ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A passenger airliner and a military plane collided head-on in a cloud bank over Ankara Friday and plunged as flaming wreckage into bustling crowds in the city's main square and nearby buildings.

Police said 71 or more persons were killed and nearly 200 were injured — about half of them gravely — in the worst air disaster in Turkish history.

Most victims were pedestrians and occupants of buildings lining Ulus Square in the heart of this Turkish capital.

There were 17 persons aboard the two planes, and none was reported to have survived. Five of the airliner's 11 passengers were listed as Americans.

The passenger plane was a Middle East Airlines jet-prop Viscount carrying 11 passengers and 3 crew members. It was preparing to land at Ankara Airport northeast of the city after a stop at Nicosia, capital of Cyprus.

Part of its wreckage slammed into the square.

The military craft was a Turkish Air Force C47 Dakota with a crew of three on an instrument training flight. Much of the wreckage hit houses, killing some occupants. A large chunk of fuselage landed at Ankara's ancient castle, less than a third of a mile from the square.

The collision occurred minutes before the airliner's scheduled arrival time — 3:11 p.m.

Flaming fragments rained on pedestrians, stores and a five-story bank building at one corner of the square. The bank caught fire. Some of the dead were found there.

Four homes also caught fire and seven victims were found in the ruins.

A gas main was ruptured in the square and fed a score of fires.

Middle East Airlines headquarters in Beirut, Lebanon, listed the American passengers as C. W. Bartholomew, Miss Caroline Hopp, Paul Dragovic, Robert Richardson and Donald Wahl. No addresses were given.

Miss Hopp was returning to Ankara from Beirut. Friends in Minnesota said a Miss Caroline Hopp who attended American University in Beirut was the 19-year-old daughter of Prof. Ralph Hopp, associate director of libraries at the University of Minnesota, who is now in Turkey with his wife.

The body of one of the Dakota crewmen was found on a rooftop near the square, his parachute partly opened.

Police said the planes collided at low altitude in an overcast sky and the crewman probably fell no more than 150 feet.

Demo Assails Hasty Action On Shaff Plan

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa House overrode a Democrat's protest against what he called unseemingly haste in acting upon the Shaff plan of reapportionment, and set the issue for debate as a special order of business at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The motion was adopted on an 81-18 vote after Rep. William Denman (D-Des Moines) proposed a delay until March 14. Denman's motion was defeated 74-27.

Denman said a U.S. District Court hearing is set for Feb. 16 on a suit challenging constitutionality of the Shaff plan and asking that the federal court order appointment of both houses of the legislature on a population basis.

He said he believes the House should wait until the court has had a chance to rule on the suit before completing action on the Shaff proposal.

"What are you afraid of?" Denman asked. "Why all the rush? I know you're going to cram the Shaff plan down the throats of those of us who are from the cities. But I see no reason why you should railroad this important bill through the House before the courts have had time to act."

Rep. John Duffy (D-Dubuque) backed Denman by saying, "This is probably one of the most important things we'll do this session. I think we should give it the same kind of deliberation we are giving liquor by the drink." Denman and Duffy basically objected to the fact that after the Senate passed the Shaff plan last Tuesday, the House Reapportionment Committee suspended its rules in order to rush the measure to the House calendar.

Denman, a committee member, said the group's action took "no more than two minutes."

In other action Friday, the House received 19 bills, including measures to extend the deadline for filing the Korean veterans' bonus to June 30, 1964, and to clarify the right of doctors at University Hospitals and the Psychopathic Hospital at Iowa City to collect fees from private patients under rules fixed by the State Board of Regents.

Britain Gets Italian Pledge On Europe

Macmillan in Rome, Talks with Fanfani On Common Market

Combined From Leased Wires ROME — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan teamed up Friday with Italian Premier Amintore Fanfani in a determined battle to keep alive a future for Britain in the European Common Market.

The British leader plunged into a series of crucial talks with Fanfani, a champion of the British cause, aimed at blunting the blow dealt by French President Charles de Gaulle against Britain's entry.

Shortly after Macmillan's arrival in this birthplace of the six-nation community, he and Fanfani pledged their continued efforts to pursue European unity despite De Gaulle's veto of British membership.

Fanfani hailed Macmillan as "a courageous pioneer of British participation" in the economic and political integration of Europe.

"The ideal of European unity is, between us, higher than ever," Fanfani declared. "And your recent words have demonstrated that Britain, too, continues to be sustained by a great decision."

In reply, Macmillan alluded to the French veto that wrecked 16 months of British negotiation efforts in Brussels, home of the Common Market.

"If there are troubles," Macmillan said, "they are a spur to further efforts toward European unity in a spirit, not of rivalry but of solidarity."

A spokesman for the Italian Government said the two leaders reviewed the failure of Brussels and "explored ways to keep alive the mechanism of Western European economic and political integration."

Other topics included the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the role of NATO countries in nuclear armament.

Back in London, Christian A. Herter, special envoy of President Kennedy, consulted with other British leaders on the implications of Britain's exclusion from Europe. The British government assured Herter it will back to the hilt U.S. plans for cutting tariffs and spurring world trade.

U.S. Ambassador Walter C. Dowling met with West German Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard in Bonn, Germany on the crisis Friday.

Dowling will return to Washington Tuesday for consultations with President Kennedy and Administration officials.

Scheduled meetings later this month on Denmark's request to join the European Common Market and on Portugal's bid for association with the economic bloc have been cancelled, it was announced Friday in Brussels.

Gunfire Hits Cuba Airport, Say Refugees

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An airliner landed in Miami on Friday with 107 refugee Cuban-Americans and relatives, some of whom said they witnessed a shooting affray at Havana airport before takeoff.

One, who refused to be identified, said a handcuffed man, evidently a prisoner, broke from guards and ran toward the field.

"The guard fired a burst in the air from his submachine gun and the fleeing man stopped running and dropped flat on the ground until the guard and others caught up with him. I don't think he was hurt," the passenger said.

He added, "Some of the shots hit a Russian-built Cubana Airlines two-engine plane on the airfield and gasoline splashed out of its right wing fuel tank."

Francisco Martinez, 17, another passenger, said he saw gas dribbling from the plane's tank as he peered out of the terminal window after hearing shots.

"There were guards running all over the place," Martinez said.

Teresita Llerena de Velasco, who arrived with her husband Rafael, and their two children, Atlanta-born Maxine, 5, and Cuban-born Rafael Jr., 1, said she heard what sounded like machine gun fire Friday afternoon while she was waiting in the Havana airport emigration office.

"There were many shots, fired in quick succession," she said. "It sounded as though they came from the runways. I don't know what it was."

Oscar Iglesias, 15, said, "The people on the plane were talking about the shooting but I did not hear it myself. They said there were two or three shots or maybe more."

The boy said he dropped out of school 1½ years ago "because I did not like what they were doing to the classes. They interrupted the classes to have a meeting about politics. They want to teach you the Marxist theory. I could not stand this so I quit going to school."

The plane touched down at Miami International Airport at 4:05 p.m., approximately an hour after leaving Havana.

Canada: 'Not Part Of New Frontier'

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister John Diefenbaker said Friday that Canada was not a part of President Kennedy's "New Frontier" and began girding his Conservative Government for a Parliamentary showdown on the nuclear defense issue.

He reiterated his charge that the United States unduly interfered in Canadian internal affairs when it criticized his government for not accepting U.S. nuclear devices as part of North Atlantic defenses.

Meanwhile Diefenbaker set the stage for one of the biggest guessing games in recent Canadian political history by paying a formal call on Gov.-Gen. George Vanier and then refusing to tell reporters the reason.

There was widespread speculation that Diefenbaker would dissolve Parliament and set the date for a general election. But the House adjourned for the weekend at 5 p.m. without him either doing so or even hinting that he would.

He could, however, make such an announcement at any time — whether or not the House was sitting.

Diefenbaker conferred with Charles Ritchie, Canadian Ambassador to the United States, who was summoned here after U.S. Canadian relations showed the greatest strain in years because of the nuclear arms disagreement. Ritchie flew here from Washington Friday and there was no word on when he would return.

Diefenbaker made his remark about the "New Frontier" when asked about U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk's statement Friday that while the United States regrets any offense Canada might have taken, it felt obliged to issue a criticism of the Prime Minister's defense views.

Diefenbaker told reporters that he believed the United States now realizes Canada "is not part of the New Frontier."

The Prime Minister also stood by his recent nuclear weapons speech which brought on the public U.S. criticism. His remarks then were "correct and proper," he said.

"It's clear, I hope," he said, "that we need no assistance from the State Department and I have nothing further to say about the impropriety of the statement it made."

Some observers believed Diefenbaker, who is noted as an extremely astute politician, had turned the nuclear dispute to his Conservative Party's advantage by taking the initiative in blasting the United States. By doing so he could gain support from some Canadian quarters where anti-Americanism has mushroomed in recent years.

Reserved Seats Gone for Brubeck

All reserved-seat tickets for the concert by the Dave Brubeck Quartet here Thursday at 8 p.m. have been sold, but a few general admission tickets still are available at the Information Desk in Iowa Memorial Union.

Sponsored by the Central Party Committee, the concert will be presented in the Main Lounge of Iowa Memorial Union.

Brubeck, a native of California, studied composition with the noted composer Darius Milhaud at Mills College, Oakland, Calif., after service in the U.S. Army during World War II. He organized an experimental jazz group at the college, and later gained wide recognition as a new jazz stylist. His trio became a quartet in 1951, when Paul Desmond joined the group. Other members are Joe Morello and Gene Wright.

City Police Court Postpones Rape Case Arraignment

Arraignment of Paul Van Smith, 19, of Washington, on a charge of assault with intent to commit rape was postponed by Iowa City Police Court Friday.

Smith's attorney, Charles A. Barker, asked for the delay, according to court officials.

Smith was arrested Wednesday after what police termed a violent 15-minute struggle with a nurse Tuesday morning at 1026 N. Governor St.

Iowa Phones Knocked Out By Heavy Ice

By The Associated Press High winds, snow and rain hit a wide area in the West on Friday, raising flood waters, snapping off power and closing schools.

Heavy icing knocked out hundreds of telephones in central Iowa. Sleet in North Dakota and light snow in Minnesota heralded the eastward advance of the cold front.

Cold wave warnings were issued for the Dakotas, Minnesota and Iowa. Temperatures were expected to plunge as low as -15 or -20 in the northern Great Plains.

Snow whirled inland from the Pacific Northwest and blew across mountains to the Great Plains.

The overflow from rivers surged through hundreds of homes in Northern California while gales pounded the coast for the third day in a row.

And arctic air surged into Montana and spread toward the central section of the nation, a region just recovering from one of the coldest months in history.

Gusts up to 82 m.p.h. in Boulder, Colo., overturned trailers, uprooted trees, pushed cars off roads and lifted a roof from an apartment building while bricks flew through the air like missiles. Power went off for 45 minutes.

A squall line whipped through southern Idaho and northern Utah.

Orientation Activities Include Faculty Visits

Faculty home visits and an open house have been planned for new SUIowans during second semester Orientation on Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week.

Monday evening at 7:30 new students will gather in Shambaugh Lecture Hall, Main Library, where they will meet their student group leaders. Then the groups will go to various faculty homes for an informal visit including a question and answer period.

New students will be able to meet many of the University administration and student organization presidents at an open house in the Main Lounge of the Union Tuesday.

From 8 to 9:30 p.m. the new students will come with their group leaders to meet and visit with the guests. President Hancher, Sharm Scheuerman, basketball coach and Forest Evashevski, athletic director, are among those sent invitations.

Judy Stevens, A3, Iowa City and Dick Ross, A4, Fort Dodge, are chairmen of the Orientation program. They will also be heading the group which plans Orientation for next fall.

Funeral Services Set For Arthur K. Miller

Funeral services for Arthur K. Miller, 60, member of the SUJ faculty since 1931 and head of the Department of Geology from 1952-57, will be held at 3 p.m. Monday at Beckman's Funeral Home with burial in Oakland Cemetery.

Prof. Miller died Thursday. The flag on Old Capitol flew at half-staff in tribute to Prof. Miller Friday.

While on the SUJ faculty he gained an international reputation for his research in geology, having conducted scientific field work in Mexico, Africa, Europe, Russia and the sub-Arctic. His field of special research was fossils of the cephalopod family similar to the nautilus and squid found today.

He had been on leave of absence from the University since 1957 due to ill health.

In 1961 Prof. Miller was elected to honorary membership in the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists, one of the highest honors accorded to a geologist.

A native of Kahoka, Mo., Prof. Miller received A.B. and M.A. degrees at the University of Missouri in 1924 and 1925, and a Ph.D. degree at Yale University in 1930. He held instructorships at both universities before coming to SUJ.

His research included several field trips to Mexico, once riding on horseback along a considerable portion of the Mexican-Guatemalan border. In 1937 he traveled to Europe and rather extensively in European Soviet Russia as an official representative of the U.S. Government.

In 1952 he represented SUJ and the Iowa Geological Survey at the International Geological Congress in northern Africa and travelled along the northern coast of Tunisia and Algeria.

Prof. Miller was elected national president of the Paleontological Society in 1957. His professional activities also included membership in the Geological Society of America, Arctic Institute of North America, Geological Society of Switzerland, Paleontological Society of Japan, Geological Society of Mexico and the Institute of Ad-

He was the author of more than 180 papers, mostly on fossil cephalopods, the majority having been published in the Journal of Paleontology. In addition, the Geological Society of America has published 10 book-length studies of which Miller was a principal author.

He was married to Bertha Louise Kehr Dec. 21, 1927, at Columbia, Mo. Mrs. Miller and two daughters, Leta and Mrs. Margaret Vaughan, all of Iowa City, survive. Also surviving are three grandchildren, Dana, Karen and Arthur Vaughan.

The family requests no flowers but friends may make donations to the Old Gold Development Fund for the A. K. Miller Memorial. The fund will be used to purchase books for the library in the Geology Department.

Legislating for The Minority

It's a way out but it may invite more problems than it solves.

In sympathy with the Amish who cannot and will not comply with state regulations on education, Sen. D. C. Nolan (R-Iowa City) and Irving D. Long (R-Manchester) have introduced a bill that would allow local school boards to determine teacher qualifications.

State law now requires children to attend public or private schools staffed by state-certified teachers or teachers "otherwise qualified by training and experience."

And this leaves the door wide open to hiring almost anybody.

While we may feel that the Amish have a right to their way of life, the right of a small minority to pursue happiness in their own way, we do not have the right to legislate for the minority.

We could have ignored the 37 children in Buchanan County who were enrolled in Amish schools. After all, 186 Amish students were attending Buchanan public schools under certified teachers.

But once we chose to bring the case into the courts, we had to insist upon compliance.

The bill to allow school boards to hire uncertified teachers is a step in the wrong direction, because this bill would apply not only in Buchanan County but in the other 98 as well.

We have been trying through the years to raise the level of teacher competency not lower it.

It is sad when a way of life is destroyed by the courts, but it isn't without precedent.

The snake handlers of Tennessee were justly ridiculed when the court ruled snakes out of their ceremonies. It destroyed an important element of faith testing.

The southern whites claim the courts are destroying their way of life and they are, and they should.

In retrospect, we can see that we might have ignored the non-compliance of the Amish schools. But we didn't and now we must insist on strict enforcement of the law that is good for education and for the growth and welfare of the state and its children and young people.

Study in Motivation

If one were to say in so many words that one motivation for military spending in the United States is to hold back other types of spending, the person making such a charge would be denounced as a paranoid, or worse, as Marxist. But this very reason is given quite frankly in a series of full-page ads in Look by the "Investor-Owned Electric Light and Power Companies," of which there are stated to be more than 300 across the nation. Whether all of them are paying for this ingenious publicity is not stated, but the ad invites the reader to write Look for the names of the sponsors.

Almost all the space in the ads is taken up by a picture designed to swell the bosoms of all who delight in American military might. One week it was the Skybolt, now unhappily gone to the boneyard of forgotten missiles. Another week the bow of the U.S.S. Enterprise, the world's first atomic-powered aircraft carrier, towed over the reader. The caption under Skybolt was: "WHEN THE SKYBOLT RIDES A BOMBER YOUR TAX DOLLARS BUY DEFENSE. BUT when your tax money is used to build more and more federal-Government-owned electric plants and lines, it is spend needlessly. . . Wouldn't it make more sense for the federal Government to stop such needless spending, and use your tax money only for essentials such as defense?"

The Enterprise ad carried the same argument. "WHEN THE ENTERPRISE MAKES KNOTS," it read, "you can actually see your tax dollars at work - working usefully. . . paying for America's world-wide defense. . . The nation is much better able to pay for it when the Government cuts out needless spending. Yet some people are urging the federal Government to build more electric plants and lines. . . Electric power is a field where the Government can save your tax dollars - not spend them."

Private-utility companies provide light, heat and power. In this case they are providing light, though scarcely the sort they intended.

Bugaboos Come and Go—

New Frontiers With Great Vigor—And All That Rot

By PATRICK L. ALSTON
Assistant Professor of History

Disarmament is well on its way to replacing Education as the favorite topic for futile debate. The subject has become a kind of pacifier for the sensitive literati, something to keep their jaws busy while the engineers get on with the serious business of refining and enlarging the nation's suicide system, which, by a macabre anachronism, is still called defense.

A recent addition to arms bibliography is Fred Cook's "The Warfare State". Working his way through "The Congressional Record", "The New York Times", and other less monumental organs of contemporary record, Mr. Cook has put together a colorful scrap book of testimony on the Cold War.

GENERAL EISENHOWER warns us to "guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex."

General MacArthur renounces war as an instrument of national policy. A university professor calls for the unilateral obliteration of the Communist Camp by surprise attack.

Adlai Stevenson denounces Dulles for brinkmanship. John F. Kennedy urges the public to join the Editors of "Life" in a dig-it-yourself shelter program. A Republican Secretary of Defense complains of the difficulty of cutting the arms bill without antagonizing special interests. A Democratic Disarmament Chief proposes speeding up the arms race till the Russians go broke.

In the midst of this confusion Cook detects a pattern, a conspiracy against peace on the part of the Generals and the Industrialists. According to him, the unholy alliance of the Pentagon and Big Business is the force that keeps the Cold War going.

BE THAT AS IT MAY (and Cook's "evidence" is so one-sided as to be useless), the fact remains that the justification of the Warfare State has been that it provides jobs. Unfortunately, weaponry has exhausted itself as an economic stimulus. Our bright young men have discovered a new formula: tax cut.

No one seriously believes that this gimmick will work, but "its better than doing nothing" to quote the President here and elsewhere, and after all a young vigorous Administration has to keep generating ideas if the democratic process of full and heated discussion of the issues before doing nothing is to move forward with vigor.

And so Tax Cut is well on its way to replacing Disarmament as the favorite topic for futile debate at the lunch clubs and the supper clubs and at the town meetings all across the broad land of America. Perhaps Mr. Cook will get out his scissors and paste up a new volume in the spring, THE TAXCUT STATE.

JUST AS THE Warfare State doesn't fight wars, and doesn't stimulate the economy, so the Taxcut State doesn't cut taxes, and doesn't stimulate the economy either.

And when the Taxcut State fails to "get America moving" any more than the Warfare State kept it moving, our bright, tough, articulate Frontiersmen will swiftly place the blame squarely outside themselves on General de Gaulle, who is rapidly replacing Castro as the bugaboo of pious minds.

Le B-r-r-r! It's Colder In French

By JOHN CROSBY

PARIS — I'm an old connoisseur of weather stories. "Blizzards Howl Across Great Plains." There's a headline you can get your teeth into. "Midwest Paralyzed by Arctic Blasts. No Relief In Sight." Nothing like a weather story because it has no politics, no religion, and it strikes at all ages.

I think the first newspaper story I ever read, as a wee tot, was a weather story — for a very simple reason: if it got cold enough in Wisconsin, they closed the schools. This didn't happen often. It had to get damned cold in Wisconsin before they closed the schools. We'd sit in our overcoats, declining Latin verbs in our shrill frozen voices, and believe me, there's nothing colder than a Latin verb in an overcoat. Ever since that's been my criterion for cold: until they close the schools it isn't really cold. Consequently when I read here that the schools were closed in Normandy, I knew we had a real winter on our hands.

THE FRENCH are pretty good at the weather story bit, too, and sometimes I think it sounds colder in French. "Un vent glacial a soufflé hiver sur Paris." Doesn't that sound cold? My favorite French weather word is gele. Everything has gele-é here. The Rhine has gele-é.

French has some wonderfully cold words. Verglas, for instance, which just sounds colder and more slippery than ice.

Le Verglas perturbe the life economic. La vie ralets in Paris because of the froid. The factories are abandonnees, the maisons aer inert. It says in the newspapers: "Ce froid glacial constitue une veritable catastrophe."

Somewhat weather always sounds worse in the newspapers than it does out the front window. There's nothing more satisfying than to read about someone else's lousy weather from a good safe distance. Here in Paris we've been reading about how the froider paralyse the Midwest. At the same time the Times reports: "Temperature fell so low in Switzerland that the hardy monks and trusty dogs of St. Bernard retreated to the valley from their Alpine monastery."

THAT'S a real weather sentence. It's got a famous place name like St. Bernard, a famous animal, humans — and it's far away. A great weather sentence is something like: "Temperature fell so low in the Pyrenees that the wolves are coming out of the forests and attacking the peasants in the villages."

That's got peasants, wolves, hunger — and it's a long way from Chicago. In the Pyrenees they like to read: "Blizzards paralyze Midwest, cutting rail lines and tying up shipping."

When I was in California, the newspapers revelled in headlines like: "Citrus Crop Threatened By Frost In Florida." Distance lends verisimilitude. Somehow weather up close never seems that bad. I've walked through many a city that is "paralyzed" by cold, or "lashed" by the winds of the hurricane, forced or battered by storms, and all the rest of it, and things never seemed all that bad.

I just got back from Switzerland where the weather was terribly picturesque in the newspapers. Avalanches. Record cold. Towns cut off. Villages paralyzed. Well, it was winter, all right. No doubt about that. Snow on the roofs. Cold.

WHILE in Gstaad I read with delicious appreciation about drooping bales of hay to feed the sheep in Britain. I'm sure the British were reading about the threat of avalanches in Switzerland. Other people's weather is more fun to read about. The U.S. Weather Bureau had to stick its big nose in our business and predict severe cold in Europe for the next 30 days. Now why predict stuff like that, U.S. Weather Bureau? Why'n't you mind your own business? Predict some record cold for Colorado or Maine and leave us alone. We got more weather than we know what to do with without having you ship us more.

Me, I like to read about the chutes de neige, the froids toujous rigoureux, the glace bloquee les rives, the vent glacial souffle sur les littoraux. My God, what a cold language French is!

The other day one of the French papers came out with a headline: "Brrr. . ." and the headline writer was promptly rebuked by a newspaperman on the Tribune Libre who wrote: "The newspaper people think that in reading 'it's cold' or 'cold decending on France' the public would not have the necessary maturity to think that the cold would have an effect on his physical well-being. On the other hand, 'Brrr. . .' requires him to shiver, to chatter his teeth. The reader is not supposed to have enough sense to make the relation between a headline and his body."

France Signs Trade Plan With Russia

MOSCOW (UPI) — France today signed a three-year trade agreement with the Soviet Union providing for an increase of the two nations, French diplomatic sources here said. The value of goods to be exchanged was estimated at between $1 and $1.2 billion. It was understood the Soviet would export coal and oil to France while the French would ship industrial equipment to the Soviet.

Disclosure of the agreement came three days after France had vetoed Britain's bid to enter the European Common Market.

It followed a spate of speculation in European capitals that French President Charles de Gaulle was stepping up a grand design plan envisaging a "Europe from the Atlantic to the Urals."

A French source said the agreement covered the years 1963, 1964 and 1965 and called for an increase of trade "in the two directions."

Trade talks between Paris and Moscow had been resumed here about a week ago following a Soviet insistence on enjoying the same trade benefits France granted to its fellow Common Market members.

The French refused to grant such concessions to the Russians, explaining that only the Common Market could make a decision on whether to offer such trade benefits to an outside party.

Diplomatic sources said the French and Soviet delegations in the past week had agreed to a compromise to get over the hurdle raised last June.

Latest available figures indicated that the volume of French-Soviet trade had not been large in recent years. In 1961, France imported goods valued at $80 million and exported to the Soviet Union goods valued at $84 million. These figures were slightly higher than those quoted for 1960.

France's exports to the Soviet Union represent less than 2 per cent of its total exports.

Hoffa Charges U.S. With Pressure Tactics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamster President James R. Hoffa repeated Friday his charge that government pressure is blocking his union from obtaining mandatory bonding but acknowledged he has no evidence to back up the claim.

A top aide to Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy swiftly followed Hoffa at a House Labor Committee hearing to deny under oath that the Justice Department had pressured insurance companies in any way to deny the surety bonds to Teamster officials.

Hoffa's concession that he had no personal knowledge of government pressure prompted Rep. Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.), to declare: "Frankly, I don't think you have come up here today with any evidence to substantiate your charges."

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., (D-N.J.), said Hoffa's testimony was "an incredible performance."

Hoffa insisted, however, that the Justice and Labor Departments were trying to put the Teamsters out of business by pressure tactics on the bonding companies.

The committee dispatched telegrams to about 240 bonding companies which Hoffa said were contacted asking them to give their reasons for refusing to cover the union.

Unless bonding is obtained by Feb. 8 as required by federal law, Teamster officials will be barred from writing checks, Hoffa said.

He cited a recent magazine article which recounted the union's troubles and its court battles with the Justice Department.

Hoffa contended the article gave the bonding firms a good clue as to Kennedy's position.

"I maintain that it is indirect pressure, even though I have no personal knowledge of it," the union leader told the House group. The hearing was arranged when Hoffa wrote the committee making his charges.

In denial Deputy Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach declared: "The Department of Justice has not sought in any way to impede the Teamsters Union from obtaining the required bonds."

Katzenbach said "perhaps" the bonding companies were concerned by the fact that about 20 members of the union have been convicted in various courts and others have "had trouble with the law."

Katzenbach said Walter Sheridan, aide to the Attorney General had denied contacting the President of a bonding company with which the Teamsters were negotiating. Hoffa, in a letter to the committee, said the company rejected the union's business after a visit from Sheridan.

Wirtz: Public May Demand Arbitration

CHICAGO (AP) — Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz forecast Friday night an aroused public will demand compulsory arbitration of labor disputes unless employers and unions soon devise ways for settling differences peacefully.

Wirtz said in a speech prepared for the National Association of Arbitrators that the nation has been experiencing a period of labor crisis comparable to the many walkouts following World War I, and sit-down strikes of the 1930's, and the coal-rail-steel strikes in the late 1940's.

The secretary cautioned both labor and management that they are seriously underestimating the strength of public feeling against national emergency strikes and the brinkmanship we have been playing in this field.

He said labor-management relations have reached a fork in the road.

"Neither the traditional collective bargaining procedures, nor the present labor dispute laws are working to the public's satisfaction, at least so far as major labor controversies are concerned," Wirtz said.

"It doesn't matter any more, really, how much the hurt has been real, or has been exaggerated. A decision is that if collective bargaining can't produce peaceable settlements of these controversies, the public will."

Wirtz called attention to a recent proposal by elder statesman Bernard Baruch for a labor court to resolve, by binding arbitration decision, labor disputes that threaten the national interest after all peaceful settlement efforts have failed. Compulsory arbitration plans are pending in Congress.

The secretary, discussing the Baruch plan in detail, said he did not like it and, avoiding offering any legislative alternatives in behalf of the administration, called for more creative and constructive bargaining and strike-prevention techniques by labor relations advisers.

Wirtz acknowledged, however, that in the present public mood one more major strike crisis will bring on a very real likelihood of enactment of a strike ban along the lines Baruch has proposed.

ABA Upholds Photographer Court Ban

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Board of Governors of the American Bar Association (ABA) Friday accepted a recommendation to retain the controversial ban on courtroom broadcasts and photographs.

A minority of the 1,600 delegates to the ABA midwinter convention voted a fight to try to break the "Canon 35" regulation barring all but "pen and pencil reporters" from trials.

In Washington, Leroy Collins, President of the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB) said the recommendation "reflects a shocking lack of confidence in the integrity and objectivity of the judiciary."

Collins proposed on behalf of the NAB and the Radio-Television News Directors Association a broad test of broadcast coverage at actual trials.

But the ABA's special study committee, which has been discussing Canon 35 since 1958, argued that photography in a courtroom makes "actors" of participants in a trial.

Canon 35 has been in effect since 1937 in all states except Texas and Colorado. There, judges may permit photography and broadcasting in courtrooms at their discretion.

The committee said interviews with jurists in the two states showed "many judges, lawyers and officials" opposed to cameras and microphones in court.

"The reason for public trial is to protect the accused against the ancient abuse of star chamber (secret) proceedings." The committee said.

Rule Change Puts Squeeze On Colleges

By RALPH MCGILL

College football's rule-makers have decided to make the game more costly and exclusive. They have reinstated, or almost so a free substitution rule. This means the return of two platoons, if not three. What might be called the two-and-a-half platoon system will grow out of the new regulations.

A simple bit of elementary arithmetic is all one needs to estimate the multiplying costs. Three platoons will call for a fat increase in athletic scholarships, a greater emphasis on recruiting, and proportionate increases to pay for equipment, travel, et cetera. We are talking about a half million dollars or more annually.

A REASONABLE hope of good weather is a necessity for a bowl success, and this serves to keep down the number. But there still is a vast area where the sun usually shines on Jan. 1, or thereabouts. New post-season classics are sure to appear as an answer to the advancing costs of providing scholarships and caring for three football platoons.

Even the accessories will become more costly. Most of the major teams now present two platoons of baton twirlers. Time was when one was enough. But now the half-time show has been caught up by the forces of inflation. They, too, have expanded into spectaculars that fill the field and eye.

We shall see some universities and colleges, most of them relatively small, give up the battle. These will, for the most part, come from the ranks of those who schedule a game or so each year with one of the major teams, extracting from it enough profit to keep them in business. Such games have provided the so-called soft Saturdays so dear to a number of the big-time outfits. With three platoons these outfits will hardly be able to afford the luxury of an afternoon when the game won't be as big as possible. Hence, we shall see the institutions located in the wilderness moving more and more of their games to city stadiums. "Rest" games will disappear. Two and a half platoons, bands and batons mean inflation.

Nowhere will responsibility fall more heavily than on recruiters. There are a few state universities, most of them in the South and West, that make no attempt to conceal the fact they operate football factories. They guarantee an output of hard-nosed knockers who are trained with all the precision of a light tank corps. Entrance requirements are, where a good prospect is concerned, largely nonexistent.

For the nonfactory institutions, there is a growing inclination on the part of faculties and administrators to establish and maintain respectable standards. Recruiters will need to find young men who can do the work and also play football. There are such men. They can shoulder the burden of physical exhaustion four days per week and a game on Saturday. They can absorb assignments which are many and intricate, testing the best of memories. But their tribe is not great nor does it increase.

COACHES AT nonfactory schools grow mournful each year as they see rivals open their arms to muscled, hard-nosed young men turned down by their own directors of admissions. One such coach at a technical institution last year counted 16 varsity players at such factories who had been refused admission to his squad. This can make a man very sad.

At any rate, inflation has returned to football. Since the advantage will continue to lie with the mass production assembly lines, the squeeze on standards will become intolerable, requiring either surrender or sanity.

AAU, NCAA War Flares Again In Dispute Over Dual Sanctions

MacArthur Plan Debated For 5 Hours

NEW YORK (AP) — The Amateur Athletic Union and the rival U.S. Track and Field Federation failed to reach an agreement Friday on the knotty question of dual sanctions, thus keeping alive the track and field war which Gen. Douglas MacArthur thought he had settled. Representatives of the two bodies debated this and other problems for close to five hours at the AAU midtown headquarters and came up empty-handed.

They issued the following terse statement:

"There are some differences of opinion regarding application of the MacArthur plan. We are working toward a prompt solution of these and hope that interested parties will be patient and give us time to obtain this solution."

Col. Don Hull, executive director of the AAU, said it had been agreed that the controversy should be pursued by mail.

Both sides acknowledged that they hoped it wouldn't be necessary to refer the dispute back to MacArthur, who was picked by President Kennedy to arbitrate the fight threatening to wreck U.S. Olympic teams.

However, indications were that the iron-fisted retired general might have to step in again.

Athletes still are being penalized and track and field meets are still being hurt by failure of the two big sports bodies to get together on what should control amateur track and field.

The AAU insists that MacArthur's four-point peace plan and the implementing agreement specified that the AAU should have sanctioning powers over all meets of an open nature while the USTFF should be a closed organization confining itself to athletes still in school.

The USTFF, on the other hand, contends that dual sanctioning was understood — if not actually spelled out — in the MacArthur plan. Under the plan the two warring groups agreed to end immediately suspension of all athletes not barred for personal reasons, make facilities and athletes open to all competitors and take all problems which can't be mutually agreed upon back to MacArthur.

"We believe we are living up to our part of the bargain," said Louis J. Fisher of High Point, N.C., president of the AAU. "We were amazed to learn that some athletes on the Pacific Coast were being held out of meets, but we hope this whole matter can be worked out peaceably."

William Russell of Inglewood, Calif., president of the USTFF, said also that he hoped the problems could be settled through correspondence and "without any inflammatory talk."

Hawk Gym Team Hosts MSU Today

By GARY SPURGEON Staff Writer

An unbeaten Michigan State gymnastics team offers a strong challenge to Iowa's Hawkeys today in the Field House.

The Spartans are 3-0 in dual meet competition this season and figure to give the Hawkeys a real tussle in the 1 p.m. event.

"The meet will be won by the team that doesn't goof," Coach Dick Holzappel contends. "It could go right down to the last event."

Today marks the third time in five meets that the Hawkeys have faced a national powerhouse. Iowa has a 2-2 record winning over Mankato State and Indiana. Losses went to top-rated Southern Illinois and Michigan.

Holzappel described the Spartans as a team that has depth in every event. "They are strongest in the high bar, parallel bars and still rings," he says. Michigan State is paced by Dale Cooper, national and Big Ten still rings champion. He scored 98 points out of a possible 100 in last year's conference meet.

Jerry George and Bob Beguelin are also considered top performers. George formerly placed fourth in the Big Ten side horse. Beguelin, a sophomore, placed second in the National AAU horizontal bar in 1961.

Holzappel says his squad is in top shape for the meet. He is depending on sophomore Glenn Gailis for another outstanding performance.

Gailis has scored 69 points — tops for the squad — while taking eight first places. He is unbeaten in the still rings and his battle with Cooper is shaping up as one of the season's best.

Ranking behind Gailis in scoring is George Hery. Hery has 52 points and has won six first places. He is undefeated on the trampoline.

Nicklaus Cards 67 To Lead Palm Springs Golf Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — National Open Champion Jack Nicklaus battered par and battled a desert sandstorm Friday in firing a 5-under-par 67 for a 54-hole score of 202 and a commanding lead of five strokes in the $50,000 Palm Springs Golf Classic.

The 23-year-old Nicklaus got in his best shots before a high wind blew up mid-afternoon, then managed to coast home on his last nine holes in even par.

Nicklaus played the Bermuda Dunes Country Club course, which has par of 36-36-72.

His nearest rival, with two more rounds to go in this 90-hole golfing marathon, was young Johnny Foltz, who had a 70 for 207.

Alone at 208 was another longshot who remained in contention, Bob Shave Jr., with a 72 for 208.

Nicklaus started the round with a one-stroke advantage over Shave and South Africa's Gary Player.

Player encountered the same burst of wind and sand, and for the first time in three days, his putter failed him. Player ended with a 73 and a tie at 209 with Al Geiberger, who shot a 68, and Gardner Dickinson who had a 70.

The defending tournament champion, Arnold Palmer, after making a challenge to get back into the picture with 2 strokes under par for his first nine, took a 38 on his final nine for a 71 and a total of 214.

One by one other erstwhile threats feel back. Tommy Aaron and Harold Kneee were in the 211 group. Australia's Bruce Crampton soared to a 75 for 213.

Iowa, with an offensive average of 68 points, could score 30 points above its average and still fall at the hands of Loyola of Chicago in the game at Chicago tonight, which begins about 8:30 p.m.

Undefeated Loyola, the second-ranked team in the nation, has passed the 100-point mark nine times this season. Thursday night the Ramblers handed Washington of St. Louis a 118-58 pasting and earlier in the season the highest scoring team in the country defeated Western Michigan, 123-102. Loyola sports a 98 point offensive average.

The Hawkeys, back in action after a two-week layoff for finals, will be out to lengthen their three-game winning streak which includes victories over Wisconsin, Ohio State and Michigan State.

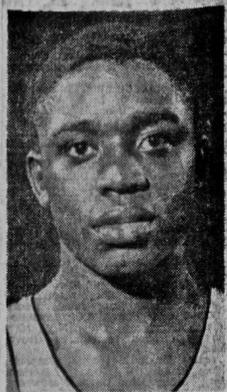

Iowa Coach Sharm Scheuerman says the regular lineup will probably start: Dave Roach and Fred Riddle at forward; Jerry Messick at center and Captain Joe Reddington and Jimmy Rodgers at guards. Andy Hankins, whose scoring was instrumental in Iowa's last three wins, is regarded as a top "six man" on the team.

Scheuerman regards the Loyola team as one of the best offensive rebounding teams he has seen. The Ramblers rank fifth in the nation in percentage of rebounds recovered, 57.3.

Known as a one-on-one club, Loyola is good at working any offense. With their outstanding rebounding, the Ramblers developed a very effective fast break which the Hawks will have to stop if they intend to stay in the ballgame.

The Iowa game plan is to avoid being forced into Loyola's running game and to retain the poise and steady offense which has proved the answer in Big Ten play.

Loyola Coach George Ireland has five of the "starting six" from last year's squad returning. All five averaged in double figures as the Ramblers posted a 23-4 season record and finished third in the National Invitational Tournament.

The Ramblers are led by Captain Jerry Harkness, a 6-2 forward from the Bronx, N.Y. Harkness, named to several All-American teams last season, has rewritten the Loyola record book. Harkness averaged 21 points a game last season.

Two junior rebounding giants from Nashville, Tenn., present one of the strongest rebounding combinations in the nation. Vic Rouse, 6-8, was the third highest scorer last season with a 14-point average, and 6-7 center Leslie Hunter took fourth place in the 1962 scoring race, averaging 13 points a game.

Two other juniors team up in the back court. Playmaker Jack Egan, 5-10, returns at his starting guard post. A sparkplug in the Rambler pressing defense, Egan scored an average of 13.7 points a game last season.

At the other guard spot is Roy Miller, who moved up to a starting position this year after winning the Most Valuable Utility Man trophy last year. Miller averaged 21 points in 1962 NIT Tournament.

Stanley Predicts House Will Pass Shaff Plan

State Rep. David Stanley (R-Muscatine) told a Republican Workshop meeting here Friday that "The Shaff reappointment plan will not solve the problem of unfair representation, but it is a big step forward."

Stanley predicted that the Iowa House of Representatives will approve the Shaff plan by about a 3-to-1 majority, next week. The Iowa Senate approved it Tuesday.

"The Legislature has a duty to pass this reappointment plan again and let the people of Iowa vote on it," Stanley said. "Any change in the Shaff plan would mean two more years of delay on reappointment. The people deserve action, not more delay."

STANLEY

Stanley said the Shaff plan will make the Iowa Senate much better and make the House of Representatives a little worse. This is a net gain.

"The greatest fault of the Shaff plan is the 99-member House of Representatives, one from each county. This house will be controlled by too small a minority, and eventually it will have to be changed. But this minority rule is about the same as in the present House of Representatives."

"However, the Shaff plan will put the Iowa Senate on a honest population basis," he said. "It will make our Senate the most representative legislative body in the United States. The people will control the more powerful house of the Legislature."

Stanley suggested, "The Shaff plan isn't as good as its sponsors claim, and it isn't as bad as its opponents claim. Let's accept it as the first step and then work for a better plan."

"There is no chance that the Legislature would pass a better plan," Stanley said. "It is difficult for any Legislature to reapportion itself, and I am thankful the Shaff plan is as good as it is. Iowa still needs a constitutional convention to do this job right."

Committee Decisions Reviewed

Worried about exam grades? Perhaps your worries are justified! Five hundred four people, or 11 per cent of the student population were placed on probation following last spring's exam. Seven per cent of SUI's students dropped out during the 1961-62 year. Only 19 students were allowed to carry excess hours.

These and other facts were included in the minutes of the December meetings of various committees within the College of Liberal Arts.

Some 64 students graduated in absentia last spring and 146 carried correspondence courses.

During its meeting, the Educational Policy Committee decided, after considerable debate, against giving credit for exemption examinations in either core or language courses. Entering students may continue to be awarded advanced placement and/or credit on the basis of their performance in appropriate examinations. The maximum credit to be gained is 32 semester hours.

"No credit shall be given the student for examinations which duplicate courses taken by him in college and for which credit has been recorded."

The Committee also approved a major in special education and assented to continuing discussions and negotiations about the junior year abroad.

Traffic Accidents Reach I.C. High

The number of traffic accidents in Iowa City in January set a record for the city.

The 149 accidents recorded broke the previous record of 135 accidents set in November, 1959.

Nineteen persons were injured and one person was killed in traffic accidents during the month.

Aerial Artist Swings to West Berlin

BERLIN (UPI) — An East German circus tightrope walker, using all his skill and daring, swung hand over hand for 100 yards on a 110,000-volt power line spanning the border to escape to the West, West Berlin police disclosed Friday.

Horst Klein, 36, said that while inching along the high tension lines high above the frozen ground "I heard the hum of electricity — I believe I could feel it tingling through my body."

Klein, a veteran of high wire acts in 18 countries, had no audience for the greatest performance of his life. It took place in the darkness of the night of Dec. 27. West Berlin officials kept the flight secret for more than a month because they believed the Communists did not know of the escape route.

The aerial artists' skill got him across the border, but even he could not hold out against the 12-degree cold. No longer able to grip the cable after reaching West Berlin, he fell to the ground.

Klein said he found his overhead escape route by accident. Frustrated by East German restrictions on his circus travel, he said, he went to the border hoping to crawl through the barbed wire, but found it too heavily guarded. Then he stumbled into the base of a steel mast carrying the power cables across the border.

Paper Strike Nearer End After Talks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner resumed marathon negotiations Friday in the 56-day-old New York City newspaper strike after reporting Thursday that the talks had led to settlement of several issues.

It was assumed the mayor had turned his attention to "two critical issues" which he said remained unresolved between the striking printers and publishers of nine daily newspapers.

It was reported by sources close to the strike that the issues were basic wages and the length of the work week. Although Wagner cautioned that "The parties still are a long way from settling," he added, "the issues in dispute have been narrowed and defined." He said "several issues have been settled."

Before meeting today with sub-committees for Local 6 of the International Typographical Union and the Newspaper Publishers Association of New York City, Wagner told newsmen, "I'm not giving up. I never have. I'm going to keep at it until we get a settlement."

The sources said Thursday's "tentative" agreements were in connection with the use of automatic tape for typesetting equipment, common expiration dates for union contracts, and "bogus" — the practice of setting type for advertising layouts which have already been printed in mats.

The sources pointed out that the agreements reached were "conditional" in that they were dependent on settlement of those issues still in dispute.

Because the remaining two roadblocks to settlement involve financial issues, and because the tape and bogus clauses affect operational costs of putting out a newspaper, the tentative settlements still could become "unstuck," the sources indicated.

The two sides in the dispute were last reported separated by $24.23. The last reported offer of the publishers was for a $10 package per man per week spread over a two-year contract. At that time, the printers sought $34.23 for the same period.

The strike began Dec. 8 when the printers struck four of the newspapers. Another four newspapers shut down immediately afterward and the ninth cut off its New York City circulation.

Some 17,000 of the papers' 19,074 employees have been idled by the strike, longest and costliest in the city's newspaper history.

Stalingrad Battle Celebrated; Stalin Gets No Mention

VOLGOGRAD (Formerly Stalingrad) U.S.S.R. (AP) — The marshals and generals who won the battle of Stalingrad publicly celebrated the 20th anniversary of their victory Friday night — without mentioning the late Joseph Stalin.

Assembled in the city which bore Stalin's name until Nov. 6, 1961, the heroes of Stalingrad gave credit to those responsible for one of history's significant military victories.

They praised the part played by Soviet Premier Khrushchev, the soldiers and commanders of the Soviet army and the Russian people. Speakers included Marshal Vassily I. Chuikov, who directed some of the toughest fighting; Gen. Alexander Rodimtsev, wearing two medals of Hero of the Soviet Union, and Marshal Andrei A. Yeremenko. With tears in his eyes, Yeremenko said that Friday marked his 50th year in the Soviet and Russian army.

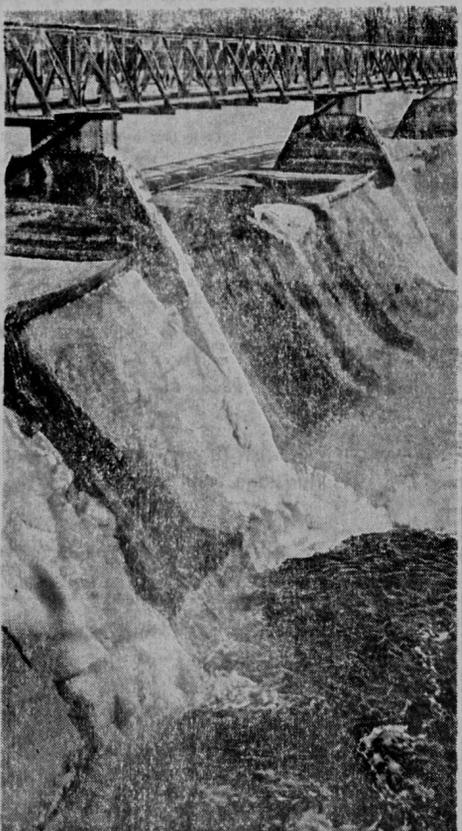

Twenty years ago, the words of Stalin were on the lips of everyone here. Then he was credited with winning the battle of Stalingrad twice, once in the civil war and once in 1943. Early in the day many wreaths were laid on a monument to the fallen warriors of Stalingrad. It is one of the few spots in Volgograd which still bears the name of Stalingrad.

Ejection Capsule Hurled From Sled at 806 MPH

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — An unmanned escape capsule designed to protect pilots in ejections from supersonic aircraft was hurled from a rocket sled at a speed of 806 miles an hour Friday in a successful ground test of the device.

The Air Force said the test was the sixth in a series of such sled ejection experiments at this desert research center. A final test, slated tentatively for Feb. 19, will eject the "nose escape capsule" at a planned speed of 1,000 miles an hour.

Built by Lockheed California Co., the capsule — 23 1/2 feet long and 4 feet wide — is intended to provide safe emergency escape from a standstill to speeds of up to Mach 4 (four times the speed of sound), and from sea level to an altitude of 100,000 feet.

It also eliminates the need for the usual cumbersome protective gear required in conventional pilot ejections. The device would guard a pilot against high "G" forces, crushing atmospheric pressure and freezing cold during ejection, and would serve as an emergency shelter on land or water.

The experiments are a joint research project of the Air Force flight test center here and the aeronautical systems division at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, both under the Air Force system command.

$500,000 in 42 Years; Embezzler, 65, Nabbed

From Combined Leased Wires SELMA, Ala. — A 65-year-old bank cashier who recently passed up retirement was charged Friday with embezzling nearly a half million dollars over the past 42 years.

The suspect, Hugh Edward Campbell, was tripped up on a mis-routed phone call.

Authorities said Campbell handled funds that were deposited with the Selma National Bank by other banks, and when one of these banks called to complain that a certain deposit hadn't been credited it "just happened" that the complaining party did not get to talk with Campbell.

Authorities quoted Campbell as saying he "spent all the money," but no one in this little agricultural town of 32,000 could figure out where.

Campbell lived modestly in a one-story white frame house about 12 blocks from the bank. He had worked at the Selma National Bank since 1920.

Edwin Tully, Special Agent in charge of the FBI Office in Mobile, said Campbell was charged with taking $427,000. He said the figure "may be revised, but I seriously doubt if it will be revised downward."

The agent said the money was apparently taken at a rate of $1,000 a month for years.

Tully said Campbell had an elaborate system worked out that was hard to detect. He said it would take a complete investigation of the records before the full story could be learned.

Campbell was arraigned Friday before a U.S. Commissioner and held under $75,000 bond. Officials said he will be transferred to Mobile where he will be prosecuted in Southern District Federal Court.

Bank President Roger Jones called the situation "unbelievable," but added that the shortage "is completely covered by insurance — there will be no loss to the depositors or stockholders."

Jones refused to discuss the manner in which the funds were taken, but Agent Tully explained that Selma National had approximately 24 correspondent banks that regularly deposited money by check.

He said Campbell allegedly covered his cash withdrawals from the Selma bank with checks from the correspondent banks.

Tully said Campbell accomplished this by delaying crediting the deposits by the banks until the banks sent in another check to cover the previous deposit.

The FBI agent described Campbell as apparently living a very conservative life.

Pact Reached In Philadelphia Transit Strike

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A new agreement to end the 18-day transit strike that has affected one million commuters in Philadelphia was reached here Friday by negotiators under the guidance of Gov. William W. Scranton.

The agreement raised hope of ending a mammoth headache which has plagued the nation's fourth largest city with makeshift transportation, traffic jams, business losses and hardships in snow and cold for nearly three weeks. The walkout deprived riders of bus, trolley and subway-elevated service.

The new pact must now be ratified by 5,600 members of Local 234, Transport Workers Union (TWU) AFL-CIO, and the executive committee of the strike-bound Philadelphia Transportation Co. (PTC).

A previous accord, calling for a 33-cent hourly wage package over two years, was accepted by the union but rejected by the PTC as too expensive one week ago.

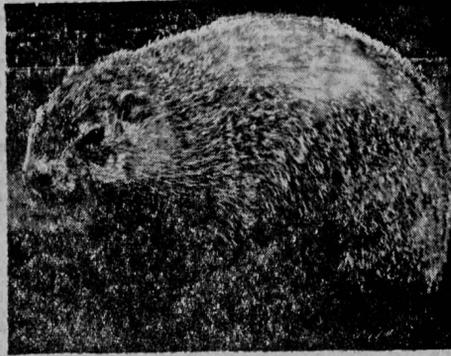

The union will vote on acceptance of the tentative contract at a mass meeting in Philadelphia this morning. The PTC board already has approved the accord.

Announcement of the agreement was made at the State Capitol by Scranton, who invited negotiators here last Tuesday and guided them during protracted negotiations.

Scranton said that if the accord is ratified the PTC will resume transit service this afternoon, with full schedules by Monday.

Federal mediator William Rose said the tentative contract is for two years with a 10-cent-an-hour wage boost immediately and another on the anniversary date. It retains the no-layoff clause from the old contract, which expired Jan. 14 and touched off the walkout.

Douglas M. Pratt, president of National City Lines, parent of PTC, said the agreement, if ratified, would cost the company $1.7 million a year.

Trapped by Tradition—

He Risks Frost-Bitten Nose

This ground-hog's apparently optimistic attitude toward the weather may change when he sticks his head out today in the time-honored tradition of ground-hog-forecasters. Friday's highs in the thirties may lure him into a lunge out of his hole — which could result in a frostbitten weather-predicting nose, since temperatures were expected to dip to zero today.

According to tradition, the ground-hog would have to keep to his decision to stay above ground. For a cloudy day is forecast today, which means he won't be able to see his shadow. And if he can't see his shadow, he has to abide by the rules of the game and come out of hibernation for the year — even if the weatherman has played tricks on him.

If the sun happens to peep out when his nose does, though, the folk tale says he can go back to sleep to wait out six more weeks of winter — which is probably what everyone would like to do.

Bulk of Powell Estate Left to Widow, Children

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Dick Powell left the bulk of an estate of more than $1 million to wife June Allyson and their two children, according to a will admitted to probate Friday in superior court.

The will was dated Oct. 9, 1958. Exact value of the estate was not given but the executor said it was worth more than $1 million.

Powell, who died Jan. 2 at the age of 58 after a career of singer, actor and producer, also left adopted son Norman S. Powell, 25, and daughter Mrs. Ellen Powell Hayward, 23, 3,000 shares each in the Four Star Television firm he founded.

France May Seek Air Naval Bases In Canary Islands

PARIS (UPI) — France may seek air and naval bases in the Spanish-owned Canary Islands, reliable French sources said Friday.

The possibility is likely to be discussed by France's Chief of the Defense Staff, Gen. Charles Ailleret, in talks with Spanish defense chiefs in Madrid next week, the sources said.

As a result of Moroccan and Algerian independence, France soon will have no bases between metropolitan France territory and Dakar.

French sources pointed out that the Canary Islands could provide an important base roughly halfway between France and Dakar on the westernmost tip of Africa.

Britain Rejects Philippine Bid On N. Borneo

LONDON (UPI) — Britain Friday rejected the Philippine claim to sovereignty over North Borneo, one of the three British dependencies on the island where new troubles from Indonesian-backed rebels appeared to be brewing.

The official Indonesian Antara News Agency reported from Jakarta that two divisions of "volunteers" were poised in Indonesia's West Borneo awaiting a go-ahead to join the rebels in British Borneo.

Britain recently bolstered its military forces on the island and has maintained an alert of a 2,000-man brigade of the strategic reserve here for possibly emergency transfer to the Far East.

A battalion of paratroopers began moving from Britain to the Far East Friday to take part in what Defense Minister Peter Thorneycroft told Commons last week was a previously-scheduled exercise in Malaya.

Indonesia holds the southern two-thirds of the island across the South China Sea from Singapore. There were allegations — denied by Jakarta — that Indonesians trained and armed rebels in the recent abortive uprising in the British protectorate of Brunei and the crown colonies of North Borneo and Sarawak.

City To Resume Study Of Proposed Ordinance

Subdivision developers, their attorneys and engineers are scheduled to resume an informal conference with city councilmen on the proposed new subdivision ordinance at 9 a.m. today.

Councilmen are hearing questions and objections raised by the developers to the new ordinance; still in a rough draft stage. Further discussions are anticipated before the measure is introduced formally in the council.
