THIS MORNING

ON CAMPUS—

DONALD B. JOHNSON, head of the Political Science Department, will be guest panelist at the Spotlight Series discussion of "Political Parties: Institution for Democracy?" at 3:45 this afternoon in the Pentacrest Room of the Union. The topic is the third in a sequence dealing with institutions of prominence in American life today.

PHILLIP VELLACOTT, British scholar known for his translations of the classics, will lecture on "Greek Plays on the Modern Stage" at 8 tonight in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol. The lecture will be sponsored by the SUI Writers' Workshop and Graduate School.

A LEADERSHIP TRAINING school for SUIIowans in dormitory government will be held at Burge Hall starting at 8:30 this morning. Dr. Wendell Johnson, professor of speech pathology, will speak on "Listen, Learn and Lead" at 12:30 p.m.

THE FOLLOWING three conferences will open on campus today: Sixty dentists representing nine Midwest states will attend a three-day postgraduate course on oral surgery beginning here today. For details, see page three. Thirty-one Iowans will attend the first session of a special course on Nursing and Custodial Home Administration today. For details, see page three. Some 450 Iowa high school students will compete in the state finals of the Iowa High School Forensic League competition today through Saturday. For details, see page three.

IN THE CITY—

MOE WHITEBOOK will address the Rotary Club on "Iowa City Parking" at its weekly meeting at noon today in the Hotel Jefferson.

THE REVISED PLAN of operation for the Coralville Reservoir will be discussed tonight at 8 in the Civic Center.

The plan, which was announced Friday by the Corps of Engineers after a year's study of the reservoir's operation, will be presented before a public meeting to answer questions and explain further details.

IN THE STATE—

TAX DEBATE MOVE AFOOT. A move was afoot Wednesday to bring a revenue measure up for debate in the Iowa Senate as a House attempt to pass a money bill faltered, with a chance it may never come to a vote.

House Ways and Means Chairman Elmer Vermeer (R-Pella) conceded that the House is "bogged down" in consideration of an omnibus tax increase and property tax relief bill, designed to raise some $65 million a year in additional state taxes and earmark the revenue for state aid to schools.

IN THE NATION—

CARDONA ACCUSES U.S. Cuban Revolutionary Council President Jose Miro Cardona said Wednesday he feels free to make public a document reportedly accusing the United States of renegeing on promises to act against Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro. He accused the U.S. government of abusing him.

TORNADO RAISES HAVOC.

A tornado barreled through the edge of Kankakee, Ill., and into adjoining Bourbonnais Wednesday killing a woman, injuring dozens of persons and causing more than $2 million damages.

Olivet College, operated by the Church of the Nazarene, was in the middle of the 300-yard-wide path of the twister that struck Bourbonnais. The college administration building, heating plant, gymnasium and dining hall were heavily damaged.

Bourbonnais Village President Leon Blanchette estimated damage to his community at more than $2 million.

IN THE WORLD—

PEARSON DESIGNATED. Lester B. Pearson was designated Wednesday to become Canada's Prime Minister for the first time in a career crowned by some of the highest prizes in world affairs.

Gov. Gen. Georges P. Vanier formally named the 1957 Nobel Prize winner and former president of the United Nations to succeed Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker next Monday.

ARABS JUBILANT. Waving three-star flags of the new United Arab Republic, jubilant crowds of Arabs swarmed into the streets of Egypt, Syria and Iraq on Wednesday celebrating the decision to merge their three nations and 38 million people under one government.

PAUL HORNUNG
Packers' Golden Boy

Karras Ousted Indefinitely

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Hornung, the Golden Boy of the pro champion Green Bay Packers, and Alex Karras, bulwark of Detroit's defensive line and former Iowa All-American, were suspended indefinitely Wednesday by the National Football League for betting on league games.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said there could be no review of their cases until after the 1963 season. Five other Detroit players were fined $2,000 each for betting $50 each on Green Bay to beat the New York Giants last December in the 1962 title game. They are John Gordy, guard; Gary Lowe, defensive back; Joe Schmidt, all-league middle linebacker; Wayne Walker, linebacker, and Sam Williams, defensive end.

The Detroit club was fined $4,000 because Coach George Wilson failed to forward to the proper authorities reports by Detroit police "of certain associations by members of the Detroit team," and because unauthorized individuals were permitted to sit on the Lions' bench.

Rozelle said he had not completed an investigation of allegations that Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Baltimore Colts, had bet on league games. Pointing out that Rosenbloom had denied the charges in a sworn affidavit, Rozelle said his investigation was delayed by legal proceedings involving the Colt owner. He promised it would be completed in the near future.

gave less than his best in playing any game. However, he said, there was clear evidence that some NFL games knowingly associated with undesirable, bet on their own clubs to win, bet on other NFL games and had been too free in giving information about their clubs to friends. Rozelle also found that not all clubs had been as diligent as league policy required in taking precautions against undesirable associates by players.

Karras, called on the carpet in New York in mid-January after he had said during a televised interview that he sometimes bet on games, was suspended for betting and associating with people, described by Detroit police as "known hoodlums."

Yocum's Byword Is More Progress

By ERIC ZOECKLER
News Editor

Don't think success has spoiled Stanley Max Yocum. As he bluntly puts it, "There's still a helluva lot of progress to be made."

Progress has been a byword with the Iowa City councilman since his early life in a two-room log cabin in southern Illinois. He vividly recalls the 7-mile bicycle rides to a one-room school.

And midway in his sophomore year in high school, he relates, "They turned me loose for Christmas vacation and I guess I'm still on it."

IN HIS 15 YEARS in Iowa City, Yocum has been noted for his fighting spirit.

"I stand up for what I think is right," says Yocum. "If a guy has a million dollars and I have only 30 cents, I'll fight for what I think is right."

On numerous occasions Yocum has been entangled in court proceedings stemming from complaints about his housemoving techniques.

"I don't think they ever proved we were wrong," Yocum recalls. IN ADDITION TO HIS housemoving activity, Yocum's firm trims trees and tears down and salvages buildings. He also owns the Silver Spur Tavern.

The fact that he has little formal education didn't stop Yocum from seeking a spot on the City Council in 1960.

"The reason I run for councilman was because of the treatment me and thousands of others were getting from the City Manager and the City Council.

"I felt I had had a lot of experience with the general problems of the general public. Now I try to make the best decision — one I know will benefit all the people of Iowa City."

Regarding his Council work, Yocum feels the city and the University have common problems — parking and expansion — which they must solve together.

"BOTH THE CITY and the University should have an overall expansion plan scheduled for the next 10 years and know where they want to go. They should sit down together and discuss these plans, too."

Yocum says he is for progress. "We've set here too damn long and saw too many opportunities go away. I want something that pays taxes like more industry for the city."

He feels the same about the state. "It's time for the whole state to look up and get some interest into Iowa — instead of driving it out," he says. "And Iowa City is a good place to start."

Yocum's a busy man, but still finds time to spend with his wife, Donna, and five children ranging in age from 9 to 15. The family often goes horseback riding on their farm outside of Coralville.

JFK Asked to Deny Mississippi Funds

Civil Rights Body Makes Suggestion

Proposal Expected To Have Bearing On Next Election

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Rights Commission has handed President Kennedy a prickly political package by recommending he consider withholding federal funds from segregationist Mississippi.

The commission suggested that Kennedy explore his authority to deny the state about $650 million it receives annually from the federal government. This handed him an escape hatch; he could decide he lacked such authority.

There was a suggestion too from the commission that Kennedy study whether legislation is needed to prevent federal funds being paid out to a state which "continues to refuse to abide by the Constitution."

The political implications of acting (or not acting) could have a direct bearing on the outcome of Kennedy's expected bid for reelection in 1964.

Here is the way many politicians viewed the matter:

• Kennedy's stock with the Negro minorities which influence the political decisions of the electoral vote-heavy industrial states would slump if he took no action to sustain the rights of citizens the commission said had been "shot, set upon by vicious dogs, beaten and otherwise terrorized because they sought to vote."

• If the President cut off Mississippi funds, he would risk losing support among white voters in the South.

• Kennedy could expect no action on the commission's recommendation that Congress "consider seriously" legislation to cut off Mississippi funds.

The feeling in Congress is that if the Federal Government could halt payments for highways, flood control, military contracts and civilian payrolls in Mississippi in a controversy which did not involve these programs, it could act similarly in other states for the same or other reasons.

Steel, Civil Rights Confront Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy flew back to the White House on Wednesday from a Florida vacation and went immediately to his office. Reports on steel prices and civil rights in Mississippi awaited him.

Andrew T. Hatcher, acting White House press secretary, said Chairman Walter Heller of the Council of Economic Advisers stopped in to discuss the steel price situation. There was no indication the President would have anything to say immediately on steel prices or a recommendation by the Civil Rights Commission that Kennedy consider cutting off federal funds to Mississippi unless the state acts promptly to protect the right of its Negro citizens.

Prof. and Mrs. Charles Treger arrived by airplane in Cedar Rapids Wednesday afternoon from Washington, D.C., where the SUI violinist played in the White House Tuesday. Daughters Robin, 5, with

Treger Signs with Bernstein

By JOE LIPPINCOTT
Staff Writer

Charles Treger, carrying his now famous and somewhat worn violin that won him world-wide fame just a few months ago, arrived in Iowa City Wednesday afternoon from Washington, D.C., where he played in the White House Tuesday afternoon.

Treger, winner of the Wieniawski violin competition in Posnan, Poland, last November, left here April 5, traveled to Washington, D.C., New York, Boston, and back to Washington.

IN NEW YORK, he signed a contract with Leonard Bernstein, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, for four appearances in New York's Lincoln Center next Jan. 30, 31, and Feb. 1 and 2. One performance will be broadcast nationally.

In Boston, the SUI associate professor of music successfully auditioned for Erich Leinsdorf, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Among Treger's other engagements is a recital at the Pan American Union in Washington, D.C., and six performances with the Washington Symphony. Both engagements will be next February.

TREGER RETURNED to Washington Monday where his wife, Deborah, met him at the airport. The couple attended a tea Monday afternoon given by Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, a patron of the arts and supporter of the SUI violinist since early in his career.

More than 750 people crowded into and outside the East Room of the White House Tuesday afternoon as Treger presented a 15-minute concert for the National Symphony Volunteers. He was accompanied in his presentation of six Romanian folk dances and two other selections by Mrs. Maryem Herrett of the National Symphony Orchestra.

TREGER SHARED the White House program with Ann Scheine, 23-year-old concert pianist from Washington, whom Treger described as "a terrific artist."

A Washington music critic termed Treger's performance "truly outstanding."

Mrs. Treger shared front row seats with Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, wife of the U.S. vice president; August Heckscher, President Kennedy's cultural aide; Postmaster General and Mrs. Edward Day, and Mrs. Arthur Goldberg, wife of the supreme court justice. President and Mrs. Kennedy, vacationing in Palm Beach, Fla., sent Treger their best wishes.

DURING THEIR STAY in Washington, the Tregers were house guests of Mrs. Albin W. Barkley, widow of the former vice president. Treger performed an hour-long concert Tuesday evening for about 25 personal friends of Mrs. Barkley, when the Tregers left Washington Wednesday morning for Iowa City.

Tour of Duty Iowa Supreme Court Gathers Here Today

For Married Soldiers Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara authorized the military services Wednesday to cut to a year the overseas tours of men who leave their families at home.

Under current rules, men may be sent overseas without their families for as long as two years.

At the same time, McNamara told the services they can extend from three to four years the overseas duty tours of military men who take their families with them.

A Pentagon spokesman said the objective is to cut down on the gold-dollar drain abroad, to save money in transporting families and their goods, and for morale purposes.

It was emphasized by the spokesman that such changes will be at the discretion of the armed services and will have to be done in such a way as not to deprive units of skilled men.

In a related action, McNamara authorized the services to keep overseas a few specified key people for longer periods whether or not they have their dependents with them.

A stipulation in this requires that government quarters be available and travel be authorized for the families if the men in these key billets wish to have their wives and children with them.

Swimming in Iowa River Dangerous, Dr. Miller Warns

Warm weather is here, but if you intend to cool off in the Iowa River, be prepared for serious consequences.

Dr. Chester I. Miller, chief of the University's student health clinic, issued a warning to SUI students concerning broken glass and other dangerous debris which lies unseen on the bottom of the river.

The river bed apparently is littered with great numbers of broken bottles and tin cans which are hidden by muddy water and silt the physician said.

Many students report to the clinic every spring with badly cut feet as a result of walking on the river bed. Some of the injuries caused by this debris have been severe enough to necessitate hospitalization, Miller noted.

He also urged students to be cautious of other water recreation. There have been several injuries resulting from water skiing, the doctor said, and the hazard of drowning is always present.

Supreme Court Day activities will begin at 9:30 a.m. with a coffee hour in the lounge of the Law Building. At 10:30 in 210 Law Building, nine law seniors will be initiated into the Order of the Coif, considered one of the highest scholastic honors in law. Justice Bruce M. Snell of the Iowa Supreme Court will be the 1963 honorary initiate into the Order of the Coif.

At 2 p.m. in 210 Law Building, the nine justices will hear four senior law students argue a case. The four were chosen on the basis of their performances in cases they have argued in their previous

Neutralists Fall Back in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Laos was plunged into the cold war again Wednesday as outnumbered neutralist troops fell back before pro-Communist forces bottling them up in the Laotian highlands.

Peking radio accused the United States of resorting to terrorism and bribery in a prelude to intervention in Laos. The Chinese Communists had the support of Moscow, which chimed in with charges the United States is seeking to bribe the neutralists and turn the Southeast Asia kingdom "into another Congo."

The British labeled the Communists the No. 1 troublemaker in Laos. A Foreign Office statement said the Chinese Reds were using anti-U.S. charges as a smoke-screen for intervention by Communist North Viet Nam.

The British accused the Pathet Lao of blocking investigations by the three-nation control commission into the fighting threatening to plunge Laos into a new civil war. The Pathet Lao has rejected a Western proposal to put permanent teams in the trouble zone.

The commission was given special powers by the 1962 Geneva Conference to carry out the guarantee of neutrality for Laos and its isolation from the cold war. But the angry words from various capitals indicated a lack of success.

The neutralist forces of Gen. Kong Le were reported to have fallen back almost entirely to the strategic Plaine des Jarres in the east-central highlands.

How Much Of A Portent Is De Gaulle?

France's Neighbors Just Might Echo Assertive Nationalism

By JOSEPH ALSOP

VIENNA — Gen. de Gaulle is quoted by those closest to him as arguing that the heavy cost of the French nuclear striking force is a positive benefit to France.

The argument is certainly unexpected. It is well to bear in mind because of the continuous recurrence of nonsensical reports of a French loss of stomach for an independent nuclear effort.

As always with this strange great man, there is a kernel of truth in his argument. Of course, it remains to be seen whether the French people will agree with De Gaulle that the pain is downright bracing and beneficial, when the effort required to create a French "force de frappe" becomes really painful — as it must soon become.

Meanwhile, it is necessary to face the hard fact that de Gaulle is almost certainly a portent of the European future.

The real question is not whether De Gaulle is a portent, but how much of a portent he is. It is entirely possible, for instance, that De Gaulle's assertion of self-centered, rather domineering French nationalism will eventually be echoed in France's neighbor nations.

Nationalism, it must be remembered, is in the nature of an infectious disease. No one in the Gaullist circle in France seems to be thinking about this aspect of the matter.

If this is to be the European future, it will be a dark future, and not just for the Europeans. Yet one can already see the first (tiny) symptoms in such things as the German attitude to the French "force de frappe."

All the scores of German leaders and officials this reporter saw in Bonn were eager for the opening of a Kennedy-De Gaulle dialogue. But when it was pointed out that the essential preliminary was Franco-American nuclear cooperation, every German leader and official was downright horrified.

At present, however, a general revival of European nationalism is only a future danger, which can still be guarded against. The need is for the United States to go halfway to meet the renewal of European pride and independence.

As Walter Lippmann has correctly pointed out, this hardest problem of the Western Alliance cannot be solved by gimmicks designed to give the European the sense of nuclear participation without the reality. But it is not safe, either, to go on talking academically about "non-proliferation" of deterrents and the need for only one hand on the trigger when De Gaulle is a portent and proliferation is actually occurring in France.

As originally proposed by the Kennedy policy-makers, the so-called multilateral deterrent was a mere gimmick. The command arrangements gave the United States a negative control by veto, as well as providing so many other national vetoes that the multilateral deterrent's multilateral immobilization was forever insured.

But if the President accepts the German suggestion of control by a majority of the participating nations, this multilateral force will become the embryo of a truly European deterrent. It may not be the best way to do the job, but it is the best way that has been proposed so far. And as the President was the first to launch the scheme of a multilateral force, he will also suffer gravely if his idea does not succeed.

The Ralph McGill Column — A Plea To Save Aid From The Bottomless Rat Hole

Washington Notes: It is difficult to quarrel with recommendations of realistic and practical "approaches," whether to foreign aid or to any other major problem before the Congress.

But unless hypnotized by the stream of cliché adjectives we will be wise to consider that the essence of realism is common sense. It is not, for example, very realistic to set up an aid program which, by its very terms, can do nothing but build up pressures for a third war.

The failure of what was defined as "realistic and practical" aid to Guatemala is a case in point. The late Secretary Dulles would, and did, give liberally of aid wherever he could find two anti-Communists to put together — or two who said they were.

Guatemala once was captive of a Communist leadership. It was in power for a considerable span of months before a rebel army, with our blessing, overthrew the regime which already had carried out a program of political purges in the cruel and ruthless Communist Stalin manner.

A Presidio Article — The Last One In Iowa?

The first cold gray rays of dawn swept swiftly and silently across the Mississippi from the east as the still warm but lifeless body of Victor Harry Feguer dangled at the end of a rope. One end of this rope was firmly secured to the upright posts erected in the hanging room of the Iowa State Penitentiary, at Fort Madison. Twenty-seven gruesome pairs of eyes were focused silently on the gruesome spectacle which served to confirm that justice had been done.

As hangings go it could be considered a success, done efficiently and with dispatch. The supreme penalty, sometimes alluded to as "being an exclusive privilege reserved for the poor" was exacted by our Federal Government, in the person of U.S. Marshal C. H. Meek of Dubuque. Marshal Meek had sprung the death trap at 5:34 a.m. on the morning of March 15, 1963. Nine minutes and forty five seconds later Victor Harry Feguer was declared legally dead.

VICTOR HARRY FEGUER, age 27, single, caucasian, had the dubious distinction of having been the first person to be executed in the State of Iowa under the federal (Lindbergh) kidnap law. He had been tried and convicted of the kidnap-slaying of Dr. Edward Bartels of Dubuque.

Some may derive some small measure of consolation in the knowledge that though Victor Harry Feguer did die on the gallows in the State of Iowa he did not die at the hands of this state. Capital punishment is and has been for some time past a highly controversial issue in Iowa's legislative halls. Even as this execution was taking place our State Senate was preparing to hold public hearings on a bill to abolish the death penalty with some reservations, such as kidnaping.

Witnesses have said that Victor Harry Feguer met his end with a stoic calm, showing little outward sign of emotion. This writer can bear witness that this was not a last attempt at an outward show of bravado, as he had talked at length with Feguer some hours before the hanging took place. Victor Harry Feguer who has spent many of his last hours before the hanging here in Fort Madison in the company of the Catholic Chaplain, Reverend Bernard Brugman, was mentally and spiritually prepared to meet his maker. He has stated that he had accepted the inevitability of his execution at the time that the Supreme Court had turned down his plea for a new trial. At that time, he said, he had started to mentally prepare for the end. Whether or not Victor Harry Feguer had committed the crime of which he stood accused only a higher power actually knows.

Let's Keep This Minority From Outnumbering Us

The problem: to keep us from rotting on the inside. The solution: the National Service Corps, a relatively modest domestic duplication of the highly regarded foreign Peace Corps.

The problem-solution may not be that simple, but backers of the domestic Peace Corps that the Senate passed last week hold high hopes for the venture.

"Poverty in the midst of plenty," insists President Kennedy, "is a paradox that must not go unchallenged in this country."

The problem is seemingly everywhere: in slums, migratory labor camps, economically depressed areas and on Indian reservations.

Far more modest than once contemplated, the current plan calls for a 1,000-member corps, costing $5 million the first year. The program would be gradually expanded to 5,000 members in subsequent years.

Because of an economy-minded Congress the prospects for extending the peace corps idea to the domestic scene appeared dim some weeks ago.

But the Senate gave approval last week. Sources close to the scene say the fate of the bill in the House is "hopeful but not certain."

Skeptical congressmen have, however, complained along other lines. It's the old creeping socialism argument. The skeptics don't like to see the federal government moving in on state jurisdiction.

The home corps bill now in the House skirts the issue, somewhat. The bill stipulates that before taking a project in a certain area the President would have to be certain that craftsmen would not displace regular workers or duplicate existing services.

In this connection, we are reminded of the words of Congressman Frog, who, with that characteristic cigar jammed in his mouth, told Pogo some time ago:

"Things is at a party pass, my friend. We got creepin' socialisms, creepin' democracy, and creepin' Republicanism. Everybody is crawling around. We ought to stand up to 'em!"

And he added: "I tell you, son, the minority got us outnumbered!"

And that's the problem: the minority. They are in the slums, in the migratory labor camps, on the Indian reservations and in the economically depressed areas.

The problem is keeping this minority from outnumbering us. The domestic peace corps addresses itself to the problem; but it is only a tiny step down what appears to be a treacherously lengthy road. —Gary Gerlach

The Rites of Spring Move the Hearts of All

For the urban dweller in temperate climes, the rhythm of the seasons has little real effect upon the rhythm of living. Winter may mean some cloistering cold for him; summer may tend to drive him away from baking concrete; spring and autumn may bring equal exhilaration. The deep tides that move rural life, with its times of sowing and times of reaping, and the semi-dormancy of the cold dark months — these lap only feebly at city doorsteps.

But feeble as they may be, they still stir racial memories. There is a difference between the rebirth of spring and the first death-chill of the fall; there is an excitement in the first pale green of spring that the glories of autumn foliage cannot match. Even when glimpsed in a dusty park, or on the lonely trees that line an old street, buds have a newness, a promise, that is never dimmed by the certainty they will one day leaf, one day crisp and tumble. Those who live in cities may never turn the earth for growing, may never think of the harvest. Yet atavistically, unconsciously even urban hearts are moved by the rites of spring. —New York Herald Tribune

57 Register For Art Show Here Friday

Fifty-seven Iowa junior and senior high schools have pre-registered art works for the exhibition to be held in conjunction with the 33rd annual Iowa high school Art Education Conference here Friday and Saturday.

Speakers will include Gabor Peterdi, internationally known printmaker; Ralph Wickiser, chairman of the Department of Art Education and Art School Master of Fine Arts Program at Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N.Y.; and James Schinneller, director of Art Education for the University of Wisconsin's Extension Division at Milwaukee.

The exhibition and conference are sponsored by the Department of Art, the School of Fine Arts, the College of Education and the Extension Division at SUI. The works will be shown in the Art Building. The conference is the oldest and most successful event of its kind in the country.

Any high school or junior high school in Iowa may bring a maximum of 12 examples of art in two dimensions and eight examples of three-dimensional or sculptural work. Each example is in a different medium or mixed media.

Color slides of many of the works exhibited will be added to the Traveling High School Art Collection, which features school art shown in the annual exhibitions since 1949. The color slides are available in sets of 40 or 50 for use by classes and art clubs.

SUI Will Host Community Theater Groups Saturday

Members of the Iowa City Community Theatre will be among members of 12 drama groups coming here Saturday to participate in SUI's third annual Community Drama Conference.

The theme of this year's conference will be new interpretations which can be used to make community plays more exciting. Highlights of the conference include a keynote address by Professor Harold I. Hansen, chairman of the Department of Dramatic Arts at Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, speaking on "Toward a Theatre of Excitement."

University Theatre students will present for the group a one-act play, "A Marriage Proposal," by Anton Chekhov. Saturday evening, conference participants will be guests at a special presentation of some of the most outstanding productions from the University's Studio Matinee program.

Members of the SUI University Theatre faculty and topics of their lecture-demonstrations will be: A. S. Gillette, "The Scenic Environment"; Margaret Hall, "The Actor's Clothing"; David Thayer, "The Light by Which We See"; Allan Longacre, Waterloo, president of the Iowa Community Theatre Association will speak at the conference luncheon in the Union.

Discussions and demonstrations will emphasize theatrical use of the theatre to heighten audience impact and to bring to actors, technicians and directors a more pro-

Hancher Set To Discuss Why Women Go to College

Why should a young woman go to college?

SUI President Virgil M. Hancher and three other leading educators will discuss this and other questions Saturday at 1 p.m. during a panel discussion on "The Motivation of Young Women for Higher Education." The discussion will be sponsored by St. Katharine's School of Davenport, a 79-year-old private secondary school for girls. School administrators, teachers, parents and students from the Midwest are invited to attend.

With the nation's available college space decreasing and the demand for scarce talents increasing, the reasons for urging women students to attend college and the type of college courses they should be encouraged to take have been attracting the attention of the nation's educators.

All four panel members are members of St. Katharine's advisory board. The moderator will be the Rt. Rev. Gordon V. Smith, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Iowa and president of St. Katharine's Board.

The other three panel members will be: Dr. Conrad Bergendoff, retired president of Augustana College; Dr. Howard Bowen, president of Grinnell College; and Dr. Jean B. Walton, dean of women at Pomona College in Claremont, Calif.

Registration for the program will be at 1 p.m. Saturday at Pronger's Restaurant in Davenport. The public is invited. Registration fee is $2 for adults, and students are invited as guests of the school.

Nursing, Custodial Home Course Slated for Today

Thirty-one Iowans will attend the first session of a special course on Nursing and Custodial Home Administration today in the Union.

Twenty-nine of the administrators will receive $100 travel grants to help defray travel expenses to the course, which will be held in five sessions during this month and May.

The first session of the course will deal with problems involved in the initiation and establishment of a nursing or custodial home project, such as determining the need for "market" for such a facility; decision as to type of ownership and control; complying with legal requirements; undertaking the building project and selection and organization of staff.

Welcoming the group at 1 p.m. will be Ray L. Heffner, vice-president for instruction and dean of faculties at SUI and Woodrow W. Morris, director of the SUI Institute of Gerontology. Course orientation will be given by H. Lee Jacobs, research associate at the Institute of Gerontology and coordinator of the course.

Speakers and discussion leaders during the afternoon will be Harold L. Orbach, research associate at the University of Michigan Division of Gerontology and William E. Beaumont Jr., Little Rock, Ark., president of the American Nursing Home Association.

Speaking tonight on "The Economy in Which We Live," will be Robert J. Blakely, SUI adult education specialist. Discussion leader at Friday morning's session will be Walter W. Lane, construction engineer, Division of Hospital Services of the Iowa State Department of Health.

The purpose of the course is to improve patient or guest care in the homes by increasing the efficiency of the administrators. Additional courses for about the same number of administrators will be held in 1964 and 1965.

The three-year demonstration project is being financed through the Division of Gerontology, Heart Disease and Chronic Illness of the Iowa State Department of Health, which has received supporting funds from the U.S. Public Health Service.

Dr. Hoffman, who is also an affiliate member of the Institute of Gerontology staff and a member of the Iowa Home Economics Association Committee on Aging, will participate in a panel discussion Saturday. Mrs. Edwards will speak on "Iowa's Educational Resources for the Aged" Friday afternoon.

Also appearing on the program will be Helen Judy Bond, a graduate of the SUI Department of Home Economics.

450 Expected For Forensic Meet Here

Some 450 students from 67 Iowa schools will compete in the state finals of Iowa High School Forensic League competition today through Saturday at SUI.

The students received top ratings in district competition in February. Four-year scholarships to SUI will be awarded by the University to the highest ranking speakers in the state finals.

In addition to the student scholarships, certificates will be awarded to schools winning first and second places and to students for "meritorious" performance in the different types of speaking in the state forensic finals.

Forensic league competition will be in debate, expository speaking on television, news commentary on radio, extemporaneous speaking, oral interpretation, original oratory and student senate.

Hugh F. Seabury, SUI professor of speech, is chairman of the league. Other members of the executive committee are A. Craig Baird, SUI professor emeritus of speech; H. Clay Harshbarger, chairman of the SUI Department of Speech and Dramatic Art; Robert F. Ray, dean of the SUI Extension Division; Buford W. Garner, Iowa City schools superintendent and Clifford Beem, dean of Mason City Junior College.

Youth Orchestra Gives Chicago Concert Friday

The Iowa City Youth Orchestra will present a concert Friday at the Robert R. McCormick Boys Club in Chicago. The orchestra, made up of 18 girls and 4 boys and conducted by Mrs. William H. Mullins, features the works of Bach, Handel, Mozart and other classical composers.

In addition to the concert, the group will be guests at the Chicago Symphony Orchestra concert Saturday night at which Van Cliburn will be the featured soloist.

'La Fiesta Brava' Tickets on Sale

By ROD JENSON Staff Writer

The click of castanets, the snort of angry bulls and the scent of incense, blood and death are the main elements of David Larson's "La Fiesta Brava" which will be presented in the Studio Theatre on April 24, 25, 26 and 27.

Tickets for the play will go on sale today at 9 a.m. in the East Lobby of the Union and may be obtained upon presentation of a student I.D. or for $1.00.

The play, which is set in modern Spain, is an attempt to contrast the Spanish concept of what it is to be a man against the American concept.

According to Larson, who is chairman of the drama department at the University of Houston in Texas, the Spaniard will himself do things and then does them. What the Spaniard will himself do, including the performance, is the mark of a man, Larson indicated.

"Death is a familiar thing to a Spaniard," said Larson. "The Spaniard is very realistic. In my play when the bull fighter kills the bull, he kills death. You see, the Spaniard is so realistic he has to have real death.

"The Spaniard lives within himself," continued Larson. "Consequently he does all he can to keep his integrity. The American, however, is interested in things outside himself and in others which insure the progress of his civilization. He seems to share a humane outlook. He is embarrassed about bragging and tends to be a 'good fellow' who pursues a moderate course.

"The Spaniard always is worried about defending his concept of himself. In Spain the world starts with the individual and no one man can shove him around except God. Even beggars share this concept.

"The Spaniard addresses God as Senor and God addresses man as senor.

"I have tried to balance the Spanish position against that of the American, but I tend to lean towards the Spanish concept of what it is to be a man," confessed Larson.

"The idea of the play is that the Spaniard may lose contact with the world and the American may lose contact with himself."

Larson, who wrote this play as a partial fulfillment for the Ph.D. degree in drama here, has written five plays altogether. One, "My Father's Tomahawk," was written in collaboration with Marc Connelly, author of "Green Pastures".

The playwright, who is currently directing "Henry IV, Part 1" at Houston, became interested in Spanish culture through a lecture he heard at SUI in 1957. He continued to develop this interest through reading prominent Spanish authors.

"La Fiesta Brava," which is being directed by John R. Winnie, SUI professor of drama, is the Spanish name for bull fighting. A highlight of this play is the bull fight scene.

Tickets may be purchased in the East Lobby between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and on Saturdays between 9 a.m. and noon. Curtain time for all performances is 8 p.m.

60 Dentists Here For 3-Day Oral Surgery Parley

Sixty dentists representing nine Midwest states are attending a three-day postgraduate course on oral surgery for the general practitioner here today through Saturday.

The course, entitled "Management of Emergent Problems of Interest to the General Practitioner," is designed to add to the knowledge and technique of the general practitioner in further safeguarding his patient during emergency procedure. Special consideration will be given to such problems as fear, pain, allergies, infection, hemorrhage, root recovery and dry socket.

Guest clinician is Dr. Gustav O. Kruger, professor of oral surgery at both dental and medical schools at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

The three-day course is under the direction of Dr. Daniel E. Waite, head of Oral Surgery in the SUI College of Dentistry.

Tigers Grab First; Trip Yankees, 4-2

NEW YORK (AP)—Gus Triandos drove in three runs with a tie-breaking homer and a bloop double Wednesday as the Detroit Tigers swept into sole possession of first place in the American League with a 4-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

Left-hander Don Mossi picked up his second victory without a loss, scattering 10 hits. The Yankees, runs came on homers by Hector Lopez in the second and Elston Howard in the ninth.

Loser Ralph Terry, seeking his third straight victory, held a 1-0 lead until the seventh when the Tigers struck with long-ball power for two runs. They tied it on a double by Rocky Colavito, a deep fly to center by Norm Cash that moved Colavito to third, and Dick McAuliffe's sacrifice fly to left. Triandos, obtained by the Tigers in a winter trade with Baltimore, rapped Terry's first pitch into the left field stands for a 2-1 lead.

For good measure, big Gus drove in two more runs in the ninth — dropping a soft pop into short right for a double that scored Colavito and Cash.

national League castoffs, were the keys in a 5-4 Baltimore victory over Boston Wednesday.

Orsino, playing his first game for the Orioles, hit a two-run homer off loser Earl Wilson in the fifth inning to break a 1-1 dead-lock.

Miller came in to relieve Steve Barber in the eighth after Lou Clinton's three-run home run had brought the score to 5-4, snuffing out the rally and then striking out two Red Sox batters in the ninth.

Al Smith's two-run homer, his second round tripper of the season, gave Baltimore the eventual margin, coming off reliever Dick Padatz in the top half of the eighth.

Orsino and Miller were obtained from San Francisco last winter in a six-man trade that saw the Giants acquire pitcher Billy Hoef.

also $100 on the Lions at Green Bay.

The five other Lions who were fined were found to have bet $50 each on the Packers against the Giants after Karras had invited them to watch the game on television at a friend's home in Miami.

For this one isolated bet, each of the five was fined the $2,000 maximum under the league constitution. There were no suspensions for them.

According to Rozelle's investigation, Hornung met an unidentified West Coast businessman who bet on college and pro games, in San Francisco in 1956, prior to the East-West game. He had just finished his career at Notre Dame. Rozelle said the friend developed the habit of querying Hornung on football and, by the summer of 1959, Hornung was placing bets on NFL and college games through his friend. The bets usually were $100 or $200 but on several instances reached $500.

Rozelle refused to estimate how many bets Hornung had made. He said the pattern continued through 1960 and 1961 but Hornung stopped betting in 1962. He said the Packers' triple threat halfback, broke even most of the time but won $1,500 one year.

Rozelle also found that several unnamed players played the $1 football cards and made token bets with friends. They got off with reprimands.

The fine against the Detroit club resulted from the use of illegal sideline passes and the failure of Coach Wilson to follow up the information from the Detroit police.

Asked why the club, and not Wilson, had been fined, Rozelle said, "In a case like this, I hold the club responsible for the action of its employees."

Rozelle said the players had admitted making the bets. He said he had talked to all but one of the seven men suspended or fined Wednesday morning. He did not go into specific details of what he learned in each of the interviews.

"The players were disappointed," he said. "Karras was angry. I hope this will be a helpful deterrent for the future."

In answer to questions, Rozelle, the 37-year-old successor to the late Bert Bell, said Hornung and Karras would be "legally free to play in any league" while suspended. But they would be on the clubs' reserve lists. Commissioner Joe Foss of the American Football League in Dallas said there was no chance of their playing in the AFL.

Spokesmen for the Canadian Football League also indicated that the two players would not be allowed to play with Canadian teams.

As for the future of Hornung and Karras, Rozelle said, "Obviously their future conduct and attitude will have a bearing on the matter if I should choose to consider lifting the suspensions after the 1963 season."

Lee Zeros Twins; Wins 3-Hitter, 4-0

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Don Lee pitched brilliant three-hit ball for Los Angeles Wednesday, limiting his former Minnesota mate to three singles as the Angels shut out the Twins 4-0.

The tall right-hander gave up singles to Bernie Allen in the third inning, to Vic Power in the fourth and Lenny Green in the ninth. Power went to second on a wild pitch, and that was all the further the Twins could move until the ninth.

It was the first decision of the season for Lee, who was traded to the Angels last season. The Twins' lefty Jack Kralick took his second loss. He lasted five innings, giving up three runs in the fifth, and three relievers followed.

Bob Rodgers hit his second homer of the year for Los Angeles, a solo blast in the eighth.

Mets Drop Eighth; To Cincinnati, 5-0

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds extended the New York Mets' winless streak to eight games Wednesday night with a 5-0 victory, highlighted by Johnny Edwards' grand slam homer and Jim O'Toole's five-hit pitching.

It was the Mets' fourth shutout loss.

Carlton Willey started for the Mets and got the first batter to fly out before he gave up singles to Don Blasingame and Gordy Coleman and walked Frank Robinson, filling the bases.

Edwards followed with the grand slam — the second of his career and his first homer of the season. He came up twice more with the bases loaded, striking out once and hitting a sacrifice fly.

Iowa Baseball Win; 6-Hitter for Gebhard

By BILL PEMBLE
Sports Editor

Fine clutch pitching by Sophomore righthander Bob Gebhard and some timely basehits by his teammates gave the Iowa Hawkeyes an 8-4 decision over Bradley in the series finale at the Iowa diamond Wednesday.

Gebhard was touched for only six hits, including an eighth inning home run by Brave left fielder Jack Dowell, in going the route for his second win of the season. The big (6-2, 200 pounder) rookie also lashed out a second inning single to drive in the first Iowa run.

The Iowa pitching got some fine hitting support from Joe Reddington, who went 4-0 in the series, and Matt Szykowsky, 2 rbi's on a solid double in the 7th, and Jay Peterson who knocked in two runs with a clutch fifth inning single.

Bradley got one back in the sixth as Ron Dwyer's two out double scored catcher Gary Brunting. Iowa came right back in the seventh to get three more.

Some fine base running by the Hawkeyes led to the seventh inning markers. Krause drew a walk to lead it off, swiped second. Reddington followed with his third single between short and third, Krause stopping at third base. Reddington took second on a throw to the plate.

Karras Bitter After Edict

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Paul Hornung reacted humbly and Alex Karras bitterly Wednesday after their indefinite suspension from the National Football League for betting on games.

"I made a terrible mistake. I realize that now," said Hornung, versatile halfback of the Green Bay Packers, in Louisville. "I am truly sorry. What else is there to say? I have given the true facts to commissioner Pete Rozelle and he has made his decision based on the facts."

"It comes as a shock to me," Karras said in Detroit, where he starred for three years as a defensive giant of the Lions. "I haven't done anything that I am ashamed of and I am not guilty of anything." Asked if he planned any protest, Karras said: "I sure do. He said he had retained an attorney."

Sports Briefs

TORONTO (AP)—"I like the odds right now," bubbled Coach Punch Imlach of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

"It'll be tough winning one in Toronto," responded Coach Sid Abel, whose Detroit Red Wings have the odds all against them.

The fifth game of the finals for the coveted Stanley Cup is tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens — and it could be the last game.

Toronto, with three 4-2 victories so far, leads the National Hockey League's best-of-7 series 3-1.

NEW YORK (AP)—Ten 3-year-olds are expected to start Saturday in the 39th running of the $75,000 Wood Memorial at Aqueduct, final Eastern test before the Kentucky Derby.

No Robbery, the sensational unbeaten colt from the Greentree Stable, is expected to be favored in the 1 1/4-mile race. No Robbery has won two shorter races at Aqueduct this spring. One of the two was a 10-length triumph last Saturday against seven older horses in near track-record time of 1 minute 34 seconds for one mile.

Last Home Meets —

Netmen Host Bradley, A.F.

By PAT KIRBY
Staff Writer

Iowa's tennis team will open and close their home schedule this weekend as they meet the Air Force Academy Friday and Bradley Saturday. These are the only two meets the Iowa netmen will play at home this season.

Both meets will be held on the courts across from the library and will start at approximately 2 p.m.

Coach Don Klotz stated he will use Steve Wilkinson, Dave Straus, Denny Ellertson, and Dick Riley for sure, but it's a tossup between five other players as to who will play the remaining two singles matches. The players he mentioned were Ken Wright, Marc Mears, Gary Fletcher, Elliot Abrons, and Mike Schiavoni.

In the doubles matches Klotz announced that Wilkinson would play with Fletcher, Straus with Ellertson, and Riley with Wright.

last chance to see Iowa star Wilkinson in action on the local courts as a member of the Hawkeye team. Wilkinson, a senior, has been at his best the past several weeks and is expected to be in top form this weekend.

Klotz revealed he has heard nothing about the Air Force team but that Bradley should be rather weak as they lost several of their top boys who dropped out of school last fall.

However, he added these were only tentative lineups and any changes might be incurred.

For Iowa fans this will be the

Interior Line Gets Workout In Grid Drills

Polishing the interior line was the major item of consideration at the Iowa Hawkeye's Wednesday spring practice.

Dividing the squad into four groups, Coach Jerry Burns paced the Hawks through running and passing plays, first walking through the play and then running them in contact.

Coaches Archie Kodros, Andy McDonald, and "Whitey" Piro worked with the passing group, emphasizing blocking on the line as well as secondary protection.

Lettermen Fred Riddle and Bob Wallace, along with Gary Snook and Mickey Moses, changed off the throwing chores at the quarterback slot.

Grabbing the passes were sophomore lettermen Tony Giacobazzi and Lou Williams and freshmen hopefuls Bill Briggs, (6-3, 210), Cliff Wilder, (6-3, 205), Dave Long, (6-3, 220), and Karl Noonan, (6-2, 180).

In the running department the Hawks worked on hand-offs, slams up the middle and off-tackle slants under coaches Andy MacDonald, Bob Flora and Jerry Hilgenberg. The Hawks also worked on several draw plays.

Following the forty minutes of passing and running contact, the squad worked on punting with Moses again doing the booting.

—CULLEY PREDICTS AT MANAGEMENT COURSE—

'Government Employees Will Join Unions'

Increasing numbers of states, county and municipal government employees in Iowa will be joining unions and demanding rights to bargain collectively, Prof. Jack Culley, director of the SUI Bureau of Labor and Management predicted Wednesday.

Addressing 75 Iowans at the Water Works Management Short Course on the Iowa City campus, Culley said that in Iowa at the present time public employees have the right to join labor organizations, but no government agency has either the obligation or the power to enter into collective bargaining agreements with them relating to wages, hours and working conditions.

"It seems inevitable that there will be increasing pressure on municipalities, as well as upon county and state government, to enter into more formal agreements in the future," he told the group.

Culley explained that an executive order by President Kennedy in January, 1962, was the first step toward collective bargaining by federal employees. The order provides that federal employees may organize and join unions, that government agencies recognize employee organizations, and that negotiations of an agreement may cover all employees in the appropriate bargaining unit.

"It is reasonable to assume that the example set by the Federal Government will eventually be followed, to a greater or lesser extent, by state, county and municipal governments," said Culley.

It seems likely, he continued, that many of the union devices used today in industry will eventually be used in the public service.

"There are an increasing number of opinions of attorney generals and municipal attorneys which, combined with increasingly favorable state legislation, can be expected to create a more favorable climate for increased union activity in the public area," he said.

Formal union recognition, which is guaranteed employees in industry by the National Labor Relations Act, is slowly gaining acceptance in the public employment field by law, contract, administrative or executive order and court decision, Culley told the group.

The checkoff of union dues is a common device in industry and is beginning to be seen in contracts with state and local governments, he continued. The Union of State,

Judge Censures Neuzil For Lengthy Jail Terms

By NORBERT TATRO
Staff Writer

Two teenagers were given suspended sentences on a bad check charge Wednesday, after District Judge James Gaffney accused county attorney Ralph Neuzil of keeping the two in jail too long — over six weeks.

George Naab, 18, Des Moines and Mary Sue De Greif, 19, Winthrop, pleaded guilty in court to forging a $63 check March 4 at an Iowa City department store.

The two have been accused of writing false checks totaling $1,000 on an Independence bank at Waterloo, Cedar Rapids and Des Moines.

Gaffney sentenced the two to one year in the county jail, then suspended the sentence. They were put on parole in the custody of the Johnson County Sheriff Pat Murphy. Miss De Grief is a parole violator at Cedar Rapids.

When the judge learned the two had been in jail since their arrest over six weeks ago, he asked County Attorney Ralph Neuzil what his excuse was for being so slow.

"I'm fed up with people, especially young people, being held at this (county) jail without being brought in for trial," said Gaffney. He reminded Neuzil of a bill in the legislature to protect citizens against such injustices.

A bill which is now on the governor's desk would require suspects to be brought to trial within 60 days after being arrested. The two defendants have not been held longer than 60 days, Neuzil noted.

The county attorney told The Daily Iowan he was most surprised at the reprimand, since the preliminary hearing was just one week ago and it was only today that he learned the two defendants intended to plead guilty.

The two were brought before Police Judge Jay Honohan March 5 when bond was set at $2,500. Last week the defendants were bound over to district court and the preliminary hearing was held last week. Only after that hearing did the case become Neuzil's responsibility.

If the two had pleaded not guilty, they would have been held in jail until the Grand Jury meets in September, Neuzil said.

"If a week is a injustice, I am quite surprised," added Neuzil. He said the defendants had not complained of any delaying tactics.

Defense attorney, Jerry Lovelace, had no comment on the matter, but added, "I have no quarrel with anyone in the county attorney's office."

Rezoning Motion Is Turned Down By City Council

Iowa City City Council Tuesday voted 3 to 0 against a proposal for rezoning the southwest corner of Ronalds-Dodge Street intersection. Approval of the proposal would have allowed the construction of a service station at that location.

A motion directing the city attorney to prepare an ordinance for the rezoning was defeated by the council. In effect, by rejecting the motion the council defeated the rezoning proposal itself.

Councilman William K. Maas abstained from voting. Councilman Max Yocum also abstained. Negative votes came from Mayor Doderer, Thelma B. Lewis, and William C. Hubbard.

Senate Hears New Regulations Set For SUI Two-Wheelers

Increasing demand for enrollment in SUI, Iowa State University and State College of Iowa was cited as making necessary a stepped up dormitory construction program in arguments before the Iowa Senate Tuesday.

The Senate responded by passing a bill providing for a wider field of financing for dormitory construction, 49-0, and sending it to Gov. Harold Hughes for his signature.

The measure, approved by the House April 1, would grant the Board of Regents authority to refinance outstanding loans, and include them in new bond issues for new money to build additional student housing facilities.

The dormitory bonds, such as those now outstanding, are to be paid off from income received in fees paid by students using the housing facilities. No tax money is involved in the housing program.

The refunding provision for outstanding bonds and negotiable notes will permit the Board of Regents to take advantage of more favorable interest rates if they should develop.

Civil Rights Talk Slated

"The Churches and Civil Rights" will be discussed by Bishop Joseph A. Gomez of the African Methodist Episcopal Church in a lecture at 4 p.m. Monday (April 22) in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol.

The address will be sponsored by the SUI School of Religion. Bishop Gomez, one of the world's outstanding Negro clergymen, is presiding bishop over the Fourth Episcopal District of the A.M.E. Church, which includes Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, and Canada. He attended Wilberforce University, Xenia, Ohio, and Payne and Eden Theological Seminaries.

Monday morning Bishop Gomez will speak to SUI students in the Religion in American Today class. A noon luncheon will be given in the bishop's honor by the Iowa City Bethel A.M.E. Church on the Sun Porch of the Iowa Memorial Union.

He will be honored at a reception at 5:30 p.m. given by Mrs. Helen Lemme, president of the Iowa City Area Council of Churches, at her home at 603 South Capitol Street, Iowa City.

Mid-America Pipeline Request Recommended

Mid-America Pipeline Company's application for rezoning was one of six recommended for approval by the county zoning and planning commission Wednesday. Three other applications failed to receive recommendations.

The company's application asked for commercial zoning of agricultural property in Scott township to construct a gas storage plant.

SUIowans who own two-wheeled vehicles will be subject to fines by the University for specific offenses under the terms of regulations announced Wednesday by the University Parking Committee.

Max Peterson, A3, Oakville, Student Senate representative on the Committee, explained the regulations in a report to the Senate Tuesday night. Peterson said the Committee had passed the regulations to prevent accidents which might occur without a system of rules.

The new regulations, as approved by the Senate, are:

1. All bicycles used on the campus must be registered with the Iowa City Police and comply with the Iowa City bicycle ordinance.
2. No student shall ride a bicycle on any University sidewalk or on any sidewalk adjacent to the campus.
3. In the Pentacrest and adjacent areas and in all other areas where bicycle stands are available, bicycles shall be parked only in those stands.
4. No bicycle shall be parked so as to limit in any way entrance to a building or the use of a sidewalk, drive, or street. No bicycle shall be parked in any University building, or in the window areas of any building.
5. The University Police may impound any bicycle not bearing an Iowa City registration and parked at any point on the campus.
6. Motorcycles and motor scooters are subject to the regulations related to bicycles.

Former SUIowan Sued for $300,000

Dr. Andrew Ivy, former head of the University of Illinois medical school, has brought a $300,000 libel suit against Dr. George D. Stoddard, chancellor of New York University and former SUIowan.

Ivy filed suit contending Stoddard libeled him in a book about krebiozen, a controversial anticancer drug presently being investigated by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Ivy is one of the drug's primary supporters.

Dr. Stoddard was awarded his Ph.D. at Iowa in 1925. During his last six years at SUI he was dean of the graduate school.

ers are subject to the regulations related to bicycles.

7. No bicycle, motorcycle, or motor scooter shall be parked in such a way that it interferes with the use of a parking facility by other vehicles.

8. A violation of these regulations shall result in a fine of $1.00 for the first offense, $2.00 for the second offense, and $3.00 or the third and subsequent offenses. Disciplinary action may result from offenses after the third.

Such fines may be appealed to the Student Traffic Court by filing a written appeal at the University Police Office within seven days of the date of the violation.

Bids Open Today For Construction Of County Home

Construction bids for the new $795,000 Johnson County home will be opened at 1:30 p.m. today in the court house.

Bids will be taken in four separate areas — general construction, plumbing and heating, electrical, and elevator installation. According to officials, construction work should begin in May if acceptable bids are received Thursday. They hope to build a "shell" before winter weather so interior work can be done during the cold season.

The building, a 110-patient capacity home, should be completed in about a year, and would probably open in the fall of 1964.

The home will be built just east and a little north of the present old home, about three miles west of Iowa City on the I.W.V. road.

50 Honored for High Grades — Miller Quips at Banquet

Harlan Miller, Des Moines Register and Tribune columnist, opened the Hillcrest Scholarship Banquet on a light note by saying that "most of you have made your high grades by staying away from banquets like this." The banquet honored 50 men with the highest grade point averages in Hillcrest Wednesday night.

Paternalism at SUI is something that students can not get along without, Miller told the students. But it is good to rebel from parents and is equally inevitable, he added.

M. L. Huit, dean of students, remarked that paternalism by the University is good to a degree and it should be carried out for the best of the student in terms of educational objectives.

Discussing topics submitted by the banquet committee, Miller said the greatest thing in Iowa to attract industry is SUI with its famous people like James Van Allen and Paul Engle.

"I see no objection to it," Miller continued when the topic of co-educational dormitories was discussed. "After all, we all live in co-educational housing all our lives," he said.

Iowans may defeat liquor by the drink Miller said, but they will then have liquor by the bottle.

In an era of tension, "I hand you, at least by extension, the gift of indifference," the columnist said. In a relaxed manner students should not take one side or the other too strongly, he advised.

This housing subject might startle people who have not thought about it before he said, and might give SUI a controversy it does not want.

Dean Huit, a guest at the banquet, said he believed that coed housing would not receive that much reaction from the state. Furthermore, he pointed out that it has been considered by the University.

Iowans may defeat liquor by the drink Miller said, but they will then have liquor by the bottle.

In an era of tension, "I hand you, at least by extension, the gift of indifference," the columnist said. In a relaxed manner students should not take one side or the other too strongly, he advised.

Sometimes people become entrenched in their opinions, he said, but if they think about them they will take a relaxed attitude.

Dick Bruning, A2, Davenport, accepted a certificate for Seashore House for having the highest grade point of a 2.499 in the dormitory.

Dean Huit noted that in his 16 years at the University, this is the first time that a men's dormitory has achieved such a high academic record.

It Takes More Fingers Than You Have...

If you have wondered why your gas and electric bills are larger than in the past . . . stop a moment and count the number of appliances you have in your home. You can't count them on your ten fingers!

Most homes now have at least a dozen appliances, not counting lighting equipment. Some have as many as forty or more - many of which have been added during recent years. As a result, the average home uses about twice as much electricity today as it did ten years ago . . . and more gas too.

This, in turn, adds up to a greater measure of family comfort, homemaking efficiency, leisure time, and home entertainment. It also adds up to higher monthly bills on the average than in years gone by.

Fortunately though, the cost of gas and electricity per unit has remained surprisingly low in comparison with other living costs.

Just for fun - check this list of modern gas and electric appliances. How many do you have in your home? How many have you added in the past ten years?
