Ole Miss Students Afraid To Voice Opinion: SUIowan

By JEFFREY PILL
Written for The Daily Iowan

What will happen to James Meredith when and if the federal troops leave the University of Mississippi. This is the question most students at Ole Miss are asking.

Some students feel that the 29-year-old Negro will have to leave with the troops if he wants to stay alive, and others say that only a few will continue to protest Meredith's presence on the otherwise all-white campus.

This diversity, in predictions as well as interpretations and recall of past events, is the most outstanding impression that an outside observer receives in the small university town of Oxford, Miss. No two students will relate the same story of the riot Sunday night nor will any two agree as to what caused the riot or any of the other disturbances at Ole Miss.

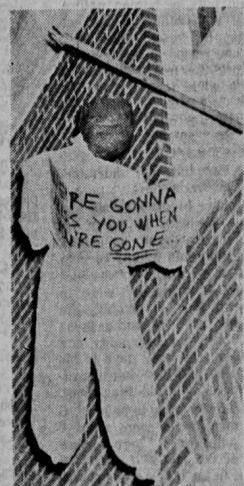

Most of the 5,000 students are quiet about the whole situation and are afraid to voice any opinions about anything for fear they will be quoted as saying something socially unacceptable. Socially unacceptable means anything that is pro-integration.

Some students are afraid to be seen near Meredith or even afraid to say hello to him because they may be chided later for being a "nigger lover." However many of the students are not afraid to hurl obscene remarks at Meredith as he is escorted to classes by three federal marshals.

Angry Mob

From what I was able to gather from various students, the riot last Sunday began when a crowd changed from angry students and outsiders (called "rednecks" by the students) into an uncontrollable mob.

Grey Jackson, vice-president of the Associated Student Body and president of the Student Senate, felt that the attitudes of the federal marshals was a major factor in causing the riot.

A dummy was hung Tuesday evening from a dorm adjacent to the one housing James Meredith. The sign refers to the threat of protection is withdrawn.

of The Lyceum, the administration building of the university.

Jackson admitted that students and outsiders started the riot, but once it had begun, the majority of students left and it was the "rednecks" who caused most of the trouble. Of the 90 people arrested early Monday morning, 10 were students.

"The students now see the horror of what happened Sunday night, and it all seems a little unreal," said Jackson. Cars of reporters were literally torn apart and then burned. Rioters stole a bulldozer and the city's fire engine and used them to plow through troops.

One of the tear gas grenades fired by the marshals struck a girl in the stomach and injured her, a chemistry professor who was taking names of students present was shoved and harassed by the crowd, and photographers were overpowered and their cameras smashed.

The most extreme incident was the sniper, supposedly on top of the Fine Arts Center, with a 22 calibre automatic rifle and telescopic lens who was firing at, and wounding, federal troops, and who is now charged with the murder of the London Daily Sketch reporter. Bullet holes remain in the wooden doors of The Lyceum.

Empty Dorms

At present, the girls' dorms are almost empty. Parents of female students rushed to Oxford all day Sunday and Monday to evacuate their daughters from the campus. Monday night the troops wouldn't allow anyone other than registered students on the campus and many parents were turned away.

Troops have been stationed at every entrance to the city and every entrance to the campus. Every car is completely checked for any weapons and no one is allowed on the campus itself unless he is registered as a student or a registered student there will vouch for

4,000 Troops Leave But—

More Trouble at Ole Miss?

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Nearly 4,000 armed troops were withdrawn from the University of Mississippi as James H. Meredith completed a third day Wednesday as the first forcibly integrated Negro student in the school's 114-year history. But federal officials cocked a troubled eye toward possible disorders on the coming weekend.

Some 8,000 heavily armed soldiers remained to keep tight control

Nearly 30,000 Southerners, most of them with ingrained hatred of racial integration, were expected here for Saturday's homecoming football game between Ole Miss and the University of Houston.

Said James McShane, in charge of U.S. marshals here: "There will be incidents."

The Justice Department considered the possibility of cancelling the game, or having it transferred somewhere else. Memphis and Mobile have offered stadiums.

Walker's Lawyers Ask Senate Investigation

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Edwin A. Walker, former major general arrested in the University of Mississippi rioting, was stilled Wednesday in his bid for freedom, and one of his attorneys asked for a Senate investigation.

Walker's corps of attorneys gathered to petition for a writ of habeas corpus seeking for release from the U.S. Medical Center here.

But late in the day there arose a question of jurisdiction — whether the action should be filed in the federal district court here or at Kansas City, headquarters of the judicial district.

While a ruling was awaited, Robert Morris, one of his attorneys, telegraphed Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) chairman of the Senate Judicial Committee, asking it to investigate. The telegram described Walker as the nation's "first political prisoner."

Senate Sends Postal Bill To House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed by voice vote Wednesday the compromise bill raising postal rates $605 million a year, including a penny hike on letters and airmail, and raising pay of 1.6 million federal employees.

The measure, agreed to quickly by Senate-House conferees Tuesday, now goes to the House. That branch is expected to send it on to President Kennedy on Thursday.

The 5-cent stamp for letters and the other penny increases in first-class mail will take effect Jan. 7, 1963.

The $1.05-billion pay raise will be granted in two steps — one later this month in the first pay period after Kennedy signs the bill and the other in January 1964.

A third section of the measure will give a 5 per cent pension increase to about 600,000 civil service retirees and their survivors at a cost of $50 million a year.

The pay raise will mean about $370 million additional for 590,000 postal workers and $680 million for the one million classified civil service employees.

The bill also will raise second-class newspapers and magazines postal rates by about $28 million a year at full effect, and third-class rates largely advertising material about $97 million.

The rates in these two classes will go up in three steps, in January of 1963, 1964 and 1965.

Town Men, Women Meet Tonight

A joint meeting of SUI Town Women and Town Men will be held tonight to discuss plans for building a homecoming float.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mike Parisek, 1313 E. Davenport.

Town Women also plan a meeting Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Recreation Conference Room of the Union to make plans for a skit for their Miss SUI candidate, Diana Lyman, A3, Des Moines. Permanent organization of Town Women will also be discussed.

The Office of Student Affairs has okayed a float entry by Town Women in the homecoming parade.

Town Women became an organized group Sunday although they have existed in an unorganized fashion for many years. Town Men are not organized.

Any student who does not live in a dormitory, fraternity or sorority is eligible as a Town Woman or Man.

Applications for the position of Town Women representative to the Student Senate are due at 4:30 Friday in the Senate Office at the University. Any interested Town Woman who had a 2.0 accumulative grade point is eligible.

Students needing rides to the meeting tonight, may call Gaida Kahns at 7-3321.

Negro Girl Gets Ole Miss 'Receipt'

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A 21-year-old Negro girl says she has received "just a receipt" in answer to her application for transfer to the University of Mississippi.

Alfanette Bracey was interviewed by newsmen Wednesday on the campus at Jackson State College for Negroes. She had applied last July for admittance to the university, where rioting broke out last Sunday after another Negro, James H. Meredith, was admitted to the campus.

Miss Bracey said she was merely seeking a higher education in asking for transfer to Mississippi, which she said she felt was a better school.

The interview was interrupted by the college president, Jacob L. Reddix. "You have no authority, young lady, to give an interview," he told Miss Bracey.

Reddix then ordered the newsmen from the campus, saying, "You can just say, 'An irresistible force has met an immovable object.'" ert F. Kennedy's agent on the scene for the Justice Department, declared: "We hope the football game can be held here. We realize how important this weekend is to the college and to the alumni. On the other hand, we don't want any more riots or violence.

"We must make an assessment. There has been a major disturbance here, two people killed, and numerous others injured. We expect to have an announcement tonight or tomorrow. We hope it can be held."

There were reports also that Meredith might be removed from the campus over the weekend. To this, Guthman would say only, "He's a free agent."

Pat Smith, public relations director of the university, said: "As far as university officials are concerned, the game is still on. The Army said to go ahead and play the game because it would help restore things to normal. Now the Justice Department apparently wants to call the whole thing off."

During the night, about 2,400 paratroopers were pulled back from Oxford to Memphis, Tenn., 87 miles to the north. Another 1,200 were deployed to Columbus, Miss.

There were indications, however, that the remaining 8,000 troops or at least a part of them, were in for a long stay.

Hughes, Smith To Speak at SUI Today

Democratic candidates for various county, state and national offices, including gubernatorial candidate Harold E. Hughes and senatorial candidate E. B. Smith, will be campaigning in this area today.

The highlight of this campaign for SUI will be an address by Hughes and Smith at an open meeting of the SUI Young Democrats today at 4 p.m. in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol.

The two speakers will present their election platforms and answer questions from the floor. Hughes will speak at 4 p.m. and will be followed by Smith at 4:30 p.m.

These county, state and national candidates will start the day with a breakfast at Oxford. They will return to Iowa City to hold a press conference at 9:45 a.m. in the Iowa City Democratic Headquarters.

A coffee will be held at 10:30 a.m. for the candidates at the home of Mrs. Thomas Farrell, 710 S. Summit.

During the afternoon they will visit sales barns in Kalona and Fairfax and speak to those attending the livestock auctions.

After the address to the Young Democrats, a dinner at the 4-H Fairgrounds will be held for the candidates.

Agree on Further Cuban Measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and 19 foreign ministers from Latin America agreed Wednesday night that further economic and security measures are necessary to cope with the threat of Soviet-backed Cuban communism.

At the windup of a two-day conference, the foreign ministers unanimously denounced the Cuban-Communist alliance.

The closing session which began in midafternoon ran for approximately six hours and 45 minutes with time out for one coffee break. Informants said there were many arguments over both wording and substance of the final statement but that in the end full accord was achieved.

Rusk had called the foreign ministers of Latin-American republics to the informal, closed-door sessions here because of the Soviet arms buildup in Cuba.

The ministers drafted what amounted to an invitation to other nations of the non-Communist world to tighten controls over the use of ships owned by their nationals for shipment of Soviet goods to Cuba.

This was aimed particularly at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies, some of which have ships under charter to the Soviet Union and several of which still have substantial trade with Cuba.

Rusk was reported to have told the conference earlier that the United States is considering closing its ports to vessels which engaged in shipping between Communist bloc countries and Cuba.

The draft communique assailed Soviet domination of the Havana regime and called in effect for increased economic and political sanctions against the Cuban dictatorship. It also suggested breaking of relations by five hemisphere nations that still maintain embassies in Havana.

The document was presented for approval to the final session of the foreign ministers' meeting.

The draft communique, in addition to denouncing the Cuban-Communist bloc alliance, appealed for human rights, increasingly democratic processes, and solidarity among the American republics.

Some delegates said Chile and Mexico were adamant in refusing to approve the strong language of the draft communique.

Peru's foreign minister, Adm. Luis Edgardo Llosa, was reported to have brought rousing cheers at the closed conference session with a demand for such military economic and political action as may be necessary to rid Cuba of the Castro regime.

The Peruvian was understood to have received congratulations from key South American and Central American nations after proposing that the American republics quit dilly-dallying and unite to face the danger of the situation in Cuba.

He was understood to have suggested immediate concentration of forces of the American republics in military planning for defense against Communist subversion from Cuba and elsewhere, and adoption of stern economic and political sanctions. These would include the breaking of relations by the five countries which now maintain diplomatic relations with Cuba — Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Mexico and Uruguay.

Saved Quickly After 9 Hours In Space

On Ship 43 Minutes After Capsule Fell In Mid-Pacific

ABOARD USS KEARSARGE IN PACIFIC (AP) — Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., smiling broadly and saying "I feel fine," stepped from his capsule Wednesday after a precision six-orbits of the earth and a landing within three miles of this prime recovery carrier.

Schirra, in the Sigma 7 spacecraft, hit the center of a mid-Pacific bullseye 250 miles north-east of Midway Island.

The astronaut, still inside the capsule, was hoisted safely aboard this carrier in less than 43 minutes after landing.

And so the United States took another step, however small, toward a hoped-for landing on the moon before the end of this decade.

The beginning of the remarkable, almost trouble-free flight was viewed on television in 26 European countries, including nine behind the Iron Curtain, via the U.S.-owned Teletar communications satellite.

His flight time over the 170,000 mile course at 17,560 miles per hour was nine hours and 13 minutes.

Indeed, his braking rockets were fired at 4:07:11 p.m. EST, only two seconds later than called for in the final flight profile.

The 39-year-old Navy commander, inside his space craft called Sigma 7, parachuted into the sparkling Pacific Ocean about 275 miles northeast of Midway Island at 4:28 p.m.

So precise was the flight that Schirra came down within 9,000 yards of the aircraft carrier Kearsarge. Much closer and he could have landed on the flight deck.

As soon as his 63-foot diameter main parachute deployed at 10,000 feet, Schirra said, as have astronauts before him, "Boy, what a beautiful sight."

Schirra reported that he was resting comfortably while awaiting pickup by helicopters from the Kearsarge. There were only gentle swells in the area.

A happy Schirra reported to the helicopters hovering overhead, "This is a sweet little bird."

Instead of taking to a life raft outside the capsule as other astronauts have done, Schirra elected to remain inside the craft — which had served him so faultlessly — until he could be hoisted on the deck of the Kearsarge.

While the Kearsarge raced to the impact point, two parachutist frogmen leaped into the water and attached a flotation device to the Sigma 7 to assure that it would not sink.

The Kearsarge came alongside at 4:50 p.m., and minutes later Schirra was standing happy and dry on the hangar deck, one deck below the flight deck.

In good Navy tradition, Schirra had previously called the commander of the Kearsarge, Capt. E. P. Rankin, via radio and requested, "Permission to come aboard, Sir?"

With equal gravity, the captain told Schirra, "Permission granted."

The capsule was hoisted from the water and lowered onto a pile

JFK Needs Nation That Once 'Slept'

By MARGUERITE HIGGINS

History will surely record it as extraordinary that John Fitzgerald Kennedy, the author of "Why England Slept," should during his Presidency be so considerably influenced by the British view of the world. The book, after all, was President Kennedy's story of England's mistakes in trying to do business with Hitler. And the point of "Why England Slept" was how the British brought tragedy on themselves by not recognizing the danger in time.

Today, as in the thirties, the world is confronted by the expanding power of an extraordinarily cocky dictator; and, as in the thirties, the prevailing British view (alas, where is the Winston Churchill of the sixties?) is that you can do business with the modern day dictator whether in Cuba or elsewhere. For example, unless the Americans get very sticky about it Her Majesty's ships will continue to furnish the Red Army the wherewithal (purely defensive and "non strategic") to make Cuba into a showcase of Bolshevism in this hemisphere.

ON THIS SPECIFIC POINT of trade with Cuba, President Kennedy and Secretary of State Rusk part company with the British. Mr. Kennedy, after all started out proclaiming his intention "to let Castro know that we do not intend to be pushed any longer."

The several reasons for Great Britain's influence on the New Frontier do not by any means exclude the personable and witty attributes of Sir David Ormsby Gore, Her Majesty's ambassador, who is an old friend of all the Kennedys, and therefore is someone with whom the President feels comfortable and at ease. Sir David has successfully suggested to the President a number of policies including certain modifications of the West's approach to the nuclear-test-ban issue. And, indeed, the regard for things British is widespread in the New Frontier. Secretary of State Rusk in several recent conversations, with Lord Home as the final flourish in the conversation — as if the very mention of the British Foreign Secretary's views could authoritatively settle the matter.

THE LATINS KNOW the false-ness of "liberal" analogies linking Cuba for instance to America's position in Turkey, for the whole point is that Turkey was designed therefore to present the status quo. The Russian penetration into Cuba is designed profoundly to alter the status quo and the balances of power. But in most cases their countries are immature, ignorant in short, a mess. They are helpless to do what logic and good sense dictate.

AREN'T these therefore precisely the reasons why the U.S. instead of fearing its aloneness, should ask if there is any sensible alternative to going it alone in its Cuban policies? After all, even the British finally went it alone once, even if that was under Winston Churchill and even though by that time the alternatives had of all. In "Why England Slept," narrowed to the most desperate President Kennedy seemed to counsel timely action as the way to avoid desperate choices. It is still good advice.

THESE are the reasons why the U.S. instead of fearing its aloneness, should ask if there is any sensible alternative to going it alone in its Cuban policies?

The Honored Art of Being Hated Abroad

By JOHN CROSBY

PARIS — A bunch of us were out with a Frenchman the other night. Seemed like a affable fellow. Showed us his collection of antelope horns, his elephant tusks, was deliciously French about his exploits with the rifle, had a glass of whiskey with us, and wound up going out to a late supper where he downed a lot of wine with his oysters (if the French could only learn to drink sensibly like Americans!) and, after about the fourth glass, he said:

"You are very agreeable fellows over here, but when you get home you will be just like all the other Americans." In short, impossible.

"The old anti-American bit," said one of my companions, shrugging. Well, he'd been here for quite a while. He's used to the old anti-American bit. I'm not, I've heard of it, of course. But that's quite different from hearing it. The difference, roughly, of reading about a bullet whizzing over one's head and actually hearing one.

"Well," I thought to myself. "I've really arrived. They hate me."

Quite a bracing experience. After all, I thought to myself, Americans are abroad by reason of the same explosive mixture of temperament and history that put the Romans in Gaul, the British at Khartoum. Well, they hated the Romans, didn't they? And it wasn't so many years ago, we all detested the English. Some people still do. (But it's very non-U to hate the English this year.)

IT'S OUR BADGE of office, being hated. One should wear it with distinction. Years ago, there was a book called "Live Alone and Like It." Someone ought to write one called "Be Loathed and Love It." After all, it's not easy to be hated. For years, many, many years, Americans slogged around the world, talking too loud, spending too much money, drinking too much, being isolationist, and being quite well liked when we weren't totally ignored.

We had to give away about $80 billion before we got thoroughly hated. Consequently, the American abroad has a duty to see that that money is well-spent. An American goes around being well-liked — well, obviously, he's wasting the taxpayers' money.

Still, I see Americans doing this all the time. Trying to be popular, for God's sake. A throw-back to one's childhood. Form of infantilism, trying to be liked.

ONE MUST GUARD against it. But first one must recognize it. "Symptoms of Popularity." That might be one chapter heading of "Be Loathed and Love It." "One must learn to recognize the symptoms and take remedial action before they get out of hand."

One dangerous symptom here is when the French start telling you: "You know, you're not like the other Americans at all." Well, the proper answer to this and guaranteed to win you lasting unpopularity is: "And you're not at all French! Why, I'd never take you for a Frenchman!"

In fact, if you want to follow up this left jab with a stunning right cross, you say: "Why, I could swear you were an American!" Whatever budding popularity you had before will be nipped right there. If there's anything a Frenchman doesn't want to be taken for, it's an American.

Actually, it shouldn't be too difficult to court unpopularity. A few self-help books should assist immensely: "One Hundred Irritating Mannerisms and How to Learn Them." ("You, too, can be thoroughly disliked, if you spend just twenty minutes a day. Send in this clipping and $2. And receive postpaid my book on discourtesy in four languages.")

I'VE JUST BEEN reading "The Golden Spur" by Dawn Powell, who is a very funny dame, and she has a line in there I rather like about an immensely successful author who wanted "to be hated for himself alone and not just because he was doing all right."

Now, there's a fellow who has the proper appreciation of being hated. Anyone can be hated because he gave away $80 billion. Or because he's got too many hydrogen bombs or Polaris submarines. But to be hated because one is simply fundamentally loathsome, well, that will take work, but if you clip this coupon and send it for my amazing free trial offer, I will send you the first lesson.

In three months, you too will be hated by the French, Greeks, Eurasians, Turks, and even Italians. It's very difficult for the Italians to hate anyone, but if you work at it...

Higher Education in Mississippi

Roscoe Drummond Reports —

Mississippi Outcome Never In Doubt Says Drummond

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND WASHINGTON — The outcome of the case of Mississippi vs. the United States was never in doubt. Gov. Ross Barnett went to the brink of total defiance — and disaster — and drew back one step before it was too late.

President Kennedy gave the officials of the state and of the University time and opportunity to acquiesce, but there was never any doubt that the authority of the nation, not the asserted authority of one-fiftieth of the nation, would have to prevail.

THE PRESIDENT could not have done less. He was resourceful, flexible, but at no point did he make any compromise of principle. The Governor could not have done more — without plunging the University, the state, and the nation into more violence and, in the end, equal defeat.

Mr. Barnett's brinkmanship has disserved his own cause. By so dramatically defying the order of the court could not be successfully defied.

"INTERPOSITION" — the theory that a state can decide what is constitutional — is an untenable doctrine. The Governor has discredited it so badly that I doubt that it is any longer even a useful delaying device. This is another reason why Mr. Barnett's conduct will have the effect of hastening, not retarding, the integration of public school education.

There is no doubt that Gov. Barnett and his supporters sincerely believe that the state of Mississippi ought to have the right to bar Negroes as students at the state-supported University. But there is no basis in law or precedent for them to believe that they do possess that right. Most Southern states have already conceded it.

The extreme state's-righters have often argued with respect to school integration that "there is no act of Congress which requires integration." But there is an act of Congress which requires the state to permit all citizens to register and vote equally. Yet the opponents of equal voting rights continue to violate the voting law even though it is an act of Congress, not alone a decision of the court. Thus the argument over whether equal rights rests on Congressional law or a court ruling is a sham and a cover-up.

THE ISSUE IN MISSISSIPPI has, from the start, been whether there is to be one Supreme Court or 51 competing courts; whether a state can decide which parts of the constitution and which decisions of the Supreme Court they will enforce and which they will reject.

The need now is to turn from recrimination and equally from any claim of smug virtue on the part of those who find it easy to live in overwhelmingly white areas and tell others how free from prejudice they are. It is neither appropriate nor just to heap special opprobrium on the South. No part of the nation has been or is free from racial offenses.

THIS WAS THE MOOD of the President's superbly conceived address Sunday night. He bespoke the best traditions of the South — traditions of courage and honor, magnanimity and high patriotism. The whole nation can benefit from them.

The Governor of Mississippi says he will take every legal step to reverse the decision of the courts — which is proper. He says he is abandoning resistance by force — which is wise. That road could lead only to the dis-United States of America.

a non-student. I was allowed in only because I showed an Iowa ID card and a student there vouched for me. Any groups (five or more people) walking around the campus are stopped by troops and thoroughly checked.

A few male students were in front of fraternity row at 5 a.m. Tuesday and troops stopped them and made them place their hands on cars and held open bayonets at their backs as they were frisked. The troops felt the boys were up "too early" and that they must be planning something. The air all around the campus is charged with something besides the remnants of tear gas.

A few of the troops would talk freely and they said that when they were first sent to Oxford, they didn't want to hurt anyone nor did they expect any real trouble. However, after some of them were shot at and injured, they had to do their job. The troops felt that their own people, Americans, were attacking them. Some of them are not concerning themselves with the situation and the only comment they will make is that they haven't had a bath in four days and that they've been sleeping on the ground between shifts of checking cars and people.

Firecrackers

While I was there Tuesday night, boys in a dorm adjacent to the dorm where Meredith shares a suite with six marshals began yelling and jeering. A few bottles were thrown and then loud firecrackers were set off across the campus. Troops are stationed everywhere on the campus with flood lights set up and turned toward bushes and cars.

After the echos from the firecrackers died out, boys in fraternities and dorms would yell and scream louder than before.

Around 11 p.m. a convoy of 40 jeeps drove onto the campus because some boys had started a fire in their dormitory. Ten minutes later the convoy turned around and headed back out of town.

Many students feel that Meredith will have to leave with the troops. They don't think that the "rednecks" will keep still if the troops are gone.

Want Education

Sidna Brower, editor of the school paper, The Mississippian, said, "The students seriously want an education and they now realize how serious the situation is. The Federal Government means business and it has the power to enforce its policy."

"Since any student caught rioting may be expelled from the university and thus be unable to get into any other university, I think they won't do anything wrong," she said.

Miss Brower doesn't think the few radical students will find any support today in the student body. Last week end school hadn't really started and no one had anything to do except wait for Meredith and the federal marshals. Now with the school in full session and the possibility of the university being closed, the students are more concerned with

C of C Conference

The Iowa City Chamber of Commerce will host a three day conference of the Iowa Chamber of Commerce Executive Association starting today.

First events are registration at 4 p.m. followed by a dinner at 7 p.m. today at Jefferson Hotel in Iowa City.

The conference will run through Saturday noon. Many of the visiting officials plan to attend the SUI-Southern California football game here Saturday afternoon.

their education than anything else.

Both Miss Brower and Jackson, president of the Student Senate, feel that the students want to return to normalcy and that they all hope the worst is over.

"After all," said Jackson, "it is difficult to concentrate on studies with armed federal troops overflowing the campus."

Miss Brower and Jackson think that integration is here to stay, and that the students will accept it, maybe not all of them at first, but in time.

Some troops were leaving the city Tuesday and Jackson said they expect no trouble this week when Ole Miss plays Houston for their Homecoming in Oxford.

Many students have been viewing the entire situation as one filled with excitement and adventure. A few have seen the seriousness of it ever since its beginning and today more and more people are realizing that they can no longer view it as a game of excitement and adventure; the consequences are too vital to everyone concerned, especially the students.

Prices Down, Receipts Up as NFO Holding Action Ends

CORNING — Skidding prices and increased receipts at Midwest markets Wednesday marked the end of a month-long holding action on livestock.

Prices dropped as much as $1 a hundredweight on hogs, to the lowest levels since last June and considerably below prices paid when the National Farmers Organization (NFO) started its holding action Sept. 1.

A recess in the holding action was called Tuesday night by the NFO to enable members to sell livestock they had been holding. Officials of the NFO said the holding action "would be resumed" in the near future but declined to speculate on the length of the recess.

Stockyard officials credited the increased receipts in part to the fact that NFO members were selling livestock.

Receipts of hogs in interior Iowa and southern Minnesota were estimated at 75,000, and Department of Agriculture officials said final checks might show a higher figure. A week ago receipts were 58,000, and a year ago 52,000.

Prices were as much as $1 lower a hundredweight on butcher hogs and on some sows.

At Chicago, prices on butcher hogs dropped 50 to 75 cents a hundredweight, with similar slumps reported at Omaha and Indianapolis. Smaller price declines were reported at other Midwest markets.

Hog receipts at the 12 major Midwest markets totaled 65,500, compared with 55,100 a week ago and 54,300 a year ago. Cattle receipts were 46,400, compared with 3,200 a week ago and 46,800 a year ago.

Cattle prices at Chicago were steady to 25 cents lower.

There are positions open to sophomores, juniors and seniors who have declared themselves theatre arts majors.

Ballots of approved candidates will be sent out and returned by mail.

of mattresses on the hangar deck at 5:10 p.m. Three minutes later the emergency escape hatch was blown and in another two minutes Schirra emerged at 5:15 p.m.

When Schirra's helmet was removed, he had a big smile on his face. His hair was matted with perspiration.

Immediately afterwards, Schirra was rushed off to the ship's sick bay for a quick medical examination.

The capsule, hoisted from the water by a crane, was lowered through the flight deck on a hastily arranged bed of old boxes and mattresses.

Schirra appeared slightly tired but told William Hayes, senior space agency representative aboard: "I feel fine. Just fine. A great trip. What a sweet little bird!"

The launch and subsequent trips around the world went so smoothly that the entire flight seemed as routine as a commuter ride to work — despite some minor problems with spacesuit temperatures. Schirra became the fifth American to enter space and the third to orbit the earth.

The Telstar communications satellite, another U.S. space achievement was used to broadcast 18 minutes of the "lift-off" phase to 26 European nations, including nine behind the Iron Curtain.

Schirra got word that he was tentatively slated to make the full six orbits as he passed over Hawaii during his third orbit. That was at 11:38 a.m.

The word was passed by astronaut Virgil I. Grissom. To this news Schirra shouted "Hallelujah!" A firm decision to go for six was relayed by the Point Arguello, Calif., station at 11:47 a.m.

Schirra's flight was the longest ever undertaken by an American and was designed to test engineering systems preparatory to 24-hour flights early next year.

Market Terms Rejected

BRIGHTON, England — The opposition Labor party rejected the Government's terms Wednesday night for taking Britain into the European Common Market.

The decision, backed by an overwhelming majority of the 1,300 labor delegates at the party's annual conference, foreshadowed a major clash in British politics.

The delegates cheered and stamped their feet when their leader, Hugh Gaitskell, challenged Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to change his policies or submit the Common Market issue to the electorate.

Gaitskell said the socialistic Labor party — not Macmillan's Conservatives — speaks now "for the people of Britain and the commonwealth."

He said Macmillan — in his anxiety to enter the Common Market — was pursuing a course that could destroy the Commonwealth. "We are not a part of Europe at least not yet," Gaitskell said.

Giants Rally in 9th To Win N.L. Crown

Bases-Loaded Walk Provides Winning Tally

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The San Francisco Giants won the National League championship Wednesday, scoring the winning run on a bases-loaded walk in a four-run ninth inning rally that beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4 in their sudden death playoff for the pennant. The Giants, winners of the best-of-three playoff, 2 games to one, meet the American League champion New York Yankees in the first game of the World Series at San Francisco today, starting at 2 p.m. (CST). The Giants, who won the opening game of the playoff 8-0 but lost 8-7 Tuesday, trailed 4-2 going into the ninth inning Wednesday before taking the lead when Dodger reliever Stan Williams walked Jim Davenport with the bases loaded. The walk forced in Felipe Alou with the run that put the Giants in front 5-4. An error by Los Angeles second baseman Larry Burright enabled San Francisco to get an insurance run before Ron Perranoski got the side out. Matty Alou singled to open the inning, but was forced at second base by Harvey Kuenn. Walks by Ed Roebuck to Willie McCovey and Felipe Alou loaded the bases. Willie Mays cracked a sharp liner back to the mound that Roebuck knocked down, but was unable to hold, allowing the first run of the inning to score. Williams replaced Roebuck, but Orlando Cepeda drove in the tying run with a sacrifice fly before Davenport worked Williams for the key bases-loaded walk. Billy Pierce, who won the first game for the Giants with a three-hitter, came on for the Giants in the ninth and set the Dodgers down 1-2-3 to preserve the triumph for another reliever, Don Larsen. Roebuck was the loser. The Dodgers had pulled ahead 3-2 on a two-run homer by Tommy Davis in the sixth inning and made it 4-2 in the seventh when Maury Wills singled for his fourth hit, stole second and third and came home on a wild throw by catcher Ed Bailey on the steal of third. It stayed that way until the Giants, who had their backs to the wall during the final week of the season and trailed by four games with only seven to play, struck back for the last and decisive time.

Pagan Safe at Second

Shortstop Jose Pagan of the Giants is safe at second — before continuing on to third — in the third inning of the final playoff game in Los Angeles Wednesday. Ford To Pitch for Yanks In Today's Series Opener

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The veteran World Series shutout ace, Whitey Ford, will start for the New York Yankees against the San Francisco Giants in today's series opener, Manager Houk said Wednesday. Houk would not name his second game pitcher but most observers expected it to be 23-game winner Ralph Terry. In a Yankee workout at Candlestick Park, Terry warmed up to get the feel of the stadium's pitching mound. The first and second games of the Series will be played at Candlestick. The rest of Houk's line-up read: Tony Kubek SS, Bobby Richardson 2B, Tom Tresh LF, Mickey Mantle CF, Roger Maris RF, Elston Howard C, Bill Skowron 1B, Cletus Boyer 3B and Ford.

meet the team that won the pennant. They sure came back," he said, referring to the Giants' four-run ninth inning. Houk said the Yankees' 3-day rest wouldn't be any advantage. "They (the Giants) are hot now and can keep right on playing," Houk said. Houk was a catcher for the 1951 Yankee team, which won a World Series from the Giants after the in a playoff. He said that 1951 was Giants had defeated the Dodgers too long ago for any valid comparison of the two situations.

For Giants, Sheer Delight; Dodgers Want No Reporters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "This team kept bouncing back," an exuberant Al Park shouted through a din in the San Francisco dressing room Wednesday. "They did it all year long. I kept bouncing back, bouncing back. They did it again today." A bases-loaded walk to Jimmy Davenport by Los Angeles pitcher Stan Williams forced in a run that gave San Francisco a 5-4 lead in the ninth inning of the third playoff game Wednesday, and won the National League pennant for the Giants.

years ago and now a coach, cried: "This was more thrilling, this was more thrilling." Orlando Cepeda was a ringleader in pouring champagne on the heads of willing teammates. "It was the biggest thrill of my life, those runs in the ninth that I didn't score," he said. Twice earlier his outs foiled potential rallies. "Now I'm nice and relaxed. I'm ready." Willie Mays, whose scorching through the box scored the first run of the fateful ninth, was the object of special attention. He was pounced on, pinned down on a rubbing table, and given a thorough pummeling. Manager Dark admitted he was up in the air over his choice of pitchers for the World Series. His staff is worn and battered by the driving finish to the regular season plus the three game playoff.

so crushed by their defeat in Wednesday's third and decisive National League playoff game that they refused to talk to reporters. "They want to be by themselves," a club spokesman told newsmen outside the locked Dodger dressing room. "They won't talk to any one." When the doors finally were opened — some 55 minutes after the final out — newsmen found most of the players sitting in silence and shock. Several empty whisky bottles were standing on a table and another — about half full — was being passed around. Torn uniforms lay in front of some lockers. Pitcher Johnny Podres obviously had been crying.

It proved to be the winning run in the 6-4 victory, and brought back memories of the Giants' miracle finish against the Dodgers in 1951. That was the year of Bobby Thomson's dramatic, three-run, ninth-inning homer. Dark, shortstop and Giant captain on the 1951 team, didn't want to compare the two finishes, but Wes Westrum, Giant catcher 11

Dodger publicist Red Patterson told reporters Manager Walter Alston had received a call from Club President Walter F. O'Malley and General Manager Buzzie Bavasi. "They told him to relax," Patterson said. "They told him it was a long season — but that's baseball. Alston took it with tears." There had been rumors Alston might be fired if the club failed to finish first. Alston, grim but characteristically courteous, met reporters only a few minutes after the game. He accompanied them to a club meeting room and subjected himself to one of the most painful interviews of his career.

"In the last couple of weeks, our lack of ability to get runs cost us the most. When we did get a few runs the pitching wouldn't be good enough. We couldn't put the two together."

Burns: USC Good as Any In Country

Iowa coach Jerry Burns, sizing up Southern California, the Hawks' opponent Saturday, said Wednesday that he thought the Trojans were definitely on a par with the Big Ten competition, and continued, "They are as good as any team in the country. Southern Cal is one of the finest West Coast teams in the last five years." The Hawks practiced under dry skies for the first time this week Wednesday. After routine drills, Iowa ran against Southern Cal plays, and finished with a half-hour offensive drill and wind sprints. Burns said he will alternate the first and second unit Saturday, adding, "I have confidence in the defensive ability of the reserves and they played well offensively Saturday." The coach said the team is in fine physical condition and the morale is good.

'Liston Must Earn Right To Box Here' — New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Athletic Commission recognizes Sonny Liston as the heavyweight boxing champion of the world but isn't ready to grant him a license to box in this state. "He must earn that right," the commission said in a formal statement Wednesday after reviewing the case. Liston, who has a prison record and who has been charged with underworld ties, was denied a New York license on April 27. The action sent the heavyweight title fight between Liston and Floyd Patterson to Chicago, where Liston won the championship Sept. 25, with a knockout in the first round. The commission declined to specify exactly what steps the new champion must take to get into New York's good graces, but it gave some broad hints. First, he must apply for a license, a formality which Liston has ignored — through purpose or sheer disinterest, or both. Then he must cleanse himself with both the commission and a special legislative committee appointed to probe the sport.

Liston was the chief topic of the legislative group's meeting Tuesday. A heavyweight fighter named Cortez Stewart was on the witness stand, and he connected Liston with Frank (Blinky) Palermo, notorious racketeer. Referring to this probe, the commission said: "At that time, there was introduced evidence purporting to support the commission's decision denying a professional boxer's license to Liston." The heavyweight champion and his adviser, Jack Nilon, were invited to appear at the next committee meeting Oct. 11 but Nilon said: "We want to find out what's going on before we accept the invitation." The Commission's statement Wednesday was signed by Gen. Melvin L. Krulwich, chairman; James A. Farley, Jr., and Raymond J. Lee. "We recognize the fact that Sonny Liston defeated the world heavyweight titleholder at Chicago," the statement said, "and, having won the heavyweight championship in the ring, we recognize him as the world titleholder. We have, on occasions, denied a license for good and sufficient reasons to boxers highly rated in their respective divisions." Then it added: "Winning a professional boxing title which is worldwide in its scope places no seal of approval on the application of the winner for a professional boxer's license in this state. He must earn that right."

Far East Film Series To Begin Next Week

Another evening of "Art Films of the Far East" will be presented this fall at SUI.

Sponsored by the SUI Chinese Language and Area Center, it will be presented at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 10, in Macbride Auditorium. The free program will consist of five films illustrating various cultural aspects of China, India, Korea and Japan.

A demonstration by a Chinese artist will be shown in the first film, "Painting the Chinese Landscape." The second film, "Tai Mahal, Agra," will present the beauty of this famed mausoleum, which is one of the Seven Wonders of the World. Built by Shah Jehan of India for his Empress Mumtaz Mahal, this structure has been described by critics as a "poem in marble."

"Masterpieces of Korean Art," the third film, is a record of Korean art treasures that toured the United States in 1958. The oldest wooden building in the world — a 7th Century Buddhist temple near Nara, Japan — will be the subject of another film, "Horyuji Temple."

Rickover Blasts U.S. Educational Standards

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Vice Adm. H. G. Rickover said Wednesday that high school and college diplomas and degrees have been debased by a total lack of standards and, as indicators of accomplishment, "aren't worth a continental."

The peppery admiral, long a caustic critic of the schools, told the Southern Governors Conference in a prepared speech that education in this country is in need of reform.

"I am convinced," he added, "we cannot put through a really effective reform program unless we set up a national scholastic standard — a permissive standard, of course — but nevertheless potentially a great influence for good."

"We are the only advanced nation without a national standard," he said.

Comparing American education with that in Europe, Rickover said:

"Naturally we have more children with college degrees, since we hand these out for intellectual work that nowhere else in the world is held to be of academic standard."

"What other country grants master degrees for trailer park management, bachelor degrees for domestic science, or doctorates for thesis work on 'Field Hockey in History'?"

Western Books Exhibit

Now on at SUI Library
The 21st Western Books Exhibit has opened at the SUI Main Library, to continue through next Thursday.

The exhibit consists of 40 books, selected by a panel of judges for their unusual features, such as typography, illustrations, or design, and usually run rather heavily in the direction of Western Americana, art and architecture.
