Haiti Says Rebel Invasion Crushed

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — President Francois Duvalier's regime claimed Wednesday its troops crushed a rebel invading force and drove it across the border into the Dominican Republic after several hours of fighting in north Haiti Monday.

Private sources in the Haitian capital tended to confirm the Government's claim, but insisted the rebel leaders, Gen. Leon Cantave, was still inside Haitian territory pursuing his drive to bring down Duvalier's regime.

A Haitian rebel spokesman in the Dominican Republic denied the Duvalier Government's claim of victory. He said the Haitian Government was attempting to demoralize anti-Duvalier Haitians and discourage Haitians from joining the rebel forces.

Exile sources in Santo Domingo, capital of the neighboring Dominican Republic, continued to claim rebel gains. These sources insisted two Haitian rebel columns had speared down past Cap Haitien and a third was moving across the northwest peninsula in an apparent pincer action on Gonaives, a west coast port and Haiti's third largest city.

However, a Haitian Government communique issued by Information Minister George J. Figaro contradicted rebel claims of advances deep inside north Haiti after seaborne landings Sunday and Monday.

Figaro insisted rebels wearing Dominican Army uniforms crossed into Haiti from the neighboring Dominican Republic Sunday night and captured the frontier post of Meillac by surprise.

The communique said the rebels drove on Ft. Liberté, midway on the road to Cap Haitien, Haiti's second city, about 35 miles to the west of the Dominican border.

The rebels never reached Ft. Liberté as they claimed but were driven back across the Dominican Border after several hours of fighting, the communique said.

Rebel informants and exile sources had said the original force of 500 invaders was swelled in the last two days by soldiers who deserted Duvalier.

Johnson, Coleman Face Run Off In Mississippi Race

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Paul Johnson and former Gov. J. P. Coleman planned segregation-centered strategy Wednesday for a Democratic primary runoff for governor — their second in eight years.

Steadily mounting returns from Tuesday's first primary voting kept the two political veterans well ahead in the four-man race.

Sources close to both men predicted the runoff campaign would make the uneasy racial situation the prime topic.

With 1,622 of the state's 1,890 precincts reporting, Johnson had 134,017 votes to 114,168 for Coleman. Charles Sullivan trailed with 96,680, while run-for-run candidate Robert Mason had 2,263.

In the 1959 first primary, Coleman trailed Johnson by 18,000 votes but won the runoff by 48,000 in a campaign staged before the racial uproar reached this state.

Continued emphasis on race, heightened by the personal clash of the two longtime foes, will bring new heat to the runoff between men who both blocked efforts of Negroes to enter the University of Mississippi.

U.N. Embargoes Arms to S. Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council Wednesday voted a worldwide arms embargo against South Africa but turned down an Asian-African demand for a boycott of South African goods.

The measures were aimed at South Africa's policy of apartheid, or racial segregation, which has been denounced by African leaders as a threat to peace.

The economic boycott was killed by a separate vote before the watered-down resolution was approved 9-0 with Britain and France abstaining. The resolution was sponsored by Ghana, Morocco and the Philippines and was considerably more moderate than some Africans had wanted.

Some had insisted South Africa be expelled or at least suspended from the United Nations, but the sponsors decided such proposals had no chance of approval. The economic boycott provision received only five affirmative votes — two short of the seven required for adoption.

26 Nations Set To Sign Test Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new nuclear test ban treaty is thrown open to all nations today and 26 — led by Australia — are scheduled to sign here during the day.

President Kennedy also will send the treaty to the Senate for ratification, accompanied by a special message today, the White House announced. Hearings begin Monday.

Assistant White House press secretary Andrew Hatcher said he knew of no change in this plan although the President was summoned suddenly to Otis Air Force Base in Massachusetts where Mrs. Kennedy gave birth by Caesarean section to their third child — a boy.

Administration sources appeared confident that the Senate would okay the treaty by the required two-thirds majority.

Signing of the treaty by other nations was slated to start at the State Department at the undiplomatic hour of 8:45 a.m. and continue at 15-minute intervals throughout the day.

U.S. officials predicted virtually all nations on earth will eventually join the pact, the notable exceptions being France and Red China — both pushing their own independent atomic development.

Washington's global survey has found that between 102 and 105 countries out of a total of 114 have indicated they favor the pact, and 56 to date have indicated they will sign.

SUI Graduate Student Killed In Highway 218 Collision

NORTH LIBERTY — An SUI graduate student from Webster City was killed and four members of a Minnesota family were injured in a two-car collision three miles north of here about noon Wednesday.

Mrs. Mabel Grace Peterson, 40, an SUI graduate student in the College of Education, was killed instantly when her 1961 compact car collided nearly head-on with a 1962 station wagon containing five members of the Robert Volz family from Frost, Minn. Mrs. Peterson was crushed between the dashboard and the seat of her car. She commuted to summer school classes from Marion.

According to witnesses, the Volz station wagon was travelling south on Route 218 between Curtis bridge and Killian's sporting goods store when Mrs. Peterson, traveling north, attempted to pass a truck.

SUI Hospital reported Robert Volz, 43, who was treated and released, suffered mouth and chest injuries; his wife, LaVonne, 42, in good condition with scalp cuts; their daughter Paula, 15, in fair condition with a fractured jaw and cuts, and her twin sister, Paulette, in good condition with ear and leg cuts. Mother Flies Over To See Her Son Graduate, Wed

BY MIKE TEGTMEYER Staff Writer

A mother flew to Iowa City from Scotland Friday to attend the graduation of her son Wednesday night. Mrs. Janet Davidson flew from Aberdeen, Scotland, Friday morning to see her "lifetime dream" come true. Alexander (Sandy) Davidson, 37, received his master of arts degree in education from SUI while his very proud mother looked on.

Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Davidson will observe her son take part in a different kind of ceremony — marriage. Davidson will marry Miss Bonnie Jean Reid in the Methodist Church in Boone.

This September, Davidson, who is currently SUI's adviser to men's residence halls, will assume duties at Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Oregon, as director of residence halls there.

The second oldest in a family of nine, Davidson has two brothers and four sisters. "I'm the only one who has ever had the chance for higher education. That's why this is so important to mom," he said. Davidson came to the United States in 1948. He received his B.S. degree from Lewis and Clark in 1959, and since coming to this country has returned to Scotland twice.

Davidson's master's thesis was "Development and Prediction of Criteria of Effectiveness in Residence-Hall Advising."

Mrs. Davidson will fly from Des Moines to Portland Tuesday, where she will be re-united with a sister, Mrs. Mary Sim, whom she has not seen for 51 years.

"Mom has never been in this country," Davidson said. "In fact," he continued, "she has never even been out of Scotland or the British Isles. This trip to the U.S. has been one of her greatest thrills."

Administration sources appeared confident that the Senate would okay the treaty by the required two-thirds majority.

Police Find Car Wreck — But Victim Vanishes

A one-car accident on the "sand road" 1 1/2 miles south of Highway 6 about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday left Highway Patrol officers Howard Shapcott and Van Janhke momentarily puzzled.

Marvin Whetstone, Rt. 4, Iowa City, said he immediately stopped at a nearby farm house to summon aid when he saw the car go into the ditch. Whetstone said he noticed that the car's lights remained on when it came to rest on its top in the ditch. When he arrived at the scene with help, the lights had been turned off and no one was around.

Creativity Is Key, White Tells Grads

A nation's survival depends upon its ability to develop creativity to meet not just one, but successive challenges, President Robert I. White of Kent State University told graduates and guests at SUI commencement exercises Wednesday night.

Addressing some 800 graduates, President White said it is both impractical and damaging for a nation to develop its creative powers and resources to meet a temporary challenge.

He noted that most often people now judge questions of public policy for their relationship to the Communist threat and see no challenge other than the defeat of world communism.

"There are well-meaning persons who claim value for the Peace Corps because it will help prevent the spread of Communism," President White continued. If the Peace Corps contains true creative values, it is worthwhile regardless of a Communist threat, he maintained.

A civilization endures or dies not because of some temporary crisis, White said, but because it "eventually comes to set its own challenges," and "problems increasingly tend to be challenges made by themselves.

"No dead civilizations are dead because of any law of history or any rule of fate," he told the graduates. "To the contrary, they passed on when they failed in their creative adjustment to challenges, when they turned aside from their original vigors."

Dr. White said it is especially important for SUI graduates of 1963 to realize the effect of the "explosions of knowledge" upon future challenges. Rapidly increasing specialization leads the trained person to ever more concentration on an ever smaller fragment of his general field. This means that at times college graduates must make a conscious effort to learn society's vitality and to aid in facing the problems of the whole people, he said.

"Our appeal to the future world, to our children's world, and to the generations beyond, certainly will not lie in the fact that we stopped any one major threat in the middle or late 1960's," Dr. White said.

"Rather it will be that we took something from our forefathers, studied it, evaluated it, adapted it, and produced something ever more attractive to the rest of the world so that we solved many challenges in good spirit and that, among these, Communism receded."

Red Chinese, Soviets Reach Nuclear Truce

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Delegates from Red China and the Soviet Union temporarily laid aside their ideological bledges Wednesday and shook hands to prevent the Hiroshima ban-the-bomb conference from ending in total bankruptcy.

Faced with the disintegration of one of their favorite international organizations, the two giants of world Communism called off a debate over the recently signed Big Three partial nuclear test ban treaty.

The conference, whose days may be numbered as a result of the Japanese Communist party's insistence on playing Red politics with a test ban pact, pulled itself together after the Peking-Moscow show of unity and passed a series of resolutions which said little.

It was the first time since the end of the Chinese-Soviet peace talks last month that the two have shown any willingness, however small, to even briefly shelve their differences.

All seemed sweetness and light as the rival delegations appeared on a platform of the municipal gym before 6,000 perspiring delegates and applauded each other. The smiles were in sharp contrast to the hard looks of the first two days of the conference.

Gross, Hoeven Join in Protest Of 'Off Limits'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern congressmen mounted a massive and emotional attack in the House Wednesday against a Defense Department directive aimed at declaring "off limits" to GIs any place that practices racial discrimination.

"This is the beginning of police state and commissar government in the United States," cried Rep. Mendel Rivers (D-S.C.) who led the Southern forces.

"We are on the eve in America of waiting for the knock on the door after midnight, that's the next step," said Rep. Edward Herbert (D-La.).

The Southerners were joined by several Midwest Republicans. Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa), said the directive "will put into effect the biggest army of snoopers and informers you ever heard of. This is an outrage."

Rep. Charles B. Hoeven (R-Iowa), called the report on which the directive was based "shocking and almost unbelievable."

A Congress of Racial Equality spokesman said Wednesday night in New York that civil rights picketing will resume at a Brooklyn hospital site this morning in defiance of a voluntary truce reached earlier by clergymen with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Elsewhere in the city, job pickets at building sites weighed a similar voluntary armistice. More than 800 Negro and white pickets have been arrested since the demonstrations began July 10.

JFK Visits Ailing Boy In Center

Infant Baptized by Otis AFB Chaplain; Named Patrick Bouvier

BOSTON (AP) — President Kennedy visited his ailing newborn son Wednesday night in a hospital where the premature infant was taken from nearby Otis Air Force Base after it was born by Caesarian section earlier Wednesday.

The President went to a fifth floor room set aside for the new baby. There he donned a white gown and mask and went in the room to see the child after consulting with Dr. James E. Drorbaugh, a pediatrician called in when the child developed a breathing difficulty.

Children's Hospital Medical Center, where the baby lay, said the ailment was diagnosed as idiopathic respiratory distress syndrome.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said "in laymen's language this is a respiratory problem in which a breathing problem develops."

"I am told this is not uncommon in premature children," he said. "The baby is in an isolette, which is an advanced type of incubator," Salinger said.

He said the baby, on arrival from the Otis base, was taken from the isolette for X-rays and given medication to help its breathing. Then it was placed in a hospital incubator.

The baby was baptized Wednesday by Father John Scahill, chaplain at Otis AFB, Salinger said.

The baby was named Patrick Bouvier Kennedy after the President's grandfather and Mrs. Kennedy's father.

The President's grandfather was Patrick J., and his father is Joseph Patrick Kennedy. Mrs. Kennedy's father was John Bouvier.

Quick baptisms of premature babies are not uncommon among Catholics.

Salinger said that he could not give a report on the baby's condition right now since the doctors, he said, report the breathing difficulty takes about four days to develop to a point where they can make a final diagnosis.

Asked whether the baby was on the critical list, Salinger answered quickly "I would not say that."

Salinger said the baby will be in the hospital in Boston at least four days and Mrs. Kennedy will remain at the Otis AFB Hospital for an undetermined time.

The President remained overnight at a Boston hotel. He planned to leave about 9:45 a.m. today for another short visit with his new son.

Then he will fly back to Otis AFB to be with Mrs. Kennedy during the day.

He plans to remain at Otis until about 6:30 p.m. when he plans to fly back to Boston to visit the baby again and spend the night there.

Before coming to Boston Wednesday night, the President spent most of the afternoon with Mrs. Kennedy, went to his summer home on Squaw Island to visit his two other children and to dine alone, then went back for another brief visit with his wife.

Salinger reported that Mrs. Kennedy's condition Wednesday night was fine.

He also reported that Mrs. Kennedy saw her new son more than once before he was taken to Boston.

The last time, Salinger said, was about 5:25 p.m. when the President himself wheeled the baby in an isolette to the First Lady's hospital room.

The infant was delivered at 12:52 p.m.

Meter No. 635, Where Are You?

Iowa City's latest status symbol may well be one's parking meter. Assistant Police Chief D. A. Purvis reported that someone stole meter number 635 from in front of Donnelly's Tavern, 119 S. Dubuque St., sometime Tuesday night.

Another Kennedy: Patrick Bouvier

President Kennedy arrived at Otis Air Force Base, Mass., for the birth of his third child, a son, and was greeted by signs welcoming him as well as chiding him for his lateness.

Soon after he left the hospital with his sister, Jean Smith (center picture), the 4-pound, 10 1/2 ounce infant was rushed by ambulance to Boston Children's Medical center Wednesday night (lower picture). The child had been stricken by a respiratory ailment following his birth, premature by several weeks.

Photographers at the hospital were jostled by the police as they were kept back a distance of 40 feet or more.

The baby, born by Caesarean section, was the second premature birth in the President's family. His first son, John, was also born prematurely. The couple's first child, Caroline was born normally. —AP Wirephotos

The GOP: wishing won't make it so

WISHING WON'T MAKE it so, so they say. If it's true, the Republican party and the civil rights movement may both suffer before Congress closes its doors this session.

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said in a recent speech that Republicans could pick up strategic Negro votes by "out-Kennedying the Kennedys" in the fight for the civil rights bill. He added quickly, however, that there was little chance the GOP would take the opportunity to race the Kennedy brothers.

Truth of the matter is, the Republicans may not even make it to the finish line in the civil rights race — and quite a few of them will be running in the opposite direction. Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.) has declared proudly that he would not support the crucial public accommodations section of Mr. Kennedy's bill. And that is the section that could answer the hundreds of Negroes asking for equal rights. It is, in short, what all the shouting is about.

Other Republicans will reportedly join with the bloc of southern Democrats and oppose the civil rights measures on traditional right-wing "constitutional" grounds.

The Republicans are going to come out losers in the fracas for the obvious reason — failure to live up to claims of leadership in the civil rights movement. Having promised freedom to the Negroes at election time, they will have flunked the post-ballot test; and we doubt that many Negroes will give them a second chance.

The civil rights backers will lose by the Republican stand also for the obvious reason — the bill will need all the support it can get through the wrangling and mangling it will have to withstand to result in anything effective.

But the majority of Republicans don't seem to want anything to do with the Kennedy civil rights measure. Wishing won't make it so.

But we wish it would. —Dean Mills

Argument with scents

THERE'S SOMETHING ROTTEN in City Park, and it isn't fish. It's a wading pool, sans water, with garbage — like beer cans, waste paper, old barrels, sticks, and more odoriferous miscellany.

The whole thing has caused almost as big a stink in the City Council's chamber as it has in City Park. Councilman Max Yocum sponsored a motion two weeks ago directing the Park Board to stop dumping refuse in the pool and to do something towards filling it in.

At Tuesday's Council meeting, Yocum proposed that the mess be filled in immediately. His fellow councilmen deferred action until the Aug. 20 meeting. The Park Board — and perhaps some councilmen — feel the pool should be filled bit by bit with street sweepings and dirt.

We agree with Mr. Yocum that the City shouldn't wait that long to deal with the eye- and nose-sore. The wait-and-wait problem solving method just won't allow quick enough action.

In fact, we think the whole mess stinks. —Dean Mills

The plum of advertisers and retailers —

The 'rich' collegian has conformist tastes

Although many college students might question the fact, a national advertising agency discovered the college student of today has 37 per cent more to spend than the average American. Showing they are not too poor financially, SUI students add approximately $4 million to the total retail sales in Iowa City each year.

While learning how to earn a living for themselves and their families, college students also learn how to spend. Since many students are faced with the problem of buying on a budget, they take more notice of advertising and heed descriptions of materials and fabrics, as well as price.

The four million college students in the country can be easily classified according to their classification or residence. Graduate students, who make up nearly one-third of SUI's total enrollment, are generally removed from campus life, concentrating on studies to the exclusion of nearly everything else.

The quarter of the enrollment which is married is also withdrawn to some extent, with family problems taking up much of the students' free time. Of SUI's enrollment, which topped 12,000 last year, nearly 25 per cent were married. Many married students support families of three or four, which changes their consuming needs and habits.

Commuters take the least part in campus activities. Eight hundred students commute to classes at SUI each day from cities surrounding Iowa City.

The "hard core," or those who live on campus and surrounding areas, are subject to the group conformity that prevails on college campuses and are the most truly "collegiate." About 10 per cent of these students at SUI are Greek, adding more conformity by choice, living in fraternity or sorority houses.

The entire student body at a major university never assembles as a group with the exception of cheering the football team on a fall Saturday. As many as 10,500 of SUI's total enrollment will turn out for the annual Homecoming game.

In an article describing America's collegians, a national magazine said the college student is a paradox. His ideas and beliefs are becoming individualized, but his habits of dress, buying habits, and social conduct are still dictated by rigid standards of campus conformity.

On the other hand, students like to think of themselves as being creative. They do not easily pick up faddish products when told "It's the latest thing!" advertisers tell us. Magazines point to the success of the Ivy League style and the failure of advertising to switch the college market to the Continental look.

A national men's magazine suggests that college men resent being called "Campus Charlies." But, any observer will note that students are heavily influenced by "in" fashions.

Few students watch much television when they get to college, and most are cut off from newspapers as well. They only read items that interest them in the college newspaper, and because of their budget buying, take close note of local advertising in the student newspapers.

National advertisers should not overlook the campus market. Many realize that it is in college that a person tries various brands until he finds his favorite. Collegians are opinion leaders and style setters, and their tastes and actions are often copied.

SUIowans generally take their cue from Eastern styles. What was popular last year at Brown and Amherst, a national survey reports, will be popular in the Midwest this year. And it doesn't take long for high school students to pick up collegiate styles after they are made popular.

A person is virtually isolated for four years or more while attending college. He becomes almost entirely the master of his own pocket book.

The wisest merchants in Iowa City are analyzing his buying habits to appeal more directly to him.

The Chinese Army question—

Chinese soldiers inclined toward Moscow

By RALPH MCGILL

Washington Notes: Russia's leaders took care to explain the Soviet position on the test ban and failure of the talks with China to the Soviet military services. This is not without significance, even though it is no more than recognition of the fact that an armed force serves best when it is informed and understands its country's policy.

Not too surprisingly, some of the speculation of today turns toward the Chinese Army. This vast force has orientation toward the Soviets in training and equipment. This is not to suggest that it is in any sense disloyal. But it is to say that its officers may not agree with Peking's policy of breaking with the Russians. What modern equipment and techniques the Red Army has come from the military teams sent to China to offer training.

AFTER THE COLLAPSE of Chiang Kai-shek the Chinese Communist armies obtained large supplies of Japanese arms. They also made use of several divisions of Chiang's ex-troops. Some had previously been captured. Many had deserted. Thousands did not go along in the flight to Taiwan. It now is admitted that these ex-Nationalist troops constituted the experienced core of "volunteers" sent into the Korean war. They, plus their equipment, were callously considered expendable.

These one-time Nationalist expendables were replaced by men trained by Soviet teams and equipped with the latest in field arms. An air force also was created. The Manchurian war industry and transport, and trains and truck factories also were restored by the Russians. New war plants were built in China.

Today the Chinese are believed to have an Army of about 2.5 million men. The Air Force is estimated at about 250,000 men and the Navy the same. But there is, in addition, a large force of "citizen militiamen." It constitutes a huge reserve. Statistics about its training and equipment are unreliable.

ALL CITIZENS between 18 and 40 years of age are subject to conscription. Army service is three years; the Air force four, and the Navy five. The Army exercises a careful screening of its men, taking the youngest, the physically superior and the most literate. The others go into the thousands of military jobs that must be done by noncombat troops. Chinese troops also do labor such as road building. That the Army is tough and will fight was demonstrated during the Korean war.

But the Army has not always been in agreement with the party. Differences between the political party and the military came dramatically to view in 1959. Marshal P'eng Teh-huai was dismissed as minister of defense. He admittedly was one of China's ablest men. He had been a combat soldier and officer since 1929 when, as a young Communist, he led a successful uprising against a unit of Chiang Kai-shek's troops.

More than any man, he was responsible for the performance of the Chinese Army in Korea. He worked closely with Soviet advisers. P'eng admittedly favored long-term, intimate technical and training relationships with the Soviet Union. He and his entire staff were replaced in 1959 and the Communist party began restoration of its dominance within the Armed Forces. P'eng, however, was not liquidated. He still holds a minor political post.

IT MAY BE, of course, that China's Army wants war and that the break with the Russians will bring the military and the party closer together. But, this may not be true. The party hierarchy in China is old. What the younger men think and what they will do in the years immediately ahead are open to speculation. That the Soviets have friends in the army is certain. That Russian influence remains at the officer level is undisputed.

The future will include political shifts, some of them of earthquake-like effect. The United States and Soviets have, for the time being, the best propaganda. They are for peace and they seek to control the nuclear bomb. This will have a profound effect. The Red Chinese are not likely to gain support for a war policy. Great forces have been set in motion. They will not stop.

K's good will angers China

By William L. Ryan AP Special Correspondent

Red China's embassy in Moscow is on Druzhba Street. Druzhba means friendship in Moscow.

In spite of old suspicions and old wounds, there might have been a little more "druzhba" after Stalin died if Nikita Khrushchev had been satisfied to play in his own back yard. He wasn't.

Khrushchev waded in Asia with a bang. His road show — with the yet-to-be-purged Premier Nikolai Bulganin in tow — spread the new word: Russians and Asians were brothers. He exuded blustery good will.

The Red Chinese were annoyed. Khrushchev, taking a leaf from the old imperialist book, was out to catch more flies with honey than with vinegar. He was operating almost on the style of the Victorian British. Soviet projects and technicians would go to the aid of India, Afghanistan and subsequently to Egypt and other countries whose governments were basically anti-Communist.

The Chinese grumbled: World revolution would not be advanced by helping "bourgeois" regimes. Communist economic power should be used to foster revolutions and to help Communist-ruled nations.

To the Chinese, all this limited Communist freedom of aggressive action.

Khrushchev explained: It might now be necessary to compromise with "the imperialists".

Those who did not believe communism could win by means short of world war had no faith in the movement. Violence could be used in some cases — but Moscow would call the signals.

The U.S.S.R. had much to lose in world war — the Chinese little. Mao Tze-tung had put forward the idea that China could lose half her population and still emerge from world war more populous than any other nation. Khrushchev's views. Peking muttered, were the stuff heresy was made of. Khrushchev revised Lenin. "Modern revisionists" — meaning Khrushchev — were as bad as or worse than the heretic Tito of Yugoslavia whom Stalin quarantined.

No Communist worth his salt, argued Peking, would lose an opportunity to move in on what the Reds call "the national democratic revolution" in Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America.

"The essence of modern revisionism is capitulation in the name of peace," said the Red Chinese.

Mao got madder

In 1958 Khrushchev turned thumbs down on a Communist grab for Iraq in the Middle East, and the Chinese burned. Matters got worse. In 1959, Khrushchev went to the United States and described President Eisenhower as "a man of peace." The Red Chinese howled in anger.

There was more to Peking's annoyance than that. Khrushchev had laid down a "peaceful coexistence" policy at the 1956 Soviet Communist Congress.

Mao Tze-tung's politburo was not alone in its annoyance. Stalinist stalwarts in Moscow decided Khrushchev was dangerous to party authority and had to go.

Khrushchev outmaneuvered his foes. In mid-1957 he tossed out of power those he called "the anti-party group". Out, too, went the war hero, Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov. Up into orbit went Russia's first Sputnik. Khrushchev appeared very much the man in control. But he had problems.

Declaration of 1957

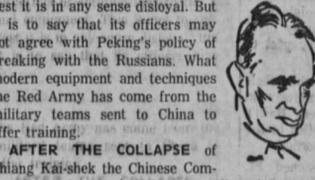

Confusion and disarray in the Red world movement over Kremlin direction signals led to a meeting of Communist leaders in Moscow in November 1957. This produced the often-cited 1957 Moscow Declaration, which the Chinese signed — probably reluctantly — and which they later interpreted in their own way.

Among other things, the declaration directed Communist parties to seek united fronts with other elements in the free world in a long-term drive for supremacy.

The declaration warned, however, that there was no abandonment of violent revolution. It could be used when conditions permitted.

To the Chinese, Khrushchev had become a roadblock on the path to swift Communist conquests. To Khrushchev, the Chinese were reckless — the point of endangering the Soviet Union.

In vain, Moscow explained it still supported world revolution, it backed internal subversion, propaganda, economic offensives, local civil wars, stopping short only at the point where there might be danger of world war. Next: the catalog of sins

University Theatres Schedule 10 Plays for Coming Year

Ten plays will be presented at SUI during the 1963-64 academic year, Arnold S. Gillette, director of the University Theatre, announced.

Five of the plays will be presented in the University Theatre, play by Faye and Michael Kanin, adapted from the Oriental legend "Ryunosuke Akutagawa," Oct. 24-26 and 30-31, and Nov. 1-2.

Shakespeare's "Hamlet" will be presented Dec. 5-7, and 11-14. The third play of the season will be the "Thurber Carnival," a musical compendium of selections from the works of the late James Thurber, Feb. 27-29 and March 4-7.

Sophocles' tragedy, "Oedipus," will be presented April 9-11 and 15-18. The last play on the University Theatre schedule will be Thornton Wilder's "The Matchmaker," May 7-9 and 13-16.

SUI Studio Theatre productions will be presented Nov. 6-9, Dec. 16-19, Feb. 12-15, March 11-14 and April 22-5, but selection of plays has not yet been made.

Plays produced in the University Theatre are planned to present a variety of drama types during the year to give students an opportunity to see both well-known and relatively unknown productions.

The Studio Theatre program is planned to give drama students experience in direction and production of plays of an experimental nature.

Railroad Firemen Spokesmen Asked To Appear Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—The men with power to speak for the railroad firemen — key figures in the "featherbedding" dispute — were told Wednesday to gather here next week so they will be handy if any possible solution is reached.

"If there is to be an agreement this group has got to be here," Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz said.

But there were no outward signs of progress toward that goal as negotiators for crewmen who operate the trains outside the locomotives continued renewed face-to-face talks with railroad spokesmen under the hopeful eye of Wirtz.

The almost constant series of talks this week is expected to determine whether the two sides can end their four-year stalemate over work rules or whether Congress must act to prevent a nationwide railroad strike Aug. 29.

J. L. Shattuck, vice president of the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, summoned the 156-member general chairman of the union to meet here Tuesday. These men, chairmen of employe groups, have authority to act for the union on any prospective settlement.

Shattuck, whose union is one of five involved in the dispute, said no specific proposal for settlement is at hand at present.

Cooperation Lessened by U.S. Caution

An overly cautious approach by the United States to international space cooperation has resulted in even less cooperation than generally conservative U.S. policy would allow, an SUI researcher asserts in a doctoral thesis.

"With few exceptions, the U.S. has not sought to focus on areas where we would have minimum differences with the Soviet Union, but has rather attempted to focus on differences, with the hope of getting some propaganda gain," Don E. Kash, Macedonia, who received a Ph.D. degree in political science Wednesday at SUI Commencement exercises, wrote in his thesis on "International Cooperation in Space: The American Experience."

Graduates Receive Their Commissions

Four Army and one Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets were commissioned second lieutenants in separate ceremonies preceding graduation exercises Wednesday.

Gerald W. Bryan, Charles City, was commissioned in the Air Force. David L. Franklin, Belle Plaine; Richard S. Monteith, Jewell; Larry Seufferer, Elkhart, and William R. Brandenberger, Danville, Ill., were commissioned in the Army.

Col. William N. Holm, head of military science, presented commissions to the Army ROTC students, and Capt. Allen G. Lincoln, awarded the Air Force commission.

They were graduated from SUI at Commencement exercises in the Field House.

Brush Your Teeth In Ginger Ale

BRAMPTON, Ont. (AP)—One hundred homeowners have declared they will not pay their water bills until town water piped to their subdivision "is fit for drinking."

Peggy Gardner told a taxpayers' meeting Tuesday her family uses ginger ale for brushing teeth because the water tastes and smells so bad. She said there must be some defects in the mains.

Mayor Russell Prouse blamed dissolved iron from the waterworks' deep wells for the trouble.

Export Loss Predicted

A significant reduction in U.S. exports of corn, wheat and other feed grains to European Common Market countries is predicted by Professor Charles W. Hultman in the Iowa Business Digest, a publication of the Bureau of Business and Economic Research at SUI.

The European countries plan to eliminate internal trade restrictions and establish a common external tariff on these agricultural imports by 1970. The University of Kentucky professor views the move as a major threat to U.S. agricultural exports.

Negroes Plead for 'Peaceful March'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Negro leaders said Wednesday all precautions are being taken to prevent violence or disorder at the massive Aug. 28 civil rights march in Washington.

"Certainly the people are not coming here to do something that would discredit their own movement," said A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and march director.

Randolph spoke to some 60 or 70 congressmen gathered in the Capitol conference room.

$100 Taken By Burglar

Theft of $100 from Cannon's Texaco service station, 510 S. Riverside Dr., was discovered early Wednesday morning, and police are investigating the possibility of a connection between this break-in and the $2,500 burglary of the Globe Loan Co. here a week ago.

Iowa City police detective Wayne J. Winter said the same method of entry was used in both break-ins.

Entry to the service station was gained by breaking glass in a large overhead door and unlatching it from the inside.

Have Your Furnace Checked Now ... for better heating performance

By having your gas furnace cleaned and adjusted by a competent heating contractor you'll be assured of more dependable, economical operation next winter and lessen the possibility of major repairs later on.

By doing this while your furnace is "on vacation," you will avoid the late summer rush and be ready in advance for the first cool days of fall. There is only a nominal charge for this important service.

It is also wise to leave your furnace pilot lighted now to help reduce corrosion as well as to keep your basement drier.

Here are some of the things your heating contractor will do:

- Check furnace vent connection to chimney.
- Use "smoke bomb" test for furnace tightness.
- Inspect pilot light safety control.
- Examine heat exchanger for carbon deposits and cracks.
- Oil motor, oil fan, check filter, and check furnace for proper operation.

Post Story About Butts Held Libelous Per Se

Publisher Must Prove Truth Of Libel to Jury, Judge Says

ATLANTA (AP) — A federal judge termed as libelous Wednesday a Saturday Evening Post story that prompted Wally Butts, former University of Georgia football coach, to sue the publisher of the magazine for $10 million.

U.S. Dist. Judge Louis R. Morgan refused to direct a verdict in favor of Butts but said he would charge the jury that the article "is libelous per se," or as it stands.

The judge added: "I think the defendant Curtis Publishing Co. has the burden of proving the libel was true and it is up to the jury to decide."

Morgan made the statements after attorneys for Butts moved for a directed verdict. The motion by Butts' counsel came immediately after attorneys for Curtis concluded their defense in a surprise step after less than three days of testimony.

Allen Lockerman, attorney for Butts, argued that Curtis had failed to prove charges in The Post article, which said Butts and Coach Paul Bryant of Alabama rigged the 1962 game between their schools.

Before the defense concluded its case, a Georgia coach testified that if Alabama's football team had secret information about Georgia plays, it was not apparent in their 1962 game.

Asst. Coach Leroy Pearce, narrating game films for the jury, testified that the films gave no indication that Alabama was relying on data allegedly received from Wally Butts, former Georgia athletic director.

Pearce was the third Georgia coach to take the stand in the trial of Butts' $10-million libel suit against Curtis Publishing Co. He sued because of an article in the Curtis-owned Saturday Evening Post.

The Post in its March 23 issue charged that Butts fed data on Georgia to Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama.

"No sir," the coach said. Alabama won the game 35-9.

Next Fight for Liston A Big Question Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — The next fight of Sonny Liston, the world heavyweight boxing champion, is a great big question mark.

Will it be Cassius Clay in 1963? Probably not. Liston made about $250,000 in flattening Floyd Patterson July 22 in Las Vegas, Nev., and income tax would gobble up most of anything more he might earn this year.

Or will it be the winner of a possible match between Ernie Terrell of Chicago and Doug Jones of New York?

"We would like to make it between Liston and the Terrell-Jones winner," said Harry Markson, managing director of Madison Square Garden boxing. Such a fight might go on home television rather than the theater TV

Louis Wants Liston Bout—As Promoter

TEANECK, N.J. (AP) — Joe Louis, a good 20 pounds over his fighting weight, is as anxious as anyone to set a date with Sonny Liston.

The fabled Brown Bomber isn't contemplating a comeback but, in his current role as fight promoter, would like to sign Liston for a bout later this year.

Louis said he will go to Philadelphia today for a meeting with Jack Nilon, Liston's adviser.

"I'll try to match Liston against Ernie Terrell, the Philadelphia heavyweight, in California," Louis said.

"Terrell's big (6-foot-6) and strong and his type of fight — he stays down low — is probably the only kind that can last any distance against Liston."

Louis is the major stockholder in United World Enterprises, a Los Angeles boxing promotional group. Wednesday, he and Garden State Sports Corp., a recently formed New Jersey organization, announced a working agreement for a coast-to-coast promotional setup.

"We'll work with Joe on major matches in Los Angeles, here in Teaneck and anywhere in the country where we feel a major bout is suitable," explained Murray Goodman, a partner in Garden State Sports and former boxing publicity director for Madison Square Garden in New York.

Louis was named a member of the board of directors of the Jersey corporation. Garden State also announced that its own matchmaker, Jack Barrett, would serve as a consultant to Louis' outfit.

The 15-round bout starts at 7:30 p.m., local time, which is 12:30 p.m., (CST). A crowd of 45,000 is expected to pack Liberty Stadium. Tiger, who took the crown from Fullmer in San Francisco Oct. 23, 1962, and then fought a draw with him last Feb. 23 in Las Vegas, is the favorite.

Tiger is the hero of Nigeria, one of the new African nations, and the Nigerian government itself is subsidizing the promotion of the fight. Tiger has been assured $100,000, and Fullmer, who comes from West Jordan, Utah, has been guaranteed $50,000.

The two strong 160-pounders have finished their hard workouts and are now tapering off in preparation for the third ring encounter.

Already the curious fans are drifting in to Ibadan, which is 89 miles inland from the seaport capital of Lagos. Colorful tribal costumes are mixed with smart European attire and the huge crowd Saturday night should take on a varied and almost improbable aspect.

Grave concern is felt for what might happen on the two twisting roads that link Ibadan and Lagos. They were never designed for heavy traffic, and as this is the rainy season both roads are often blocked for days at a time by standing water. Even now there is 18 inches of water in spots on the main road, and direct Lagos-Ibadan rail traffic has been halted until further notice.

And then there are Mammy wagons — large trucks with benches for freight, passengers, and livestock, usually carried simultaneously. They are slow moving, but a menace to all other vehicles.

Government officials are worried. One said: "There could be bodies all over the place, and I do not mean Tiger or Fullmer."

Jack Solomons, the London promoter who is master-minding this extravaganza, said more than 1,500 police have been ordered to patrol the two roads. This may not be enough.

Hard-Luck Roger

Hard luck pitcher Roger Craig of the New York Mets holds up a uniform shirt bearing the number 13 which he thinks he'll wear Friday night against the Chicago Cubs. He has worn 18 this season while dropping 20 of 22 games and the last 18 in a row. One more loss and he will break the National League record for consecutive defeats for a pitcher in a single season. —AP Wirephoto

Mets' Craig Hopes Donning 13 Will End Losses at 18 In Row

NEW YORK (AP) — Snake-bit Roger Craig isn't the superstitious type but he's ready to try anything — even voodoo and witch doctors — in an effort to snap his long losing streak with the New York Mets.

"The clubhouse boy told me I ought to wear uniform No. 13 in my next start against the Chicago Cubs Friday night," the towering right-hander said Wednesday. "I think I'll do it — no kidding."

Craig's number is 38. The Mets have a No. 13 — unused. Craig, 32, a 6-foot-4 native North Carolinian with thinning hair doesn't jest about his current pitching miseries, which have seen him lose 20 of 22 games — 18 losses in a row.

He needs just one more setback to break the National League record for consecutive defeats for a pitcher in a season. Cliff Curtis of the Boston Braves lost 18 in a row in 1910. He also lost his first five in 1911 and pushed his streak to 23 before it finally was broken.

The American League — and major league — record is 19 losses in a row by John Nabors of the Philadelphia Athletics in 1916.

"I never think about these guys. I don't worry about records," Craig said — with a shiver — in the Polo Grounds locker room prior to Wednesday's game with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I have become a bit numbed by the whole thing. I know I am pitching well. The fellows on the team know I am pitching well. The opposition knows I am pitching well."

"If I started worrying about all these losses — and they really gnaw away at your insides sometimes — I guess I'd go completely batty."

Craig, who came to the Mets from the Los Angeles Dodgers where he had winning records in 1959 (11-5) and 1960 (8-3), has been unable to crash the winning column since April 29 although he has pitched well enough to win a dozen games.

The Mets have failed to produce a run in seven of the games he started. He's lost three games by 1-0 margins, three others 2-1, bowed 4-3 twice and also 2-0, 3-1, 4-2.

Mets 7, Cards 3
NEW YORK (AP) — Third baseman Jim Hickman made history for the New York Mets Wednesday when he hit for the cycle — single, double, triple and home run — in leading his team to a 7-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals at the Polo Grounds.

It was the first time a Mets player had accomplished the feat in the club's two years of existence.

Dodgers Win From Chicago On Davis' HR

CHICAGO (AP) — Tommy Davis' 11th inning leadoff homer on the first pitch by reliever Lindy McDaniel led league-leading Los Angeles to a 3-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs Wednesday, but Sandy Koufax failed in his bid for his 19th victory and 11th shutout of the year.

Ron Perranoski relieved Koufax for the Dodgers in the 10th — when Koufax was two outs away from victory — and received credit for winning the game.

The Dodger lefty, however, struck out 11 batters in pitching nine scoreless innings and tied the National League record for three consecutive 200 strikeout seasons. He now has a total of 210 strikeouts this year.

Tommy Davis hit McDaniel's first pitch onto the left field catwalk for his 10th home run of the year.

The Dodgers added an insurance run when Willie Davis beat out an infield single, stole second, went to third on a single by Al Ferrara and scored on a fly ball by Marv Breeding.

McDaniel, the Cubs second pitcher, replaced lefty Don Ellsworth in the 10th. Ellsworth, who lost 20 games last season, was seeking his 16th run.

The Cubs scored their only run in the bottom of the tenth after the Dodgers had taken the lead, 1-0, in the top of the inning.
