New Zoology Addition Planned—

SUI Receives $723,294 in Grants

A $352,100 grant from the National Science Foundation has been made to SUI to help finance a $1 million four-story addition to the Zoology Building.

The 59th General Assembly appropriated $544,000 for the building. SUI will seek an appropriation for equipment. The new structure will be built directly south of the present building at Dubuque and Jefferson Streets.

Two-thirds of the addition's floor space will be devoted to faculty, staff and graduate student office and research facilities. The remaining third will be used for teaching laboratories, a machine shop and specialized services.

"There is a vital need for this addition," Jerry Kollros, chairman of the Zoology Department, said.

"Enrollment in the basic zoology course alone has increased nearly three-fold in the past nine years. Other courses have been expanded and there are new subjects offered to the students.

"If we assume the enrollment growth in zoology courses will increase at the same rate as the University's projected growth rate," he added, "the additional facilities now planned for completion late in 1964, will be just adequate to keep us from falling behind by 1969."

The addition's first floor will be used for research in endocrinology and parasitology; ecology and genetics will occupy the second floor; physiology the third floor, and protozoology and experimental embryology the fourth floor.

Some of the special rooms are designed to maintain constant temperature and others will be used for radiation research.

Small mammals, insects, reptiles and aquatic animals used in experiments and classwork will be kept in the basement. An 18-foot passageway will link the addition to the main Zoology building at three levels.

"The completed addition will enable the department to double the amount of space for research, provide a variety of facilities we now lack, and permit a more efficient utilization of space," Kollros said. "Other sorely needed space will be available for enlarged departmental offices, a seminar room and increased library space."

The finance committee of the State Board of Regents has accepted $371,193.70 in gifts and grants.

The funds include $143,037 for SUI research projects; $11,637 for scholarships, fellowships and student aid; $169,300 for student training programs, and $46,682 for miscellaneous University projects. The committee accepted the funds during its May meeting at SUI.

The research funds include support for such things as cancer research by the SUI College of Medicine; studies of sedimentation by the College of Engineering; and research in teaching of composition by the Rhetoric Department.

The gifts and grants to SUI were made by 40 organizations and individuals. The largest total of grants —$114,420— was made by the U.S. Public Health Service.

Iowa gifts were made by Adrian M. Hogan, Clinton, orthopedic research gift fund; Iowa Mental Health Authority, scholarship fund; James E. Crumrine, Vernon Heights Pharmacy, Cedar Rapids, pharmacy award; Anamosa Fort-nightly Club, hospital-school gift fund; Iowa Chapter Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, research; Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, scholarships; Iowa Commission for the Blind, scholarships; Howard Watters, West Liberty, pharmacy scholarship; Women's Auxiliary, Iowa Association of Plumbing Contractors, nursing scholarship; and E. G. Kettlekamp, Monona, medical scholarship.

Government Subpoenas Steel Executive Accounts

Seek Information for Probe In Price-Raise Controversy

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp. said Monday the Government has subpoenaed telephone numbers and expense account information on some of the corporation's executives.

The records were subpoenaed by the Justice Department, a company spokesman said, adding that some of the telephone numbers were for unlisted phones.

The U.S. Steel spokesman said the company had nothing further to say on the matter, adding, "I think anything more should come from the Justice Department."

Meanwhile, the Dow-Jones business news service reported from Pittsburgh that records similarly were subpoenaed from Bethlehem Steel Corp., and Wheeling Steel Corp. and that Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. was understood to have been served.

Later, it added the name of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Corp. to the list confirming service.

"Steel sources said the subpoenas are seeking the listed and unlisted telephone numbers of any executive who might have a voice in determining prices," Dow Jones said.

In Washington, informed sources indicated that steel company information had been subpoenaed in connection with the current investigation by a grand jury of the recent steel price-increase controversy.

But Asst. Atty. Gen. Lee Loevinger, head of the Justice Department Antitrust Division, refused to elaborate on what steps the grand jury had taken. The federal grand jury is meeting in New York.

"The details of a grand jury investigation are confidential, and the Department of Justice is not at liberty to disclose them," Loevinger said.

The five companies were among seven which posted a $6-a-ton increase in prices last April 10 and 11, then withdrew it in the face of an angry response from the White House.

At the same time, the New York World-Telegram & Sun said it learned the investigation, which is described as "top secret," was under direction of the Justice Department's Antitrust Division.

The World-Telegram & Sun said the role of the Antitrust Division led to speculation that the inquiry was connected with an alleged conspiracy that resulted in a federal indictment against U.S. Steel and Bethlehem last April 26, "or some new case in the category."

The indictment charged conspiracy to fix prices and rig bids on sales of steel forgings to the military services and other buyers.

The New York paper also speculated that the investigation might be the opening gun in a crackdown on expense account spending generally.

The House has passed an Administration-backed bill that would put new restrictions on a tax-deductible spending by businessmen, especially in connection with entertainment.

Also, Tax Commissioner Mortimer Caplin has served notice that regardless of what finally happens to the bill administrators will apply closer scrutiny to big expense account claims for this tax year.

Keettel Named To Fellowship

Dr. William C. Keettel, professor and head of obstetrics and gynecology in SUI's College of Medicine, has been elected a Fellow of the American Gynecological Society.

Fellowship in the society is limited to the top 100 specialists in the field of obstetrics and gynecology.

The election of Dr. Keettel took place at a national meeting of the society in Hot Springs, Va. Dr. Keettel, who is also a fellow of the American College of Surgeons, and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists is a medical graduate of the University of Nebraska. He has been an SUI faculty member since 1946 and became head of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology in 1959. The SUI physician is the author of more than 55 scientific articles.

OAS Sets Fires Amid Oil Tanks

ORAN, Algeria (AP) — A spectacular fire touched off by secret army terrorist bombs roared out of control early Tuesday amid Oran harbor's oil storage tanks.

The blaze threatened a military depot and a gasoline dump, but officials said they thought they could save the gasoline stores and prevent an explosion that could cause severe damage.

Terrorists blew up three British Petroleum Co. oil tanks Monday afternoon and a flood of burning oil quickly touched off seven other reservoirs. The 10 tanks contained about 2.6 million gallons. Flames shot 900 feet above the western Algerian port.

There were no reported casualties. The European extremists warned away workmen before setting their explosives.

Something Gave — Dean Turns Tables on 20th

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dean Martin sued 20th Century-Fox for $6,885,500 defamation damages Monday, claiming the studio wrongly blamed him for the demise of "Something's Got to Give" in which he was to costar with Marilyn Monroe.

Fox fired Miss Monroe for failing to appear for work, sued her, then later sued Martin, claiming he failed to approve a replacement.

Government Should Be Neutral—

Supreme Court Rules School Prayers Are Unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court declared Monday the Constitution is violated by any requirement that a public school teacher lead pupils in prayer.

"It is no part of the business of Government to compose official prayers for any group of American people to recite as part of a religious program carried on by Government," Justice Hugo L. Black said in delivering the 6-1 decision.

It doesn't matter that the prayer is denominationally neutral, Black said, or that it is voluntary for the students to recite it.

"When the power, prestige and financial support of Government is placed behind a particular religious belief," he declared, "the indirect coercive pressure upon religious minorities to conform to the prevailing officially approved religion is plain."

Justices Felix Frankfurter and Byron R. White took no part in the school prayer ruling, the most momentous pronouncement on the doctrine of separation of church and state in many years.

It follows two separate rulings that while religious instruction cannot be conducted on public school property, pupils may be released during school hours for such instructions elsewhere. Earlier, the court upheld reimbursement of parents for expenses of bus transportation to parochial as well as public schools.

Specifically, Monday's ruling invalidated a New York Board of Regents recommendation calling for the recital of a 22-word prayer at the start of each school day. Pupils could remain silent while the prayer was said.

The lone dissenter, Justice Potter Stewart, said the court has misapplied a great constitutional principle.

"I cannot see how 'official religion' is established by letting those who want to say a prayer say it. On the contrary I think that to deny the wish of these children to join in reciting this prayer is to deny them the opportunity in sharing in the spiritual heritage of our nation."

The appeals from New York State court's rulings upholding the

No Iowa Policy

Paul F. Johnston, state superintendent of public instruction, said Monday there is no state policy on religion in Iowa's public schools.

Johnston said he thought that the Lord's Prayer and some Bible scriptures were being recited in the state's public schools but that this is being done by local sanction.

He added, however, that no public school children in Iowa were being forced to take part in scripture or prayer reading.

prayer were by parents of a group of New York children — Jewish, Protestant and Catholic. Black agreed with them that use of the public school system to encourage prayer is wholly inconsistent with a constitutional bar to any "law respecting an establishment of religion."

Black said it is a matter of history that this very practice of government-established prayers was one of the reasons why many early colonists came to America to seek religious freedom.

By the time the U.S. Constitution was adopted, Black said, "There was a widespread awareness of many Americans of the dangers of a union of church and state."

The 1st Amendment, Black said, provides that any "Government in this country, be it state or federal is without power to prescribe by law particular form of prayer which is to be used as an official prayer in carrying on any program of Governmental sponsored religious activity."

Black said nothing could be more wrong than the argument that barring religious services or prayer in public schools indicates hostility towards religion or towards prayer.

"It's neither sacrilegious nor antireligious, to say that each separate Government in this country should stay out of the business of writing or sanctioning official prayers and leave that purely religious function to the people themselves and to those the people choose to look to for religious guidance," Black said.

Justice William O. Douglas wrote a separate, concurring opinion saying, "The 1st Amendment leaves the Government in a position not of hostility to religion but neutrality. The philosophy is that the atheist or agnostic — the nonbeliever — is entitled to go on his own way."

The court also:

- Agreed for the first time to hear test cases next fall involving sit-in trespass convictions.
- In a major antitrust suit, ruled that Brown Shoe Co., one of the nation's largest shoe firms, must get rid of its interest in another big shoe firm, G. Kinney Co.
- Refused to bar from the mails a magazine featuring nude men.

Rusk, Home Align Policies On Cold War

Reach Agreement On Containment from Berlin to Formosa

LONDON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Foreign Secretary Lord Home agreed Monday night on diplomatic action to deal with Communist threats to peace ranging from the Berlin wall to the Formosa Strait.

The two aligned their countries' policies on the cold war and other issues in two days of talks. The meetings took place against a backdrop of a deepening British-U.S. conviction that Communism is on the defensive because of grave economic and food troubles at home. Western authorities believe the Communist world is undergoing a serious internal crisis of management and policy.

Qualified informants reported that the United States has increased its price for a settlement in Berlin, apparently because it feels Soviet internal problems will force a moderation of its foreign policy.

Rusk and Home also discussed the buildup of Red Chinese military power in Fukien Province opposite the Nationalist Chinese offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu in the Formosa Strait.

The allied statesmen spread the word through their spokesmen that they do not think the buildup is an offensive against the Nationalist-held islands. They indicated it might be a response to allied troop landings in Thailand or a warning to President Chiang Kai-Shek's officials to quit talking about invading the mainland.

Also in the Far East, Rusk and Home looked for the possibility of some sort of live-and-let-live deal with the Communists in South Viet Nam, presently under heavy pressure from Red guerrilla forces.

The British-American talks, following Rusk's meeting with French President Charles de Gaulle in Paris and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in Bonn, signalled the opening of a period of intensive East-West maneuvering.

In the coming months statesmen of the big powers are set for another round of bargaining on Berlin, Laos, Viet Nam and perhaps even the perilous situation in the Formosa Strait.

Even as Rusk and Home were lunching at the U.S. Embassy new notes went out from the three Western allies calling on Russia to join four-power talks in Berlin to end the shooting and to bring the divided city nearer normality.

Rusk and Home devoted as much time to interallied problems as they did to East-West relations. The American brought word from his talks with De Gaulle and Adenauer that Britain's projected entry into the Common Market would not be vetoed for political reasons.

This would be a long step toward a united Europe and it would provide the basis for setting up an American-backed nuclear strike force in Europe which would be manned and managed within the Atlantic community.

News in Brief

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States has blamed the Berlin wall for the violence in the divided city and urged the Soviet Union to sit down with the three Western powers to seek ways to halt dangerous incidents.

Competent U.S. sources were doubtful that the Soviets will accept the invitation.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Gov. Edmund G. Brown has accepted Richard M. Nixon's dare and issued his own challenge for a television debate in their campaign for governor.

The Democratic chief executive formally invited his Republican opponent — veteran of televised debates in the 1960 presidential campaign with John F. Kennedy — to meet him before the television cameras in mid-October.

NEW YORK — The stock market took another sharp loss Monday but it would have been greater if the list had not bounced back late in the session from peaks reached by market averages while the market was moving up in 1956-57. Trading was heavy.

ROME — Actress Sophia Loren and producer Carlo Ponti were ordered on Monday to trial on charges of bigamy — the most severe jolt they have encountered in their troubled search for marital bliss.

If convicted, the Italian actress and her husband could get up to five years in prison. No date was set for the trial.

MANSFIELD, Ohio — Jerrell Ray Howell, 18, four months out of reform school where he served time for one of a series of sex offenses, was charged Monday with first-degree murder in the deaths of two young girls.

Detective Lt. Raymond Karsmizki said Howell, a 6-foot, 200-pounder, signed a statement admitting he waylaid, beat and kicked the girls and tossed their bodies into a shallow creek Saturday night.

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted Monday to send the 10 per cent travel tax on train and bus tickets Oct. 1 and to cut the airline rate to five per cent on the same date.

Power Putz! Momentarily

A giant power blackout gripped the midlands Monday, but Iowa City was only a partial victim.

Areas of the city fed by a 161,000 volt transmission line from Davenport were without electrical power for a few minutes after 1:30 p.m.

No university buildings were affected because the University supplies its own power.

The affected area reached from Davenport, most of Nebraska, southward from Ft. Randall Dam on the Missouri River, into Kansas.

Switching of currents at the Ft. Randall power station and a generator failure at the North Omaha plant of the Public Power District were responsible for the area blackout.

The interruptions lasted for as long as two hours in some areas.

Those Who Give Up Smoking Get Fewer Heart Diseases

CHICAGO (AP) — Former smokers who have the willpower to quit are less likely candidates for heart disease than many smokers or non-smokers, a medical expert reported Monday.

Dr. Henry I. Russek, a heart specialist, said he reached two conclusions from a detailed survey covering 2,074 doctors, dentists and lawyers.

1. That the smoking habit is a barometer of how many persons respond to stress — the more rugged the situation faced the greater the amount of tobacco consumption.

2. That persons who can quit the tobacco habit and make it stick are more capable of adapting to stress than many who never have smoked or others who continue to smoke.

Russek, consultant in cardiovascular disease, U.S. Public Health Service Hospital, Staten Island, N.Y., said the survey indicated stress or emotional factors play a major role in the development of heart disease and added:

"This evidence does not support the view that tobacco is an important agent in the initiation or progression of coronary atherosclerosis — hardening of the arteries."

In the study of the health results of stress, Russek surveyed 11,000 doctors, dentists and lawyers. He divided each group into stress categories. General practitioners were listed as facing more stressful daily situations than skin specialists. Oral surgery was listed as a more stressful occupation than the treatment of diseased gums. Trial lawyers were considered under more stress than nontrial patent attorneys.

Russek, speaking at the annual meeting of the American Medical Association, said the study showed that the professional men in stressful situations suffered three times as much coronary disease as their colleagues in more relaxing work specialties.

Russek next surveyed 2,074 members of this study group of their smoking habits, if any. He reported:

It would appear that persons abandoning the habit of smoking are more capable of adapting to stress than habitual smokers or even nonsmokers and that in reality, stress and not tobacco consumption is the significant etiologic factor."

Russek said that stress accelerates the disease process.

Court Orders Mississippi To Admit Negro Student

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals Monday ordered issuance of an injunction to force the all-white University of Mississippi to admit James H. Meredith, 28, a Negro Air Force veteran.

It will be the first federal court desegregation order aimed at Mississippi.

In a 2-1 opinion, the court ruled that Meredith's "application for transfer to the University was turned down solely because he was a Negro. We see no valid, nondiscriminatory reason for the university's not accepting Meredith."

The decision capped a 17-month legal battle by Meredith.

He brought suit in federal court after the University of Mississippi rejected two applications for admission. He charged he had been turned down on racial grounds.

After many delays, the case was tried on its merits last January before U.S. Dist. Court Judge Sidney Mize in Jackson, Miss. Judge Mize decided the Negro had been rejected on nonracial grounds.

The present appeal was from that decision. While it was under advisement, Mississippi officials brought charges against Meredith that he had violated the state voter registration law in 1960 by falsely listing Hinds County, which includes Jackson, as his residence. His application to the university lists Attala County, which includes his home town of Kosciusko, as his residence.

3-Nation Report Says Reds Want All of Viet Nam

LONDON (AP) — A majority report from a three-nation Viet Nam control commission made public Monday asserted the Communist North is seeking to overthrow the U.S.-supported South Viet Nam government.

The report, signed by Indian and Canadian members of the three-nation group, also accused the United States and South Viet Nam of breaching the 1954 Geneva armistice by forming what amounts to a military alliance.

The third member, Communist Poland, denounced the charges against North Viet Nam as artificial allegations. It agreed wholeheartedly, however, that there was illegal collusion between U.S. and South Viet Nam armed forces.

The British government released the report after trying in vain to persuade the Soviet Union — co-chairman with Britain in the Indo-chinese peace conference — to agree to joint publication.

Postpone Talk

The lecture by Morton Grodzins, professor of political science at the University of Chicago, has been postponed. The lecture was to have been given at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol.

The talk, part of the Summer Session Lecture Series, will be given later in the semester at a date to be announced.

Too Late For Expert Advice

This past spring while the U.S.-Russian negotiations on a nuclear test ban were taking place in Geneva, the so-called "leftist" press in this country and Europe were making much of the protests of an American seismologist who argued that on-site inspection was not necessary for the detection of underground nuclear explosions.

The seismologist is Dr. L. Don Lett, chairman of the Division of Geological Sciences at Harvard and director of the Harvard Seismograph Station since 1930. Dr. Lett's view that it is seismographically possible to detect underground nuclear tests and to distinguish them from earthquakes was first forwarded in one of his classes. His views were then reported in the Harvard Crimson, the student newspaper.

In the Crimson article, he charged that the U.S. position at Geneva, which called for on-site inspection to verify seismographic reports, was "scientifically invalid." He also questioned the competence of the U.S. panel of scientists who were working on the problem, noting that it did not include a single earthquake station seismologist.

Lett's arguments were also printed in Cambridge 38, a magazine printed at Harvard. But that is as far as his ideas went, until recently when the Scientific American, a journal almost as sacrosanct as the Reader's Digest, printed as their lead article, a piece by Lett in which he argues that he sees "no reason why existing instruments and recording techniques cannot produce records of (Seismic) waves that could furnish a way to detect, identify and locate underground nuclear tests."

Lett bases his detection method on the nature of the various waves which can be detected by seismographic stations. He points out that seismologists have been able to distinguish between earthquakes and non-nuclear explosions a characteristic in regards to the relation between P (primary) and (secondary) waves. Nuclear explosions are also noted by the appearance, at long distances, of a single P wave which Lett calls the "lonely P." The combination of these indicators, Lett argues, would make the detection of nuclear explosions possible "down to the size of the Gnome shot," or between 3 and 5 kilotons.

It is encouraging to see Lett's arguments in a journal that is definitely apolitical and therefore must be accepted or rejected on scientific grounds. It is discouraging, however, that it has appeared too late to affect the U.S.-Russian negotiations that might have resulted in an agreement before the U.S. resumed atmospheric testing. This is not because Lett did not take his ideas to Washington. He did, twice, at his own expense, and was ignored both times. The entire problem points to the difficulties inherent in this technical age where so many crucial decisions must be made on the basis of "expert" opinion, and very often, the public does not have the opportunity to choose between experts — until it is too late.

A Gain for Iowa

By a lopsided margin, Iowa's voters on June 4 demonstrated they had not accepted the claim that they would be giving up some precious right by turning to a plan for removing our judiciary from partisan politics.

A number of well-known newspapers in various parts of the country have singled this out for emphasis in their editorial comments about the significant step taken by our state in this matter. "Iowa voters," the Milwaukee Journal observed, "obviously did not agree that they were signing away a democratic birthright when they approved by a good majority a history-making reform in their method of selecting judges."

After describing the projected plan of selecting judges, the Journal concluded:

"Iowans by their vote expressed intent not to give anything away but to gain something for themselves, in higher caliber and greater independence of their judiciary. Similar correction of the excesses of the long ballot as applied to the bench is a rapidly advancing concept in many states, now under study by the State Bar of Wisconsin also."

'Wake Up! The Government Is Preparing For Peace or War or Something!'

Negro Is Changing Methods In Long Fight for Equality

By LARRY HATFIELD, Managing Editor

In the most recent issue of Playboy magazine, Nat Hentoff has written one of the most detailed and perceptive accounts of the new wave of militant opposition to separation of the races by young Negro intellectuals to be published anywhere. The fact that the article appears in Playboy and that it is written by the nation's leading jazz critic and a Greenwich Village stalwart probably will automatically class it as something to be ignored by most people. For as in many instances, the stereotype blurs the message. This reaction is stupid and if it keeps you from reading "Through the Radial Looking Glass," you are worse off, not better.

The Negro intellectual has grown tired of the slow, arduous legal tactics thus far employed by the NAACP and followers of recognized Negro leaders like Martin Luther King. They have become disenchanted with the slow, snail-like advances in the fight for equality and have taken up more extralegal means to speed up the integration of the Negro into American society.

Some of it has gone to the extreme of adhering to the doctrine of black supremacy. For instance, we have the Black Muslims, a cult devoted to the destruction of the whites and absolute supremacy of the Negro. (We can condemn them with justification, but let us not forget the Muslim's bedpartners, the Ku Klux Klan.) The Negro in America is becoming more conscious of his race — and their pride in being

LARRY HATFIELD

Negro is growing. No longer do Negro women struggle to take the kink out of their hair. Now they are cropping it short — as one Negro woman says: "We women who now wear our hair natural are being our own true selves." Or as handleader Dizzy Gillespie has said, "We're going to take over the world, so you'd better get used to it. . . you'd better give up or begin to learn how it feels being a minority." What he said was half-joking, but still it holds an ominous warning for whites who persist in denying equality to a major sector of the world's population. It is not just Africa or America; it involves the whole world.

Most Negroes do not want the extremist separatist "solution" of Elijah Muhammad's Temple of Islam. What they want is the recognition by the whites that they are people — equal in the sight of God and man. Thus we have charges by young Negroes that the NAACP and the Urban League are too "assimilationist" and too slow. They disdain the philosophy of non-violence that activates CORE and Martin Luther King's legions. We are seeing the formation of more activist groups like "Freedom Now," "On Guard for Freedom," and the "Now-Nows." These groups are pressing the older, larger, and much more conservative groups (like the NAACP) to become more activist.

An example of the Negro's growing disenchantment with the progress thus far made involves President Kennedy and Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the NAACP. Kennedy sent a message of congratulations to Wilkins on the occasion of a dinner in the latter's honor. Wilkins brushed off the President's praise, telling Kennedy that the NAACP regarded his first year's record on civil rights "disappointing" because

Expatriates Face Ghastly Tax Specter

By JOHN CROSBY

The trek home has begun. Expatriates, a word that Americans here find gritty on the teeth, are beginning to pack up and go back to Toledo. David Schoenbrun, a fixture for CBS since the war, is already in Washington, turning his severely Gallic mind to problems that are prosaically American. Art Buchwald, a Paris landmark only a little less renowned than Napoleon's tomb, is already poised for departure. (It'll be like losing the Eiffel Tower. Worse, really. You can't play gin rummy with the Eiffel Tower, now can you?)

And there are many other less celebrated Americans who have lived in Europe since just after the war who are trickling home for all sorts of reasons. The children, for example. "We don't want the children to be raised as Europeans. We want them to be good American children." So they take them home to learn classic American manners. ("It was a marvellous party, Gwendolyn. Dig ya subsequently!") And to sip at American culture. ("Frankie Avalon is the absolutely most! I positively swooned!") And other refinements that can only be learned in America.

Meanwhile, their parents have a great treat in store that they know little about.

TAXES. The expatriate has been having a rather cushy time of it on the tax situation since the war, which is to say, since taxes really became TAXES. He will tell you that French taxes are very high and the British taxes are very high and Italians really do tax foreigners. You are at liberty to believe this marlarky, but I counsel against it.

Anyhow the expatriate is now headed home. He knows that he has to pay American taxes because he has been told that he has to pay American taxes. But he doesn't really know it. It's a little like learning about sex out of books. The actual experience is shattering and not at all like the books.

I watched a friend open his first American pay check after years of residence abroad. A little item called withholding had been withheld. Wow! His jaw sagged. The eyes widened. The lips turned ashen.

"You mean," he whispered, "that's all that's left of my paycheck?"

I nodded sympathetically. It's best not to speak at this moment. They're quite likely to burst into tears.

"But it's my money!"

I SHOOK my head. These people just have to learn the facts of life. There's no way of softening the blow.

"But what do they do with my money?"

Right here you just have to let them have it between the eyes: "You know those big ten-story rockets they shoot up in the air at Cape Canaveral. Well, they're very expensive. Some of them cost $100 million dollars just to develop. Many of them have to be exploded 30 seconds after lift-off. You've just made a down payment on the next one."

Of course, if you really want to soften the blow, you point out all the good things in American life that had been withheld from them abroad. Hamburgers that taste like hamburgers. Toilet paper that — well, never mind. Real honest-to-God suburbs like Winnetka and Scarsdale. Dinah Shore. The Grand Canyon. Mother. And many other exclusively American features too numerous and wonderful to count.

THIS LITTLE bite out of their paycheck is little enough to pay for the manifold blessings of America the Beautiful (and you might hum a bit of it here. It helps). If this doesn't work, you might just say: "Ask not what your country can do for you — ask what you can do for your country."

You can try all these gambits and, if he's a decent citizen, he'll square his shoulder, look you straight in the eye, and let you have one right in the mouth.

Letters Policy

Readers are invited to express opinions in letters to the Editor. All letters must include handwritten signatures and addresses, should be typewritten and double-spaced and should not exceed a maximum of 375 words. We reserve the right to shorten letters.

AP Said 'Treatment'

The AP story stated twice, in the first and last sentences, that Gormly was committed for "psychiatric treatment." No mention was made of a psychiatric examination. Even if "psychiatric examination" is more correct, I leave it to my readers to determine whether it affects the point of my editorial, which, I remain convinced, Mr. Maduff did not, and does not, understand.

'Fink You Very Much!'

I noticed in a recent letter that two students have suggested Larry Hatfield for the fink of the week. There have been several other suggestions for fink honors during the year.

Why doesn't The Daily Iowan start a fink contest in which students can enter their nominations? The person with the best suggestion could get a picture of Larry Hatfield for a prize. (Hatfield has been called the "fink of finks," at least by me.)

Students could address their entries to "Fink," Daily Iowan, Iowa City, Iowa. The Editors would immediately know to pass the letter out Hatfield.

Jeremy Grossman, A3
Chicago, Ill.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Hatfield says: "No contest, you win.")

Who Will Not Learn?

(Re: Larry Hatfield's June 20th editorial.) The cynicism of a dirty-minded boy playing know-it-all is quite (and I do mean "entirely") disgusting!

Larry Hatfield's warped, worm's-eye-view of American family life is proof of his inexperience. Too much living with headlines may be responsible for his lack of perspective.

May he find a good wife and happy family life so that he may learn how wrong he is!

If you want to know the qualities behind the majority of our population, please read Laura Wilder's "Farmer Boy" and "Those Happy Golden Years". These books may also explain the reason for the Walter-McCarran Immigration Law. Perhaps you prefer to remain one of those who "will not learn!"

Djilas' 'Conversations' Portrait of Self, Stalin

Reviewed by JOHN K. HUTCHENS, Herald Tribune News Service

CONVERSATIONS WITH STALIN, BY Milovan Djilas. Harcourt, Brace and World, 211 pages. $3.95

This is the book that sent tough-minded, stout-hearted Milovan Djilas back to jail in Yugoslavia, and as you turn its very first pages you can see why Marshal Tito decided to put him away once more. The man is dangerous — that is to say, he is dangerous to the dictator whose foreign policy is again one of accommodation with Moscow.

Of course, "Conversations With Stalin" contains nothing that Tito and his Kremlin friends do not already know. But to make it public is another matter altogether, and for them a peculiarly embarrassing one at just this time. For this is a much subtler attack than any all-out blast by a veteran anti-Communist might be.

SINCE the book's title-role character, so to speak, is the old butcher whose name today is anathema in the land he ruled so long, you might guess offhand that "Conversations With Stalin" would find "Conversations With Stalin" delightful reading — and the more so because Mr. K. himself comes off not too badly in the Djilas' recollections; a man genuinely of the people, practical, well informed, not without humor. But then Djilas throws a punch for which the Kremlin's current master could not possibly forgive him.

It is not merely that Khrushchev was once close to Stalin. So many belong to that club that it is by way of being an alumni association of the mutually guilty. What must outrage Stalin's successors is Djilas' assertion that they remain in Stalin's shadow even while they reproach him, that "Stalin still lives in the social and spiritual foundations of Soviet society," and that today's leaders in the USSR are not likely to escape him in the monolithic world his evil genius shaped.

Djilas' "conversations" with Stalin took place in 1944, 1945 and 1948, and if the Yugoslav's rec-

BREAKFAST TALK this morning will center on "The European Common Market and U.S. Tariff Policies". The SUI Radio Forum topic was aired last night and will be repeated today at 8:30 a.m.

ON THE OTHER HAND

our continuing series on Coexistence will offer (some twelve hours later): "The Problem of Coexistence Comparatively Considered". Dr. Charles E. Martin, Professor of International Law and Relations at the University of Washington, is the speaker who will address that alliterative assignment.

THE FASTEST MAIL

this side of Wells-Fargo arrived Monday afternoon from a listener in Iowa City who had enjoyed our morning "potpourri" yesterday from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. A sort of mixed bag of short, but serious, selections (two can play at this game), the program may be heard throughout the week: Monday, Wednesday and Fridays at 8:30; Tuesdays and Thursdays at 9 a.m.

SPEAKING OF MAIL

you will want to write — we hope — for the July Program Guide to Serious Music now being prepared for distribution. Only if you're new in town will that be necessary, however, for our efficient secretaries — together with the IBM machine, the addressograph and the automatic stamping device — will see to it that regular recipients in the area continue to receive the service (if still in the area).

Powerful Poles

The United States track and field team, selected at the NAAU Championships, will meet one of Poland's most powerful track teams, including Kazimierz Zimmy, who won the 5,000 meter run with the U.S. at Warsaw in 1958, in Chicago June 30 and July 1. The Americans will later meet a Russian team at Palo Alto, Calif. July 21-22.

40 Track Stars Ready To Meet Poles, Russians

WALNUT, Cal. (AP) — Forty athletes, top performers fresh from outstanding performances at the seventy-fourth annual National Amateur Athletic Union (NAAU) track and field championships, have been named to represent the United States in future meets with Poland and Russia.

Missing from the American team will be Villinova's Frank Budd who is out with a bad leg, and the pole vaulting stars, L. David Tork and John Uelses, who failed to qualify in the nationals.

SUI's outstanding sophomore, Bill Frazier, finished fifth in the NAAU meet, running 1:48.1 in the 880-yard event. Only first and second place finishers were selected to compete in future meets with Poland and the Soviet Union.

NAAU officials said everyone selected had agreed to compete. This was in reference to the revolt a year ago when nine athletes declined to go abroad for a series of meets.

The American team will assemble in Chicago for the Polish meet this weekend. The battle with Russia is set for July 21-22 at Palo Alto, Calif.

The Chicago meet will be the third recent meeting of American and Polish athletes, but the first to be held in the United States.

Thirty track events are scheduled over a two-day period with fifteen final events run each day. There will be no trials. Ten of the thirty events will be contested between Polish and American women athletes.

Some of track and field's finest performances resulted in the two previous meetings between the TOLEDO (AP) — Russia and Bulgaria took the lead Monday as three days of Greco-Roman wrestling began at the world championships.

Russians won all five of their afternoon matches — three by pins — while the Bulgarians had four victories and drew a bye. No other nation had more than one winner.

Rudy Williams of Detroit was the only U.S. winner.

Williams, who never wrestled in high school or college, scored a decision over Ion Taranu of Rumania.

In the afternoon matches two other Americans got draws — Dick Wilson of Toledo against Kayi Sakurama and Jim Burke of the San Francisco Olympic Club against Hussein Ebrahman of Iran.

Russia, Turkey, Iran, Japan and Bulgaria are expected to be the major competitors for the Greco-Roman title won last year by Russia.

However, the Soviets do not have any of their five individual champions on hand to defend their crowns.

The main difference between Greco-Roman and freestyle wrestling is that neither the legs nor holds on the legs may be used in Greco-Roman.

Russia won the freestyle championship Saturday night, trailed by Japan, Iran, Turkey, Bulgaria and the United States.

McKinley Leads Americans In Wimbledon Tournament

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Chuck McKinley, the 21-year-old husky Davis Cup player, led seven Americans into the second round of the 76th Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships Monday.

McKinley, of St. Anne, Mo., delighted a crowd of about 300 gathered around court 13 — one out in the wilderness — with his enthusiasm and verve in beating Owen French, 20-year-old Aussie, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

McKinley was the only American seed among the top eight. He was seeded fifth and on Monday's showing could upset some of the favorites before the championship ends July 7.

Eight Americans were knocked out on the opening day.

The Americans who joined McKinley in the second round of the men's singles were Chris Crawford of Piedmont, Calif.; Whitney Reed, Alameda, Calif.; Frank Froehling, Coral Gables, Fla.; Mal Fox, Baltimore; Dennis Ralston, Bakersfield, Calif., and Ronald Dell, Bethesda, Md.

Crawford defeated Alberto Arilla, Spain, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4; Fox defeated Gardner Mulloy, Coral Gables, Fla., 6-3, 6-3, 6-4; Reed defeated Franz Saiko, Austria, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3; Froehling defeated Roger Becker, Britain, 16-14, 4-6, 6-4; Dell defeated J. O. Lemann, Switzerland, 6-2, 6-4, 6-1; and Ralston defeated Brian Knox, Britain 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

The player who pulled American tennis up by its socks was the ebullient McKinley — unorthodox in most things except enthusiasm.

McKinley even had uniformed English school girls cheering for him. The girls in maroon blazers, straw hats and striped skirts gave the young American a big cheer every time he hit a winner.

Rod Laver, the red-haired left-hander from Australia, opened the defense of his title with a comfortable 7-5, 6-1, 6-2 victory over Naresh Kumar of India. Laver is trying for a grand slam of tennis — win the Australian, French, Wimbledon and American titles in one year.

He has the French and Australian titles under his belt. His compatriot, Roy Emerson, is second seeded — and Emerson found the going tough at times Monday against Jon Douglas of Santa Monica, Calif.

Emerson eventually defeated Douglas 6-3, 6-4, 8-6 — but only after the fighting American had given him a few scares.

The match between Ed Rubinoff of Miami, Fla., and Jorgen Ulrich of Denmark was postponed because of bad light. The match was square at two sets all. Ulrich won the first two sets 6-3, 7-5 and then lost the next two 6-8, 1-6.

Mulloy, 48-year-old favorite of Wimbledon crowds, bowed out in the first round to countryman Fox. It was Mulloy's 16th Wimbledon and the 10th for Fox.

Good-bye, Tigers

Detroit Tigers outfielder Charlie Maxwell waves goodbye outside Tiger Stadium in Detroit Monday after the ball club announced he had been traded via the waiver route to the Chicago White Sox for outfielder-first baseman Bob Farley. Maxwell, 35, has been with the Tigers since he was picked up on waiver from Baltimore in 1955. His best season was 1956 when he batted .326 and hit 28 home runs. He played 13 games this year following the injury to Al Kaline, and is currently hitting .194.

Big Winner Stymie Dead At Age 21

Bought for $1,500 He Won $1 Million In 131 Starts

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Stymie, a $1,500 bargain who earned nearly $1 million during his racing days, is dead at the age of 21.

The popular thoroughbred son of Equestrian-Stop Watch, the world's fifth leading money winner among thoroughbreds, suffered a heart attack Sunday night at the farm of Dr. Charles Hagyard, where he had been in stud for the past two years.

In capturing 35 races, finishing second in 33 and third in 28, Stymie retired in 1950 as the world's sixth leading money winner with $918,485. He started 131 times.

Noted for his high-headed style of running, Stymie rocketed to fame in 1945 when he won eight stakes races, including the Brooklyn and Butler Handicaps and the Saratoga Cup.

The chestnut was named handicapper champion that year. Stymie continued his stakes-winning with seven first places in 1946, taking the Saratoga Cup a second time. Probably his greatest victory came in the 1947 Gold Cup at Belmont Park when he was in a three-way battle with Assault and armed for the world money winning title.

His head perked high, Stymie stormed from third place in the stretch and beat Natchez, the pace-setter, by a neck and took the purse of $73,000.

Stymie was bred in Texas by trainer Max Hirsch and owned by the King Ranch of Robert J. Kleberg for two years.

After he failed to place in three races in 1943 as a 2-year-old, trainer Hirsch Jacobs claimed him for $1,500 and after that Stymie raced in the silks of Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs, wife of the trainer.

Hill, Gendebien To End Driving Partnership Soon

LE MANS, France (AP) — The Phil Hill-Olivier Gendebien driving team, which has had the Le Mans Auto Endurance Classic virtually to itself in recent years, is finally breaking up.

Belgian Gendebien told reporters he was giving up racing to leave the field to others. Gendebien and Hill, from Santa Monica, Calif., have been first across the finish line three times — 1958, 1961 and Sunday — and Gendebien had paired with Paul Frere of Belgium and won in 1960.

Hill and Gendebien had a comfortable lead on the field Sunday as their powerful four-liter, 12-cylinder Ferrari roared across the finish line after the day-night grind.

Their Ferrari covered 2,766.45 miles during the 24 hours for an average speed of 115.268 miles per hour. This was off the Le Mans course distance mark the two set themselves in 1961 — 2,782.194 miles.

Jackie Fladoos Qualifies

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. (AP) — Jackie Fladoos of Dubuque, Iowa, qualified for the Women's Western Junior golf tournament Monday with a 47-40 — 87 but was nine strokes off the pace set by the medalist, Sherry Taylor, three-time Oklahoma high school champion.

Miss Fladoos won a spot in match play for title and will be paired Tuesday against Susan Gregory of Pine Bluff, Ark., who qualified with a 92.

N.Y. Blanks Detroit, 2-0 Behind Ford

DETROIT (AP) — Two successful squeeze bunts brought in the only runs and supported Whitey Ford's masterful two-hit pitching Monday as the New York Yankees blanked the Detroit Tigers 2-0.

The swift moving game was played in 2 hours and 24 minutes and was in marked contrast with Sunday's 7-hour, 22-inning marathon the Yankees also won by two runs.

Ford had to be lifted with one out in the ninth when he suffered an arm injury and was replaced by Marshall Bridges. Bridges allowed one hit before retiring the Tigers.

Paul Linz' bunt past the mound broke up a scoreless duel between Ford and Don Mossi in the fifth inning. It scored Jack Reed from third base.

New York 000 011 000 — 2 10 0
Detroit 000 000 000 — 0 3 1
Ford, Bridges (9) and Howard; Mossi, Kline (9) and Roarkie, W — Ford (5-4), L — Mossi (6-8).

McDaniel Preserves 6-4 Win for Cards

CHICAGO (AP) — Relief pitcher Lindy McDaniel, making his third appearance in four days, extended his scoreless streak to 23 1/3 innings Monday as he saved the St. Louis Cardinals and starter Ray Washburn's 6-4 conquest of the Chicago Cubs.

St. Louis fell behind 3-0 in the third inning when Ernie Banks clubbed his 21st homer with two teammates aboard after shortstop Julio Gotay's error set the stage for this spurt.

St. Louis 000 122 100 — 6 11 2
Chicago 003 001 000 — 4 9 1
Washburn, McDaniel (6) and Sawaliki; Schaefer (6); Hobbie, Schuttz (7), Gerad (9) and Thacker, W — Washburn (5-3), L — Hobbie (1-9).
Home runs — St. Louis, White (12), Chicago, Banks (21).

Giants' O'Dell 5-Hits Reds, 3-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Billy O'Dell pitched San Francisco's third straight low-hit complete-game victory Monday, stopping Cincinnati 3-1.

O'Dell yielded only five hits all singles — in winning his eighth game against six losses. The left-hander, who had won only twice in the past six weeks, fanned six, walked one and hit one.

Loser Jim Maloney (2-2) gave the Giants four of their six hits but left the game when he apparently hurt his right arm warming up at the start of the Giants' sixth.

Maloney fanned six, five in the first two innings.

O'Dell lost his shutout on an unearned second inning run.

Cincinnati 010 000 000 — 1 5 1
San Francisco 011 000 01x — 3 6 1
Maloney, Drake (6); Bronan (8) and Folies; O'Dell and Bailey, W — O'Dell (6-4), L — Maloney (2-2).

DETROIT (AP) — As an after-math of catching 22 innings in one game, Yogi Berra — a durable 37 — was rewarded with a day off Monday.

But a weary Bill McKinley, plate umpire in Sunday's 7-hour marathon, had no such break. He had to work at third base in Monday's rematch between the New York Yankees and the Detroit Tigers.

"Yogi earned a day off and besides, I only use him on our long days," grinned Manager Ralph Houk, whose Yankee outlasted the Tigers 9-7 and won the longest game in time in baseball history.

"I'm a little tired, that's all," said Berra, who had caught only two previous games this season.

"I don't have any cramps in my legs. Matter of fact, I feel pretty good but my hand hurts a little."

Houk also gave Roger Maris, who has been slumping, and Tom Fresh a rest, although Maris came in as a defensive measure in the ninth inning. They went all the way in Saturday's day-night doubleheader and followed it by playing the entire 22 innings Sunday.

"They played the equivalent of five games in two days, so they could use a little rest," Houk said.

Jack Reed, whose two-run homer in the 22nd won it for the Yankees, started in Maris' place in center field. Phil Linz, only a pinch hitter Sunday, replaced Thresh at shortstop.

Houk said he used up 3 1/2 packs of chewing tobacco during the game.

"I only had one cup of water through the whole thing," said McKinley.

"None of us umpires left the field in the entire 7 hours. Yogi at least had a chance to go back to the dugout and sit down every half inning. I wonder if he had a good night's sleep. I didn't. I woke up about 6 this morning. I couldn't sleep, my legs ached too much."

The Tigers' concession stands sold more than 41,000 beers, 34,500 bottles of soft drinks and 32,200 hot dogs.
