

Council To Get New City Budget Tonight

By GARY SPURGEON
Managing Editor
The proposed city budget of $2.5 million will be formally presented to the Iowa City Council by City Manager Carsten Leikvold at 7:30 tonight in the Council Chambers.

The budget was released Saturday by Leikvold. It calls for expenditures of $2,461,766. The council is expected to set a date for the public hearing, which must be held before the budget is approved.

The proposed budget calls for $1,164,797 to be raised by taxation. This is just $30,000 more than last year's $1,135,900. The estimated millage rate will also represent only a slight rise. The proposed budget would bring the millage rate to 36.186 as compared to a rate 35.997 in 1963.

Leikvold has suggested two methods to the council by which the city could hold its mill levy in line: 1) more efficient operation and increased cooperation between the various departments, boards and commissions; 2) find other sources of revenue.

"An efficient operation is the sum of many hard decisions," Leikvold said. "We cannot afford the luxury of each function operating apart and separate from all other functions with the resultant duplication of effort. Cooperation through communications should lead toward increased services for the same amount of tax money."

"We should search continually, not just at budget time, but all the year around for other sources of revenue," Leikvold said. "Many of our charges for special services have not been increased for 30 years. If there is a reason for a special charge in the first place, then it should keep up to date."

Leikvold included a new pay classification for city employees in the budget. The new classification will give each employee a slight pay raise, Leikvold said.

Each employee will be classified according to a stated grade. A salary range accompanies each grade.

Race Issue Gets New Impetus

Want Work, N.Y. Groups Demonstrate

NEW YORK (AP) — A summer wave of anti-discrimination demonstrations swirled in many quarters of this northern metropolis Monday, resulting in a mass arrest of Negro clergymen in Brooklyn.

Elsewhere the tension showed up in marches, sit-ins, conferences, court actions, weapons seizures, and alleged white neo-Nazi moves to foment disorder.

One Brooklyn minister said that the predominantly Negro Brooklyn-Stuyvesant section "is on the brink of a violent outburst" unless Negroes get a fairer share of construction jobs.

In a troubled sector of the Bronx, pickets still walked outside a diner, after eight members of a pro-Negro organization were seized on charges of plotting to incite a racial riot there.

Outside a court hearing, shouted claims were made that some of them were "beaten up."

A truckload of weapons was confiscated.

At the building site of the Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, 42 demonstrators, including 17 clergymen, were arrested after they linked hands and blocked vehicles and workers.

Altogether, the pastors represented churches with more than 100,000 members in Brooklyn. Hundreds of them flocked to the Criminal Court House at the time of the arraignment.

The current tide of demonstrations — at commercial and building sites and in Government offices — was concentrated on winning more employment of Negroes.

Brigades of whites and Negroes, men and women, joined in the movements, claiming bias in hiring practices.

Negro lawyer Paul Zuber, of the greater New York Coordinating Committee for Equal Opportunity, said a federal court suit will be filed Wednesday to halt all city and state construction where discrimination exists.

Groups of sit-in demonstrators kept up round-the-clock posts at the New York offices of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Mayor Robert Wagner, in that dispute.

In Harlem, work on remodeling a bank was shut down, and at the city-sponsored Rutgers housing project on Manhattan's Lower East Side, other pickets paraded, with swarms of police standing by.

Pickets Meet Bayonets

Maryland National Guardsmen, their bayoneted rifles held high, stop integrationists led by Mrs. Gloria Richardson (holding sign) and Stanley Branche, field secretary of the NAACP, as they attempt to picket a segregated drug store in Cambridge, Md. Both were arrested, as were 12 other members of the integration group.

Guardsmen Block Marching, Quickly Release Prisoners

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP) — Heavily armed National Guardsmen Monday arrested 14 Negroes trying to picket a segregated drugstore. But later, as other Negroes prepared a mass protest march, Guard leaders pledged the immediate release of the seized persons.

This headed off the protest parade, and about 500 Negroes who gathered outside the Bethel A.M.E. church facing a force of Guardsmen carrying bayoneted rifles and tear gas grenades, quietly dispersed.

The 14 arrested persons, who included Mrs. Gloria Richardson, militant crusader for integration, were to be released later.

Their arguments were in support of more than 600 pages of written arguments they filed with the court earlier.

Sueppel said the company is trying to overthrow principles of rate calculation set out by the Supreme Court in an earlier case involving Ford Dodge.

When it filed the suit, the company contended that its Iowa City revenues were short by $342,000 a year on its electrical operations and $120,000 annually in its gas business.

Gov. Wallace Claims JFK OK's Rioting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama said Monday that President Kennedy has been "pressured" into approving mob violence and street rioting in behalf of his civil rights program.

Wallace told the Senate Commerce Committee that the Kennedy Administration's handling of racial problems has brought the nation to "the brink of civil warfare."

"A president who sponsors legislation such as the Civil Rights Act of 1963 should be retired from public office," Wallace said.

The governor charged also that "there are Communist influences in the integration movement," echoing a statement made before the committee Friday by Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi.

The committee is in the third week of hearings on the administration's public accommodations bill, which would forbid racial discrimination in stores, restaurants, hotels and other business places serving the public. Thirty states now have laws of this general type.

This bill is a key part of Kennedy's 7-point civil rights program, and Wallace said that if it is passed, "The next step will be land reform."

"They will demand the seizure of land from those who have it for those who don't have any," he said.

The black-haired, anti-Kennedy Democrat, whose sweeping statements were challenged by some committee members, agreed to return Tuesday for further questioning.

"I don't think my coming here will change one vote," he said, but he added that he would like to arouse people over the nation.

Wallace said he does not believe "even the present Supreme Court would hold this bill constitutional — although I'm not surprised at anything the Court does."

He said it would be "unenforceable in Alabama," even if large number of federal troops were used.

"You've got segregation all over the United States, and you're going to continue to have it," Wallace said. In the South "We've been above board about it." In other sections "they preach one thing and practice another."

Wallace commented at one point that Negroes are some of his best and closest friends. This touched off such a wave of laughter in the crowded hearing room that chairman Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) banged his gavel for order.

Wallace brought a prepared statement which he read rapidly. When he came to a part that said senators who joined in sponsoring the bill had given "tacit approval" to demonstrations designed to intimidate Congress, Magnuson said "stop right there."

"We are not going to be intimidated by anyone, whether on one end or the other," Magnuson said.

Bowling Alley Coin Box Money Stolen Sunday

Burglars broke into Colonial Bowling Lanes early Sunday morning and escaped with an estimated $350 to $400, according to the establishment's manager.

The money came from the coin boxes of cigaret, candy, pop and ice cream vending machines in the bowling alley. The dial was knocked off the safe, but the thieves failed to open it, the manager said.

The burglar broke a window to get in and pried open a door to get out, he commented.

Khrushchev Jovial At Nuclear Talks

Communist Rift Grows At Talks in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union Monday charged Red China with trying to set up a new center of international communism — long headquartered in the Kremlin — and of setting the colored races against the white.

The bitter accusations were printed in the Government newspaper Izvestia as peace talks between Soviet and Chinese delegates plodded into their second week.

Each side apparently was determined to force the other to be first to break them off.

Izvestia, which represents the Government point of view as compared to the Communist party organ Pravda, elaborated on charges contained in the party's open letter published Saturday.

It said Red China was only one step from "a schism of the world Communist movement and the creation of a new international Communist center."

The paper said Peking was trying to find allies among the non-white nations on the basis of "the opposition of the colored peoples and the white race and the demarcation of peoples according to racial, national and continental lines."

It said the "modern schismatics" — the Chinese — "are driving home to the peoples of Asia and Africa that the West remains the West and that white people remain white people."

The Chinese Communist Party General Secretary, Teng Hsiao-ping, and his delegation spent 3 1/2 hours with the Russians in a sprawling mansion in the hills overlooking Moscow.

The meeting convened as reverberations of Sunday's Kremlin anti-Chinese blast continued to roll through the world Communist movement.

The 35,000 word attack on Peking's leaders slightly lifted the curtain of secrecy surrounding the talks. It accused the Chinese delegates of aggravating the differences instead of seeking to patch them up.

The Soviet Communist party statement flatly charged the Chinese with attempting to split the Communist world.

Opera Workshop Self Supporting By Ticket Sales

Prof. Herald Stark, director of the SUI Opera Workshop and musical director for the opera "La Traviata," explained Monday that there were no student tickets to the four performances of the opera because it has never been included in the student fees budget.

"We have to make our own money," Stark commented. He indicated that the summer opera could not operate unless it charges the $2.25 for admission.

Red China, whose feud with Khrushchev has reached the point of a split, took angry note of the talks. A Peking broadcast charged that the negotiations were based on what it called the "utter hypocrisy" of President Kennedy's "strategy for peace."

By entering the talks with U.S. Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman and Britain's Lord Hailsham, the Kremlin ignored Peking's latest claims that Communists cannot negotiate with "U.S. imperialism."

THE KREMLIN's negotiations with the Western Allies are centered on a limited agreement banning tests in the air, space and under water. Both the Communist and Western sides expressed optimism.

Khrushchev was in a jovial mood from the first instant Harriman walked through the door of the big conference room in the Kremlin.

"You have started counting your years backwards," the Soviet leader told the 71-year-old Harriman, a former ambassador to Moscow.

"You, too," replied Harriman. "I started doing that a long time ago," Khrushchev said. He is 69.

HARRIMAN and Hailsham insisted that for picture-taking Khrushchev should stand between them.

Doing so, Khrushchev threw up his hands in mock despair and said a loud laugh: "I'm surrounded by imperialists."

Then the negotiators sat down at a table about 30 feet long. Khrushchev and his aides faced Harriman and Hailsham and their advisers.

"Shall we start off by signing the agreement right away?" Khrushchev joked.

Harriman shoved a pad and pencil toward him.

Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko broke into a broad grin at his seat next to Khrushchev and told his chief: "Sign and then leave it to be filled in."

Harriman has said he expected the conference to last about 10 days.

At the Kremlin's request, the United States and Britain have agreed that the conference should be carried on in secret.

Newsmen saw Harriman and Hailsham come out of the Kremlin in apparent good spirits. Leaving in separate cars, both Western officials were laughing and smiling as they talked with their associates.

Verbal Quips Are Returned By Harriman

MOSCOW (AP) — Joking and bubbling with enthusiasm, Soviet Premier Khrushchev launched the Kremlin talks on a nuclear test ban agreement in a 3 1/2-hour conference Monday with special U.S. and British envoys. He jovially suggested signing the agreement right away.

Red China, whose feud with Khrushchev has reached the point of a split, took angry note of the talks. A Peking broadcast charged that the negotiations were based on what it called the "utter hypocrisy" of President Kennedy's "strategy for peace."

UCLA Dean Tells of Trends In U.S. Education System

By JAMES CROOK
Staff Writer
Education in a country is constantly changing, just as the national culture changes under various influences, Howard E. Wilson, dean of the UCLA School of Education, said Monday.

Wilson spoke on "The Impact of Social Forces on American Education" as part of the 50th Anniversary celebration of the SUI College of Education.

Three reasons for education changing in the United States Wilson listed as: Technology, metropolitanism and the international status of the country.

Machines are bringing the methods used in education in perspective with other trends in the world, Wilson said. Science is being moved to the center of the curriculum, he added.

Scientists are very good at teaching young people to be specialists in their subject field, Wilson commented. But they are not as proficient in teaching the layman about science. And social scientists seem to be just the opposite, he stated.

A talent search, putting extreme emphasis on the gifted student, is in progress at the present time, Wilson said. He pointed to the Negro population as a source of untapped talent that will be utilized in the future.

Counseling will become even more important, the educator said, because parents are no longer equipped to give their children enough information concerning career possibilities. It is increasingly difficult to read the want ads of a metropolitan newspaper, Wilson said, because job descriptions contain words unfamiliar to most people.

Metropolitan areas, modern equivalents to the ancient city-states, are causing major problems for education, Wilson explained. Rural-dominated legislatures force tremendous problems on administrators in these areas, he added.

Internationalism affects the country more today than ever before, Wilson commented. The United States developed an Office of Cultural Affairs in 1938, nearly 30 years after most European countries, he said.

Dean Wilson termed the Peace Corps, the "most ingenious development in foreign affairs in the last 15 to 20 years." These volunteers will make excellent graduate students, he added, and will be a benefit as diplomats and teachers.

Peace Corps volunteers could be selected as early as their sophomore year in college, according to Wilson, and trained by their college during their junior and senior years. Then they could serve in the Peace Corps before their graduate work, he suggested.

During a question period, Dean Wilson said, the Utah teaching situation points out two trends in American education: That the teaching profession is trying to balance welfare for the teacher with the advancement of education for pupils, and that the profession is beginning to discipline its own members.

That Second Civil War Is Already Upon Us

OMINOUS WARNINGS were issued last week in Cambridge, Md. The signs indicated in bold black letters that this country's racial crisis is more than just a few southern demonstrations.

The United States is engaged deeply in a Civil War. The shootings that rocked the Baltimore suburb will most likely break out in other places within the next few months unless positive civil rights action is taken immediately.

President Kennedy's civil rights proposals represent positive action, but they are in hot water. Passage seems remote. Yet one would think that the incidents in Cambridge and those earlier in Birmingham and Jackson would shock Congressional leaders into insisting upon the passage of the President's proposals.

Mr. Kennedy asked for legislation which would ban discrimination by any privately owned enterprise that serves the public, give the attorney general the power to start school desegregation court suits, institute a program to train Negroes and others for higher paying jobs and give him the right to withhold federal aid from a project when local authorities discriminate.

The President's proposals are sound and aimed at putting an end to this Civil War of the 20th Century. The proposals will not end the troubles of the Negro, but they will go a long way towards attaining equality. Other actions would have to follow, but this should be the first and biggest step forward.

Southern senators have threatened the proposal with a filibuster. Northern senators have retaliated, saying that they will try to impose cloture upon the Senate.

If past years are any indication, the Southerners will triumph on the issue of cloture. There is no reason to believe that the Northern wing of the Senate will be strong enough to check the filibuster through cloture.

It would seem that the shootings in Cambridge would shock the morality of the Southern Senate bloc — at least it should. The Southern senators should be ready to enter into the civil rights picture and repair the problems in which their states are presenting for this nation.

If they are not ready to do so, then the prevailing winds will grow stronger. And this nation is going to have a deadly hurricane blowing in its face. A hurricane more deadly than the Russian bear or the dragon of Red China.

Long-Pull Boom

SOME POPULATION FIGURES that strain the wildest imagination floated recently from a 12-nation conference in Athens on ekistics, the science of human settlement in a changing world.

A hundred years from now, the experts estimated, today's world roster of 3-billion-plus will stand in puny contrast to a new global total of 18 to 26 billion people.

The inclination is, of course, to think of this in terms of looming troubles and problems that will dwarf the worst we've seen so far. But still another prophecy resounded with pleasant tones.

In the next 40 years alone, the value of buildings put up everywhere on earth is expected to equal $10 trillion. That's 10 million millions. Considering just such other staples of life as food and clothing for all those people yet to come, the scope of trade and commerce in far-away tomorrows looks not only awesome and vast but downright inviting.

Too many unknowns and unknowables make any guess about the world of distant decades an extremely fragile thing. But if any assumption seems halfway sure, it's one that also sees vast challenge and economic opportunity in the dim years ahead.

Pesos, francs or dollars — rubles, yen or rupees — the chance to make a million should beckon yet to brains and ambition for a long time to come.

 "It's Not Only The Committee Room — The Whole Country Is Being Packed With Those Damned American Civil-Righters"

The 'All-American' KKKs —

The Reds' Ready Helpers

By RALPH MCGILL
 At a recent meeting of Georgia's Ku Klux Klan, held in the welcoming climate of Albany, a southwest city not far north of the Florida line, one of the speakers reportedly was a judge of a city court (a not unusual combination in small Southern towns) who made an emotional exhortation.

Anti-segregation demonstrations, he said, are Communist inspired. "This is a nationwide matter that is being fostered by the Communists in Russia," said the dispenser of justice. "Russia! The Machiavellian hand of Khrushchev is behind this agitation." THERE WAS MORE of the same. His audience which had arrived in pick-up trucks, old cars, and a scattering of small foreign cars, seemingly had no idea about the identity of the Florentine Prince Machiavelli, but apparently accepted him as an Italian pal of Mr. Khrushchev's . . . and that was all that mattered.

One of the curious consistencies of the speeches and writings by the White Citizens Council essayists and by the Klan exhorters is the charge that the attack on segregation is Communist-inspired; that the U.S. Supreme Court has sold out to communism, and that any of those who uphold the court and the decisions supporting equal citizenship are Communist stooges, or in the pay of Khrushchev. Hate letters will inquire, "How much is Khrushchev paying you to support the Communist Supreme Court?"

It does not seem to occur to such persons that what the KKK speakers are really saying is a very dangerous thing; namely, that:
 1. The right to vote is communism.
 2. The right to education on a non-discriminatory basis is communism.
 3. The right to equal opportunity is communism.
 4. The right to use public facilities is communism.
 COMMUNISM, of course, uses this sort of nonsense as valuable propaganda. In African and Asian countries one finds the remarks of such speakers as the judge in Albany — and the many others who insist that the present campaign for equal citizenship rights in the United States is communism — widely printed and distributed.

Communism could not ask for better propaganda support than it gets from the Councils and the Klans — from the Bull Connors and those who deny that the Constitution guarantees equal citizenship. Communism argues un-truthfully) that in Russia and Communist bloc countries, minorities are treated equally. So they are very grateful to those Americans who — in writing and speeches opposing the efforts of 18 million Negroes to be allowed to vote, to be trained and educated, and to have decent housing and use of public facilities — shout and rant that such actions are communism at work in America.

WHAT CONFRONTS us is not, of course, communism. It is, however, a revolution . . . and it remains to be seen whether or not sanity will prevail and it will be a revolution lacking bloodshed. We have seen Birmingham . . . Detroit . . . New York . . . Chicago . . . Jackson . . . Albany.

Surely, by now, it must be plain to every thoughtful citizen that it is the responsibility of accountable men and women everywhere to establish the clearly established legitimate aims of the Negro population — aims which give no public rights not already held by other citizens — with as little damage to the respective communities and the marches as possible. We all know that only about a third of the qualified Negro voters have been permitted to vote; that about 10 years after the school decision there are states and communities which still make much of defiance; that there have been, and are, inequities in education and opportunity.

Surely we have the honor and the courage to do what is right. And surely American citizenship aims are not communistic.

At Iowa Institutions — College Course Revisions

By The Associated Press
 Students who enter Iowa's 28 four-year colleges and universities this fall will find a variety of new courses, new majors and completely new curriculum plans.

The challenge of independent study seminars, internships and other special "learning experience" programs will be increasingly in evidence as educators seek to give students the best basis possible for their careers after college.

At some schools outstanding students will do advanced work in special honors courses. At others all seniors are required to do independent study or a research project in their field.

Cornell College at Mt. Vernon has revised its curriculum so that entering freshmen take four basic courses instead of varying numbers of courses for a specific number of hours.

CORNELL, ANSWERING an Associated Press survey, said it begins teaching on the seminar basis with freshman English. "We have a sophomore honors seminar, honors students study on a tutorial basis during their junior year, and most Cornell seniors must prepare a thesis or independent research project to meet graduation requirements," officials said.

Upper Iowa University at Fayette also has revised its curriculum with "greater emphasis placed on general education requirements."

Seventeen of the state's 28 four-year colleges and universities said they will be expanding their honors programs next fall. Schools are increasing the number of honors sections of courses, giving top students more leeway in bypassing course prerequisites and making it possible for them to progress faster.

In Iowa State University's science and humanities program "courses and sections of courses are being designated for honors program students, and steps are being taken to provide for more rapid progress of the better prepared entering students."

"THE HONORS PROGRAM is being expanded and improved. Plans are under way for allowing earlier entrance into the program," officials said. The University of Dubuque plans to reinstate an English honors program it had used several years prior to last year. Officials said "good English usage in all classes is stressed, no formal classes held, papers are lifted from all other classes and reviewed in individual conferences with the professor."

Briar Cliff College at Sioux City will start this fall using a new English honors program for freshman and sophomores. The program is being developed this summer by a Briar Cliff faculty member in a University of Michigan workshop.

"OUR HONORS PROGRAM is expanding through increasing interest on the part of our better students who seek out the challenge of honors work," Coe College in Cedar Rapids says. State College of Iowa said it will not be able to expand its honors program next fall because funds requested for the project were not provided by the 1963 Legislature.

SUI DOES NOT PLAN to expand its honors program, but officials noted that the existing setup is college-wide with some 400 undergraduates taking part in it.

In addition to its honors program, the University of Dubuque has a tutoring system and a directed study plan known as the opportunity program. The latter is for "the student who has been placed on academic probation and who has a serious desire to regain his previous good-standing status."

Under the program, students are assigned to a special dormitory wing where two trained counselors advise them. The students are assigned to a reading improvement course. No class cuts are permitted, study hours are enforced, automobiles are not allowed, the students are limited to one campus activity and week-end trips must be approved in advance by the program director.

"OFTEN THE PROBLEM causing academic difficulties is one of personal organization or self-discipline. The program assists the student in building a set of personal habits which leads to success in college as well as in his occupation after college," officials said.

Parsons' special program is team teaching. Students hear lectures by full faculty members and then work in seminar situations with 33 associates and 30 tutors. "No freshman student will be lectured by a faculty member who does not hold the doctorate degree," officials said.

Mathematics and science continue to lead the list of new courses at Iowa colleges and universities. Ten schools said they will add new math courses, and seven plan new science courses.

Mt. Mercy College at Cedar Rapids offers special problems courses in botany and zoology in which the student does original research.

MARYCREST WILL START a four-year department of nursing next fall. Central College at Pella will offer courses in heat and thermodynamics and nuclear physics. Simpson at Indianola plans a course in quantum mechanics.

Iowa State University has added a new undergraduate degree in metallurgy, a doctoral program in agricultural engineering and a two-year program in chemical industries technology.

In the college of agriculture, Iowa State has substantially revised its courses, dropping 34, adding 35 graduate and 28 undergraduate courses, and revising 22. "Generally this reflects a tendency to emphasize science, with less emphasis on production," officials said.

Both State College of Iowa and SUI said they are recommending the addition of several new courses for approval by the board of regents.

Another Communist Cuba?

WASHINGTON — Is another Communist Cuba in the making in Latin America? This is the haunting question raised by events in Venezuela and British Guiana.

The Administration defends its quiescent attitude toward the Castro regime on the ground that one Communist satellite is no direct threat to the U.S. If we can keep the virus from spreading.

But what if containment fails to contain? What if we wake up some morning sooner than we think and find that one Communist satellite has become two?

This is one of the central concerns brought out by the recent Freedom House report on what to do about Cuba. The report itself summarizes the findings and the warnings of a two-day conference attended by 27 Latin American special agents. At one point it said:

"Thoughtful observers are by now aware that Cuba is the Western Hemisphere base from which the Communist knife is aimed at the soft underbelly of the Hemisphere — Latin America. A long history of economic and political errors has filled Central and South America with internal discontent, thus making it vulnerable to conquest by external forces. How many more Cubas can we sustain?"

This is no academic question. It is a real and immediate question. There is no assurance that containment is going to contain.

IN VENEZUELA the Castro Communists, trained and supported by Havana, are mounting a campaign of violence and sabotage aimed to make it impossible for the liberal Betancourt Government to be succeeded by another Government democratically-elected. Their aim is either to seize power themselves or create such havoc that a military dictatorship will be the only alternative. The Communists well know that a right-wing dictatorship is just one step removed from left-wing dictatorship.

In British Guiana on South America's northern coast the outlook is even more ominous. Events are steadily slipping into a Castro pattern. Instead of leading his people along the road to peaceful independence — which the British hoped he would be able to do — the Marxist-minded Premier Cheddi Jagan is creating economic chaos and explosive racial strife.

Premier Jagan is being powerfully prodded by his American-born wife, Janet Jagan, whose Communist convictions are openly proclaimed and who boasts of being a personal friend of Premier Khrushchev and Red China's Mao Tse-tung.

BY HIS THREATS to pass legislation which would put all labor unions under government control, Jagan has precipitated a paralyzing national strike and has fomented racial strife between the Negroes and Indians. The 3-to-1 Indian population is primarily rural. The Negroes make up most of the urban labor force whose unions Jagan, who ran on an anti-Negro platform, is seeking to repress.

The British want to give this colony its full independence. It is about as ready for independence as the Congo and if the restraining hand of the British is removed, the situation will be ready-made for a Communist regime.

The conclusion is becoming more compelling all the time that containment is no adequate answer to the threat to the whole Western Hemisphere posed by the Khrushchev-Castro dictators' hip in Cuba. And the Alliance For Progress is no adequate answer because the Castro-Communist regime makes it far more difficult for the Alliance to do its work. The very survival of the Khrushchev-Castro dictatorship strengthens the Communists in other Latin American countries by creating the image of Communist invincibility.

This is why the Freedom House report contends that "To dislodge not only the Soviet troops but communism itself from Cuba" is essential to the security of the Western Hemisphere.

It took Fanny Hill a couple of hundred years to get here, but the famous, or infamous, lady of easy virtue finally has arrived in what might be called polite literary society.

That is, the memoirs of this fictional London miss of the 1700s, may be purchased openly at your neighborhood bookstore in an edition with the name of the book printed in large letters on the jacket — in contrast to the decades of bootleg sales at up to $50 a copy.

And now that she is here for all to see, what sort does Frances Hill turn out to be?

Shady Lady's Letters

MEMOIRS OF A WOMAN OF PLEASURE. By John Cleland. Putnam, $6. AP Reviewer

Not the sort that you'd introduce to the female members of your family, certainly, but on the other hand certainly not as crude a woman as many of the heroines of current fiction.

For while Fanny speaks the book is in the form of long letters to an unidentified female acquaintance of almost nothing but her professional activities, not a four-letter word escapes her pen. The descriptions of her encounters with customers, most of whom paid for her favors so dearly as to make her a moderately wealthy woman before she was out of her teens, are in fact almost clinical at times, and lean toward repetition.

The sameness, and the mincing 18th Century style of the writing, are weaknesses of what is described appropriately as an outstanding literary curiosity.

Italian Scientist 'Not Guilty' In London

LONDON (AP) — An all-male jury Monday night found Giuseppe Martelli, 39-year-old English-speaking Italian scientist, innocent of charges that he was preparing himself as a Soviet spy.

The jury returned its verdict after deliberating for nine hours and 45 minutes in the latest of a series of sensational British espionage trials.

The jury believed Martelli's story that he pretended to go along with the Russians under threats of blackmail but never gave away any secrets.

Martelli walked happily out of London's famed Old Bailey courtroom into the arms of a woman who had waited anxiously through the tense 11 days of his trial. She calls herself Pamela Martelli but is not his legal wife.

"I am terribly happy," she said. "I am so relieved that justice has been done. I always knew that he was not a spy."

Martelli no longer lives with the woman to whom he is legally married and who is the mother of his two children.

"I like this country," Martelli said. "I would like to stay here and work if I can."

He was arrested April 26. He had been employed on non-classified research at a laboratory of the Atomic Energy Authority in Oxfordshire.

Martelli singled out Nikolai Karpekov, a Soviet agent, as his blackmailer. Karpekov is a former first secretary at the Soviet embassy in London.

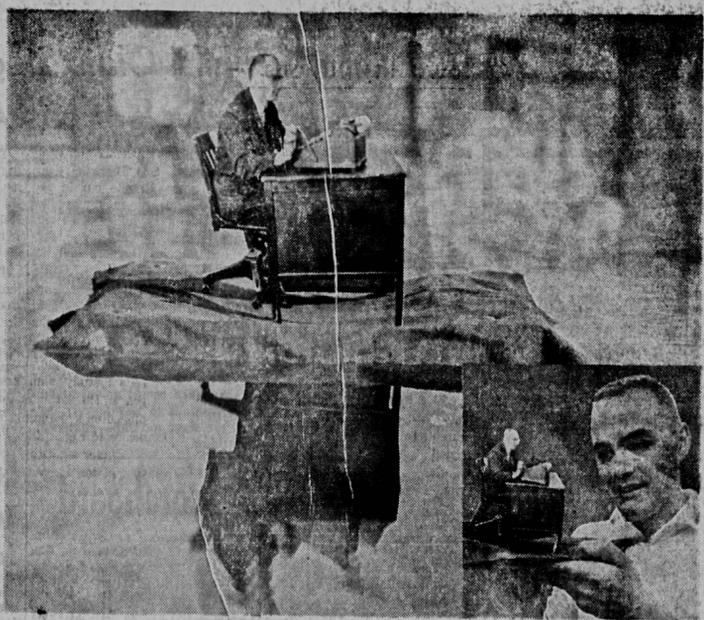

Justice Sir Henry Phillimore told the jury there was no evidence that Martelli ever was a member of the Communist Party although his sister is a Communist and married to a Communist.

"There is no evidence that Martelli has ever had a penny piece in money or has lived above his normal way of life," the judge said.

The charges against Martelli relate to periods between September 23, 1950, and the day of his arrest. Specifically the prosecution claimed Karpekov guided Martelli into espionage activities.

Martelli testified that he met Karpekov while lecturing at Birmingham University in 1960 and became friendly with him. At Karpekov's request he met people in London, Brussels and Vienna.

Martelli claimed that he decided to "play along with the Russians" but not to pass secrets to them.

Most Inaccessible Man

Set Brain at f/2.8 —

Think-School of Photography

By JEFF FRIEDMAN Staff Writer

A fresh wind is blowing in the teaching of news photography in American journalism schools, especially at the SUI School of Journalism. Photographers are not being trained here merely to set the camera and then click off a picture of anything that looks interesting.

The new concept in photojournalism can be summarized in one word, "imagination." Photojournalism is no longer just the handling of a camera, but is now also the use of the mind. One of the country's strongest proponents of this new wave in photojournalism is Don Woolley, instructor in the SUI School of Journalism's News-Photography sequence. Woolley believes that any picture is possible, no matter what the subject, as long as the photographer is willing to think. A photographer does not have to use up 10 rolls of film or spend exorbitant sums of money to get one good picture, as is sometimes thought. A proficient photographer needs only a good and active mind — to go with his camera.

Woolley has not spent much time talking about his theory on photojournalism, but rather has put it to good use in his classes here at Iowa. Woolley has developed a curriculum which stresses technique and imagination rather than mere mechanics.

Woolley's favorite assignment was one which he used last semester in News Photography II. Woolley was intrigued by an ad that he saw in a magazine, Advertising Age, depicting a man behind a desk floating on an island in the middle of a lake, with the caption, "The most inaccessible man..." In a trade journal, Advertising & Sales Promotion of the same month, there appeared an article by the same company telling how the "most inaccessible man" picture was taken.

According to the article, photographers used approximately 150 color shots from which one was used. The photographers couldn't find the right kind of island so they said, "if we can't find one, we'll build one." They built one at high cost and finally got the picture with a live man at a desk on the island.

Woolley believes this kind of thinking is ridiculous. He told students in his class to take a picture of "the most inaccessible man," and to use their imagination. Woolley knew the students couldn't afford the budget used in the original ad. The results of this assignment proved Woolley's theory that creative thinking should precede any photo assignment.

Only one student attempted to reproduce the ad exactly, but other students came up with equally "inaccessible men," in color. One student, Lael Moe, A4, Sioux Rapids, depicted a man on top of a mountain, and another imaginative student, Ed Portmann, A3, Estherville, somehow managed to get a picture of a business man with a file cabinet working on top of the crane by the Memorial Union.

The student who chose to reproduce the original ad in color was most successful. Joe Lippincott, A3, Lock Haven, Pa., spent less than $10 on the assignment, including expenses for color film, color enlarging paper and chemicals.

Lippincott first took a picture of a man sitting behind a desk with black and white film. After processing the picture, he cut the man and desk out, mounted the photograph on cardboard, and placed the picture on top of a miniature "island" that he had made of wood and canvas. Then Lippincott floated the island in City Park Pond and shot a picture of the man behind the desk on the island in color. He used filters in printing to get the same kind of red effect that appeared in the original ad. Lippincott's picture came close to duplicating the one in the ad and at a fraction of the cost.

To impress upon his students how anything is possible with just a little imagination and ingenuity, Woolley has been using unorthodox methods in distributing his final examinations to his students. Last semester, Woolley told his class to meet at the Women's Athletic Field at exam time.

When all the students were assembled, a helicopter came toward the field. Within minutes the helicopter landed on the field, and Santa Claus, six months early, stepped out of the helicopter and presented Woolley's class with a premature Christmas present... their final exams, and left.

This is a tough act to follow, but Woolley is now using his own imagination trying to think of another novel way to present his examinations as a lesson to his students. Woolley believes anything is possible, and he is known to be thinking about somehow floating a battleship up the Iowa river. He's been told it is impossible. A PT boat, perhaps, a submarine, maybe — but a battleship? Woolley is still holding out for the Missouri and who knows, maybe he'll get it.

City Will Hire More Parkettes

Iowa City will have two or three new parkettes to help the Police Department, City Manager Carsten Leikvold announced Monday.

Working with the two women hired last fall, the new parkettes will write tickets and check parking meters in the downtown area. They will relieve policemen patrolling this area for other duties.

Leikvold said that applications are being accepted now, and the parkettes will be hired after the applicants have been interviewed. Aside from writing tickets, now the parkettes will also collect money from parking meters. This will allow Police Chief Emmett E. Evans to move some policemen to other duties, instead of hiring new men, Leikvold said.

He added that funds for the new parkettes were passed by the city council for next year's budget.

Meat Plant To Expand Operations

SIoux CITY (AP) — Swift and Co. plans to double its cattle slaughter and increase its hog kill by a third at its Sioux City facilities, company officials said Monday.

Physical plant changes to accomplish the increased activities are expected to cost between $500,000 and $600,000. The changes will be primarily the addition of rail-cooler and refrigeration space.

R. E. Cowan, plant manager, estimated the changes will not materially affect the Swift work force of about 900 persons.

He estimated that the number of hourly workers would remain about the same, while a slight decrease would result in a number of salaried persons.

The company plans to discontinue several operations, including the smoking and curing of provisions, and the production of table-ready meat items, such as frankforters and sausage specialties.

All union employees affected were notified by letter Monday of the impending changes. A notice of 90 days is required under union contract provisions.

John Davidchik, field representative for the United Packing House Workers Union, said the union would have no comment at this time. He indicated that union officials wished to study the Swift plans more fully.

Commenting on the over-all result of the changes planned, Cowan said the firm expects to maintain a high-level of employment.

Concerning the expansion of the fresh meat operation, Cowan said Swift has made a careful study of availability of livestock in this area.

He said the importance of Sioux City as a livestock market and of Sioux City as a community in which to operate a meat-packing plant were included in the survey.

He said that factors brought out in the survey included the long-term trend of increased cattle production in the areas of Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota adjacent to Sioux City.

PAY RAISE IN SPAIN

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The Spanish Parliament on Monday approved a series of decrees, including one giving public employees wages increases up to 100 per cent.

Officials said the pay increase will affect half a million workers in Spanish ministries and lesser official organizations down to municipal governments.

Prof. Bush Named To Gallup Chair

Chilton R. Bush, professor emeritus and former executive head of the Department of Communications and Journalism at Stanford University is the 1st person to hold the new George H. Gallup Chair of Journalism at SUI.

The appointment of Bush, a leading scholar in mass communications, is for the fall semester of 1963-64.

Dr. Bush will conduct a seminar in communications research and will teach courses in content analysis and in public opinion and mass communications. He will also help to advise students in quantitative research.

The Gallup chair of quantitative research was established through a grant of $30,000 by the Quill and Scroll Foundation, an adjunct of the international honor society for high school journalism. The grant will supplement the salary of the professorship for a period of 10 years.

Gallup, one of the nation's leaders in public opinion research, received his bachelor's, master's and doctor's degrees from SUI in the 1920's. He founded the Quill and Scroll Society — now with more than 8,000 chapters — at the University in 1926, and is presently chairman of the board of trustees of the society.

Bush went to Stanford in 1934 as professor of journalism and director of the Institute of Journalistic Studies, and was executive head of the Department of Communication and Journalism until 1961.

He is the author of three books, "Newspaper Reporting of Public Affairs," "Editorial Thinking and Writing," and "The Art of News Communication," and is a co-author of "The Newspaper and Its Public," a pioneering study of the measurement of attitudes toward the newspaper.

Bush directed a study of press coverage of the Nixon-Douglas-Gahagan senatorial race in California, and has been particularly interested in refining the methods of analyzing the content of the mass media. Many of his articles have dealt with both the methodology and the results of its application to certain types of press coverage.

Bush received the B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Wisconsin and received an honorary Doctor of Literature degree from Georgetown College (Ky.) in 1940.

Bush was the chairman of the Council on Research of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism from 1939 to 1942, and president of the association itself in the next two years. He is also a past national vice president of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism society, and a distinguished service member of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Iowa City Males To Sing Quartets Barbershop Style

With the meeting of the newly formed Iowa City Barbershop Association, the atmosphere of "The Gay 90's" will be re-created here every Thursday night.

Temporary President William B. Olney said that the group will have 20 members. The group will apply for a national charter when they have 25, and will then become a chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc. (SPEBSQSA). This organization has 3,000 members and 700 chapters in the United States and Canada.

The Iowa City group, sponsored by the Cedar Rapids chapter of the SPEBSQSA, will rehearse Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Elks Club, 325 E. Washington St. Olney said that anyone interested is encouraged to participate.

The group is organizing a chorus, which will divide into quartets later, Olney said. "The quartets are composed of a bass, baritone, tenor and lead — a second tenor who carries the melody," Olney added.

String Quartet To Give Concert Wednesday Night

Fresh from an enthusiastic reception by an overflow audience at the Des Moines Art Center Sunday, the Iowa String Quartet will present its summer concert at SUI at 8 p.m., Wednesday, in the Main Lounge of Iowa Memorial Union.

Members of the quartet, founded in 1959, are Charles Treger and John Ferrell, violins; William Preucil, viola and Joel Krosnick, cello.

A Des Moines Register critic said of the Sunday performance: "Consummate musicianship and superb rapport distinguished the group's presentation, lifting it far above the ordinary. In a music form that requires perfect balance if it is to succeed, Treger's instrument did not overwhelm the others."

"Much like a sophisticated dining room conversation among intelligent people, where each speaks lucidly and interestingly, Sunday's performance was a series of musical dialogues with each instrument having its say and saying it tellingly," Nick Baldwin continued in his review.

"As for Treger, his performance Sunday was a combination of fine technical skill and romantic dash and enthusiasm. There is a quality of vigor and exuberance about his playing that is tremendously appealing and it goes hand in hand with sound musicianship and a delicate, sensitive touch."

Today we would like to present to you... "A Sobering Thought." The author is unknown, but we think you will like it.

—W—
"Sometime, when you're feeling important, when your ego's in bloom, when you take it for granted, when you're the best qualified in the room, when you feel that your going would leave an unfillable hole, just follow this simple instruction. And see how it humbles your soul. Take a bucket and fill it with water. Put your hand in it, up to the wrist. Pull it out, and the hole that's remaining is a measure of how you'll be missed. You may splash all you please as you enter. You can stir up the water galore. But stop, and you'll find in a minute, that it looks quite the same as before."

—W—
The moral of this quaint, example is... do just the best that you can. Be proud of yourself, but remember, there is no indispensable man."

If you want to be proud of yourself right this minute, we suggest you see our new fall collection of KIMBERLY knits. The lines are close to the body, yet softly straight and lean; the colors are vividly new, one- and two-piece styles.

U.S. Track Coach Confident As Russian Meet Nears

MOSCOW (AP)—This could be the year when the United States track and field team whips the Russians in the overall point total in their annual dual meet.

It could also bring the first 100,000 crowd ever to see a track meet outside the Olympic Games.

The meet, fifth in a series dating back to 1958, is Saturday and Sunday at giant Lenin Stadium.

Payton Jordan of Stanford, coach of the American team, is the authority for the first prediction: his Soviet coaching rivals for the second.

"I like to think of the meet as two separate ones between the rival men's and women's teams," Jordan said. "That's the way the meet was set up. But we might win it in overall points, too."

Washington Uses 2 Home Runs, Blasts Tigers, 11-6

WASHINGTON (AP)—Home runs by Chuck Hinton and Bo Osborne accounted for five of the Washington Senators' runs Monday as they outslugged the Detroit Tigers, 11-6.

Hinton's three-run homer, capped a five-run sixth inning off loser Jim Bunning, who also gave up Osborne's two-run homer in the third. It was Osborne's 12th.

Bubba Phillips' three-run homer in the eighth off Don Rudolph brought the Tigers within two runs and that was all for Rudolph. Ron Kline protected Rudolph's fifth victory.

Home runs — Detroit, Phillips (3); Washington, Osborne (12), Hinton (1).

Giants Drop 2 to Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates swept a two-night doubleheader from slumping San Francisco Monday night as Joe Gibbon pitched them to a 4-1 victory in the second game. Rookie Willie Stargell's bases loaded ninth inning single gave the Pirates a 2-1 victory in the first.

The only run off Gibbon came in the ninth. With one down, Orlando Cepeda doubled and scored on Felipe Alou's single.

Tom Haller followed with a double to right but Gibbon got the next two batters to ground out.

In the opener, Stargell came through with his decisive hit with none out in the bottom of the ninth. The pitching victory went to Al

McBean, his ninth against two losses. He took over for Bob Friend in the top of the ninth.

Phils' Oldis Singles in 11th To Defeat Los Angeles, 5-4

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Bob Oldis singled home Don Demeter from second base with one out in the bottom of the 11th inning to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 5-4 victory over the National League-leading Los Angeles Dodgers Monday night.

Demeter had become a base runner when Nate Oliver, who had taken over at second base in the ninth, dropped his pop fly for a two base error.

Ed Rpeubek, the fourth Dodger pitcher, then issued an intentional base on balls to Roy Sievers, setting the stage for Oldis' game-winning blow.

The Dodgers had been granted a reprieve in the 10th when center fielder Willie Davis threw Bobby Wine out at the plate on a two-out single by John Callison. Wine had tried to score from second.

The Phillies, in an uphill battle, had tied it in the ninth after the Dodgers had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the inning.

The A's, who trailed in the game five different times, pushed around the winning run against Bill Stafford without a hit.

With one out in the 12th, Stafford hit Bobby Del Greco with a pitch, then winning reliever Pete Lovrich sacrificed Del Greco to second before Stafford gave three straight walks to Gino Cimoli, Wayne Causey and Lumpe.

It was a remarkable effort by the A's, who had lost six out of six to the American League leaders.

They came back for a tie in the last of the ninth on Norm Siebern's sacrifice fly, then had to rally for three runs in the bottom of the 11th to gain another deadlock.

The Dodgers had been granted a reprieve in the 10th when center fielder Willie Davis threw Bobby Wine out at the plate on a two-out single by John Callison. Wine had tried to score from second.

The Phillies, in an uphill battle, had tied it in the ninth after the Dodgers had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the inning.

Home run — Philadelphia, Sievers (8).

Demeter had become a base runner when Nate Oliver, who had taken over at second base in the ninth, dropped his pop fly for a two base error.

Ed Rpeubek, the fourth Dodger pitcher, then issued an intentional base on balls to Roy Sievers, setting the stage for Oldis' game-winning blow.

The A's, who trailed in the game five different times, pushed around the winning run against Bill Stafford without a hit.

With one out in the 12th, Stafford hit Bobby Del Greco with a pitch, then winning reliever Pete Lovrich sacrificed Del Greco to second before Stafford gave three straight walks to Gino Cimoli, Wayne Causey and Lumpe.

It was a remarkable effort by the A's, who had lost six out of six to the American League leaders.

They came back for a tie in the last of the ninth on Norm Siebern's sacrifice fly, then had to rally for three runs in the bottom of the 11th to gain another deadlock.

American Food Supply Still Satisfies Criteria of FDA

The safety and high nutritive value of the American food supply are again confirmed by the latest results of the Food and Drug Administration's (FDA's) continuing "total diet" studies released Monday.

The studies are made on market basket samples collected from grocery stores in five major U.S. cities. Groceries selected are representative of those that would be in a nutritionally satisfactory diet of a hypothetical average 16-19-year-old boy — biggest eater in the U.S. population.

The new results support these conclusions, FDA said: 1. The Strontium-90 content is well within guidelines established by the Federal Radiation Council as acceptable for lifetime consumption under normal peacetime conditions. This is true, FDA said, even though it has found that the Strontium-90 content of the diet has increased steadily from May 1961, when the study was begun, through February 1963, date of the last sampling from which results are complete.

2. Pesticide residues detected were well within the amounts to be expected from compliance with safe limits ("tolerances") established for individual crops.

3. Food readily available at ordinary groceries and supermarkets contain ample quantities of vitamins. Analyses were made after normal kitchen preparation and cooking of foods usually cooked before eating.

The "total diet" studies, which began in May, 1961, were originally planned to discover how much Strontium-90 and Cesium-137 are in all food and drink consumed daily. They were expanded to include pesticide residues and vitamin content. "Market basket" samples consisting of about 60 pounds of groceries — a one week's supply — were obtained every 3 months from chain groceries in the Washington, D.C. area.

Foods and quantities sampled were from the "moderate income" food list furnished by Household Economics Research Division of the Department of Agriculture. The food was prepared in the diet kitchens of the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md.; the Mt. Alto Veterans Hospital, Washington, D.C.; the Crawford W. Long Memorial Hospital, Atlanta; the University of Minnesota, St. Paul; the Veterans Administration Hospital, St. Louis and the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital, San Francisco.

Analysis for Strontium-90 and Cesium-137 showed the following: There was a steady increase of Strontium-90 in the total diet from May, 1961 through February, 1963. Waste segments of the market basket which constitute only 6 per cent by weight contain about half of the Strontium-90. The dairy products, which constitute 25 per cent by weight of the total diet, contain over half of the Strontium-90.

The largest proportion of the increase in Strontium-90 in the total diet over the year covered during this study is contributed by the dairy products. There is about two to three times as much Cesium-137 in the total diet as Strontium-90 and a general correlation between the levels of the two nuclides exists.

Analysis for pesticide residues showed the following: All pesticides detected in the foods were at very low levels, many at the minimum detectable by the methods used. Twenty different chlorinated pesticide residues would have been detected had they been present.

Iowan Named Farm Safety 'All American'

DES MOINES (AP) — Three leaders in Midwest agriculture were honored Monday night as "All Americans" in the field of farm safety.

They are Kirk Fox of Des Moines, long-time editor of Successful Farming magazine; Guy Noble of Chicago, founder and director for 37 years of the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work (4-H); and Maynard Coe of Chicago, who retired recently after many years as manager of the National Safety Council's farm department.

The three were named honorary members of the National Institute for Farm Safety, whose annual meeting opened Monday. The three honorees are pioneers in the farm safety movement.

The national institute was started last year by professional workers in the Midwest area to advance the professional status of the career worker in farm safety.

Among other farm-safety activities, Fox assisted in organizing the Iowa Farm Safety Council and was its first chairman.

Noble was elected in 1948 as vice president of the board of the National Safety Council, a position he held for several years. He established the 4-H farm safety project on a national scale.

Coe established the National Conference for Farm Safety, which has resulted in state farm safety committees in 46 states and the annual National Farm Safety Week proclaimed by the President of the United States.

Stanley Here; Cites Need In Education

State Representative David Stanley (R-Muscatine) told a conference of school superintendents here Monday that "Iowa needs a top-priority effort for better education. Our goal should be the best possible education for every Iowa child."

Rep. Stanley suggested six educational goals for the 1960's, including: (1) Revise our obsolete system of raising money for schools. (2) Stop the loss of our best teachers to other states which pay higher salaries. (3) Complete the job of school reorganization; each district should be large enough to provide good education at a reasonable cost.

The other goals suggested by Rep. Stanley were: (4) Give each student the education he needs, including more vocational training and more special classes for gifted and retarded children. (5) Provide enough two-year community colleges. (6) Continue to strengthen our state universities.

"Our local schools depend too much on the property tax," Rep. Stanley said. "This situation is cheating our children and hurting Iowa's growth. We need to shift part of school costs from property taxes to other taxes. State financial aid to local schools should be used to equalize educational opportunity for all Iowa children."

Rep. Stanley urged the school superintendents to take school problems to the people. "Most citizens will support better education if you explain what is needed, what it will cost, and how it will help our children," he said. "Iowans have the highest average intelligence in the nation, and they will choose wisely if they are given the facts."

C.R. Couple Killed In 3-Car Collision

SPRIT LAKE (AP) — A vacationing Cedar Rapids couple and a teen-aged driver were killed Monday in a three-car collision on Highway 9 about eight miles east of here.

Five other teen-agers were injured. Dead are James Kent Hayes, 60, of Cedar Rapids, his wife and Ronald Jensen, 18, of Estherville.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes were killed outright. Jensen died at an Estherville hospital, where a passenger in his car, Donna Lynn Knudson, 17, of Spirit Lake, was in satisfactory condition.

Highway Patrolman James Bonnstetter said the Jensen car apparently blew a tire and the auto was thrown out of control.

The car careened across the highway and collided head-on with the car containing Mr. and Mrs. Hayes.

The third car, driven by Susan Rae Strube, 17, of Estherville, ran into the rear of the Hayes' auto.

Three girls in the Strube car and Miss Strube were treated at the hospital and released. They are Marcia Strube, 14, a sister; Barbara Shriner, 16, of Estherville; and Ina Townsend, 15, Wayne, N.J.

The patrolman said the 1963 model car of the Hayes' had been driven less than 500 miles.

RUSSIAN 'AID'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced Monday the establishment of a committee for cultural relations with overseas Russians "in the grip of anti-Soviet propaganda."

A Tass news agency announcement said the committee had been set up in response to "numerous requests" from Ukrainians, White Russians, Latvians and Estonians living in other countries.

Rail Board Picks Thursday As Date for Dispute Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's special railroad board got its fact-finding mission into high gear Monday, and set Thursday as a target date for wrapping up a report on the work-rules dispute.

With exactly two weeks remaining of the strike truce between the railroads and their five on-train unions, both sides gave the panel in writing their separate interpretations of the issues. This provided a working base for the labor-management committee to get busy.

After this was presented at a morning session, each side went on its own to review the other's report.

In the afternoon, the six-man panel quizzed first the union spokesman and then the carriers' representatives. The group plans to do the same today in an effort to pin down the facts and issues which have kept the railroads and the unions at odds for four years, despite recommendations from two previous Presidential committees and help from Government mediators.

A Labor Department spokesman said the committee hopes to start writing its reports on Wednesday and complete it by Thursday.

The plan is to give the report to Kennedy on Friday, which would allow him three days to study it and give Congress his recommendations next Monday, as he has promised.

The Labor Department spokesman said the committee's report probably will not be made public until next Monday, when Kennedy sends his message to Congress along with the report.

The President has not indicated what legislation he might propose, but speculation has centered on compulsory arbitration, seizure of the railroads or a combination of both.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, who heads the panel, has criticized both sides for "failure of responsibility" to settle their dispute to avoid a compulsory solution. But Wirtz refused in a television interview Sunday to say whether the Administration will recommend compulsory arbitration.

The dispute has many facets, but the focus is on the railroads' plans to impose new work rules, which would wipe out nearly 65,000 jobs of the 190,000 men who run the trains. Their unions say they will strike to prevent this.

The Presidential panel, headed by Wirtz, was chosen by Kennedy last Wednesday just eight hours before a strike was expected to start. A strike would have idled almost all of the nation's 700,000 rail workers.

Both sides agreed to put off any action until July 29 and to work with the panel, but there was no indication they intended to renew their own negotiations.

Small Fry Art Festival Keeps Busy Fingers Busy

By RON SLECHTA
Staff Writer

More than 100 people visited the Riverside Park Art Festival Sunday evening. The Iowa City festival was held to exhibit drawings, paintings and plaster of paris figures done by 18 children of the married students living in Riverside Park.

The idea of holding an art festival originated a week ago when Diane Peterson, wife of Larry R. Peterson, A2, Iowa City, started giving art lessons to three of the children. Soon practically every child from five to 13 in the neighborhood was painting and drawing pictures of things seen at City Park and along the Iowa River.

"Until they started painting and drawing, the kids didn't have a thing to do," Mrs. Peterson said. "Preparing for this art festival really kept them occupied and gave the mothers a chance to relax."

Kathy Lucht, daughter of Wayne Lucht, G, Dallas, Texas; Louri Prouse, daughter of Howard Prouse, G, Mankato, Minn.; and Lorah Dorn, daughter of Harold Dorn, G, Lagrange, Ore., helped Mrs. Peterson and Mrs. Donald Reese organize the festival.

Several of the parents and children made programs and invitations for the festival Saturday night. The next afternoon, several distributed invitations to married students housing units in Riverside Park.

The children hung their paintings and drawing on a rope strung around the south end of the Riverside Park drive. Some of them also donated work they had completed in their respective schools.

Mrs. Donald Reese, Knoxville, Tenn., and several other mothers furnished refreshments for the visitors.

"The children really got excited preparing for this art festival," Mrs. Peterson said. "We hope they will keep busy painting and drawing the rest of the summer."

REA Chief Hits Rates Of Utilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Norman M. Clapp, administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration (REA), reports that rural power cooperatives are concerned over the rates commercial power concerns are charging them for electric energy.

Writing in his agency's monthly magazine, "Rural Lines," the REA chief says local units financed by Government loans now pay $100 million a year for such power. This compares with $87 million in 1950.

"Despite the tremendous increase in electric energy purchased, the average price paid to commercial companies by rural electric systems decreased only 17 per cent between 1950 and 1962," Clapp wrote. "Present rates average 0.77 cents per kilowatt hour compared with 0.93 cents in 1950."

Clapp said present rates do not reflect the actual advances in technology and volume that have taken place in the power industry. But spokesmen for the commercial concerns disagree with the REA chief. They say the rates charged by them are in line with production and distribution costs.

Clapp said that since inauguration of the REA system in the mid-1930s, the cooperatives have paid more than $1 billion for power obtained from the commercial concerns.

College of Education Future Described by Dean H. R. Jones

The SUI College of Education may soon have a television hook-up with University experimental schools and the Television Center, a new master's degree in teaching, and a cooperative program with a university in another country.

These were some of the possible future trends discussed by Dean Howard R. Jones at the 50th anniversary of the SUI College of Education Monday night.

Jones, fifth man to head the College of Education, announced plans for a cable linking University high school and the SUI Television Center. Educational demonstrations will be processed on video-tape and in some instances on motion picture film, Jones said.

The use of this hook-up, he explained, will enable student teachers and counselors to see their efforts in working with students "played back" to them for study and analysis.

Jones also predicted that programmed learning will be used in the college as well as in the high school classroom.

In stressing the impact of the college abroad, Jones said, "Up to now SUI has made its international impact through the individual efforts of faculty members who have served on mission or in a consultative capacity to school programs in other countries. While these individual relationships will continue, it is not unlikely that the college as a whole will become involved with a state system or with an institution of higher education in another country."

Jones emphasized the importance of graduate work in education and said, "The breadth of general education needed to cope with the problems of today's world makes a four-year liberal arts program more and more essential."

The advisory committee of the College of Education is considering the possibility of a program similar to those found in some other institutions granting a degree called the master of arts in teaching.

Dean Jones noted that "the guide-lines laid down for the college fifty years ago are the postulates which we hold today. They have stood the test of time . . . and will continue to be guide-lines for the future."

They are: 1) The preparation of professional leaders in education is a University-wide responsibility.

2) There should be a focus for the coordination of these University-wide efforts in teacher education, for the initiation of new ideas, for periodic appraisal and modification of programs.

3) The importance of the preparation of educational leaders is so vital to the University, to the state, and to the nation that the arm of the University designated to coordinate this effort should have the status of a college.

4) A balance must be maintained in the College among the tasks of teaching, research and service, and each of these functions must be performed at a high level.

5) There must be adequate laboratory facilities for experimental work in instruction and in teacher education for observation and for internship.

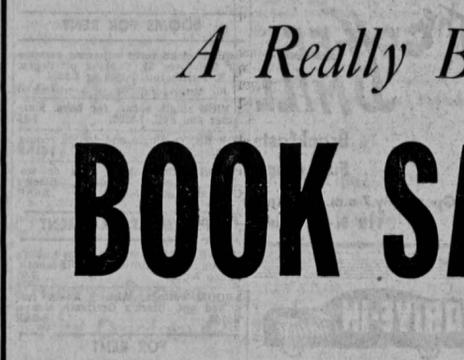

Jones said that the precepts in these traditions will be used in carrying out the trends he forecast. He said, that the years ahead "will be exciting years. They will be years worthy of those who are bearers of a great tradition."

A new parking lot along the west side of East Hall will replace a somewhat smaller reserved faculty lot to be lost when construction of the proposed Physics Research Building begins in the near future. The new reserved lot will have space for approximately 75 cars. The entrance will be on Jefferson Street. Physical Plant officials expect the new facility to be ready for use at the beginning of the fall semester in September.

Police Investigate Burglary of $190 From Quad Grill

Campus Police are investigating a burglary which netted thieves about $190 after breaking into the Quadrangle Grill sometime between 2 p.m. Saturday and 7:30 a.m. Monday.

Captain Verne H. McClurg said the thieves gained entrance to the grill area of Quadrangle Dormitory by climbing over a partition which separated the grill from a small room containing coin-operated canteen machines. The burglars opened a cash register drawer in the grill and obtained keys with which they gained access to a storeroom located behind the cash register.

Once in the store room, McClurg said, the thieves broke loose a small safe from its wooden encasement and removed it. The safe contained approximately $150 in two cash drawers.

Also taken from the grill were $20 worth of candy, cigarets and general merchandise.

An additional $20 worth of change was taken from an ice cream vending machine in the canteen area. The machine was opened by another key obtained from the cash register.

No leads were reported by McClurg who said police were still working on the case Monday afternoon.

Seat belts can save at least 5,000 lives a year—reduce serious injuries by 1/2.

Isn't it time to heed this advice from The National Safety Council? Isn't it time to protect your loved ones and yourself by installing seat belts in your car?

Seat belts are life belts. Without a seat belt, when your car stops suddenly in a collision or emergency, you keep going with tremendous force. Into dash, windshield, window, or back of front seat. But with a seat belt, you "stay put" . . . with a vital Margin of Safety between you and serious injury.

Don't wait. Install and use seat belts now. You'll drive with a new peace of mind.

INDUSTRY

Industry, too, depends on natural gas in many ways. Gas is a source of heat for the processing of foods and hard goods. Gas also is a source of raw material for the manufacture of synthetics, chemicals and fertilizer.

Gas, in fact, has more than 26,000 adaptations of more than 2500 individual uses in the production and fabrication of almost every item required in the daily life of the nation.

Yes, the clean blue flame of better living—that provides so many comforts in the home—also serves you by serving more than 140,000 industrial customers in the United States.

NGPL FACT FILE: NGPL's annual growth—in terms of increase in system capacity—has averaged more than 11 per cent a year for the last four years.
