Gayno Smith Sentenced to Six Consecutive Life Terms

Judge Makes Chance Of Release Impossible

SIGOURNEY — Stonefaced Gayno Gilbert Smith, 24, was sentenced Thursday in Keokuk County Court to serve six consecutive life sentences at hard labor in the Iowa State Penitentiary at Ft. Madison for the shotgun slayings of six relatives.

He could have gone to the gallows. The quiet, mild former farmhand was taken to the penitentiary late Thursday afternoon by Keokuk County Sheriff John Hallerich. In meeting out the sentences, Judge C. R. Carson of Oskaloosa specified that they run consecutively, that is, one is to follow another. In other words, Smith, in effect, was sentenced to serve six lifetimes in prison. Judge Carson said the purpose was to make sure "the defendant can never be released."

Smith appeared in court Thursday in wrinkled slacks and a green shirt and sleeveless sweater and waived the time period between the time the degree of guilt is set and the sentence is handed down, which would have been September 20.

Judge Carson found the defendant guilty of first degree murder in the rifle-shotgun massacre of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McBeth, and three of their four children last May 26.

The judge accepted a change of plea from innocent to guilty of second degree murder in the bludgeoning slaying of Smith's stepmother, Mrs. Luanita Smith, 46, last October.

Judge Carson began the court proceedings by decreeing a term of life imprisonment at hard labor for the five McBeth killings.

Gayno's attorney, Stephen Gerard, then announced that Gayno wanted to change his plea in the fatal beating of his stepmother. Prosecuting Attorney Leo Martin recommended that the plea be accepted.

Three times during the sentencing, Judge Carson asked Gayno if he realized what the judge was doing.

His shoulders hunched slightly, Gayno peered at the judge through black rimmed glasses and answered in a low voice, "Yes, your honor."

The judge called a brief recess. He then imposed a sixth life term in the death of Mrs. Smith whose body was found in a shallow grave near the home she and Gayno shared at Hedrick, south of here.

The wiry defendant, an avid reader of outdoor magazines, hardly moved a muscle during the proceedings. His attorney said Gayno had wanted to get things over with as quickly as possible.

The state had demanded the death penalty, contending Gayno had attempted "to exterminate an entire family." Gerard pleaded for mercy for his close-mouthed client, life in prison.

Judge Carson said, "I could find nothing in the record to indicate that this — the McBeth case — could be less than first degree murder."

After his capture and the later discovery of the stepmother's body, Gayno told sheriff's officers he thought Mrs. Smith was stepping out with another man before his father divorced her and that she refused to drive him to work.

Mrs. Smith's body wasn't found until June, eight months after she was slain and one month after Gayno's bloody rampage on the McBeth farm where he worked and lived.

Gayno slipped away from a gay night out with his four cousins, returned to the farm, killed the elder McBeths and then rejoined his cousins. They returned to the darkened farm house together and Gayno shot them one by one.

Twins Amos and Anna, 19, and Mrs. Donna Jean Kellogg, 17, were shot dead. The fourth child, Patsy Lou McBeth, 15, eluded Gayno in the night and survived although wounded in the shoulder. Patsy Lou testified Wednesday, but was not in court Thursday.

Developments broke in rapid-fire order in the Keokuk County courtroom Thursday morning.

Sheriff John Wallerich revealed first that Gayno had given him a detailed statement Wednesday night admitting "how, when and why" he had killed his stepmother. Until then, Gayno had stood on a plea of innocent in her death.

During the night, the sheriff said, he took Gayno to the scene of his capture last Memorial Day near Drakesville in southeast Iowa in an attempt to find the weapon used in the McBeth killings.

"Gayno said he threw it along a gravel road near an intersection somewhere southeast of Moravia," Wallerich said, "but we were unable to find it."

Two SUI psychiatrists, who examined Smith, said they could find "no evidence to indicate Smith was suffering from mental disease or defects at the time of the crime."

The report, signed by Drs. P. E. Huston and Patrick G. Campbell, described Gayno as "quiet and reserved in his general manner" and said "he has difficulty talking about some of his feelings."

After the verdict, Smith, forlorn looking in the same crumpled slacks, green shirt and sleeveless sweater he wore Wednesday, talked with reporters.

Slowly, deliberately he said he was very happy, but didn't look it. His hands were cuffed.

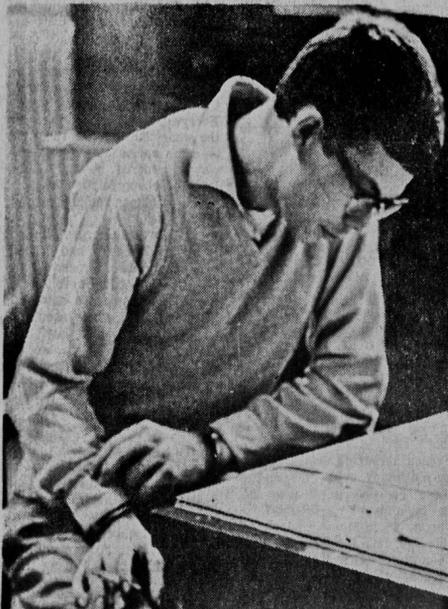

Asked about the five shootings at his uncle's farm near Martinsburg, Gayno said matter of factly:

"Things happen so fast a person doesn't have time to stop and think."

About his apparent attempt to escape from jail last Friday night, Gayno said, "I was all ready to go but when the time came I didn't."

"I don't see any sense of running all my life."

"I feel sorry for Patsy Lou," he said. "I feel sorry for her."

Convicted Murderer

Gayno Gilbert Smith, 24, convicted murder of six persons, holds a cigarette in his hand as he sits, manacled, in the Keokuk Court-house before the final session of his trial Thursday. Smith Wednesday admitted killing five persons, for which he drew five first degree murder convictions, and admitted the sixth killing Thursday, for which he was given a second degree murder conviction. Smith was sentenced to serve six consecutive life sentences at hard labor in the Iowa State Penitentiary at Ft. Madison.

Hultman Asks for New Law Officer Agency

SIoux CITY — Formation of a State Crime Council made up of representatives of various law enforcement agencies was proposed Thursday by Iowa Atty. Gen. Evan Hultman.

He made the suggestion in an address at the final business session of the Iowa Association of Chiefs of Police and Peace Officers here.

Hultman said there are many local, county and state law enforcement agencies, and "often the right hand doesn't know what the left is doing by the very nature of the units."

The State Crime Council, he said, would meet quarterly and would include representatives from the sheriff's association, chiefs of police and peace officers the police association, county attorneys association, department of public safety and the attorney general.

"This body could take up specific matters of law enforcement that concern all of us, or most of us, and particular things that are statewide in nature. It would tie in with the attorney general's association which is working with the attorney general of the United States and various federal agencies of enforcement such as the FBI," Hultman said.

He said the Crime Council, on such matters as gambling and others that "go beyond a given locality or state lines, would give us a better chance of tying in Iowa with other states and the nation. There is no question but what we'd be able to do a better job as a result."

A second suggestion passed along by the attorney general was that heads of departments do more in the way of recognizing their personnel for a good job on routine assignments.

"When measured truly, often these everyday activities are more important than isolated cases where public attention is focused on an officer who by his deeds wins national or state awards," Hultman said.

He said he would be happy to cooperate in citing law enforcement officers for outstanding work if called upon by heads of departments.

Charges Irresponsibility—

Freeman Blasts Committee; Denies Estes Favoritism

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman sharply challenged Republican charges Billie Sol Estes received favored treatment in his farm aid dealings.

Freeman told House investigators Thursday an Agriculture Department inquiry has borne out earlier statements that Estes, a Pecos, Tex., promoter, was treated like any other farmer. And he advised the congressmen that a career employe demoted when the Estes affair first became known has been returned to his old job.

Freeman tangled in an angry exchange with Rep. Odin Langen (R-Minn.), accusing the congressman of "the grossest kind of irresponsibility."

Freeman, appearing before a House Government Operations subcommittee, spent most of the day reading a 48-page prepared statement.

The House group is investigating whether favored treatment was involved in government handling of the promoter's grain storage operations.

The Senate Investigations subcommittee questioned N. Battle

Hales, an Agriculture Department employe, further on his charges that top officials in the department favored Estes in his cotton deals, then tried to bail him out of trouble just before his fiscal empire collapsed last March.

Estes faces fraud charges growing out of the alleged sale of phony mortgages on nonexistent fertilizer tanks.

During the noon recess at the House hearing, Langen told reporters Freeman had failed to explain how Estes' grain storage went up while the total storage of government grain in Texas was going down.

Promptly upon returning to the witness stand, Freeman declared Langen's remark was "a misstatement of fact."

Freeman said that in the second quarter of 1961 — the period in question — the total amount of grain stored in Texas by the government went up by 85 million bushels.

Langen charged Estes had received a shipment of government grain from Kansas City in August 1961 while the total amount of grain stored in Texas by the government had dipped from July 1 to Sept. 30.

Freeman replied, "The important date — and to ignore this fact is the grossest kind of irresponsibility — is the date when the grain was assigned, not when the shipment was made."

Langen, a first-term Republican from the state where Freeman formerly was governor, said it "comes with not too good grace" for Freeman to "level a personal attack on a member of the committee."

Following an extensive investigation, Freeman said, Carl J. Miller, a 25-year veteran in the department, had been reinstated as chief of the U. S. Warehouse Act branch of the department's marketing service. The post pays $12,250 a year.

Miller had first tried to increase Estes' grain bond from $700,000 to $1 million, then abandoned the effort in January 1961 when Estes produced a net-worth statement — later proved to be false — showing assets far in excess of the amount required to keep the bond at $700,000.

India, China Haggles Over Tense Border

NEW DELHI, India — India and Red China accused each other Thursday of making new advances across the tense border near the mountainous Himalayan trail taken by the Dalai Lama in his escape from Tibet. There were no reports of shooting.

Prime Minister Nehru's government said a detachment of Chinese Communist troops appears to have crossed Tuesday into northeast India.

The Chinese incursion was reported just east of the Buddhist protectorate of Bhutan, which India has pledged to defend.

The Nehru government tended to play down the incident despite unofficial reports that an Indian outpost had been surrounded by a Chinese force outnumbering it 10 to 1.

A New Delhi spokesman described the invading force as a "group." He said reports that 300 Communist troops took part were exaggerated. He declined to comment on the reports the outpost was surrounded. He said only that the Chinese were several hundred yards away.

Peiping's New China News Agency countered with a charge Indian troops had sent up a new "aggressive strong point" in Tibet. "This marks a new development in nibbling of Chinese territory," the agency said.

The Communists also accused Indian planes of violating Red Chinese air space and conducting reconnaissance and harassments.

Space Still Left For Organizations At Registration

Request forms for space in the Field House during Registration are still available at the Office of Student Affairs.

Under a new system on trial this semester, all organizations wishing to have facilities in the Field House for distributing materials to students must file a request form with the Office of Student Affairs.

Facilities will be set up in the north gymnasium for the use of these student groups. No distribution of any kind will be permitted elsewhere in the Field House.

However, the north gymnasium will be the exit route for all students completing registration.

JFK Says U.S. Ready For Cuban-Red Threats

Other Topics Discussed At Conference

U2 — Kennedy said the United States has not issued export licenses for U2 aircraft to any country except Nationalist China and there is no intention to issue any such licenses.

Politics — Foreign — A reporter asked the President to comment on the suggestion in a Soviet government statement that the conversations on Berlin would be delayed until after the U.S. congressional elections.

Kennedy said he felt it had been made perfectly clear that the issue of Berlin was not a political question in the United States.

Alliance for Progress — Kennedy was asked why the alliance had not made more progress. He said Latin America has been neglected for many, many years.

"We are engaged in a tremendous operation with insufficient resources," he said. "We can't remake the face of Latin America overnight."

Race Violence — A reporter reminded that Dr. Martin Luther King, Negro clergyman, has wired the White House asking action against anti-Negro violence in the South.

Kennedy said he could not recall "any more outrageous action" in recent years than the burning of a church whose members had been active in registering Negroes to vote.

The government will give every protection that it can, he promised, to see that every citizen can exercise his right to vote.

Nuclear — There are two reasons for continuing the present series of nuclear tests beyond the planned closing date, the President said.

One was a blowup of the pad at Johnston Island. Also, he said, a number of things have developed that "we want to prove out."

He said steps have been taken, by lowering the altitude and yield, to keep down the number of electrons put into the upper air, so that space flights will not be endangered.

Space — Kennedy said the key to success in both the peaceful and military aspects of space is the large booster.

The U.S. Air Force has a very strong weapon in the Titan 3, he said, and the National Aeronautical and Space Administration's program on Saturn gives the United States both a military and peaceful space program.

Reserves — Kennedy was asked what prompted him to ask authority to call up 150,000 Reserves instead of declaring a national emergency.

He said there were several stages in a crisis, with the calling of a national emergency a last-stage step.

He recalled that last year when the Wisconsin division was called up plans were laid for making two Reserve divisions permanent. He added that Army strength had been increased from 11 to 16 divisions in the last 18 months.

Explains Cuban Situation

President Kennedy opened his news conference Thursday with a lengthy statement on the Cuban situation. The President declared the United States will be "alert and fully capable" to deal with any offensive threat from Soviet-backed Cuba against the United States or any country in this hemisphere.

Rain Cancels NFO President's Speech In Iowa City

Oren Lee Staley, president of the National Farmers Organization, was unable to attend a scheduled speaking engagement at the third annual NFO supper at the Johnson County Fairgrounds Thursday night.

Alan Spurgeon, a Missouri NFO official who was at the supper, reported to a crowd of 1400 farmers, local businessmen and their families, that Staley would not be able to fly to Iowa City due to inclement weather.

Staley had intended to fly his private plane to Iowa City following a radio broadcast in St. Louis. Spurgeon said Staley would now go to Washington D. C.

In an interview with a Daily Iowan reporter, Jack Cahill, West Branch, chairman of the 61 county Waterloo meat bargaining area, reported that he expects the "lid to blow off" the situation within a week to 10 days.

We expect the processors to begin actual contract negotiations by that time, he continued. If they don't, NFO members are prepared to hold out indefinitely.

Says Arms Shipments To Cuba No Menace

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy declared Thursday the United States will be "alert and fully capable" to deal with any offensive threat from Soviet-backed Cuba against the United States or any country in this hemisphere.

At the same time he appealed to the American people "to keep both their nerve and their head."

The President told a news conference that he has full power as commander in chief of U.S. armed forces to take any action which may become necessary.

He warned the Communists against threatening or using force against the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, the Panama Canal, the Cape Canaveral rocket base or the lives of American citizens in this country.

But in a carefully weighed and prepared statement he also said that recent Soviet arms shipment to Cuba do not present a threat to this country. And he declared emphatically that unilateral U.S. intervention in Cuba at present is not justified.

He pledged, however, that "we shall be alert and fully capable" to deal with any dangerous change in the situation. This country, he said, is increasing its surveillance in the Caribbean.

The President opened a news conference with a lengthy statement on the Cuban situation.

Asserting then that it is Castro and his supporters who are in trouble, he said the regime is isolated in the hemisphere, condemned by the OAS, excluded from the Inter-American Defense Board and kept out of the free trade organization, industries are stagnating, harvests are declining and Castro's own supporters are seeing the promise of the revolution betrayed.

It is not surprising, the President went on, that Castro is raising the threat of an American intervention.

Movement of Soviet personnel to the island has increased, Kennedy said, and is under careful surveillance by this country.

If the United States ever finds it necessary to intervene, he said, all the imported technicians would not alter the result.

He said he had already stated that the buildup of Soviet personnel in Cuba does not yet represent a threat of aggression to the rest of the hemisphere.

But if the buildup should ever become a potential base for aggression, the United States will move swiftly and effectively to take whatever action is necessary, he said.

"We shall neither initiate nor permit aggression in this hemisphere," the President pledged.

He stressed that if, at any time, Cuba posed a threat to the United States — particularly along the Florida coast, including Cape Canaveral — then the United States would do "whatever must be done" to protect U.S. security.

He said as President and commander in chief he already has the authority to take whatever action he feels necessary.

He said the United States will be making further proposals to "our friends in the Organization of American States."

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization also will be kept advised, he said, and this country will continue to work with Cuban exiles working for restoration of their country's freedom.

Congress and the people of the United States also will be kept posted, he said.

But he said the record should be clear that the only people talking about a war now are the Communist spokesmen in Moscow and Havana.

Kennedy was asked at what point the decision would be made that the buildup in Cuba had ceased to be defensive and had become offensive.

Kennedy replied that his earlier statements, as well as Thursday's answered that question sufficiently.

In response to the other questions, Kennedy said that if Cuba indicated a capacity to attack the United States the United States would act. It would take appropriate action after consultation with the military staff as to whether an offensive threat did exist, he said.

Yocum Found Guilty on 4 Of 9 Counts

City Councilman and housemover Max Yocum was found guilty on four lesser charges out of nine brought against him and was warned that he will face a county jail sentence if he is convicted on any more house-moving violations.

In police court Thursday, in a 2½ hour trial, Yocum was found innocent of three charges of moving houses without county permits, and of one lesser charge and convicted of four lesser charges. A ninth charge was dismissed.

He was fined a total of $106 and $14 in costs with other fines being suspended.

Yocum was warned by Judge Jay H. Honohan that in the event of future house-moving violations "this court will be inclined to inflict the maximum penalty, which is imprisonment in the county jail."

Yocum's attorney, W. H. Bartley, promised the court that Yocum would get the necessary house-moving permits in the future.

The Weather

Partly cloudy today and tonight. Cooler in the southeast. Highs today from 75 to 80 in the north and from 80 to 85 in the south.

Difference in Violence

Violence marks several public arenas in this country. Such violence seems destined to short-circuit the effectiveness of the quite divergent groups involved in the Deep South and the Midwest.

In one of the arenas — Georgia — masked men attempted to enter a Negro residence near the community of Dallas the other night. Shots were exchanged. One of the intruders was killed.

Commentators have called such incidents "part of the agony and the travail" of the Deep South.

Areas of the Midwest and particularly Iowa are now focal points of the different kind of agony and travail. The National Farmers Organization (NFO) has fostered a holding action in an attempt to get higher prices for livestock, yet that little piggy is still going to market despite a temporary respite. And violence broke out in isolated areas after the NFO action was announced.

At least one candidate for public office in our state, Mrs. Sonja Egenes of Story City, has plumped for the NFO action. In describing the NFO as a private organization, the Republican candidate for Congress in the Fifth District said, "It's a group of farmers who have an idea of how they can solve the farm problem . . . I approve of the idea of farmers deciding things for themselves."

The masked men in Georgia were deciding things for themselves in the best Klan style. They forgot that the federal courts have called for common citizenship rights. They forgot that this country cannot deny its citizens equal use of its public schools, its public parks, any of its public facilities. They even forgot that some people are willing and able to fight back when provoked.

Leaders of the NFO seem to have forgotten that all farmers are not members of the organization, that these non-members may not want to hold their cattle and hogs off the market or help block a livestock run on the market. The NFO leaders apparently didn't give much thought to the possibility of increasing their prices in markets and butcher shops on the pretext of expected meat shortages — whether such shortages were anticipated or not.

The effectiveness of the holding action is yet to be measured. The followers of NFO President Oren Lee Staley may have earned the sobriquet of "militant" group without attaining their goal of higher prices for farmers. They may attain a measure of this goal at the cost of alienating possible support from the vast majority of the people around them who are food consumers.

The blood-lusting night riders of the Deep South are a far cry from the highly organized farm splinter of the Midwest. The former seek to disrupt the orderly processes of civil law; the latter seek to change disproportionate effects of economic law. Violence, present in the wake of actions by both groups, is not to be countenanced, but the differences in the actions and aims of these two groups should be recognized by every thoughtful citizen.

Where's The Campus?

The University's annual crash program to fit the All-American U. stereotype is progressing rather nicely according to our latest report from the field.

Ivy has been seen clinging tenaciously to several campus walls and Old Capitol is looking conspicuously old and in capital condition.

But all this preparation to preserve the dignity and tradition of Old Gold is severely hampered by an unescapable truth — No one knows where the campus is.

Only Thursday an SUowan walking along the edge of the Pentacrest was stopped by a motorist who asked, "Say fella, can you tell me where the campus is?"

The student, a veteran of four SUI winters simply assured the gentleman that he was already on campus, that to his rear loomed the Iowa Memorial Union and that facing him stared the large SUI library. But the old-timer couldn't tell the stranger where the campus begins or ends.

Let's face it; our University outposts and hinterlands are vaguely determined offering no really significant landmarks. While many Universities are built within ancient walls or are straddled by a statue of a patriarch forefather or founder, SUI just doesn't have that flavorsome touch of the past, the atmosphere of authenticity to which pigeons flock or swallows return.

But despite its lack of historical landmarks SUI offers a fine education for any student willing to forego two or three centuries of tradition in favor of four good years at a practical Midwest university. We hope freshmen and transfer students keep this thought in mind.

'Another Historic First!'

Roscoe Drummond Reports —

Soviet Influence in Cuba — Monroe Doctrine Breached

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

If we are to have a fair chance of lifting Soviet rule — not just Castro rule — from the backs of the Cuban people, the first thing we must do is face the facts.

We are not doing so yet. There is a dangerous tendency to blur the facts in order to avoid facing the consequences instead of looking the facts head-on in order to deal with them.

Let me illustrate. President Kennedy says that "the gravest issues would arise" if Cuba provided Russia with a "military base."

Can anyone seriously question that all of Cuba is today a base of Soviet power and that Moscow will determine how that power will be used? The fact is that the "gravest issues" which the President suggests "would arise" if something happened in the future, have already risen. It has happened. To assume that these "grave issues" lie ahead is, it seems to me, the most perilously wishful thinking. They are here now.

A number of officials are taking comfort from the theory that, in their view, the massive flow of weapons the Soviet Union is pouring into Cuba does not show "any significant offensive capability."

CAN ANYONE seriously argue that Soviet control of Castro's Cuba does not confront us with "the gravest issues" now because the Soviet weapons do not yet look "significantly offensive"? The fact is that the "gravest issues" are upon us.

To be comforted by the theory that the current flow of Soviet weaponry into Cuba seems to be mostly defensive — a defense against the Cuban people! — is to ignore the meaning of what is happening. The significant fact is that Mr. Khrushchev is now in charge of Cuba. If we blink at this fact and wait until his weapons are pointed at Cuba's neighbors, not just at the Cuban people, then we are neglecting the danger.

"To pretend otherwise," writes Washington commentary Robert G. Spivack — and I believe he is profoundly right — "is to underestimate the dimensions of Soviet ambition, to misread Communist history, and to delude ourselves about the potential of the Alliance for Progress."

All this easy talk about the Monroe Doctrine and how the U. S. is just as determined to implement it as ever is unbecoming. The commitment of the Monroe Doctrine is that no non-American power should be allowed to colonize or obtain control anywhere in the Western Hemisphere.

THE FACT is that under the statutes of the Organization of American States, the United States, while as committed as ever to the purpose of the Monroe Doctrine, has struck from its own hands any certain means of applying it. The guarantee against "foreign intervention" in the Western Hemisphere no longer rests upon the unilateral power of the U. S. It has been made the commitment of the 22 American member states — with the proviso that it can be brought into being only by a two-thirds vote of all the governments.

How, then, can we say that the Monroe Doctrine is being used to shield the Western Hemisphere from foreign intervention when there is no means of invoking it without a two-thirds vote of the Organization of American States? People say it by pretending that the facts are different than they are. They say that the Monroe Doctrine will be assuredly invoked if Khrushchev's Cuba turns its guns against any other American state or even threatens to do so.

HOW ESCAPIST can we get? The clear, undeviating, historic principle of the Monroe Doctrine is that it was to protect against the setting up of a foreign power anywhere on the two continents, not to wait until a foreign power had acquired a hemisphere stronghold and then try to shield the rest from the consequences.

What are the facts? The facts are that the Castro regime now rests on Soviet guns aimed at the Cuban people by Soviet direction. Cuba is today a Soviet satellite as East Germany, Hungary, Czechoslovakia are Soviet satellites. Castro has as much to say about his country — and what is to be done with it — as Ulbrich about East Germany.

The fact is that the Monroe Doctrine has been successfully breached and many are still talking as though the "gravest issues" were somewhere in the future, not in the urgent present.

COMMENTS ON THE WORLD SCENE: Cuba, Commies, and Castro are giving the fellas in Washington fits. Too bad. There's one good solution — the M-bomb. That is, the Monroe bomb. And in California, that mighty mite, Dick Nixon, is out after all Democrats (especially those named Brown) and he claims he isn't running for President! Not yet! Quoth Dicky: "California needs a governor for four years." I agree and am predicting a Brown sweep.

Normally, I think letters to the editor (in all papers except this one, of course) are kind of silly. But, occasionally, there is one which should be repeated. The following one appeared in the St. Louis Post Dispatch: "Some of us who had given up on organized religion may be driven back to church if we see many more examples like that line of clergymen and women of different faiths and colors all practicing what they preach even in Albany, Ga., which must be as like the mouth of hell as any place on earth today. Now, if only our politicians, especially those aspiring to be statesmen, would follow the lead of these brave men and women and act against segregation instead of 'leaving it to the Lord.'" Shall we all look to the South side of Congress and murmur Amen!

British singing idol Mike Sarne says he is turning his back on a lucrative career and announced he is going back to college to get his degree. Said the 22-year-old wailer, "I cannot tolerate the confusion, the nonsense and the deceit that goes with popular singing." That's quite a mouthful without having an echo chamber. Too bad he and others like him didn't turn from the roar to the robe sooner. That would have spared us from most of the "confused nonsense" of pop tunes.

In the great Baby Battle of Massachusetts, Eddie (McCormack) says he can beat Teddy (Kennedy) because he has a secret weapon — the secret ballot. Oh come on, Eddie, Chicago's South side is effective but it couldn't cut the crust in Boston. All he has to do is beat Teddy in a fair fight . . . and Jack, and Bobby, and Jackie, and Caroline, and Joe, and Ethel, and etc. Rotsaruck!

Every year, the city of Iowa City seems to plan its street, sewer and all other outdoor repairs to coincide with the beginning of the University rush. Last year, repair work bottled up traffic on football weekends. This year, the planning geniuses have the thoroughfare in front of Burge Hall dug up. With streets blocked, hills of dirt, workmen, machinery, and other nuisance makers, the "moving-in" period at Burge this weekend will be nothing but chaos. Another willed rose to whomsoever is in charge.

With Registration starting Monday, I have a suggestion for new and old students alike: this year, just once, snarl right back at your adviser who sits across the table and acts like you are offending him when you ask him what he thinks, as your adviser, you should take. It will really start his year off right.

BEST MOVIE OF THE WEEK: "The Interns" and "The Music Man" (again). WORST MOVIE: "Kid Galahad" and "Sweet Bird of Youth." BEST RECORD: "First Time!" Ellington and Basie together.

FINK OF THE WEEK: Iowa City's "What can we do this year to screw things up?" planner.

Cliches in Europe On The Way Out

By JOHN CROSBY

PARIS — The first day I arrived in New York to take up residence 25 years ago, it was snowing. It was just before Christmas, the stores were full of toys and lit with colored lights, but not so well lit as today because it was the depression, not the affluence, and anyway they didn't know as much about lighting as they do now.

That was back in the days when it was fashionable to say: New York's a wonderful place to visit, but I wouldn't live there if you gave me the place. The first thing one learned was that this was a trick to keep the outlanders at arm's length. New York's a wonderful place to live, but a dreadful place to visit. (Expensive. Noisy. Rude.) The first thing one does is to get rid of the cliches.

So, 25 years later, I arrive to take up residence in the City of Light. It's raining. It continues to rain for three days. Maybe it isn't Paris. Maybe it's London. No, you can tell it's Paris because there are so many Americans in it.

WHAT ABOUT the cliches about the French? We know all about the Frenchman, don't we? He loves his food, the little dishes transmitted from mother to daughter for generations. He drinks milk and all that. Even the French harbor a good many of these delusions.

In fact, in the current Paris-Match (the closest thing to Life the French have) Jean-Pierre Cartier has a lovely time demolishing some of the illusions the French have about themselves.

In the last ten years, Cartier points out, the French drink much less (consumption of aperitifs is down 23 per cent, hard liquor down 10 per cent). He eats fewer potatoes and, surprisingly, less bread. He drinks a little fresh milk and 80 per cent more powdered milk than ten years ago. (Good God, I might as well have stayed in Wisconsin!) He's drinking colas (non-alcoholic drinks are up 145 per cent) — oh, the horror of it all — his wife is feeding him powdered soup (up 182 per cent) instead of those little soups kept simmering at the back of the stove — those recipes she got from mother.

Cartier's article is full of little surprises, but a reassuring thought is that the people who will be most surprised by his figures (one statistic: there are a actually fewer Frenchwomen working today than in 1906) are the French themselves.

EUROPE is a fascinating place to live in and write about right now because all the cliches are going out the window. I pick up a copy of Le Nouveau Candide and read an interview with Friedrich Sieburg, the German journalist who was for 18 years Paris correspondent for the Frankfurter Zeitung. He's saying that German militarism has disappeared without trace, much too quickly.

"I wouldn't like to be the leader of the German army in case of war," says this German. "The soldiers wouldn't use their guns. They'd flee the camp. They'd desert military service. Officers no longer have any prestige."

Ah, me! The French drinking milk. The Germans hating the army. All the old illusions are crumbling. I take a walk down the Champs-Elysees and there is a long, long queue. French, all of them, and they are ganging up to see a Brigitte Bardot movie. Everywhere else Brigitte is on the wane, but not in France. So — some values stay fixed, anyway. Powdered soups, maybe. But about appreciation of girls, your Frenchman remains indubitably French.

I READ that Georges Simenon is at the George V and I hurry over to say hello. Simenon is the phenomenally gifted novelist who has written some 400 novels in his life. But, it's not about his novels I wish to talk, but about moving. Georges is the world's greatest authority on moving one's residence, having changed his 29 times in the last 30 years. He has resided variously all over France, Holland, South America, Africa, India, California, Arizona, Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Connecticut, and Switzerland. (Incidentally, he learned English listening to American television, becoming the only Belgian ever to acquire a Bronx accent which he picked up from Molly Goldberg.)

I explained that I was a little nervous about this new country. "I have a little advice," said Georges. "When you go to a new country, do your shopping yourself. There you meet the people, the true people, the sinews of the country, in the market. If you go to a little market with your little basket, after two or three days, everyone will love you and everyone will help you. It's the best contact, the people from the street, not the artificial contacts, the intellectuals, but the real people, the strong people, the people who make the food."

"People are only foreign when you look at them as a tourist. When you look at them as people, they're never foreign. Tourists are always looking for what is different in a country. If you look for the resemblances, people are the same all over the world."

What a comforting man he is! Georges Simenon! Now, if he could just make it stop raining

'Lion of Caprera' —

REVIEWED BY HERBERT KUPFERBERG
Herald Tribune News Service

THE LION OF CAPRENA. By John Parris. 352 pages. McKay, $5.

Caprera is the name of a tiny island off the coast of Sardinia, and its lion was Giuseppe Garibaldi. There were people who thought that Garibaldi actually looked like a lion, and even his enemies admitted that he fought like one. John Parris, the author of this probing biography of Garibaldi, admires his fighting ability, too, even asserting in a statement that may arouse a bit of controversy, "it is difficult to think of any one victory in a century won by Italian arms other than those which were under his command; unless, of course, it were over virtually unarmed tribesmen."

John Parris is an Englishman who now lives on the French Riviera near the city of Nice, where Garibaldi was born in 1807. He has done a good deal of digging in Nice, on Caprera and in other Garibaldian sites to unearth some fresh data about the bearded leader of the Redshirts, and to offer some fresh interpretations of old material.

GARIBALDI'S exploits were by no means limited to Italy, which he helped weld into a nation. He was raised and trained as a sailor and knew far more of seamanship — not to mention piracy — than most military officers. Before returning to Italy as a liberator he spent twelve years as a soldier of fortune in South America, fighting a bewildering series of campaigns for a bewildering series of governments.

AFTER his work was done in Italy he took service with the French forces who were trying to salvage something out of the Franco-Prussian War. He toyed with the idea of joining the North in the American Civil War, shrewdly asking the U. S. consul at Antwerp, who was negotiating with him, "Tell me: is this conflict over the emancipation of the Negroes or not?" And when his fighting days were over, Garibaldi, tortured by rheumatism, sat himself down on his island to write a novel, which impelled a British reviewer to comment dryly that he was far more convincing as the hero of a romance than as the author of one.

Mr. Parris' account of these doings is comprehensive, detailed and fully annotated. It is also colored by some rather severe judgments on most of the Italian and French leading figures of the day, including Cavour, Victor Emmanuel II and Napoleon III, and by a recurrent hostility to the Church, particularly to Pope Pius IX. At times one may be in doubt of Garibaldi's views on one of his contemporaries, but never of Mr. Parris.

GARIBALDI HIMSELF, in fact, is one of the few figures who emerges as decidedly heroic. Mr. Parris has criticisms to make of him, too — his lack of administrative talent, for instance — but there's no doubt that his sympathies lie with this fiercely independent patriot in his black slouch hat and poncho, leading his red-shirted army of a thousand to liberate all of Sicily and southern Italy with a mixture of audacity, shrewdness and fighting spirit.

AN EVEN MORE detailed account is given of the complex marital and extra-marital affairs in which Garibaldi was enmeshed almost to the day of his death at seventy-four. At one time he had no fewer than four separate involvements running simultaneously and in the midst of them, at the age of fifty-two, he married a beautiful and cultivated girl of eighteen, only to discover, to his horror, that she had had a long history behind her as a kind of nineteenth-century Lolita.

But Garibaldi's teen-aged bride isn't the most interesting woman in the book. That distinction is reserved for the Countess di Castiglione, equally young, equally beautiful, and even more profligate, who counted both Victor Emmanuel and Napoleon III among the conquests she carefully recorded in her diary. Mr. Parris says he has obtained that diary and is preparing a book based upon it. It could make for some very lively reading.

House Urged to Quickly OK Controversial UN Loan Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Nations will have to pull its troops out of the Congo in a few weeks unless it receives a substantial loan at once, the House was told Thursday.

Rep. Thomas E. Morgan (D-Pa.) chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, urged the House to face "this fundamental fact" in voting on a bill to authorize a $100-million loan to the United Nations by the United States.

The vote on the controversial bill, which has already passed the Senate in slightly different form, Debate Thursday disclosed strong opposition to the bill, mainly from Republicans. They centered their attack on the long list of nations which are delinquent in their U.N. assessments, and on current U.N. operations in the Congo.

Georgia Primary Winner Spurns Use of Racial Issues

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Youthful Carl E. Sanders credited his selection as Georgia's governor to an endorsement by the people of honest government and a platform of progress for our state, Sanders said Thursday.

"Georgians have let the nation know once and for all that this is a state which puts high principles above political demagoguery. It was the voice of the independent voters."

Gov. Ernest Vandiver, who under Georgia law could not succeed himself, had remained officially neutral while backing Sanders indirectly. He congratulated Sanders early in the day.

He said the nomination of Sanders, who has no Republican opponent in the general election, was a complete vindication of his own administration. The Republican nominee, A. Edward Smith, was killed in an auto accident in June and the party did not name anyone in his place.

The governor said Griffin had offered no "positive approach to Georgia's crucial problems."

Griffin conceded the election to Sanders before noon and said he would continue to fight all the way for the segregation cause.

The scope of the Sanders victory amazed the experts. He fought it out on even terms with Griffin in rural southern Georgia, heavily populated with Negroes but where their registration is at a minimum. And he swept all of the more populous counties by tremendous margins.

The United Nations quickly denied this as it had Wednesday denied Tshombe's version of a clash between U.N. troops and Katangans.

Tshombe has repeatedly frustrated efforts of the United Nations to reunite his province with the Congo central government set-up and now has declared he has no faith in a new unification plan in the light of events — as cited by him — in the past two days.

The newest accusation was that the United Nations airlifted 2,000 Congolese troops to northern Katanga for a planned assault on three of his strongholds. He said the troops were carried in planes disguised with Rhodesian colors and markings.

Some diplomats viewed Tshombe's accusations as a prelude to formal rejection of U.N. Acting Secretary-General U. Thant's plan to end the Katanga secession and unify the Congo. But U.N. officials stressed they had no such word as yet from Tshombe himself.

Area High Schools Begin Season Play

By GEORGE KAMPLING
Staff Writer

Iowa City's three high school football squads all swing into action tonight, as the first games of the season are played throughout the state.

The Iowa City Little Hawks are the only local squad to open at home, when they face Centerville, a Southeast Iowa Six conference member. The Regina Regals travel to Waterloo to face the Columbus High Sailors, and University High's Bluehaws face North Mahaska at New Sharon.

The Little Hawks have a break in the schedule this year, being able to face a non-conference foe in the opener, and giving head coach Frank Bates a chance to evaluate his young, inexperienced personnel. In 1961 Iowa City started the season with four straight Mississippi Valley contests, then had an open date, and finished with four more remaining Valley foes.

"This is strictly an exploratory game for us," said Bates. "We don't know what our boys can do, and we will be using a lot of young players."

Coach Duane Calvert's Regal squad beat the Sailors in their opener here a year ago 33-7, but with only three regulars back from a squad that posted a 7-2 mark last season, the going could be a little rougher.

The Sailors have seven starters back, and total of 11 lettermen to call on. Steve Welter, quarterback; Dan Gatens, right tackle; and Dan Delaney, right end are the three returning regulars on the Regal squad.

Among returning lettermen on the Regina team is left halfback Jack Imig, third leading ground gainer on the team last season, as he picked up 283 yards in 44 carries for a 6.43 average. Welter did practically all of Regina's passing last year, as he threw 66 of the 72 Regal attempts, completing 22 and throwing ten TD strikes.

The Blues, who have a heavier team than a year ago, both in weight and numbers, should have a much better season than last, according to Coach Gary Hansen. His backfield of John Haefener, Skip Johnson, Keith Mickelson, and Phil Gingerich is a little slow, commented Hansen.

"Our offensive line is pretty tough," he said, "and we do have a fair passing game."

The Little Hawks will square off against Centerville on the City High field at 8 p.m. The Regina-Columbus of Waterloo contest is scheduled for the Waterloo Municipal Baseball stadium at 7:45. The U-High-North Mahaska game is scheduled for 7:30 at the North Mahaska Field in New Sharon.

Piersall Arrested, Charged

BALTIMORE (AP) — Washington's centerfielder Jim Piersall was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct Thursday night when he went into the stands at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium after a fan who was heckling him.

Police said Piersall was warning up before the game between the Orioles and the Washington Senators when a fan, Joseph Martin of Baltimore, began heckling him.

Police said Piersall invited Martin to come out on the field, but Martin, instead, told Piersall to come into the stands.

Police Sgt. Walter Mina came between the two men before any physical contact was made, police said, and arrested both for disorderly conduct.

Piersall and Martin posted $53 collateral apiece and returned to the game.

A hearing in the case is scheduled Friday morning in Baltimore Municipal Court.

Colts Look For Missing Tickets, Man

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts began an around-the-clock operation Thursday in an effort to unravel a monumental ticket snarl three days in advance of their home opener.

The National Football League club reported an undetermined number of season books and single-game tickets, valued at more than $20,000 to $35,000, were missing along with a box office employee.

Don Kellett, general manager of the Colts, said the employee's wife voluntarily turned over more than $16,000 to the club Wednesday. She was given a receipt for the cash, which was placed in a special banking account, Kellett said.

"As yet, we do not know what this money represents," the Colt official said.

Kellett said the missing employee was last seen late Monday night, and an airline reported a passenger using the man's name left Baltimore on a nonstop flight to Los Angeles Tuesday morning.

In addition to opening their ticket office on a 24-hour basis, the Colts ran four-column advertisements in local newspapers addressed to "Baltimore Colt season ticket holders."

"The Colts deeply regret," the ad began, "one of our former employees has wrongfully sold tickets belonging to some of our season ticket holders."

Reds Whip Giants

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds dropped the San Francisco Giants two games behind front-running Los Angeles in the National League pennant race Thursday night as Jim O'Toole pitched a four-hitter for a 7-2 victory.

It gave the Reds a sweep of the two-game series and moved them to within five games of the idle Dodgers.

O'Toole, now 16-13, gave up a two-base hit to Harvey Kuenn in the first and then didn't allow another hit until the eighth.

The one-two punch the Reds used so effectively Wednesday night came in handy again — the combination of Frank Robinson and Wally Post.

They homered back to back Wednesday night and Thursday night Robinson doubled and then Post homered to send the Reds away to a 2-0 lead in the second inning.

Fast, Spirited Drills for Hawks; LeZotte 'Ready'

With temperatures soaring into the 90's, the Iowa Hawkeys ran through two fast and spirited drills Thursday in preparation for a full scale scrimmage Saturday.

Both sessions ended with the first and second teams, plus alternates, running offensive plays in dummy scrimmage. Timing, ball handling and blocking were stressed.

The sessions were also highlighted by the team practicing punt return patterns.

After the workout, Coach Jerry Burns announced that Roger Wehrle has been moved to the third team left end position behind Bill Niedbala and Tony Giacobazzi while No. 1 Lynn Lyon is out with an elbow sprain. He is expected back in two to three days.

Third string right halfback Bob LeZotte, who has spent a week sidelined with a shoulder injury, was reported "ready to go," by Dr. W. D. Paul, team physician.

Jay's New Pitch Allowed by Giles

CINCINNATI (AP) — Joey Jay of the Cincinnati Reds can keep on using his controversial fast ball delivery — at least for a while.

National League president Warren Giles said Thursday he and Alvin Dark, manager of the San Francisco Giants, discussed Jay's pitching at length.

"I advised Dark that under the language of the present pitching rules, I do not feel justified in calling Jay's movement an illegal pitch," Giles said.

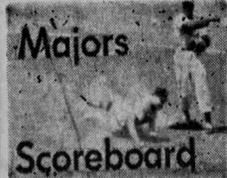

Dark, whose Giants lost to the Reds 4-1 Wednesday night, played the game under protest after he said in the fifth inning that Jay's delivery amounted to a balk.

HOPPMANN RETURNS TO SQUAD

AMES (AP) — Iowa State's All-America candidate Dave Hoppmann rejoined the Cyclone football squad Thursday after missing a day's practice because of a mild attack of influenza.

Twins Assume 2nd Place; End 4-Game Losing Skein

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — The Minnesota Twins kept their slim pennant hopes alive Thursday, beating Chicago 5-1 and snapping a four-game losing streak. The victory pulled the Twins back to within five games of the idle New York Yankees, the American League leaders.

Lefty Jack Kralick (11-9) was the Twins' stopper, holding the White Sox to eight hits and halting a five-game winning skein by the Sox.

Minnesota slashed 10 hits to come barreling out of the hitting doldrums that had kept the Twins down to one run in 30 innings.

That streak ended quickly when reserve third baseman George Banks drove home a run in the first with a sacrifice fly. Banks filled in for third baseman Rich Rollins — giving the redhead his first rest of the season.

Angels 5½ Games Off Pace After Losing to Athletics, 5-4

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gino Cimoli's eighth-inning single — his third hit of the game — brought in the winning run Thursday as the Kansas City Athletics knocked the Los Angeles Angels out of second place, 5-4.

The defeat dropped the Angels a half game behind Minnesota and 5½ games behind the American-League-leading New York Yankees.

The Athletics trailed 4-3 after seven innings but pinch hitter Wayne Causey walked with two out in the eighth and scored on a pinch double by John Wojcik.

Wojcik came home with the deciding run when Cimoli bounced a single to right.
