Music Of 2 SUI Composers Given In Concert Tonight

Works by two young composers - one of them a sophomore, the other a junior - will be performed tonight by the Iowa State University Symphony Orchestra and the SUI Chamber Orchestra.

The sophomore, Charles Zopf, a music major, of Algona, composed the work of the evening. It is a string quartet, dedicated to the memory of the Bakersfield, Calif., miners who were killed in the explosion of April 14 of this year.

The junior, Donald F. Hines, of Iowa City, composed the other work. It is a string quintet, entitled "The SUI Symphony Orchestra's Fourth Birthday." The piece was written as a birthday present for the orchestra.

Both works are performed at 8:15 tonight in the 75th Memorial Union. Both are free to students and $2.50 to nonstudents. Tickets may be purchased at Memorial Union until the hour of the concerts.

Police Investigate Vandalism Report

Police were called to investigate a report of vandalism in the College of Business Administration building here. The building was closed for the day.

A workman is engaged in removing a portion of the roof, which probably will take a number of days, and it may be necessary to have a number of additional men.
Strengthening the United Nations (UN) and fair price) cannot be achieved. In the 1960s, Macbride served as a UN representative. He is later seen adopted into the UN's East West Center, a position he held until his death in 1979.

Several points are made about the UN's role in education. The author suggests that the UN should be more involved in the global education system and should promote higher standards in universities.

The author argues that lowering university standards to those of a trade school is a problem inherent in any educational system. They argue that this leads to a lowering of intellectual standards and that the UN should be more proactive in preventing this from happening.

The author also mentions the recent uprisings in Asia, specifically in Southeast Asia, as an example of the need for higher education standards. They argue that these uprisings are a result of a lack of educated leaders and that this is something that the UN should be working to prevent.

In conclusion, the author argues that the UN has a role to play in improving education standards around the world. They suggest that the UN should be more proactive in promoting higher standards and that this is a necessary step in preventing future uprisings and maintaining global stability.

CLEVELAND — Left-hander Jim Boyer, who pitched a no-hitter for the Browns against the Athletics last season, was back there again Wednesday night, when he tossed a 1-0 victory over the Indians in Cleveland’s home opener.

Boyer, who was chosen to start the game by manager Al Rosen, was in control from the start, allowing only one hit and one walk in his six innings of work.

The Indians scored their only run in the second inning, when Ken Jackson hit an inside-the-park home run after Boyer walked the leadoff man, Al Rosen.

Boyer, who was at his best in the late innings, said he had to rely on his fastball and curveball to get through the Indians.

“Boyer was excellent,” said Indians manager Al Rosen. “He had good control and a good fastball.”

The Browns never tested Boyer’s control by hitting many balls into the field of play, but they did manage to get one walk in the third inning.

“I didn’t have a chance to get any of the Indians,” said Boyer. “I tried to pitch because of that and, of course, to get out of right-handed hitters.”

Boyer, who walked two and struck out six, said he had been working on his control all season.

“I don’t think I’ve ever been more comfortable,” he said. “I’ve been working on my mechanics, and I think it’s paying off.”

Unlucky ‘Fuzzy’ Due for Break

MUSKEGON FL, — Fuzzy (Frank) Farnsworth, who will be the Browns’ third baseman this season, hopes to be able to get a break in the lineup before he has to go back to the team.

Farnsworth, who had a series of injuries last year, said he hopes to be able to play in the lineup before too long.

“Fuzzy” said he had been working on his swing and had been practicing hitting.

“I’m trying to get back into shape,” he said. “I think I can help the team.”

First American Champion Ends U.S. Wimbledon Sweep

The first American to win the men’s singles title at Wimbledon was Jimmy Connors, who defeated the defending champion, Rod Laver, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4, in the final.

Connors, who is a graduate of the University of Texas, said he was happy to win the title.

“I’m very happy to win,” said Connors. “I’ve been working very hard for this.”

The other American who competed in the tournament was Arthur Ashe, who lost to Laver in the semifinals.

Ashe said he was happy to have been able to compete in the tournament.

“I’m very happy to be here,” said Ashe. “I’ve been working very hard for this.”

In the women’s singles final, Chris Evert defeated Martina Navratilova, 6-3, 6-4.

Evert said she was happy to have won the title.

“I’m very happy to win,” said Evert. “I’ve been working very hard for this.”

In the men’s doubles final, Bob Hewitt and Ken Rosewall defeated Ken Flach and Bob Gilder, 6-2, 6-2.

Hewitt said he was happy to have won the title.

“I’m very happy to win,” said Hewitt. “I’ve been working very hard for this.”

In the women’s doubles final, Pam Shriver and Mary Joe Fernandez defeated Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver, 6-3, 6-4.

Fernandez said she was happy to have won the title.

“I’m very happy to win,” said Fernandez. “I’ve been working very hard for this.”
