Three SUlowans have driven 2,400 miles to the Canadian province of Quebec to watch a 67½-second spectacle today when a star known as the sun will really star.

Among the few Americans who will have "ringside seats" at one of the most marvelous events of SUlowans can watch the solar eclipse this afternoon from the roof of the SUI Physics Building. Dr. Satoshi Matsushima, associate professor of astronomy, said the image of the sun will be projected on a screen which can be safely watched — and photographed — by anyone. Matsushima said the eclipse can be viewed any time between 2:30 and 4 p.m. today.

a lifetime — a total eclipse of the sun — will be John Zink, Marshalltown, an assistant in astronomy; Ken Hart, G. New York City and Harry Owens, A4, Cedar Rapids. The total eclipse will be visible in a 50-mile band stretching from central Alaska, across Canada and into northern Maine.

The trio took turns driving a '54 model car on the trip.

With sleeping bags, pots, pans, ponchos and tents packed, they departed at midnight Thursday. They planned to camp enroute, cooking over a campfire. The Quebec province was chosen because weather reports indicate that the cloud conditions will be better there.

The SUlowans decided to make the lengthy journey to view the 1-minute, 7½-second eclipse because "we are interested in astronomy. We would not miss this; it's the chance of a lifetime."

Around the world jet airplanes will pursue the shadow of the eclipse. Rockets and radio waves will poke up toward it. Hundreds of scientists will carry out special photography and measurements. And perhaps millions of Americans will look up to see the sun become totally or partly eclipsed. It's a rare event when the moon moves in just the right path to cover the face of the blazing sun for observers on earth.

The last total eclipse actually visible in the United States occurred June 30, 1954, and the next won't come until March 7, 1970.

In Iowa City about 77 per cent of the eclipse will be visible at the peak moment. The eclipse will begin at approximately 2:15 p.m. and reach a peak about 3:30 p.m.

The sun will appear to be partially blackened by a dark disk — the moon. The bright rays of the sun — the glare which makes people blink when they look directly into it — will be screened from view by the moon.

Eye experts urge extreme caution in observing the eclipse lest the retina of the eye become permanently scarred by burns.

Some advise only indirect viewing; others say three thicknesses of fully exposed and fully developed black and white photographic film are adequate — but not sunglasses or pieces of smoked glass.

To watch the sight safely, the viewer may also use a simple projector made of two pieces of cardboard. A hole is punched in one of the pieces and this is held on the shoulder. This hole serves as a lens to focus the eclipse on the second cardboard. By adjusting the distance between the cardboards, the size of the image can be changed.

The Iowa Optometric Association warns that sun glasses and smoked glass are not sufficient protection when watching the spectacle. These do not absorb enough of the powerful sun rays. If a partial eclipse is watched through binoculars or telescopes, the magnified image can cause even more damage.

Since the symptoms of eye damage do not occur until several hours or even days after the eclipse, people who have watched the sight may believe they "fooled the experts" and escaped injury.

But the three SUlowans in Quebec will be able to look directly into the eclipse when it reaches totality without any danger to their eyes.

From their Canadian vantage point, the group will watch the sun gradually darken. They will even see stars twinkling at mid-afternoon.

They will watch the spectacle through binoculars and a telescope, according to Zink.

Just before the total phase of the eclipse occurs, the trio will see Bailey's Beads — the rays of sun gleaming through the craters and rises of the moon. If they watch carefully, they can notice "the diamond ring effect" when the sun's rays shine through a single lunar valley.

Then the sun's corona will glow in a pale hue, extending hundreds of miles into space.

By watching carefully, these "amateur" astronomers can distinguish the chromosphere, a 2,000-mile layer between the base of the corona and the photosphere, the surface of the sun.

According to Dr. Satoshi Matsushima, associate professor of astronomy, this area is the most important for scientific study.

Since this can only be seen during a total eclipse, scientists from many parts of the world are traveling to vantage points in Canada and the eastern United States.

They will use the eclipse to check on Einstein's theory that starlight is bent by gravitational forces as it passes close to the sun.

Astronomers in a specially-equipped Royal Canadian Air Force plane will follow the moon's full shadow path to watch an extra 18 seconds of the total eclipse.

One specially-equipped jet will race along the path of the eclipse, thereby winning 144 seconds of totality, 44 more than for astronomers on the ground.

Scientists aboard will photograph the sun's corona, and at eight-mile height they hope to catch it extending a far greater distance than visible from the ground for spectral and infrared radiation and other studies.

Scheduled aboard is astronaut M. Scott Carpenter Jr., with Dr. Jocelyn R. Gill, astronomer with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, briefing him on observations of the air-glow from zodiacal light, the corona, the dim sky, possibly comets and other phenomena.

A Tiros weather satellite and other instrumented satellites will take revealing peeks at the eclipse. They will also help to predict cloud conditions for astronomers on the ground so these watchers will be able to set their telescopes up at the best viewing point.

Since the American Astronomical Society is meeting at the University of Alaska, professional and amateur astronomers will have an excellent vantage point. The eclipse will begin in northern Japan about dawn, sweep across the Pacific, travel across Alaska, Canada and be over Bar Harbor, Maine, less than three hours after it started.

Khrushchev Wants Test Ban Plus Nonaggression Pact

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev leaped into the East-West negotiations here Friday with a proposal to back up a nuclear test ban with a nonaggression pact and a system of airfield and railroad inspections to prevent surprise attack.

While the negotiators' meeting in a nearby palace sorted out details of a partial test ban, the Soviet leader walked to the podium in the Kremlin and made a series of proposals that seemed to head straight for a summit conference.

He agreed the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union are approaching agreement on a nuclear test ban covering everything except underground explosions. He wants those to, he said, but added that the West insists on inspections. He implied those will not be approved.

"The most important thing is for each side to display willingness to ease tensions and to liquidate the state of the cold war," Khrushchev said.

The proposals immediately were studied anew by the British and American delegations here even though there was some indication that he had outlined them in their first talk last Monday, when he opened the negotiations in the Kremlin.

The audience cheered repeatedly as he made them. They cheered again when he lashed out at the Chinese Communists, accusing them of wanting to carry forward their revolutionary fervor at the risk of a nuclear war.

Khrushchev made clear in his 90-minute speech that he wanted a nonaggression pact or something like it to come out of the present negotiations. Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, chairman of the U.S. delegation, has repeatedly said he is here to negotiate a test ban, though he is ready to discuss anything else.

Here is what Khrushchev proposed: — The test ban covering all nuclear explosions except underground, he said, is not feasible now.

— A nonaggression pact between the Soviet-led Warsaw powers and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

— A settlement of the Berlin-German question.

— Freezing, or reduction, of military budgets.

— A system of inspection posts scattered both east and west of the Iron Curtain at airfields, railroad stations, highways and ports. Their presence might spot any troop movements for a surprise attack.

— Reduction of the armed forces on both sides in East and West Germany.

Sputtering Nikita Dares Red China

MOSCOW (AP) — Sputtering with rage over Red China's challenge to his leadership of the Communist camp, Soviet Premier Khrushchev dared Peking's leaders Friday to take their ideological dispute to the people.

"I declare to those who would like to overthrow us: I challenge you, gentlemen, comrades, let's pick out any plant or any collective farm," he said.

"You present your program and we will present our program. Let the people be the judge. "And you may rest assured, you won't need armor or a pillow for protection. Our people are polite here. They'll listen to you and say: 'Get out.'"

The Soviet Premier flung the challenge in an extemporaneous outburst at a Kremlin rally honoring visiting Hungarian Premier János Kadar.

He twice departed from his prepared text to criticize his Chinese antagonists, groping for words in obvious vexation.

At one point he spluttered to a halt searching for a word and appealed to the Kremlin audience: "Help me out, help me out."

While Khrushchev was throwing down the gauntlet to Mao Tse-tung at the Kremlin, their ideological experts were meeting in the Lenin Hills to discuss the arguments which the Premier's speech showed are nowhere near a compromise.

He pressed the Kremlin attack on the Chinese call for militant revolutionary tactics against the West.

"They say one should start a revolution, a war, and on the corpses and ruins a still more prosperous society will be created," he said.

"And who will remain in this prosperous society?" he asked sarcastically.

"And do you know that if all

The proposal for inspections to shield both sides from surprise attack by ground or air forces had been made before.

It was originally advanced by the Soviet Union in the U.N. General Assembly five years ago, though airfields were omitted at that time. The Soviet memorandum offered disarmament discussion and then went even further by suggesting aerial photography to check on parts of Central Europe, the Soviet Union and the United States.

In the light of the new and optimistic approach to lowering East-West tensions, the idea appeared to take on new life.

the warheads of the nuclear rockets were set off and if all this were to go into the contamination of the atmosphere, then it is not known what would be the fate of the people who would survive.

"Wouldn't possibly the living envy the dead?"

Khrushchev defended his right to occupy the top leadership position in the Soviet Union.

"We have taken power not in order to hold this power by any means. No, but to work for the welfare of our party by brains and labor," he declared.

"And if the people tell you that you are pulling in the wrong direction, then you have to give the people the right to remove you and elect another."

Lesson for Today: Crime Doesn't Pay

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Two 10-year-old boys came before Juvenile Court Friday charged with breaking into a grocery store and stealing five boxes of chocolate laxative, thinking it was candy.

"What did you do with it?" asked Judge Lon Warneki.

"We ate it, sir."

"All five boxes?"

"Yes, sir."

Warneki said that should be punishment enough. He put them on probation.

McNamara: No Knowledge Of Data Leak

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Friday disclaimed knowledge of any leaks of up-to-date U.S. war plans or weapon secrets.

He said he is "not only satisfied but very pleased" with actions by military intelligence to safeguard such information.

McNamara spoke of U.S. security when asked at a news conference about reports of leaks to the Soviets through British or Swedish spies.

"I know of no leaks" of that kind the defense chief said.

"I know of no compromise of any current U.S. military plans . . . I know of no compromising of our current weapons systems." The emphasis was on the word "current."

McNamara acknowledged it is possible Swedish Col. Stig Wennerstrom, recently unmasked as a paid Soviet spy, revealed certain data on design of U.S. weapons while Sweden's military attaché in Washington.

"But I am told that none of our weapons systems today have been compromised by whatever information he may have received at this time."

No special security-tightening actions have been taken, McNamara told reporters, "but we are constantly reviewing the security program of this department."

In the course of his first general news conference in nearly five months, McNamara also discussed these matters:

● Nuclear test ban: "I think all responsible leaders of this department believe it is against the interests of this nation to allow further proliferation of nuclear weapons."

"Any action we can take that protects our national security and at the same time reduces the risk of further proliferation is desirable."

● TFX: The defense secretary, who has been locked in a months-long battle with the Senate investigations subcommittee over the TFX war plane contract, ignored openings newsmen gave him to challenge the subcommittee's methods.

He said he has "not hinted broadly or otherwise that there is politics" in the subcommittee's attack on the Pentagon for awarding the potential $6.5-billion contract to General Dynamics Corp., rather than to the Boeing Co.

● Navy carriers: McNamara estimated it would cost an additional $150 million to build a new carrier with nuclear power rather than conventional engines. Congress has voted money for a conventionally powered carrier and McNamara said a decision on whether to convert it to atomic propulsion still has not been made.

Robber Flees; I.C. Police Called For Road Blocks

Iowa City police were among law officers who set up road blocks Friday night in an attempt to catch an armed robber who took $500, mostly in silver, from the HyVee food store in Washington.

Store manager Joe MacDonald said he was sweeping the floor in the back of the store when a man knocked on the front door, shortly after the store's 9 p.m. closing time.

The man pulled a revolver and ordered MacDonald to open the store's safe. He then forced MacDonald into a back room, where he bound him hand and foot. MacDonald later worked loose and called police.

The bandit was described as 6-1, with short black hair. He was wearing a blue shirt, blue jeans and a tan jacket. Police described the man as "dangerous."

Truck Driver, From I.C., Not Injured

Accident on IS 80; Car Catches Fire After Being Hit

WILTON JUNCTION (AP) — An Air Force sergeant, his wife and their two children from Alton, R.I., were killed late Friday when their compact car was rammed from the rear by a truck on Interstate 80 at a spot where a State Highway Commission crew was making a traffic survey.

The dead were identified as T. Sgt. Robert L. Stultz, in his 30s, his 29-year-old wife, Evelyn, a 6-year-old son Paris and a 3-year-old daughter, Debra.

The westbound car burned but the occupants probably were dead when it caught fire, Cedar County Sheriff J. H. Leveranz reported.

The sheriff gave this account: A truck driven by Charles Lee Drollinger of Iowa City had stopped at a spot where six members of a Highway Commission crew were making a traffic survey.

The Stultz car pulled up behind the Drollinger car and was waiting to go through the check point when it was struck from the rear by a moving van of the Dudley Transfer Co. of Lincoln, Neb.

The small car was rammed under the first truck and burst into flames.

Officials said Stultz apparently was being transferred from an Air Force Base at Bangor, Maine, and was driving west to a base either in California or at Laredo, Tex.

The accident occurred between Wilton Junction and Iowa City a mile west of the intersection of Interstate 80 and Iowa Highway 38.

The sheriff said that neither Drollinger nor Howard W. Everson, 30, of Lincoln, driver of the moving van, was injured.

Charges Filed Against Driver In Collision

Charges of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated and failure to yield at a stop sign were filed against a driver involved in a two-car accident at 2300 Muscatine Ave. Friday night.

Charged was George Ralph Parizek, 53, Hills, the driver of a 1960 Chevrolet, which was involved in a collision with a 1959 panel truck driven by George Yansky, 33, 2702 Wayne Ave.

Injured in the accident were David Yansky, 8, who suffered a broken collarbone; Stella Parizek, 51, who received head and nose injuries; and George Yansky, who suffered injuries on the chest and left side. None of the injuries was reported as serious.

The accident took place at 7:38 Friday.

Officials Continue Investigation In Platinum Burglary Case

Capt. Verne H. McClurg, Campus Police, said Friday that there were no new leads in connection with the theft of $9,039 worth of platinum metal and wire from the SUI Chemistry Building.

Campus Police Chief John Hanna said the loot — enough to last the average chemist two lifetimes, according to Chemistry Department Chairman Stanley Wawzonek — may still be in Iowa City, although he said there is no market for platinum in Iowa.

connection with the area, in which the platinum was kept, has been questioned. Hanna added that in his 30 years of police work, he had never before heard of platinum being stolen and said that an FBI agent of comparable experience, who had been called in on the case, had said the same thing.

Because of the lack of apparent motive, some officials speculated that a sneak thief may have entered the room, opened the safe and, thinking the platinum instruments were silver, walked off with them.

Urban Renewal: We Should Go All the Way

IOWA CITY HAS A GOOD CHANCE of avoiding a crippling loss of trade and a tax mess. The chance, in fact, to prevent the rather untimely death of a city already choking in its own traffic, parking, and ugly-buildings-with-neon-signs problems.

The threat is chiefly the downtown area of Iowa City, clogged with too much traffic, hindered by too little parking, and made ugly by too many and too different buildings. A blend of roads conceived and built years ago and a conglomeration of buildings badly conceived and built in all different years.

The hope comes from the report Thursday by a Chamber of Commerce committee on redevelopment. Committee chairman Clark Houghton said at a news conference that the committee will issue recommendations in December for a one-year and a five-year improvement program for Iowa City.

OUR HOPE is that the committee will bring back recommendations for the construction of a multi-block shopping center in downtown Iowa City. As radical as such a solution might seem, the voters of several cities have recently decided it is the only real way of clearing up the rapidly increasing urban messes.

Keokuk voters recently approved, in a non-binding referendum, the razing of several blocks in the middle of the city for the construction of a well-planned shopping center, complete with free parking space. Impetus for the Keokuk plan came from their Chamber of Commerce. Chamber leaders there consider the huge reconstruction project the only way to prevent construction of a shopping center on the edge of the city — away from the heavy tax district — and to bring back shoppers who are already being drained off by shopping centers in nearby cities.

WATERLOO NOW HAS a proposal before city planners to do essentially the same thing for that city — razing a good portion of the downtown area and replacing it with a shopping center having 3,000 free parking places.

Clarence Schukei, president of the organization pushing for the Waterloo project, is backing the plan partly because of its tax advantages. Such a development, says Mr. Schukei, is the only way to maintain the property tax base represented by downtown commercial property.

"If this tax base is allowed to deteriorate, then the property tax burden will be shifted to residential property," he said. "Because of this, maintenance of downtown property valuations is a matter that should be of concern to all residents of Waterloo."

Waterloo is still pondering the complete revamping of its downtown area. Keokuk has accepted it, as have — in varying degrees — Sioux City, Urbana, Ill., and Buffalo, N. Y.

THE ADVANTAGES keep adding up: the attraction of trade, a big decrease in parking problems, and a minimizing of traffic problems.

The disadvantages? Well, obviously financing such a program will be the worst bugaboo. Some cities have accepted federal aid — often substantial for urban renewal — and others have rejected it. Keokuk plans to use funds from their bridge fund for the first stage of their project.

Another alternative, at least for part of the money, is the ever-unpopular bond — paid off, eventually, by increased taxes. In this case, as Mr. Schukei suggests, higher taxes now might mean lower ones later.

One thing is certain. The shopping center, with its ample free parking spaces and lack of downtown traffic jams, is much more attractive to the shopper than the neon-lighted frustration that Iowa City shopping means — especially to the shopper on wheels. And if that psychological fact isn't applied to constructive redevelopment here, the city will have to face the economical fact of a loss in trade.

AND THAT CAN MEAN the eventual death of the downtown district. Many cities are already saying good-bye to their downtown areas after shopping centers robbed all their customers from them.

Any amount of parking lots, one-way streets, and traffic laws will not make the shopping district new again. Iowa City needs to go all the way. —Dean Mills

There Was Struggle Then, Too—

The Early Blood Chapters of Communism

By RALPH MCGILL

Mao's "Leninists" and Khrushchev's dilemma makes us remember old stories of Communism's beginning in power.

July is the month in which candles are burned before icons in the homes of surviving Russians of the old order — commemorating the death of Czar Nicholas and his family in a cellar in the Ural city then called Ekaterinburg.

It is a bloody story. Nor have the years washed off any of the horror-stain of it. The royal family had been arrested in March of 1918. But as the civil war raged, Lenin and his advisers feared some foreign power might slip them out of Russia to another country and there from a government in exile and a rallying force.

SO, IN APRIL they were sent by Lenin's Government to the distant city of Ekaterinburg. The area was in chaos. Armed bands roamed it. One of the great war stories, not yet fully told, is of the anti-Bolshevik Czech Legion.

It made a remarkable march from Siberia to the Pacific, following, for a while, the Trans-Siberian railway. Despite fear of the Czechs, other captured members of the imperial family were brought to the city. A tough, violent local soviet held it and maintained a certain order.

S. Viet Nam Battle Lines Harden Daily

SAIGON, South Viet Nam — Buddhists, who make up about 80 per cent of South Viet Nam's population, are willing to commit ritual suicide, go to jail, face police beatings and storm barbed wire barricades to enforce their demands on the Government headed by Roman Catholic President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Why are Buddhists willing to do such things, and what do they hope to gain from it all?

In hundreds of thousands of mimeographed words, Buddhist leaders have detailed some of their demands in the past two months.

They want freedom to fly their five-colored, patchwork flags whenever and wherever they choose. They want legal reforms under which Buddhist pagodas can buy and hold real estate as freely as Christian churches. They want to be able to meet freely without special police licenses.

They also want to be able to demonstrate freely in support of these and many other demands.

Some of the demands are vague and expressed in obscure ways. U.S. officials are not all sure just what the Buddhists do want of this Communist-threatened Government.

The slogan of the Buddhists is "Religious freedom and social justice," but this is not a complete explanation either.

None of the leading priests or Buddhist laymen has said he favors the overthrow of the Ngo Dinh Diem Government. But as passions mount and police crack down harder, the Vietnamese "Buddhist problem" becomes increasingly a political matter.

Both the Government and the Buddhists have charged each other with bad faith, and the battle lines harden daily.

The sociology department at Michigan State has founded a student project named Student Education Corps (SEC). The SEC works in deprived school areas carrying on such activities as classroom assistance in reading, English, arithmetic, social studies, foreign languages, science and the fine arts.

Members of SEC also organized physical education and recreation activities, a folk and classical music program, and a career advice program.

The philosophy of the Corps is working with economically deprived children and providing them with opportunities they ordinarily would not have in their schools.

President Kennedy's Study Group for a Domestic Service Corps has asked that SEC send complete information to Washington. At least four schools in the U.S. have studied the SEC project to adapt the plan to their own areas.

STUDENT WORKERS at Southern Illinois University will receive a blanket pay scale raise of five cents this fall. The raise will bring beginning pay up to 85 cents an hour and the top scale pay to $1.30.

Howard Hammers Homers Twice in Dodger Victory

Braves Lose To Drysdale By 4-2 Score

MILWAUKEE — Big Frank Howard cracked a pair of homers and scored three runs Friday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers continued their blistering pace by defeating the Milwaukee Braves 4-2.

In posting their 13th victory in their last 15 games, the Dodgers boosted their National League lead to 7½ games over the Chicago Cubs, who lost 9-4 to Pittsburgh. The Braves dropped into eighth place, behind Philadelphia.

Dan Drysdale scattered six hits, struck out 11 and walked only one in beating Milwaukee for the first time in four decisions this year.

Howard, employed in right field against southpaw Bob Hendley, made the most of the opportunity.

He hit Hendley's first pitch in the second for his 14th homer and then unloaded on the first delivery to him in the fourth for another. Six of Howard's 13 homers have been against the Braves.

Los Angeles ... 010 100 200—4 6 0

Drysdale and Camilli, Hendley, Funk (7), Piche (9) and Crandall, W—Drysdale (12-10). L—Hendley (5-6).

Home runs—Los Angeles, Howard 2 (1), Milwaukee, H. Aaron (27).

Hawks To Meet Two Opponents From Washington

The unusual situation of meeting two Washington teams in succession faces Iowa's 1963 football team. Hawkeyes open Sept. 28 at Iowa City against Washington State University from Pullman. Then, Oct. 5, they take on University of Washington at Seattle. Hawks beat Washington State at Iowa City in 1953 and 1957 but lost the only previous game with Washington in 1937.

Press-Radio-TV Day To Be Held Sept. 3

Press, radio and television personnel will have their annual "day" with SUI football coaches and players Tuesday, Sept. 3 as guests of the Hawkeye department of athletics.

The date is later than usual—it has been Aug. 31 for years—and will occur after the Iowans have had two practice sessions. Coach Jerry Burns has decided.

Players will work out Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning, following the check-in period and physical examinations.

The schedule calls for taping of radio interviews late in the morning, lunch with coaches and players, a press conference for newspaper writers, followed by about two hours of picture-taking on the field.

HOLE-IN-ONE

TORONTO — Andy Bathgate of the New York Rangers, a golf pro in the off-hockey season, shot a 230-yard hole-in-one Thursday while conducting a clinic. He used a two iron.

Hart Fires 72, Holds Lead In P.G.A. Championship

DALLAS — Dark horse Dick Hart, the expectant young father waiting for the telephone to ring, overcame steamy heat and mounting pressure Friday and held his lead in the Professional Golfers Association Championship (PGA) with a four-under-par 36-hole score of 66-72-138.

The game's greatest champions wilted in a day of scorching, 100-degree heat, clusters of bogeys and withdrawals at the 7,046-yard, par 71 Dallas Athletic Club course.

Defending champion Gary Player of South Africa, his driving wild and his putting cold, blew himself out of contention with a 74-75-149.

Arnold Palmer, the sport's outstanding gate attraction and No. 1 favorite, failed to snap a tenacious slump in shooting a second round 73 for 147—nine shots back of the unshakable young pace-setter.

"I would like to go somewhere and hide for three weeks," said Palmer, the all-time leading money winner seeking the only major title he has not won. "I am tired, hot and disgusted with myself."

Former National Open champion Jack Fleck of Davenport, withdrew Friday after 27 holes. Fleck, who shot a first round 76 Thursday, went out in 42 on the first nine holes of the second round today, then pulled out, saying the intense, near 100 degree heat was too much for him.

Fleck, who now registers from Northridge, Calif., won the 1955 Open in a playoff with Ben Hogan.

McKinley Goes To Finals Of Clay Courts

RIVER FOREST, Ill. — Chuck McKinley, Wimbledon champion and Davis Cup star, advanced as expected Friday to the finals of the 53rd National Clay Courts Tennis Championships.

The 22-year-old McKinley scored a convincing 6-3, 6-3, 7-5 victory over unranked Herbert Fitzgibbon II of Garden City, N.Y. McKinley's victory set up a championship match on Sunday against either R. Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., or Ron Barnes of Brazil, who met Saturday.

In the women's division, petite Nancy Richey of Dallas, 20, advanced with a neat 6-1, 6-2 decision over rugged Judy Alvarez of Tampa, Fla. in a semifinal match.

The other women's semifinal between Victoria Palmer, 18, of Phoenix, Ariz., and Gwyneth Thomas, 22, of Shaker Heights, Ohio, also will be played Saturday.

McKinley displayed little effort in disposing of the 21-year-old Princeton University senior, ranked 45th in the nation.

McKinley seemed to toy with his taller opponent in the final set by letting Fitzgibbon take a 4-3 advantage before winding up the match.

Miss Richey had an easy time defeating Miss Alvarez, a 20-year-old physical education major at Tampa University. Miss Alvarez had stunned the tennis world by conquering top-seeded Darlene Hard of Los Angeles in straight sets Thursday.

Hilgenberg Picked As Candidate For All-America

Co-Captain Wally Hilgenberg of Iowa is one of eleven players named as all-American guard candidates in 1963 football. The choice was published in the Street and Smith Football Yearbook, just off the press. Iowa, however, is forecast for a ninth place Big Ten finish by Paul Hornung of the Columbus Dispatch, who wrote the Midwest summary. He pointed out that "Iowa lost a bundle of offensive talent, quarterback makes the Hawks uncertain but good sophomores could produce a surprise team." Hornung picked Northwestern for the title, followed by Wisconsin, Ohio State, Purdue and Illinois.

Strong Relief Carries Cards Past Colts, 7-2

ST. LOUIS — Ron Taylor's strong relief pitching carried St. Louis to a 7-2 victory over the Houston Colts Friday night and moved the Cardinals into a virtual tie with the Chicago Cubs for second place in the National League race.

Taylor, who boosted his record to 5-4, relieved Ernie Broglio with a run in, runners on second and third and one out in the top of the third. He got out of that inning without further damage and held the Colts to four singles and no runs the rest of the way.

Houston, dropping its fourth straight, had jumped ahead in the first, 2-0.

The Cards broke the tie with the Colts in the second on Tim McCraver's single, Julian Javier's triple and Gary Kolb's sacrifice fly.

Dick Groat singled home a St. Louis run in the third and Ken Boyer singled in two more in the fifth. Kolb tripled and scored on an infield out in the sixth to wrap it up for the Cards.

Sports Magazine Honors 'Cretz'

Francis Cretzmeyer, SUI track coach whose 1963 team won the outdoor Big Ten title and shared the indoor crown, has been named Midwest spring sports Coach of the Year by Coach and Athlete Magazine.

The selection was announced by Editor Dwight Keith Jr. The current issue of the magazine carries a front cover picture of Coach Cretzmeyer and Captain Roger Kerr, the Big Ten 660-yard champion and record-holder.

Iowa won the outdoor title by a one-point margin over Wisconsin. Hawkeye athletes taking four titles in the conference meet. The Iowa mile relay team ranked sixth in the nation with a time of 3:09.6, winning ten first places and setting a total of nine meet or track records.

The outdoor championship was the first ever won by Iowa in the Big Ten and the share of the indoor title was the first since 1929.

HOUK PLEADS GUILTY—
KANSAS CITY — Richard William Houk, 20-year-old stepson of Ralph Houk, manager of the New York Yankees, pleaded guilty Friday to interstate transportation of a stolen car.

Reds' Rookie Drives In 5, Sinks Giants

CINCINNATI — Rookie Tommy Harper drove in all five Cincinnati runs with two homers and a single and John Tsitouris pitched a four-hitter Friday night, leading the Reds to a 5-2 victory over San Francisco's slumping Giants.

Harper and his fellow rookie, Pete Rose, took care of the Reds' scoring. Harper tagged Billy Pierce for a homer in the first inning after a leadoff single by Rose, homered in the fifth off Pierce following a walk to Rose, then singled Rose home in the seventh after the Cincinnati second baseman had reached first on an error and stolen second.

The loss was the ninth in their last 12 games for the Giants and dropped the defending National League champions into a fourth-place tie with the Reds.

Bucs Use 16 Hits, Rout Chicago, 9-4

PITTSBURGH — Scoring behind pitcher Bob Friend for the first time in four games, the Pittsburgh Pirates banged out 16 hits Friday night and routed the Chicago Cubs 9-4.

Friend, who had pitched 30 innings without having a run scored in his behalf, made sure he would not be blanked again by driving in the first Pittsburgh run with a single in the third. Manny Moto, who had doubled, crossed the plate.

Americans Ready To Face Russians, Except Ace Beatty

MOSCOW — Filled with confidence, potato salad and Finnish milk, the United States track and field team opens its annual two-day meet against the Soviet Union today, with an expected 100,000 in giant Lenin Stadium.

All the Americans are fit except ace distance man Jim Beatty, favored to win the 5,000, who went back on the question mark list Friday.

"I'll warm up before the race," Beatty said. "If I can run, I'll run. I came a long way for this meet." Beatty has a sore right leg muscle, which kicked up again Wednesday. He hoped rest would heal it.

However, he doesn't run until late Sunday afternoon. Today's program starts at 5:15 p.m. Moscow time (7:15 a.m., CST) and Sunday's card opens an hour earlier.

The American men's team was primed for its fifth straight victory and its biggest margin ever in the series. Last year at Palo Alto they won 128-107.

"They have two chances to beat us," says Gene Johnson of Santa Clara, Calif., "slim and none." Yankee girls are aiming for their best showing, although they have never even approached the Russian girls in the four previous meets.

U.S. Coach Payton Jordan of Stanford is gunning for the first American edge ever in combined totals of men's and women's events, which is the way the Russians score it.

SUI's Schultz Will Conduct Seven Schools

Baseball schools in seven cities during the next four weeks will be conducted by Coach Dick Schultz of SUI and the project is expected to reach some 15,000 boys.

The series opened Wednesday in Burlington and concluded there Friday. Players will include boys from the Little Leagues up to seniors in high schools. It is believed to be the first time that a project of this size has been conducted in Iowa.

The schedule calls for four days in Des Moines, July 22-25, and two in Chariton, July 31 and Aug. 1.

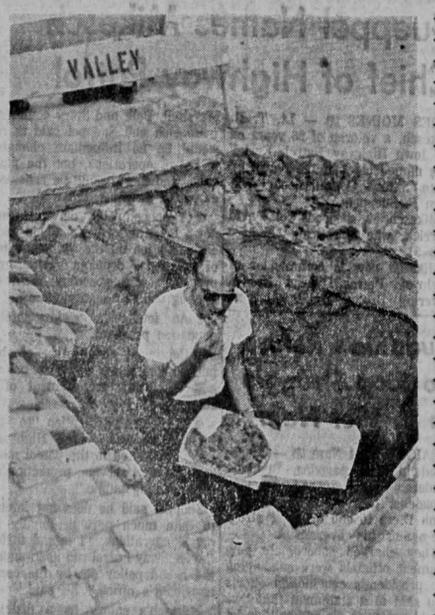

Other schools at dates to be set in August will be held in Marshalltown, Mason City, Ft. Dodge and Davenport.

Coach Schultz said that the University of Iowa is a major sponsor, along with two Iowa grocery chains. He will be assisted in most cities by local high school coaches.

The University man served as interim coach of Iowa's baseball squad in 1963 and the Hawkeyes finished second in the Big Ten race. Illinois won the title by beating Iowa in the ninth inning of the deciding game, 7-6.

Schultz says that he hopes the baseball schools will help to improve play in Little Leagues, Junior Leagues, the Babe Ruth League and in high schools and junior high schools. He regards the project as a long range affair which may eventually influence the caliber of baseball at the University of Iowa.

Writers Workshop at SUI Praised in Magazine Article

In a listing of what it terms "everyone of any serious literary consequence," Esquire magazine calls the Writers Workshop at SUI "the most important" college campus in the literary field.

Using a "power chart," Esquire discusses "The Structure of the American Literary Establishment" in its July issue.

The magazine considers the SUI Writers Workshop the only college campus in the literary "hot center" where most of the people know one another, and because they admire one another's work sincerely and are in a position to do something helpful, things get done. Reputations get made.

The article notes that the SUI Writers Workshop is the only university campus which habitually works together with critics, agents, book publishers and magazines "to establish a literary reputation."

The magazine lists 42 distinguished writers on college campuses who are either former SUI students or faculty members. These writers with training at SUI comprise a third of all the distinguished campus writers listed by Esquire. Among them are W. D. Snodgrass, Pulitzer Prize winner now at Wayne State; Karl Shapiro, now at the University of Nebraska; Philip Roth, now at Princeton University; Curtis Harnack, now at Sarah Lawrence; Wallace Stegner, now at Stanford; Robert Penn Warren; Calvin Kentfield, now at San Francisco State and Hortense Calisher.

Presently on the SUI Writers Workshop staff, and all listed by Esquire as important in the literary field, are workshop director Paul Engle, Donald Justice, R. V. Cassill, Vance Bourjaily and George P. Elliott.

Analyzing the "poetry situation," Esquire lists 62 poets, with 16 of them—or a fourth of the total—either presently at SUI or having studied in the SUI Writers Workshop. Twenty of the persons Esquire lists as being "the most important" literary talent published by the various major publishers are either at SUI or have studied or taught there.

Sueppel Names Mikesch Chief of Highway Patrol

DES MOINES (AP) — Lt. T. R. Mikesch, a veteran of 26 years on the Iowa Highway Patrol, Friday was named chief of the patrol by State Safety Commissioner William F. Sueppel.

Mikesch, 50, succeeds Col. David Herrick, who is retiring effective July 31.

Mikesch now is commander of Highway Patrol District No. 1, covering Boone, Dallas, Jasper,

Marshall, Polk and Story counties. Mikesch and Sueppel said there would be no immediate changes in patrol operations, but the new chief said there would be renewed emphasis in these areas:

- A concentrated drive to cut down Iowa highway accidents with concentration on the "killer" type of violation—drunken driving, improper passing, speeding, reckless driving and stop sign violations.
- An intense statewide safety education program.
- Continued cooperation of the patrol with Iowa sheriffs, police and other law enforcement officers.
- A renewed dedication "to fulfill the purpose of the Highway Patrol as stated in the patrol motto: Courtesy, service, protection to the traveling public."

Sueppel said he does not intend to take much part personally in patrol operations. "I intend to let the Highway Patrol run itself under the broad policy set by the commissioner's office," he said.

Mikesch's salary as a district commander is $7,000 a year. He will move into a pay bracket of $7,800 to $8,700 as chief, but his longevity pay will add $1,200 to the salary figure, which is yet to be set.

Buddhists Refuse To Stop Struggle In S. Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Blocked in their pagodas, Buddhist leaders Friday turned down a broadcast plea by President Ngo Dinh Diem to call off their struggle against his government.

They charged subordinate government officials were sabotaging the president's conciliation efforts and said in a statement that "we would prefer to die rather than let our belief in government good faith be destroyed by reality once more."

The yellow-robed high priests said they would negotiate only if Diem met certain conditions: these included the public identification of secret police who have been attacking Buddhist demonstrations, release of several hundred prisoners and permission for Saigon newspapers to print missing notices to try to track down Buddhists who have disappeared.

The priests vowed to continue demonstrations until these demands were met. The city was under heavy police guard.

Dub Bomb Hits San Francisco; No One Injured

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Navy practice bomb dropped on downtown Market Street during the noon rush hour Friday and bounced over an eight-story building.

No one was hurt.

The 25-pound, non-explosive missile slightly damaged two office buildings and bounced over one of them.

The pale blue bomb punched a small hole at the intersection of Market and Front streets, bounced over the eight-story IBM building at that corner, breaking a window on its way, and knocked pieces of concrete off the face of the Phoenix building at 360 Pine St., three blocks away.

The Navy acknowledged the bomb was dropped inadvertently by a reserve pilot on a routine bombing exercise flight.

Foreign Aid Bill Cut $240 Million By Senate Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted Friday to cut another $240 million off President Kennedy's $4,525,325,000 foreign aid bill.

The cut, together with a $32-million slash voted Thursday, brought reductions so far to $272 million.

In a surprise action, the committee adopted an amendment by Chairman J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.) making research funds in the bill available to countries for work on birth control measures in over-populated countries.

The amendment, approved by voice vote, will make funds available "to conduct research into problems of controlling population growth and to provide technical and other assistance to cooperating countries in carrying out programs of population control."

In money actions, the committee voted to reduce President Kennedy's request for military assistance to friendly countries by $105 million, from $1,405,000,000 to $1.3 billion.

Government Feed Grains Diverted in West Germany

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some U.S. firms may face civil suits in the diversion in Europe of $50 million in government-bartered grain, even though there is no evidence of wrongdoing by the Americans, Congress was told Friday.

Several members of the House Agriculture Committee, hearing this testimony from Agriculture Department officials, expressed doubt that the Government could sustain such a suit against an American exporter who acted in good faith.

The committee questioned the officials about some 605,000 metric tons of feed grains which never reached Austria under barter arrangement.

Foreign Agricultural Service Administrator Raymond A. Ioanes and Inspector General Lester P. Condon testified that a still incomplete investigation so far shows:

1. There is no indication any of the grain found its way behind the Iron Curtain.
2. Most of the diverted tonnage stayed in West Germany, where it had been unloaded for transshipment to landlocked Austria. Grain prices are substantially higher in Germany than in Austria. Some Austrian importers acted as fronts for West German interests who were the actual purchasers of the grain.
3. There is no evidence of collusion or wrongdoing by U.S. firms or nationals.
4. The U.S. Government did not suffer any out-of-pocket loss but its balance-of-payments problem may have been aggravated to the extent the diversion lessened opportunities to sell grain for dollars in Germany.
5. The strategic materials due the Government in the barter transactions have been, or are being, delivered.

Ioanes also said all barter transactions for grain to Austria have been cut off pending completion of the investigation.
