Student Senate Should Serve Basic Needs

Mike Carver Stresses Equality for All in Policy Speech

The Student Senate should be a servant of the students in meeting their basic human needs, asserted President Mike Carver at the Senate meeting Tuesday night.

Carver said that some of the ways to meet these needs include the establishment of a democratic student government, the protection of rights of people regardless of race, creed, color, academic status or political beliefs; the creation of student welfare services; the encouragement of co-curricular activities and athletic programs and the facilitation of a variety of social programs.

"Student government should also continually foster the improvement of the quality of the academic atmosphere," Carver stated. "In pursuance of this end, greater involvement by students in academic policy making is both beneficial and necessary, if standards are to improve."

Using these objectives as a criterion, Carver noted that the student government structure at SUI had failed to realize its full potential. "Even though the Union Board, AWS, CPC, Student Senate and other co-curricular activities have provided a varied and extensive program for our campus, there is much to be done," he said.

Carver explained that Student Senate is the only organization on campus that has a scope of activity that is "residual" in nature. Therefore, he indicated that the Senate should assume an increasingly important role in student affairs. The lack of coordination and a guiding philosophy within the various segments of student government was cited by Carver as the greatest single problem plaguing student government.

Carver related that this has been a problem for 15 years. He said that many persons have tried to change the organizational structure, but have failed because of "the inability of students and faculty advisers to detach themselves from their respective organizations and approach this problem objectively and rationally."

He said that Ted McCarrel, executive dean of student services, has appointed a committee to study student government and that it is important for the Senate to look seriously at any recommendations that this committee might offer. More involvement by students in the academic community was also recommended by Carver. "Hopefully, by projecting the student

1st Pep Rally On Thursday

"Cage the Cougars" will be the theme of SUI's first football pep rally this year at the river front next to the Union Thursday night at 7.

Iowa opens the season against Washington State here Saturday.

The cougar is to Washington State as Herky is to SUI, according to Frank Patton, A2, Wilmette, Ill., Pep Club president. BESIDES "the biggest bonfire in the history of the University," Patton said the rally will feature the yell leaders, pom pom girls, members of the football squad, and Herky, SUI's Marching Band, and the school mascot.

Another feature of the program will be the introduction of the team's co-captains, Paul Krause, A4, Flint, Mich., and Wally Hilgenberg, A4, Wilton Junction. There will also be a short pep talk from Head Coach Jerry Burns. The pep rally will also be the first public introduction of the straw hats which will be worn by all members of the cheering block, Patton said.

"The hats are half the ticket for the cheering block practice in Macbride Auditorium Thursday at 3:30 p.m." "The hats are half the ticket for admittance to each game," Patton said. "If a member of the cheering block loses his hat, he can not come to the game. It must be worn in order to get in."

PATTON said the hats will give the cheering block identity as well as coordinating the section. The purpose of the cheering block is to add spirit to cheering at the games — to back up the yell leaders and pom pom girls and to encourage the rest of the student section and other fans to cheer.

Patton said the rally was scheduled for Thursday rather than Friday in order to draw a larger crowd. All the sororities and fraternities plan to attend, and even the fire department will be there, he added.

Ole Miss Negro Officially Ousted

OXFORD, Miss. — A University of Mississippi spokesman announced Tuesday Cleve McDowell, the only Negro at the university, has been expelled. McDowell has been charged with carrying a concealed pistol.

Chancellor J. D. Williams announced McDowell's expulsion for carrying the weapon on the campus and into a classroom Monday.

CANADIAN-TRINIDAD CONFAB—FREDERICTON, N.B. — Dr. Eric Williams, prime minister of Trinidad-Tobago, will attend a three-day conference, in New Brunswick examining relations between Canada and the West Indies. The conference opens Oct. 25.

May Deal With Russ For Wheat

MINNEAPOLIS — A team of American private grain traders is negotiating with a Soviet commission now in Canada for a huge sale of this country's wheat to the Russians.

The Minneapolis Tribune and Des Moines Register said in a copy-righted story Tuesday night that approval of the U.S. government was all that remained before a deal could be closed.

The papers said it had been learned that the administration thus far has had no part in the negotiations, but that the White House, State, Commerce and Agriculture departments had been working in the legal, technical and policy problems involved. From Duluth, where President Kennedy spoke Tuesday night, came word that there would be no immediate White House comment.

The American traders are reported talking with the commission, headed by S. A. Borisov, first deputy minister of Russian trade, which recently bought half a billion dollars worth of wheat from Canada.

Grain men in Ottawa for the talks were listed by the Tribune as Leopold Stern, director of the Louis Dreyfus Corp., New York, and the following trio from Minneapolis: Burton Joseph, president of I. S. Joseph, Inc.; Charles Ritz, board chairman of International Milling Co., and Ralph Bruce, a vice president of Archer Daniels Midland Co.

The Tribune said it was learned that the exporters' group were moving under existing laws to form a corporation enabling them to act together in such a sale. The corporation, taking responsibility for such necessary items as contracts and performance bonds, would sell shares to any American firms wishing to participate, with allocation of shipments to be worked out among themselves.

The newspapers said the sale to crop-short Russia would be for hard currency, should the deal go through. The Russians are paying for the Canadian grain in dollars.

In Chicago, unconfirmed reports that such a deal was pending pushed grain prices sharply higher Tuesday. Dow-Jones, financial news service affiliate of the Wall Street Journal, reported cable advices from Holland said the Russians would seek U.S. export licenses for 4 million tons of wheat, grain and oats.

John Cherveny of Van Horne exhibited the grand champion and Marion Siek of Blairtown the reserve champion in a field of 394 animals.

U.S. To Prepare For Test Violation

Senate Gives Atom Treaty Wide Support

President Kennedy Expresses Pleasure With Winning Margin

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate voted overwhelming approval Tuesday of the historic treaty banning all but underground nuclear tests.

Giving President Kennedy the big "aye" vote he asked, the senators lined up 80 to 19 in favor of the pact.

The only absentee, ailing Sen. Clair Engle (D-Calif.) was listed as supporting the treaty.

Kennedy issued a statement expressing his pleasure at the winning margin. He commended leaders of both parties and Chairman J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for their "painstaking work" in bringing the treaty "to this highly satisfactory vote."

"The wide support of the senators of both parties given to the treaty after an extensive and wide ranging debate is evidence not only that the treaty has wide public support but also of the collective judgment that this instrument is good for the people of the United States and people all over the world," Kennedy said.

There never had been any serious doubt about ratification.

But nearly two weeks ago, as some opposition to the pact appeared to be building up, Kennedy had sought to stem it with these words: "If we are to give grudging support, if this small, clearly beneficial step cannot be approved by the widest possible margin in the Senate, then the nation cannot offer much leadership or hope for the future."

Those words plus Kennedy's assurance that he will keep the nation's nuclear arsenal in alert readiness to guard against any cheating, gave him the resounding support he sought. Part of the support was based on the desire expressed by some senators to halt the increase in radioactive fallout.

As it turned out, the margin was predicted by Fulbright a month ago. That was before his committee's 14 days of hearings on the pact and the Senate's 12 days of debate in which senators made 125 speeches.

Supporting ratification were 55 Democrats and 25 Republicans. Opposed were 11 Democrats and eight Republicans.

The Democrats who voted against the treaty were Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, James O. Eastland of Mississippi, Frank J. Lausche of Ohio, Russell B. Long of Louisiana, A. Willis Robertson of Virginia, Richard B. Russell of Georgia, John Stennis of Mississippi, Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

LINCOLN, Neb. — Ohio convict Wesley Peery reported by deposition Tuesday he was offered $25,000 to confess to the 1955 slaying here of Mrs. Nancy Parker, a killing for which Nancy's husband, Darrell F. Parker, is serving a life prison term.

The offer, Peery said, came from Ralph Peterson, a Red Oak, Iowa, investigator.

Peery denied under oath that he killed Mrs. Parker, denied knowing who killed her and said all he knows about the case is what he has read or been told.

"I MIGHT HAVE strung Mr. Peterson along a little bit," Peery acknowledged. But statements Peery made to Darrell Parker while both were at the Nebraska Penitentiary were lies, told because "I was trying to get out on bond, that's all," he related. The deposition was taken last May 20 at Columbus, Ohio, where

SUI Senate Votes For Housing Study

By GARY SPURGEON
Managing Editor

The Student Senate voted unanimously to create a temporary committee to deal with discrimination in off-campus housing at its meeting Tuesday night.

The resolution, submitted by Jim Bennett, commissioner of student rights, provides that the Senate create a committee to contact all students living in approved off-campus housing units to help further the effectiveness of the new housing policy of the University.

Bennett explained to the Senate that the 900 students living in this type of housing would be contacted by letter and then individually by a member of the Senate committee.

THE STUDENTS would be asked to talk to their landlords and to explain that they would not mind having a member of a minority group living in the same house or room.

A secondary benefit of the program would be to ascertain student attitudes in this area, Bennett said.

Bennett expressed hope that this program could be carried out within the next two or three months.

A representative of the National Student Association (NSA) also appeared before the Senate and explained some of the advantages of joining the organization. Phil Johnson of Grinnell College and chairman of the Iowa-Nebraska region told the Senate that it would be beneficial for SUI to join NSA.

Johnson said NSA provides member institutions with information on projects that the school may wish to undertake, help in setting up new programs such as a student book cooperative, and help provide group travel rates to Europe and other places.

"Beyond this, NSA resolutions from the National Congress are sent to the U.S. Congress and to many other places," Johnson said. He indicated that NSA was the only student government organization that is officially recognized by many groups.

Senate President Mike Carver told the group that many of the ideas that he presented to the Senate in his Presidential Report came from the NSA National Congress, which he attended this past summer as an observer.

CARVER explained that the freshman intern program, the retreat for student and faculty lead-

Atmospheric Test To Begin Soon After

Improve Methods Of Detecting Any Sneak A-Bomb Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government atomic agencies are rushing preparations for resuming nuclear tests in the atmosphere if the Soviet Union violates the nuclear test ban treaty, informed sources reported Tuesday.

The administration's objective is to be ready to conduct some types of tests within about two months after a go-ahead from President Kennedy.

It took about six months to get set for the last U.S. series of atmospheric tests in the Pacific.

An accelerated program of underground testing may already have begun.

Atomic Energy Commission officials noted there have been five below-ground tests — two in a single day — since the treaty was signed in August. Over-all, the AEC has announced 106 such tests.

The Atomic Energy Commission and the Pentagon's defense atomic support agency have taken steps to improve methods of detecting any sneak atmospheric, underwater or in-space tests.

Programs are under way to improve and maintain the vitality of the important laboratories where new weapons concepts are devised.

Much of the test preparation work is being performed by Joint Task Force 8, which handled testing operations at Johnston and Christmas islands in the Pacific. It is being enlarged from a stand-by nucleus.

It is the position of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and Dr. Harold Brown, the Pentagon's research and engineering director, that the United States will not fall behind in the drive to develop an effective atomless missile system, if nuclear testing is restricted to underground blasts.

Not all scientists agree. Dr. Edward Teller is a notable and vocal exception.

To prepare for high-altitude tests, the AEC and the defense Department are installing more rocket launch pads at Johnston Island.

To provide an airborne nuclear test capacity the AEC and Pentagon are providing special planes fitted for dropping weapons, for studying explosion effects with sensitive instruments, and for sampling the mushroom clouds.

It also is planned that continuing laboratory programs will include development of "these devices which may at some time require atmospheric testing."

"The laboratories will be encouraged to carry their ideas and studies to the point where final device construction can be achieved in the time needed to implement an actual atmospheric test."

Development of the special instruments needed to gather information from any atmospheric tests will be continued at the laboratory level.

Firm Lists City Needs For New Sewer System

City Council members, planning and zoning committee members, and Veestra and Kimm, consulting engineers from West Des Moines, were present for the public hearing Tuesday night of a sanitary sewer system and sewage improvement program, recommended by the Des Moines firm.

Iowa City's present systems were termed outdated and in need of immediate improvement. The sewage plant, nearly 30 years old, was considered worn out in many respects and overloaded, often forcing the bypass of sewage from the treatment plant to the Iowa River. An estimated $850,000 is needed immediately for improvements in order to comply with State Health Department requirements.

Proposed improvements would serve over the next 20 years and would adequately accommodate an estimated 65,000 population by that

Bribery Is Cited in Murder Case

Peery is serving a 30 to 75 year term for armed robbery.

It was read into the record on the first day of a hearing on a petition by Parker's attorneys for a writ of error coram nobis — a bid for a new trial on grounds evidence which could not have been known at the time of the trial has since been uncovered.

The hearing climaxes several years of efforts by friends and family of Parker to reverse his conviction.

At least three dozen members of Parker's home church, Wesley Chapel at Henderson, Iowa, were on hand, along with the former pastor of the church, The Rev. Peter Trucano, now serving a Methodist Church at Rushville, Neb.

"WE WOULDN'T be here if we didn't think he was innocent," The Rev. Mr. Trucano told a reporter. Parker signed a statement saying he killed his wife when she resisted his after-breakfast advances. The statement figured in Parker's trial and conviction but Bruckner told the court Tuesday it had "no more validity than the brainwashed statements of G.I's."

Bruckner said the court would be shown that Peery, a 39-year-old ex-Nebraskan who was sent to reform school at the age of 12 and who has spent more than half his life in prison for assorted offenses, had admitted the slaying.

He said Peery was parked in his black car near the Parker home the morning of the slaying, had worked for the same Lincoln City Park Department which employed Parker, once helped build a fence at the Parker home and had knowledge of the whereabouts of items, including a suitcase, purportedly missing from the Parker home after the slaying.

Advice to freshmen, hope for the weary

There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune;
Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bound in shallows and in miseries.

—William Shakespeare

Dear SUI Freshmen,

Now that you've finally settled down in this academic mish-mash we call a university, I know you're all dying to hear words of wisdom on the art of getting a college education. (Some of you, of course, don't want to get a college education; you want only a college diploma, which is a vastly different thing. With a minimum of effort, you can get your diploma, the passport to a job.)

But if you really want a university education, listen to some words from one who knows — or if he doesn't — one who should know.

Those of us who are upperclassmen often have regrets about the things we could have done to have a better education. You, however, have plenty of time ahead of you to make mistakes or to avoid them. If you avoid most of them, you might get an education.

Things to avoid?

Avoid blaming your boredom with a course on the instructor, the text, or the material. Blame yourself. Not that some instructors, some texts, and some material aren't boring many are. But if you blame yourself, you may find a way to make the course interesting in spite of the obstacles dull texts and monotone instructors place in your way.

If a lecturer doesn't have the stage presence of a Walter Cronkite, examine the material he's offering you. Carefully listen to his interpretations, apply them to your own knowledge, and challenge them. Whether he's a polished speaker or not, he's usually a respected scholar and he has a lot to offer you. Sometimes you have to work a little to get what he has to offer. This is a university.

Avoid waiting to the last minute to do that paper or prepare for that test. You've probably heard this advice a hundred times by now, and most of us who've been here a while haven't followed it much. A favorite story for bull sessions is the one about the paper someone did in four hours.

Trouble is, you don't hear about all the papers done in haste that got the grades they deserved. That sort of thing doesn't make a good story. Moral: Profs can't be faked out all of the time.

Avoid a schedule that wastes your time. Somebody's paying for your stay here — you, your parents, or the State of Iowa or all three. You can't get the value you deserve from that tuition money by spending the majority of your time away from the books.

There is a more positive side to all this philosophizing, and it too includes all those clichés you're probably sick of hearing by now. You should take advantage of the University's co-hit attractions as well as the solid academic fare. The lectures, the exhibits, and the other University offerings directed at more specialized interests can be an important part of your education.

As I look back at what I've written, I see that I haven't really given you the key to getting an education. All the pitfalls and the requirements I've sketched above are only the characteristics of a student in search of an education. Some of you, perhaps, are born students. If you aren't you probably can't — or won't — adopt the characteristics of one unless you change your ideology. You'll have to decide first what you expect from the University. If you decide you want an education, and keep that in mind for the next four years, you'll learn the techniques of studying yourself.

Of course your transformation to the role of a real student will probably not be complete. I've been trying to become a student for the last three years, and I haven't made it yet. I've sometimes made all the mistakes and neglected the principles I've outlined for you. But there may yet be time for those of us who didn't take the flood tide at its flood when we were freshmen. In answer to Shakespeare, James Russell Lowell wrote:

"Truly there is a tide in the affairs of men, but there is no gulf-stream setting forever in one direction."

From 'Honest to God'—

Man and his civic club commandments

By RALPH MCGILL

Birmingham (Alabama) churches began a program of non-day tolling of bells after the dynamite murder of young children, to call people to programs of prayer. Reports said there was very little response — often none at all.

This lack is not unexpected. With painfully few exceptions the churches had done nothing at all before the murderous dynamiting of Sunday School attendants to give leadership in the moral dilemma and decision weighing so heavily on the city and state. Sermons preached on the morning of the modern slaughter of the innocents were, a spot check indicates, routinely irrelevant, concerning themselves with superficial admonitions on St. Paul or one of the Gospels. Those churches that did hear of the murders of the children paused for a minute of silent or spoken prayer. This was done in several Southern cities. The repelling humor of this exhibition was that, almost without exception, those who offered such prayers were churches which ruthlessly, and sometimes physically, had refused admission to Negroes appearing for worship. Some have refused with ushers and ministers forcibly removing the visitors.

THE SUDDEN PRAYERS were a part of the over-all Southern picture of Christianity at its embarrassed, or rationalized, worst. With a handful of magnificent exceptions, Christianity in the South, even in some of the larger urban centers, has supported discrimination in church and church-related schools. Some have done so with appalling honesty, saying that to have done otherwise would have offended some of those who had signed pledges for major contributions.

More and more Christians, including members of the clergy, are beginning to publish, preach and say in public discussion that modern Christianity has become chiefly a civic club ethic, not as well spelled out or promoted as that of Rotary. An increasing number of ministers privately will agree that the Christian spirit of the early church is, insofar as any use of it is concerned, quite moribund. Certainly the South's Christian churches, save for the handful of inspiring exceptions, have placed themselves on the sidelines of the great moral struggle of our time.

IT IS NOT AT ALL surprising that the major attacks on members of the National Council of Churches who have come to grips with the inescapable moral demands of the time have come from the South. Some have described the Council leaders as Communist inspired. Others have adopted resolutions saying that though their local churches are members of the National Council, they, the Southern congregations, do not agree. Here and there churches have withdrawn from the Council as protest against support of the U.S. Supreme Court school decision and others impinging upon the issue.

There is genuine pathos, and among much of the clergy a deep feeling of frustration and guilt — in the everywhere admitted failure of Christianity to face up to a moral issue. The South is largely Protestant. The fact that the Roman Catholic Church, although itself not without its own guilt-feelings, has by and large been more forthright in its decisions has added to the frustration of the concerned Protestant clergy.

SOME OF THEM HAVE commented in letters: "The sheep are in the pulpit. . . ." "The Bishop's staff no longer reminds us of a shepherd — but of a question mark. . . ." "The most humiliating evidence of our shame or our almost childish pride in admitting a Negro to worship. . . . this pride in what we know to be a bit of window-dressing, reveals our deeper frustration. . . ."

A controversial book now being widely read by clergymen and laymen alike is "Honest to God," by John A. T. Robinson, Bishop of Woolwich, England. Few will disagree with its assertion that for most of Christianity the image is of a "three-decker universe." God is "up there," or "out yonder." Hell is "down below." And in between is man, praying to "the man up-stairs" and less and less afraid of a "down-stairs hell." God is rarely "here" — he is "out there," or "up above." Man is running things just to suit himself with a set of civic club commandments.

Kennedy at General Assembly Similar to Ike, Truman eras

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The appearance Friday of President Kennedy before the General Assembly is another manifestation of the importance the United States attaches to the United Nations as an instrument of foreign policy.

The Kennedy Administration, like those of former Presidents Harry Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower, has acknowledged the usefulness of the organization in furthering American goals.

Eisenhower chose the assembly as the forum for announcing his atom-for-peace plan in 1953. This had been proposed by U.S. psychological warfare planners and it proved to be a smash hit.

The voice of the United States has prevailed in most major U.N. actions, including the Korean War, the Congo and the refusal to seat Red China.

Despite change brought about by emergence of the new countries of Africa and Asia, the United States has seldom waned on the losing side in U.N. voting.

On the other hand, developments at the United Nations have had an impact on U.S. foreign policy. Many times the United States has been put in an uncomfortable position of having to choose sides.

One result has been expansion of the role of the U.N. delegate in policy making. Both Henry Cabot Lodge and Adlai E. Stevenson won Cabinet status with direct access to the White House.

Lodge, now U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam preceded Stevenson as chief American representative to the United Nations.

Letter to the Editor

'Psycho' viewers find 'No Smoking' feature good fun

To the Editor:

We have just returned from the first Union Board movie of the year. We are glad to see that this year, in addition to the regular movie, the Union Board is also running "shorts." We were particularly happy with the "No Smoking" upside-down and backwards feature which was shown along with "Psycho".

Of course, we must compliment the projectionists, without whose exceptional skill the movies would not be the same. There must have been at least two projectionists for "Psycho". One could not possibly have dropped the reel twice.

Of course, we are certain that there will be another overflow crowd for the next "No Smoking" feature.

LEAVING CHEYENNE, by Larry McMurtry, Harper, $4.95.

The scene is the Texas panhandle, hot, dusty and oppressive in summer and swept by wind-blown chills in winter.

The characters are cow country people, illiterate, crude, earthy, sweaty individuals with visceral impulses.

Three of them are major — Gideon Fry, a father-bossed boy who grows up to have a desperately wrenching combination of conscience and land greed; Molly, the eternal Female Principle with a mind that can't choose anything from day to day, except in the realm of basic urges; and Johnny, the happy-go-lucky, irresponsible, eternal boy.

The others are rugged, Southwestern American types, Gid Fry's father and Molly's father, are hard-knuckle, spitting individualists with rasping, materialistic attitudes toward the world. But they are basically, colorfully, human.

The plot is slim. Molly foolishly marries an Eddie who is a shallow opportunist. But she has a Puritan-minded son by Gideon and a hedonist son by Johnny, both sons being later killed in World War II. At the end, there are stark, disturbing memories for Gid, Molly and Johnny.

The author may be creating a new genre of really significant cow-country fiction, comparable in impact with the Deep South imaginings of some of our major authors.

This is McMurtry's second novel, following "Horseman Pass By," which was made into the movie "Hud". He is a real writer.

He gives expression, in a lean, hard-chopped style, stripped of effete connotations, to basic, anatomical emotions. People in this book are worth remembering, and that is a reason for believing that the author has caught hold of some of the essential truths that we live by.

Life in a deadly family tree by Grace Metalious

By MILES A. SMITH
NO ADAM IN EDEN. By Grace Metalious. Trident, $4.95.

The deadliest sex is portrayed in this new novel by the author of "Peyton Place." And in this portrayal the females are venomous and vicious.

The story is about three generations of women of a French-Canadian family living in a New Hampshire mill town. In the first two generations the females destroy their husbands. In the third, there is a contrast between one girl who goes her selfish, self-centered way and another who turns out to be wholesome and decent.

And finally there were Lesley, the decent one, and Alana, who hated their mother Angeliqye but chose to make precocious use of Angeliqye's lessons in corruption.

For Downtown Businesses—

ABCD Postal Service Starts Here

The ABCD system of mail service began Tuesday in Iowa City, W. J. Barrow, postmaster, announced. Accelerated business collection and delivery began officially at 11 a.m. However, a trial run was made Monday.

Under the new system, first-class mail deposited in business district collection boxes by 11 a.m. will be delivered in the downtown area or in post office boxes by 3 p.m. It is possible for mail to be delivered even as early as 1 or 2 p.m., according to William L. Allen, chief of the delivery service branch of the St. Louis region.

Allen, who was main speaker at a morning coffee and program at the Elks Club, pointed out that the businesses which will benefit by the new system generated 80 per cent of the profits made by the local post office department in 1962.

Zone boundaries in Iowa City are Iowa Avenue, Linn, College and Clinton Streets.

Collection boxes under the ABCD system here are at the Hotel Jefferson, College and Dubuque, College and Clinton, Clinton and Washington, Wheelstone's, Clinton and Iowa Avenue, Dubuque and Iowa Avenue, Dubuque and Washington, in front of the post office and in the alley at the post office.

Soviets Feeling Grain Pinch

MOSCOW (P) — In an atmosphere of agricultural emergency, the Soviet Union has called on all citizens to get out and help salvage what's left of this year's disastrous grain harvest. Despite shortages in many Moscow stores, however, there was no panic buying of food. Wheat flour was virtually unobtainable, but bakers seemed to have ample supplies of bread. The official farmers' paper, Sel'skoye Zhizn, warned that plowing for spring grain crops in many areas was dangerously low. This could mean another harvest as bad as this one, which forced the Kremlin to spend over $500 million to assure bread for the people. The average Russian has been kept in the dark about the grain shortages, but papers began Tuesday to give some idea that the situation was serious. Sovietskaya Rossia, organ of the Russian Federated Republic, told persons who live on farms — only a small proportion of them are farmers — to drop everything else and help with the harvest.

Cambodia Prince Feels Red Pressure

PHON PENH, Cambodia (P) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk says he is convinced the Communists already have won the battle for South Viet Nam and feels that neutral Cambodia eventually will fall to the Communists. The 41-year-old Cambodian chief of state has said the same thing before about Laos, another troubled neighbor. Writing in the French-language weekly Realities Cambodgiennes, Sihanouk discounted President Charles de Gaulle's suggestion last month for elimination of foreign influence from both North and South Viet Nam. The prince said he felt immediate neutralization of South Viet Nam would stop the war there and improve international relations, but probably would retard the Communist advance only temporarily. He blamed American policies in Asia. "Our American friends are remarkable organizers, brilliant technicians and excellent soldiers," Sihanouk said. "But their incor-testable realism stops short of the realm of politics, where the attitude of the ostrich seems to them to conform best to their interests." Sihanouk has maintained a policy of neutrality since Cambodia declared its independence from France in 1953. His government long has feuded with immediate neighbors, but has ties with all the big powers on both sides of the Iron Curtain. Cambodia is ringed by Laos, pro-Western Thailand and South Viet Nam, a nation of six million.
