THIS MORNING

ON CAMPUS—

THE IOWA gymnasts meet Minnesota today at 1:30. At 2:30, Iowa vs Michigan in wrestling and at 7:30 the Hawks go against Northwestern in basketball. All events are in the Field House.

THE UNIVERSITY Theatre production of "Threepenny Opera" will be given today at 2.

A CONFERENCE discussing communication skill will be held today in the Pentacrest Room of the Iowa Memorial Union.

IN THE CITY—

Police are now making use of radar to try to curb the increase in speeding offenses which is taking place, according to Police Chief Emmett Evans.

Iowa City police had picked up 20 speeders by 9 p.m. Friday, an unusually high number for one day, they reported.

Evans said the speeding was particularly evident on South Riverside Drive and on North Dodge Street near Horace Mann school.

IN THE STATE—

SIOUX CITY — The dispute which idled Swift & Co. meat packing plant here Tuesday was settled Friday afternoon.

No details of the settlement were announced, but plant officials said operation would be resumed March 6.

IN THE NATION—

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI) — A private plane crashed at sea Friday within sight of the luxury liner Queen Elizabeth, but the big vessel was unable to locate any survivors.

The crash occurred about 235 miles south of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

A sailor standing watch on the stern of the passenger ship reported the single-engine plane dipped out of the skies about 7:10 a.m. EST and pancaked into the ocean, according to Coast Guard reports.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert used erroneous figures to justify the award of a $5.8 billion fighter plane contract to General Dynamics Corp., Senate hearings disclosed Friday.

Transcripts of closed testimony taken Thursday by the Senate investigating subcommittee attributed four mistakes to Zuckert on the controversial contract award for the TFX plane.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A revolutionary missile warhead designed to confuse enemy defensive measures was hauled more than 5,000 miles by an Atlas rocket Friday.

Also scheduled for testing are nose cones capable of maneuvering in space to avoid countermeasures or to change targets; new protective materials to better withstand re-entry heat, and warhead decoys to baffle defense radar.

IN THE WORLD—

MOSCOW — Premier Khrushchev invited the rest of the world Friday to imitate Finland and live peacefully with the Soviet Union.

The proposal was made during an exchange of toasts at a reception in the Kremlin for Finnish Premier Ahti Karjalainen.

BONN, Germany (UPI) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer won Upper House approval of his friendship treaty with France after promising it would end four centuries of bitter conflict and would not harm Germany's ties to the United States and NATO. Final approval of the treaty is expected early this summer.

GENEVA (UPI) — Experts from seven Eastern and Western countries met in Geneva to draft an international treaty aimed at preventing the cold war from spreading to space. The two-day meeting was convened in Geneva by the Inter-Parliamentary Union, a 74-year-old body which acts as a guardian of parliamentary procedure.

PARIS (UPI) — More than 200,000 miners in France's nationalized pits went on strike to press for an 11 per cent wage increase. The Government warned it would "requisition" the miners if the strike lasted more than 48 hours.

NEW DELHI, India — Fourteen people of five nations set out Friday on a 4,000-mile peace march to carry Mohandas K. Gandhi's teachings of nonviolence to Peking, capital of nonviolence to Peking, teaching of nonviolence to Peking, sacred verses chanted by admirers and angry shouts of detractors sent them on their way.

The group is made up of seven Indians including two women, two Americans, two Britons, two Japanese and an Australian.

Mississippi Shooting Sparks Voter Sign-up Pledge

GREENWOOD, Miss., (UPI) — The shooting of a 20-year-old civil rights worker sparked a vow by the South's integration leaders Friday to sign up every qualified Negro voter in Leflore County.

The intention was announced in telegrams to Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett.

Meanwhile, the victim of Thursday night's shooting, Jimmy Travis, was reported in satisfactory condition at a Jackson hospital. He has a bullet lodged near his spine.

Another of the bullets, reportedly fired by three white men from a passing car, ripped through Travis' shoulder, but the shoulder wound was not believed to be serious.

Wiley A. Branton, director of the voter education project, wired the attorney general from Atlanta saying that conditions as they now exist in Mississippi no longer can be tolerated.

The Justice Department said Friday night that it was entering the case. "The investigation already has begun," a Justice Department spokesman said.

Branton said, "We are announcing a concentrated, saturation campaign to register every qualified Negro of Leflore County."

Branton's telegram continued: "The campaign will begin immediately. You must anticipate that this campaign will be met by violence and other harassment. We are notifying you in advance so that you can provide at once the necessary federal protection to prevent violence and other forms of intimidation against registration workers and applicants. We shall keep you regularly informed."

Bob Moses of Greenville, Miss., field representative for the integrationist, said the shooting occurred Thursday night as he, Travis and Randolph Blackwell, both of Atlanta, were leaving Greenwood in a car. Moses and Blackwell were not hit by the hail of bullets.

Moses said the shots came from a 1962 car occupied by three white men wearing sunglasses. The attack car bore no license plates.

"They shot into the car as they passed. Jimmy shouted he had been hit and the car went out of control," Moses reported.

Leflore County Sheriff John Cochran was reported to have later taken Travis' rented car into custody as part of his investigation.

Moses said there were at least seven bullet holes in the left front door of the vehicle and two windows were smashed. Moses said the attack car had been seen earlier in the day.

After Travis, Moses and Blackwell left the office about 1:30 p.m. Thursday, the car circled the block twice and then left in the direction Travis had taken, another SNCC worker, Sam Block, reported.

Moses said the car carrying the white men followed them about seven miles out of town, passed them as they stopped for gasoline at a truck stop on U.S. 82 and then fired at them when they resumed traveling.

There were no outside witnesses to the shooting.

The shooting prompted other integrationist groups to issue angry statements and a call for federal protection for Mississippi civil rights workers.

David Dennis, a field worker for the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) said the group had wired Atty. Gen. Kennedy asking for "immediate action by the federal government to provide protection for Mississippi Negro citizens who attempt to register to vote and for civil rights workers who attempt to teach and insure democratic civil rights workers to attempt to teach and insure democratic freedom to these people."

A similar telegram was sent to Gov. Barnett, requesting state action against similar incidents.

The Mississippi NAACP people issued a statement saying, "... the pathway to freedom by Negroes in America is crimson with spilled blood of the martyr, the bleached bones of Negro Americans, an epic statue to the freedom movement."

"The shooting of Jimmy Travis in Greenwood is just another incident to blacken the freedom movement..."

Flu Epidemic Skirts SUI, But Danger Hasn't Passed

Students can have one less worry now, at least as far as Asian flu is concerned.

According to Chester Miller, head of Student Health, the current cases of Asian flu confirmed by Student Health have not and probably will not become an epidemic.

Miller said Friday that an epidemic of Asian flu begins slowly, but the number of cases reported daily increases rapidly.

At SUI, however, although a few cases have been reported each day at Student Health, the number of new cases has remained fairly constant since the virus was first reported here about 10 days ago.

If the flu is going to become an epidemic, Miller said, it usually takes only two weeks to reach its peak.

Miller described the symptoms of Asian flu as being mainly those of a head cold, including sore throat, cough, general aches, fever and chills.

The best thing for students to do who realize they have the flu, said Miller, is to "recognize that they have something which they can give to others and stay out of circulation."

Students should stay in their rooms and get plenty of rest for 3 to 5 days, or until the fever leaves. Miller explained it was not necessary to see a doctor unless the symptoms persist.

There are no special precautions which a student can take to avoid the flu, other than ordinary precautions which are taken to avoid a cold. These precautions include eating and sleeping regularly.

Miller warned that those students who take flu shots now will not be protected from the disease. It takes between 2 to 4 weeks for the flu shots to cause immunity, he said.

Miller added, however, if a student has had the shots before, another shot now might act as a booster and prevent the student from getting the flu.

ROBERT F. KENNEDY

RFK in 1968? 'No!' He Says

With a plaintive plea that his answer be believed, Robert F. Kennedy said Friday he does not plan to run for President in 1968. "Emphatically not," he said. Political observers aren't sure his words will be taken seriously. "I'm out of politics," he said before he was named Attorney General.

House Plans Bill to Extend Draft to '67

WASHINGTON — Congress went to work Friday on a proposed four-year extension of the draft with a committee chairman's pledge to listen politely to people who oppose it, then seek swift approval of the measure.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee said the draft bill: "Every single provision is an essential part of our national defense program."

Vinson said he hopes the committee won't have to spend too long on the bill.

China Renews Attack On Russian Peace Talk

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China, pressing its "hard line" attack on Kremlin policies, Friday accused Soviet Premier Khrushchev and other "self-styled Leninists" of talking "drivel on the question of war and peace."

The Peking Communists, spurning recent Soviet peace overtures, sarcastically charged that Khrushchev and his fellow critics of China's tough Communism consider themselves to be the sole "reincarnations of Lenin."

The Chinese quoted Lenin, the father of Soviet Communism, in a renewed effort to convince the Kremlin that war is inevitable unless Communism is established throughout the world.

Friday's broadcast ostensibly was directed at Italian Communist Party Chief Palmiro Togliatti. But in fact it was China's strongest condemnation to date of Khrushchev's policies.

The article, quoting statements by Chinese Party Leader Mao Tse-tung and Lenin, immediately launched into a defense of China's contention that wars are inevitable as long as capitalism thrives.

It said there can be no peaceful coexistence between the Communist and capitalist worlds, as Khrushchev had contended, and attacked Togliatti for suggesting that the Communist bloc follow a policy of peaceful coexistence with Italy.

"Does this sort of peace and peaceful coexistence imply that the U.S. imperialists will voluntarily lay down their arms and disband their troops?" the Peking statement asked.

"And if this is impossible between the oppressors and the oppressed in Italy, by a logical extension of this point, how can a world without war be created in this way?"

"Today, however, some self-styled Leninists talk drivel on the question of war and peace without the least inclination to pause and consider how Lenin studied the question of war or to consider any of his scientific conclusions on the subject," the Peking article declared.

"Nevertheless, they vociferously accuse others of betraying Lenin and claim they alone are the reincarnations of Lenin."

The article — the most detailed defense ever made of the Peking position in the dispute with Moscow — said Lenin had written that "social-democracy" condemned war as a "bestial means of settling conflicts in human society."

"But social-democracy," it added, "knows that so long as society is divided into classes, so long as there is exploitation of man by man, wars are inevitable."

Cuba Trains Latins In New Subversion

"I'm not really familiar with the problem — you see, I never went to college."

Gross Cries 'Coverup' To CIA Disclosures

Combined Wire Services

WASHINGTON — CIA Director John A. McCone said in testimony released Friday that more than 1,500 people from Latin American countries have been brought to Cuba for training in subversion, sabotage and guerrilla warfare. He said more still are going.

The nation's intelligence director says a dangerous, widespread, highly organized Communist subversion apparatus is being built around Latin Americans trained in Cuba.

Cuban Exiles Ask Backing

MIAMI (UPI) — A group of Bay of Pigs invaders, seeking unity among badly split Cuban exiles, sought U.S. backing Friday for a government in exile based in this country and dedicated to overthrow Fidel Castro.

The plan in effect calls on the Kennedy Administration to drop its opposition to establishment of a formal Cuban exile government on U.S. soil.

It also flatly challenges the leadership of the main exile group, the Administration-supported Cuban Revolutionary Council.

Felipe Rivero and a group of fellow Brigade members representing the Cuban Nationalist Association explained their plan today to Harvey Summ, deputy to the state department Cuban affairs coordinator here, John H. Crimmins.

Nuclear Ban Talks Ended

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union Friday reached agreement in principle on turning to other disarmament issues because of the deadlock in the nuclear test ban talks.

U.S. Chief Delegate William C. Foster said of the nuclear deadlock: "We want to negotiate. Unfortunately, we have found that thus far the Soviet Union does not."

Foster met with Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin for almost two hours to plan the future work of the 17-nation disarmament conference.

At the end of the talks, their second meeting in 10 days, a U.S. spokesman said they had reached an "understanding." The interpretation was that the Soviets have accepted an American proposal to shift the talks to the field of general disarmament.

Pope John Given Balzan Peace Prize

ZURICH, Switzerland — The Swiss-Italian Balzan Foundation, with the warm approval of Soviet Premier Khrushchev, awarded its first peace prize Friday to Pope John XXIII. It is worth $51,000.

The foundation, modeled after the Swedish Nobel Prize Foundation, awarded another $51,000 prize to retired Rear Adm. Samuel Eliot Morison of Boston, U.S. Navy historian of World War II, for his 15-volume Naval history.

Pope John was cited for what the foundation called his unceasing efforts for peace, brotherhood and understanding among peoples and religions of the world.

Council of Churches Backs School Prayer Decision

DENVER, Colo. (UPI) — The National Council of Churches' division of Christian education Friday proposed a policy statement supporting the Supreme Court's school prayer decision, but suggested that school boards should determine whether "a brief devotional period with prayer to God" be part of school programs.

The five-page statement was submitted to the policy-making general board of the National Council at the close of its winter meeting. It will be considered at the board's next meeting, in New York June 6-7.

"We endorse the ruling of the Supreme Court of the United States in the regents' prayer case that 'in this country it is no part of the business of government to compose official prayers' for the people," the statement says. "But whether school programs should include a brief devotional period with prayer to God may be left to the judgment of the board responsible for the program of the public schools of the local community."

The statement also supports "the right of religious groups to establish and maintain schools at their own expense provided they meet prescribed educational standards," adding: "The parent who chooses to send his children to a non-public school is not excused from the responsibility of the citizen to support and seek to improve the public schools."

Although the statement says neither church nor state should use public schools "to compel acceptance of any creed or conformity to any specific religious practice," it notes that "information about religion is an essential part of many school subjects. . . . No person is truly educated for life in the modern world who is not aware of the vital part played by religion in the shaping of our history and culture."

In presenting the statement, the division of education said it was approved unanimously by its administrative board in St. Louis Feb. 14.

The conclusion of the meeting of the general board was witnessed by 16 orthodox and protestant clergymen from the Soviet Union who were invited to attend as observers.

Do Something!

"Do something, even if it's wrong," goes an old Army witticism; and pessimistic as it may be, it aptly applies to traffic congestion in Iowa City. The latest proposal for the traffic problem here — as with all proposals in the past — has met with a storm of criticism; but even the criticism is an encouraging sign that Iowa City is doing some serious thinking about the problem.

The proposal, recommended by City Manager Carsten Leikvold and approved by the City Council, would have the immediate effect of reducing the amount of downtown parking spaces by 42. Downtown merchants object to the cut because they think it may take customers away from their stores. They draw convincing analogies of other cities whose downtown businesses are empty because of a lack of parking space.

The most practical attitude on the situation seems to be the one taken by Mayor Fred Doderer, who contends that it's high time factional disputes be laid aside and a more healthy "Let's do something" position be endorsed by all sides. This seems to be the reason for both Doderer's and Leikvold's desire to get the present proposal underway.

That position is, we think, laudable. On the other hand, there is much to be gained from criticism of the type that was leveled against the plan by the merchants. The Chamber of Commerce will probably form a committee from among the downtown merchants to discuss the proposal with the City Council, and the Council may be able to get a better idea of the problems which could result from the proposal.

Most obvious of the problems is the loss of parking spaces. Others include the problem of Dubuque Street stores getting truck deliveries, if parking is abolished there; and the obvious impossibility of parallel parking on the Washington Street hill — especially during a winter snow.

But, as Doderer says, the proposal is not an iron-clad rule which must be followed detail-by-detail.

The healthiest of the merchants' suggestions was that the City hire professionals to study the traffic and parking problems and recommend a long-range, and if necessary, radical plan to meet the needs today and the greater problem imminent.

The traffic and parking problems are already acute. Argument as to which should receive higher priority — an argument which split Leikvold and the merchants — is self-defeating. They both hurt Iowa City. They should be dealt with simultaneously.

Perhaps the city can afford to reduce parking spaces temporarily in an effort to reduce congestion; but before long it must deal with a projected enrollment of 19,000 at SUI by 1970 as well as the natural growth of the city's permanent population. Providing parking space and a smooth traffic flow for those numbers will require a detailed study, one which the city should start now.

Back-Alley Politics And Irresponsible Propaganda

It is nothing short of tragic that the country is being deluged with irresponsible propaganda designed to destroy confidence in United States foreign policy, particularly with respect to Cuba. If the Cuban problem can be solved at all it can be solved only with patience, steady nerves and a policy based coldly on facts as they are. But opponents seem bent on frustrating the formulation of a sane policy, and if they keep it up they can cause untold harm.

The Republican Congressional Committee Newsletter (last week) says last fall's Cuban crisis "may have resulted in a bigger victory for the Soviets than had previously been suspected." It was, of course, a clear and violent defeat for the Soviets. The publication implies the United States is backing down on keeping Turkish and Italian missile bases active "in line with Russian insistence." This is without foundation; the bases are obsolete and will be replaced with roving Polaris submarines.

There are others engaged in this sorry business, including two or three Democrats with special axes to grind, but the House Republicans are in it officially. The purpose of the congressional committee is to elect Republicans. Does the committee intend to continue playing this kind of disreputable back-alley politics? If so, we face a new era of McCarthyism, and possibly worse. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch

'Threepenny Opera Review'

Everything but the Bite, The Snake, and the Essence

'Gross Misinterpretation' Of the Kurt Weill Score

Much like the plump girl who in her attempt at beautification has tried everything but weight reducing, University Theatre's "The Threepenny Opera" similarly found itself up against a wall for failing to deal with the most essential fact of its existence. It simply overlooked the fact that its story, so masterfully set down in 1928 by Bertolt Brecht, is a biting, scathing satire of present day society.

With a promise of Brechtian theatrics, director John Terfloth would have done better to listen to some of Brecht's lyrics if he wanted a sincere rendering of the work. For even in its English adaptation by Marc Blitzstein, the very essence of the play is found nowhere more clearly than in the array of songs and songs and sentimental cad. Alas, nothing more.

Point number two: Take the women in Macheath's life — the simple Polly Peachum, the bawdy Jenny, the dejected Lucy. Here they were in all their finery but totally out of character; Polly had become a shrew, Lucy a simpering wench and Jenny, drained of all her earthiness, had become a troubled girl, ill at ease in brotchel life. And yet, ironically, and in complete dissonance to their new-found actions, Polly still prayed to the Virgin when Macheath took leave, Lucy still told in the Barbara-Song, the story of her seduction, and Jenny still held her dreams and her philosophy.

THE PRESENTATION of the musical numbers, however, leads to point number three: "The Threepenny Opera" on view currently fails to emphasize satire while satisfying itself with a reliance on low humor. The lack of real bitter humor, leading here quite frequently to long periods of near boredom, gives us a key to that bit of necessity so distinctly missing in this rendition.

Woe also to the memory of Kurt Weill's music, that ingenious liaison between classical tradition and the honky-tonk ragtime of the twenties. Gone was the bite of the banjo, strumming laughingly at the world of beggars and harlots in 1890 Soho. Gone was the patter, the shuffle, the brushing on the drums, the occasional gaudiness and the bittersweet strains of mock longing so characteristic of this work. Instead there was muddle and confusion. Indeed the music, in the hands of Herald Stark, left us with the feeling that "The Threepenny Opera" was merely musical comedy. And to think this is the grossest misinterpretation of the Weill score imaginable.

THE PERFORMERS, though, were hardly to blame. They did their best and, at times, really achieved an understanding of this avant-garde musical piece. As Polly Peachum's mother, Nancy Cole was nothing short of sublime — in Brechtian terms — and her role was handled deftly. She was not, despite her fellow cast members, afraid to combine lyrical and spoken qualities in the singing of her songs. (The songs are, in fact, soliloquies demanding heightened emotional expression.) Her interpretation of the "Ballad of Sexual Dependency" was certainly one of the highlights of the evening.

Richard Thomsen as her husband, J. J. Peachum, king of the London beggars, also came to grips with the lines he was singing and his "Morning Anthem" and "Instead of Song" (with Mrs. Peachum) cracked with stinging wit. Without doubt, though, "The World is Mean" — a sort of raison d'etre of the play — sung by the Peachum family en masse musically, as well as satirically, peaked the entire performance.

A GREAT DEAL could and should be said about the role of Macheath, performed by Newell Tarrant. Here, perhaps, came the most disappointing aspect of the production. Under all his phoniness — diamond stud, ivory tipped cane, top hat and yellow kid gloves — there really beat the heart of a Macheath. His philosophy was right, too: the bulging pocket makes the easy life. But what was wrong was that Mr. Tarrant was inhibited, seemingly by the director, and was therefore reduced to a mild mannered man who may occasionally have had evil thoughts. We truly doubt that this Macheath raped, killed and swindled as many people as his ballad suggests.

Here again we are faced with the production's inconsistencies. Mr. Tarrant acted well; his rendition of the Brecht-Weill melodies appeared accurate. And yet he was tame, the venom removed from his veins and replaced with melodramatic tendencies at which the play intended rarely to laugh.

Of Jenny, Macheath's old flame, suffice it to say that Marjorie Maxwell too rarely had moments of character insight. The only exception we could find was in her offering of the "Solomon Song." While speaking of Jenny, we would mention that her costume, in addition to that of all the women, failed to achieve any appearance of whorishness or poverty. Rather than prostitutes the women in the brotchel appeared as comfortable in their garish clothes as little girls parading about in their grandmothers' old fashioned gowns.

KAY ARNOLD'S PORTRAIT of Polly Peachum was not much more than a bag of inconsistencies and one was never to sure (we wonder if Miss Arnold was of what Polly's reactions would be. This, too, we viewed as directorial difficulty.

Lucy Brown, played by Susan Channer, was supposedly the daughter of police commissioner (played with professional ease by John Faust) Tiger Brown; we don't believe that the audience was ever informed of this. Nor do we even believe that Miss Channer's total interpretation was in the least believable.

This leaves only Howard Hensel's fine image of the street-singer who, when he opened the show with his famous ballad, almost convinced us that what we were about to see was really to be a minor masterpiece. As he began, it seems that circumstance won't have it so.

On Other Campuses

By JOHN KLEIN Exchange Editor

By JOHN KLEIN Exchange Editor

Student-edited publications on three campuses have recently come under disciplinary action from disgruntled University officials and student leaders.

The administration at Queens College, New York City, has placed the entire editorial board of the campus paper, The Phoenix, on probation following the printing of what College officials termed an obscene editorial, reports the Harvard Crimson.

A College spokesman told the libelous to be read over the telephone. The College president said the editorial "violated the regulations of Queens College . . . as well as the canons of good taste."

According to a report in the student paper at Columbia University (New York City) the Queens paper condemned the House Un-American Activities Committee.

The editorial, according to the Columbia Spectator, called HUAC an "admission that we are afraid to be men, that we are fearful of flaws in our conception and timorous of recognizing mistakes we have made. . ."

Any member of the Queens paper who discusses the incident publicly may be suspended from the municipal college reported the Spectator.

The Student Publication Committee at Purdue University, which is responsible for Purdue student publications, last week demanded the resignation of the five-member staff of the campus humor magazine, the River.

Faculty members said the action was made necessary by the editors' poor news judgement.

A junior, commenting about the forced resignations, said: "The last River issue definitely did not typify what is considered to be genuine college humor-implication and inference rather than distasteful and embarrassing fact. I support the committee's action as the only possible alternative."

The University of Oregon daily, The Oregon Emerald jumped into a fraternity hazing problem there in January and the reverberations are still occurring.

The editor of the Emerald found himself under heavy criticism from both the fraternities and from the student government there when the paper implied that fraternities at Oregon were hazing pledges.

Fraternity representatives decried "irresponsible headlines" as an example of poor journalism, but proclaimed the worst of fense of the year to be the implication of widespread hazing.

The fraternity system, disgusted though it was, did not call for the resignation of the editor. The student senate did.

Replied the editor: "I am not going to resign. Student opinion seems to be behind us. . ."

A guest speaker at this year's symposium at the University of Minnesota was concluding a speech on ethics in international relations.

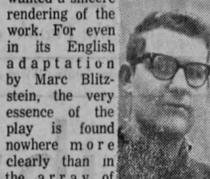

Dr. Nicholas Nyaradi brought his talk to an end and immediately asked the student crowd in Minnesota's vast, (5,000-plus capacity) Auditorium to offer a silent prayer instead of the customary applause.

Nyaradi bowed his head, asking the student to pray for the "crazy misguided students" who demonstrated against Kennedy's Cuban action and for the "all-too-son-of-forgotten heroes" of the Hungarian revolution.

Several members of the audience clapped briefly to show their approval of his request, and then they were silent — the whole auditorium was in a prayerful silence — except for one dissenter. He kept clapping.

For a few brief moments the only sound to be heard in the auditorium was the persistent clapping. Then another student arose and yelled angrily for the noise-maker to shut up. The student sat down. The clapping continued.

He rose again, loudly requesting that the clapping stop. The clapping ceased and the excitement faded into prayerful silence. Myaradi then raised his bowed head. "Amen" he added.

DOUGLAS RINTELL, a graduate student from New York, is currently working on two degrees, an M.F.A. from the Writers' Workshop and a Ph.D. in Comparative Literature. He received a B.A. in journalism from Hunter College in New York City.

Informing his wife of the name of their daughter's husband, Mr. Peachment exclaims, "It's Macheath!" Mr. Peachment is played by Richard Thomsen, G. Charles City and Nancy Cole, Iowa City, plays his wife. Kay Arnold, A1, Des Moines, plays their daughter.

Campus Notes

On Cue

Iowa City's Youth orchestra will be featured today on two segments of Cue, radio station WSUI's Saturday morning show. Mrs. Shirley Mullins, the orchestra's director, will be interviewed and the all-string orchestra will play two selections from its recital Feb. 21.

Dance Tonight

The year's last post-basketball-game dance will be held in the River Room of the Union beginning at 8:45 tonight. The free dance is sponsored by Union Board.

Recital Tonight

A recital will be presented by the SUI Department of Music tonight at 8 in South Rehearsal Hall. The program will feature Guy A. Hargrave Jr., tenor, G. Iowa City and James D. Kohn, piano, G. Villa Park, Ill. They will be assisted by Wendell P. Whalum, G. Iowa City, organ, Donald Munsell, G. Iowa City, bassoon; De-Ann Fromme, G. Iowa City, violin; and Patricia Addis, cello. Selections will include "Cantata No. 160," by J. S. Bach and "Dich-terliebe," by Schumann.

Lost But Found

Owners of articles which have been found on University property prior to Jan. 1, 1963, must identify and claim them at the New Information Desk of the Union by Mar. 9. Articles unclaimed by then will be sold by Union Board. Proceeds will be contributed to Project AID and the unsold articles will be donated to the Student Association on Racial Equality.

Jamming Sunday

The Union Board is sponsoring a jazz jam session in the River Room of the Union Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. Listeners are welcome.

Movie Sunday

Mickey Rooney, Grace Kelly and William Holden star in the Union Board movie, "Bridges of Toko-ri." Sunday at 7 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium.

Home Ec Supper

Magsig Recital

James Magsig, G. Ovid, Mich., will present a piano recital Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in North Rehearsal Hall. The recital is in partial fulfillment for a master of arts degree. He will play works of Haydn, Schubert, Chopin and Franck.

Junior Girls

Junior girls with a 2.75 grade point average or above are asked to check the list in the Office of Student Affairs to make sure their names are on it.

The list will be used in voting for Mortar Board members. It will remain posted through Wednesday.

Young Demos

SUI Young Democrats will hold their annual elections Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol. Members of the club who are interested in applying for summer internship jobs in Washington may pick up applications after the election.

Judge Judges

"Judge the Judges" will be the audience-participating program shown by the University Camera Club at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Pentacrest Room of the Iowa Memorial Union. Members are asked to bring two of their own show scenes, either prints or slides, for evaluation. Interested camera fans are welcome to attend.

Orientated

Three recent SUI graduates have finished in the upper 10 per cent of their basic officer orientation courses. All were Distinguished Military Graduates of the Army ROTC program here.

First Lt. John C. Cortesio Jr. was designated an Honor Graduate of the Judge Advocate Generals Course conducted at the University of Virginia. Lt. Cortesio received his law degree in June of 1962.

Second Lt. Richard J. Sundberg graduated number one of 58 and Second Lt. Robert P. Guenther number 10 of 58 in the Chemical Officer Orientation Course at Fort McClellan, Alabama. Lt. Sundberg received his degree in Chemistry with Highest Distinction in June 1958 and Lt. Guenther graduated in Mechanical Engineering with High Distinction in June 1960.

'Tugboat Annie'

The spring speech and dramatic art film series will open Tuesday at 8:05 p.m. in Shambaugh Auditorium with the movie "Tugboat Annie." The 1933 film stars Marie Dressler, Wallace Berry, Robert Young, and Maurine O'Sullivan. The story tells of Annie's struggle against capitalists and strong men to retain her right to navigate.

Other films to be shown this spring include "David Harum," "Pow Wow," "Abbott and Costello in Hollywood," "The Loves of Franistan," "The Clown," and "All at Sea."

Old Gold Singers Rehearse

The Old Gold Singers are practicing one hour every day in preparation for the Project AID concert they will present Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Main Lounge of the Union. The group of non-music majors is directed by Kenyard Smith, G. Missouli.

Despite Post's Move—

8 N.Y. Papers Close Ranks

PUBLISHERS said it was "unwise" and that it might prolong the strike by stiffening the union's position.

Mrs. Dorothy Schiff, Post Publisher, announced late Thursday that she had resigned from the Publishers' Association of New York City and would resume publication Monday under an agreement with strike leader Bertram A. Powers, president of Local 6 of the International Typographical Union (ITU).

Powers said he thought the Post's resumption of publication would "speed up settlement of the strike." Elmer Brown, international president of the ITU, said however that he did not think the Post's decision would make much difference.

"I don't believe it changes anything," he said. The Post was one of five papers that ceased operations in New York City when the printers went on strike Dec. 8 against four others — the Times, News, Journal-American and World-Telegram & Sun.

Powers repeatedly has offered to allow printers to return to work at the five papers under terms of the old contract until the strike is settled. Besides the Post, the non-striking papers are the Mirror, Herald Tribune, Long Island Star-Journal and Long Island Press.

U.S. Composer To Visit Here

Gunter Schuller, American composer who received two national creative arts awards in 1960, will visit the SUI campus March 18-23 as guest composer.

Awarded both the National Institute of Arts and Letters Awards and Brandeis University's Creative Arts Award for his outstanding contributions to music, Schuller will be the eighth distinguished composer since 1956 to visit the campus in a series sponsored by the SUI Department of Music.

During his stay at SUI, Schuller will work primarily with composition students, discussing and criticizing their works. He will speak to music students March 19 and a concert of his music will be presented in Iowa Memorial Union at 8 p.m. March 20 by the SUI Symphony Orchestra.

Guest composers who have visited SUI in the series sponsored by the Music Department are William Schuman (1956), Samuel Barber (1957), Aaron Copland (1958), Wallingford Riegger (1959), Roger Goebl (1960), Darius Milhaud (1961) and Halsey Stevens, who was here last May.

Contribution Will Net A Shoe Shine

Students wishing to have their shoes shined can at the same time contribute to the Project AID scholarship fund Sunday afternoon in the Union.

Eight SUI coeds will shine shoes from 4 to 6 p.m. in the lobby outside the Gold Feather Room. Charge is 25 cents per pair.

The students are Jody Perkins, A1, Rock Island, Ill.; Donna Lukes, A1, Waterloo; Judy Sprague, A1, Mason City; Gayle Sullivan, A1, Arlington Heights, Ill.; Sherry Florer, A1, Des Moines; Sue Anne Orr, A1, Park Forest, Ill.; Lisa Devoe, A1, Cedar Rapids and Judy Bonnett, A1, Fairfield.

The shoeshine plan, sponsored by the Student Senate Project AID Commission, has earned $92.50 in men's housing units. This is the last phase of the shoeshine project.

Communication skill will be discussed at a conference to be held today in the Pentacrest Room of the Iowa Memorial Union. The conference is the second of four dealing with supervisory development.

Supervisory Talks Slated

The four conferences are designed for supervisors who recognize the need for continuing development. Other conferences will be held March 16 and March 30. They will cover training skill and work simplification.

The series is sponsored by the SUI College of Business Administration, College of Engineering, Department of Industrial and Management Engineering, the Iowa Center for Continuation Study and the Department of Public Instruction, Division of Vocational Education.

The conference will include sessions on the process and problems of communications, communication: the spoken word, communication: the written word and communication: the art of listening. A workshop is scheduled for the end of the conference.

Registrants will be given the opportunity to actively participate, raise questions and discuss problems of common interest. A certificate of completion will be awarded to those who attend all four sessions.

Registration is $15 per person or $50 for all sessions. The registration fee includes tuition, luncheon and all materials.

Color Film Set At 2:30 Sunday

"Secrets of the Underwater World," a color film of the Red Sea and other locales, will be shown at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in Macbride Auditorium.

Paul Cherney, Technical Adviser of the Undersea Research Institute at Cannes, France, will give an illustrative lecture on the underwater world.

This is one of the 16 such programs in the Mountaineers Color Adventure Film-Lectures series, which started in October and will last until April.

The film shows in a special torpedo-like device with a tight beam photographing marine creatures — fish, sea anemones, sea cucumbers and coral glowing in many hues.

This date is said to be unacceptable to publishers because it could mean a strike just a few days before a presidential election.

A Communist (BB) Bardot? —That's What Reds Want

BERLIN (UPI) — Wanted: A Communist Brigitte Bardot. Like the real thing, she must be pretty, young and shapely. But in addition, she must "reflect the socialist way of life."

Also, it will help if she is familiar with the doctrines of East German Communist Leader Walter Ulbricht and the ideas of scientific socialism.

A call for an East German version of the French film star was sounded Friday by an East German script writer in Sonntag, a weekly cultural newspaper. Screen writer Hans Olliva Hagen said the Soviet Zone film industry "needs a star who attracts audiences like Bardot."

"If we had a Bardot who reflected the socialist way of life of our people, and all youth associated itself with her I would be very happy," he said.

In the first place it is necessary to adopt the motor of Chief of State Ulbricht — "To think is the first duty of a citizen."

Another duty is to follow the Communist Party's command and "occupy oneself with the ideas of scientific socialism."

With this background the East German Bardot will have all she needs. It will not be necessary for her to have opinions on everything that comes up.

"The Party tells me what I have to know," said Hagen. Getting a girl as pretty as Bardot could be a problem for the East Germans. Visitors to East Germany always are struck by the scarcity of beauties, compared to West Germany.

Many pretty girls have fled to the West. For example, Marlene Schmidt, Miss Universe of 1961, was a refugee in 1960.

Stevenson Pugh, defense correspondent of the Daily Mail, made the remark in describing his visit with a group of British newsmen Thursday to the Polaris submarine Ethan Allen.

Pugh said he had been told during the visit the message which could send the Ethan Allen's 16 nuclear-armed missiles hurtling 1,800 miles to their targets would be one of a constant stream of "familygrams" monitored by U.S. submarines at sea.

The messages include such news as births, deaths and marriages among the families of sailors. It "could sound something like a congratulatory message on the birth of a sailor's baby," he said.

Pugh said the wording of the "war message" would have to coincide exactly with the wording of a special message from Kennedy which is locked in a safe aboard the ship.

The captain and two other officers then would verify whether the "familygram" was authentic and the ship would begin its 15-minute count-down procedure.

Pugh and the other journalists made a two-hour cruise aboard the Ethan Allen from its base at Holy Loch, Scotland.

Alderman Found Slain In Chicago Intrigue

CHICAGO (UPI) — Swarms of undercover investigators Friday hunted enemies of slain Ald. Benjamin F. Lewis in a maze of power politics and intrigue over planned business venture that might have stepped on the toes of suburban gangsters.

Detectives searching for more immediate clues questioned two women who believed they heard the shots that killed the slim, dapper Negro Democratic "comer" and another woman who said she saw a man walking in an alley through which Lewis' assassin apparently fled.

Police Supt. Orlando W. Wilson's "new-look" department faced what shaped up as its biggest test since the former University of California Crime School dean came here three years ago today to reform a force shaken by a cops-turned-robbers scandal.

Mayor Richard J. Daley, cognizant of the fact that former State Atty. Benjamin Adamowski already was making an issue of the Lewis killing in the battle for the Mayor's election next month, offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to the apprehension and conviction of the killer.

Daley made the offer on behalf of the city at a news conference, he said he knew nothing of reports that Lewis had made enemies of the racketeers that prey on Chicago's Negroes with the nickel and dime "policy" game.

The mayor also said he had no information on reports — being checked out by Wilson's detectives — that suburban Cicero underworld leaders had been angered by Lewis' efforts with business colleagues to launch a new savings and loan association.

Police said the Cicero "mob" has been infiltrating legitimate loan businesses and presumably would fight any intrusion by a new firm. Lewis, a wealthy real estate operator, had joined 11 other persons in filing application with the State Department of Financial Institutions for permission to form the Mid-Town Savings Association. Contribution Will Net A Shoe Shine

Students wishing to have their shoes shined can at the same time contribute to the Project AID scholarship fund Sunday afternoon in the Union.

Eight SUI coeds will shine shoes from 4 to 6 p.m. in the lobby outside the Gold Feather Room. Charge is 25 cents per pair.

The students are Jody Perkins, A1, Rock Island, Ill.; Donna Lukes, A1, Waterloo; Judy Sprague, A1, Mason City; Gayle Sullivan, A1, Arlington Heights, Ill.; Sherry Florer, A1, Des Moines; Sue Anne Orr, A1, Park Forest, Ill.; Lisa Devoe, A1, Cedar Rapids and Judy Bonnett, A1, Fairfield.

The shoeshine plan, sponsored by the Student Senate Project AID Commission, has earned $92.50 in men's housing units. This is the last phase of the shoeshine project.

Reformatory Parolee Admits Fatal Stabbing

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — A slim, young reformatory parolee Friday confessed stabbing and bludgeoning a pretty 15-year-old baby sitter to death as she begged God for help.

Ronald LeRoy Steeves, 19, said Mary Louise Bell, pleaded, "Dear God, please help me" just before she died in a wooded Lovers Lane area near famed Minnehaha Falls early Thursday.

The girl, described by a former teacher as "lovely," was lured from a baby sitting job by Steeves a few hours after she attended Ash Wednesday church services.

Steeves first claimed the girl was killed by an 18-year-old friend of his. He changed his story and confessed Friday after detectives took him to the scene of the slaying. Police Chief Walling said.

Walling said Steeves made an oral statement that he coaxed Mary from the second-story apartment where she was baby-sitting and drove her to the scene of the slaying in Minnehaha Park.

The chief said Steeves showed detectives a spot in a creek bed where he said he stabbed Mary several times. Officers had found blood spots in the snow there.

Steeves said that after stabbing the girl he decided to take her to a doctor but couldn't help her up an embankment to return to the car. He said he helped her along a creek bed until he found a less-steep pathway.

The girl fell, he told detectives, and "I knew I was going to Stillwater (state prison) anyway so I thought I would finish her off."

Police said Steeves told them he had been dating Mary's sister, Patricia, 16, a high school student, but the girls' parents wanted Patricia to stay away from him.

Steeves said Mary had threatened to tell her parents that he and Patricia still were seeing each other and he wanted to talk with Mary about it.

Earlier Steeves had maintained that an 18-year-old youth had killed Mary Louise.

He also told questioners that a 17-year-old youth and a 16-year-old girl had gone to the park with them but did not witness the slaying. The 17-year-old named by Steeves surrendered to police and was questioned before Steeves finally broke down and admitted the killing.

The 17-year-old youth surrendered to police Friday morning. He told police he had been with Steeves early Wednesday night but not when Steeves took Mary Louise to the park. Police said Steeves then confirmed the youth's story.

Steeves first denied he was at the scene of the killing but admitted it after police proved that his shoes matched footprints in the snow where the body was found. Steeves also had blood smears on his shirt.

Iowa Teams To Close Home Seasons Today

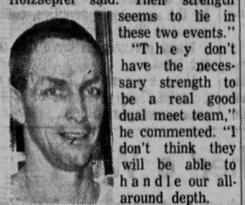

Gym Team Faces Gophers; Prepare for Big Ten Meet

By GARY SPURGEON
Staff Writer

Iowa's gymnasts will be after their eighth victory of the dual meet season at 1:30 p.m. when they take on Minnesota.

The meet, being held in the North Gym of the Field House, will be the Hawkeyes final tune-up before the Big Ten meet March 8-9 at East Lansing, Mich.

"They have Larry Gleason, a fine all-around man, and Tom Arneson, a side horse specialist," Holzaepfel said. Their strength seems to lie in these two events.

HOLZAEPFEL The Hawkeyes, who will be after six straight victories, are all in good condition for the meet, Holzaepfel said. The Gophers have a 3-3 Big Ten record and sport two fine gymnasts. Iowa Coach Dick Holzaepfel said, however, that the Gophers appear to have a lack of depth.

Glenn Gallis, who has been bothered by a finger that he dislocated two weeks ago, has been working on all apparatus, the coach said. "The finger has improved quite a lot in the last week," Holzaepfel said. "Of course I don't really know what kind of shape it is in because Gallis is the kind of guy who hides the pain."

Holzaepfel said he expected Gallis to compete in all events. He said he might be held out of the high bar because the event tends to aggravate finger injuries.

Sports Shorts Of All Sorts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sports of all sorts:

No news continues to be good news for the lowly New York Hockey Rangers and the pro basketball Knicks. During the local newspaper blackout, the Knicks are up more than 20 per cent in attendance and the Rangers boomed nearly 18 per cent.

One box-office expert analyzes: "These teams are losers but the public isn't reminded of it in the papers day after day and there's less ticket-buying resistance than might be expected."

Same, he says, goes for certain Broadway shows but the really good theatrical attractions are moaning about lack of newspaper exposure.

Fencing Tryouts

Want to try out for a varsity sport at Iowa? Now's your chance. Coach Jim White of the Iowa fencing team has set out a request for interested freshman and sophomores to report to the fencing loft on March 4 at 3:30 p.m. for tryouts. The loft is located in the top floor of the field house, southwest corner.

The 1963 Hawkeye fencers failed to win a dual meet and were handicapped by a small number of candidates. At one time, the squad had only eight fencers and entered two meets with a handicap of three points because of lack of the necessary ninth contestant.

Coach White points out that some of Iowa's rivals this season picked teams from squads of 30-40.

The Iowa fencers are currently competing in Big Ten Championships at East Lansing, Mich.

Illini Battles Wolves OS Plays Purdue

Co-leader Illinois is on the spot in more ways than one as the Big Ten basketball race heads into its final stages.

The Illini, tied with defending champion Ohio State for first at 9-2, obviously have a tougher assignment at Michigan (6-5) than the Buckeyes, unbeaten in 47 straight home games and host to last-place Purdue (1-11).

Saturday's round of conference (5-6) at Michigan State (3-8) in a regional TV matinee, Northwestern (4-7) at Iowa (5-6) and Indiana (7-4) at Minnesota (7-5).

Player-of-the-Year Heyman Wants To Play Pro Ball

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke's All-America Art Heyman, whose hot temper and flying fists once almost ended his basketball career, said Friday: "I have grown up. I have learned to become humble."

Heyman, chosen collegiate basketball Player of the Year by The Associated Press, wants to play pro ball at least two years and then study law.

"I consider it a great honor—one that I truly appreciate," Heyman said when informed of his selection as Player of the Year. Then, he added modestly, "I owe a lot to my coaches and teammates."

The 6-5 senior of Rockville Centre, N.Y., regarded as one of the best pro prospects in years, led second-ranked Duke to a 14-0 record during the Atlantic Coast Conference regular season.

"I've grown up a lot in the last four years," the 205-pound star said. "When I came to Duke I was a brash, hot-tempered 17-year-old. I had been offered over 100 scholarships and felt a little big. The publicity build-up didn't help."

During his sophomore year his temper — and fists — plagued him at times.

With their eyes fixed on a first division berth, coach Sharm Scheuerman's Iowa basketballers seek to make Northwestern Big Ten victim number six. The Hawks will battle the Wildcats tonight at 7:30 on the Iowa Field House court, in the last home contest of the year.

Hawkeye seniors seeing their last home action will be Captain Joe Reddington, Jerry Messick, Dick Shaw and Tom Purcell.

The Wildcats will be aching for revenge after 66-65 double overtime loss at Evanston on Dave Roach's basket. Leading the Northwestern attack has been flashy Rick Lopoosa, an effective 6-3 forward. Lopoosa, an effective 6-3 forward per game, just a shade ahead of Richie Falk, the nifty guard. Falk and Lopoosa spearheaded the attack which kept Iowa in the hole nearly all of the game at Evanston. Falk netted 23 points and Lopoosa, 19.

The Cat's have had a tough luck season, six of their eight conference losses coming by five points or less. Coach Bill Rohr's team has notched four wins, the latest one 71-66 over Minnesota, knocking the Gophers out of the Big Ten race.

Last Monday, the stalling offense employed by Rohr threw a scare into Ohio State before the Bucks finally pulled it out, 50-45.

The Hawks will be attempting to stop their losing string at three. After hitting at better than a 40 per cent clip for the past two games, Scheuerman hopes that his men have found their shooting eyes. On the other hand, Iowa has fallen to near the bottom on Big Ten rebounding after two subpar performances under the boards on the road.

Iowa must win in the next two games against competitors for the first division. Northwestern still has an outside chance to end up in the first five and will be battling to clear hurdle number one. Iowa must face up-and-down Wisconsin on Monday at Madison and will be fighting to stay ahead of the Badgers.

An interesting statistic about the two teams playing Saturday night is that with their ball control offenses, the teams ranked 9th and 10th in the league in scoring, with the Hawks resting in last place with a 68.8 points per game average.

Wisconsin will be performing for the TV audiences for the third time this year on Saturday. The Badgers will be meeting Michigan State, a team that has had trouble getting going. The Badgers, last time out nudged Indiana out of the title picture 102-96 at Madison. On the Scheuerman home court, the Wisconsin men are very tough, having handed Illinois one of the Illini's two losses 84-77 at Wisconsin Field House.

Top performer for coach Johnny Erickson's crew lately has been Ken Siebel, a smooth working forward, equally strong from outside and inside.

Jack Brens, 6-8 pivotman, is the leading scorer over the season with a 17-8 average, slightly ahead of Seibel's 17.6 mark. Hawkeye fans however, will remember the hero of the Iowa win at Iowa City. Tarzan Tom Gwyn, the second top Badger rebounder will be in the starting lineup again. Gwyn is remembered for his swinging act on the Wisconsin basket during the waning moments of the 65-56 Hawkeye win.

Another fine performer in recent games has been Dave Gramms, a top outside shot. Pat Richter, an end on the football team and a basketball regular in the past, has seen only limited action for the Badgers this year.

After the weekend action, the Hawks will have only one more game, the big Saturday encounter with Illinois in the new $8 million all-sports arena at Champaign.

New Orleans Record 67 For Rosburg

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Bob Rosburg found the tricky winds at Lakewood Country Club anything but troublesome Friday and fired a record 67 for the first-round lead in the $40,000 Greater New Orleans Open.

Finishing at noon with his 5-under-par 36-31, the pudgy Rosburg — who grips a club like a baseball bat — kept in the lead even though the breezes slackened and other players were able to conquer par.

Another veteran, Bo Winger, the defending champion, shot a 36-32-68 for second place while young Dave Marr finished third with a 33-36-69.

Gary Player, the little South African, carded a 70 for the best score among the golf world's Big Three — Arnold Palmer, Jackie Nicklaus and Player.

Palmer and Nicklaus, playing in the same threesome, found the going rougher and turned in 74s.

"Anybody who shoots a 75 or under on this course is playing magnificent golf," said Player after his round. "It's about as difficult a course as I've ever played."

16-Foot Vaults Boost Track; Fans Speak

NEW YORK (UPI) — No doubt about it — track crowds at Madison Square Garden are wild about those high-flying fiberglass pole vaulters.

Only the purists are beefing. "It's no longer a sport," said one. "It's show biz."

But sport or show business, pole vaulting has rocketed in public esteem. And the man on the street — whose habitat is some 16 feet below the altitude peopled by the vaulting mob — already is firing in suggestion for "improving" this intriguing event.

E. A. of Queens Village, N.Y., a former Manhattan College star, writes:

"This should be converted into a two-man team event. While one man hangs onto the pole for dear life, his teammate bends the pole as far as he can and, when a starting pistol is fired, he lets fly with both pole and man. This won't increase the overall expenses any because the pole bender can be a weight thrower who failed to reach the shot put final or even a friend of the family."

Writes R.C. of Chicago: "Instead of a landing pit, why not install a trampoline on the far side of the crossbar? Any vaulter who clears the bar, then must hit the trampoline and bounce back over the bar from the opposite direction to make it an official vault."

J.O.S. of Kansas City wires: "I have just developed a fiberglass pole with runs like a fireman's ladder. Even novices are guaranteed a 20-foot vault after a 10-minute demonstration."

Others feel it's a shame that so many vaulters are going so high in the air and don't really DO anything while they're up there.

"They should be judged on points like high divers," writes Mrs. Geraldine T. of East Horse Blanket, Wyo. "Any man who does 16-3 and on the way down executes a double twisting forward 1 1/2 somersault pike should be declared the winner over a vaulter who just goes up and comes down."

There is also a growing concern over safety factors, particularly since one guy dropped out of the rafters during a meet last year and missed the pit entirely, landing on the running track where the boys were all out for the 600.

Parachutes and oxygen masks have been urged but we feel this is impractical.

Coach Dave McCuskey sends his Iowa wrestling team on the mat today at 2:30 p.m. in the Field House for the last time this season in dual competition against last year's runner-up in the Big Ten, Michigan.

"This will probably be the best meet of the season," said McCuskey, "and should be real close." Winner of this dual can claim to the Big Ten dual meet championship, though there is no trophy involved.

The Hawkeyes have compiled an 8-3 dual meet record, with 8-1 in conference action. The two non-conference losses came at the hands of Oklahoma and Oklahoma State, while Michigan State took a 14-11 win for the only conference loss of the year.

The Wolverines are unbeaten in the conference with seven straight wins, including a 19-9 pasting of Michigan State last week. They opened the season losing to Penn State 14-11, and haven't been beaten since. The Wolverines knocked off eastern power Pittsburgh 14-13, then started on the conference trail.

Michigan has outscored their conference foes 21.2 to 7.5, while Iowa has 18.2 to 8.7. The meet will probably be one of the most closely fought affairs to be held in the field house in recent years.

According to Michigan coach Cliff Keen, the Wolverines are "a young team that's come a long way without any stars." He added, "We've got some depth and we're still experimenting to place the boys where they'll do the most good."

The top matches of the meet will probably pit Michigan's Dave Dozeman, Gary Wilcox, and Chris Stowell against Iowa's three all-Americans, Norman Parker, Tom Huff, and Steve Combs. Parker, unbeaten in 11 matches, and leading point maker on the Iowa team will go against Dozeman, 10-8. Dozeman holds a 10-2 win over Michigan State's Okla Johnson, and is one of the most improved grapplers on the Wolverine roster.

Wilcox, unbeaten in just three matches, will go against Huff, Tom has an 8-1 dual record, but missed the Indiana and Purdue meets last week because of a virus infection. Keen said, "Wilcox hasn't met anyone nearly as good as Huff. That'll be a real test."

Combs, 10-1, will face Stowell in the 167-pound match. Stowell has a good 8-3 mark, some of them at 177.

Other top grapplers on the Wolverine squad are Rick Bay, 13-2, with most of his bouts coming in the 167-pound division; and heavy-weight Jack Barden, 7-1-1.

With this being the last meet of the year, and the two teams rated as top contenders for the Big Ten title next week at Northwestern, a large turnout is expected by McCuskey.

Sports Briefs

CORTINA, Italy (AP) — Young Don McPherson of Canada turned in a brilliant free skating exhibition and won the men's singles title Friday night in the World Figure Skating Championships.

McPherson, 17, was fourth in a field of 19 after the six compulsory school figures, but leaped to the title with his outstanding free skating performance in cold, clear weather at the outdoor Olympic Ice Stadium.

He succeeds countryman Don Jackson, who turned professional after winning the 1962 title in Prague.

DUBUQUE (AP) — Iowa Wesleyan with Jeff Trickett getting 20 points, won its fourth basketball game of the season against 18 losses by edging Dubuque 64-55 Friday night in Iowa Conference competition. They were tied 30-30 at the half. Haynes Harbaugh and Fred Van Iden each got 14 points for Dubuque, which now has a 6-11 conference record and is 7-15 overall.

NEW YORK (AP) — Kenny Lane risks his slim chance for a lightweight title fight when he takes on ambitious Vicente Derado of Argentina in a television fight at Madison Square Garden tonight.

The top-ranked contender from Muskegon, Mich., Lane has been spurned by champion Carlos Ortiz in favor of lesser-ranked lightweight but he still hopes to get the New Yorker in a title scrap STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma State won both ends of a wrestling doubleheader Friday, defeating Western State of Colorado, 22-5, in the opener and disposing of State College of Iowa, 24-6, after a five-minute intermission.

It was the last dual competition scheduled for OSU's defending national champions and gave them an 11-0-1 record.

ARE WASH DAYS LIKE THIS...

Sheer drudgery! Do you do your washing the tedious, tiring hand method way over back breaking, prehistoric equipment in a room full of howling, ornery kids? This poor woman does . . . and look at her! But . . .

WHEN THEY CAN BE LIKE THIS...

. . . then she heard about KIRKWOOD KWIK KLEEN, and presto, she's a new woman. At KIRKWOOD KWIK KLEEN she puts her clothes into modern, fast, efficient washers and dryers, lets dad sit home with the kids, has her hair dried while she polishes her nails and above all, leaves refreshed. And her clothes are cleaner than by her hand scrubbed method. You, too, can take the drudgery out of wash days by bringing your laundry to KIRKWOOD KWIK KLEEN.

So, when wash day rolls around, do what hundreds of Iowa City folks do . . . take your washing to KIRKWOOD KWIK KLEEN . . . 210 Kirkwood Avenue.

You'll be surprised how the drudgery is taken out and the enjoyment put back into your wash days.

Two SUI Physicists Attempt To Interpret

A pile of sand contains a certain number of grains; one knows that the pile cannot be added to or diminished without the addition or subtraction of a definite number of grains.

A building contractor who makes use of sand in mixing cement is not concerned with grains of sand as a quantity. To him, a shovelful of sand is a definite quantity, as a truckload.

Just as the contractor is oblivious to grains of sand in his shovelful, so classical physics, dealing with matter in bulk, is not concerned with the fact that a particular object contains a certain number of atoms and molecules, and that, if the object is increased or decreased, a definite number of atoms is gained or lost.

PROFESSOR FRITZ Rohrich, SUI physicist, pointed out that knowledge of interactions on the sub-atomic level has lagged far behind experimental knowledge in this area. "We have a vast quantity of experimental data, but we really have almost no idea of what principles govern the behavior of elementary particles.

"It is our hope that we shall be able to understand these principles if we develop further our ideas on quantum field theory."

Rohrich and professor Max Dresden, also of the SUI Department of Physics, have been engaged in reformulating quantum field theory, which attempts to interpret the behavior of matter at the atomic and molecular level. The research is currently supported by a two-year, $67,000 grant from the National Science Foundation.

Rohrich explained that dealing with events at the atomic and molecular level necessitates a departure from classical notions of the behavior of the physical world. "HOWEVER, DESPITE the great difference between classical and quantum field theory, they must be related," Rohrich continued.

Classical field theories of physics grew out of observations of phenomena such as magnetic, electrical and gravitational forces which involve relatively large amounts of matter and energy. By contrast, at the atomic level, exceedingly small distances and particles are involved. These elementary particles are the protons, electrons and other particles of which the atomic nucleus itself is composed.

"At this level fundamental interactions and concepts of classical field theory, such as energy and charge, occur in multiples of the smallest units," Professor Rohrich pointed out.

SUMMARIZING THE current research in quantum field theory, the SUI physicist said, "We have a theory which is mathematically inconsistent. It explains all of the experimental data which it is supposed to explain, and for this the experimental physicist is thankful, but the theoretical physicist is troubled. The equations are valid physically, but they make no sense at all mathematically.

"Now, as a result of recent work here at SUI, we have a theory in which the mathematical difficulties are to a large extent eliminated. It is essentially a reformulation of the old theory, but it has been made mathematically consistent. But much more work is needed until we understand elementary particles."

Four Workshops In Music Are Set For SUI Campus

Four music workshops will be held here in March for Iowa music students and their teachers. The 16th annual workshop series is being offered by the SUI Music Department in cooperation with the School of Fine Arts and the Extension Division.

A solo workshop will open the series today, with members of the SUI faculty auditioning solo performances in the wind, string, piano and vocal areas.

Next Saturday a workshop for brass and woodwind ensembles will be led by H. D. Harmon, head of the Department of Music and instructor in brass at Moorhead, Minn., State Teachers College, and Earl Boyd, professor of woodwind instruments at Eastern Illinois State University, Charleston.

Emmanuel Wisnow, head of the Music Department and instructor in violin at the University of Nebraska, will serve as guest critic for a string ensemble workshop March 16.

A vocal ensemble workshop March 23 will be directed by Stephen Hobson, director of choral activities and instructor in voice at Northeast Missouri State Teachers College, Kirksville.

Vicar Advocates Long Honeymoon

(UPI) — Church of England Vicar D. G. Aston said Friday a couple should have a month off from work with pay when they marry so they can enjoy their honeymoon.

"I always think it is a thousand pities when two young people are married that they usually scrape only a week together for their honeymoon," Aston said.

"I often wonder whether the seeds of the break-up of many marriages are not sown in those few days of early married life through a hasty and frustrated honeymoon."

U.S. To Bring Africans Here From Bulgaria

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department Friday announced a further step in the effort to see if some of the African students who fled Bulgaria because of alleged mistreatment could be accommodated in colleges in the United States.

It said it has enlisted the aid of the Institute of International Education in matching the qualifications of African students against available public and private scholarship offers available in the United States.

The institute, a private non-profit organization with which the State Department frequently works, is sending a representative to Europe next week "to make an on-the-spot review of the qualifications of the African students," an announcement said.

Alfred V. Boerner, deputy assistant secretary of state for cultural and educational affairs, said there appears to be about 73 African students scattered around in Western Europe who formerly were studying in Bulgaria.

The United States also is discussing with other countries, and the African Governments concerned, assistance which the students in Europe may need while awaiting new scholarships or return home.

Boerner said about 3,900 African students are now in the United States, 300 of whom are under U.S. Government grants.

Device Step To H-Bomb—

France Plans Pacific Hydrogen Test

PARIS (UPI) — French sources said Friday that France plans to explode its first thermonuclear device on a South Pacific island by mid-1964 under a speed-up program to give the French an independent national nuclear force regardless of U.S. objections.

The sources said the test would involve a "baby" H-device about halfway between an atomic bomb and a true hydrogen bomb and probably would take place in the Gambier Islands, about 1,000 miles southeast of Tahiti. Some 1,500 French technicians already were reported to be either at Mangareva Island in the Gambiers or en route there to prepare for the test which President Charles de Gaulle's Government feels will speed by at least four years the time needed for France to attain full H-bomb capacity.

Previous French nuclear tests have been held at Reggane in the Sahara of southern Algeria. Under the Evian agreement of last March ending the Algerian War, the French are permitted to use the Sahara test range until 1967.

But the Algerian Government has made known its hostility to further testing in the Sahara and other neighboring countries also have complained.

French sources said that in the Pacific test, the French plan to trigger their H-device with a top-secret plutonium detonator instead of the usual enriched uranium.

The French have been working on such a device for some time, the sources said, because the nuclear plant France is building will not be ready to produce enriched uranium until 1968.

The French began setting up their new nuclear testing base at Mangareva after Algeria became independent last July.

Matrix Table Banquet Set

Outstanding SUI coeds and Iowa City women will receive invitations this week to the ninth annual Matrix Table Banquet to be held March 21.

The event, honoring University and community women leaders, is sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, professional fraternity for women in journalism. They are being assisted by the local alumnae group.

The dinner will be held in the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union at 6:30 p.m.

Miss Jean Strong, editor of the Marion Sentinel and former reporter for Life and Fortune magazines, will be guest speaker. Her topic is "From Here and Back."

Special Matrix awards will be given to one student and one Iowa City woman judged most outstanding in leadership and service.

Reservations for the banquet should be sent to Room 201, Communications Center, by March 19.

Atlanta's 'Color Wall' Torn Down

ATLANTA (UPI) — Atlanta's "Berlin Wall" — a racial barrier of wood and steel 200 yards long — was torn down Friday on orders of a Fulton County Superior Court judge.

Judge George P. Whitman issued the order at the request of 10 Negro and white plaintiffs who objected to the barrier which had been erected by the city of Atlanta as a move against block busting.

SCOTCHED

PARIS (UPI) — The newspaper France-Soir reported Friday that scotch whiskey has disappeared at recent receptions in President Charles de Gaulle's Elysee Palace. The paper said the scotch has been replaced by cognac and water, and asked: "Is it a sign of the times?"
