Clowns a chance to ask some very pertinent questions concerning the dropping of the Clowns. The action of the Board in Control of Athletics was unexpected and we feel not enough reasons have been given to justify the action.

To the Editor:

The decision of the Board in Control of Athletics to discontinue having the Clowns perform at the SUI home contests was hard to accept, especially when there was no reason given for this action. I'm sure there must have been some reason that the Board acted on in reaching their decision but in my investigation I have failed to reveal one.

My talk with the Chairman of the Board in Control of Athletics led me to believe that he was just as vague as I was for the reason or reasons of our dismissal and I was referred to the Director of Athletics. Attempts to see the director have been in vain. The clowns are back where they started asking the same question... Why?

In my interview with the Chairman of the Board, it was brought to my attention that the Clowns no longer serve a "useful" purpose... that we were once funny but are no longer. For those students and faculty members that attend all of the home contests, I don't suppose we are funny everytime we are seen. But our "antics" at the games vary, regardless how slight, to bring favorable comments to us, not only from students and faculty members but from the people from across the state of Iowa who come to spend three to four hours in the stadium to see the same band, cheerleaders, Highlanders, football team, gymnasts, and, yes, those bums who try to be funny, the Clowns.

Maybe when these people smile and give us a nod of approval they are "just being nice." We don't know for sure. We like to think that they enjoy us. We like to think that we have become a part of the Saturday afternoon tradition. But if our presence is no longer desired by a very few because we no longer serve a useful purpose, we take our shaggy hats off and say, "Thank you for the smiles and laughter that has given us a feeling of usefulness."

What was vague about the interview was the fact that the Clowns in the past have created problems... what problems? I can only account for this year but to my knowledge the Clowns created no problems either on or off the athletic field. If the Clowns were guilty of ill-conduct in the past why hasn't this been brought to our attention before this?

When I first became a Clown I was told of incidences that occurred three or four years ago that more or less put the clowns in "hot water." But from this experience the Clowns have established rules governing our behavior from "dusting-off" individuals with whiskbrooms to playing football on the field. We don't expect to please everyone. Some people just can't escape from reality into fantasy regardless of the situation demands it. If the clowns did create problems are these problems of such a nature to justify our dismissal?

The day before the Alumni-Varsity football game the Clowns entertained at a picnic held for the pre-school children at the School for Severely Handicapped Children. When these children entered the recreation room that had been made ready for their picnic there were looks of skepticism when they saw us. But when they left after the picnic there were pleas for our return the next day. One of the nurses told us as we were leaving about one of the little boys that attended the picnic. This little boy had been in the school a little over a month and until that day he hadn't smiled and cried frequently. He was the life of the party!!!

This experience takes us far from the athletic field but what happened that day at the hospital happens every football game and basketball game but to a lesser degree because of the more fortunate circumstances. If it didn't, I wouldn't be a Clown.

A great deal of individual satisfaction and purpose is felt by the Clowns when, after providing a vehicle of escape for little boys and girls as well as their parents, a smile appears on their faces or laughter rings through the air. If we only make one person laugh we think we have served a purpose and are useful.

Next year the Clowns may be a thing of the past and probably our absence may not be noticed. We hope that there will be enough people who will miss us, that next fall, when the Board of Control meets, they will re-consider their (subjective or objective) decision that they made this spring.

and Anzus became complementary.

FRANCE AND TO a lesser extent Britain were in bad odor in the neighborhood after years of colonialism. Yet the United States needed to avoid the appearance of "moving in" on an area where they had, or had had extensive interests. And Britain still remained important in Malaya, which shares the western side of the peninsula with Thailand.

So the Europeans were invited, and Britain got back her voice in Western Pacific defense arrangements.

There were maneuvers on considerable importance to the whole Western attitudinal complex, as were those which tied NATO interests to Iran and Pakistan through the Central Treaty Organization which grouped their defense with Britain, Turkey and the United States.

NOW, DESPITE the lack of full political cooperation with SEATO, certain advantages have been gained through technical defense coordination, without which the recent deployment of American forces in Thailand would have been more difficult.

And participation of token forces from most of the other members lends a certain aura of unanimity to the Western position in the current crisis.

As for the absence of France, the political practicality, beyond the fact of her troubles at home and in Africa, is that her presence now would serve primarily to give the Communists a talking point about the return of colonialism.

Hungarian Refugee Student Expected to Get Ph.D. Here

By JANET MINX

The 1956 Hungarian Revolt has had far-reaching consequences in world affairs, and has affected the destinies of thousands of people. One of the happier sequels is being enacted now on the Iowa campus.

Veronika Eva Englehardt, a law student at the University of Budapest during the unsuccessful revolt, will receive a doctoral degree in psychology from SUI in August.

As a young girl, Veronika lived with her family in Budapest. During and after the war, she lived and attended Hungarian schools in much the same way as any 10-year-old American girl.

But, in 1948 when Veronika was 13, the Communist regime seized Hungary's Government (a republic) and ousted their leaders.

In 1949, Joseph Cardinal Mindzenty, a leading Catholic, was sentenced to life imprisonment for treason. Also, the Government, adopting a constitution patterned after Russia's, nationalized all industries and schools.

For Veronika, whose family began to feel the political transition, this action meant she had to work for 10 months in a factory and attend rigidly controlled schools in order to acquire an education. From the gymnasium, which is equivalent to high school in America, she went to the Hungarian Academy in Dramatic Arts for two years.

In 1955, she was admitted to the University of Budapest with a selected group who passed a week of comprehensive entrance examinations.

Faced with a government which does not permit freedom of choice, Veronika was forced to study law. She found her course of work interesting. "However," she says, "it is not much game to be a lawyer in Hungary, because the state always wins."

During the summer of 1956, the Hungarian people outwardly opposed the Communist regime.

posed the Communist regime. Farmers resented seizure of their land and factory workers resisted the Five-Year Plan to make manufacturing the basis of the economy. On October 23 of the same year, the Hungarian people began their revolt. They succeeded in regaining control of most of the country and releasing Cardinal Mindzenty.

Much of the agitation and fighting during the revolt occurred among the student groups in Budapest while Veronika was at the university.

Demonstrations were organized and firearms were carried by students who were born during or after World War II and never remembered any better way of life.

"The actions seemed spontaneous and spread like fire among the students. And, everyone could add his own bitterness," said Veronika. She participated in the frenzied demonstrations, but did not kill anyone.

By November, Russian troops and tanks poured into the country to crush the revolt. Veronika, then 21, decided to escape with other Hungarians who were taking refuge in Austria.

Hungary, about the size of Indiana, borders on four Communist countries: Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Russia and non-Communist Austria.

Veronika and a party of 50 persons hired a guide who knew the countryside to lead them to the Austrian border. The first night of the flight was spent in a forest.

In the morning, the group discovered the guide had disappeared with his payment and left them in an unfamiliar area.

Three persons — Veronika and two other students — arrived in Austria after two more nights of hiding. Some returned to Budapest and succeeded later and some perished along the route.

Veronika spent several months in Vienna, waiting nervously for an American visa. As the United States temporarily raised Hungarian immigration quotas, she was able to come to Detroit in February, 1957, to live with relatives.

At first, she was unhappy in Detroit and considered it a "hugely overgrown small town." After enrolling in Wayne University in Detroit and moving into an apartment, she became adjusted to her new life and environment.

Since Wayne accepted all her law credits, she considered a degree in law. However, she was discouraged by a professor because she knew little English at the time and spoke with an accent.

Selecting several courses in psychology "which no one ever hears about in Hungary," she chose a major in this area.

Wanting to teach and do research, Veronika came to SUI in 1957 to pursue work towards a Ph.D. degree. She is primarily interested in behavioral psychology and the effects of verbal learning on personality.

On May 8, in a simple question-and-answer session before a Daventry judge, she became a U.S. citizen.

For Veronika, it was a proud moment in her life. She still carries her citizenship papers in her purse. Probably, she will carry them for all her life.

Nolan Raps IFBF Stand On Judiciary

State Senator D. C. Nolan has charged that the Iowa Farm Bureau's backing of judicial reorganization constitutional amendment is the result of a political horse trade, transacted in order to gain support for the Shaff reapportionment plan.

Senator Nolan has been a consistent opponent of the judicial reorganization amendment and is a leader of the group opposing it.

Howard Hill, Minburn, president of the Farm Bureau, said that Senator Nolan's charge is untrue.

Hill said, "I don't even know what he's talking about. We're supporting this judicial measure because we think it's right and that it will improve our system of justice."

The backers of the judicial amendment claim that it will take Iowa's judiciary out of politics. Judges would be nominated by judicial commissions, composed half of lawyers and half of others. The governor would appoint jurists from the nominations of the commission.

Judges then would run in election against their records, not against an opponent.

The Shaff plan is a plan for reapportionment of the legislature, proposed also as a constitutional amendment. Before it can become effective, it must be approved by the legislature and then by a vote of the people.

RIVER OTTER To Be On Exhibit

Wildlife Display Set Here June 12

Two special exhibits prepared by the SUI Museum of Natural History will be on display from June 12 through August 9, in observation of the Twenty-Fourth Annual Fine Arts Festival, according to Walter C. Thietje, museum curator.

The main exhibit, on display in the Bird Hall Annex, Room 206 Macbride Hall, is the State Bird of Iowa, showing several American goldfinch in a natural habitat. This exhibit, made possible by gifts from University alumni through the Old Gold Development Fund, is housed in a specially designed display case.

The American goldfinch, or wild canary, as it is sometimes called, was named the state bird in 1933 by the Forty-Fifth General Assembly.

The goldfinch exhibit is designed so that one looks into a window-like aperture, and sees a scene of wooded Iowa countryside.

The second exhibit, on display in the main corridor, ground floor of Macbride Hall, presents two specimens of the land otter, native to northeast Iowa. The two were taken along the Mississippi River in northeast Iowa and presented to the SUI museum by the State Conservation Commission.

Visitors may see the exhibits in Macbride Hall from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

USS Arizona To Get Plaque

Dr. Raymond R. Remboldt, director of the hospital school at SUI, will present a special plaque to the USS Arizona during special Memorial Day ceremonies at Pearl Harbor today.

Long recognized as the "Pacific Memorial" for those who lost their lives as a result of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, the award will be presented by Dr. Remboldt on behalf of the Optimist International Club. He is president of that organization.

Men Give Last Concert; Embarrassed Afterward

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. — It was cool, but embarrassing for the 10-member Augustana Theological Seminary male chorus at its final concert of the season Monday night. And for the same reason.

The singers had no pants. The seminarians decided to leave their trousers in the dressing rooms because of the heat. That way they were much cooler under their heavy, ankle-length robes.

After the concert the embarrassment came when the pants were missing.

The trousers were found Tuesday hidden in another part of the concert hall. Billfolds were intact, leading authorities to put the blame on pranksters.

Pool Opens Today; Repairs Finished

Good news for swimmers: Iowa City's swimming pool is scheduled to open today at 1 p.m.

Earlier it had been feared that repairs would delay the Memorial Day opening, but reports Monday indicated that the cement work on the pool decks had been completed.

City Park pool will be open from 1 to 9:30 p.m. daily.

Art Exhibits, Opera Slated For Summer

Highlights of the 24th annual SUI Fine Arts Festival this summer will include "The Crucible," a contemporary opera, and two exhibitions of works by American artists.

One of the art exhibitions, "Vintage Moderns, Twenty American Pioneers of Contemporary Art," will open Thursday in the Art Building and will be shown through the summer session. The public is invited to a preview of the show from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday.

"The Crucible," with text by Arthur Miller and music by Robert Ward, will be directed by Herald Stark, professor of music and Harold Shiffer, former SUI faculty member who is now head of the Drama Department at Hastings College, Hastings, Neb. Stark and Shiffer have collaborated in directing five summer operas given previously at SUI.

"The Crucible" will be given July 31 and Aug. 1, 3 and 4 at 8 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium.

An exhibition, "Six Decades of the Figure in American Painting," will be shown during the summer session in the Terrace Lounge of the Union.

Prof. Frank Seiberling, head of the Art Department, assembled the works for both of the summer art exhibitions from galleries, museums and private collections in New York City, Chicago and Columbus, Ohio, which have loaned the works for the shows.

The SUI Summer Repertory Theatre, begun last year, will offer a series of four plays in nightly rotation beginning July 6 and continuing for 16 evenings. The plays are Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," Moliere's "The Miser," Jean Giraudoux's "The Madwoman of Chaillot" and Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman."

Concerts will be presented during the Fine Arts Festival by the Iowa String Quartet, the University Symphony Orchestra and the All-State Music Camp.

Condemned Killer Asks For Extension On Appeal Motion

DES MOINES — Attorneys for Charles L. Kelley of Minneapolis asked the Iowa Supreme Court Tuesday for an extension of time for filing a motion for reconsideration of the court's action upholding his death sentence on a murder charge.

Court officials said no action will be taken on the request at least until Thursday.

Kelley and Charles Noel Brown, also of Minneapolis, were convicted of the fatal shooting last fall of Alvin Koehrsen of Walnut in an attempt to commandeer his car in downtown Council Bluffs. Both are in death row at the State Penitentiary awaiting hanging.

Journalism Award

Rhoda Hulse, Kingstey, has been selected by the Iowa High School Press Association (IHSPA) executive board to receive the 1962 IHSPA $500 scholarship.

She has enrolled in the SUI School of Journalism, beginning in September.

Miss Hulse is a senior at Moville Community School and is editor of the school newspaper Raider Highlights.

Andersen Keeps Senate Seat; Third Removal Attempt Fails

Another move to unseat Ron Andersen, A3, Dike, as Student Senator was rejected Monday night by the Hillcrest General Council.

It was the third attempt to remove Andersen in three weeks.

Bob Park, A1, Alexandria, Va., charged that the assembly would be violating the Hillcrest Association constitution by retaining Andersen as a senator.

Park cited constitutional provisions for General Council composition and impeachment as well as the Judicial Committee decision of May 16.

According to the constitution, a Student Senator is considered to be a member of the General Council. The constitution also states that any member of the council who misses more than two consecutive meetings shall be removed automatically.

Andersen admitted to the Judicial Committee on May 16 that he had missed three consecutive meetings.

In the opinion of the judicial group, however, as a Student Senator, Andersen was also subject to the constitution of the Student Senate and could not be removed automatically. The committee ruled at that time that Andersen was officially one of Hillcrest's two Student Senators.

Park said that he was unaware that the Judicial Committee had been asked to decide more than whether Andersen had missed the three meetings. Under this impression he called last Wednesday's council vote against impeaching Andersen a rejection of the Hillcrest constitution which contains the automatic removal clause.

He demanded that the chairman remove Andersen from office.

Because of the judicial ruling, the vote taken at last Wednesday's special meeting was constitutional, said Judicial Chairman John Baker, A4, Cedar Falls.

Park later said that his point of order was not directed at Andersen personally, but at the general council for what he thought was their rejection of the constitution. "Once a part of any constitution is rejected," Park said, "the way is clear for rejection of the entire document."

Andersen said he did not think there would be any future attempts to unseat him.

Erbe: Charges 'Tommy-Rot'

GUTHRIE CENTER — Gov. Norman Erbe Tuesday night in a campaign speech described as "pure tommy-rot" charges that the state treasury is being seriously depleted, and that present state services cannot be continued without a tax increase.

"Those who say state government cannot maintain existing services without more revenue, or insist that the state's general fund is approaching bankruptcy either have failed to learn the most elementary facts about the state's true financial status or are deliberately and irresponsibly trying to deceive the voters," Erbe said.

He made the remarks in a speech prepared for a Republican meeting here. Erbe is seeking reelection.

Erbe said the only justification for an increase in state taxes would be to provide additional funds for property tax replacement, and "then only if assurance is provided that local use of these funds will be reflected in a corresponding reduction of property taxes."

I.C. Reserves Encouraged By New List

The National Guard and army reserve officers here received information which strengthened their belief that the major units in Iowa City would not be affected by a Pentagon realignment plan.

The information, entitled "Fact Sheet on Reserve Realignment," was released by the Department of the Army and made available to guard officers by Iowa Senator Jack Miller, and to reserve officers by the XVI corps headquarters at Minneapolis, Minn.

The fact sheet lists several types of units which would be eliminated or reduced in size and several types which would be added or strengthened.

Iowa City's main guard unit is the 109th medical battalion, and the main Army reserve unit is the 1st battle group, 410th infantry.

Yanks Lose Lead; Edged by A's, 2-1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — John Wyatt and Bill Fischer combined to pitch a seven-hitter Tuesday to give the Kansas City Athletics a 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees. The loss dropped the Yanks from the American League lead.

Kansas City scored both its runs in the first inning against rookie Jim Bouton and then held off repeated Yankee threats — with the only New York run coming in the sixth inning off Wyatt, who picked up his third victory in six decisions.

The Yankees loaded the bases against Wyatt in the first inning but couldn't score.

In the bottom of the first, two bases on balls, a fielder's choice, a passed ball and singles by Norm Siebern and Manny Jimenez punched across Kansas City's two runs.

The Yankees lone tally came in the sixth when Roger Maris singled, advanced to second on a walk to Johnny Blanchard and scored on Bill Skowron's single.

Fischer replaced Wyatt in the eighth inning, got into a jam when Blanchard and Elston Howard singled, but struck out Skowron with the tying run on third base.

Bouton left for a pinch-hitter in the sixth inning and Bud Daley finished the game.

Boston over Twins

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Chuck Schilling's three-run homer with two outs in the sixth inning broke up a tie game Tuesday and gave the Boston Red Sox an 8-5 win over the Minnesota Twins.

Boston used the long ball to clip the Twins for the fourth consecutive time this season.

Schilling's blast came off Dick Stigman, the third of five Minnesota hurlers.

Seven of the Red Sox' eight runs were accounted for by homers.

Carl Yastrzemski hit a solo homer in the first and Bill Tillman had a two-run blast in the second and a bases empty homer in the third.

Yastrzemski accounted for the other Boston run when he walked with the bases loaded in the second.

Minnesota capitalized on Boston starter Don Schwall's wildness to score three times in the first two frames. Galen Cisco, who pitched the middle innings, gained his fourth win in eight decisions.

George Banks hit a bases empty homer for Minnesota in the fifth.

Ted Sadowski, who relieved Twins' starter Lee Strange in the second, was charged with his first loss against one victory.

The top finishers in the girls' groups will advance to the girls' International meet in Wichita, Kan.

Jones, Ward, Rathmann Battle Today

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The old pros, Rodger Ward and Jim Rathmann, will battle the young elite of Paraneli Jones, A. J. Foyt and Bobby Marshman in today's 500-mile auto race, which may mean record smashing from start to finish.

The fastest 33-car field ever was buttoned up late Tuesday following the annual drivers meeting. The speedway dare devils now sweat out the noon EDT (10 a.m. Iowa City time) start of the big chase as the vanguard of an estimated 250,000 fans lined up at the track gates.

The weather bureau indicated there was a chance that scattered thunderstorms may interfere with running of the event, stopped by rain only twice in 45 years. The forecast called for windy, warm and humid weather with temperatures in the mid-80s.

The drivers' meeting brought the usual warnings from Chief Steward Harlan Fenger to heed the yellow caution light flashed on in case of trouble on the 2½-mile race course.

Ignoring the yellow, he warned, will result in the violator being black flagged and the loss of one lap.

With the fans and racing experts, Jones was the No. 1 favorite for top money from the purse of an estimated 425,000. About $125,000 will go to the winner.

Jones, co-rookie of the year at the 1961 speedway, became the first speedster to crack the 150-mile per hour barrier that won him the pole position in the same car in which he placed 12th last year.

He figured to hold the lead from the start, if possible, at average speeds of 147 to 149 mph.

"It's going to be a real fast race," he predicted. "I just hope I can finish."

The heavy-footed Californian had plenty of company in the high speed department, including Marshman, who shared rookie honors with Jones last year, and Foyt, the defending champion, who gave every indication he will be in the thick for the flag chase.

$4 Million Sale of Cincinnati Reds May Be Nullified Soon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy said Tuesday he was asking Crosby Foundation Trustees to open the books of the Cincinnati Baseball Club Co. to a group of potential buyers headed by Joseph H. Rippe.

The action could lead to nullifying the sale of the Cincinnati Reds to William O. (Bill) Dewitt, who paid $4,625,000 for the club earlier this year.

McElroy pointed out that as Ohio's chief legal officer it was his "responsibility to supervise the actions of the charitable trusts and that his actions are founded on this legal responsibility." The Crosby Foundation is a charitable trust.

The attorney general said the group headed by Rippe, a Cincinnati businessman, "has indicated that it is prepared to make a higher and better offer than was made by Dewitt."

Rippe's group presented what it considered a bid for $5.5 million when Dewitt bought the team.

The foundation trustees held that Rippe did not make a formal bid, and said that they could not consider the offer. They also refused Rippe's request to audit the team's books.

McElroy said "the desire of the late Powell Crosby to keep the baseball club in Cincinnati would be an important consideration in the Rippe offer."

Dewitt, in buying the Reds, signed no written agreement to keep the club in Cincinnati. However, he repeatedly has said he intended to keep it there.

The Reds have a contract with the city to remain through the 1962 season, in return for use of the city's parking lots at Crosley Field.

JOHNSON, DEMKO SIGN
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Steelers' contented list for the 1962 National Football League season rose to 30 Tuesday with the signings of veteran fullback John Henry Johnson and tackle George Demko.

Johnson and rookie fullback Bob Ferguson, twice All-American from Ohio State, are expected to give the Steelers a one-two punch that has become fashionable for pro teams.

Top Salary To Jim Brown

CLEVELAND (AP) — Fullback Jim Brown, who has set several National Football League records with his powerful runs, put another in the books Tuesday. He signed a contract for his sixth season with the Cleveland Browns at a salary reported to make him the highest paid player in professional football.

The former Syracuse All-American, who considered retiring to enter business last winter, said he was "looking forward to having a fine year and plan to give 100 per cent, as I always do."

Specific figures were not revealed, but Arthur B. Modell, president of the Browns, said the big fullback's salary is "a substantial increase over what he got in his last contract. We believe it is the highest in professional football."

Season Football Forms Out Friday

Season ticket sales for Iowa's five home football games begin Friday, with 60,000 application forms being mailed from the SUI Athletic Department to prospective purchasers in Midwestern states.

Season ticket price is $25 for the following five home games: Sept. 29, Oregon State; Oct. 6, Southern California; Oct. 27, Purdue (homecoming); Nov. 3, Ohio State; and Nov. 17, Michigan.

Application forms for single games will be mailed August 1, and single game tickets will be mailed in September.

Students who desire applications for their parents may either phone or see Iowa Athletic Business Manager Buzz Graham at the Field House offices.

Kelso Returns To Racing; Favored In Metropolitan

NEW YORK (AP) — Champion Kelso, out of action since he was upset last Nov. 11 by T. V. Lark in the Washington, D.C. International at Laurel, must come up with the correct answer right away today. He meets eight seasoned rivals, including Carry Back, in the $100,000-added Metropolitan Handicap at Aqueduct.

Mrs. Richard C. du Pont's 5-year-old star goes into the one-mile Metropolitan with a 133-pound burden but without a tune-up race under his belt. He must spot his rivals from 10 to 25 pounds.

Carry Back, the 1961 champion 3-year-old owned by Mrs. Katherine Price, is second in the weights with 123 pounds while King Ranch's Bal Mustette is the lightweight with only 108.

Willie Shoemaker rides Kelso, an odds-on choice at 3-5. Kelso won the 1961 Met, but it was a come-from-behind thriller for the Memorial Day crowd. He had 130 in that one, and nailed All Hands, 117, right at the wire.

Mets Say Chacon Fined $100 For Starting Fisticuffs

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets confirmed Tuesday that Elio Chacon, their regular shortstop, has been fined by National League President Warren Giles for his part in the Sunday fracas between the Mets and Giants in San Francisco.

Giles, contacted in Cincinnati, would neither confirm nor deny he had fined Chacon, but there was a telegram addressed to Chacon in the Polo Grounds to prove the assessment had been meted out.

The fine is an automatic one of $100 because Chacon, according to chief umpire Al Barlick, was responsible for touching off a fight with Willie Mays, and another between pitcher Roger Craig of the Mets and the Giants' Orlando Cepeda.

Chacon was the only combatant ejected from the game.

Nine Homers In 11-9 Brave Victory

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Milwaukee Braves scored six unearned runs off ex-teammate Bob Buhl Tuesday and went on to spank the Chicago Cubs, 11-9, despite Ernie Banks' three home runs and a double.

Nine home runs were hit in the contest, one short of a league record.

Banks, playing in his first game since Friday when he was beamed by Cincinnati's Moe Drabowski, clouted three successive homers to boost his season's total to 14. It was the third time in the career of the Cubs' star that he had hit three homers in a single game.

Joe Torre paced the Braves' attack on Buhl with a home run, two singles and three runs batted in. Joe Adcock and Sammy Samuel also stroked four-baggers for Milwaukee in wind-blown Wrigley Field.

Billy Williams, the National League's leading hitter, socked a home run in the fifth to extend his hitting streak to 15 games. Bob Will and George Altman also homered for the Cubs.

An error by shortstop Andre Rogers opened the door for the six unearned runs for the Braves in the third on only two hits. Buhl also helped his ex-mates with three walks in the inning.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates, aided by a St. Louis error, scored two runs in the ninth inning Tuesday night for a 7-6 victory over the Cardinals.

With one man out in the Pirate ninth, Howie Goss drew a walk off relief pitcher Bobby Shantz and Don Hoak followed with a single. Don Leepert singled to center, scoring Goss, and when Curt Flood let the ball get past him, Hoak scored the winning run.

The Cardinals had gone into the lead for the first time in the game in their half of the ninth. They also were aided by an error.

Flood singled with a man out. Bill White then tripled to deep right center and scored behind Flood when second baseman Bill Mazeroski fumbled the relay from the outfield.

NOT ON THE AIR TODAY, are we? But we (WSUI and KSUI-FM) will return to broadcasting tomorrow. "Why, then," you might ask, "don't you wait until tomorrow to tell us about it?" The answer to that penetrating question lies in the fact that The Daily Iowan — our host, you might say — will not appear on Thursday. This seeming inconsistency results almost entirely from the fact that both Broadcasting House and The Daily Iowan will vacate during the same day — Wednesday — but, since newspapers (particularly morning ones) often appear the day after the work on them was done, whereas at radio stations the work (?) is being done at the precise time when you hear it, well, then... Get it?

"THE OVERCROWDED CITY" is the current SUI Radio Forum offering. Originally broadcast last Monday evening, it will be repeated tomorrow morning at 8:30.

2 Officers Missing In Laotian Fighting

VIETIANE, Laos (UPI) — Two U.S. Army non-commissioned officers are missing in rebel territory following an attack by forces believed to be Communist North Vietnamese, the U.S. Embassy announced Tuesday.

The Americans, who were not identified immediately, disappeared Saturday when anti-Government forces captured an outpost nine miles from Ban Houei Sai, the Government-held town on the Thai border in north-west Laos. Helicopters sent to search for them have been fired upon by hostile forces, indicating their escape route has been blocked.

In Washington, the Defense Department said the men were reported missing after 150 North Vietnamese soldiers attacked a 15 man Laotian patrol 15 miles north-east of Ban Houei Sai Sunday.

The Laotians incurred six casualties but six other U.S. instructors with the patrol were uninjured and accounted for, the department said. The missing men may have been captured or have become separated from the group during the skirmish, it said.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White said fighting near Ban Houei Sai has broken out again since Sunday.

USAF Silent On Satellite

VANDENBERG AFB, Calif. (UPI) — The Air Force Tuesday launched another secret satellite — probably one of the Discoverer series — and declined to say whether it had gone into orbit.

The Air Force followed a pattern adopted two months ago of releasing a brief announcement describing the booster and second stage. The United States has recently refused to release any details on military satellites, including the so-called sky spies — Midas and Samos — or the Discoverers.

The brief Air Force statement read: "A satellite employing a Thor-Agena B combination was launched today by the Air Force from Vandenberg Air Force Base."

All Discoverer shots through early 1962 were open to coverage by the press. The Discoverer, in addition to carrying specimens to test radiation as well as highly sophisticated instruments, was a pacesetter in U.S. efforts to capture man-made objects from space.

The first known recovery of any such object from space was the capsule from the Discoverer XIII in August, 1960.

Nigeria Calls Emergency

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — A state of public emergency was declared Tuesday by the Federal Government of this populous West African nation.

The action, rushed through both houses of Parliament, was taken to give the Federal Government control over the nation's western region, where political factions have been feuding for weeks.

Federal Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa decided to act after fighting broke out in the western House of Assembly last Friday and police had to clear the chamber with tear gas.

The emergency declaration—the first for this nation of 35 million since it peacefully won independence from Britain in October 1960—in effect gives control of the western region to the federal prime minister, who will govern through an administrator. Federal Health Minister Dr. Moses Majeedunmi was named to the post.

Chief Obafemi Awolowo, national president of the so-called action group leading the opposition to the Federal Government, told a rally of his followers the party will contest in the courts the Government's emergency declaration.

Berlin Talks Resume After Western Split

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and Russia resume Berlin talks today with this country's negotiating position damaged by a split in the Western camp.

The State Department announced Tuesday that Secretary of State Dean Rusk had arranged a Memorial Day conference with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin to continue their discussion of ways to ease tension in the Berlin area.

The U.S. officials acknowledged that Rusk's room for maneuver had been considerably restricted by the continuing disagreement with West Germany and France over how to deal with the problem.

They said the American proposal for a 13-member international authority to guarantee Allied access to Red-encircled West Berlin appeared to be virtually dead, killed by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's adamant refusal to accept the idea.

Adenauer countered last week with a plan of his own calling for the wartime Big Four — the United States, Britain, France and Russia — to retain full control of the routes with a number of neutral states exercising operational functions under big four policy guidance.

Officials said Rusk still can discuss access problems with Dobrynin in the hope of sparking some ideas from the Russians on how to relieve tension along the land and air corridors to the Western sector of the city.

Dutch, Indonesians Ordered Ceasefire

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI) — Acting Secretary General U Thant appealed to the Dutch and Indonesian Governments Tuesday to order an immediate cease-fire in Dutch West New Guinea so that new talks between the two countries can start in a favorable atmosphere.

Thant made the request in identical cables to Premier Jan Dequay of the Netherlands and President Sukarno of Indonesia.

In his cable Thant also thanked both government chiefs for agreeing to resume negotiations for a peaceful solution of the 12-year conflict on the basis of mediation proposals drafted by U.S. diplomat Ellsworth Bunker.

Under the plan, a UN administration would replace the Dutch regime for a period not exceeding two years in West New Guinea, following which Indonesia would take over and hold a plebiscite among the 750,000 Papuans.

Australia 4th To Send Men To Thailand

BANGKOK (UPI) — On Tuesday, Australia became the fourth South-east Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) member to send military forces to Communist-threatened Thailand.

A squadron of eight F86 Sabrejet fighters landed at Bangkok's Don Muang Airport for later deployment to a field only 10 air minutes from the newest Communist advance in neighboring Laos.

The United States, Britain, and New Zealand already have forces here. SEATO members Pakistan, and the Philippines have not yet responded to Thailand's call for aid in its defense against possible Communist encroachment from Laos.

A 100-bed U.S. Army field hospital also was scheduled to arrive to serve the 5,000-man Army and Marine force sent to Thailand earlier this month by President Kennedy. It is by far the largest SEATO contingent assigned here. Britain and New Zealand sent air units.

Marshal Thawee Chulasap, Thai military adviser to SEATO, greeted the eight Australian pilots and 21 crewmen with cases of cold Thai beer and a pledge "to cooperate with you from the highest to the lowest level."

Castro Transfers Invaders To Island

HAVANA (UPI) — The Castro Government has stepped up a mass air shuttle of invasion prisoners to Cuba's "Devil's Island," the offshore Isle of Pines prison, it was reported here Tuesday.

Relatives of the prisoners, nearly 1,700 of whom have been held in Havana's Principe jail, said the aerial transfer started over the week end. They said the main invasion figures, including Brig. Jose San Roman, Maj. Eneldo Oliva and Capt. Manuel Artime already had been shipped out.

SUlowans Polled On Summer Plans

Students will have varied summer plans, if a sample of eight is any indication. Replies to the question "What are you going to do this summer?" follow:

Pat Sturtevant, A3, Glenview, Ill., said, "I am going to travel through most of Europe on an extended student tour."

Joe Brunner, A2, Frankfort, Ind., said, "I plan to work with electronic computers for an insurance company in Frankfort."

Bill Bird, A1, Swalesdale, said, "I'm going to help my dad on our 40-acre farm and show my prize hog at the county fair."

Sue LaRue, A4, Linwood, plans to go to San Francisco in July to find a job.

Dave Rembolt, B4, Iowa City has enlisted in the Marines and expects to spend the summer at Quantico, Va.

Kim Schoch, A3, New York City, will be a life guard at Des Moines and go to summer school at Drake.

Gary Fletcher, B2, Des Moines, will be a camp counselor in Minnesota and stay in shape for football.

Sharon Lewis, A4, Burlington, will be a probation officer in the Cedar Rapids area.

GHANA CONSTRUCTION

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — With U.S. aid of $475,000, Ghana will build three farm mechanization centers.

Mr. K Cites Christ, Says Nothing New

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Khrushchev said Tuesday in a speech predicting the doom of capitalism that he agrees with Jesus Christ "who threw the merchants out of the church" for exploiting the people.

He also said that if the resources which are being devoted to armaments are diverted to the development of national economy, man can create "a paradise on this planet, unlike Christianity which promises a paradise after death."

Khrushchev made the statements in an off-the-cuff speech to several hundred guests at a reception given by Mali Republic President Mobido Keita who is here on an official visit.

The premier, an atheist, laughingly explained that he could quote from the Bible because he had some religious instruction in his youth.

Khrushchev, alternately raising his voice and gesticulating with a knife, called for the "liquidation of capitalism, colonialism and imperialism."

A few minutes before he launched into the hour-long speech he stood, hands folded across his stomach, watching intently as a Mali dancer swathed his body with flaming torches and swallowed gobs of fire.

Quiet Family Dinner—

Kennedy Celebrates 45th

By MERRIMAN SMITH UPI White House Reporter

MIDDLEBURG, Va. (UPI) — President Kennedy celebrated his 45th birthday anniversary Tuesday night at a quiet family dinner party after a busy day dealing with such diverse problems as the stock market, defense plans and campaign spending.

The President was surrounded by his wife, their two young children, and other members of the Kennedy clan at his Glen Ora estate in the Virginia hunt country. He planned to spend Memorial Day at Glen Ora and return to Washington Thursday.

Kennedy's helicopter arrived at the estate at 7:04 p.m. EDT.

Apparently a number of birthday gifts were brought along. Aides carried armload after armload of wrapped packages from the helicopter into the house.

Before flying to Middleburg late Tuesday by helicopter, the President put in a regular working day which kept him busy with the burdens of the nation's highest office. Early Tuesday morning, the President was greeted by his family and a short time later by Democratic congressional leaders at the regular weekly White House legislative meeting.

The session with the chieftains from the House and Senate quickly turned to other matters, however, including the tumbling stock market.

Kennedy followed this up by conferring with Secretary of Treasury Douglas Dillon and other economic experts on the market situation.

After their meeting, Kennedy made an unannounced visit to the Pentagon where he gave an off-the-cuff talk to about 250 senior Defense Department officials and officers.

It was his first visit to the sprawling building. He spent 15 minutes in the office of Secretary Robert S. McNamara with the defense chief and other top military leaders.

Aside from these and other conferences during the day, the President took action in other fields. The President's 45th birthday was a pre-determined point at which Kennedy came into control of a reported half of the trust fund set up for him and his brothers and sisters by their father, Joseph P. Kennedy.

And the day found him in essentially good health, despite a recurrent back ailment and a few tiny lines around his eyes.

Your 1962 Hawkeye Will Be Late

You may not get it before leaving campus for the summer. Unavoidably, and unfortunately, the book will not be available before June 4th. The delay occurs because five yearbook staffs were behind schedule this year in getting their material to the printer.

Here's What To Do . . .

If you do leave campus before the book is ready for distribution, there are two ways to get your Hawkeye:

1. On your return to campus in the Fall. Time and place of distribution will be announced then in The Daily Iowan.
2. The book will be mailed to you, if you will bring or send 75 cents to 201 Communications Center for postage and handling.

Definite Date of Distribution Will Be Announced Soon in The Daily Iowan
