Should SU Iowans Try 'Love by Machine?' Others Are

Electronic compatibility — the newest dimension to the American institution called dating.

That's what Southern Illinois University (SIU) calls it. It all started at Iowa State University (ISU) at Ames. What would be the chances of attempting love by machine at SIU?

John P. Dolch, director of the Computer Center, says matching partners by IBM on the basis of questionnaires could be done under University sponsorship — providing some group is willing to direct and finance the project.

Such undertakings are not normally done by the Center, as it functions in research of education and can't be quasi-commercial, Dolch explained.

However, he added, before considering such an experiment one must ask "what function of the University is this and where is it a research problem."

ISU's IBM dance was held Saturday night. Dancing partners were selected by an IBM machine on the basis of age, religion, race, likes and dislikes, intelligence, and dancing ability.

Students filled out 60-question forms last week, none of which were embarrassing, said Dr. Edwin C. Lewis, associate professor of psychology.

Information was transferred to IBM cards and run through ISU's IBM 7074.

The dance was organized with the help of the counseling service and the advice of the departments of psychology, sociology and statistics.

Iowa State is supposedly the fifth college to have a dance like this. The University of Minnesota, the University of Colorado, the University of California at Los Angeles, and the University of Miami have all tried it.

Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, pondering the possibilities of a machinery romance session there, lists these possibilities in its campus newspaper:

• Through some error, the president's wife ends up as raw data for the machine. At dance time the president — of the freshman class — turns up on her doorstep and they go riding off on his bicycle. The president — of Iowa State — winds up doing a solo at the neighborhood flick.

• Adalbert Z. Zwiebeck, freshman, 4-feet, 10-inches, is paired with Zoroastra Q. Dusenberry, 6-2. The computer operator neglected to punch the height button on this one. Z and D were the talk of the ball, but they didn't notice — they were too busy discussing nuclear physics. They are being married in two weeks.

• Of the 500 women invited to participate, 473 are now pinned and the rest are going steady. The experiment resulted in termination of relationships of 292 couples, now, a study has determined, had based their companionship on now-discarded notions such as shape and similar trivia.

The Daily Egyptian, SIU paper, queried:

Would the Iowa State experience have application at SIU? Shall trial and error prevail in the long-standing customs of courtship and mating? Should those who have already passed the marital point of no return be allowed to meet their match with the cold calculations of the computer? If so, to what end?

Burning questions, these. Burning questions.

Diem Regime Arrests U.S. Aid Employee

Political Arrests Begin As Tension Mounts; Man Attempts Suicide

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A Vietnamese employe of the U.S. aid mission, a labor leader and a Government military representative were reported seized Monday in a flurry of political arrests. Tension in Saigon mounted.

Police reported that an old woman committed suicide by fire during the weekend and that a man tried to burn himself to death. But police said the incidents had no political significance.

U.S. authorities said the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem gave no reason for the arrest of the U.S. aid mission employe, Vu Hoang Linh, who worked as an interpreter in the mission's rural affairs section.

The section deals in counter-guerrilla programs in the Vietnamese countryside.

Also reported taken by police was Dam Sy Hien, a high official in the General Confederation of Labor. There had been no indication of trouble in the nation's labor unions, which are closely controlled by the government.

In what is believed may be the start of a military purge, police arrested Capt. Dinh Thach Bich, a deputy of the Saigon government's delegation to the eastern province.

No reasons were given for any of the arrests.

GOVERNMENT security officials were said to believe that new anti-Diem demonstrations and violence may break out to coincide with the arrival of a U.N. investigation team. A seven-nation team was named in New York on Friday and is expected to leave for Saigon next Monday for a 14-day stay.

The U.N. team will investigate charges that the Diem government is persecuting Buddhists. To point up their opposition to Diem, six Buddhist monks have burned themselves in sacrificial suicides. The Buddhists charge that Diem, a Roman Catholic, discriminates against their religion.

Police said the suicide of the old woman was not connected with the political situation.

"Suicide by burning is common in South Viet Nam," an official said.

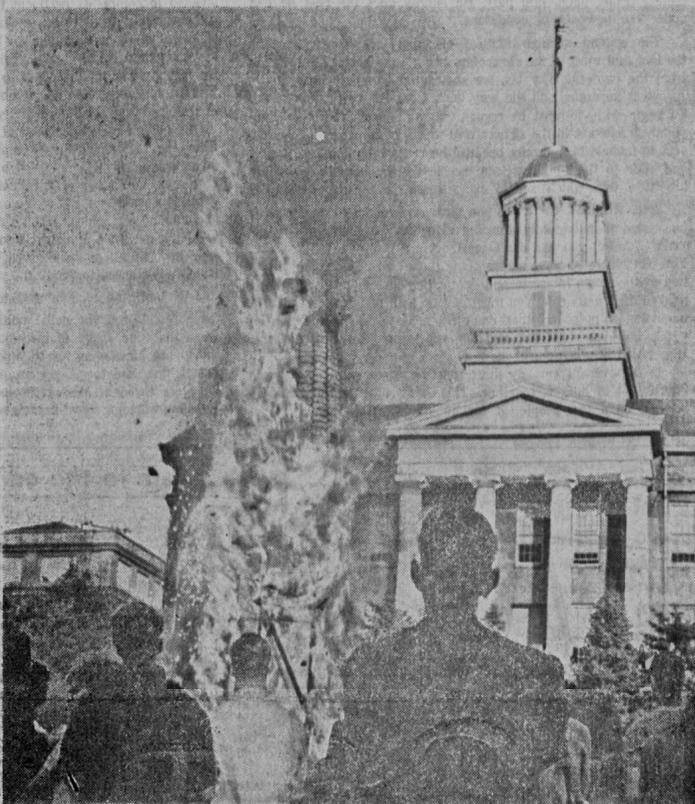

POLICE SAID the woman had been in poor health and attempted several times before to kill herself.

As for the man, police said he soaked his clothing in gasoline Sunday at the An Don market in the Chinese section of Saigon. But before he could strike a match, police seized him and took him to jail, officials said. The man was not identified.

Army Convoy, Blocked Once, Returns Safely

BERLIN (AP) — A large U.S. Army convoy of combat infantrymen, brought to West Berlin during last week's dispute with the Russians returned to West Germany Monday without trouble from Soviet checkpoints.

An Army announcement said the convoy encountered no difficulty on the 110-mile trip from Berlin across Communist East Germany to West Germany. It cleared the checkpoint at Marienborn, on the Communist side of the West German border, in 65 minutes.

Navy Backs Korth On Apparent Rift

Atomic Powered Carrier Said Caused Resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary Fred Korth became a hero to the Navy Monday by resigning in apparent protest over a top-level Pentagon decision against buying atomic engines for a new aircraft carrier.

Korth, 54, also figured in a sharp policy dispute over the controversial TFX fighter plane contract. He is leaving Nov. 1 to return to his banking business in Fort Worth, Tex.

Associates said his defeat on the nuclear power argument sped his decision to quit. Some Congress members, including Sen. Gordon Allott, (R-Colo.) said they think Korth's action stemmed from the TFX row.

The Navy secretary's departure was announced by the White House. President Kennedy chose Paul Nitze, now assistant secretary of defense in charge of the Pentagon's "little state department," as Korth's successor.

This takes Nitze out of contention for the defense establishment's second most important post, that of deputy secretary. Roswell L. Gilpatric, now chief aide to Secretary Robert S. McNamara, is due to step out within a few months.

THE WHITE HOUSE disclosed that Korth had written his resignation last Friday — the same day he persuaded McNamara to reconsider a tentative decision against permitting the Navy to install the more expensive nuclear power, instead of conventional engines, in its new super-carrier.

The tall, white-haired Korth said he was resigning with "the utmost regret . . . so that I may return to private business and attend to my pressing business affairs."

In accepting Korth's resignation Kennedy praised the outgoing secretary for making "a real contribution to the advancement of the United States national security interests."

Nothing was said about the nuclear carrier question. But informed sources made it clear Korth had slight hope that McNamara would reverse himself and this realization at least hastened his decision to quit.

It is known that Korth has wanted to leave for some time, but his plans did not contemplate such an abrupt departure.

Other differences between Korth and McNamara were understood to have contributed to Korth's decision to resign.

THESE differences, most of them behind the scenes, involved McNamara's decision to reduce sharply special proficiency pay for Navy and other technicians, to cut off overseas pay for many enlisted men, and Korth's position for a stronger military pay bill.

Korth was unavailable for comment. He entered Bethesda Naval Hospital to prepare for a minor ear operation.

Sen. John L. McClellan, (D-Ark.) who presided over a stormy Senate investigation of the TFX contract, declined to comment. Senate critics had suggested a conflict of interest in awarding the multi-million dollar contract for development of an all-service experimental tactical fighter plane.

Korth heatedly rejected such suggestions.

"I predict that there will be other resignations," Allott said, without elaborating.

SEN. Stuart Symington, (D-Mo.), a former secretary of the Air Force, said he had known for some time that Korth was anxious to leave his government post. He said:

"I'm confident that Secretary Korth would not have left his position in protest of decisions made by his superior. If he disagreed to that extent, I think he would have stayed on the job."

The Defense Department said again Monday that no final decision has been reached on the carrier issue. Navy sources agreed that technically this is true. But they said the handwriting is on the wall.

A McNamara decision to build the new carrier with conventional engines and reject the nuclear power proposal, apparently on cost grounds, throws a long shadow across the Navy's future.

Raps Wheat Sale, Wall

Bitter Adenauer Steps Down Today

Erhard Takes Over Top German Post

BONN, Germany (AP) — After 14 years in office, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer came to the eve of retirement Monday night unhappy with U.S. wheat sales to Russia and without a Kremlin promise to knock down the Berlin wall.

"As it is now, I'm not going with a light heart," he told newsmen at a farewell reception.

Adenauer charged that Premier Khrushchev caused the little Berlin blockade last week in which a U.S. Army convoy with 61 soldiers was bottled up in Communist territory for nearly 52 hours.

"HE WANTED TO show his people that he still has power, even though he is buying wheat," the 87-year-old chancellor said.

Sources high in the Kennedy Administration in Washington say the blockade was the result of a "genuine Russian misunderstanding" and reflected no permanent setback in the thaw in the East-West cold war. Here in Germany, speculation has been that the Soviet Army was trying to capitalize on the quiet period in the cold war to cut off one more slice of the Berlin salami, specifically the procedure in handling American military convoys.

But Adenauer, who turns the reins of government over to economics minister Ludwig Erhard today, said the blockade was serious and that West German forces had been placed on the alert. The same U.S. convoy passed Soviet checkpoints without trouble Monday on its trip back to West Germany from Berlin.

Adenauer implied in his chat with newsmen that the United States should have bargained with the Russians in the wheat deal for a concession that they would order the Communist East Germans to take down the wall they built in Berlin in August 1961.

Last week, Adenauer said he would be the first to support sales of wheat to the Soviet Union on a humanitarian basis if the Kremlin demonstrated with concrete acts that it wanted peace.

But in his farewell talk with newsmen he said he was afraid the Russians are finding a way to isolate West Germany, by eliminating the conflict between the Kremlin and Washington.

THEN, ONLY THE conflict between the Soviet Union and West

Germany will remain, he said.

Adenauer recalled the words of the late U.S. secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, warning against Germany falling under Soviet influence. If that happened, he quoted Dulles as saying, the conflict between the United States and the Soviet Union would really just begin.

Adenauer's departure from the West German leadership is bringing sighs of relief in Washington and London. Nevertheless, he received warm official farewell messages from President Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain.

Kennedy praised the chancellor for "the peaceful and democratic transition of government now taking place under your leadership," he added:

"I KNOW THAT I speak in the name of all Americans when I pay tribute to the magnificent list of your accomplishments in the past and wish you happiness and success in the future. The relations between my country and yours have never been closer — and the links to whose forging you have committed so much will have permanence."

Macmillan said: "Your personal achievements during the past 14 years of office have been truly great. You have led your countrymen out of the shadows of a disastrous war to a free, prosperous and democratic way of life."

Algeria Says Attacked by Moroccans

ALGIERS (AP) — Algeria accused Morocco of sending a massive ground and air force 60 miles into its territory Monday, but Morocco insisted its men only recaptured two frontier posts and said there were no casualties.

Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika told a news conference that several thousand Moroccan troops with tanks and air support fought Algerian troops all day long.

In Rabat, capital of Morocco, authorities said the fight was over long before noon and the sector was now quiet.

King Hassan II did not mention the incidents in a speech broadcast from Marrakech, where he is host to Mrs. John F. Kennedy for a four-day visit. He spoke instead about Moroccan parliamentary problems and forthcoming elections. He did say, however, that Morocco would defend "its dignity and the integrity of its frontiers."

Young Demos Vote Tonight On Strawn Impeachment Bill

By DOUG IDEN Staff Writer

At an Executive Council meeting of the Young Democrats Monday, President John Niemeyer, L.A. Elkader, read a statement answering the charges of Fred Strawn, A2, Garrison, second vice-president.

Early last week, Strawn accused Niemeyer of:

• Misrepresenting the Young Democrats to the state officials.

• Not acting on pertinent business between the state organization and the local club.

• Questionable tactics in last spring's landslide all-campus elections.

After the Niemeyer-Strawn dog fight, they agreed to put their respective offices to a vote of confidence before the Executive Council. Strawn had a vote of "no confidence."

This was an open invitation for his resignation, according to Niemeyer. Strawn declined the offer which led to his removal from office.

According to Niemeyer, the YD's constitution calls for a vote of three-fourths of the general assembly to impeach an officer.

Strawn will have 15 minutes "to hang himself", in the words of Niemeyer, before a meeting of the general assembly at 7:30 tonight in the Old Capital Senate chamber.

Niemeyer declared that the resolution ("Shall the action of the Executive Council be approved?") would be the main business of the meeting. He said he "wanted to inform the students of the proper side to be on."

At the "closed" meeting of the Council, to which Niemeyer invited a Daily Iowan reporter, he reiterated the three means of losing an office in the club: to leave school, resign, or be removed by a three-fourths vote of the general membership. Strawn must fall into one of these categories to establish the constitutionality of his impeachment.

Last week Strawn implied that he would take the whole matter before the state organization.

Niemeyer claimed that the Executive Council is made up of five elected officers. After his election last spring he appointed 10 additional members to the Council of whom Niemeyer "said he scarcely knew."

At 7:30 p.m. Monday, Niemeyer informed The Daily Iowan that Strawn would not appear before the assembly to defend himself. "Unless he changes his mind, we will proceed with the election. As far as we are concerned, Strawn has been ex-vice-president for a week."

Strawn was not available for comment.

Woman's place is home

Dreamy Nhu shuns politics, sticks to PTA

By ART BUCHWALD
 Madame Nhu has been so busy in the United States we haven't had a chance to see her. But fortunately the other night she popped up in a dream and, since she is always available to the press, even in a dream, we were most happy to talk with her.

"Madame Nhu, what are you doing in the United States?"

"I'm visiting my father and mother."

"But they won't see you."

"They will on television."

"Madame Nhu, there has been a certain amount of criticism about your activities in South Viet Nam. Could you tell us what you feel the role of a woman should be?"

"I CAN'T SPEAK for other women, but as for myself, I think a woman's place is in her home with her children. I don't know or understand anything about politics so I believe those things should be left up to the men."

"Then you are not interested in Viet Nam politics?"

"Well, I do belong to the PTA in Saigon and I have addressed garden clubs on occasion, but I always try to stay in the background."

"It's not true that you have an influence on your husband and brother-in-law?"

"What a ridiculous thought! Why should my husband and brother-in-law listen to me when the United States has sent so many advisers over there?"

"That's true, Madame Nhu, you have been quoted as saying some strong things against the American GI in Viet Nam. Are you against them?"

"Of course not. Some of them are against me because I won't allow dancing in Saigon, but I have nothing but admiration for the Americans, particularly the junior officers. Without them we would never win the war."

"I'M NOT SURE I heard you correctly."

"Well, it's your dream."

"How do you feel about Buddhists, Madame Nhu?"

"Some of my best friends are Buddhists. As a little girl I even played with one, once. But I do think they should stay in their place."

"Then all this talk about persecuting Buddhists isn't true?"

"Of course not. Occasionally my husband's troops attend religious services in one of their pagodas and this leads to misunderstandings, but I'd like to say that the Saigon Buddhists have never given us any difficulty. It is the outside agitators led by Martin Luther Hve, who are responsible for all our trouble. We could solve our Buddhist problems if it weren't for the monks coming down from the north."

"What about the American newspaper coverage of Viet Nam?"

"I think the American press has done a magnificent job reporting on events in my country. Occasionally they get a few facts wrong and our secret police have to correct them, but on the whole we have had a wonderful relationship."

"What do you plan to do while you're here?"

"VISIT DISNEYLAND, talk to some Girl Scout meetings, attend a fashion show at Sak's Fifth Avenue, and visit Radio City Music Hall. I'm traveling as a private citizen, you know."

"Then you don't intend to use your visit to make propaganda for your country?"

"Now why would I want to do something like that?"

At this point in the dream our wife woke us up. "What's the matter?" she said.

"Why?"

"You kept shouting in your sleep that someone was choking you."

Wheat sale: JFK's Salt for cold war

THEY SAY IF you want something to thaw, you throw salt on it.

President Kennedy did just this last week with the Cold War. He tossed the salt in the form of wheat onto the cold relations between the United States and the Soviet Union in hopes that the current thaw in the Cold War will continue.

If the President had failed to allow wheat sales to the Russians, Nikita Khrushchev could well have shut the door and turned the freezer on full blast. Instead the healthy melting started by the test ban treaty was allowed to continue.

Irrespective of this, however, some of the home front is not greatly impressed by the President's decision. Some argue that Kennedy should have left the decision up to Congress. And then others feel that we have no business trading with the Russians.

But looking at the situation in totality, it appears that the President made the right decision.

For one thing, the Soviet Union needs the wheat and we have it. Our stockpiles of wheat have been growing continuously over the past two decades to the point where over 200 billion bushels of wheat are now being stored in grain bins, old battle ships and anything else that will hold it.

Moreover, the United States needs to develop more trade with Communist nations for the simple reason that current trade is not enough. The United States has been losing gold reserves consistently. It seems, then, that trade with Communist nations might help this situation by opening up new trade routes.

It must be recognized that the United States must provide the Communists some favor in return and that we may not be any better off for the trade. But this seems to be a chance we will have to take.

Finally there is no reason to believe that the Soviet Union will use our wheat to build up high stockpiles that will be used against us militarily. Russia needs food badly because of catastrophic crop failures. A recent order forbade the Russians to feed wheat to their hogs. Surely a nation in this sort of fix could not store our wheat and let their people go hungry. The Russian people just won't stand for it.

Furthermore, the agriculture failure in Russia provides enough assurance for the sale of wheat. The farm system employed by Communists evidently does not provide the incentive to produce crops of the magnitude that it does in the United States. Until it does, it seems safe to sell wheat to the Russians.

All of this points to the fact that President Kennedy made the right decision. At least the decision was good for the short run and after all a long run is made up of many short runs.

'Sparrows' no more than pleasant comedy

By RAY PRESTON
 Iowan Film Critic

SPARROWS CAN'T SING is nothing more than a pleasant comedy. It's worth talking about, however, for with this slight work the director, Joan Littlewood, has managed to accomplish several structural techniques of significance. This becomes apparent mainly because the film seems to be put together in a careless, if not haphazard, manner.

This is curious because Miss Littlewood has a fine record of work on the English stage which is anything but haphazard. However, in her first film the camera jumps around from one subject to the next in a structurally unrelated manner which builds nothing that bears resemblance to a coherent story. Each time the camera returns to a character it is apparent that this individual has been pursuing a discernible pattern; but this pattern does not necessarily contribute to the progress of the film.

EACH CHARACTER GOES on his own course, trying to accomplish the series of chores which make up his day. If in doing this his pattern is forced into direct conflict with another, as when the sailor "captures" the fat brother-in-law from his attempts to get to work and forces him to stay in a bar for two hours, then he will make the necessary adjustments and do as he is directed. However, when the subject is released and set back on his own pattern he immediately returns to the point of interruption, in this case trying to get to work. The fact that he is now reeling drunk plays little part. He simply does the best he can under the new set of conditions.

The second strange feature of this film's construction is the fact that most of the characters are able to get equal attention from the camera. Why are we shown the complete path of the drunken "birdman" all the way back from the bar to his room? To begin with, it must be recognized that his character is completely irrelevant to the structure of the film. However, if we consent to include him simply because he is an interesting character and adds to the fun, how can we justify the camera recording his little trip which serves no purpose in the film?

THE RESULT OF these two strange features is an alternating series of individually amusing vignettes. Well, this is fine for "real" life but you just can't construct a film on such a premise. You can't have all your actors going their own way, paying attention to their own interests and demanding that equal attention be paid to their activities. You must end up with nothing more than a bagatelle, a potpourri that can't be held together. Miss Littlewood, however does not end up with this; she has made a film which is a structural unit.

In the average comedy there must be a story-line — of some interest — to hold it together. This story must concentrate its interest on a few people; if for no other reason than time restrictions. This approach leaves many characters of great comic potential on the side-lines with an occasional appearance restricted to comments pertinent to the main interest. Miss Littlewood works without this story-line (the problem of the sailor reclaiming his wife turns out to be irrelevant) and thus escapes its restrictions. Instead, she gives us an alternating series of different human antics. Rather than build our knowledge of the events in a linear progression she is able to work with a rapid montage of sections of daily human activity. These short sequences taken out of the complete daily pattern of many individual lives, are used after the fashion of the Russian theorists to give the film its structural unity. Our knowledge of the film comes as a result of the accumulation of unrelated incidents. Each of these incidents is a comment, not of the sailor's life, but simply of the life surrounding the sailor. When we have amassed enough of these incidents everyone is called together, in a convenient bar, for a final accounting, or summation, of what has happened. However, this is not allowed to "end" the story, or tie together the incidents.

Without this type of structure Miss Littlewood could not have maintained the rapid editing pace; there would not have been the wide range of incredible British faces; each character could not have given us so much good, varied comedy; and we would have had to get serious about somebody's problem before we were through. Miss Littlewood gave us a parade of golden canaries warbling sweet in their separate cages.

Public being hoodwinked?

To the Editor:
 It is apparent to many of us that John F. Niemeyer is about to once again hoodwink his unwary "public." John, through the use of swift, underhanded maneuvers and an unfortunate YD Executive set-up, is obviously trying to eliminate all who challenge his "right" to run his own private dictatorship.

It will be noted that the vote against Fred Strawn in the absurd "no-confidence" contest was 10-2 (out of 15 possible). Further, Mike Carr, Niemeyer's close friend, was appointed head of non-existent committee "A" that very evening. Rog Wiley's membership, of course, is more than questionable, but that is really extraneous, as is the fact that one of the more important cogs in the state YD organization was informed by Niemeyer that she was not a YD at all (erroneously, of course). The SUI YD constitution specifies that as a state officer, she is an automatic member of the executive council. The main consideration is that the YD constitution also allows that only 5 members of the YD executive council be elected. It also allows the president to appoint and dismiss any number of additional members of this council arbitrarily as mere rubber stamps for any action he deems as profitable to himself. This power in the hands of a John Niemeyer is self-evident in the results of the apparently illegal and unconstitutional proceedings of the "executive meeting". The proceedings were declared unconstitutional by Richard L. McAnaw, First District committeeman in the state YD's, whose ruling was rejected by Niemeyer's stacked, rubber-stamp executive council. It may be noted here, too, that Jim Rohwedder, Treasurer, was absent and that Niemeyer ruled that his friend and rubber stamp, Steve Teichner, could arbitrarily sit in for Rohwedder and VOTE!

But all of the above is merely an extension of the intrigue and sly tactics used by John to accomplish his intention since he began his political activity on campus. The examples are many, but one will suffice. As student body president, Niemeyer sent a questionnaire on discrimination to all fraternities. It was sent with a letter indicating it as a full Student Senate action. They were to be returned to him. It was learned that it was merely a John Niemeyer questionnaire and had no validity whatsoever.

Those YD members who intend to vote Tuesday night should know a few facts before they do so:

1. John still has not performed those duties required of the president by the constitution.
2. His "paper" committees and thus his rubber stamp executive council still exist.
3. That it was almost entirely these members who signed the executive council letter to the editor.
4. That the state YD officers are actively concerned with the wide disregard being shown for the state and local constitutions.
5. That the state officers still recognize Fred Strawn as constitutionally second vice president.
6. That unless the executive council set-up is constitutionally changed, the present danger to democratic processes will continue to exist.

The fact that John was defeated for student senator shows the confidence the rest of the campus has in his "capable leadership". It is somewhat frightful to realize that these kind of tactics will be loosed on the courts of Iowa soon after John takes his bar exam next summer. Thank goodness I'm from Illinois.

Defend constitutional government

To the Editor:
 One of the best defenses of constitutional government to appear in this paper was on the front page of Thursday's edition. It was written by Mr. Fred Strawn of the Young Democrats and went like this:

"Niemeyer has disregarded and bypassed the constitution. If this can be done what document is to be turned to in time of question and dissent? In this situation Niemeyer is attempting to interpret and amend the constitution to fit his specific wish. If this is to be allowed, the days of the principles of law, order, and justice in the SUI Young Democrats are over."

We share Mr. Strawn's concern for the principles of law, order, and justice guaranteed by a written constitution. But we wonder why Mr. Strawn is surprised at the Democrat's disregard for constitutional principles. The Democrats at the national level have been eroding and ignoring the U.S. Constitution for the last thirty years.

We suggest that if the Young

Democrats are to continue to exist and if our country is to remain free that both return to constitutional government.

We welcome Mr. Strawn and other Young Democrats concerned with the restoration of constitutional principles to join us in supporting Barry Goldwater as the next United States President.

Goldwater wheat stand defended

To the Editor:
 Today's installment in the anti-Goldwater series compels a conservative to have his say.

Jon Van hortles at what he considers another Goldwater inconsistency. First, Goldwater indicates that he might favor a sale of wheat to the Soviet. Second, Goldwater says he opposes giving the wheat away for nothing. Period.

Conservatives, who are frequently accused of being anti-intellectual, claim at least the ability to know an inconsistency when they see one. They also doubt your editor's ability to do the same.

Goldwater has not changed his original position. His second statement, which was offered as a prediction of what the Kennedy administration would do, proved to be startlingly accurate. For in selling wheat to the Soviet, the United States was forced to come down to the world market price. Who gets one free bushel for every three paid for? The Soviet. Who makes up the difference? The U.S. taxpayer. Who was right about free wheat? Goldwater.

Predictably, the always-objective Daily Iowan has no wise cracks about the President's long hesitation in announcing administration policy concerning the sale, clearly a delay made necessary while he weighed the consequences on his own political future. Why so little discussion of the disparity between the President's promises and his attempts to accomplish (e.g., Bay of Pigs, on-site inspection in Cuba, civil rights)? Why no snide remarks about Rockefeller's recent excuse for the New York tax hike?

Silence is golden, but it makes a poor setting for the jewel of consistency.

Off-Campus Cookery

By CELE FERNER and CATHY FISCHGRUND, Staff Writers

"What can I learn to cook besides hamburger?" a desperate young man asked us last week.

Like so many students living off campus for the first time, he finds it cheaper to cook his own meals. But never having cooked before, he's in a rut.

We've been lucky — we've had lots of experience cooking and we love it. So we'll try to pass a few little hints along — as well as a few recipes — to vary the monotony.

We'll hit hamburger, too — later. But we want you to know there are other things just as cheap to buy and almost as easy to cook as a pound of hamburger.

Let us know if you like our recipes — or if you don't like them. Better yet, send us your favorites so we can pass them on. Send your letters to: Recipe Column, The Daily Iowan, 201 Communications Center, Iowa City.

Here's a veal menu to start off. It's great for people who don't like veal — and for those who do. We didn't like veal until we found this concoction and now we love it.

Buy as many veal shoulder steaks as you have people — two if you're men. Brown the veal in a frying pan on top of the stove in onions, salt, pepper, garlic, oregano, seasoned salt, and anything else you happen to like.

Place the steaks in a pan, cover each with tomato paste, add the drippings from the frying pan. Cover each with a piece of mozzarella cheese and bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

Tossed salad, garlic bread, and a vegetable round out the menu.

Chop lettuce into bit-sized pieces, slice a tomato and put in individual salad bowls. Add your favorite

Child Needs Quiet Area For Study

A school child should have a desk or study corner of his own where he can do his homework undisturbed, the Iowa Optometric Association advises. With the increased study load on students today, a child cannot concentrate or do well in his studies if he must work in the midst of normal family activities and distractions.

The ideal study corner should be in a quiet room away from television with good general room lighting and a good reading light at the study desk or table. The light should be shaded to prevent glare. Light-colored walls help, too.

A student will function best in an atmosphere conducive to study. His room or study corner should be comfortable and pleasant but away from the activities of brothers, sisters and parents.

Comfort includes eye comfort, as vision is a key factor in learning. Students should rest their eyes periodically while studying. After 20 or 30 minutes of close work, it is a good idea to look up and away from the work to relax the eye muscles. It is also a good idea to stand up and give the body a brief change of position, too.

Vision specialists recommend a yearly eye examination for school children, preferably in the late summer or early in the new school year. This means your child can renew his studies with maximum opportunity to do well.

dressing. If you prefer vinegar and oil, it's two parts oil to one part vinegar. Add salt, pepper and oregano to suit your taste. Shake. Serve.

A big loaf of Italian bread costs a quarter. Slice the loaf of bread in one-inch slices — but leave a quarter of an inch intact at the bottom of the loaf to hold the bread together. Soften butter, add garlic, and blend them together. Spread the butter and garlic mixture on a cookie sheet for five minutes just before the veal is ready to come out of the oven.

For added zip to a can of green beans or string beans melt two tablespoons of butter in a sauce pan. Add onions (minced or fresh), garlic salt (just a dash), and one fourth teaspoon of curry powder (optional, but very good). Heat the beans, drain them, and pour the butter mixture over them. It's a pleasant variation on the old greens.

If veal isn't your delight, substitute pork chops.

Buy shoulder pork chops, which are cheaper (and bigger) than the pork chops you usually buy.

Melt three tablespoons of butter in a frying pan over low heat. Add salt, pepper, garlic, minced onion. Stir and drop the chops in. Brown both sides of the chops.

Put the chops in the broiler of your oven, preheated to the broil temperature. Ten minutes later, turn them over. Ten minutes more and they're done.

Now, was that so hard?

If you wind up with dirty, burned pans, try filling them up two thirds of the way with water. Add baking soda. Turn on the stove and let the pans "boil themselves clean." By the time you have the rest of the dishes washed and dried, the pans will be loose enough to wash with ease.

Onion fans, hear this. You can buy minced onions in a jar or small sack. They're easy to store, easy to use (no more weeping over fresh onions) and taste just like the real thing.

Now, if you're all "cooked-out" and want to relax, try this: squeeze two limes and put the lime juice in a glass over crushed ice. Add 1½ ounces of rum and a teaspoon of sugar. Stir well. Drink your home-made daiquiri-ette. Cheers.

Girl Scouting Offers Fun For Leaders

Attention student wives! Do you want a change of pace with fun and the satisfaction of knowing you're helping your community? If so, the Girl Scouts need you.

Mrs. Hugh Carson, executive director of the Girl Scouts here in Iowa City, has openings for leaders for any age group. Brownies through Senior Scouts. The leader may pick the day when troop meetings would be most convenient for her.

Duties of a Girl Scout leader consist principally in helping the girls plan their program and activities. Planning has been aided this fall by the new Girl Scout program. In this program, each group has its own handbook of activities designed for their age and capabilities.

Mrs. Carson estimated the time expended would include about one and a half hours for a weekly meeting and the same amount of time in preparation.

Currently there are no student wives acting as leaders, but Mrs. Julia Howard and Miss Sherry Hanson, who will be married later this year, are working in the scout office.

If you desire information about becoming a Girl Scout leader, phone Mrs. Carson at the Girl Scout Office, 119½ E. Colege, at 337-9239.

Miss Iowa Visits SUI; Labels Reign "A Dream"

Carolyn Northway, a coed at Marycrest College in Davenport who is doubling as our current Miss Iowa, said on her visit here that her reign "has been like a dream of something I never felt could come true."

Although she is kept quite busy with her royal duties touring the state, Miss Northway manages to carry 12½ hours of credit in music and music theory courses.

She plays the piano well and someday hopes to teach others. At the Miss America pageant in Atlantic City recently, Carolyn was named the most talented musician of 50 contestants and was awarded a $1,000 talent scholarship.

Miss Northway commented that "one would be amazed at how unaware you are at the time of an

Dieticians Chosen For Scholarships

Donna Due Thedford, Shirley A. Simpson, Annette Therese Gormican and Margaret M. Conner were recently awarded $500 scholarship awards at the 46th Annual Meeting of the American Dietetic Association, Thursday evening, October 17 in Philadelphia.

Miss Donna Thedford of Tyler, Tex., began her one-year dietetic internship here at the University Hospitals in June. A graduate of Texas Women's University, she was a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron, Alpha Chi and Phi Theta Kappa honorary societies.

Miss Simpson, from Nampa, Idaho, graduated from Brigham Young University and began her one-year dietetic internship at the SUI hospitals in September. She was a member of the college home economics club and of Alpha Lambda Delta.

Margaret Conner, principal nutritionist, Department of Health, City of New York, is the 1963 recipient of the Lydia J. Roberts Essay Award. Miss Conner's winning essay was on "A History of Dietary Standards." She received both her BS and MS degrees from SUI.

Miss Gormican, Fond du Lac, Wis., was awarded the Mary Swartz Rose Fellowship for Advanced Study.

She is presently working toward her doctoral degree in nutrition here, where she received her MS degree. Miss Gormican received her BS degree from the College of St. Catherine, St. Paul, Minn.

She is a member of the American Dietetic Association as well as Phi Beta Kappa, Iota Sigma Pi and Delta Phi Lambda, honor societies. She is also an active member of Sigma Delta Epsilon and Omicron Nu honor societies.

event, such as the Miss Iowa Pageant, of what goes on about you. I don't even recall hearing the Miss Iowa song being sung as I walked down the boardwalk in Clear Lake June 28. However, I know that it was," she said.

The 19-year-old Marycrest junior who rode in SUI's Homecoming parade Friday said that she always enjoys the atmosphere of a large campus such as ours. While in Iowa City, Miss Northway was a guest at the Alpha Delta Pi sorority house. "I love the constant surge of activity here at SUI," she remarked.

Miss Iowa was to be a guest of honor at Saturday's Homecoming but at the last minute was asked to appear at Columbus Junction south of Iowa City for a celebration.

Miss Northway's trim 114-pound figure is small indication of her favorites in food. She enjoys a good T-bone steak, with baked potato and plenty of sour cream, she said.

"I enjoy being comfortable in cut offs and tennies and whenever I get home to Downers Grove, Ill., with the family, I have the opportunity to really relax," Carolyn said.

However, she wants no excuse for dressing up because two well-known clothing companies presented her with a $500 certificate to choose any attire she wanted when in Atlantic City. "The money certainly doesn't go far, though, when you have to buy so many clothes for personal appearances, she noted.

Miss Iowa's taste in clothing ranges from the popular wrap-around and bulky sweaters to dressy full length ball gowns (of which she has five or six). Simplicity in design and mellowness in color are the keynotes of her wardrobe.

An Oldsmobile Starfire convertible with numerous push-button accessories and air-conditioning provide transportation for Carolyn on her numerous engagements around the state. Her car was a gift for the year from the automobile manufacturer. With winter fast approaching however, she will be given a sedan for touring which will in turn be replaced by another convertible in the spring.

The cars are provided by manufacturers for each contestant in the Miss America Pageant. Dealers throughout the country co-operate with the company to provide each girl transportation.

Second oldest in a family of eight children, Miss Northway feels that the greatest benefits of her royalty are the scholarships she has been given. Previous to her crowning as Miss Iowa, she worked to offset college expenses. She has been awarded $2,200 in scholarships as a result of her pageant competition.

This week Miss Northway is to appear in Dubuque and Emmetsburg.

Triumph Over Extension Cords with FULL HOUSEPOWER

Under the rug... over the door... around corners... do you stretch extension cords from one room to another, to lamps, to a radio, to a television set, to appliances? If so, you are suffering from low housepower. Check and see if your home wiring meets these three requirements:

A three-wire, 100 Ampere service entrance, which should be considered a minimum for the average home.

Proper number of branch circuits, with wires large enough to carry electricity at full power from the service entrance to all lights and appliances. This protects against over-loading when several appliances are in use at once. Heavy duty circuits are necessary for heavy duty appliances.

An adequate number of convenience outlets, lights and switches. Outlets should be conveniently located where you need them without having to use extension cords or "octoplugs." This will insure proper lighting and lamp arrangements.

Call the Iowa-Illinois Home Wiring Division for assistance in modernizing your wiring. There's no cost or obligation.

Holds Hawkeye Hopes

Sophs Key to Hawks' Cage Success

Scheuerman Expects Speed, Rebounding To Be Better

By HARRIETT HINDMAN
Sports Editor

"How good we are in 1963 is going to depend a lot on whether our sophomores improve enough to help us in conference games or to really push the men who are starting," Iowa Basketball Coach Sharm Scheuerman said Monday at the annual basketball press day.

The Hawkeyes officially open practice today with an 18 man squad composed of four seniors, four juniors and ten sophomores. The first game is with South Dakota on the Field House court Dec. 2.

"We should be a stronger rebounding team, better than our last place finish in rebounding in the conference last year," Scheuerman said. "Our overall speed should be a little better and also our ball handling should be improved. We hope to fast break this year, but we always work on this in early season practice until we find that we don't have the personnel to make it work. We hope we can this year; we prefer to fast break if at all possible."

Another area in which the 1963 Hawks hope to show improvement is in shooting. Iowa finished last in that department in the Big Ten last year. Scheuerman said, "I feel that our offense got us the good shots last year, but we just weren't able to hit them."

SEVEN RETURNING LETTERMEN form the nucleus of this year's squad. The Hawkeyes are led by captain Andy Hankins, 6-0 senior from Waukegan, Ill. "Hankins is a real fine ball player. We are hoping that Andy will have his best year," Scheuerman commented. "Everyone knows how good he has looked at times and we will be trying to get him to look that good all of the time this year."

Listed with Hankins in the pre-season starting lineup are forwards Dave Roach and Terry Lyon, center George Peoples, and guard Jimmy Rodgers. The Iowa coach said that, although it is possible that the lineup will change, he feels that it will probably be about the same when the season opens.

"ROACH HAS FINALLY found himself at the inside forward spot," Scheuerman said. "We tried to prove his shooting and moves well. He does a lot of things that no coach can teach."

Other returning lettermen are Mike Denoma, Fred Riddle and Bill Skea. Riddle will not join the basketball squad until Nov. 23 because of his duties as football quarterback.

"I think we have a pretty good situation concerning the sophomores," Scheuerman said. "Last year we had to use them right away. This year we won't have to play them so soon, but with improvement some of the sophomores could help us."

RANKED AS TOP SOPHOMORES are Ed Bastian, Joel Jensen, Gary Olson, Trevor Toland, Dennis Pauling, Karl Noonan, and Jim Rosborough.

"We have a fairly tough schedule this year, but we play eleven home games compared to only nine last year," Scheuerman commented. He predicted that the Big Ten would be stronger over-all this year with Michigan the team to beat because of its "size, strength and basic ability." Northwestern could also be a contender if sophomore center Jack Pitts comes along.

BROADCASTS—Twenty originating broadcasts are scheduled for the Wisconsin-Iowa football game from Iowa Stadium Saturday. It is possible that this is a national record. One station has at least 20 "feeds" and several others have from six to ten. The game will not be televised.

Olympic Committee Involved In Many Political Problems

BADEN - BADEN, Germany (AP) — Avery Brundage, survivor of countless battles in Olympic councils, conceded Monday night that the 1963 session of the International Olympic Committee is beset with more political problems than ever.

"We have troubles, many troubles not of our own making," the American president of the IOC told newsmen as the committee assembled here for its 60th session since it came into being in 1894.

"Every political problem is thrown on our doorstep," he complained. By that, Brundage obviously meant a new row over North and South Korea, East and West Germany, and South Africa with its racial policy.

Brundage went on that it was essential that the IOC not be pushed into a political problem. "We have the South African Olympic Committee," he said.

"If it is desirable that we have a South African Olympic Committee then all we are concerned with is that that committee can organize Olympic sport. If the Olympic Committee is allowed then the question is whether it is allowed to do so."

Brundage then talked about possible innocent victims if a country were suspended from the Olympic Games.

He said "We are faced with two alternatives. You can either suspend an Olympic Committee in which case there will be many innocent people inside that country who might suffer."

Brundage's remarks came as the agenda was set for one of the most explosive IOC sessions — an agenda that looks more like one for the United Nations.

Kennel Club To Sponsor Dog Show

The local Hawkeye Kennel Club will hold its first Dog Show Match sanctioned by the American Kennel Club Sunday in the Exhibitors Hall on the Johnson County 4-H grounds.

Dog entries will be taken starting at 10 a.m. and judging will start at 1 p.m. Judges are Robert Jadjl of Ely, Ray Loupee of Newton and T. M. Ingersoll of Cedar Rapids.

Sunday's match is a beginners match, the first of its kind in Iowa City. All local owners of purebred dogs, registered or eligible for registration, are eligible to enter their dogs. Although no points toward a dogs championship, can be given at this match trophies and off-color ribbons will be awarded.

Jimmy Brown: Collier Has 'Compassion for His Players'

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Brown said he felt sorry for Blanton Collier, his new boss, and observed Monday that Blanton Collier, his new boss, has "a little more compassion for people."

The Cleveland fullback, who ripped the New York Giants to shreds Sunday in a 35-24 victory, spoke at a luncheon of the Quarterback Club.

"Everybody asks if we are trying to show up Paul Brown," said Jimmy. "That is ridiculous. We have no animosity at all for him. I sort of feel sorry for him. He is a proud man who was a great coach. With a couple of adjustments, he could have been top dog in Cleveland for years with a terrific team. Because he didn't make those adjustments, it is sort of a tragedy."

"We are looking forward, not back. We have a positive attitude. We wish Paul no bad luck at all. We hope he goes on and gets a team. We're not trying to prove anything about Paul except that we can play football."

Jimmy said Collier was responsible for the club's new attitude. "This is the first time we ever came to New York without worrying about internal problems (he didn't elaborate). When we got off to a bad start nobody dropped his head. They all stayed in there."

"Our new offense isn't so new. We do have option blocking. I will do a lot of running, not just guard to guard. I might go anywhere."

"Under Paul it was, 'Do your job and don't worry so much about the others.' That was great as long as our personnel was great, but not so good when the league balanced off. We needed spirit and a different attitude. We have it now."

"Blanton worked for Paul. He still retains a lot of Paul's ideas. The players don't want to see radical changes. They wanted to maintain all the good and add a few more. It is the little things that make the difference. Paul was a real fine coach. Blanton is a real fine coach. Blanton had a little more compassion for people."

Brown said the Cleveland club had followed the lead of the Giants' organization in some of its thinking, such as naming player-coaches.

"It has made a new man out of me and a lot of the players," he said.

When asked if he now was a player-coach, Brown said, "No, not me. Ray Renfro is sort of an unofficial player-coach and Bernie Parrish isn't a coach, but he helps the other defensive backs a lot. I try to do everything I can with suggestions to help the others."

Now that Cleveland's shuttle guard system to send in plays has been abandoned, Brown was asked if the team alternated ends for the same reason.

"An end might bring in a play," he said. "But not always. Blanton calls some, Frank Ryan calls some, Dum Jones sends in some from what he sees in the pressbox and I even call some."

Wilkinson said the Sooners did not play as well as they are capable of playing in the loss to Texas, but placed the blame for the loss mostly on lack of quickness.

"Texas got off the mark better than we did on both defense and offense. We're just not a quick team. I don't mean that disparagingly but it's a fact of life," Wilkinson said.

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma football coach Bud Wilkinson left little doubt Monday that he thinks Texas' 28-7 victory over the Sooners Saturday was no fluke.

"We could play them another 100 times and the result wouldn't change," Wilkinson said at a luncheon.

Mississippi State Finally Steps Out Of Rival's Shadow

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Did you say Mississippi State was approaching the midpoint of the collegiate football season and is still unbeaten?

Aren't you confused? Don't you mean Ole Miss?

Nope! It IS Mississippi State. For 16 lean years (that's how long John Vaught has been coaching at Ole Miss.) Mississippi State has lived in the shadows while arch-rival Mississippi built a national reputation.

All of a sudden, Mississippi State — after four weeks of the 1964 season — finds itself undefeated. Only a 6-6 tie with Florida, the team that knocked off mighty Alabama last weekend, mars the Maroons' record.

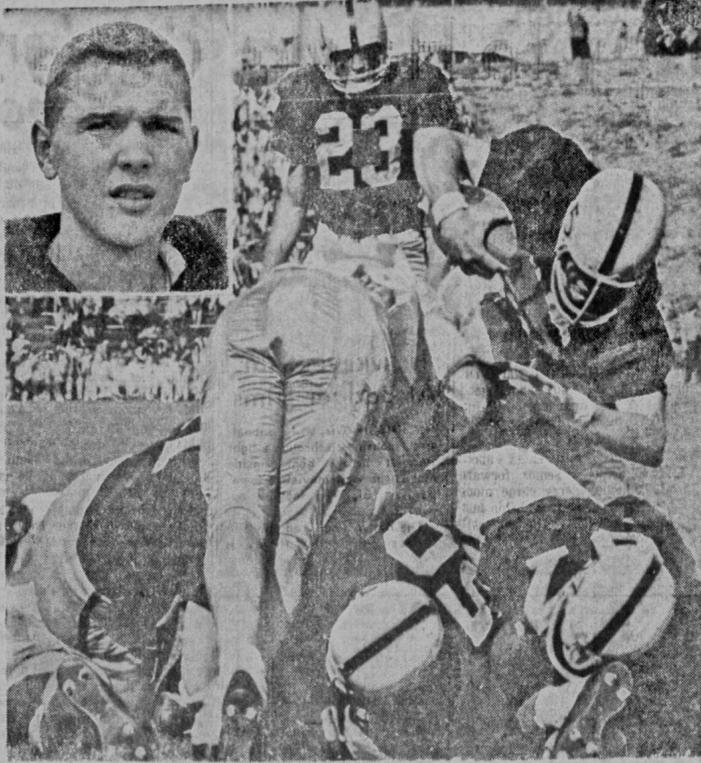

This Saturday the Maroons should get victory No. 4, unless Houston pulls off a monumental upset.

Tennessee Claims Tech Touchdown Play Was Illegal

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee Coach Jim McDonald said Monday a sleeper pass play on which Georgia Tech scored a touchdown Saturday not only was illegal but violated a "gentleman's agreement" among Southeastern Conference coaches.

Bob Woodruff, Tennessee athletic director, filed a complaint with SEC Commissioner Bernie Moore over the play, which gave Tech a TD 25 seconds before halftime on a 54-yard pass from quarterback Billy Lothridge to end Ted Davis. Tech won the game 23-7.

McDonald said films show that Davis was about 19 yards away from the ball before the snap, in violation of the rules.

The NCAA rule book says: "Before the ball is ready for play and before the snap, each player of team A must have been within 15 yards of the ball and no simulated replacement of a player shall be used to confuse opponents."

McDonald said not only was the letter of the rules violated, "but we also have an agreement within the conference against using a layout man," as he referred to Davis.

Tech Coach Bobby Dodd said he saw nothing wrong with the play. "We have no sleeper plays at Georgia Tech. We don't believe in it," Dodd said in Atlanta.

The disputed play developed after a long pass attempt from the Tech 46. Davis did not return to the huddle, but lined up instead on the sideline near his team's bench. As Lothridge faded to pass, Davis streaked down the sideline unnoticed by Vol defenders until it was too late. He scored untouched.

Cyclones' Vaughn Leads Big Eight In Rushing

AMES (AP) — Iowa State's Tom Vaughn has taken over the Big Eight rushing lead following the Cyclones' victory over Kansas during which he gained 138 yards.

That performance gave the junior fullback from Troy, Ohio a total of 364 yards in four games this season. He moved ahead of Kansas' Gale Sayers who has rushed for 341 yards. The Cyclones held Sayers to 81 yards.

Vaughn now has a career mark of 961 yards rushing, putting him in sixth place in the Iowa State record book.

Dick Limerich has tied the Iowa State touchdown record on scoring passes, having covered a total of 916 yards on 10 passes caught.

Burns: Wisconsin Key Game

Riddle Sets Big 10 Record in 37-26 Win over Indiana

"A fine victory," was what Iowa Coach Jerry Burns called the Hawkeyes 37-26 Homecoming victory over Indiana Saturday. "It sets us up for the game with Wisconsin this weekend," Burns said. "Wisconsin's the big game and one we must win if we are to make a strong showing in the conference race. The Badgers have strong running, fine passing and squad depth but I feel that Iowa is coming along well and that the veterans on the squad want to make up for that 42-14 loss at Madison last fall."

Burns was not satisfied with the way the Hawks moved the ball on the ground for 125 yards against the Hoosiers. "We actually thought we'd move the ball better on the ground. We worked on it all week and thought we were doing better than ever."

Two new offensive plays had been added to the Hawk plan before the meeting with the Hoosiers, a double handoff on an end-around play, and a double reverse.

"We will work even harder this week toward strengthening our running attack. We must have it strong enough as a threat to help our passing game. One objective is to improve the diversification and mis-direction of the plays," Burns said Monday as the Hawks started preparation for the Wisconsin game.

Passing was the Hawkeye mainstay in Iowa's first conference win of the season. Fred Riddle, junior quarterback from Collinsville, Ill., set a Big Ten record as he threw for five touchdowns. The old record of four scoring passes in one game was held by Tony Curcillo of Ohio State in 1951, Dale Samuels of Illinois in 1952, and Tom Myers of Northwestern in 1962.

Indiana Coach Phil Dickens said after Saturday's loss, "Iowa could be a Big Ten contender, but it's too early to say. They sure could hit their receivers and if they keep playing in this fashion they could have a fine club. Riddle threw well and has fine receivers in Krause and Webb."

Iowa fans had only two chances to see All-American candidate, halfback Marv Woodson, in action. The Hoosier speedster injured his knee on Indiana's first play from scrimmage, returned to the game for a kickoff return, but the knee would not hold up. Woodson will be lost to the Hoosiers for the Michigan State game Saturday.

Five interceptions, three by Iowa linemen, and two recovered Indiana fumbles helped the Hawks to a 23-0 lead in the second quarter. Indiana scored just before the half to make it 23-6 at intermission. Record breaking Riddle's touchdown aerials were caught by Tony Giacobazzi, Paul Krause and Cloyd Webb. Giacobazzi and Krause each tallied two scores with one to the Hawk flanker covering 76 yards. Iowa's other score was a 25-yard field goal by Jay Roberts which opened the scoring column.

Chicago's Dick Ellsworth Comeback Player of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Ellsworth of the Chicago Cubs, a 20-game loser in 1962 and a 22-game winner the past season, was named the National League's comeback player-of-the-year Monday in the annual Associated Press poll.

The 6-foot-4 southpaw collected 24 votes in the balloting by 68 baseball writers. Curt Simmons of St. Louis, another lefty pitcher, was second with 11 votes followed by Dick Groat, the Cards' shortstop, 10 and Ron Santo, Chicago Cubs' third baseman, 9.

Ellsworth had a 9-20 record with an earned run average of 5.08 in 1962. Last season, he put together a 22-10 mark and a sparkling 2.10 ERA. Seven of his losses were in low-run games. He lost 1-0 and 3-0 twice each, also 2-1, 3-2 and 3-1.

Ellsworth pitched 19 complete games, including four shutouts, in 37 starts and walked 75 while striking out 185 in 290½ innings.

Simmons won 15 games and lost nine in 1963. He posted six shutouts, including consecutive white-washings of the New York Mets, Chicago Cubs and Milwaukee Braves early in September. The veteran left-hander, a 17-game winner for the pennant-winning Philadelphia Phillies in 1950, was unconditionally released by the Phils in May, 1960, and signed by the Cards. His 1962 record was 10-10.

Groat, obtained from Pittsburgh last winter, hit .319 last season, 25 points higher than in 1962. He was the circuit's top batsman in 1960 with .325, fell to .275 in 1961 and moved up to .294 the following season.

Santo, a .227 hitter in '62, was among the most productive batters in '63 with a .297 average, 25 home runs and 99 runs batted in.

Others who received consideration were Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers, six votes; Joe Nuxhall, Cincinnati, and Wes Covington, Philadelphia, two each, and Warren Spahn, Milwaukee, Harvey Kuenn, San Francisco, Jim Maloney, Cincinnati, and Don Elston, Chicago, one each.

The international community that's SUI. What goes on there?

Students come to Iowa City from every corner of the country, and the world. Lone Tree, Centerville, Chicago, New York, Bombay, Hong Kong, Greece, Saudi Arabia, Holland, Sweden, England, Australia, Japan. And November Holiday introduces you to this amazing University community in a stunning article on education in America, written by an SUI graduate, Calvin Kenfield (in whose day the enrollment was 3,000). What goes on in this vast milieu that mixes learning with opportunities for drinking, status seeking and mediocrity? Everything. Girls in hair curlers, boys with easy dates. AND a stubborn minority who like to talk "books." A torrent of high-living students with their procession of parties, bourbon bottles, socializing and cars. AND the other faction — loners, talented exceptions, graduate students in law, medicine, mathematics, and the poets and painters, whose devotion and legitimate work give the University its authenticity and its pride. SUI is a revelation in 20th Century schooling on a mass scale. Disturbing, extraordinary, yet all too ordinary in the trend that modern education has taken in this country. A feature you won't want to miss in November Holiday.

Symphony Debut To Star Ferrell

John Ferrell, associate professor of music, will be featured as soloist for the Bartok "Concerto No. 2 for Violins and Orchestra" when the SUI Symphony Orchestra presents its first fall concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Main Lounge of the Union.

James Dixon, conductor, will open the 1963-64 symphony season with Ludwig van Beethoven's "Overture to Egmont, Opus 34."

Dixon has chosen another German work to complement the "Egmont"—the romantic "Symphony No. 3 in E-Flat" (Rhenish Symphony) by Robert Schumann.

The Bela Bartok concerto—a distinct contrast to the two German works of the first half of the program—is a comparatively modern work, permeated with the sound of Magyar melodies, and rich in the tradition of the 19th century virtuoso concerto. Professor Ferrell, who will play the difficult violin solo part, selected the Bartok work "because I feel that it is one of the great compositions of this century, and one of the most challenging to the mature violinist."

JOHN FERRELL

Local Citizens Against Shaff Plan Produce Slides

A member of the SUI music faculty since 1954, Ferrell holds a master's degree from the Eastman School of Music, and has been soloist with the Eastman-Rochester Symphony Orchestra. He has appeared as a concert and recital soloist in the Southwest and Midwest and is a member of the Iowa String Quartet.

Discussing the three dominant works on the program, Professor Dixon explained, "In a public situation you could never end the program with a work like the Bartok—you would have to give them a 'bonbon' afterward."

He added, "The Bartok is, after all, 20 years old. It is not severe—I think they will like it."

Dixon, whose colorful career has included several conducting engagements abroad, has been invited to conduct the West German Radio Orchestra in Cologne next June. He earned both Bachelor of Music and Master of Arts degrees from SUI, and is the second member of the SUI faculty to receive the Gustav Mahler medal for his numerous performances of Mahler's symphonies in Boston, Minneapolis and Iowa City.

The Johnson County Citizens Against the Shaff Plan Organization is preparing a 29-minute slide-film which illustrates objections to the measure.

The slides show many charts and diagrams, accompanied by taped narrative and music. Several sets of the slides will be ready for distribution next week to local organizations as well as those around the state, according to Mrs. Fred Doderer, vice-chairman of the organization.

The film describes Iowa history in connection with the apportionment system. The various objections to the Shaff Plan are shown, including the opinion that the plan is "a thinly-masked plot for minority control of the legislature and of Iowa."

David Oetien, G. Oskaloosa, directed production of the film and text.

The Shaff Plan would apportion the House of Representatives on an area basis with one member for each county and the Senate on a population basis with 56 members. The plan was passed by two sessions of the Iowa legislature. The public will vote Dec. 3.

Danforth Aids Set for 100 Grads, Seniors

The Danforth Foundation will award approximately 100 graduate fellowships for the 1964-65 academic year to male college seniors and recent graduates preparing for careers in college teaching, counseling or administration, according to J. Richard Wilmeth, associate professor of sociology, who is campus representative for the foundation.

Wilmeth announced that applications for the fellowships will be accepted through Nov. 1.

The fellowships, awarded on a one-year basis but renewable up to four years, allow a maximum annual stipend of $1,500 for single men and $2,000 plus dependency allowances for married men. Tuition and fees are also paid.

Applicants will be judged in intellectual promise, personality, integrity, genuine interest in religion, and potential. They may pursue any field of study common to the undergraduate liberal arts and sciences curriculum. Persons who have already undertaken graduate work are not eligible.

Prospective applicants should contact Wilmeth for further information.

Hancher To Speak At Honors Banquet

President Hancher will address a group of fraternity scholars and faculty members at the seventh annual Phi Alpha Mu honors banquet at 6:15 tonight in the main dining room of the Jefferson Hotel.

Established in 1957 in honor of alumni of SUI, Phi Alpha Mu confers membership on social fraternity members at SUI who have earned a minimum grade-point average of 3.3 (3 designates a "B" average) for at least 60 semesters and who have contributed actively to projects of the University and their fraternities.

Richard Asinger, A3, Cedar Falls, chairman of the Interfraternity Council Scholarship Committee, has announced that Phi Epsilon Pi took scholarship honors for 1962-63. The fraternity will receive the Sigma Chi Foundation Scholarship Trophy for earning the highest over-all scholarship average among social fraternities at SUI last year—2.547. Second and third places will go to Sigma Pi, with a 2.488 average, and Phi Kappa Psi, with 2.447.

The first-place pledge scholarship award will go to Phi Epsilon Pi, whose pledges made a grade average of 2.506. Second and third places were earned by Sigma Nu, 2.450, and Delta Tau Delta, 2.407. Phi Epsilon Pi will also be recognized as having made the greatest grade-point improvement during last year. Ranking second and third in this category were Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Pi. In addition, awards will be presented to the member in each fraternity who achieved the greatest improvement in scholarship from the fall to the spring semester.

Guests of the Interfraternity Council and Phi Alpha Mu, co-sponsors of the honors dinner, will include, in addition to the honorees, University administrators, deans of SUI colleges, and the presidents and scholarship chairmen of the social fraternities, whose memberships total more than 850 undergraduate men.

Those to be honored as new members of Phi Alpha Mu are:

Larry D. Travis, A3, Clinton; Sigma Nu; Steven R. Drish, A3, Davenport; Phi Gamma Delta; Gary C. Johnson, A3, Denison; Pi Kappa Alpha; Wilmer N. Nelson, A3, Des Moines; Sigma Pi; Martin Schaeferle, A3, Eagle Grove; Beta Theta Pi; James J. Matthews, A3, Farmersburg; Delta Tau Delta; Terry Noonan, E3, Fort Madison; Phi Gamma Delta; Stephen C. Shank, A3, Iowa City; Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Steven Wilson, A2, Monticello; Beta Theta Pi; Stanley Verhoeven, A3, Woodland Hills; Phi Delta Theta; Stephen Deutscher, A3, Rahway, N.J.; Alpha Epsilon Pi.

'Rashomon' Opens 'U' Theatre Oct. 24

University Theatre will open its 1963-64 season Oct. 24 with "Rashomon," a play whose international reputation promises high feeling on stage as well as in the audience. It will be presented through Oct. 26 and Oct. 30-31 and Nov. 1 and 2.

The play, by Michael and Fay Kanin, sharpens beauty with pain in its dramatic examination of the nature of truth. Several witnesses to a murder tell their versions of the crime, each differing from the other. The audience must decide which, if any, is the true story.

Playing the part of the husband, who is murdered early in the play, is Daniel Alkofer, Grayslake, Ill., graduate student at SUI. Through the voice of a Medium, acted by Carla Ison, A3, Frankfort, Ky., the deceased husband describes his death at the hands of the bandit, played by Ronald E. Duffy, G, Iowa City.

Holly Michaels, A4, Oskaloosa, portrays the anguished wife of the victim, and D. P. Hill, G, Coralville, takes the part of the wood-cutter who witnesses the act. Both add their stories, which are doubted by the wigmaker, played by D. G. Buckles, A3, Muscatine. Bing Bills, G, Urbana, Ohio, takes the role of the Priest.

Sulowans' Cars Collide Here

Two cars driven by SUI students collided at the intersection of Madison and Washington Streets early Monday night.

Charles W. Smith, A3, Chicago, Ill., and Kwang Chun Peng, G, China, were taken to the police station after their cars sideswiped each other at the intersection.

No one was injured and damage to both vehicles was slight. Police did not file charges.

Flood Study Report Available by Mail

A study of the floods in the Cedar River basin area is now available in the form of a bulletin published by the Iowa Highway Research Board, according to an announcement by the Department of Interior's Geological Survey.

The publication, bulletin 27, presents flood data for the severe flood of 1961, as well as information on 1960 and 1962 floods throughout the major portion of the basin.

Copies of the bulletin are available from the Iowa Highway Research Board, Iowa State Highway Commission in Ames

Prize Winning Floats Burnt Over Weekend

Two floats, both winners in Friday night's Homecoming parade, were destroyed by fire by persons unknown over the weekend.

The Sweepstakes winner, "Happiness is Homecoming," which was on display at the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity house, was burned early Saturday morning.

"We've Got DeFeet Locked Up," displayed before the Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity was discovered burning at 6:30 p. m. Sunday. It was the humor division winner.

The Sunday blaze was discovered by Laurence Greene, A2, Omaha. He told members of the fraternity, who battled the blaze with four fire extinguishers, getting it under control by the time Iowa City firemen arrived.

The farm wagon on which the float had been built and some limbs on a tree overhanging the float were damaged by the fire.

Greene said he had not seen anyone around the float before the fire.

A spokesman for Phi Epsilon Pi, Elliott Pearl, A2, Skokie, Ill., said the house suspects the same person set both the fires.

In the Sweepstakes winner blaze, two farm wagons were damaged.

Cast Named for Community Play

The Iowa City Community Theater Monday announced the cast for its first production of the season, "Look Back in Anger," by John Osborne.

Members of the cast include Michele Giannetti, A2, Natick, Mass.; Mrs. Stephen Schultz, A2, Iowa City; Mrs. Lloyd Frerer, A4, Iowa City; Pierre Laroque, G, Montreal, Canada; and Philip Fisher, A4, West Bend.

Four performances, Nov. 6, 7, 8, and 9 are planned at Montgomery Hall, 4-H fairgrounds. The change from three performances in the past, to the planned four is to provide adequate seating for an expected increase in attendance.

Tickets may be reserved in advance by calling 8-5493, the Recreation Commission Office. They will also be available at the door.

Skyrocketing Maynard Ferguson

Loves: His wife, food, golf, trumpet

Cites Road Mishap—

Ferguson Band Almost Didn't Make It Here

By MIKE TEGTMEYER Staff Writer

Facial expressions puzzled, intent, but rarely disinterested surrounded Maynard Ferguson and his orchestra Saturday night when they performed at the Homecoming Dance in the Union.

Ferguson traveled almost 1,000 miles from New York to be present for the dance from 8-12 p.m.

"It's a wonder we made it," Ferguson said during intermission.

"My band truck was involved in an accident on the Indiana tollway and three of my boys were injured," Ferguson explained.

His regular drummer was replaced for the performance because he had 26 stitches in his face. Many of the group's instruments were damaged in the mishap but nevertheless made it for the appearance.

Ferguson makes his home in the Riverdale suburb of New York City about 40 blocks north of the George Washington Bridge.

His wife loves to accompany him on his long-term engagements but seldom goes with him for one night stands such as his appearance here.

"WHEN SHE CAN come along, we love to get in as much golf as possible," Ferguson remarked. "We are real golf addicts." He is the father of five children.

The oldest is 12 and the youngest is one and one-half. He mentioned that his oldest daughter has already displayed some ability as a dancer and writer.

Ferguson was born and reared in Canada, near Montreal. His mother, 73, still teaches school there now. His father is a retired high school principal.

"I HAVE BEEN studying music since the age of 4," Ferguson interjected. He said he received his first inspiration to be a musician after his first visit to church.

"I heard a cornet solo with a piano accompaniment and thereafter begged until my father bought my first instrument," Ferguson explained.

"I just love any kind of food you can think of," the well-built 168-pound Ferguson remarked. He comes from a family of two-hundred-pounders, he said.

"My group often plays more places than the big bands — my favorite spots are those which we haven't played yet," Ferguson said.

Ferguson's band has played "hundreds of colleges on his circuit across country and he adds that colleges are constantly hiring them for concert appearances.

Recently they performed in Texas and Oklahoma and this week Ferguson and orchestra are scheduled to appear at the Holiday Club and the Club Laurel in Chicago.

Wesleyan University in Bloomington, Ind., will play host to Ferguson and his orchestra in an appearance there this week.

the situation at an eight-hour emergency session under President Ahmed Ben Bella.

It decided to seek mediation of the Addis Ababa Organization of African Unity. The cabinet also sent two high-level emissaries to King Hassan II of Morocco in an effort to reach a last-minute settlement.

Bouteflika paid official tribute to mediation efforts by President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia and said Algeria has accepted Bourguiba's proposal for a meeting between the foreign ministers of the two nations.

There was no indication from Moroccan or American officials that the military situation might interfere with Mrs. Kennedy's planned four-day stay.

The king's cousin, Moulay Ali — also his brother-in-law — invited Mrs. Kennedy to dinner featuring native Moroccan foods and music.

Macmillan—

like to recommend to Queen Elizabeth as his successor, but the way Macmillan was playing the cards suggested he might favor Lord Hailsham to become the nation's next leader.

This impression is being pushed by followers of the flamboyant lord who has served notice of his intention to disclaim his peerage and become eligible for the prime ministry.

In quick succession late Monday, Macmillan called Lord Dilhorne and Martin Redmayne to his sickbed. Dilhorne, the lord chancellor, has been taking a survey of cabinet opinion on contenders for the succession. Redmayne, government floor manager in the House of Commons, has been doing the same among elected and prospective Conservative lawmakers.

The ratings they gave Macmillan will have an important bearing on the advice he gives Queen Elizabeth, if the monarch invites him to do so when he hands in his formal resignation.

Highway Bypass Brings Demands For Council Ruling

The City Council will consider a letter urging prompt decision on the location of the Highway 6 bypass at 7:30 tonight.

The letter had been signed by more than 15 people.

The Council will also hold a public hearing on land acquisition for a proposed parking ramp on College Street between Linn and Dubuque Streets.

A hearing on final assessments for storm sewer construction in four downtown alleys, joining roof rainpouts into the sewer lines to prevent icing in cold weather is also scheduled.

Judges and clerks for the Oct. 22 primary and Nov. 5 elections will be appointed at this meeting.

The rezoning of the 1000 block of Rochester Avenue to R3A residential is also on the agenda.

Here's Why—

Bugs Bugging You?

By CELE FERNER City Editor

October is a big time for all bugs. They're on the move again — looking for winter quarters or simply a last stand, says Harold Gunderson, extension entomologist at Iowa State University.

Some bugs aren't noticed. Others make us wonder if we'll survive until the first freeze. Those are the ones that bite, and cover the TV screen, and the few miniature monsters that simply give us goose bumps.

If you've wondered where fruit flies came from, Gunderson says they probably hitched a ride indoors on ripe tomatoes, grapes and apples. It doesn't take them long to fill the kitchen.

en — they grow from eggs to adults in five days. Barefoot? Watch where you step.

You may step on a little brown, many-legged worm with a hard shell that has a habit of curling up when touched.

Called millipedes, the harmless worms are looking for winter quarters and are coming into houses through cracks you'd swear weren't there.

The "Insidious Flower Bugs" — and that's their real name — is classed as a beneficial insect, says Gunderson, because they are predators, feeding on cornborer eggs and larva in stored grain. But they don't limit their feeding to other bugs — they like humans too. Advise: Don't be bugged by the bugs.

Surprised

No, DI photographer Joe Kirkish wasn't covering a riot as it appeared by viewing a picture on page one. It's Chi Omega sorority sisters embracing (really) each other when Joeth Mannebach was named Miss SUI Friday night. Miss Mannebach, A2, Glenview, Ill., a member of Chi Omega was a little stunned herself as we can see.

25,300 People Take Oral Polio Vaccine

Vaccine distribution points in 11 locations around Johnson County received almost 25,300 persons Sunday for their first dose of the Sabin oral polio vaccine.

Sponsors of the program were 40,000 doses of the vaccine had been ordered "just in case" more came.

Distribution was fairly smooth all afternoon with most persons passing through the clinic in a matter of minutes.

The unused 15,000 doses will not be wasted according to Dr. C. E. Schrock of the Johnson County Medical Society. He said that it was kept from spoiling by freezing and will be returned to the manufacturer.

Persons who missed the first dose (Type I) in the three-dose program are not likely to get a second chance through a mass clinic, Dr. Schrock said.

There will be no make-up sessions and persons will have to receive the dose from a private physician at a higher cost.

He pointed out that unless they receive it within the next few days, they will not be able to participate in the second program November 10. A 30-day waiting period is required between doses, Dr. Schrock said.

The second and third clinics in the program will be held on November 10 and December 8 respectively.

Members of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity assisted in Sunday's clinic.

1st Murray Lecture Now Sold Out Here

No tickets remain for the Murray Memorial Lecture to be given at SUI by Jerome Hall, professor of law at Indiana University, Friday night.

Professor Hall's talk, "Science, Common Sense, and Criminal Law Reform," will be heard by some 400 Iowa lawyers attending the College of Law Legal Institute on "Estate Planning and Administration Under the New Iowa Probate Code" at SUI Friday and Saturday.

SUI students and faculty members received the remaining free tickets after they went on distribution Thursday.

COMPARE the dependability of gas service that comes to you thru a vast underground transmission system with that of any other fuel. No interruptions because of weather. No delivery problem. Gas is there when you need it.

COMPARE the economy of natural gas and you will find that the savings you make in cost of fuel and maintenance of appliances makes gas your best bargain in better living.

COMPARE the automatic features of gas appliances with any other modern appliance and you will know that the clean blue gas flame of better living is your best buy for convenience and comfort.

NGPL FACT FILE: The growth of underground storage since 1951 reflects the vital importance of this operation of the gas industry. Ten years ago storage capacity was 916 billion cubic feet, but by the beginning of this year it had jumped to 3.1 trillion cubic feet. The American Gas Association estimates that the gas industry has an 845-million-dollar capital investment in underground storage facilities in 21 states. NGPL operates such facilities at two locations in central and northern Illinois and is actively exploring additional storage prospects in Iowa.
