House slashes foreign aid budget by $585 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House carved $585 million more out of the foreign aid program Friday in a Republican-led defeat for President Kennedy. He termed the action "short-sighted, irresponsible and dangerously partisan."

Republicans and Southern Democrats teamed up at the last minute to cut the foreign aid authorization bill about $1 billion under the figure Kennedy had asked. A few hours later, the President went before newsmen, microphones and television cameras at the White House to lay the blame on House Republicans, saying only 9 per cent of them voted against the slash.

Recalling that he had supported foreign aid as a Democratic senator during the Republican Eisenhower Administration, Kennedy said "this year is the first time that the leadership of one party led the attack on it."

Never a popular program in Congress, foreign aid was in more than usual trouble this year because of a prospective whopping budget deficit coupled with a proposed tax cut.

Kennedy had asked for $4.5 billion. The House Foreign Affairs Committee cut the request to $4.1 billion. Friday's House action reduced it to $3.5 billion.

IN HIS STATEMENT Friday, Kennedy called on both parties in the Senate to raise the amount so that when the measure returns to the House for compromise that body will have an opportunity to reconsider what he called its "shocking and thoughtless" action.

Kennedy used such adjectives as "drastic," "unwarranted," and "unwise" to describe the slash, which he said would critically affect forces of freedom now on the move around the world.

This authorization bill merely sets a ceiling on the program for the current fiscal year. The program faces more trouble when the appropriation bill providing the actual money comes up later.

BOTH Appropriations Chairmen Clarence Cannon (D-Mo.) and Rep. Otto Passman (D-La.) who heads the Foreign Aid subcommittee, voted to cut the authorization.

The Republican-initiated maneuver took the form of sending the bill back to committee with instructions to cut it by the specified amount. Once this motion passed, the bill was immediately returned to the floor for passage.

The motion cut $160 million from the $1.5-billion development loan fund; $150 million from the $600-million Alliance for Progress request; reduced the President's $200-million contingency fund by $50 million, and cut $225 million from the military assistance program, bringing that down to an even $1 billion.

Sen. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told reporters there is little likelihood his committee — in the midst of hearings on the limited nuclear test ban treaty — can resume its work on the foreign aid bill until some time after Labor Day.

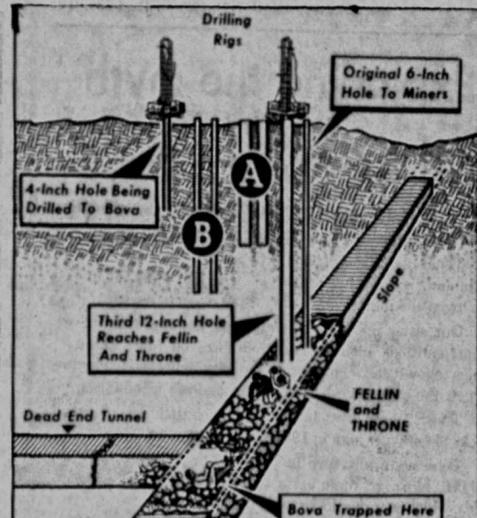

The Senate committee has voted tentative cuts of around $300 million in the Administration's request.

Administration urges new civil rights plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy Administration Friday offered a revised civil rights proposal to provide for mandatory action to prevent racial discrimination in any program receiving federal funds.

City will repair walks not done by city residents

Iowa City residents who have not repaired their sidewalks had better hurry up or the city will do it for them.

Public Works director Lane Mashaw made this announcement Friday. He said that local residents have had long enough to get the repair work done. "Not too much work is being done now," he said. "But some people are dragging their feet."

Any work done by the city will be assessed to the property owners and they will be required to pay the bill when they tax their property.

Mashaw said that the city sent letters to property owners last March urging them to repair the sidewalks. However, he indicated that some property owners with sidewalks in disrepair may have been missed due to the magnitude of the job to be done.

The city has hired Contractor Verl Greenland of Iowa City to do the repair work.

offered the new proposal before the Senate Judiciary Committee as a substitute for a less positive approach which was included in the Administration's original civil rights package.

The proposed change brought endorsement by Northern senators but was roundly condemned by a Southern committee member who said it gave him "mental indigestion."

The original version — known as Title VI of the omnibus civil rights bill — would have provided discretionary authority to withhold federal assistance for programs marked by racial discrimination.

The substitute, however, states a no-exceptions policy of non-discrimination in federal aid and says "every federal department and agency shall take action" to end discrimination in any federal aid program which it administers.

It provides that such action may be through withholding of funds or through federal court action to halt the discrimination without denying the funds or by "any other means authorized by law."

State and local agencies would be given the right to appeal to the courts any action taken to compel compliance with the antidiscrimination provision.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.) said Kennedy had effected "substantial improvement" over the original version while Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader from Illinois, described the change as "considerable improvement."

Drill reaches 2 miners

Chances are slim for third man

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP) — A 12-inch escape hole was driven Friday into the chamber where two miners have been trapped 331 feet underground for 10 days.

The men, Henry Throne, 28, and David Fellin, 58, called for a halt in further rescue operations until they could get some sleep.

Rescue experts conferred for several hours and then decided Friday night to abandon plans for enlarging the hole to 17 inches — at least at the start of this work.

THEY SAID IT would be cut 24 inches in diameter for the first 35-40 feet and this would extend the most optimistic time for bringing the men to the surface until at least Sunday night.

After the first 35-40 feet, said H. B. Charnbury, state secretary of mines, a conference will be held on the next step.

Charnbury also said: "We haven't given up on Bova."

Bova is Louis Bova, 42, who was trapped some distance from the others in the cave-in at 9 a.m. Aug. 13.

AN EFFORT TO get a four-inch life-line hole to Bova was resumed at 7:15 p.m. A drilling rig started up a diamond bit which had been halted at 43 feet earlier in the day when optimistic progress was being made on the larger hole to Fellin and Throne.

Bova has been without food — except for what he might have had with him. The others, since last Sunday, have received food and supplies through a six-inch hole that also is used to communicate with them.

It would have taken 340 hours, Charnbury estimated several days ago, to enlarge the hole to 17 inches for its entire distance.

After the 24-inch hole is drilled — this distance is mainly clay, rather than hard rock — the hole will be encased in steel pipe. A conference then will be held on whether to go the rest of the way at the 17-inch width or possibly 24 inches.

CHARNBURY ALSO said the escape hole came down beside the 14-foot-by-9-foot chamber holding Throne and Fellin — not the roof, as first understood. He said Fellin and Throne used small tools to hack away part of the vein of coal to the drill bit.

Timbers will be sent down to Fellin and Throne, along with other building materials to close up the 12-inch hole. This is to keep debris and dust from falling in while the hatch is enlarged.

Just before the drill broke through into the 14x9-foot chamber where the pair have been trapped since 9 a.m. Aug. 13, they sent up a request for two hot dinners.

A messenger was sent to a nearby diner to get the meals, to be sent down the 6-inch communications hole.

ANNOUNCEMENT THAT the drill had broken through came at 3:29 p.m. from Art D. Goyce, operator of the giant rig, which is as tall as a 10-story building, weighs 65 tons and can cut a 48-inch hole through solid rock.

Immediately, cheering could be heard as far as a quarter-mile away.

Fellin confirmed Goyce's announcement. "I can see the drill," he shouted. "Hold it!" he yelled. "That's enough, it's through."

ON THE SURFACE, one spectator asserted, "If there ever was a miracle, this is it."

The breakthrough climaxed more than an hour of waiting for the final few inches of hard rock to give way.

Test ban treaty draws accusations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.) accused Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Friday of making "deceptive" and "misleading" statements to win support for the limited nuclear test ban treaty.

Somewhat similar criticism was implied in milder language by Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), who also challenged the contention that the United States will maintain nuclear superiority over Russia under the pact.

Army takes control in South Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Beset by the grave Buddhist crisis, President Ngo Dinh Diem's Government announced Friday that all ministries will take orders from the military during the period of martial law.

Officers of the Vietnamese Armed Forces — trained, supplied and advised by the United States for a war on Communist guerrillas — appeared to be taking control of the ministries under Diem's overall leadership.

Some U.S. officials held to the theory that the president and his younger brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, who heads the security police, were in effect leading a military junta. Their impression was that the two instituted the blitzkrieg Wednesday against Buddhists that has aroused criticism at home and abroad.

OTHERS FIGURED pressure on the Government from army generals prompted the proclamation of martial law and the military raids on Buddhist pagodas, in which hundreds of Buddhist monks and nuns were arrested.

Developments of the political-religious crisis, perhaps marking a time when the United States will take a new stance in Southeast Asia, found Henry Cabot Lodge exuding confidence as the new U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam.

The tall, 61-year-old diplomat, representing a Government which has denounced "repressive actions of this nature" against the Buddhists, included in his orientation work a visit to two monks who have lived in asylum at the U.S. aid mission since escaping there from arrest.

U.S. SOURCES SAID he paid a courtesy call on the monks barely 12 hours after he arrived with Mrs. Lodge and two aides Thursday night.

Lodge's predecessor, Frederick E. Nolting Jr., rarely had contact with Buddhist leaders.

In the changing political pattern, a Vietnamese Air Force officer seemed to be taking increasing charge at the Foreign Ministry. The ministry was left without a chief by the resignation of Vu Van Mau as foreign minister Thursday.

A BUDDHIST who was the Government's senior minister with 8½ years on the job, Mau shaved his head like a monk and asked permission of Diem, a Roman Catholic, to go to India on a Buddhist pilgrimage.

Of Diem's 16 remaining ministers, five are Roman Catholics. Among the Army's 20 generals, some in semiretirement, three are listed as Catholics. That is the religion of about one million Vietnamese, long an influential group in a predominantly Buddhist nation of 15 million.

A U.S. official reviewing incidents of this tumultuous week said he believed Vietnamese generals instituted the crackdown on the Buddhists, who had campaigned against the Government for more than three months with calls for religious equality and social justice.

Wage anti-dust campaign— Housewives barricade Sycamore

The dust ruined washes . . .

By GARY SPURGEON
Managing Editor

A group of Iowa City housewives took matters into their own hands and barricaded Sycamore Street Friday morning because they were tired of the dust that was plummeling on their homes from the street.

The women stopped traffic on the gravel street with a barricade of barrels, saw horses, old lumber, bicycles, incinerators — literally everything but the kitchen sink.

The barricade did not come down until the women had a telephone conference with City Manager Carsten Leikvold in which he promised the water that the city would wash the street down. Leikvold also promised that the street would be put on the paving program next year.

None of the women who took part in the demonstration live on Sycamore Street. Sycamore runs behind their homes.

But Mrs. Duane Hime, 1522 Spruce St., told The Daily Iowan that the dust blows over onto their yard and into their homes. She said the street was heavily traveled because the employees of Procter and Gamble and Owens Brush Co. use the street. She also said that three school buses travel over the street when schools are open.

"We have been fighting for something to be done for two years," Mrs. Hime said. "We have sent two petitions to the City Council, but they referred them both to someone and nothing has been done."

Mrs. Hime related that the dust was so bad Thursday evening that "you couldn't see the house across the street. 'It's time for something to be done when you hang a basket of wash out and then you can't see the line,'" she said.

Leikvold recommended that the residents of the area oil the street in an effort to keep the dust down. The city does not oil streets, thus the oiling bill would have to be paid by the residents.

The street will be put on the paving program for next year, Leikvold said. But the paving costs will be assessed to the Spruce Street residents.

Leikvold said that the street had never actually been put on the program although the Council had talked about it.

He said the city had also considered vacating the street, but that this was not possible because it was too heavily traveled.

There will be no charges of blocking a public street filed against the women. Leikvold said. "This would only be adding insult to injury," he said.

"They attempted to make their point and they made it very well," he added.

and the ladies fought back dents had spent $240 to oil the street last summer, but that the city graded the oil under three weeks later.

The City Manager said that this was probably done because the street does not have a suitable base for oiling. He said that chuck holes soon develop on the surface and the city has to grade the street to keep it smooth.

The street was watered Friday afternoon, but Leikvold said that the city could not keep watering the street. "There are quite a few streets like this and we cannot treat these people any different from the rest."

The street will be put on the paving program for next year, Leikvold said. But the paving costs will be assessed to the Spruce Street residents.

Leikvold said that the street had never actually been put on the program although the Council had talked about it.

He said the city had also considered vacating the street, but that this was not possible because it was too heavily traveled.

Why not color them expired?

Iowa City has come up with the latest thing in parking meters. Color!

The city has begun to paint the posts of meters as a service to motorists. The colors will denote the time limit on the meters.

Twelve-hour meters will be painted white, five-hour meters will be blue, two-hour meters will be decked in yellow, one-hour meters will have silver and half-hour meters will display red.

Success!

Clyde Machamer, head of the Hazleton, Pa., Independent Miners Association mine rescue unit, wears a big grin as he looks up after hearing entombed miner David Fellin confirm that the 12-inch drill had broken through into gangway where Fellin and two other miners have been trapped since early last week.

Exploding the myth of the rich farmer

CITY SLICKERS, LISTEN. The farmer isn't the rich old cantankerous so-and-so he's sometimes built up to be.

Those mountains of money he makes selling cows, hogs grain and such are impressive, it's true. But there's many a slip 'twixt the market and the internal revenue boys.

Our sister university, Iowa State, has just released a report entitled "1962 Costs and Returns on Iowa Farms," which shows the comparison the city feller is likely to forget: the difference between gross and net incomes.

The farmer's gross income is higher than a mad cat's back: $14,400 per man in 1962, a record amount.

Before you all move to the farm to collect your own $14,000, however, there are a few figures provided by the study which you should know.

• Fact number one: Despite that increase in productivity, the farm's net income dropped in 1962 as compared to 1961.

• Fact number two: During the ten-year period 1953-1962, the total cost of running a farm rose from $85 to $46 per acre. That's quite a slice out of the gross income, neighbor.

• Fact number three: The biggest reason for the rise in gross profits per man is the reduction in labor Iowa farmers' efficiency made possible.

Farms used in the ISU survey were, according to the researchers, of above average size and level of management. So the less corporation-like dirt farms — which could have pulled the gross average down quite a bit — were not used in the survey.

All of which goes to show that despite the often meaningless increases in the farmer's gross income, that guy in the straw hat and holding a pitch fork just isn't getting rich, all anti-farm-subsidy-program-spokesmen to the contrary.

He's just working a little harder to provide a little more to get a little less.

The -ismists may win the next world war

PERHAPS THE HARDEST part of the whole Red China-Russia split for the Westerner to understand is the conflict of "-isms." Our own capitalism, liberalism, and conservatism are hard enough to keep straight, but the Reds are such prolific inventors of -isms that they are impossible to follow.

If anyone is either foolhardy enough or brilliant enough to think he understands the -ism battle, we'd like him to decipher this paragraph from the Chinese Communist newspaper, Red Flag, translated into -ism English by The Christian Science Monitor:

"All Communists must work hard to raise their ability to distinguish Marxism-Leninism from revisionism, to distinguish the way of opposing dogmatism with Marxism-Leninism with revisionism under the cover of opposing dogmatism, and to distinguish the way of opposing sectarianism with proletarian internationalism from that of opposing proletarian internationalism with great-nation chauvinism and narrow nationalism under the cover of opposing sectarianism."

If this sort of thing persists, the next world war may be fought with words (admittedly weapons to be favored over bombs).

And the logical world cult to rise from the shambles of that -ism war would be something called semanticism.

A conservative for civil rights—

Eisenhower's defense of racial protest

By RALPH MCGILL

Before former President Eisenhower departed on his recent "sentimental journey" to England and the Normandy beaches, he made a statement that might well be a text for conservatives, he himself being one. Mr. Eisenhower declared he believed civil rights demonstrations by Negroes emphasized "the rightful discontent of a minority."

"If they call attention to their discontent by proper demonstrations I feel that is all right," he said. "Every individual in this country has a legal and moral obligation to see that others enjoy the same rights he thought he should have."

This statement is one which any American who believes in the principles of his country must accept. Mr. Eisenhower escaped any major decision in civil rights during his eight years in office. Yet, in his concluding year, discontent — which he describes as "rightful" — was moving like an ocean swell toward the surflike demonstrations now so familiar to the national scene.

THE FORMER PRESIDENT did not make this assertion for political gain. He spoke out of belief. His concise statement highlights the childishness of the anger against "The Kennedys" by those who oppose civil rights and who damn "The Kennedys" for doing that which, as Mr. Eisenhower says, is the legal and moral obligation of "every individual."

"The Kennedys" certainly did not create the race problem in America. It has been evolving for almost a century. "The Kennedys" have, as a matter of fact, met it with honesty and courage. Mr. Eisenhower thought the civil rights bills proper. He believed it might have been better to present them strongly one at a time. But, he was, and is, for civil rights.

This poses a problem in morality for all the conservative business men who for eight years gave passionate loyalty to the slogan "I like Ike." Do they like him now? Do the conservatives who saw in him a leader they could follow agree that there is a legal and moral obligation for every individual to see that every other American has equal rights before the law?

MR. EISENHOWER'S EMPHATIC endorsement of the right to demonstrate to emphasize what he called "the rightful discontent of a minority," is relative to the testimony before the civil rights committee in Congress by Atlanta's Mayor Ivan Allen. Mr. Allen said the Congress should act in the public accommodations field because the issue was on the lap of almost every mayor in the nation.

Many of them were helpless to act — even when they wished to do so. They cannot, as he said, "pass the buck." It is not possible to deny that statement. Voluntary compliance is, of course, better. But, as Mr. Allen asked — and now Mr. Eisenhower confirms — we each have a legal and moral duty in this matter.

There is, unmistakably, a challenge to the true conservative. Will he do his moral duty, or will he delay — inviting or making inevitable, demonstrations, ill-feeling, and perhaps disorder before he accepts the inevitable?

WHAT ABOUT THE right wing extremist — who calls himself a conservative?

On the same day Mr. Eisenhower was interviewed, the Right Reverend Billy Joe Hargis, who runs what he calls a Christian Crusade, held an annual convention in Oklahoma City. The speakers were the Rev. Billy Joe, Robert H. W. Welch, Jr., founder and mahatma of the Birch Society, and former Major General Edwin Walker, who was widely publicized at the time of the mob riots at Oxford, Mississippi.

Large pictures of Senator Goldwater were hung from the balcony of the convention hall, but the Rev. Billy Joe was quoted as saying he had asked Mr. Welch and General Walker not to praise the senator too much "because we don't want to hurt him in his presidential aspirations."

Since Mahatma Welch, of the Birch group, has written that Mr. Eisenhower was a tool of communism, it was not surprising to find the former president among the targets of Billy Joe's convention.

The targets of the "Christian Crusade" were: The Kennedy family, the State Department, "The National Association for the Agitation of Colored People," Alger Hiss, Mr. Eisenhower, liberals, dupes, Communists, the United Nations and Harvard University.

All this should give the true conservative pause. . . . What prevents him from being as forthright as Dwight D. Eisenhower?

Fiction tops list of new releases—

The fall book avalanche

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

NEW YORK — Always in September the publishers begin their big fall book slide, which by Thanksgiving Day assumes the proportions of an avalanche.

This year, September's trend is strong on the side of fiction. From Jack Kerouac to Zoe Oldenbourg — could there be a stronger contrast? — and from Pearl Buck to Irving Wallace, there is a wonderful variety among the novels.

September's nonfiction will be highlighted by the late Eleanor Roosevelt's final testament of faith and an assorted collection of personal experience.

FOR THE NOVELS, first — Napoleon's final romance, involving an English girl, is the subject of Thomas B. Costain's "The Last Love" (Doubleday). It is the Literary Guild choice for September.

And Miss Oldenbourg, a specialist in fiction about the medieval days, will offer "Cities in the Flesh" (Pantheon), a story of a benighted knight who was on the wrong side every time the sides changed in 13th Century France.

Kerouac, holder of the Rotary Club membership in the beatnik category, strays from his customary absorption with Zen to pick up an earlier thread of Catholicism in his new book, "Visions of Gerard" (Farrar, Straus). It is about two small boys of a French-Canadian family in his old home town in New England.

MISS BUCK'S NOVEL, "The Living Reed" (John Day), is described as a comprehensive story of Korea, as delineated in the lives of four generations of one Korean family. The Literary Guild has chosen it for October.

Wallace has gone to the Pacific for his new novel. It concerns an anthropologist and other investigators who are interested in the social customs and love patterns of a certain Polynesian island. The title is "The Three Sirens" (Simon & Schuster).

Late in the month — it is the October choice of the Book-of-the-Month Club — will come a story of extramarital love among the proper set by the English novelist Rumer Godden, "The Battle of Villa Fiorita" (Viking).

Another English novelist, Elizabeth Goudge, has written a love story called "The Scents of Water" (Coward-McCann).

TURNING TO the nonfiction list, Mrs. Roosevelt's book is titled, "Tomorrow is Now" (Harper), and she completed its draft in her final illness, striving to bequeath a message of inspiration.

The eighth volume of the "Story of Civilization" series, Will and Ariel Durant's "The Age of Louis XIV" (Simon and Schuster), covers the period from 1648 to 1714. It is the September item for the Book-of-the-Month Club.

The volumes of personal experience will include fiction writer Ben Lucien Burman's account of a nonfiction adventure as the first correspondent to reach the Free French in Africa during the late military embroilment. It is called "The Generals Wear Cork Hats" (Taplinger).

THE PROLIFIC novelist Edna Ferber once wrote an autobiographical book, covering her life through 1938. Now she is relating everything that has happened since. "A Kind of Magic" (Doubleday).

And Jean Dalrymple, actress, playwright, director and producer, tells in "September Child" (Dodd, Mead) the story of her many careers in the theater.

On the intellectual side will be Aldous Huxley's "Literature and Science" (Harper), described as a plea for the literary set to wake up the prodigious fulminations of the scientific fraternity.

Or so they say . . .

The honeymoon is definitely over when a wife complains about the noise her husband makes when getting his own breakfast.

—L. & M. Magazine

Happiness results from positive satisfactions in life, rather than the absence of negative experience. In the words of one psychologist, "It is the lack of joy in Mudville, rather than the presence of sorrow; that makes the difference."

—Rod Riggs, Ames Tribune

It is a sign of cynical times that "do-gooder" has become a term of derision or contempt.

most any humane or redemptive cause or organization can be and often is blasted by newspapers which hang this label on its advocates.

The tag is quite sufficient to intimidate at least some supporters of decency and compassion in human relations. It is particularly effective in terrifying those who consider themselves realists, who find comfort in "sophistication."

Instructors will attend annual meet

Twelve members of the SUI School of Journalism faculty will attend the annual convention of the Association for Education in Journalism at the University of Nebraska Aug. 25-29.

Faculty members attending are E. F. Andrews, Arthur M. Barnes, Lester G. Benz, John Kottman, James Markham, Ellis Newsome, Leslie G. Moeller, and Walter Steigleman; and instructors Clarence Andrews, James F. Bucklew, Richard W. Budd, and Arthur M. Sanderson.

Markham will head the convention's sessions on international communications.

Benz will speak on the topic "The Student Newspaper As a Training Laboratory" in a panel session on "Teaching Journalism."

Frank Eyerly, managing editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, an SUI journalism alumnus, will speak at a banquet sponsored by Kappa Tau Alpha, national scholastic honor society for journalists.

A reception for Iowa journalism alumni, an annual event at the convention, will be held Tuesday afternoon. More than 40 persons are expected to attend.

As chairman of the steering committee for the William Randolph Hearst Foundation Journalism Awards program, Moeller will preside at a meeting of heads of accredited schools of journalism to discuss plans for the 1963-64 monthly news and editorial writing competitions in which more than $40,000 will be awarded to students and to schools.

Graham returns to scene of first revival

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Billy Graham, the fiery Baptist preacher from North Carolina, is back in Los Angeles where 14 years ago his impassioned evangelical message started him on a worldwide crusade for Christ.

The Southern California crusade is now in its second week and records may tumble before the evangelist ends his visit here.

Attendance at the crusade, after seven services, totals 258,186 with 14 services still to go. If attendance continues at its present rate, it will total more than the record 700,000 of a three-week crusade in Chicago last year.

The 110,000-seat Los Angeles Coliseum has been one-third full during the past week with crowds averaging 35,000. But the 38,708 who attended the opening night Aug. 15 set an opening-night record for the Coliseum services.

The crusade team expects to fill the huge Coliseum before the end of the three-week stay. If so, attendance may pass the million mark.

Graham, 44, began his career on Sept. 25, 1949, in a tent revival near downtown Los Angeles. It was to be a one-week revival, but it stretched into eight weeks. The 6,000-seat "canvass cathedral" was enlarged to hold 9,000 but it wasn't enough.

At a single service, there were 15,000 persons attending. Total attendance for the 72 services was more than 350,000. However, only 6,000 persons responded to Graham's invitation to come forward to make a "decision for Christ." Since then he has traveled throughout the world preaching to almost 30 million persons. The decisions for Christ have numbered more than 900,000.

In the past week in Los Angeles, decisions so far are just short of 12,000.

Graham, dressed conservatively now in dark suits, has changed from his flashy, flamboyant youth. But his dynamic rapid-fire delivery remains the same.

"A great many things are different," Graham says, "but I'm more convinced than ever that Christ is the answer."

"There may be more logic and reason in my sermons now, but I still preach the same gospel. That doesn't change."

Brando leads group—

Actors defend right to demonstrate

GADSDEN, Ala. (AP) — Four movie actors led by Marlon Brando defended their right to help fight for racial equality in the South Friday but tempered their statements with criticism of "hypocrisy" in other parts of the nation.

The Hollywood celebrities denied a charge of "rabble-rousing" tactics by Mayor Lesley Gilliland and insisted they came here as ambassadors of good will and not agitators.

They sought to confer with the mayor and other city officials in what they described as an attempt to establish workable communications between the two races in this racially troubled northeast Alabama city.

But Gilliland refused to talk to them, and warned grimly that if they violated the law they would go to jail.

The four actors — Brando, Paul Newman, Anthony Franciosa and Virgil Frye — planned to leave Gadsden later in the day to return to their jobs. Brando said Newman would fly to New York, the others to California.

Brando, who since his arrival here Thursday night has acted as spokesman for the group, told newsmen that "we are here as devoted and peaceful representatives of good will . . . not as agitators, interlopers or interferers."

While no one can deny that Negroes have not achieved racial equality in the South, the Academy Award-winning Brando said, "Southerners can point to the North and accuse them of hypocrisy, insulate and restricted thinking just as easily as the finger can be pointed the other way."

Brando has taken part in protest demonstrations in other parts of the country.

Newman said Gadsden Negroes had considered another mass demonstration Friday after the pattern of those earlier, which brought the arrest of hundreds of members of their race.

But, Newman said, the actors talked them out of it.

Brando said either the same group or others from Hollywood will visit Gadsden at a later date to continue the fight, but he said the time is uncertain.

Measure proposed to settle railroad work-rules dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moving to block a nationwide railroad strike set for next Thursday, the Senate Commerce Committee has approved legislation to settle the lingering work-rules dispute through binding arbitration.

The measure would submit the four-year-old controversy to a seven-member board to be made up of two representatives from the five on-train unions, two from management and three from the public. The latter would be designated by the union-management members if they can agree on nominees; otherwise, President Kennedy would make the selections.

The board would be charged with final arbitration of the two toughest issues — firemen's jobs and train crew makeup. The parties would negotiate seven lesser points of difference but if they fail to reach voluntary agreement, these, too, would go to the board for settlement.

NEITHER SIDE had any immediate comment Friday on the committee's action, pending study of the proposed law.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) promptly denounced the bill, saying it "can never vote for compulsory arbitration."

The timetable under the bill: The board to be named within 10 days and to begin hearings within 30 days after enactment; the award on the two main issues to be made within 60 days of the start of hearings;

NEGOTIATION of lesser issues to start at once and if no agreement is reached within 30 days after the award on the main issues, the board would take jurisdiction and make an award within 60 days.

The board's awards would be effective for any period it designates, not exceeding two years. Decision on the two main issues would not be effective until resolution of all issues — under the timetable this could not be later than March 1, 1964.

Unless congressional action changes the course, the carriers are scheduled to start posting job-eliminating work-rules changes at 12:01 a.m. local time next Thursday and the union are committed to strike at once in protest.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY called for congressional action to prevent this because the Administration regards a rail strike as economically intolerable.

The Senate is expected to take up the arbitration proposal Monday. There is some doubt that it can clear both chambers by Thursday but the carriers will be under strong pressure to delay posting the new rules.

The committee bypassed Kennedy's recommendation that the Interstate Commerce Commission be designated to rule out work-rules issues for a two-year interim period while the parties continued to negotiate for a final settlement — an approach favored by the unions.

AT THE HEART of the dispute is what happens eventually to the jobs of about 32,000 firemen now assigned to yard locomotives and freight trains. The carriers contend these and some other jobs are "featherbed" assignments that cost the railroads $600 million annually in unnecessary operating expense. The unions argue the jobs are necessary for safety and to prevent unreasonable work loads on engineers.

Lesser issues include railroad proposals to adjust basic pay patterns, to shift work assignments between yard and road crews, to require crews to extend their runs beyond divisional limits and to alter assignments on self-propelled rail cars.

The unions seek improved overtime rates, wage and job guarantees and paid expenses away from home.

Syria, Israel air disputes over border

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Israel and Syria exchanged bitter charges before the U.N. Security Council Friday as they accused each other of aggression and demanded U.N. condemnation for alleged border violations.

U.N. Secretary-General U Thant told the 11-nation council, however, that the two Governments had agreed to a cease-fire and had accepted a plan to permit U.N. observers to investigate the situation in defensive zones on both sides of the tense border.

Thant made a personal appeal to Syria and Israel to take every possible step to see that the cease-fire is observed.

Israeli delegate Michael S. Comay demanded that Syria be condemned for the alleged slaying of two Israeli farmers Monday in a border demilitarized zone. He hinted that if such action is not taken by the council the Israeli Government might take matters "in its own hands."

Syrian Ambassador Salah El Dine Tarazi denied Syria had any knowledge of the slayings. He charged Comay with trying to blackmail the council by threats. He asserted that Israel had repeatedly violated the 1949 armistice and had refused to take part in meetings of the U.N. Mixed Armistice Commission since 1951.

He compared Israel's tactics to those of Adolf Hitler, but he said the Security Council will not fall into the same traps as Hitler's victims.

Three-week crime spree ends in Clinton

CLINTON (AP) — A three-week crime spree in Clinton was revealed Friday by one of two Clinton youths picked up in Evansdale, a Waterloo suburb.

One of the boys, 17, was held in Waterloo on a charge of attempted car theft. The other, 16, was returned to Clinton and arraigned in juvenile court Friday.

The 16-year-old was charged with breaking into Max's Grocery here, and theft of a car owned by Clinton Parks Commission Chairman Edwin Neubauer. The car was abandoned Wednesday in Evansdale.

Police said that according to the story told by the boy in Waterloo, the spree started Aug. 4, when they took a Clinton car, drove it into the country, lost control, and mowed down a row of mail boxes.

An Aug. 14 they broke into Clinton High School, sprayed aluminum paint over blackboards and took a quantity of tools. They returned to the school the following night but got no loot and did no damage.

Other crimes by the two, police said, included the ransacking of a houseboat on the Mississippi River Aug. 19, the break-in at Max's Grocery, another break-in at a vacant house in which the loot from the grocery store was stashed, and theft of four hubcaps valued at $80.

The 16-year-old pleaded guilty to all these crimes and was held under $3,000 bond in juvenile quarters at the county jail, pending sentencing Saturday.

Russian trawlers sighted off coast of California

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Two Russian trawlers traveled a triangular course off the coast of Southern California Friday and were 120 miles southwest of here at last sighting, the Navy said.

The ships had drifted to about 120 miles southwest of here Thursday but began moving north Thursday night and were on a course that would have taken them to the Point Arguello missile launching sites, the Navy said. But they veered eastward Friday and began drifting south again.

The vessels are 165 feet long. A Navy spokesman at Western Sea Frontier Headquarters in San Francisco said there is no pattern to the trawlers' movements but added, "You can certainly draw some fairly good conclusions from where they've been off the Southern California coast."

Much of the time during the past weeks they've drifted in areas where the Navy conducts weapons tests. They've been kept under "random air surveillance," the Navy said.

The vessels were first spotted Aug. 1 off Washington.

The Navy said the trawlers are similar to those that have appeared off Cape Canaveral, Fla., in the Atlantic missile range. The Atlantic ships were heavily equipped with electronic gear, according to the Navy.

A Suggestion To SUI Department Heads:

What kind of a welcome are you planning for the many students who will be entering your department for the first time this fall?

Do your present plans call for use of the old standbys — a coffee hour, a letter, a brief orientation, a pamphlet or two, a personal meeting?

Any one of these methods has its merit. But let us tell you of another way of making your new students more at home . . . a way of creating good-will that will be even more lasting.

The "way" is simple: Just hand them a copy of the 1963 University Edition, or have a dozen or so on hand for them to just glance over.

Several departments are doing it . . . why don't you? Just call us.

Caliber back to usual standards—

End outlook is optimistic

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of five stories about Iowa football candidates by position. Centers and guards will be covered in the next one.

Caliber of Iowa end candidates is back up to the usual Hawkeye standards, competition between sharp sophomores and proven veterans will produce superior play — and Henry (Whitey) Piro, end coach, is a happy and hopeful man.

The 1962 season was regarded by Coach Piro as a "make do with what we have left" period, following loss of two veterans and slow recovery from injury by a senior. At that, the end play at least was acceptable and brought about the speedy development of two sophomores.

WHEN PRACTICE opens Sept. 2, twelve players will form the end group. Four are lettermen, one is a senior with some experience and the others are sophomores of fine potential.

Ranked No. 1 at right end now — and possibly the wingman with the best chance for stardom — is Tony Giacobazzi, 201-pound junior from Farmington, Mich. He started six games last fall and seemed to improve in each.

"Tony should be a leader. He had long playing time as a sophomore. A hard worker, very coachable and equally good on defense and offense, he can do a fine job for us," said Coach Piro.

JUST BEHIND HIM is Louis Williams, Jr., a 180-pound fireball from East St. Louis, Ill., junior letterman. Williams is especially valuable on defense — actually he caught no passes in 1962 — but the quarterback probably will throw to him this fall.

The other lettermen, Cloyd Webb and Bill Niedbala, are left ends. Webb, from East St. Louis, Ill., is 203 pounds and 6-5, and at times he is an outstanding player.

After leading Iowa receivers in 1961 with 25 catches for 425 yards and 4 touchdowns, Webb started off well in 1962. He was kicked as mid-west lineman of the week after the opening game. But he was injured in the second game and his play was affected the remainder of the season. However, he caught 12 passes for 179 yards and two scores.

Coaches hope he can regain sharpness and in his last season show his true worth but he must make up lost ground and must go all out to move ahead of two sophomores. Webb, holder of the Iowa record for the discus throw, has missed spring practices.

NIEDBALA, Beaver Falls, Pa. senior of 184 pounds, has lettered as a reserve. Held back somewhat by injuries, Niedbala now can be a big help, for he is a rugged and well-coordinated all-around athlete. He won a baseball letter as a third baseman.

Coach Piro is proud of his sophomore group because all have size, fair speed and other physical assets. There are seven men of fine potential, each of whom has the ability to play a tight end, split end or flanker.

"Actually, it is hard to choose among them. From the group we hope to get three or four men who will push the veterans and this competition will result in improved end play over that of 1962," Piro said.

ALVIN RANDOLPH, East St. Louis, Ill., 175 pounder, holds the pre-practice rating of No. 1 left end but the margin is slight over Ivory McDowell from St. Louis, Mo., a 6-4 185 pounder who has a mile relay 44 time of :48.

Ranking as No. 2 among the right ends is Clifford Wilder, 205 and 6-3 from Sioux City (Central). Dave Long, 210 and 6-3 from Cedar Rapids (Jefferson), is another strong right end of considerable ability.

Bill Briggs, Westwood, N. J., 210 and 6-3, can make any of them hustle and Karl Noonan, 180 and 6-2 from Davenport (Assumption), has ability as a flanker. Others are Jay Fashinpaup, Cedar Rapids (Washington), 188 and 6-2 and Senior Roger Wehrle, Mt. Pleasant, 189 and 6-2, who can help as a pass-receiver after being a non-letterman for two seasons.

79 griders invited to open drills Sept. 3

The official call is out for 79 football players to report for fall practice at the University of Iowa, Coach Jerry Burns said Thursday.

The men have been asked to report Sunday, Sept. 1 for a squad meeting, with physical examinations scheduled for the following morning. On Monday afternoon, the first two-day practice session will be held. Most of Tuesday, Sept. 3 will be devoted to the annual press-radio-television activities.

New course to open

A new nine-hole golf course with sand greens will be opened in Iowa City next spring.

The new course, called Hi Point, will be located on a 42-acre plot on old Highway 1 two miles east of the city. It will be just south of Interstate 80.

The course will 2,790 yards in length with a par of 36. There will be no water hazards and only a few directional sand traps. Trees are to be planted on the course this fall.

There are two par 5 holes, two par 3 holes and five par 4 holes. Green fees will be $1 for weekdays and $1.50 for week ends and holidays. Season tickets will be priced at $30 for single memberships, $35 for man and wife and $40 for families.

The greens and elevated tees have already been completed. Construction of the clubhouse and parking facilities is now underway. There will also be a lighted practice putting and chipping green, which will be free.

The course is being financed through private funds.

Cassius asks: Do I get the $150,000 if I win in one?

—LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — "That's why I am the greatest — they've got to offer me $150,000 to carry a guy," said Cassius Clay Friday of an offer of $10,000 for each round he stays with Cleveland Williams.

"That's what it must be," said the No. 1 heavyweight contender, "Cause I haven't read anything yet where they'll give me the $150,000 if I knock out Williams in the first round. What happens if I KO him in the first? Do I get the $150,000?"

Hugh Benbow and Bud Adams, co-managers of Williams, recently offered Clay $10,000 to sign for the bout, $10,000 at the weigh-in, 10,000 when Clay gets in the ring and $10,000 for every round he lasts in a scheduled 15-rounder.

Clay leaves next week for his Miami training camp to begin preparation for his next fight.

"I don't have a fight signed yet, but I want to get back to work so I don't get too heavy," Clay said.

Liston promises fight; just hits bag

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A crowd of 18,000 paid $1.40 apiece for the honor of witnessing the European debut of world heavyweight boxing champion, Sonny Liston Friday night, but instead of pulverizing sparmates as promised, all the champ did was punch a sandbag, skip rope and fight his own shadow.

The crowd, short of the record 20,000 that greeted Floyd Patterson a few years ago, was lured by promises of the champ doing battle.

Sonny's bodyguard of tight-lipped spokesmen, who hardly let anyone near him, declared that the champ was delighted with his reception and the way his troupe was treated in Sweden.

The champion now goes on to Mysen, Norway, for the second of his European performances, to be followed, if the crowds hold out, by 15 more.

Four runs in first let Cardinals win

Houston (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals took advantage of a wild throw, pushed across four first-inning runs and held on to whip the Houston Colts 4-1 Friday night behind the five-hit pitching of Bob Gibson.

Pepitone continues streak—

Yankees stop White Sox

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Pepitone kept up his hot hitting Friday night, pacing New York to a 7-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox that boosted the Yankees' American League lead to 11 games.

Pepitone led off the fifth inning with a single for the first hit off knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm, singled in the tie-breaking run in the sixth, and drove in two more runs with a single in the seventh. The Yankee first baseman has collected 13 hits in the last six games.

The White Sox drew even 2-2 in the sixth, but Bobby Richardson's double and steal of third and Pepitone's second single put New York ahead to stay. The Yanks made it a runaway with four runs in the seventh against Jim Brosnan, with Pepitone's two-run single capping the inning.

Pott leads golf classic

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Johnny Pott, a lanky 27-year-old, shot his second sub-par round Friday to take the 36-hole lead in the $50,000 American Golf Classic at the Firestone Country Club.

Pott tacked a 32-36-68 to his opening round 67 for a two-round total of 135. This put him five under par in the 72-hole tournament and gave him a three-stroke lead over Bobby Nichols.

NICHOLS opened with a 71 Thursday and fired a 33-34-67 to move into the runnerup spot despite a double bogey 6 on the 41st yard No. 14.

Pott sank birdie putts of 60 feet on the fourth hole and 55 feet on the fifth, bagging three birdies the first five holes. He rattled off 10 pars in a row before getting his only bogey on the round, a 6 on the 62nd yard No. 16. Pott's second round included 28 putts with 11 on the first nine holes. This helped him break out of an opening-day lead which was shared with U.S. Open champion Julius Boros and Miller Barber.

BARBER SHOT one of the tournament's most erratic rounds Friday. He had three birdies and three bogeys on the first six holes before finishing with a 36-36-72 for a 139 total for the two rounds.

Boros, playing sluggish golf in collecting six bogeys, had to birdie the last two holes to come in with a 37-36-73 for a 140.

Australian Bruce Crampton and Dave Hill were the only other players to reach the half-way point under par. Crampton had a 38-32-70 for 139 and Hill added a 36-34-70 to his first round 69 for 139.

JACK NICKLAUS and Arnold Palmer again failed to break through. For the second successive day Nicklaus, the masters and PGA champion, saw a double bogey hold him down to even par.

This gave Nicklaus 34-36-70 for 140 and put him in a tie with Dave Marr, 69-71, Gay Brewer Jr., 69-71, and Boros.

Palmer had a 71 and a 141 total, six strokes behind the leader.

THE LEADERS

Johnny Pott	67-68-135
Bob Nichols	61-67-138
Miller Barber	67-72-139
Bruce Crampton	69-71-139
Dave Hill	69-70-139

Jack Nicklaus	70-70-140
Julius Boros	67-73-140
Gay Brewer Jr.	69-71-140
Arnold Palmer	70-71-141

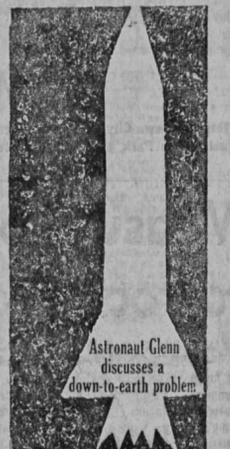

Cubs snap three game losing string

CHICAGO (AP) — Outfielder Billy Williams knocked in five runs with a pair of homers and sacrifice fly Friday, narrowly missing a third home run as the Chicago Cubs defeated the New York Mets 6-5 to snap a three-game losing streak.

Williams hit his first home run off starter Tracy Stallard in the third inning with Ron Santo on base. Santo had doubled home Ellis Burton to offset a 1-0 Met lead created by Ron Hunt's first inning homer.

Williams' second homer, his 21st of the season, came in the fifth inning. It followed a single by Santo and snapped a 3-3 tie. The Mets had pulled even in the top of the fifth on Duke Carmel's homer.

New York ... 100 111 001 — 5 8 2 Chicago ... 003 020 10x — 6 8 1 Stallard, Bearnath (3), Jackson (7), Craig (8) and Gonder; Toth, Hobbie (6), McDaniel (9) and Berteli. W — Toth (5-4). L — Bearnath (2-4). Home runs — New York, Hunt (8), Carmel (3). Chicago, Williams, 2 (21).

Astronaut Glenn discusses a down-to-earth problem

Colonel Glenn has stated that the success of his orbital flight depended as much on his physical and mental fitness as it did on modern technology. Consequently, he has made this appeal: "I call on all parents to urge school officials to provide programs of physical education that stress vigorous activity." Is your child's school doing what Colonel Glenn recommends? Many of our schools aren't. As a result, about one-third of our youngsters can't pass minimum physical achievement tests. Make sure that the school your youngster attends has an adequate fitness program. Talk to your school officials. If you would like more information, write to The President's Council on Physical Fitness, Washington 25, D.C.
