IN THE CITY—

ROTARY. Henry Burnett, distribution personnel manager of the American Optical Company in Southbridge, Mass., will speak to the Iowa City Rotary Club today at the club's noon luncheon in the Hotel Jefferson on "Man Most Likely to Succeed".

IN THE STATE—

PAY INCREASE. The Iowa Izaak Walton League has recommended that the Legislature increase the salary of the director of the State Conservation Commission to $14,500 a year.

In a letter to state legislators Wednesday, league officers said a higher salary is necessary to attract a well qualified person for the job.

CIVIL BATTLE. Testimony in a court fight between two sets of grandparents for the custody of two children left motherless in a domestic tragedy ended in Des Moines District Court Wednesday.

Final arguments in the case involving Mr. and Mrs. George E. Lord of Bondurant and Mr. and Mrs. Mel S. Grove of Ankeny will be heard today. At stake is the custody of James E. Lord II, 2 and his brother, Keith, 5 months.

SALE INCREASE. Iowa dealers in new motor vehicles and trailers boosted their sales by slightly more than $2.5 million in March, compared with the same month last year.

The total dollar-volume last March was $30,314,922, and the increase over the corresponding previous period was $2,564,362. These figures are based on an Iowa Tax Commission report released Wednesday in Des Moines.

IN THE NATION—

KENNEDY. In addition to many comments on the racial situation in Birmingham, Ala., President Kennedy had remarks on a wide area of subjects, both foreign and domestic. For details, see page 8.

POLARIS FIRE. In Vallejo, Calif., a flash fire on the new $45-million Polaris submarine Woodrow Wilson injured three workmen Wednesday.

The fire was reported to have caused only minor damage to the submarine which is being outfitted for commissioning later this year.

EXTRA POSTAL FUNDS. The Senate passed Wednesday night a $6,069,466,250 money bill carrying extra funds its sponsors said would prevent any cuts in postal service in the coming year.

The bill — first appropriations measure for fiscal 1964 considered by the Senate this session — includes funds for the Post Office Department, Treasury, White House and several executive agencies.

The Senate allowed $72,440,250 more than the House voted. But its total was $77,375,750 under President Kennedy's budget requests.

IN THE WORLD—

SPYS SNARL. In Moscow a British businessman on trial as a spy testified Wednesday he listened in a hotel bathroom to an offer by the British Intelligence Service to speak a Russian spy to safety in a submarine.

Both the confessed Russian spy, Oleg Penkovsky, and the British businessman, Greville Wynne, 42, stood side by side in the prisoners dock snarling at one another, each trying to blame the other for a large part in their operations.

Both have pleaded guilty to the charges, Wynne for espionage and Penkovsky for high treason.

'Servant' Opens Tonight at 8

The last production of the University Theatre season, "The Servant of Two Masters," will open tonight at 8 under the direction of Dr. James Goussief.

The play, by Carlo Goldoni, is a wild comedy of the Italian Commedia dell'Arte of the 16th Century. Performances will also be given May 10, 11, 15, 16, 17, and 18.

The wildly improbable plot of "The Servant of Two Masters" deals with disguises, mistaken identities and the like, and centers around the efforts of Truffaldino (Harlequin) to attempt to serve two masters simultaneously without their being aware of it.

Tickets are available at the Theatre Ticket Desk, in the East Lobby of the Union. Tickets are $1.50 or free upon presentation of a student ID, and phone reservations may be made by calling Ext. 4432. The ticket desk is open daily from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. till noon.

Racial Truce Holds In Spite of Jailings

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A 24-hour truce was called in racial demonstrations in this strife-torn city Wednesday and Negroes said they would stick to it despite a short return to jail by two of their chief leaders.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and the Rev. Ralph Abernathy were convicted on an earlier charge of parading without a permit shortly after the truce was announced. They stayed in jail a few hours and then were released on $2,500 bond each.

King said he hoped his conviction would have no effect on the truce.

It appeared that the truce had ended temporarily what President Kennedy described as "an ugly situation in Birmingham, Ala."

But after a city judge sentenced King and Abernathy to 180-day jail sentences and fined them $100 each, some Negro leaders said the truce was off.

Later it seemed to be on again. The Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, titular head of the Birmingham integration movement, said mass demonstrations which have plagued the city for the past six days would not be resumed.

Negro leaders said almost continuous negotiations brought prospects for an early settlement.

King told a news conference before he was convicted and jailed Wednesday: "We are hopeful that the possibility looms that we may be able to make some sort of settlement within the next 24 hours. We are very near a settlement."

King and Abernathy were arrested April 19 for leading a marching demonstration in protest to segregation in this troubled steel city. They were sentenced by City Judge C. H. Brown.

At mid-afternoon Wednesday, Negro leaders said they were hopeful for an early settlement of racial difficulties. Then they called the truce.

In less than two hours after their announcement, hundreds of Negroes began streaming again to the church where they have begun their demonstrations for the past six days. Their leaders promptly sent them home.

City police were withdrawn from the area. All day they had patrolled the quiet streets in force, bulwarked by state officers sent here by Gov. George C. Wallace.

Appearing at a news conference shortly after the truce announcement, Kennedy expressed gratification at the truce. He also said very real abuses had been too long inflicted on the Negroes here.

Since April 3, this city has been plagued by racial difficulties. They became intensified last week.

In a few days 2,400 persons were jailed. Jeering crowds of Negroes paraded in demonstrations. Hundreds of Negro children stayed away from school to join in the protests. Police dogs and fire hoses were used to hold the crowds in check.

Specially trained state police and an armored car were brought in. But Wednesday the tension had eased.

Talks to find a solution were under way here and in Washington, where President Kennedy's advisers were considering several ways of intervening in the crisis.

Meanwhile in Washington, Representatives of both parties blasted racial violence in Birmingham, Ala. Wednesday as proof of a need for Federal legislation as hearings opened on President Kennedy's civil rights program.

The bipartisan support raised the prospect that an effective Southern Democrat-Republican coalition that could block any civil rights legislation might not develop in the House this time. Strong opposition is anticipated in the Senate, however.

JFK Silent After Racial Truce Ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy was silent on the abrupt ending of a truce in the Birmingham racial demonstrations Wednesday night after failing what had looked like a compromise in the struggle.

Andrew T. Hatcher, acting White House press secretary, declined to comment on the announcement by Negro leaders in Birmingham that the truce had been called off.

At his news conference three hours earlier Kennedy spoke in a hopeful tone of the 24-hour truce in exchange for white "steps . . . to meet the justifiable needs of the Negro community."

Kennedy spoke just a half-hour after Negro leaders in Birmingham announced that the massive demonstrations would be suspended for 24 hours.

Kennedy described the situation in Birmingham as an ugly one, and he made clear his belief that it stemmed from "the very real abuses too long inflicted on the Negro citizens of that community."

The President said the Justice Department has been "watching the present controversy to detect any violation of the federal civil rights or other statutes."

But, he continued, there have been no federal violations.

Court Finds Very Substantial Inequality in Both Houses

DES MOINES (AP) — A three-judge Federal Court held Wednesday that "very substantial inequality" exists in both houses of the Iowa Legislature, but refused by a 2-1 split to rule at this time on the constitutionality of the Shaff Plan of reapportionment.

The people of Iowa will vote on the Shaff plan at a special election Dec. 3.

The three judges — Martin Van Oosterhout of Orange City, Roy Stephenson of Des Moines and Edward J. McManus of Cedar Rapids — agreed that:

- The plaintiffs, Charles L. Davis of Des Moines, president of the Iowa Federation of Labor (AFL-CIO) and A. Jack Lewis of Des Moines, federation secretary-treasurer, have established "a quite substantial disparity in representation" in both houses of the Legislature as presently constituted.
- The Federal Court goes here and will continue to have jurisdiction over the matter of equitable representation.

Rocky's Minister Brcke Rule, Faces Disciplinary Move

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — The Presbyterian Church said Wednesday it would discipline the minister who officiated at the marriage of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Margaretta F. Murphy.

The Hudson River Presbytery held that the Rev. Marshall L. Smith, who performed the ceremony Saturday, did not observe a Church rule that a minister have approval of the presbytery to marry a person divorced less than a year.

upon the rationality of the apportionment" proposed by it.

The Shaff Plan, named for Sen. David O. Shaff (R-Clinton) passed two successive sessions of the Legislature as required for a constitutional amendment and now comes to a vote of the people.

The present Legislature has 108 representatives, one from each county and an additional member from each of the nine most populous counties, and a 50-member Senate based on population.

Parents Can't Help Kids With Math Now

By TERRY FERRER
Herald Tribune News Service
In the new mathematics, there is one great advantage for parents: They can't help their children with homework anymore.

That is, not unless they want to start all over again with such items as sets, Venn diagrams, Boolean algebra, non-Euclidean geometry and probability and statistical thinking.

And this is school math, not college or graduate work. If one and one do not necessarily equal two — and they don't in the new math — don't expect to find such old standbys as Archimedes' principle in the new physics, either. The principle that a body displaces its own weight in water is just not taught — there isn't room in the new curriculum.

Parents can't help their children with math problems anymore. The laws of mathematics that they learned just aren't taught in today's modern schools. Terry Ferrer explores the new mathematics in this third article in a six-part series on classroom instruction.

In chemistry and biology too, familiar laws governing such processes as reaction and growth are giving way to experimental student laboratory work and thinking in broad concepts.

The current curricular revolution in science and math has flourished more vigorously than in any of the other academic disciplines. In a bare 10 years, college professors and high school and other teachers by joint effort have forged experimental texts, pioneering films, new laboratory

Discrimination Protested

SARE Pickets Parade In Front of Woolworth

Pickets appeared on Iowa City's sidewalks Wednesday as members of the Student Association for Racial Equality (SARE) paraded in front of the Woolworth Co. store, 122 S. Clinton St.

A spokesman for the group said the picket is a protest against the company's segregation policies in Birmingham, Ala.

One of the six picketers, John Goulet, A3, Cedar Rapids, said the group has sent a telegram to the company's headquarters in New York to inform them of the picket and explain the reasons for the demonstrations.

Panty Raid Action Lags

Apparently no further action was taken Wednesday involving participants in the attempted panty raid last Sunday evening at the men's dormitories.

M. L. Huit, dean of students, said no other students had been suspended as a result of the incident. Five students were suspended Monday and one Tuesday.

Huit also said he knew of no new developments resulting from the police investigation.

Evert C. Wallenfeldt, counselor to men, who has been conferring with students suspected of participating in the incident, said Wednesday he had "no comment."

Goulet said the picket is not directed against the Iowa City store, but against the national management for their failure to take action against segregation.

Roger Hoekstra, manager of the Iowa City store, said he understands the reasons for the demonstration, but he felt it would do no good. "It hasn't hurt our business any. In fact, most people don't know what it is all about. They have been coming into the store to ask what was going on outside," he said.

"Our company is not in favor of segregation and we do not practice it here. The company's policies in the South are merely in compliance with Birmingham city ordinances," Hoekstra said.

Goulet said the group plans to continue picketing for two weeks from noon until 4:30 p.m.

Information sheets explaining the picketing have been printed to distribute at the demonstration site, Goulet said.

U.S. House Passes 1.2 Billion Dollar Military Pay Raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed a $1.2-billion military pay raise bill Wednesday. It would grant the nation's servicemen their first salary increases in five years. The bill was approved by standing vote of 293-10 and sent to the Senate.

A scrap over pension provisions ended with adoption of a $30.5-million amendment liberalizing retirement for servicemen who retired prior to June 1, 1958.

Another amendment sets up a system of combat pay for servicemen subjected to hostile fire in areas where the Cold War turns hot.

Rep. Charles E. Bennett (D-Fla.) sponsored that amendment, saying it would cost between $1 million and $2 million a year. It was adopted on a voice vote after approval of an amendment proposed by Rep. James C. Cleveland (R-N.H.) made it retroactive to Jan. 1, 1961.

Property Tax Relief Included In Measure

Senators Approve 1% Increase in 28-22 Vote Bill Returned to House

DES MOINES (AP) — A package $45.3 million tax increase and property tax relief bill, financed principally by a one per cent sales tax boost, passed the Iowa Senate 28-22 late Wednesday.

Sen. D. C. Nolan (R-Iowa City) was among 27 Republican Senators voting in favor of the bill.

The measure, completed after three days of consideration, was returned to the House for action on Senate amendments.

THE SENATE VOTED to spend $44 million of the anticipated amount in additional revenue for school aid, agricultural land tax credits and property tax relief.

An amendment to the revenue bill would add $10 million a year for agricultural land tax credits, $10 million for direct state aid to schools and divert $24 million into a property tax relief fund created by the measure. The amendment was adopted 37-13.

The last legislature appropriated $11.25 million annually for ag land credits and $29 million a year in school aid.

Money from the property tax relief fund would be distributed to counties to be credited against property tax bills. The amount credited would be based on assessed valuation.

PRIMARY SOURCES OF the revenue are a sales tax increase from two to three per cent, netting $38 million a year; extending the sales tax to hotels and motels, $1.4 million; hiking the use tax from two to three per cent, $4.3 million; and raising the corporation income tax from three to four per cent, $1.6 million.

The bill would repeal all of the six-million dollar credits tax except one mill pledged to retire Korean War bonus bonds. To replace this revenue it would collect a two per cent surtax, in addition to income tax, on income from dividends and interest.

The Senate rejected a Democratic-proposed proposal for a withholding system on state income taxes.

The final vote came at 6:10 p.m. after a long day of arguments in the sweltering Senate chamber.

OPPOSITION OF THE measure attacked it as one which in the long run would saddle Iowans with higher sales taxes and eventually make them pay both these as well as higher property taxes.

"We are soaking the little guy with a 50 per cent increase in his sales tax on food, medicine and so on, but we aren't increasing the tax on the fellow who buys a Cadillac one dime," Sen. Andrew Frommelt (D-Dubuque) declared.

This was a reference to a provision of the bill which would leave the sales or use tax on new cars at two per cent.

"We have heard about the tax evaders in Carter Lake who go across the border to shop to escape the Iowa sales tax. You are going to create a lot of other Carter Lakes where people can legally evade the tax by saying they come from another state."

Hughes Disagrees With Tax Measure

STORM LAKE (AP) — Gov. Harold Hughes said Wednesday night that the tax bill passed by the Iowa Senate "is not a bill I like."

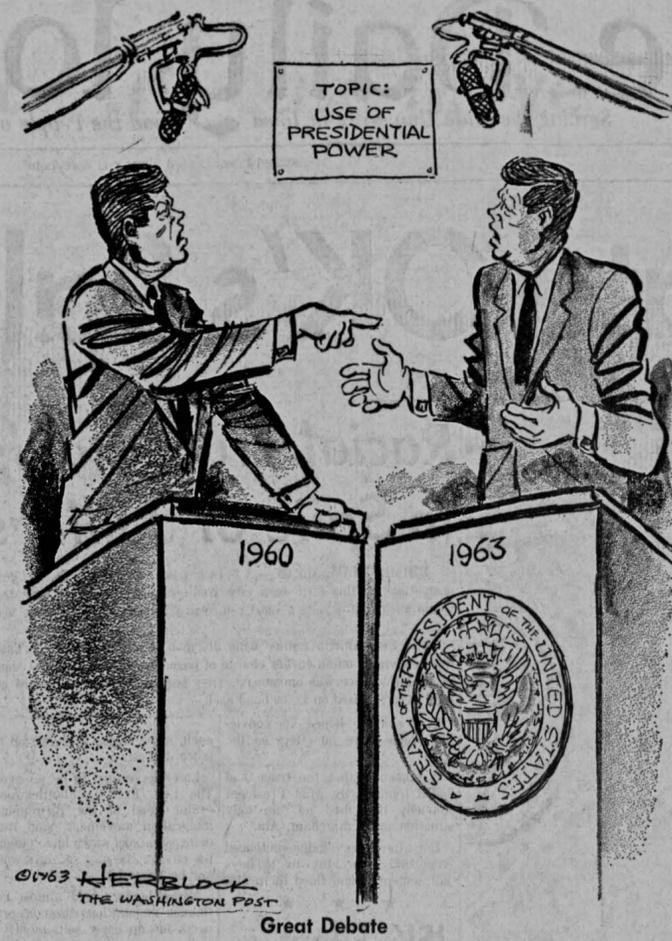

But the governor told a reporter that he would make no further comment on the measure until he has an opportunity to examine the details.

Hughes was reached here at St. Mary's High School where he was the scheduled speaker at a banquet.

The governor had previously indicated that he might veto any tax bill increasing the sales tax but not including a withholding system for the state income tax, which he advocated. The Senate defeated an amendment to incorporate a withholding system.

A Look at the Senate's ROTC Decision

At the April 30 meeting of the SUI Student Senate a 15 to 7 vote was recorded in favor of abolishing the remaining year of compulsory ROTC training at SUI. This action could hardly be called unexpected since students are generally quick to oppose activities which are forced upon them. We feel, however, that the thought put into the ROTC question probably was too narrowly concerned with the one fact that ROTC is compulsory.

Which leads us to the next question: Are compulsory activities, by their very nature, undesirable? In the typical case of studying (which is a compulsory activity if one wants to remain in the University), the answer clearly is that it is not undesirable. To be sure, it may be unpleasant, and in this same line, we feel that compulsory ROTC is not undesirable. ROTC also may be unpleasant, especially to those not used to discipline, but it is not undesirable.

At the meeting, George Mayer, an Inter-Fraternity Council representative who introduced the resolution for abolishing compulsory ROTC, said he thought putting the program on a voluntary basis "could strengthen it by limiting the program to only the men who are interested in ROTC." Jim Kelley, Town Man representative, opposed the bill on the basis that a "lot of people would be eliminated from the Advanced Program (the last two voluntary years of the ROTC program) because they wouldn't have the opportunity to learn about it."

Mr. Kelley's position tends to be supported by facts. An informal survey as taken among the Army ROTC juniors and seniors last year in an attempt to learn if the compulsory training was influential in determining if the cadet would continue on in the Advanced Corps. The question asked was, "Would you be in Advanced ROTC today if you had not been required to take Basic ROTC when you entered as a freshman?" Out of the 77 cadets in the Advanced Corps, 44 checked the "I doubt it" blank. This implies that instead of the 77 Army commissions granted at SUI during the last two-year span, the number would have been only 33.

The abolitionist might now ask, "So what?" Over and above the "individual rights" argument the abolitionists espouse, the fact remains that the ROTC (Army figures) supplies more than one-half of the second lieutenants who are commissioned annually. This number is now approximately 11,200 men. In the past, the Army's stated requirements have been 14,000 ROTC officers annually, and for several years this number has not been met.

The supply of officers would be diminished even more if the "opportunity to learn" about the program from participation was not present, and putting the program on a purely voluntary basis while leaving the Advanced program as it is now could only reduce the officer output, not only at SUI but nation-wide.

The Armed Forces have not been insensitive to the sentiment on many campuses that the compulsory program be eliminated (out of 247 colleges with Army ROTC, 97 of them do not require the Basic course). The Defense Department has proposed that a new program be instituted, to eliminate the Basic requirement and to limit the program to the last two years of college. The pay incentive would be increased as would the time spent at Summer Camp between the junior and senior years. The Army expects that several thousand more men would enter the Advanced Corps under this system, and that the required number of qualified officers would be commissioned each year.

The fact that the plans have been made and are now before the Bureau of the Budget and, if approved, before Congress, demonstrates that the Armed Forces recognize the problem and are taking measures to improve the ROTC program. Before SUI abolishes the one-year requirement the consequences should be weighed carefully. To abolish the remaining year before the new plan is instituted might give the individual two or three hours more a week to do with what he wants, but it would also weaken that nebulous area of national security. Our final question might very well be: Which is more important?

—Doug Carlson

I gather from reports I have seen that General Carlos P. Romulo has been going about the country lecturing audiences on The New Asia. The burden of his argument, as I read the reviews, is that many of us enjoy a distorted concept of Asia, that we often misinterpret an urge toward independence as necessarily anti-American, and that (and here I quote one reviewer's words) the United States press "adds to the confusion by consistently labeling peaceful Asian demonstrations as (and here the reviewer quotes Romulo) 'Communist-inspired mob violence'..." I defer to no one in the generation of antipathy for the journalistic practices of what passes for "the United States press." But I was struck by the fact that one of the most disturbing articles I have read — one which might easily have upset the perspective of any number of well-meaning readers — was written by the General himself. Containing many of the very bugaboos of which he now complains, it carried the alarming title "America, Wake Up!" and appeared in that highly respected compendium of international affairs and medical research, The Reader's Digest. The date was November, 1960.

I REALIZE THAT quotations out of context are inconclusive; but, if I had not identified the source, you could be forgiven for thinking that this one came from the Blue Book of the Birchers. "The irony... is that an understanding of the Communist challenge is not hard to obtain, since it has been frankly spelled out by Kremlin leaders from Lenin to Khrushchev. Everything that has taken place in Asia (bold face mine), for instance, conforms to a blueprint drawn up by a Soviet-sponsored Congress of the Peoples of the East held in Baku in September 1920. There the master plan for exploiting colonial tensions and nationalist sentiment was formulated and published (his italics)."

Small wonder that Americans — and those who put into the newspaper what Americans expect to read — see Communists under, on top of and IN the bed. The very fact that such a message came from a man with his credentials made the Romulo article all the more damaging. This was not an article written by Westbrook Pegler or George Sokolsky; it could not have been "planted" by the China Lobby; it required no financing from the Texas looneybird fringe. This was an "authoritative" view given by a friend of the United States whose service to the United Nations placed him above reproach.

"The unfortunate truth is that the free-world leaders are dealing with a sinister global conspiracy by international gangsters..." It is a warning reminiscent of Clare "Globaloney" Luce before he discovered skin diving. Why, indeed, shouldn't we look at independence movements as not only anti-American but as the inevitable product of superior Communist techniques which are certain to succeed regardless of the will of the peoples? Romulo has written:

"THEY (THE SOVIET Union and Red China) have hundreds of schools which turn out armies of experts in brainwashing and subversion for deployment throughout the world. In addition they train Asians (among others)... in all revolutionary techniques... Who, after such a healthy clearing of the air, can doubt that the rumblings felt among Formosans, for example, and South Viet Namese and South Koreans are the work of schooled subversives and hardly to be taken as the serious expression of the desire to be free.

And how shall we prevail over such forces? We must become like them. Communists, after all, are winning by superior Cold War methods. We must outfight them with their own weapons and "on their own terms." And how do they fight — these people we would imitate? They use every weapon "from propaganda leaflets to military force, from sabotage and murder to smiles and handshakes."

It is obvious that, in the more than two-year's since the call of "America, Wake Up!" was sounded, we in America — and General Romulo back in Asia — have come to a somewhat more sanguine view of what's needed in the Orient and in most other parts of the world (except Cuba; drat that Castro, anyway). Even with that reporting, there has been a gradual recognition of the corrupt character of "our men" in Taiwan, South Viet Nam, Korea and elsewhere. And although we may have no immediate solutions for the problems they pose, we can take some cheer from the thought that when America finally does "Wake Up!" its reactions — in Asia, at least — will not be entirely governed by the post-hypnotic suggestion implanted by the Romulo-Reader's Digest article of November, 1960.

Grand Design for the Continent —

NATO's Nuclear Umbrella Aims at Unifying Europe

By LAURENCE BARRETT
 New York Herald Tribune

WASHINGTON — The Administration's effort to construct a nuclear strike force under NATO is an attempt to preserve at least the outlines of the United States' grand design for Europe. Going far beyond military considerations, the design calls for great economic and political unity among this country's allies in Western Europe, including Great Britain. The vociferous nationalism of France and the desire of some other European countries to have a greater role in nuclear affairs threatens this concept. A complicating factor is reluctance among some military men and members of Congress to share U.S. nuclear control and know-how too widely.

There would be no dispute, in the view of many officials here, if the problem were purely military. There is no military necessity for a new "multilateral" force of ships bearing Polaris missiles.

THE U.S. would be quite content to continue to expand its network on land-based inter-continental ballistic missiles to a projected total of about 1,300. This is to be supplemented by a fleet — to number 41 in a few years — of atomic-powered submarines. They would carry 656 Polaris rockets.

This strategic power plant, reinforced by smaller, tactical weapons in Europe, would be more than adequate to protect the Western alliance. The argument goes further — the Europeans should use their new wealth to increase their conventional forces and thus bring NATO's ground strength up to par.

Instead, the major powers of Western Europe have become increasingly restive because the U.S. controls about 98 per cent of the alliance's nuclear punch. The protest is not uniform. It ranges from President De Gaulle's unqualified insistence on an independent French force to Germany's quiet entreaties for a say in nuclear matters.

WASHINGTON FEARS that the growth of independent national nuclear forces would have a number of adverse effects. It would waste money. It would excite competition rather than co-operation. The possession of a national force by Germany would kindle suspicions on the part of France. Small independent forces owned by Great Britain, Germany, France and Italy would be of little military value, according to official opinion here. They would also increase the chances of nuclear "accidents" and make it even more difficult to get a nuclear test ban treaty. The problem is not really new. As long ago as 1960, the Eisenhower Administration proposed to NATO a multilateral arrangement. Nothing came of it at that time. The Kennedy Administration revived the scheme late this year because of the French challenge and the Administration's decision to drop the Skybolt project. The latter factor caused the U.S. and Britain to review their joint nuclear policies.

What has emerged, since the U.S.-British talks at Nassau in December, is a two-stage plan.

FIRST, THE national forces in Europe now under NATO that already have U.S. controlled nuclear weapons — or soon will have — are to be coordinated to a greater degree, especially as to targeting. Also, they will get reinforcements in the form of three American Polaris submarines and British nuclear bombers. The practical effect of this change is minimal.

Many of the details remain to be settled. Broadly speaking, the American proposal envisions a fleet of cargo-type, missile-carrying surface ships owned cooperatively. Each vessel would have a crew of mixed nationality to underscore the principle of integration. Unlike the inter-allied force, an individual country could not easily withdraw from the operation.

OFFICIALS HERE express confidence that the Europeans — except France — can be persuaded to see things Washington's way.

Letters to the Editor —
Correcting a Popular Misconception

To the Editor:
 No responsibly minded citizen can remain indifferent to the storms over the morality of boxing, stirred up as a result of recent ring disasters in this country. For a long time, there has been a crying need for exposure of the racket that has characterized this professional sport both in America and Europe. There is an equally crying need, however, for the kind of information that will lead the public to disassociate the sins of professional boxing from the amateur game.

Distinctions between codes of value and practices in these two sports are as radical as between those of professional and amateur wrestling. The virtues of amateur boxing, at collegiate level and between the armed services — the opportunities it offers to the intelligent youth for a very specialized and beneficial form of physical training, for the development of quick thinking, character building and the spirit of team awareness — these can never be understated. I am able to testify personally to the noticeable value that familiarity with this sport has brought to young boys and men properly instructed and trained. For some time following an amateur career in British and European rings, I have coached boxing both with boys and college students in England, and have undertaken this with constant proof of the physical and unquestionably educational value of this sport when carried on under the right circumstances.

The virtues of boxing, of course, were familiar to the Greeks, and more than one classical philosopher was sensitive to the aesthetic and scientific aspects of the game — without having to resort to the caestus! It was, therefore, with some surprise that on visiting SUI for the first time in 1961, I should find that a University with such ample athletic facilities should have no provision for instruction in the noble art.

There is a group of students at SUI, however, who have caught a glimpse of the values I have referred to, and whom it has been my pleasure to coach for a short period of time on a purely voluntary basis. These are men who, as complete novices, have worked out with me in the Field House simply out of love for the game.

One last observation. Even the recent pronouncement of the Vatican on the subject of boxing, by no means inadequate in its exploring of the professional racket, does not seem to include an awareness of the amateur sport. Amateur boxing and prize fighting have never been synonymous in purpose, as a history of the former can illustrate. At Oxford and Cambridge, boxing is a "full blue" sport (eligible, that is, for the highest athletic honors), and matches between the universities are held annually, as they have been for centuries.

It has not been my wish to initiate a heated correspondence in these columns on this controversy, but simply to do something toward correcting a popular misconception. I might add that I still have occasion to "work out" periodically in the Field House, and would be very glad to hear from any gentleman who is interested in exchanging friendly blows with me — either verbally or with the gloves!

Should Anyone Sit Home?

To the Editor:
 I'm a clergyman (an unfortunate word!) who agrees with you that liquor-by-the-drink is not a grave moral issue — at least not in comparison with welfare legislation, education and fair employment laws and practice.

But I am disturbed that you are disturbed by the "invasion of the clergy" upon the State Legislature when this issue comes up in the House. If teachers think that they and education are suffering at the hands of the Legislature, shouldn't they try to influence their representatives? If Negroes are concerned by the injustice of present-day hiring practices, shouldn't they press in person for the passage of adequate fair employment legislation? If individuals are convinced that justice goes a-begging when a murderer is executed, should they merely write letters to Des Moines?

And if concerned pastors are convinced that there is a moral issue involved in liquor-by-the-drink, why shouldn't they go to Des Moines? Why should anyone sit home if an issue he feels strongly about is being debated by our State Legislature?

Republicans Play Kennedy: 'A Great Leap Backward'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican after Republican rose in the Senate Wednesday to flay President Kennedy with accusations that his policies have caused "a great leap backward" in U.S. prestige around the world.

This day was chosen for the concerted attack because it is the 18th anniversary of VE Day, when victory was won in Europe in World War II.

With Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois holding the floor and giving the go-ahead to his colleagues, they used such phrases as these to decry Kennedy's policies:

"Our foreign relations all over the world are in disarray," Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kan.)

"Things have gone from bad to worse," Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.)

When the Republicans finished, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana made an emotional reply. He said not one constructive alternative to this nation's policies of the past 18 years was offered.

"The easiest thing a politician can do is to find fault without offering any constructive alternatives," Mansfield said.

He added that the Republicans' speeches added up to a charge of continual failure of U.S. policy since World War II, even though Republicans were in power in the White House during eight years of that period.

Mansfield said "Russia has added nothing to its territory since 1945." The Soviets were stopped, he said, in Iran, Turkey, Greece, Berlin and West Germany and in Korea, and Europe was revitalized with the Marshall Plan.

Critics of Kennedy should ask themselves, "What would I do if I were in the President's shoes?" Mansfield said.

Sen. Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) used the phrase "a great leap backward" in attacking the administration and said America's prestige will continue to slip unless the U.S. policy course in Cuba, Europe and Asia is strengthened.

The GOP senators touched country after country in their criticism but centered their fire mainly on Kennedy's handling of the Cuban situation.

Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.) the leadoff GOP speaker, said the reasons for the loss of prestige "may be summed up in one short word — Cuba." He said Kennedy has "renege on solemn obligations," including a pledge that this country would not permit "a regime dominated by international atheistic communism in the Western Hemisphere."

"Worldwide," Tower said "Cuba invokes an image of a weak and wavering America."

Syrian Crisis Threatens Federation

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The week-old political crisis in Damascus and northern Syria boiled up with pro-Nasser demonstrations Wednesday, but police quickly clamped a lid on them.

Shooting broke out for an hour and a half in the northern city of Aleppo and usually reliable sources said several persons were killed. Police imposed a curfew.

Demonstrators gathered in Port Said Square in Damascus but riot police scattered them without firing a shot. Witnesses said many of the demonstrators were refugees from Palestine, rabid supporters of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

Apparently because of the political crisis in Syria, Nasser cut short his official visit to Algeria by a day and sailed for home after announcing his plans for a trip to Yugoslavia and talks with President Tito.

Presumably Nasser plans to meet in Cairo with members of the Syrian National Revolutionary Council, who flew there for consultations.

The crisis, erupting six days ago, threatened to torpedo plans for a union under Nasser of Syria, Egypt and Iraq in an Arab federation. Plans were made for the federation last month in Cairo.

But Syrian Ba'ath Socialists, who have been cautious about union with Nasser, have squeezed followers of Nasser out of the revolutionary government. The Ba'athists had a leading role in taking Syria out of the old U.A.R. in 1961 because Nasser suppressed their activities.

SUI Psychology Department Gets Grant for Building

A grant of $705,000 for use in the construction of a new psychology research addition has been awarded to SUI by the National Science Foundation, federal officials have announced.

The grant is contingent upon the state's providing a matching sum for the facility. A request for $750,000 for this purpose is included in the University's capital appropriations asking currently under consideration of the Iowa Legislature.

If approved, the $1.5 million addition would form a wing to the southeast end of East Hall, which is now in use by the Psychology Department. The additional space is needed for research and training activities of a staff, undergraduate and graduate student body which has doubled in the last two decades, SUI officials have indicated.

HAWKEYE SPORTS SCOPE

By Bill Pemble

FINALLY THE MAJORS have decided to part with a little bit of their cash in the hopes of doing something constructive. College baseball has had very little help from the big leagues even though an increasingly large number of pros are being produced by the collegiate ranks.

Ex-Big Tenners now active include big Frank Howard, Ron Peranowski, Harvey Kuenn, and the current sensation, catcher Bill Freehan. This may be one of the best bargains in which the majors' owners have had a chance to invest.

Hawkeye Coach Dick Schultz said he first heard about the league when the Iowa baseballers were in Peoria playing Bradley. Coach Leo Schroll of the Braves said that Peoria was planning on putting a team in the new league, and that Bradley would supply some, or all, of the players.

But, Schroll expressed reservations about the matter. He said that he did not plan to go along with the league unless the majors agreed not to sign the players until their college class graduates. This rule is much the same as the pro basketball and football teams have now.

Schultz says that in order for the leagues to meet NCAA specifications, the $50,000 must be paid to the league and not to the individual teams. The Iowa coach thinks that the plan is a "great idea, but I'd go along with Leo Schroll's thinking. It'd be bad to put a fine freshman prospect in the league and then see him get signed."

"The NCAA has only approved about four or five other leagues and this would give a number of college boys a chance to play," Schultz said that perhaps the Champaign team would probably include some of the Illinois players, but that this would bring a Big Ten rule into play. The conference has ruled that only a certain number of men from each team may play baseball on the same team during the summer.

If this league holds up, Schultz says he is sure that several Iowa players would be interested. He added that he does not think that any of the Big Ten coaches have been contacted as yet about the league.

Let's hope that something comes from all this mish-mosh and college baseball will get a boost long needed.

PERHAPS A BETTER chance to watch the Hawkeye footballers of the future will come this Saturday. Jerry Burns says he plans to use the new college substitution rule in the second and fourth quarters, but will use the first and second teams against each other in the first and third periods.

Last week's efforts in front of the coaches were quite spectacular and if Wednesday night's practice session is any indication the rematch between the Blacks and the Whites will be a real knock-down drag-out affair.

The men have been put through the paces of the "winning edge" and are in fine shape. The contest Saturday will mark the end of the practice sessions so an all-out performance is virtually assured for concerned fans.

Good chance to get some Saturday sun.

Johansson May Throw in Towell

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Ingemar Johansson, former world heavyweight boxing champion, says he's fed up with glory and through with boxing. The handsome 29-year-old Swede, who knocked out Floyd Patterson in 1959 to win the heavyweight title, announced his retirement Wednesday.

"I have thought it over and there's nothing left that incites me to go on boxing," he told the newspaper Aftonbladet. "I like boxing, but I don't have to do it for money any more and I'm fed up with glory."

In Geneva, however, Johansson told newsmen he had not yet made a final decision, but thought his rating no longer was high enough to make it worthwhile to continue. "I don't need to fight for fame and more," he said. "And on the money side I can't see any interesting partners."

The first hint that Ingemar might be hanging up his gloves came from his longtime manager and advisor, Edwin Ahlquist, who wrote in his Swedish magazine, All Sport:

"You might take a tip from me and that tip is that we never again will see Ingemar in the ring. It is sad, but the only thing we can do is thank him for what has been and wish him good luck for his future."

Johansson's last fight was against Britain's Brian London April 21 in Stockholm. Ingemar won a narrow decision in the 12-round non-title bout but was knocked down in the final seconds and saved by the bell. Afterward, the Swedish Boxing Association barred him from European rings for a month until his physical condition could be thoroughly examined and approved.

Ingemar, a member of Sweden's Olympic team in 1952, astounded boxing experts when he knocked out Patterson in the third round of their title fight June 26, 1959, at New York's Polo Grounds.

His powerful right hand was dubbed "The Thunder of Thor." Patterson became the first man in history to regain the heavyweight title by stopping Johansson in the fifth round of their return fight June 20, 1960. Patterson knocked out Johansson in the sixth round of their third bout.

Frick Plans New College Baseball Loop

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick announced a major league grant of $50,000 Wednesday that would set up in the Midwest a pilot league for college players from 13 states (including Iowa) as a stepping stone to the majors.

To be known as the Central Illinois Collegiate League, it could be the forerunner of similar organizations throughout the United States. It will comprise teams from Illinois cities of Springfield, Peoria, Champaign, Galesburg, Bloomington and Lincoln.

COLLEGE PLAYERS eligible to play in the 50-game summer schedule, effective June 15, are those from Illinois, Missouri, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

Bob Stewart of St. Louis University, who planned the organization with Cleveland Indians scout Walter Shannon, said each major league team would be asked to contribute $2,500 toward the $50,000 cost of establishing the league. He said about six or seven teams had already agreed to put up their share of the cost.

GOVERNING BODY will be known as the National Collegiate Baseball Foundation, headed by Frick.

The league will operate as an intermediary between professional and college baseball and will work within the rules of the major leagues and the National Collegiate Athletic Association. It has employed coaches from colleges and universities in the six cities comprising the league.

Stewart said the players would not be paid for playing baseball, and that only their expenses for weekend trips would be paid.

INGEMAR JOHANSSON May Hang Up Gloves

Freese Third Big 10 Hitter

Iowa catcher Jim Freese moved into third place in the Big Ten batting race over the weekend. Freese has a .500 average on 3 for 16, and had also knocked in seven runs for third place in the conference.

John Machado of Ohio State has blasted his way into the batting lead.

Official statistics showed Wednesday that the Buckeye third baseman has compiled a .563 average. He also leads in total bases, with 19; home runs, with 3; and runs batted in, with 11.

Behind him in the top five come Jerry Sutton, Michigan State, and Freese, Iowa, with .500 each; Joe Romary, Wisconsin, .462; and Tom Pugh, Purdue, .458.

Jim Humay of Northwestern stood out among the pitchers with an earned run average of 0.47 for 19 innings of work. He is one of five pitchers with 2-0 records thus far.

Wisconsin held the team fielding lead with only three errors in 178 chances.

League-leading Ohio State moved into the No. 1 spot in team batting with an average of .305, just ahead of Michigan State, with .302.

There will be five single games Friday: Indiana 1-5 at Iowa 2-3, Michigan State 2-3 at Michigan 3-3, Northwestern 3-2 at Purdue 2-4, Ohio State 5-1 at Minnesota 3-3, Wisconsin 3-1 at Illinois 4-2.

Hawks To Play Tail-Enders, Top Team Here on Weekend

Iowa and Indiana, each eager to rise in the standings, meet in baseball Friday at 3:30 p.m. and on Saturday Ohio State, a leading title contender, plays the Hawkeyes in a double-header at 1 p.m.

Going into the Friday game, Indiana is tenth in the standing with 1-5, while Iowa shares seventh with 2-3. Ohio State, now at 5-1 and on top, risks that spot Friday in a game with Minnesota at Minneapolis so it is possible that the Bucks won't be in the lead when they enter the Iowa series.

COACH DICK Schultz of Iowa has announced that he will shift his rotation of pitchers to start Dale Miner vs. Indiana. Miner usually starts the first game of a Saturday double-header.

Against the Buckeyes, Jack Wiland is scheduled to hurl the opener and the second game, seven innings, probably will have Bob Gebhard, backed up if necessary by Jim McAndrew.

Miner has 2-3 for the season to date and an ERA of 3.47 and is Iowa's strike-out leader with 31 in 33 1/3 innings. He is 1-1 in Big Ten games, being credited with a victory over Minnesota and a loss to Michigan State.

WILAND, 5-1, has an ERA of 2.77 and has shown the best control of any Hawkeye, allowing only nine walks in 46 2/3 innings. He beat Minnesota on a 3-hitter but lost a 5-2 game to Michigan last week.

A 2-1 record is held by Bob Gebhard but as yet he has no record in Big Ten games. He has pitched 32 innings and has an ERA of 3.06, ranking second in strike-outs with 28.

Indiana (12-8) will start either Gary Wilbur (5-1) or Rich Scott (2-2). Both lost their only Big Ten starts. Wilbur has 36 strike-outs in 27 1/2 innings and allowed only eight walks and his ERA is 2.63.

TOP HOOSIER batters are Jim Snyder, .382; Rick Nash, .364; and Jerry Burkhardt, .304. Indiana is hitting .251 for the season and .189 in the Big Ten, for tenth place. Indiana also is last in fielding averages, .888, in conference games.

4-Run 8th Brings Cubs 5th Straight

CHICAGO (AP) — Nelson Mathews' homer launched a four-run eighth inning to push the Chicago Cubs to their fifth straight victory Wednesday as the Pittsburgh Pirates — tying the game with five unearned runs in the top of the eighth — succumbed 9-5.

The red hot Cubs, challenging for the National League lead after winning 8 of their last 9 starts, piled up a 5-0 lead behind Bob Buhl's six-hitter until the big inning.

The roof fell in as shortstop Andre Rodgers booted Bob Bailey's bouncer for an error that opened the gates for the Cubs' string of unearned runs.

Mathews led off the last of the eighth with his second homer. Jim Schaffer doubled and went to third safely when Don Elston bunted into a fielder's choice. Lou Brock's third hit of the game, a double, scored Schaffer with Elston going to third.

After Ken Hubbs grounded out, Billy Williams drew his second free pass of the game to fill the bases. Ron Santo's double was good for the final pair of runs.

The Orioles cracked out 17 hits off four Boston pitchers, including four doubles, a triple and Jim Gentile's fifth homer of the year.

Brooks Robinson led the attack with three singles and a double, while Charley Lau contributed two singles and a double. Every Baltimore starter except Barber connected safely, and seven different players knocked in runs.

The plan goes into effect May 20. Other participating conferences are the Atlantic Coast, Big Eight, Big Ten, Missouri Valley and Southwest.

Mets Nip Phillies On Kranepool Hit

NEW YORK (AP) — Jay Hook struck out 10 with a 4-hitter and set up the winning run with a ninth-inning double Wednesday in a 3-2 victory for the New York Mets over Philadelphia. Ed Kranepool's double scored pinch runner Rod Kanehl with the tie-breaking run.

Wes Covington hit a two-run homer off the right field screen in the fourth after Jay Hook had hit Tony Gonzalez with a pitch.

Tim Harkness put the Mets right back in the ball game with his second homer, a two-run drive to the right field roof in the fourth following a single by Frank Thomas.

With one out in the ninth, Hook doubled to right and Kanehl came in to run for him. Charlie Neal was walked intentionally and Ron Hunt struck out. Then 18-year-old Kranepool dropped a double to short right, scoring Kanehl.

Big 10 Joins National Letter-of-Intent Program

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Commissioner Bernie Moore said Wednesday that the Southeastern Conference will join with five others in the national letter-of-intent program designed to end inter-conference "raiding" of athletes.

The letter-of-intent provides that athletes who have agreed to enroll at a participating school will be bound by the original choice.

BUHL — A HIT!

CHICAGO (AP) — The worst batting slump on baseball's record ended Wednesday when pitcher Bob Buhl of the Chicago Cubs got a single for his first hit in 88 times at bat.

Buhl's last hit came the night of Sept. 1, 1961, when he was with Milwaukee. It was in a game at Milwaukee against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Golfers Prepare for Big 10

By BILL PIERROT
Staff Writer

Iowa's golf team, coached by Chuck Zweiner, has one dual meet remaining before going into action in the Big Ten Championships at Madison, Wisconsin, May 17th and 18th. This Saturday the Hawks meet Northern Illinois and Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind.

Zweiner reports he plans to use the same six men at both Notre Dame and Madison. These are Bob Gitchell, Ted Blair, Dave Kautz, Bill Brandenburger, Don Allen, and Alan Pechacek. Gitchell, who was recently awarded the Bucky O'Connor Memorial Award for scholarship, sportsmanship, and athletic ability, has been the steadiest man on the team this year, shooting low scores consistently.

Blair, who is a former JC tourney champion, has been improving greatly and played extremely well in last weekend's meets, continued Zweiner. He also mentioned that Kautz has been playing well lately.

Commenting on the Big Ten Championships, Zweiner said he feels that Wisconsin, Purdue, Indiana, and Michigan will probably fight it out for the title. Iowa stands a fairly good chance to finish 6th, he continued. The Hawks are all good golfers, but the team lacks the big gun who could shoot low enough to offset the occasional bad rounds turned in by the boys, he feels.

Zweiner says he is continually amazed by the spirit this team has, adding that it is the hardest working team he has coached in some time.

Iowa has a very good chance of finishing higher in the Big Ten next year though with the addition of this year's better than average Freshman team. Chief prospects among the Frosh are Jim Scheppele and Joe McEvoy. Scheppele, from Waterloo, was the State JC champion last year and shot a 292 qualifying total for 72-holes. McEvoy, from Dubuque, was a good high school golfer who is now maturing very well. Zweiner reports that McEvoy shot a 18-hole score of 67 last week.

Two other bright prospects are the Fanter twins of Crystal Lake, Illinois, Bill and Bob. They not only look alike but also shoot identical scores. Others qualifying for the Freshman golf team are Cully Pearson, Bob Blunck, Ben Smith, Jim Hodges, Paul Dlugosch, Cap Hermann, Dan Fliger and Bill Roberts.

Colonial Golf Opens

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Golf's Big Three — rapidly becoming the Big One, Jack Nicklaus — led a field of 66 crack shots into the opening round of the $80,000 Colonial National Invitation Tournament today.

Harried by threat of withdrawals and forced to make concessions to placate the players, Colonial emerged with its finest field yet when the storm clouds had floated away.

Even Don January, the player who wasn't invited and precipitated the trouble; Doug Ford, who led a withdrawal movement, and Jack Fleck, who said he wouldn't care if he never was invited back, are ready to go after the $12,000 first money.

Nicklaus, the big Ohio collegian who became golf's No. 1 player in just two years, will be favored to win his fourth tournament of 1963 and add to an already bulging bank account that includes $52,715 as his earnings on the links. He is the leading money winner by more than $20,000.

This sum was matched at approximately 30 per cent by The Ford Foundation which has given the Fund a $10 million matching grant to be drawn down within ten years.

National Reforms Initiated By College Board Math Body

start right in understanding its problems.

Aside from any Soviet stimulus, the need for reform in science and math was desperate. When the College Entrance Examination Board set up its Commission on Mathematics in 1955, the Commission's executive director, Dr. Albert E. Meder Jr., declared that any 17th century don could walk into any 20th century classroom and starting teaching math. The content of the courses, he said, simply hadn't changed in 300 years.

Newtonian Physics

In 1956, Dr. Jerrold R. Zacharias, physics professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, complained loudly that Newtonian physics still dominated teaching and textbooks, while vital facts of modern physics (such as the wave motion) were relegated to a few back pages of the text or never discussed at all.

If atomic theory must be taught in the new chemistry, biological strides have been equally big. Dr. H. Bentley Glass, biology professor at Johns Hopkins University, points out that, between 1900 and 1960, these biological discoveries have been made, to name but a few:

Genetics, hormones, vitamins, viruses, "cracking the genetic code," antibiotics and "other developments that shed light on the borderland between living organisms and the inorganic world."

Dr. Glass, who is chairman of the four-year-old biological sciences curriculum study of the American Institute of Biological Science, says that the fantastic growth of scientific knowledge will continue to accelerate. If in 1930 we knew four times what we did in 1900, by the year 2,000 we will know 100 times more than we did the century before.

Both the math and physics reforms were started before Sputnik. At the University of Illinois, a committee on school mathematics began in 1951 to study the content and teaching of pre-college math (grades 9 through 12). The U.I.C.S.M. project has rearranged some traditional material plus stimulating the student to make discoveries or generalizations himself. Currently working on texts down to the seventh grade (grades 9 to 12 are available in paperbacks), the Illinois project is also programming its texts for self-instruction.

But it was really the College Board's Commission on Mathematics which started national reforms. Its 1959 report declared that "the traditional one year of algebra and one of geometry are shockingly inadequate college preparation."

The school mathematics study group took up where the College Board commission left off. First centered at Yale and now at Stanford, SMSG is the largest of the new math projects. Almost 1 million of its texts were sold this school year.

Up in Cambridge, Mass., meanwhile, Dr. Zacharias and the PSSC had started on the retraining of physics teachers through summer institutes, films of experiments so delicate that the high-school student could not perform them or see them performed in a high-school lab, and a new hard-cover text. In this school year, some 135,000 high-school students are taking the new physics — or about 30 per cent of all high-school kids enrolled in the subject.

The post-Sputnik year of 1959 saw biology and chemistry join physics with the new look. The biological sciences curriculum study, at the University of Colorado, also set out to retrain teachers and to revamp a course taken annually by 2 million high-school seniors. This school year, 950 retrained teachers are teaching 95,000 biology students from the experimental BSCS texts. Commercial editions will be ready this September.

In chemistry, the student is trained as experimenter to search like an graduate student scientist. The chemical bond approach project, operating out of Earlham College, has as basic precept chemical bonds, or the fact that chemicals possess characteristic structures. The CBA director, Dr. L. E. Strong, says that the courses have as central theme the premise that "chemistry is inherently fascinating and that this fascination can be seen by students early in their exposure to the subject."

Geology and earth science are still in the beginning stages of reform. The American Geological Institute, for example, is about to prepare a ninth-grade course in earth sciences which would be similar to the PSSC and BSCS programs.

British, Yale Doctors Set To Lecture

Dr. Richard Asher, a British physician, will present a College of Medicine Lecture Friday at 4:10 p.m. in the medical amphitheater.

Dr. Asher will speak on "See How They Come: A Study of Unusual Clinical Manifestations." The British physician has been serving this week as a visiting professor in the Department of Internal Medicine.

Dr. Asher, a graduate of the University of London, is a consultant physician to the Central Middlesex Hospital in England. He is a clinical scientist with broad interests and has contributed a number of challenging articles to medical literature.

On Monday at 4:10 p.m., Dr. Averill A. Liebow, professor of pathology at Yale University, will give a College of Medicine-Veterans Administration Hospital Lecture in the SUI medical amphitheater.

Dr. Liebow will speak on "Aspects of the Pulmonary Circulation in Disease." A past president of the International Academy of Pathology, his major medical interests are in the areas of radiation effects, cancer of the lungs, and pulmonary circulation and abnormalities of the pulmonary circulation.

Opera Workshop Scene Recital Set for Saturday

A recital of scenes from six operas will be presented Saturday at 8 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium by members of the SUI Opera Workshop. Directed by Professor Herald Stark of the SUI music faculty, the scenes were chosen for their lyric qualities and dramatic interest.

Tickets will not be required for admission.

The first performance of a scene from a new opera by Professor Philip Bezanon, SUI composer, will be a feature of the program. Titled "Stranger in Eden," the Bezanon opera is set in Massachusetts in 1660, just prior to the witchcraft trials of the period. The libretto for the work is by William Reardon, former member of the SUI dramatic arts faculty now on the faculty of the University of Kansas.

Pianists will accompany the Bezanon excerpt and scenes from four other operas — Mozart's "Magic Flute," Tchaikovsky's "Eugene Onegin," Menotti's "The Medium" and Giordano's "Andrea Chenier." A chamber orchestra will accompany the closing number — an excerpt from Hindemith's

"Hin and Zuruck" (There and Back). All of the scenes will be presented in costume.

Patricia Schumbach, A4, Cedar Rapids, and James McDonald, G, Sioux City, will present the cutting from the Bezanon opera, with John Quinn, A4, Clinton, at the piano.

Piano accompanists will include David Daniels, Iowa City, James Magsig, Ovid, Mich., and Windell Whalum, Iowa City, all graduate students.

Officers left the matter of punishment up to the parents.

Statesman's Role Is Choosing: Finer

The function of statesmen was described as the process of choosing and decision-making from among all those manifestations of will within society by Professor Herman Finer, speaking in the second of his Shambaugh Lectures Wednesday night.

The political scientist of the University of Chicago spoke on "The Function of the Statesman" in the House Chamber of Old Capitol. He will conclude the three-lecture series on "Political Knowledge: Its Nature and Validity" tonight at 8 in the House chamber.

Tonight's lecture is entitled "Decision-making Process: The Suez Affair of 1956."

Professor Finer said that for the statesman to be able to make the decision, he must be knowledgeable in literally all fields of human experience. He said the statesman "ought to know everything on earth and in heaven to do his job properly. Nothing is alien to the statesman."

It isn't conceivable to pretend that the statesman should or has to be an expert on all these fields, Prof. Finer said, but it is necessary that the statesman have access to a range of knowledge which encompasses all the areas of experience. If he did not have this range of knowledge, he could not make the decisions which resolve the con-

Commission Says It Owns Highway Employe Invention

AMES (AP) — The Iowa Highway Commission said Wednesday from now on it owns all improvements, inventions or discoveries made by an employe that are directly or indirectly connected with highway operations.

The new policy permits the commission to exploit or promote employe inventions, and to call upon the employe for cooperation and assistance "such as it may reasonably desire."

The employe will receive 50 per cent of the net profits from these inventions.

licts among groups in society.

The professor said that the function of the statesman is also to have some technical knowledge of his own on the areas of decision-making which arise. This is necessary so that he will be able to place a value on all the advice and information he is fed by his advisers. He has to know what to do with the knowledge and the moral judgment that he possesses in disposing with the information is what designates some as great statesmen.

In carrying out his function, Professor Finer said the statesman has to be concerned with the psychological aspects of his decision-making. He has to know what the effects of his decision will be on the groups within the society.

Professor Finer said the role of the statesman has increased tremendously in the last 60 years. He said that in this time the state has been admitted to organizing society — that which arises spontaneously. Now the state has an enormous range of activities in society's affairs, he said.

In discussing the methodology of studying the political, Professor Finer said the political scientist must know the entirety of what the statesman knows if he is to study his actions properly; his knowledge must cover the range of the statesman's.

Professor Finer turned to the aspect of power which the statesman possesses. He said the statement that "Power tends to corrupt" is ridiculous. He said that power is only a magnification of the individual. If the power seems to corrupt the statesman, it is because the corruption was present before he received his power.

U.S. Airlifts 178 Children, Wives in Haiti

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Families of U.S. servicemen and diplomatic officials in Haiti were evacuated by air to the United States on Wednesday as the U.S. Navy put on an apparent show of strength by sending ships and Marines into Gonave Bay, at Port au Prince.

An Iowa woman was among the Americans evacuated from Port au Prince, Haiti. She is Mrs. Joanne Warren of Stuart, wife of Maj. John W. Warren, military attache in Port au Prince.

The converted aircraft carrier Boxer led a squadron of Navy ships and 2,000 Marines to the very fringes of Haitian waters while two Pan American World Airways planes airlifted 178 American wives and children from the troubled island of Hispaniola.

Tension between the Haitian regime of President Francois Duvalier and the neighboring Dominican Republic prompted the U.S. Government order for Americans to evacuate.

Some of the evacuees, convinced the trouble was temporary, said they would stay in the Miami area, hopeful of an early return to their husbands in Haiti. Most, however, planned to journey to homes of relatives at scattered points around the country.

The Americans had seen little of the violence reported in Haiti in recent weeks, stating they had followed orders and stayed close to home. One woman, however, was arrested when she refused to let a male soldier search her.

Another woman said her house had been broken into and personal belongings stolen.

Press Conference

Republicans Lash Kennedy's Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy said somberly Wednesday that failure to ban nuclear shots — and he is not at all hopeful of an agreement to ban them — would lead to more tests and "a great disaster for the interests of all concerned."

There were also signs at a news conference that the President was succeeding in soothing unrest in the Pentagon over his decision to drop Adm. George W. Anderson as chief of naval operations. He was gratified, he said, that Anderson has agreed to accept another unspecified "position of high responsibility" in federal service.

In the realm of international affairs, Kennedy made one serious point after another:

"No, I am not hopeful," he said, for working out an agreement with Moscow to bar nuclear weapons tests. As to whether a lack of agreement would lead to another round of testing by both sides, Kennedy said he thinks that would happen, and:

"I would think that would be a great disaster for the interests of all concerned . . . if we don't get it now I would think generally perhaps the genie is out of the bottle and we will not never (sic) get him back in."

Kennedy declined to say whether the Organization of American States should apply diplomatic or economic sanctions against the Francois Duvalier regime in powder-keg Haiti. He suggested waiting to see what an OAS peacekeeping mission accomplishes in the next few days.

Switching to the Mediterranean area, the President said the United States supports "the security of both Israel and her neighbors." In the event of direct or indirect aggression, he said, the policy of the United States has been and will be to back appropriate measures in the United Nations and to "adopt other courses of action on our own to prevent or to put a stop to such aggression."

Responding to a question, Kennedy said he did not think that recent developments in the Middle East had changed the balance of military power.

He laid down a five-point U.S. policy for the often turbulent region, covering:

1. Support for social and economic progress.
2. Security for Israel and her neighbors.
3. Opposition to an arms race in the area.
4. Strong opposition to "the use of force or the threat of force."
5. Opposition to the spread of Communism which would "destroy the freedom of the people."

Kennedy had opened the news conference with a volunteered statement on what he called "the ugly situation" in Birmingham, Ala., where police and Negro demonstrators have clashed.

Domestically, the news conference tended to center on questions of civil rights and racial tensions, but abroad it ranged widely.

Among the subjects coming up in the foreign field:

CANADA — Kennedy was asked what are the objectives of the meeting he is to have at Hyannis Port, Mass., with Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada this weekend. The President said the two countries have many problems in common and that he and Pearson plan to cover the water front and deal with them all.

LAOS — Asked why we have committed ourselves militarily in Viet Nam but not Laos, Kennedy said it was because the two situa-

Mississippi: JFK to Blame For Rioting

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — State officials blamed national politics and federal blunders Wednesday for the University of Mississippi desegregation riots. The Justice Department called the accusations erroneous and biased.

The state charges came in a report by the General Legislative Investigating Committee, which said federal errors and Kennedy political ambitions led to the violence.

The committee which questioned 90 witnesses in its seven-month investigation, linked federal efforts to enroll James H. Meredith, a Negro, last fall with an approaching national election and the effect of the action on political pressure groups.

Federal marshals, the committee said in its 45-page report, were displayed to attract a crowd, which began rioting when the marshals fired tear gas shots as state highway patrolmen moved demonstrators away from the marshals.

The report also charged that President Kennedy illegally took control of National Guard units to back a court order, removing from the state its only means of keeping the situation under control.

In Washington, the Justice Department retorted in a statement that the report was "characterized by bias, factual errors and misstatements."

The department said the presence of the marshals was arranged by Gov. Ross Barnett, who approved their number.

Barnett, at a news conference Wednesday, agreed that he knew marshals were enroute to the university. He declined to say whether he had approved the move.

"My case is in court," he said. The governor is under charge of contempt of court for the part he played in trying to block the admission of Meredith to the university.

The Justice Department also said the state committee charge of political motive "does not make much sense." The White House declined comment.

The committee charged President Kennedy could have averted the riots which killed two and injured scores and cost millions of dollars, had he "exercised care in the responsibility he had assumed."

Newspaper Reports Pope Has Relapse

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A Rome newspaper said Pope John XXIII suffered an alarming but temporary relapse Tuesday from his serious illness of last fall. The 81-year-old Pontiff said nothing about it in conducting a general audience for 10,000 persons Wednesday.

Persons at the audience said Pope John did not look well, but spoke at length and seemed cheerful.

Without explanation, the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said Pope John will not make trips later this month to the Monte Cassino abbey and the Pompeii shrine.

Vatican sources had said last weekend that the Pontiff would go to Monte Cassino, 78 miles southeast of Rome, on May 23 for the consecration of an altar.

They said he might continue on south of Naples to the shrine to Mary at Pompeii. The Vatican never announced such a trip. L'Osservatore noted that such reports have circulated and said: "We are authorized to declare that no trip by the Holy Father is foreseen."

The independent Il Tempo was the source of the report of the Pope's relapse. It said there was alarm in the Vatican, but his condition improved Tuesday night and "no longer causes any fear."

The newspaper recalled the Pope's doctors have often advised him to curtail his heavy program.

Grandmother of 14 Is Mother of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Pop beamed proudly Wednesday as Mom — Mrs. Olga Pearson Engdahl of Omaha, mother of seven and grandmother of 14 — was named Mother of the Year.

"I always knew I was married to the mother of the year," said her husband, John Engdahl, 73. "She was the nicest girl in town and still is."

"And she's the best cook in the world," he said, "especially when she is in charge of big doings, like church suppers."

Mrs. Engdahl, 67, was selected from winners of 50 state contests by the American Mothers Committee on the basis of character, achievement and community service.

Special Plan Passed To Aid Border Counties

Rapids) said he has fought hard all session for more money for roads and the bill would result in about $3.5 million more for that purpose.

But he said the surtax provision would hit widows on fixed incomes and asserted "it's just too much of a price to pay."

An amendment to keep the corporation tax at three per cent was defeated 26-24. The individual income tax withholding system lost 27-23.

At least nine of the 12 Senate Democrats have been standing firm against a tax hike unless the revenue bill includes Gov. Harold Hughes' withholding plan.

ELEVEN REPUBLICANS joined the 12 Democrats in voting for the withholding plan. All votes against it were cast by Republicans.

The tax bill proposed repealing all of the monies and credits tax except one mill levied to retire Korean War bonus bonds. Hughes said earlier he would oppose this unless another tax were levied on the same class of property.

The Senate approved 26-24 a plan to protect northern and western border counties from economic loss which their senators said would be suffered because of a sales tax increase.

Minnesota and Nebraska have no sales tax. The amendment voted into the bill Wednesday provides that Minnesota and Nebraska residents would be excused from paying the sales tax in Iowa counties bordering on those states.

TO OBTAIN the exemption they would have to sign an affidavit stating their place of residence and declaring that they come into Iowa expressly to shop.

An amendment to levy a five per cent tax on trading stamps was voted down 27-22.

The revenue bill before the Senate was a substitute for one passed April 18 by the House. The House bill added one cent to the sales and use taxes and extended the sales tax to hotels and motels. It would have left the monies and credits tax unchanged, and would have added one cent per package to the cigarette tax instead of raising the corporation income tax.

An amendment to earmark five per cent of the revenue derived from the sales tax on hotels and motels for promotion of tourism was approved by a voice vote.

Car Strikes 3-Year-Old Late Tuesday Afternoon

Three-year-old Michael Heinze, son of Rudolph W. Heinze G. Iowa City, suffered a bruise above his left ear and lacerations on his arm and shoulder after darting into the path of an auto Tuesday.

The auto, driven by Mrs. Jacqueline Lichty, 2103 Hollywood Blvd., was traveling at a low rate of speed when the accident occurred at 146 Stadium Park.

The youngster was taken to SUI Hospitals by Mrs. Lichty where he was treated and released. No charges were filed.
