The patrolmen had answered a call saying two boys were spotted on the top floor of a six-story building. Arroyo faces a burglary charge, the younger boy a juvenile delinquency charge.

Haney Named To Succeed Col. Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paul Haney, 35, veteran public information official for the U.S. Space Agency, has been named to succeed Lt. Col. John A. "Shorty" Powers as spokesman for the nation's astronauts, it was learned Tuesday.

Haney, a former member of the editorial staff of the Washington Star, will become director of public affairs for the Manned Spacecraft Center of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at Houston, Tex., reliable sources reported. It was understood a formal announcement will be made by the space agency soon.

The fact that Powers was being replaced was confirmed last Friday by a NASA source who said Powers would remain at the Houston center but "not in public affairs."

Rumors of Powers' resignation — or removal — have been circulated since the 22-orbit flight of Air Force Maj. L. Gordon Cooper Jr. last May.

It has long been known that Washington headquarters of NASA felt it should have more control over publicity dealing with the astronauts — and that Powers resisted.

Haney has been with NASA since its early days. Most recently, he has been concentrating on the manned space flight sector.

PARIS (AP) — After lunch with President Charles de Gaulle, former U.S. Vice President Richard M. Nixon predicted a thaw in the chilly relations between France and the United States.

He told reporters in Paris Tuesday that was his personal opinion. He declined to discuss his conversation with De Gaulle.

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Buddhists in South Vietnam demonstrated peacefully Tuesday in their holy city of Hue without interference from the police of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

About 15,000 persons took part in a two-mile-long procession honoring the memory of the Rev. Quang Duc who burned himself to death June 11 in protest against alleged persecution by Diem's largely Roman Catholic government.

A nationwide general strike which had been scheduled for Tuesday did not take place.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru exhorted his countrymen Tuesday "be prepared for all eventualities" created by what he called a Communist Chinese buildup along the Himalayan border.

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The United States is returning to Poland the training plane in which a Polish air force major and his family defected to the West July 10, it was learned Tuesday.

An informed source said Polish officials have been told they could pick up the plane in West Berlin, where Maj. Richard Obacz landed with his wife and two sons after a low-level flight out of Poland and across Communist East Germany.

TOKYO (AP) — Japan had paid 151.6 billion yen — $421,111,111 — or 41.3 per cent of the total World War II reparations commitments to Southeast Asian countries by the end of March, the Foreign Office announced Tuesday.

SEOUL (AP) — A United Nations spokesman said Wednesday it has been confirmed that two North Korean Communist infiltrators committed suicide Tuesday when surrounded by troops in South Korea.

3rd U.S. Soldier Dies Battling Reds In South Korea

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Four North Korean intruders died violently Tuesday on a penetration 6 miles south of the armistice line in what could be the prelude to a new Asia-wide Red offensive.

An American soldier and a South Korean policeman were killed battling the raiders. The American was the third U.S. soldier to die in action near the demilitarized zone this week.

State Department press officer Richard I. Phillips told a news conference "an intensive alert and search operation is now under way" along the U.S.-held sectors of the 150-mile long Korean truce line.

Phillips said "counter measures" are being discussed. He would not say what they involve.

High U.S. officials said that North Korea is now "lock, stock and barrel in the Chinese Communist camp and evidence of that fact is that Peking now has a puppet pulling the eagle's feathers."

Red Chinese pressure on North Viet Nam is also held responsible here for a high level of violent incidents reported in South Viet Nam over the last several weeks.

American military adviser outposts have been the target of attacks.

The reported buildup of Chinese Communist military strength along the Indian border also was cited by Phillips.

Referring to the second day of North Korean attacks on U.S. 8th Army troops, Phillips said:

"At this point, these attacks appear to be a reflection of the North Korean Communist activities in connection with the 10th anniversary of the Korean Armistice on July 26.

"However, I would not want to exclude the possibility of their being linked to wider developments in Asia."

Indian military sources have reported the deployment of 13 Chinese Communist divisions along the 2,500-mile Indian frontier. There are also reports of 1,000 Chinese Communist aircraft based in Tibet.

Indian diplomatic sources said American U2 jet reconnaissance planes based in Formosa have also kept an eye on the Chinese Communist troop deployments.

U.S. sources, without confirming the use of U2s, said American information does not bear out major evidence of increased Chinese Communist troop dispositions along the Indian frontier.

In Seoul and Tokyo were speculation the sudden flareup along the 2 1/2-mile-wide demilitarized zone dividing North and South Korea might be a North Korean-Chinese Communist scheme to sabotage conciliatory moves between the Soviet Union and the United States.

The American slain Tuesday, Cpl. George F. Larson, 24, Davison, Mich., was with a "shoot-to-kill" patrol tracking down infiltrating North Korean soldiers who sneaked across the line and killed two other U.S. soldiers in an ambush Monday.

"Look under every bush," was the order as hunter patrols from the 1st Cavalry and 7th Infantry set out to stalk the heavy underbrush for lurking Reds in the area west of Panmunjon and about 15 miles north of Seoul.

There are reported to be 350,000 Soviet-armed North Korean troops north of it. They have modern Russian-supplied air power and are backed by powerful Chinese Communist forces just north of the Yalu River.

What's happening in Des Moines?

A CURIOUS ORDER has come from Des Moines to the Johnson County Treasurer's office. The order informed the office that it must collect an additional fee on 1963 Volkswagen license plates.

This order is curious in that the Volkswagen owners must pay the increase this year. They will not be issued their 1964 plates until the additional sum is paid or will they be able to sell their car until the increase has been paid.

Even more curious is that the local treasurer's office does not know what the raise is all about. Dick Trimble, local auto license clerk, said that he received the order from Des Moines without explanation other than the list price on two-door sedans had increased from $1,100 to $1,400.

This leaves several serious questions unanswered. The most serious is why the increase should effect cars made and purchased as far back as 1958? The weight of these cars and the list price on new ones has not changed since they were purchased.

Another question that needs to be answered is: Will this added assessment eventually spread to other cars? If so, when and why?

And finally, why wasn't there any advance notice of the added assessment?

The answers to these questions must be released immediately. The assessment is serious business. It is not the $2 to $3 increase that is important, but the way it has obviously been handled. Secret assessments are alien to our way of thinking, and it seems unfortunate that the State of Iowa has bent to such methods.

Yet the deed is done. Now Iowans have no choice but to wonder if this type of secrecy will spread to other areas of state government. People will wonder if they are completely safe from their state government.

And who should blame them? The state agency in charge of license plate fees should have given Volkswagen owners advance notice of the increase. The owners should have been given complete answers to all the questions that the raise will bring up.

But this has not been the case. No explanation has been released. So in lieu of an immediate and complete explanation, we can only ask: WHAT IS HAPPENING IN DES MOINES.

Cats need rabies vaccination now

A DANGER OF RABIES has suddenly come to light in Iowa City. Three cases have been discovered in the area within the last week and local officials fear that more cases may crop up within the next few weeks.

The three cases that have been reported — one of which was in the town of Riverside — have all concerned cats. However, other animals including dogs are susceptible to the disease.

Rabies is a dangerous disease. When a human has been bitten by a rabid animal, he must undergo a series of shots which often cause serious reactions. Should the person not take the shots, he will die from the disease.

This situation makes it imperative that all persons that have been bitten or scratched by a cat or a dog be treated by a physician immediately. The animal which administered the bite must be captured for observation.

Rabies is particularly dangerous to young children. Children often get scratched and bitten by playful dogs. If the dog should happen to have the disease, the child would have to undergo the series of shots.

This is ironic in that children and older people can be protected from the disease. All that has to be done, is for animal owners to make sure their animals are given a rabies vaccination each year. This will protect the animal from securing the disease and keep him from passing it on to other animals and humans.

The city should have an ordinance which requires cats to have a rabies vaccination. But since this is not the case, we urge all pet owners to have their cats vaccinated immediately. Dogs and other pets should, likewise, be vaccinated if they have not been. This needs to be done today. Tomorrow may be too late.

Editorial From the Iowa press Comment

Fingers crossed on test ban

(Dubuque Telegraph Herald)

It would be hasty and presumptuous to pass judgment on the nuclear test ban just agreed upon by the United States, Britain and Russia without knowing details and the reasoning behind the program, along with other pros and cons.

That there will be a full-fledged debate in and out of the Senate can be taken for granted, and we can be fairly confident that the country will not be pressed emotionally into an improper or dangerous position. Our attitude of approach should be cautious optimism.

PERHAPS THIS MUCH can be said in advance: the agreement covers pledges by the three nations not to test nuclear weapons under water, in the air or in outer space. Omitted is the testing of such weapons underground.

Reason for this omission is that onsite inspection would be indispensable to determine violation of underground tests. They can be confused with earthquakes.

In favor of the agreement, in addition to the hope that it will be the first of many steps toward disarmament, is that it covers the three types of nuclear explosions most responsible for radioactive fallout. The elimination of that, or even its reduction, is reason enough for a limited agreement, if it does not endanger security.

Reduction of radioactivity was, indeed the apparent key to urgency in speeding up this agreement. The text of the treaty mentions the prohibition, even of underground tests would pollute territory other than the one making the tests. "These must be conducted," it says, "in a way that will keep fallout from other countries."

REACTION RANGED from tentative approval to enthusiasm everywhere except in France and Red China. France will continue to test, and is not covered by the agreement, says De Gaulle's government. "We are not bound by this treaty," declared French Foreign Minister Maurice de Merville. "So long as the great powers do not disarm, any test ban is only a device to crystallize the differences between those nations with nuclear weapons and those without them."

Red China denounced the agreement before it was signed. Peking hopes to start testing its nuclear arsenal this winter.

The three big powers apparently feel that they are far enough ahead in the race to take a breath, hoping meantime to persuade even the French and Red China to join the party.

AND SO, with fingers crossed we can at long last be hopeful that the brakes on disarmament, and on the most dangerous department of it — nuclear weaponry — may be partly applied.

One thing that can be said in its favor (unless there is hidden meaning) the nuclear pact is initiated without its being conditioned to a non-aggression pact. That could have killed it even before it got into the discussion stage.

At least it's safe

(Ottumwa Courier)

Salt, it seems, is here to stay as a means of clearing streets of snow and ice. We're going to have to live with it, apparently, despite severe damage done to cars and streets.

Reason for bringing up the subject during this, the hot season, is that the Iowa Highway Commission has just announced plans to spend a half million dollars more next winter to salt the state's roads.

Iowans, of course, want their roads kept open the year around, and as safe as possible. This is why the state is adding more than 1,700 miles to its salting program.

There is no question that salt makes it easier to drive over streets and highways. But neither is there any question about it causing car bodies to rust and concrete to deteriorate. A lot of our citizens find themselves in the awkward position of praising the street department in the winter, and criticizing it when warm weather — and rust spots — show up.

Fortunately, auto manufacturers are trying to do something about the rust problem by treating the vehicles with rust-resistant solutions at the factories. There also is a treatment for new concrete, to protect it against salt action. It is to be hoped that both processes are improved. In the meantime, the old cars, and old streets, curbs and sidewalks will just have to suffer. We'd rather be salty than unsafe.

'Courage, men, till the clouds come back'
 Ralph McGill writes—

The greatest muscle moll

By RALPH MCGILL

America's muscle molls were soundly defeated by the muscled-maids of Moscow in the recent track and field competition between the two nations. Not only were they soundly beaten, but their coach publicly berated them for unbecoming behavior and failure to train. The margin of victory was enough for the triumph, since the Muscovite males had lost by a meager margin of points. The fact that the United States did not put on mourning and the sports pages were not edged in black reminds us that, alas, 'tis true, 'tis true, that things do change.

In a way the change is gratifying. An examination of the sports stories reveals that an adequate quota of females are carrying on the business of competitive sports. There are golfers aplenty, swimmers, leapers, sprinters, hurdlers, tennis players, javelin throwers, and even a few lady wrestlers. For the most part they carry on with routine but adequate newspaper reports. The Soviet maids, to be sure, have had a dampening effect on local enthusiasm. It may be, however, that today's sports reports have come of age. Or it may be that the muscle molls of today lack the personalities and abilities of those of the so-called era of wonderful nonsense and the golden days of sports.

IT IS LIKELY the decade of the '20s was immature in most of its aspects and not merely those reported on the sports pages. It also is true that the young ladies with muscles were rather new to what had been largely a man's world. The best sprinters could run 100 yards, for example, in a little more than 11 seconds. This seemed marvelous and was good for 80-point ribbons. Only the curmudgeons pointed out that the best male runners were being clocked at 10 and that a like comparison held in other sports. Everyone else was enthralled. In the wonderful era no one looked for the feet of clay.

In retrospect, it seems sound to say that the ladies in muscle competition in that period of not-so-long-ago attained fame and headlines withheld from the successors, because in the '20s and '30s they were relatively new to the scene.

Gertrude Ederle was the first woman to swim the English Channel. The competitor there is a body of water with tides and strongly flowing currents. It had defeated a small army of male swimmers, allowing only a handful to conquer. On August 6, 1926, Gertrude Ederle swam the channel from France to England in 14 hours and 31 minutes. It was her second try. She failed the year before. She came back to a ticker-tape parade in her home town of New York and went back to her job of teaching swimming. She was one of the best—modest, quiet, and lacking in any pretense or pettiness. (After her a number of women swam the Channel.)

AND, OF COURSE, there was Mildred (Babe) Didrikson. There hasn't been another like her. She came along as a skinny hatchet-faced, thin-lipped young woman with gray-green eyes and the competitive edge of a scalping knife. She more or less catapulted into the headlines in the 1932 Olympics. The Babe did much to make the great depression decade bearable. She wore no makeup. Her face was tanned and weather-rough. She had her hair cut short and her clothes were cotton or wool... no silk. She was in every other way a wholesome female. And she was, the sports reporters believed, lonely. In a track suit she was beautiful to see. It was the consensus that she had made up her mind that since she couldn't beat women at catching a man she would beat them at golf, tennis, running, jumping, or any other athletic competition. An dshe did.

But there came a time when her hair grew out and had a wave in it. She wore a bit of makeup. Once Paul Gallico, at a golf tournament, grabbed her purse and opened it. In it were feminine tools — lipstick, compact, a small bottle of cologne, and a laced-edged handkerchief. Gallico looked at her quizzically.

"YEAH," SHE SAID, and I got on silk underwear and I like it."

It turned out a great behemoth of a man, George Zaharias, was caddy for her. George was a professional wrestler. They got married and there was never a happier, more-in-love pair. They had a good span of about ten years and then the Babe died of cancer. She was our greatest muscle moll.

Or So They Say

All the average woman wants is a roof over her head — and the right to raise it occasionally.

Summer Repertory in retrospect

By WALTER KELLER
 Written for The Daily Iowan

THE MAIN ACHIEVEMENT: The creation of several fine performances by members of the company who had little or no previous experience. The directors are to be congratulated; this is educational theatre performing its most valuable function.

THE PLAYBOY OF THE WESTERN WORLD (viewed on its closing night): This progressed to become a tightly integrated, graceful production. Although some degree of Sygne's scathing condemnation of The Church and the Irish peasantry was missing, this production exhibited a beautiful dancelike quality. The actors played together; there seemed to be an optimum of concentration and involvement. One of the barometers of the actual strength was the effect of Trudy Gordon's performance as Peegen Mike. Although she was less believable (her performance seemed contrived in certain respects), the unity of the play did not suffer — probably due to the high degree of ensemble strength — her weaknesses did not stand out.

Miss Hall's costumes were perfectly appropriate and the show was especially well lighted by Mr. Thayer.

TARTUFFE (likewise seen on its closing night): Moliere's play, directed by Mr. Schaal, had the advantage of an artistic masterpiece — Charles M. Watson's set. The greys and wine reds enclosed the players most effectively in what was actually an extremely shallow playing area, set close out to the stage apron.

Some of Miss Hall's creations were as beautiful as any I've seen on the Iowa stage. Notable among these were Marilyn Twito's and all the men's costumes.

A STREETCAR NAMED DESIRE: Too much present which was not to be desired. Bad audiences — laughed at the wrong times... especially disrupting to the performers.

Narrow, bombastic interpretation of Stanley by Robert Paulus. Faith Potter fluctuated greatly as Blanche... starting too high and having trouble building sympathy thereafter. Unfortunate burial in some of her key scenes. In her last scene, when she should be isolated and alone in her own little world, she seemed lost amid a sea of people and stage paraphernalia. Simply not big enough.

Peter O'Sullivan came closest to Tennessee Williams. He achieved the right degree of personal dignity which is written into all the characters to some degree. All the characters had several good moments, but sustention and unity were lacking. Damned hard play. Too far beyond the experience of all the personnel involved.

THE TAMING OF THE SHREW (a few further comments): There were many glancing weak performances, but I felt well-entertained upon leaving the theatre. Mr. Shiffner was able to tone down many of the necessary weaknesses and produce a number of very funny scenes.

1963 SUMMER REPERTORY CORN COB AWARDS

Best overall production: "The Playboy of the Western World" — remarkable grace and unity; excellent rendering of Sygne's poetic speech rhythms.

Best direction: Mr. James Gousseff — for all the above-mentioned reasons and many others.

Best set: Charles Watson for "Tartuffe" — among three others of high quality.

Costumes: A big fat cob to Margaret Hall for countless dazzling and appropriate creations.

Best leading female performance: Kristen Hawkes, as the Widow Quin — strong, varied and deeply involved.

Best leading male performance: Bruce French, as Christopher Mahon — fine projection of comic sensibility through body and SOUL.

Best supporting female performance: Colette Mikesell, as Orgon's wife — for controlled, sustained style.

Best supporting male performances: William Orth, as the beleaguered Shawn Keogh, and Newell Tarrant, as Old Mahon — the former especially for his laudable sensitivity to his fellow performers.

A time for walking out

(The National Observer)

Suppose the U.N. objected to the way the United States dealt with its racial problems and told this country to change its laws or risk getting kicked out of the world organization.

Outrageous? Indeed it would be something akin to this now going on in the U.N. against South Africa. Thirty-two African countries, furious over South Africa's policies of racial separation, are demanding that the Security Council vote to force South Africa to change its ways or, failing that, to expel the country from the U.N.

Few people would care to defend South Africa's racial attitudes; to fair-minded men they are oppressive and repugnant. But equally repugnant is the brazen attempt to get the U.N. to do what it cannot and should not do: Compel a member nation, even one as errant as South Africa, to change its internal policies to suit the wishes of an outside faction.

If nations are going to be booted out of the U.N. for refusing to bow to this kind of pressure, other countries may well decide it's time to walk out.

Legal Officer Raps Both Kennedys

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mississippi's chief legal officer said Tuesday President Kennedy and his brother, Robert, have used their high offices to stir up racial troubles.

He accused Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy of sending Justice Department agents into the South to incite racial violence, and said the President's brother has "demonstrated to the nation his immaturity, irresponsibility and fiendish delight" in wielding power.

State Atty. Gen. Joe T. Patterson's attack on the Kennedy administration drew a lecture from Sen. A. "Mike" Monroney (D-Okla.) presiding over a civil rights bill hearing, that Patterson had damaged his own case with "intemperate language."

Patterson said: "I firmly believe that the present U.S. attorney general, with the approval of the President of the United States, is far more responsible for the racial violence and troubles we are having throughout this nation than the ruthless leaders who are sponsoring and promoting racial unrest."

"I make this charge," he added, "because I know as a matter of fact that down in my state agents and representatives of the U.S. Department of Justice are ever present where there is racial trouble and instead of working with the duly elected and responsible officials in an effort to prevent violence and disorder, these agents of the U.S. attorney general actually aid, abet and encourage violation of state laws and municipal ordinances, assuring the agitators that if and when arrested the Department of Justice will come to their rescue."

Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.) said he was shocked by Patterson's attack on the President and the attorney general and said "we'd better not be diverted by this kind of personalizing."

Patterson replied: "I say again, without apology — those two individuals have taken their powerful offices and used them to bring about racial situations."

Patterson testified at a Senate Commerce Committee hearing on

Strange Eating Customs

LONDON (AP)—Europeans, often puzzled by American tribal customs but usually too courteous to question them, have launched an investigation into U.S. eating habits.

Why, the question is, do Americans first cut their food into small pieces, then put down the knife and eat with the fork in the right hand?

In Europe it is considered elegant to keep the fork in the left hand. The knife is retained in the right and cutting continues throughout the course.

The investigation started in the correspondence columns of the London Times.

An inquiring Londoner named Ronald Barker wrote in asking why Americans "have remained faithful to this ancient elegance."

Answers started arriving. From Harold Brahm in Paris came: "I suggest that the answer is that this is the simplest way to eat."

"Although not an American, I often attend the practice at buffet suppers and other barbarous occasions when one has to eat with the plate on one's knees."

S. P. Walker of Oxford thought the custom had an origin to that of the handshake.

"I have been told," he said, "that Americans put their knives down so that strangers at the same table can clearly see that on one can attack them unexpectedly, and that they in turn can be seen to harbor no ill intentions."

a bill to outlaw discrimination in theaters, stores, restaurants and other public accommodations.

Patterson's encounter overshadowed a return engagement between Kennedy and the Senate Judiciary Committee, which is conducting separate hearings on the administration's full civil rights program.

Britisher, Missing 7 Months, Granted Russian Citizenship

MOSCOW (AP)—British mystery man Harold A. R. Philby, missing since last January, has turned up in the Soviet Union and been given asylum and citizenship at his request, the Soviet government announced Tuesday.

A former British Foreign Office employee, Philby, 51, disappeared last January from Beirut, Lebanon, where he was working as a reporter for the London Sunday Observer and the weekly Economist.

To suggestions that he had skipped into the Soviet Union to join defecting British diplomats Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean, who came to the Soviet Union in 1951, the official Soviet government paper Izvestia replied with ridicule earlier this year.

But Izvestia on Tuesday carried on page 2 this inconspicuous announcement:

"British citizen H. A. R. Philby, who occupied a leading position in the British intelligence service, addressed the state authorities with a request for political asylum and the granting of Soviet citizenship."

"It has been made known that the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. satisfied the request of H. A. R. Philby."

The announcement gave no details of when or how Philby applied for political refuge in Moscow.

In London, a spokesman for the Foreign Office, where Philby worked until he was asked to resign in 1951, said it is unlikely the Foreign Office will have any comment.

In Parliament, Laborites had attempted to link Philby's disappearance with lapses in British security.

But the heat was suddenly taken off the case in mid-July by both Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Labor party leader Harold Wilson, who agreed that it would not be in the national interest to air the case.

This led to published newspaper speculation that he was acting as a double agent, spying for both the East and West.

Ward Trial Jury Gets Admonished

LONDON (AP)—Jurors in Dr. Stephen Ward's vice trial were admonished Tuesday by the judge to convict the osteopath only if they believe Ward profited from procuring and prostitution.

Bewigged, red-robed Justice Sir Archie Marshall said Ward's loose personal life was not at issue, but only whether he got money from the immoral acts of Christine Keeler, Marilyn "Mandy" Rice-Davies and other girls.

Justice Marshall recalled that the 50-year-old defendant's assortment of friends did not testify in his behalf. Yet, the judge said, there are in this city "many witnesses of high estate and low" who, if they had appeared, might have supported Ward's own story that he was a rake, not a procurer.

Ward is being tried on five charges of living off prostitutes and procuring underage girls. If convicted on all counts he could receive a maximum sentence of 25 years.

Aloysius Gordon, 31, a balding Jamaican Negro jazz singer, came into the Court of Criminal Appeal from prison where he was serving a three-year sentence for allegedly beating up the auburn-haired Christine, his onetime mistress.

After a nine-minute hearing, the court quashed his conviction and turned him loose on the ground that new evidence had come to light since Gordon was convicted June 7.

Blanchard Back in Action, Lifts Yanks Past A's, 6-2

Gets Single In 8th Inning To Break Tie

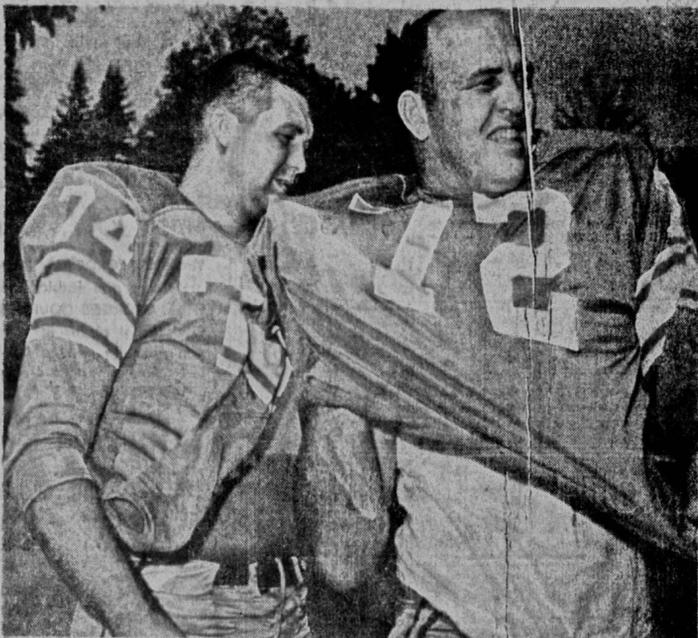

NEW YORK (AP) — John Blanchard returned to action after a five-day bout with bronchitis and hit the first pitch for a tie-breaking single as the New York Yankees rallied for four runs in the eighth inning and beat the Kansas City Athletics 6-2 Tuesday night.

Blanchard got his key hit against Moe Drabowsky after a single by Tom Tresh, a wild pitch and a walk to Elston Howard. His liner to right broke a 2-2 tie, and the Yanks poured in three more runs as the Kansas City defense collapsed.

Clete Boyer bounced a bases-loaded single through a drawn-in infield for two more runs and the sixth scored on a wild pitch by reliever John Wyatt.

The pitching victory went to Jim Bouton, who won his 14th against five losses. The young right-hander allowed seven hits, including a homer and two doubles by hot hitting Wayne Causey.

Rivals for Karras' Job

Mike Bundra (74) gives Floyd Peters (72) a hand in putting on his jersey at the Detroit Lions' training camp where they are rivals for the defensive tackle job vacated by the suspension of Alex Karras. Karras was formerly a star on SU's Big Ten championship team and played in the Rose Bowl. Bundra was Karras' substitute last year. Peters was acquired from the Cleveland Browns in a trade after Karras was suspended following the National Football League's gambling investigation. —AP Wirephoto

Field Goals Strategic Part Of Grid All-Star Contest

CHICAGO (AP) — All-Star game history foreshadows a chance for end Bob Jencks of Miami of Ohio to put a victorious kick into the college attack against the favored Green Bay Packers of the National Football League Friday night.

The place kick — long and easy, cut-rate scoring weapon for the pros — settled no fewer than three contests and strongly influenced the outcome of four other battles in the mid-summer grid series.

It could be that the 6-5, 227-pound Jencks may dent the champion Packers where it hurts — right between the goal posts — in the 30th All-Star game at Soldier Field.

Jencks, whose college career total of 17 field goals tied a National Collegiate Athletic (NCAA) record, tested his toe last week against pro opposition. He kicked 40- and 47-yard fielders in an All-Star scrimmage won by the Bears 13-12. Jencks' lone extra point try was blocked.

Jencks, whose late father was a professor of accounting at Ohio State, is accustomed to a giant-killing role.

He scored all of Miami's points in a 10-7 upset of Big Ten favorite Purdue last season. Big Bob kicked a 31-yard field goal and, after Purdue moved ahead 7-3, covered 86 yards on a scoring pass play and booted the conversion.

A field goal settled All-Star games in 1944, 1952 and 1955. In the most recent All-Star victory — the 35-19 win over the Detroit Lions in 1958 — no fewer than 15 points came on the booting of Bobby Conrad of Texas A&M.

Relief Job By Brosnan Saves Sox, 5-1

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mike Hershberger's two-run single and three-run homer by Jim Lemon powered the Chicago White Sox to a 5-1 victory over the Washington Senators Tuesday night.

The Senators threatened only in the ninth inning after young Dave DeBusschere was one out away from pitching his first shutout and first complete game in the majors. Singles by Chuck Cottier and Jim King plus an error by Nellie Fox on Chuck Hinton's grounder chased DeBusschere.

Jim Brosnan came on and struck out Larry Osborne to preserve DeBusschere's second victory against four victories. He beat the Senators two weeks ago for his first big league victory.

Angels Nip Indians, 6-4 In 10 Innings

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ken Hunt singled across the clinching run in the 10th inning Tuesday night, giving the Los Angeles Angels their fifth straight victory, a 6-4 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

Hunt stroked his tie-breaking hit off Ted Abernathy with two out in the top of the 10th after a double by Felix Torres and an intentional walk to Leon Wagner.

Wagner came in with an insurance run on a bad throw by Max Alvis, who tried to get Hunt at second base after the relay in from the outfield.

Woodie Held's bases-loaded single off Dan Osinski, scored two runs in the eighth inning to knot the score 4-4 after the first run in that inning was knocked in by Joe Adcock with a single.

Heyman Signed By Cage Knicks

NEW YORK (AP) — Art Heyman, Duke All-America and player of the year last season, signed a contract with the New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association Tuesday.

The 6-foot-5, 205 pound Heyman was New York's first round draft choice. He was personally scouted and signed by Knick coach Eddie Donovan.

Broglio Sparkles In Relief Stint As Cards Win, 7-5

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ernie Broglio, demoted to the bullpen, held Cincinnati to one run in 6 1/2 innings of relief Tuesday night and the St. Louis Cardinals fought back for a 7-5 victory over the Reds.

Broglio, 11-7 for the season, took over after Lew Burdette was bombed for four runs in the first inning. Broglio struck out seven.

Bill White hit a two-run homer, his 19th, and Charley James hit a solo homer for the Cardinals.

Trailing 5-3 in the fifth, the Cardinals scored three runs off Joe Nuxhall. Julian Javier's single and a walk set the stage for run-scoring singles by Curt Flood and Dick Groat.

Wertz' Hits Starts Rally, Twins Trip BoSox, 6-3

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran Vic Wertz delivered a bases-loaded pinch single that ignited a five-run sixth inning rally and gave Minnesota a 6-3 victory over Boston Tuesday night.

Wertz' hit, a line drive barely fair down the third baseline, came off reliever Jack Lamabe and tied the score 3-3. Another run came in on a wild pitch and Don Mincher later singled for two more off Wilbur Wood.

The Red Sox, getting to Twins starter Jim Kaat early, had a 3-0 lead after three innings, but lost the sting in their bats afterward.

Germans Give American Girls 3rd Track Trousing in Row

BRUNSWICK, Germany (AP) — West Germany's women swept eight of 11 events Tuesday and trounced the touring American team in an international track and field meet.

It was the third straight rout for the American girls who were beaten by the Russians and Poles at Moscow and Warsaw.

The only American victories were scored by Edith McGuire of Tennessee State in the 100 meter dash in 11.6 seconds; Willye White of Chicago in the broad jump, 20 feet, 9 1/2 inches, and Elizabeth Montgomery of Cleveland in the high jump, 5 7/8.

Although the visitors set American citizens' records in the 80-meter hurdles and 400- and 800-meter runs, the Germans won those races, finishing 1-2 in the hurdles. The Germans also swept the first two places in the discus, shot put and javelin.

The Germans were led by Olympian Jutta Heine, who finished second in the 100, won the 200, and anchored the winning 400 meter relay team which nipped the Americans in an almost dead heat. Each team was clocked in 45.9. The long-legged Germany beauty was timed in 11.7 in the 100 and 24.1 in the 200. Vivian Brown of Cleveland was second in the 200 in 24.6.

Tamara Davis of Frederick, Md. set the American record of 11 seconds flat in the 80-meter hurdles in finishing third behind Germany's Erika Fisch and Inge Schell, each timed in 10.8.

Suzanne Knott of Columbus, Ohio, was clocked in 56.3 in capturing second in the 400 behind Germany's Helga Henning, 54.8.

In the 800, Sandra Knott of Cleveland lowered the American citizens' standard to 2:09.7 in losing a close race to Germany's Anita Woerner, who was timed in 2:09.2. Germany's Marlene Klein won two medals by winning the shot put with a throw of 51 feet, 5 inches and taking second in the discus behind her winning teammate Kriemhild Hausman. Miss Hausman tossed the plate 167 feet, 3/4 inch.

Anneliese Gerhard of Germany won the javelin throw with 174-3.

HANNOVER, Germany (AP) — The United States track team, in high gear after a smashing victory over Poland last week, meets a well-balanced German squad today and Thursday with at least two world records in danger.

On form, the Americans may take 16 or 17 of the 21 events in this northern German industrial city of 600,000.

The American team is aiming to top the 130 point level they beat Poland 125-83 in 20 events.

A world record is possible in the 400 meters where Arizona State's Henry Carr, winner of 200 meters in Moscow and Warsaw, will run.

Carr did the distance in the relay in Moscow in 44.8 seconds, one-tenth of a second below the world mark.

The Germans also will threaten a world mark in the 1,600-meter relay. The record is 3:02.2, set by the U.S. team at the Rome Olympics in 1960.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles buried the Detroit Tigers 9-0 under an avalanche of 18 hits Tuesday night, and pitcher Milt Pappas added insult to injury by stopping Detroit on four hits.

Brooks Robinson hit a two-run homer in the second inning off Tiger starter Hank Aguirre to start the rout.

Belinsky Considers Self A Victim Of Own Brilliance

SEATTLE (AP) — Bo Belinsky considers himself a victim of his own brilliance.

"I always liked fun," he told Seattle Times sports writer Hy Zimmerman Tuesday, "but made no headlines because I wasn't known."

"Then I pitched that no-hitter. . . . That shot me into the news," mourned the former Los Angeles Angels pitcher, former fiance of movie star Marnie Van Doren and current pitcher 0-0 for the Hawaiian Islanders of the Pacific Coast League.

The Belinsky shot was fired May 5, 1962, when he pitched the Angels to a 2-0 decision over Baltimore without giving the Orioles a hit.

The Angels optioned Belinsky to Hawaii this summer. Bo refused for a time to make the switch, but reported eventually to the Islanders and got his first pitching assignment — in relief — Sunday against the Tacoma Wash. Giants.

The Islanders were seven runs behind when Belinsky came in. Tacoma tagged him for five more tallies in the two innings he toiled.

Miss Van Doren visited Bo over the weekend in Tacoma.

Roebuck Likens Leaving LA To 'Getting Out of Prison'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A bitter Ed Roebuck flung a parting blast at Dodger Manager Walter Alton Tuesday as the veteran relief pitcher prepared to move to the Washington Senators.

Ball players usually wait a while before popping off when they're swapped to another club. But not Roebuck. He zeroed on Alton as soon as the Dodgers announced that he was going to Washington to exchange for infielder Marv Breeding.

"I'm sort of sad to leave," he began. "But in another way it's like getting out of prison — getting away from Alton."

The 32-year-old right-hander, known as a quiet type, sounded more hurt than angry as he said, "I think the Dodgers will win the pennant in spite of Alton."

Asked to explain his beef with the longtime Dodger pilot, Roebuck said it was just a case of poor treatment, adding:

"The first part of the year it was Roebuck every day. Then they didn't use me for two or three weeks — sort of sluffed me aside. And nobody said a word."

Roebuck suggested that either Alton or pitching coach Joe Becker might have said something to this effect: "Look, you did a job for us last year so just don't worry about it."

Dodger General Manager E. J. "Buzzie" Bavasi said he talked to Roebuck Tuesday and the pitcher had no complaints at that time.

Told of Roebuck's remarks about Alton, Bavasi said:

"I think Ed is trying to blame somebody else for his own faults. If Walter didn't pitch him there must have been a reason. Maybe it was because he was out of shape due to his extracurricular activities during spring training."

Braves Use 3 Home Runs To Smother Chicago, 9-2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Home runs by Lee Maye, Eddie Mathews and Denis Menke sparked an early assault which gave the Milwaukee Braves a 9-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday night.

Hank Fischer held the Cubs to six hits, including Steve Boros' first National League homer.

The Braves drove former teammate Bob Buhl out of the box before a man was retired in the third inning and continued their attack against Glen Hobbie, who went the rest of the way.

Buhl gave up two runs in the second, with the first of two doubles by Gene Oliver the key blow, and served successive home runs to Maye and Mathews in the third. Then Hobbie took over and gave up a three-run homer to Menke, plus single runs in the fourth and seventh.
