

Alabama Schools Integrate under Federal Pressure

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Twenty Negro children entered white schools in three Alabama cities Tuesday in a historic move that came only after another showdown between President Kennedy and Gov. George C. Wallace.

Kennedy put the 17,000 Alabama National Guardsmen into federal service, thereby removing them from the control of Wallace, who had ordered some units on active duty a few hours earlier.

AND THEN the 20 Negroes came into the schools, with no agents of Wallace to stop them. Federal court orders had kept state troopers away and Kennedy's orders had kept Guardsmen from replacing troopers at the schools.

The Negro pupils quickly ran into a variety of receptions. Hundreds of pupils stayed away from classes at West End High School in Birmingham to gather outside and jeer two Negro girls who entered the school. "Niggers, go home," they shouted.

Adult spectators gathered. Scuffles broke out. Confederate flags flew. Hooting and jeering continued. Finally reinforced police moved the crowd back two blocks, punching with nightstick butts.

Nine white men were arrested at West End, most of them for refusing to move when police told them to get back. One of those taken to jail was identified as Bernie M. Carmack Jr., who listed himself as a member of the militant pro-segregation National States Rights party.

CARMACK also was arrested during a demonstration at another Birmingham school last Wednesday, the day the Negroes were first scheduled to enter white schools.

At Tuskegee, a city where Negroes far outnumber the whites, 13 Negroes entered school with white pupils without incident.

The reception was orderly — but not necessarily friendly — at Mobile and at two other Birmingham schools, Ramsay High and Graymont Elementary. Three arrests were made by stern Mobile police.

And four Negro pupils went to classes with white children at Huntsville for the second straight day.

Desegregation spread into Birmingham, Mobile and Tuskegee after a week of confusion and legal maneuvering. There was even bloodshed and death in Birmingham.

It all came to a climax Tuesday morning.

Before dawn, Wallace had ordered his state troopers to return to their home stations. His commander, Col. Albert J. Lingo, had been served with a restraining order signed by the five U.S. District Court judges in Alabama ordering Wallace and all his agents to stop interfering with court-ordered school integration.

Instead, Wallace called up state Guardsmen to replace troopers at doors of the schools to be integrated.

Meantime, he himself successfully avoided being served with the restraining order. He had troopers and Guardsmen chase three marshals away from the Capitol steps after 1 a.m., so that he could leave the building.

Only hours before, the President had issued a statement saying the laws would be enforced. He and Wallace engaged in an exchange of public statements.

Dawn came with Guardsmen rolling to their stations.

Then came the word from Washington. Kennedy had issued a proclamation ordering Wallace to cease and desist from obstructing justice by barring desegregation of schools.

The President then ordered Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to put the Alabama National Guard into federal service.

A few Guardsmen had showed up at a couple of schools, but they quickly moved away. As federal troops, they now were no longer agents of Wallace.

School time arrived, and the Negro pupils went in. So did white pupils, in diminished numbers at Birmingham and Tuskegee. Attendance at Mobile was near normal.

At West End, one Negro girl entered a classroom and sat down to the laughter and taunts of white pupils. Police said less than 100 of the 1,500 pupils attended classes.

At Graymont, an 11-year-old Negro boy sat on the front row of his class, no white children near. Only about 10 children were in the class.

But at Tuskegee, where Negroes outnumber whites 4-1 and where some officials reacted angrily to Wallace's school actions, 13 Negro students kept each other company during recess, staying in a group.

As the crowd at West End began to disperse and the integrated classes remained in operation, U.S. Marshal Don Forest of Miami arrived at Wallace's office, waited half an hour and then served the restraining order on the governor's executive secretary, Earl C. Morgan.

Wallace said he was too busy to receive it. By that time, the matter was almost academic. The temporary restraining order prevents him from interfering with integration for a maximum of 20 days.

Later, Wallace issued a public statement accusing the President of laying the groundwork for jailing him by federalizing the National Guard.

He asked: "Is this being done because it has been announced that I might participate in some of the presidential primaries?"

"WHEN WE get around to jailing political opponents, we will have taken another long step toward a military dictatorship."

Wallace said, "The Kennedys have now taken personal command of their Alabama garrison."

IN OTHER racial developments Tuesday:

Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus, who has had previous experiences with the Federal Government over school integration, said in Little Rock that Presidential Kennedy violated the law by federalizing the Alabama National Guard.

An exclusive girls school at Columbia, Mo., Stephens College, announced it has enrolled three Negroes for the first time in more than a century of existence.

An integrated county grand jury at Gadsden, Ala., has begun investigation of the April 23 slaying of a Baltimore civil rights crusader, William L. Moore. Moore was killed near Atlanta while walking to Jackson, Miss., to discuss integration with Gov. Ross Barnett.

The University of South Carolina is to be integrated today when two Negroes sign up for the fall term.

The Kansas City, Mo., City Council has given tentative approval to a proposed public accommodations ordinance that would desegregate most business establishments serving the public.

Rusk Tells Legion Big Consequences Of Test Ban Pact

Outlines Nine Areas where U.S. Seeks Understandings with Russia

See other story on this page

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Tuesday rejection of the limited nuclear test ban treaty would have "extremely grave" consequences upon the U.S. world position and prospects for peace.

Rusk also outlined nine areas in which the United States is prepared to seek understandings with the Soviet Union, including disarmament.

Rusk spoke in remarks prepared for the American Legion Convention while the U.S. Senate continued debate on whether to ratify the pact, negotiated by the United States, Britain and Soviet Union.

It bans all except underground atomic tests.

The U.S. foreign affairs chief voiced confidence America's overwhelming superiority in nuclear weapons could deter a Russian attack.

So now is the time to restrict further testing, he said, adding: "We must consider also the consequences of a rejection of the treaty. In my judgment they would be extremely grave, both for our position in the world and for the prospects for peace."

"The possibility of exercising any control over armaments would vanish. The possibility of settling dangerous political problems would be reduced."

A U.S. turnout, he said, would add weight to Red China's contention that peaceful coexistence with the West is impossible.

This would cost America the confidence of many nations, Rusk said, would poison the atmosphere with more nuclear tests, intensify the arms race, increase tension and enhance prospects of war.

Rusk expressed hope it will be possible to reach agreements with the Soviets providing for:

- Safeguards against war by accident, miscalculation or surprise attack.
- A slowdown of arms production and reductions in arms levels, accompanied by inspection.
- Easing the crisis potential of Berlin and other cold war friction points.
- Strengthening the peacemaking power of the United Nations.
- A freer flow of both information and peoples between the Soviet Union, and the Eastern European countries generally, and the United States.
- Expansion of existing exchange agreements.

Lucas First Iowa County To Vote Dry

CHARITON (AP) — Lucas County apparently became the first in the state to go dry under the reverse local option provision of Iowa's liquor by the drink law.

In a special election Tuesday, unofficial returns from all 15 precincts in the county showed 1,370 against liquor by the drink and 1,179 in favor of it.

Under the Iowa law a county is considered to be wet until its citizens vote it dry. Local option elections may be held only every four years.

Two liquor licenses already have been issued in Lucas County. They are held by the Country Club outside Chariton's city limits and the Eagles Club inside the city.

These two licenses will remain in effect for three years in spite of the election.

Both legislators from the Lucas County area voted against the liquor by the drink bill in the last legislature. They are Sen. Howard Vincent (R-Vincent) and Rep. Marion Siglin (R-Lucas).

It was the fifth "reverse local option" election under Iowa's new liquor by the drink law. The "wets" have won all four previous ones, in Boone, Story, Washington and Van Buren counties.

The question on the ballot was, "Shall the retail sale of alcoholic beverages exceeding four per cent by weight by the drink be prohibited in Lucas County?"

A "yes" vote was against permitting sale of liquor by the drink, and a "no" vote for it.

New York Train Wreck Injures 35

HUDSON, N.Y. (AP) — The crash of a New York Central Railroad passenger train Tuesday night into a halted work train near here hurled five cars and the two-unit diesel locomotive off the rails.

Thirty-five persons were reported injured, none seriously.

A spokesman at Columbia County Hospital said all but five of 24 persons brought there were released after treatment. A railroad spokesman said 11 other persons were treated at the scene.

Key Committee Votes Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's $11-billion tax cut bill was approved by the House Ways and Means Committee Tuesday, completing the first leg of a perilous journey in Congress.

Kennedy urged the legislators, many of whom doubt the bill can be enacted into law this year, not to tempt fate by delaying the measure, which he described as anti-recession insurance.

Speaking to a national conference of the Business Committee for Tax Reduction in 1963, Kennedy said the present period of good business has run about as long as the average for recent years.

Without predicting a recession, he said, "I do know that the prompt enactment of this bill, making certain both immediate and prospective tax reductions, will improve business conditions" and "make the most of the anti-recession thrust."

The administration counts heavily on pumping more spendable income quickly into the economy by reducing income tax withholdings on Jan. 1. This can be done only if House and Senate agree on a tax cut bill before that date. If they let this year go by without acting, the Treasury has said no bigger pay envelopes can be expected before April at the earliest.

Treasury estimates indicate most wage-earning, tax-paying families might ultimately get some $2 to $4 a week more take-home pay from the tax reduction. Under administration plans, two-thirds of the cut would go into effect Jan. 1, 1964, the rest a year later.

BEFORE APPROVING it, the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee defeated 12-11, with two members voting present, a Republican move to make the second stage of the tax cut depend on control of expenditures.

The 1965 cut would not go into effect, this motion provided, if government operations for the year ending next June 30 resulted in more than an $8-billion deficit, or if the President proposed in his next budget spending more than Under such circumstances, Kennedy said, businessmen would regard the promise of a second-stage cut as no promise at all and so would be likely to go slow on expansion.

Spending is not best controlled, he said, by erecting some arbitrary, artificial figure.

"Next year there may be new pressures to hold off. For those opposed to this bill, the time will never be right," he added.

But Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, senior Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee who made the unsuccessful motion Tuesday, said he will try again when the bill reaches the House floor.

Diem's Brother, Pope Cancel Talk

VATICAN CITY — A private audience Pope Paul VI had been scheduled to give to the archbishop brother of President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Viet Nam was called off Tuesday.

The archbishop, the Most Rev. Pierre Martin Ngo Dinh Thuc, failed to appear for the audience at the summer papal residence of Castel Gandolfo, near Rome, and Vatican sources said the meeting was canceled.

There was no official announcement of the change or formal explanation. But the sources pointed out the Pope is deeply disturbed by the continuing strife between Vietnamese Buddhists and the government of Diem, a Roman Catholic.

All Married Men Exempt from Draft

Hughes Blasts Shaff Plan On Tax Point

COUNCIL BLUFFS (AP) — Gov. Harold Hughes said Tuesday night that passage of the Shaff Plan for reapportionment in a special election Dec. 3 would end all hope for property tax relief in Iowa.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a Pottawottamie County Democratic dinner, Hughes said:

"My biggest objection to this plan for reapportionment is that it will deadlock the Iowa Legislature at a time when Iowa needs a legislature that can get things done — in the form of programs that will expand her economy and strengthen Iowa agriculture."

Passage of a tax program to ease the burden of property taxes and "keep the family-sized farm in business, attract industry to Iowa and encourage home ownership" depends on a legislature which has rural-urban cooperation and understanding, Hughes said.

"The Shaff Plan will drive a wedge between rural and urban legislators by setting up an urban Senate and a rural House separated by a rotunda and destined to avoid engaging in the meaningful give-and-take that leads to compromise and to legislation that is acceptable to all and harmful to none," Hughes said.

Father Soens 'Rights' Head

Iowa City's newly established Committee on Human Relations selected The Rev. Lawrence D. Soens, principal of Regina High School as its chairman Monday night. He announced that discrimination in housing will be among the first studies conducted by the group.

Father Soens, who will serve a one-year term on the committee, said that housing had been selected for study due to the nearness of the opening of the fall term at SU.

The Commission, according to Father Soens, is planning an extensive survey of Iowa City landlords to determine how many are willing to rent to students regardless of race, creed or national origin.

Father Soens said it is not the commission's intent to interfere with normal renting procedures, and added that the questionnaire "has nothing to do with refusal to rent for any legitimate reasons."

The length of time the commission will spend on the housing problem cannot be determined at this time, Father Soens said, adding that the length of the study will depend on the situation itself. Father Soens pointed out that the committee will work in other areas than housing — concentrating on all matters of human relations within the community.

The committee will hold its next meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. Future meetings will be held monthly on first Thursdays.

Five Iowans Saved From Army Draft

DES MOINES (AP) — Five young married men, who thought they had "one foot in the Army," learned in the midst of their medical examinations Tuesday that they aren't drafted after all.

They were among hundreds of young Iowans given a reprieve from the Army draft when President Kennedy issued an executive order, effective Tuesday, putting married men in a lower draft category.

The five are Ronald Brunk, 23, of Centerville; Rolland Engbreton, 23, of Thornton; Alex Egorenko, 24, of Cresco; Marvin Schiller, Grund Center; and John Slouse, 23, of Albia.

Egorenko said he had been thinking about joining the Army anyway, and would call his wife to discuss with her the possibility of his volunteering.

THE OTHER four said they are going back home, and called their wives to tell the good news.

Col. Glenn Bowles, state selective service director, said Iowa has been calling an average of about 150 men a month, with about 35 per cent married.

He said he has instructed local draft boards not to send draft notices to any more married men. He said married men who already have received draft notices will not be inducted into the Army.

Pastore Raps Iowa's Miller During A-Ban Treaty Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John O. Pastore (D-R.I.) told the Senate Tuesday that if opponents of the limited nuclear test ban pact "have the votes to destroy this treaty, then God help the United States."

Pastore, chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, declared:

"If anyone in this room thinks that John F. Kennedy is selling out to the enemy then he should vote against this treaty."

Pastore took sharp issue with Sen. Jack Miller (R-Iowa) breaking the somewhat leisurely pace of the second day of debate on ratification of the pact.

Miller replied that partisan politics are not involved in the debate. He said supporters of the treaty to ban all except underground nuclear testing have no monopoly "on patriotism, the desire for world peace, nor integrity."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) whose speech was interrupted for the exchange, agreed with Miller. He noted that Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois was supporting the treaty.

The drive toward a vote on ratification, possibly next week, was slowed a bit by a roadblock — seemingly not a serious one — thrown up by Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, an opponent of the treaty.

SENATE Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Dirksen had asked unanimous consent that the treaty be considered as having passed the various parliamentary stages to bring up the resolution of ratification. This would bar offering amendments to the treaty itself but would permit reservations to be offered to the resolution of ratification.

Russell objected that too many senators were absent and although he had no reservations to offer he wanted other senators to hear the motion. Mansfield agreed to renew the request today.

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) plans to offer a reservation to post-

JFK's Order Puts Burden On Single Men

Decree Affects Some 340,000 Men With Wives, No Children

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy stopped the drafting of childless married men Tuesday. About 340,000 young men were freed of draft status immediately.

Married men with children have not been inducted into the military services since 1956. Selective Service officials said.

An order signed by Kennedy stipulates that married men may not be drafted while there are single men available between the ages of 19 and 26. But those who claim exemption as husbands must "have a wife with whom they maintain bona fide family relationship in their homes."

This will mean, among other things, that more single men younger than the present 23-year average will be tapped, the White House said.

The President's order was effective immediately.

Selective Service authorities said draft officials had been told to release married men due to be inducted Tuesday.

A service spokesman told a reporter the pool of single men classified I-A, and thus eligible to be drafted, is entirely adequate for foreseeable needs.

For some years now, draft quotas have been low. Through this month Selective Service will have summoned only 72,000 during 1963. All are ticketed for the Army. The other services have not resorted to the draft for some time.

National draft headquarters said there are 1.7 million men in the 19-26 age bracket and classified I-A. This pool is expected to grow.

LT. GEN. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service chief, told reporters after a conference with Kennedy that about one out of every five men in the I-A group is married and has no children.

Hershey's aide said surveys indicate about 340,000 fall into this childless married group.

It was noted that about half the inductees failed to pass preinduction physical or mental examinations.

But even at this high rate of rejection, officials said, the pool of available men is big enough to fill anticipated needs.

If there were a national emergency requiring a sharp boost in draft quotas, they said, married men then might be vulnerable.

Kennedy's order, signed in a White House ceremony, provides that draft calls will go first to older single men in the 19-26 bracket.

However, young men who marry after receiving induction notices merely to escape the draft might find themselves in the Army. Selective Service officials said local boards could consider all the circumstances and grant deferments or order inductions as they see fit.

Set Airline Strike Oct. 10

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — United Air Lines said Tuesday night it understood that the International Association of Machinists (IAM) had set a strike date of Oct. 10 for walkouts against United, Trans-World, Eastern, National, Northwest, Continental and Braniff Airlines.

The spokesman, who declined to be identified, made the statement shortly after the president of District 141 of the IAM, representing 13,000 United employees, had confirmed the IAM would strike against United on Oct. 10.

J. L. Reeves, president of District 141, said notices announcing the strike were going up all around United's 38-station system.

Asked if the Oct. 10 date could be a possible one for a general industry-wide walkout, Reeves said, "It's possible."

Regents should follow Governor's advice

GOV. HAROLD HUGHES has recommended that the Board of Regents discontinue its policy of allowing state legislators and other state personnel other than the University family to receive discretionary medical discounts at University Hospital.

The policy came to light last spring when The Des Moines Register published a story explaining the policy and relating that a number of legislators had taken advantage of the policy.

At that time, Gov. Hughes asked the Regents and President Hancher to report on the policy. Both Hancher and the Regents defended the policy which states that elected and appointed state officials and certain persons "whose particular area of service or support to University Hospitals indicated the desirability of discounts" should have their bills reduced or eliminated.

After studying the policy, the Governor stated that he was satisfied that the policy had not been willfully abused by anyone concerned. He said he thought that persons who are financially able to pay should do so and he recommended that the Regents consider dropping the policy.

Gov. Hughes' statement indicated that he had thoroughly studied the policy and the implications. He has come out with a sound judgment.

Some may wonder why the policy should be discontinued when there is no evidence that the policy has been abused and when the treatment was administered when doctors and staff members at the hospitals have not been busy with normal patients at the hospitals.

The main reason seems to be the danger of abuse. A policy such as this could very easily be abused by unscrupulous legislators or University personnel. There is a possibility that the policy could become a "I'll help you if you help me" relationship.

Another reason of somewhat lesser importance is that the policy was not well known among state officials. One veteran state legislator — with over 30 years of service in the Legislature — told this reporter that he had not known of the existence of the policy until early last spring.

It follows that many other legislators did not know of the policy. It seems that for the policy to work in an honest fashion, that all state officials should have been notified of the discount service so that they could have received treatment.

However, it is a credit to University personnel and state officials that the policy has never been abused. But the danger of abuse is there as long as the policy is in effect.

Therefore, it seems advisable for the Regents to do away with the policy entirely.

DM election is encouraging

THE VOTERS OF Des Moines decided to retain the Council-Manager form of government in a city election Monday.

The results of the election is encouraging to many in Iowa who have seen the Council-Manager form attacked continuously by discontents. The form of government in Des Moines has not been readily accepted. Only a few years ago, the city had an election on a proposed change to the alderman form of government.

Defeating the proposal to change to the commission form of government kept Des Moines on the road to progressive government. The commission form of government has been known as the breeding ground of corruption and graft due mainly to unscrupulous officials who seem to always gain positions of influence. Approval would have been a backward step.

The Des Moines election coupled with the Council Manager victory in Sioux City last week tends to indicate that city residents feel the manager form is doing the best possible job of governing.

It would be advantageous for Iowa City opponents of the manager form of government to look at the two election results. Possibly they will find that the Council-Manager form is not as bad as they may think.

School of athletics needed

By JAMES W. BIBB
Of The National Observer

American colleges and universities have shown a schizophrenic outlook in analyzing the role of the athletic program.

The typical university devotes a sizeable percentage of its building space, scholarships and teaching personnel to furthering its athletic program. Coaches typically are the highest paid professors.

Yet, with this emphasis on intercollegiate sports, universities attempt to preserve the myth that this activity is only an interesting sidelight of academic life and not a part of the mainstream of college activity. Of course, very few enlightened people really believe the myth. And control of these sports maintained in the hands of professors of schools of the university are completely unqualified to exercise the control they hold. Students must enroll in an accepted course leading to a degree (of course, another set of professors is assigned to make sure that these students stay eligible), recruiting occupies a major time of the coaching staff but no student can be brought to the campus to try out, scholarships are offered but the number and amounts are carefully limited (at least openly).

THE CAUSE OF THIS strange situation is the universities' lack and adequate theory or rationalization for maintaining the programs that are so important to them. The reason is that they have failed to recognize that during these changing times, professional athletics (not just coaching) has become a recognized and honored profession — a profession that in general requires a college education to enter.

As much space is devoted in the daily papers to reporting the games and events of the world of professional athletics as to the United Nations. Sports events take up a large block of our television and radio time; and while the quality of their education to prepare them for this profession could be improved, these athletes have mostly enjoyed at least four years of college education to prepare them for their profession.

CERTAINLY THE INCOME of the professional athlete is high — probably much higher than for the graduates of most professional schools in our colleges.

We fail to recognize professional athletics as one of the major industries in our country and to realize the contribution it makes to other industries — transportation, hotels, automobiles. Nor do we realize that many taxes are collected as a result of this industry. Incidental benefits are contribution of the profession to the mental health of our nation and to our patriotism. Where else but at sporting events do we raise the flag and sing our national anthem?

The professional athlete is a citizen of our country to whom we look with respect and even awe.

The goals of the American universities have changed and so have our measures of success in a university. Certain it is that one of the major goals of the university is preparing the student to pursue his vocation. Eight of the ten schools in one state university are devoted to preparation of the student for his chosen profession: the schools of business, education, engineering and architecture, fine arts, journalism, law, medicine and pharmacy. And within the other schools (Liberal Arts and Graduate School) many of the students, if not most, are being prepared for a specific vocation.

YET NO UNIVERSITY has looked at itself, analyzed its position and said honestly and openly: We are going to establish a school of professional athletics, a school that will occupy the same status as the other professional schools.

The university that has the foresight and the courage to give a new perspective to one of the most important aspects of the life in the Twentieth Century will be acting in the best traditions of the past.

How often do we read that the star halfback or the star center will no longer be available because of "academic difficulties"? At present, everyone will insist that a person preparing for a career as a professional athlete should take all of his work in some other school and that, in addition, he should go through the fiction of preparing for some other profession.

Of course, there will be some who will flunk out of a professional school of athletics just as there will be those flunking out of any other school. But does a school flunk out its star students? Not so, the star student is held up as an example to the other students.

CURRICULUM IN SUCH a professional school could be designed in the same manner of curricula in other professional schools, to best equip the student for his chosen career. We can easily visualize the importance of such courses as "free-throw shooting," "split-T blocking," "signal calling," and dozens of others just as one American university prepares the future actor with courses in Acting I, the stage, make-up, costume for the stage and stage direction. Are those courses that would be offered in a school of professional athletics so different from majoring in ceramics (leading to a degree of bachelor of fine arts) where the student can take such courses as ceramics I, II, III, and IV, nature and museum study I, II, III, and IV, jewelry I and II, weaving, and other specialized professional courses?

Another immediate advantage realized from abolishing the myths and fables is that there would no longer be any reason to restrict either the number or those amount of scholarships available to those professional schools. Prospective students would be brought to the campus for entrance examinations.

One has only to accept the fact that professional athletics as a profession is clearly the main purpose of an education and the chains of silly restrictions on this discriminated against group are broken forever.

HAVE YOU EVER thought of all the boys who almost made the grade as athletes but lacked just a little more experience? Coaches refer to some and say: "He's just now catching on, in a year or two more he'd make a great professional player." Why should these youngsters be deprived of their professional opportunity? Our school for professional athletics solves the problem easily, for such a school would, of course, offer the master's degree at least.

One headache would be taken from the overworked, tired university head. He would no longer have to hide the expenditures made on the athletic program.

Some may argue that the establishment of such a school might deprive students in other schools from participating in intercollegiate athletics. Not so, the student in the school of business, while not encouraged to take courses in philosophy or student could carry elective courses in our new professional school.

With the universities and colleges leading the way, may we not look forward to the development of new techniques, new formations, and even new professional sports in this country? In England, Rugby enjoys a place equal to our major sports in this country. Might not the universities, freed from the restrictions of the present day and able to channel the enthusiasms of their alumni for the first time freely, develop this as an additional major inter-college sports?

THINK FOR a moment of the opportunities for research on a formal basis into such things as sports car racing and bowling. Such research would go a long way towards solving the leisure time problems arising from a shortening work week and contribute to the mental health of our citizens.

The contribution that would be made to our present national sport — baseball — would be immeasurable. Unlike football and basketball, the colleges and universities have never developed as the main training ground for this sport. With the ability to enter contracts with young men and give them at the same time scholarships to attend one of the universities or colleges, the farm club problem would be overcome.

The damage to our international image from our inability in the last two Olympic games to defeat the Russians should be a matter of national concern. Everyone seems concerned, but no one does anything to change the self-defeating restrictions imposed on the American athlete. Our professional school can be used to overcome this deficiency.

We already have our programs for the intellectually talented, the musically talented and the artistically talented. What is proposed is a program for the proper recognition and solution of the problems of dealing with the physically talented university students.

The Ralph McGill column—

Old memory and a king

By RALPH MCGILL

A two-column head in the paper said that ex-Queen Alexandra of Yugoslavia had taken an overdose of barbiturate drugs, commonly called sleeping pills. (She recovered.) Memory went back to early January, 1945, and talks with the heads of governments in exile in London, and our ambassadors to them. One day Richard C. Patterson, ambassador to King Peter and the Yugoslav government in England, was discovered in a towering rage induced by frustration. "The king," he said, "has made a request to us for some powdered orange juice. The Queen is pregnant and the doctor has recommended that she take orange juice. We have tons of it for the troops. We have cases of it for embassy use. But can the U.S. ambassador to King Peter get one lousy can of it? No! He cannot. Not one miserable can."

WHETHER the Queen ever had orange juice was never learned. A son was born. It was he, now 18, who perhaps saved his mother's life. He discovered her in an "unnatural sleep" and managed quickly to obtain hospital treatment, including the necessary blood transfusions. Lack of tinned orange juice did him no harm.

The story of King Peter of Yugoslavia is one of great courage, largely unknown and neglected. He and Alexandra met in London in 1944. She had fled the Germans in her native Greece, he in Yugoslavia. They were married in 1944. The late King George VI and the present Queen Mother Elizabeth were present for the ceremony.

The young king had ruled but briefly. But in that time he left a name coupled with courage and resolution. His father, King Alexander, had been murdered by political assassins at Marseilles in October of 1934. There is a story that when the 17-year-old son was told by Queen Marie of Romania, his grandmother, that his father was killed and that he, the boy, would soon become king, he wept, saying, "Grand-mama, I am too young to be king."

PRINCE PAUL became regent. The fall of France in June of 1945 brought Yugoslavia to the edge of ruin. The Serbs and Croats were at each other's throats. Italy was hostile. The Germans were encircling her, making deals with the Bulgars and other neighbors. Powerful elements within Yugoslavia urged a pact be signed with Hitler. In March of 1941 Regent Paul followed the then well worn path to Berchtesgaden. He committed his country to the Nazis. But there were in Yugoslavia army elements that preferred the nation not die ignobly. Prince Paul was forced to abdicate. On March 28, the young man who, a few years before, had been confronted with the news of his father's murder and the tremendous duty soon to be his, took the oath as king. He had escaped the plotters by climbing, at night, down a drainpipe at the palace. The streets of Belgrade knew a brief period of excitement and resolution. The Serbs chanted, "Rather war than the pact; rather death than slavery."

ADOLPH HITLER went into one of his impassioned rages. The minutes of his decision to "destroy Yugoslavia militarily and as a national unit" were found in the captured archives and made a part of the Nuremberg Trials. The fuhrer declared it was necessary that the blow against Yugoslavia be carried out "with unmerciful harshness." He wished to have revenge and to intimidate any who might waver. "Yugoslavia must be annihilated," ordered Hitler.

On Friday morning, April 6, 1941, German bombers appeared over Belgrade. They flew in relays from airfields in Romania. For three days, from rooftop height, they blasted the defenseless city mercilessly and with cruel thoroughness. When silence fell on April 12, 17,000 citizens of Belgrade lay dead in the streets or under the debris.

There was a bizarre detail. Many animals in the famous zoological gardens were killed. But some of the living, dazed and shocked, wandered through the smoke and fire of the destroyed city. Bears moved solemnly down rubble-strewn streets. A wounded stork limped past the flaming main hotel.

The German army moved. On April 13 its forward elements were in Belgrade. On April 17 the battered armies surrendered. King Peter was flown out in a British flying boat. The party fell into Italian hands. Later they were released to London.

Now, in 1963, a bit of grief in the news recalls the young king and his brief but gallant day in history.

Khrushchev has apparently hit Peking right where it hurts

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev, with his charge that Red China would sacrifice half of mankind in a nuclear war to achieve Communist victory, apparently has hit Peking where it hurts.

The Chinese theoretical organ Red Flag Monday called this kind of talk "spittle" picked up from the United States.

Chinese leader Mao Tze-tung does not seem to relish being cast as an enemy of mankind. In the past week his propaganda organs have devoted much space to the subject, all of it seeking to rebut Khrushchev's accusation.

Red Flag's 2,000-word article was the second Chinese comment within eight days. The first appeared in a joint article by Red Flag, and the official Peking People's Daily Sept. 1. The joint article was even more vehement.

"The main feature of the Soviet government's latest statement is its slanders that we want socialism (communism) to win by means of thermonuclear war and that we would sacrifice 300 million in order to create a greater civilization on the corpses and the ruins," it said.

The article called this "really hair-raising stuff. How shocking! The Chinese Communists are nothing but a bunch of blood-thirsty monsters, worse than Hitler, worse than any tyrants past or present, and needless to say, hundreds of times worse than the U.S. imperialists."

The Chinese identified the Soviet charges as stemming from remarks made by Mao in Moscow in 1957 and to a passage in "Long Live Leninism," written by the editorial department of Red Flag.

Mao, in his then secret speech, said that if war should break out a third of the world's population might be lost, but that "imperialism would be realized and the whole world would become Socialist." That did not mean China wanted a nuclear war, only that there was no need to be afraid if the West launched one, the article said.

"The lies told by the Soviet leaders are really too gross and fantastic," it said. "Anyone who uses his brains will ask, how can China launch a nuclear war if it does not have a single atom bomb?"

China's sensitivity to Khrushchev's accusation is not hard to understand. If the Soviet leader makes it stick, Peking's prestige in Asia is likely to nose dive.

U.S. Officials Say—

Russ, Chinese Fight Over Common Border

WASHINGTON (AP)—Communist China and the Soviet Union are moving away from their strictly theoretical arguments of a year ago into an increasingly harsh clash of national interests along their common border in central Asia, U.S. officials said Tuesday.

This appraisal was made after the latest incident between Peking and Moscow involving the expulsion of a group of Chinese who were caught trying to transport anti-Soviet publications into Russia.

But the informants said the Soviets will contend that Moscow offered to send the refugees back to Sinkiang only to have Peking reject the offer.

The Chinese Communist official organ People's Daily and the theoretical journal Red Flag combined for a joint blast at the Soviet Union on Sept. 6. They claimed that the Soviets carried out "large-scale subversive activities in the Ili region" in April and May, 1962.

Whatever the consequences of the latest incident, American analysts of Chinese-Soviet affairs are now calling the central Asian frontier between the two Communist nations an area of uncertainty.

In this connection, Soviet diplomatic sources are letting it be known that Moscow is preparing a formal rejection of Chinese charges that tens of thousands of Chinese Moslems were lured or forced into Soviet territory in 1962.

Informed sources said the Soviet

Diem Suppresses Students In Viet Nam; No Strife Seen

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The Saigon student campaign against President Ngo Dinh Diem's administration faltered Tuesday under a show of military force at high schools of the capital.

Troops occupied some schools before dawn and ringed others, quietly blocking plans for the biggest in a series of anti-Government demonstrations that Saigon University students launched Aug. 25.

There were no arrests. But the young rebels slacked off quickly after some preliminary jeering and desk banging. More than 1,000 teen-agers had been rounded up during outbreaks Saturday and Monday.

The Government, which contends Communists have infiltrated both student ranks and the Buddhists opposing Diem, presented two Vietnamese high school girls in support of that theory.

The girls — Hoang Thi Kim Ngan, 16, and Giang Thi Hong, 17 — told a news conference at the Government Information Office they have been part of a Communist Viet Cong network operating in the Saigon school system.

President Kennedy's Administration, committed to a policy of patience in South Viet Nam, summoned two high American officials from Saigon for urgent consultations in Washington.

They are John Macklin, director of the rural affairs section of the U.S. aid mission.

Mental Health Bill Passes

WASHINGTON (AP)—A $238 million federal aid program to help combat mental illness and retardation won House approval Tuesday. The House passed the authorization measure by a roll-call vote of 335-18.

The bill would authorize use of federal funds to pay part of the cost of building research centers, facilities for care of the mentally retarded, construction of community mental health centers, and other aids.

But the measure, originally asked by President Kennedy, would provide $612 million less than the $850 million the Senate had voted.

The Senate voted to authorize a five-year program of construction grants; the House bill is for three years. The Senate version also included $427 million in grants for initial staffing of community mental health centers, a relatively new concept in treatment of the mentally ill. This was cut from the House bill.

The House and Senate now will have to work out a compromise if the bill is to become law.

Son of Top Demo Official Found Dead in S.F. Bay

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A body tentatively identified as that of Hickman Price III was recovered Tuesday from a moat at the south tower of the Golden Gate Bridge. It had been in the water about a week.

A week-long search had begun Sept. 3 when the expensive sports car of the 20-year-old Stanford student was abandoned in the bridge parking lot. The Coast Guard recovered the body.

Young Price was the son of Hickman Price Jr., former assistant secretary of commerce and presently a high official in the Democratic party, and Mrs. Margaret Price, Democratic national committee vice chairman. The mother's home is Washington, D.C.

The coroner's office said it wanted to compare fingerprints before making a positive identification.

Price had been scheduled to start his junior year at Stanford, where he was a history major.

Price's father resigned from the Commerce Department last January to become head of International Products Company, of Paraguay.

To Let Bids Oct. 3 For Interstate Span

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska State Engineer John Hossack said Tuesday "all obstacles have been cleared" and bids will be let Oct. 3 on the foundation for the planned new Interstate Highway bridge across the Missouri River between Omaha and Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Departing from its usual custom, the State Department of roads made public its estimate of the cost of the bridge sub-structure project — $137,000. Usually the department withholds cost estimates on individual projects until contractors' bids are in hand.

Nazi Revival Is Sweeping Chile, But Vow No Violence

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—A Nazi revival is taking place in this South American country, complete with black-shirted youths, swastikas and anti-Jewish proclamations.

The movement, picking up the name of the defunct Chilean National Socialist Party, claims to have 6,000 card-carrying members ready to take part actively in politics again.

"We are anti-Communists and anti-Semites," says leader Franz Pfeiffer Richter, 27, a law student born in Chile of German parents.

"Our movement follows the same rules set by Hitler in Germany," he added in an interview, "but we are against violence and we will seek power by legal and constitutional ways."

Fragile-looking, thinly-mustachioed Pfeiffer presides over meetings wearing a black shirt and a swastika-marked armband. He is called commander by youngsters who follow him around in heel-clicking Prussian style.

"MOST OF OUR movement are young people, but we also have the support of many former leaders of the old National Socialist Party of Chile," says Pfeiffer.

"We are out to revive the old party, after almost 25 years of inactivity," said Pfeiffer. He said the new movement was formed a year ago but it was kept underground until now.

Although there has been no Government reaction, officials tend to dismiss the Nazi group as outmoded and unimportant.

Dodgers Stay Ahead by 3

Koufax Sets N.L. Record; Dodgers Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sandy Koufax set a National League strike-out record and Wally Moon slammed a decisive two-run homer as the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Pittsburgh 4-2 Tuesday night.

The victory kept the Dodgers' edge over second-place St. Louis at three games. The Cards whipped the Chicago Cubs 8-0.

Koufax, 23-5, a main cog in the Dodgers' pennant-gear machine bettered his own one-season strike-out record at 269 on his third strikeout of the game fanning pitcher Don Cardwell in the third inning for No. 270.

The fireballing left-hander, who set the previous mark of 1961, fanned a total of nine Pirates during the game, for a 276 total.

Moon clinched the important victory in the seventh when he followed Junior Gilliam's single with his eighth homer, into the lower right field stands. The homer gave the Dodgers a 4-0 lead.

Veteran Perry Released In NFL Teams' Final Cuts

By The Associated Press

Old Joe Perry, who has run more often and for more yardage than anyone else in National Football League history, got his walking papers Tuesday.

The 36-year-old veteran of 15 professional seasons was placed on waivers by the Baltimore Colts as the league's teams made their final mandatory cuts to 37-man rosters for this weekend's season-opening games.

Some other veterans involved in last-day maneuvering included long-time Canadian Football League quarterback Sammy Etcheverry, signed by the San Francisco 49ers; place-kicking specialist Jim Martin; traded by Detroit to Baltimore; Philadelphia Eagle

Minnesota Edges Cleveland, 5-4

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Bob Allison walloped a pair of tremendous two-run homers as Minnesota rallied from a four-run deficit and edged Cleveland, 5-4, Tuesday night, regaining second place in the American League.

The Twins retook second by a one-half game over Chicago. They trail the pennant-bound New York Yankees by 13 games.

Allison's homers were his 34th and 35th this year.

Southpaw Gerry Arrigo, recently recalled from the minors, blanked the Indians the final five innings for his first major league victory. Jerry Walker was the loser.

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (AP) — The Tuskegee High School football team voted Tuesday to disband and play no more games this season because the school admitted 13 Negro students.

The players, most of whom reportedly have been boycotting the school, said they voted by an overwhelming majority not to represent the school.

Carl Willey Pitches Mets To 4-2 Victory over Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Willey survived ninth-inning homers by Willie McCovey and Orlando Cepeda to pitch the New York Mets to a 4-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants Tuesday night. It was Willey's third victory over the Giants this season.

Willey was coasting on a four-hitter and his fifth shutout of the season when McCovey hit his 38th homer with one out in the ninth. After Willie Mays grounded out, Cepeda hit his 29th.

The Mets struck for two runs in the first inning on four straight hits off starter Billy O'Dell. Jim Hickman singled the first run across and Tim Harkness doubled the second home.

Hickman homered in the fifth, his 16th.

Warren Spahn Day

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A declaration from the Governor Monday proclaimed Sept. 17 "Warren Spahn" day in Wisconsin, in tribute to the Milwaukee Braves' left-hander.

Spahn became a 20-game winner for the 13th time in his career Sunday with a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia. The feat tied a mark Christy Mathewson put in the National League baseball annals.

Gov. John W. Reynolds called the 42-year-old left-hander "a symbol of athletic excellence to the people of Milwaukee and baseball fans all over America."

Cards Shut Out Chicago

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Stan Musial, a new grandfather, hit a two-run homer and pitched a six-hit shutout as second-place St. Louis defeated the Chicago Cubs, 8-0, Tuesday night.

The victory, Gibson's 17th against eight losses, kept the surging Cardinals three games behind National League-leading Los Angeles, 4-2 winner at Pittsburgh. It also was St. Louis' 13th victory in 14 games.

Dick Groat, playing his first game in four days, singled to set the stage for Musial's first-inning homer. The Man, whose grandson was born Tuesday at Ft. Riley, Kan., celebrated the event by smashing his 11th home run of the year and the 474th of his 22-year career.

Gibson's blast, his third of the season, came with two men on in the second. He pulled a Glen Hobbie pitch into the left field seats.

The former Hawkeye end injured his back lifting weights Aug. 27 and doctors thought he had a ruptured disc.

He was partially paralyzed for a time. Doctors said Norton only strained his back and explained that a pulled tendon in his left calf caused some temporary paralysis.

Injured Orsino Returns; Paces Orioles to Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Catcher John Orsino, who has been playing for more than a month despite an injured leg, knocked out a single, double and triple Tuesday night as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Chicago White Sox, 2-1.

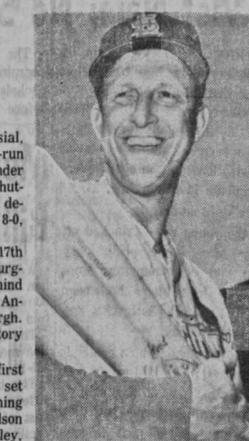

Milt Pappas pitched the first six innings and earned the victory before he was withdrawn when his arm stiffened. Dick Hall and Stu Miller finished up. It was Miller's 22nd save of the season.

TRaverse City, Mich. (AP) — The University of Michigan's great Willie Heston, who struck fear into the hearts of Wolverine football rivals of another era, is dead at 84.

Willie — who played four years (1900-1904) of varsity, prior to college football's no-freshman rule — is credited in the records with scoring 93 touchdowns and a total of 465 points.

Defending Titlist Harris Wins in U.S. Amateur

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Meticulous Labron Harris, ignoring the soggy going, moved closer to a second straight United States Amateur golf title Tuesday with a superb effort few of his rivals could match.

With the bill of his rarely-used cap pulled down to keep the rain and mist off his spectacles, the husky 21-year-old Oklahoma State University mathematics student sloshed over Wakonda's hills and narrow fairways for a 6 and 5 verdict over John McKey of Orlando, Fla.

That put the defending champion into the first of today's two 18-hole rounds along with 63 other shotmakers.

AMONG THEM ARE SUCH POTENTIAL challengers as Deane Beaman of Arlington, Va., who won the crown in 1960; Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City, twice a wearer of the mantle; Steve Spray of Indianola, Iowa, and Dick Sikes of Springdale, Ark., a pair of collegiate champions; Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C.; Bill Campbell, the former West Virginia legislator; George Archer of Gilroy, Calif., and Bob Greenwood, star of the North Texas State golf team.

ON THE SIDELINES after the second day of action on the 6,896-yard layout, which plays to a 36-26-72 par, are Bob Gardner, five-time Metropolitan New York champion and a former Walker Cup player; Downing Gray of Pensacola, Fla., beaten finalist of a year ago; Homero Blancas of Houston, who went to the sixth

Braves May Go to Atlanta; Officials Refuse To Comment

CHICAGO AP — Major League officials were noncommittal Tuesday when questioned about reports that the Milwaukee Braves are considering the possibility of moving to Atlanta.

"I wouldn't know anything about it," said Commissioner Ford Frick after concluding a one-day meeting to iron out details of major league working agreements with triple A teams.

"Who says so?" asked National League President Warren Giles. When shown a story appearing in Chicago's American stating that Atlanta will become the next new city to field a major league club if and when the Braves move Giles hurried on and said, "I'm glad I'm leaving town."

Officials of the Braves, however, indicated there are solid reasons for the reports concerning a possible franchise shift.

Executive Vice President Thomas A. Reynolds Jr., a member of the syndicate which purchased the Braves last season from Lou Perini who originally moved the team from Boston to Milwaukee in 1953, said "No decision has been made."

"Atlanta, Seattle and San Diego all have been after us," said Reynolds, "but we're going to take a long, hard look before we do anything."

"No decision of any kind will be made until following our directors' meeting after the end of the season."

JOHN McHALE, president and general manager of the Braves, said, "Any time a team is having attendance problems there are always rumors of a franchise shift. Yes, we've been approached by Atlanta. That group is persuasive. But the Atlanta people also have approached the Cleveland and Kansas City teams. They are persistent and they have big plans."

ATLANTA reportedly has abandoned hopes of getting either Cleveland or Kansas City. The Cleveland club reportedly has turned down the Atlanta offer and the American League probably would block a shift anywhere outside of the West Coast.

An American League team is needed on the West Coast to create a rivalry with the Los Angeles Angels and cut down travel expenses of other teams which now go to the Pacific shorelands for one series at a time.
