

Rouser Fares Better Than Alma Mater

"And now we'll end the pep rally by singing Old Gold, our school hymn," Tom Dittmer, A4, Sioux City, announced Thursday night.

So the fans present pulled out their copies of the hymn which had been distributed before the rally and prepared to sing.

However, Dittmer had overlooked one small item — he didn't know the tune of SU's traditional song and neither did any other of the Pep Club members close to the microphone.

So the cheerleaders swung into another rousing rendition of the Iowa Fight song, for the second time in a row, and the crowd dispersed.

Earlier portions of the Pep Rally in front of Old Capitol fared better. Dittmer, master of ceremonies, opened the rally by asking:

"What do you think a great big hawk would do to an itty-bitty badger if he caught him digging holes in a football field?"

And the crowd chanted, "Kill, Kill, Kill!"

Moe Whitebook, guest speaker, said, "Last week President Virgil Hancher asked the team to win one for the old man."

"This week I want to ask them to win one for themselves and the coaching staff."

Whitebook reminded students that SU was one of the three "unbeaten and once-tied teams" in the nation.

"Let's have it be the same way after Saturday's game," he concluded.

A musical touch for the pep rally was provided by Danny and the Pledges whose electric guitar version of the Iowa Fight song was enthusiastically accepted by the smaller-than-usual crowd.

Clues to Miss Pep have been discontinued at pep rallies, according to Pep Club President Frank Patton, A3, Wilmette, Ill.

They will now be announced over the loudspeaker during the remaining home football games.

Council, Park Board Aspirants Discuss Views on City Issues

Ten aspirants for election to City Council and three candidates for City Park Board were questioned about issues of importance to Iowa City at a "Know Your Candidate" forum Thursday night at City High School Auditorium.

Sponsors of the forum — the Council Manager Association, League of Women Voters, Chamber of Commerce, and Jaycees — submitted the questions, which ranged from "What is the number one problem facing Iowa City and what would you do about it if you were elected?" to "What is your opinion of parking ramps as a solution to Iowa City's parking problems?"

A complete story on each candidate's answers will be printed in Saturday's Daily Iowan.

The ten council candidates will be narrowed to six in a primary election Tuesday. From these, three will be elected to fill vacant council seats in the Nov. 5 general election.

The three Park Board candidates will be narrowed to two for the general election for the one vacant seat.

City Council candidates were asked seven questions, four of which were optional. All ten candidates, however, responded to all questions.

The Park Board threesome was required to answer all three questions asked of them, which included "What do you conceive the role of the Park Board to be in meeting the recreational needs of the community?", "How do you feel about present distribution and number of parks?", and "What is the number one problem facing Iowa City and what would you do about it if you were elected?"

Moderated by Attorney William Meardon, the panel consisted of council candidates John Wilson, James Nesmith, Dale Miller, Eugene Larew, William Hubbard, Richard Feney, Dr. Richard Eckhardt, Robert Dautremont, Richard Burger and Eric Bergsten, and Park Board candidates Richard Holzappel, William Grandrath and Richard Burston.

Questions posed to the council candidates were: "In your opinion what are the relative functions of the city manager and the city council under our present form of government?"

"What is your opinion of parking ramps as a solution to Iowa City's parking problems?"

"In planning for the future growth and development of the city, what specific steps would you recommend for annexing new areas?"

"What are your thoughts about urban renewal, particularly concerning the downtown area?"

"A Human Relations Commission has recently been established by the City Council. Will you please express your personal feelings regarding equal opportunities and rights for all Iowa City residents, regardless of race, creed or national origin in fields such as employment, education and housing?"

At the conclusion of the planned questions, the audience of several hundred was asked if it wanted to hear an additional question discussed. "What is the number one problem facing Iowa City and what would you do about it if you were elected?" The audience voted to listen to a discussion of this additional topic.

EXHIBIT LACKS VALUES — MOSCOW (AP) — Kazakhstan Pravda, a Communist party paper, says the U.S. exhibition of graphic arts lacks "spiritual values." But the people seem to like it. Thousands of Soviet citizens have jammed the exhibit daily.

Liberal Arts Issues Aired With Faculty

SU's adviser system, information on higher education, finals and the University Library were discussed Thursday at a meeting of the senior class officers of the College of Liberal Arts; the Educational Policy Committee and the Executive Council of the College.

Debbie Ziffren, A4, Rock Island, Ill., president of the senior class, asked the faculty members if it would not be possible to publish the finals schedule in the Schedule of Courses book so that students would know when their finals were at registration.

The faculty members were in general agreement that this might be a good idea although they cited problems of scheduling finals that far ahead because of not knowing how many students would enroll in individual courses.

Lloyd Knowler, professor of mathematics, suggested that the schedule be released about six weeks after the semester begins. This would be late enough to know how many students were in each course and would be much earlier than the present system. He suggested that the limit of finals in one day be reduced from three to two.

The class officers asked if the adviser system could not be improved so as to provide the students with better counseling throughout their college career.

They asked for contact with the advisers on a more personal level such as having group sessions in the advisers' homes.

The students also discussed the difficulty of getting information on graduate schools other than at SU and fellowships and scholarships to various schools. The students suggested that a central office be created to provide this information.

Dewey B. Stuit, dean of the college, told the students that this will be discussed with the departments to see what can be done.

Miss Ziffren asked the faculty if the University Library operations could not be changed to include remaining open until midnight on Saturday, being open 22 to 24 hours per day during finals, having refreshment machines in the library lounge, keeping department libraries open later at night, more monitoring to keep the talking down, provide more smoking facilities, speeding up reshelving and opening study halls in more buildings around campus.

Mrs. Nhu: Cut in Aid Would Help Communists

RALEIGH, N. C. — Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, heavily guarded against any attempts to harm her, said Thursday night that any cut in U.S. aid to South Viet Nam would delay victory against the Communists.

Algerian Fighting Renewed; Peace Talks Are Suspended

Reading Is A Pleasure, Says Ciardi

By PEGGY ROGERS Staff Writer

ohn Ciardi, noted author, lecturer and teacher and poetry editor of the Saturday Review, spoke Thursday evening to an enthusiastic audience that filled the Main Lounge of the Union.

Of his topic, "Why Read?", Ciardi remarked, "If you have to ask, you'll never know, for one must first have a response to what one reads before one can truly learn." Ciardi remarked on the limitations of our school systems which discourage students from the natural enjoyment of language.

Relating his remarks especially to the enjoyment of poetry, Ciardi stated that the emphasis on categorization, content and rationality in the school room situation blocks the pleasure and joy in reading.

Ciardi emphasized the active pleasure in reading, saying, "Any reading that matters involves our emotions and is an act of pleasure."

"A good book," Ciardi stated, "is one that takes us vicariously out of ourselves. It pulls you into a life you need not live and a geography you need not visit. It provides you with a larger environment and widens the landscape of experience."

"In order to know good writing one must hear what language can do when joined to the imagination of the great writers. Language supremely used outlives language in which it is written," Ciardi said in reference to the great Greek and Latin writers.

Although language is never a perfected instrument, Ciardi observed, it is adequate and natural for the expression of many things. He illustrated the resonance and percussion of language with an analysis of the opening paragraph of the Constitution. "Content and rhythm conclude at the same point," Ciardi said.

In commenting on "art for art's sake" Ciardi stated that "The medium, the language, is wiser than anyone who dares use it. Language greatly used is a necessity, a sacrament, that mankind cannot do without."

Graf Man Questioned In Break-ins

A 32-year-old Graf man was arrested in his home Thursday morning in connection with three break-ins at Hills three hours earlier.

Johnson County sheriff's deputies said they are preparing a warrant to bring Robert Quinn here to face breaking and entering charges. Quinn was also questioned by Dubuque County sheriff's deputies Thursday about other recent break-ins at Wellman and Kalona, authorities said.

Johnson County deputies said about $200 in change was taken from the Deitsch Grocery; some merchandise and $20 in change from Hirt's Tavern and a few old coins from a cash register at the Farmer's Inn. The break-ins occurred around 3:30 a. m., deputies said.

Quinn had just finished serving a parole from a five-year breaking and entering sentence in Dubuque County, authorities reported, and he has a record of four previous breaking and entering convictions, to strike again.

DILLON TO APPEAL — HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon will appeal to the country's foremost industrialists Saturday for a more aggressive business drive for tax reduction.

Dillon is scheduled to address the fall meeting of the Business Council here. About 100-top corporation executives were arriving for the closed weekend sessions.

Writer's Workshop turns out good people

Famed Poet and Critic Expresses Views Here

By HARRY NEYENS Staff Writer

"A work of art must have a sense of discipline — beauty of the soul is not enough," said the Saturday Review's poetry editor John Ciardi during a press conference Thursday afternoon.

Ciardi, who was in town to open the 1963-64 SU Lecture Series Thursday evening, said a poem is a "value-justified way of treating a subject. It is never about ideas. It is about the experience of having ideas."

The difference between a major and a minor poet, the tall, dark-haired Ciardi explained, was that a major poet produces a greater amount of work than the minor poet. The major poet's writing also encompasses more of the life experience.

Ciardi, who lectures extensively and who was host for a year on the CBS television show "Accent," said he felt fiction writing workshops should be placed on an extra-curricular basis with no academic credit given.

"A workshop can't teach a person to write," the poetry editor commented. It can only help a person who already has the ability to create fiction.

However, noted Ciardi, "Iowa's Writers' Workshop has turned out a lot of good people."

Criticizing literary critics, Ciardi said some poetry critics seem to distrust the English language. They invent a terminological language to criticize literary work. Also they insist on telling the poet how to write. "I dislike these critics."

"Every poem is an act of criticism in itself," Ciardi said.

Ciardi who has taught in the English departments of Harvard and Rutgers praised the poetry of Walt Whitman and noted his poem "Song of Myself." Whitman was not a master of diction, however, Ciardi quickly added. "He clobbered it so."

Ciardi said he did not consider Anne Morrow Lindbergh's writing true artistic work. He explained he once received a great deal of criticism from his readers when he harshly reviewed one of Miss Lindbergh's books of verse, which was listed by the Book of the Month Club.

No playwright has ever equaled William Shakespeare, Ciardi commented. Tennessee Williams and other contemporary American playwrights are a long way from producing the quality of work Shakespeare did.

The modern playwrights spend all their time explaining their characters and give nothing else, Ciardi said. He added that he wished the ghost of Eugene O'Neill would blow away.

Rockets Said Being Used By Moroccans

Algiers, Algeria (AP) — Violent new fighting was reported Thursday in the undeclared desert war between Algeria and Morocco and peace talks were suspended.

Algerian negotiator H'ammed Yazid flew back to Algiers from Marrakech, Morocco, to report to President Ahmed Ben Bella. Moves toward a cease-fire had at least temporarily fizzled.

Ben Bella and Foreign Minister Abdel Aziz Bouteflika, who had been scheduled to leave Friday for New York to attend the U. N. General Assembly meeting, called off their trip.

The official Algerian news agency asserted Morocco now has 10,000 troops in the battle area and that they used rockets against outnumbered Algerians around the Sahara outposts of Hassi Beida and Tinjoub, about 900 miles southwest of Algiers.

The agency said the Algerian defenders threw back all the attacks. For the first time it named Tindouf — an important mining center near the borders of Mauritania and the Spanish Sahara — as the ultimate objective of the Moroccan troops. Tindouf is about 200 miles southwest of the combat zone.

Morocco's information minister, Abdelhadi Boutaleb, told newsmen in Marrakech an agreement in principle for a cease-fire was reached with an Algerian delegation headed by Yazid.

"We should achieve results today," Boutaleb said. "There may be a joint statement. Everyone is in agreement for an end to hostilities, but there are still questions of detail to settle."

But Yazid later contradicted him. The Algerian envoy told newsmen, "We have not found a solution."

Algiers radio and the government-controlled press stopped up their violent campaign of accusations and abuse against King Hassan II and other Moroccan leaders.

MONMOUTH, Ill. (AP) — An uneasy calm spread over Monmouth Thursday but some citizens expressed fear that an angry arsonist believed responsible for three major

Some 60 state troopers left the community but were requested to be on a stand-by basis.

Mayor Allan A. Walters said he requested that the troopers be withdrawn because he felt local police and firemen could provide adequate protection.

Residents, however, generally believed that more fires could be expected. Several business men said they would continue to pool male personnel for nighttime patrols of their establishments.

"I think we've got a nut in the community and that nut's got a grudge," said Dell B. Hardin, 68, chairman of the board of directors of the Second National Bank.

Three big fires Monday destroyed two lumber yards and a half block long factory building. Losses were estimated from $280,000 to $400,000.

An arsonist believed responsible for the fires had threatened by telephone to trigger four more Wednesday night but the community was patrolled by heavily armed troopers.

Most citizens interviewed by The Associated Press expressed belief this town of 10,000 would not return to normalcy until the arsonist is apprehended.

The Sentry Insurance Co., of Stevens Point, Wis., which underwrote coverage of one damaged property, that of Monmouth Metal Culverts, Inc., posted a $500 reward for conviction of the firebug. The firm also announced that it will liberalize coverage limits on some 800 policies in effect in the Monmouth area to relax somewhat the threat of financial loss to its customers.

Big Political Storm Expected in Britain

LONDON (AP) — A report that Prime Minister Harold Macmillan has chosen Foreign Secretary Lord Home to succeed him as Britain's prime minister and leader of the Conservative party brought threats of a cabinet revolt today.

A high government source reported that the ailing Macmillan would resign Friday and advise Queen Elizabeth II to bypass Deputy Prime Minister Richard Austen Butler in favor of Home.

A group of dissident ministers led by Reginald Maudling, chancellor of the exchequer, was reported meeting into the small hours at the home of Health Minister Enoch Powell, seeking a way to block Home's appointment.

Political associates said Maudling had thrown his considerable influence behind Butler's claims.

Others trying to stop Home apparently included Iain Macleod, Conservative floor leader in the House of Commons, and Sir Edward Boyle, the education minister. All have considerable influence among the rank and file Tories in Commons.

To take over the government, Lord Home presumably would have to quit the House of Lords and become a commoner as is permitted under a law adopted this year.

Selection of the 14th Earl of Home to lead the Conservative government in preference to Deputy Prime Minister Richard Austen Butler would represent a final and sensational victory in the political career of Macmillan, 69.

THE OLD PRIME minister battled to the end at his sickbed to thwart Butler, the man he nosed out when he took office in 1957.

The culmination seemed certain to touch off one of the biggest political storms in Britain's postwar history.

Ever since Macmillan was hurried to a hospital 11 days ago suffering from a painful bladder and prostrate ailment he appeared to have done all in his power to block Butler from the premiership.

THEIR ANIMOSITY dates from pre-war years when Macmillan resented Butler's support of appeasement policies of Neville Chamberlain's government in the Hitler era.

It looked as though Home had won the race for the Conservative party leadership not because he was the most favored candidate but because he had the fewest political enemies within the Tory hierarchy and among the Tory rank and file.

Besides Butler, other contenders for the succession were Lord Hailsham, minister of science, and Reginald Maudling, chancellor of the exchequer.

Troopers Leave Monmouth, But Night Patrols Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Tito of Yugoslavia flew in for a fast round of East-West talks with President Kennedy Thursday and then flew right out again.

It may have been the quickest visit ever paid this capital by the head of a foreign state but both sides agreed the talks were friendly and cordial and "characterized by frank discussion."

White House officials said the two principal topics of discussion were improved trade and better East-West relations.

A formal communique by the two presidents expressed a hope that relations between the United States and Yugoslavia might be developed further in all fields, "particularly in the expansion of normal trade of economic contracts, and of other exchanges."

The communique also said Kennedy and Tito agreed that the recently concluded limited nuclear test-ban treaty "was a significant initial step in lessening international tension."

"I hope as a result of your visit that the relations between our two peoples will become stronger and that our commitment to national independence will be strengthened," Kennedy said.

Tito, who broke with the Kremlin and set up an independent Communist regime, said it always has been his government's desire to maintain friendly relations with the United States.

Thanks, everyone, for Homecoming

PRESIDENT HANCHER applauds the work of all the people who helped make Homecoming a success in a letter in an adjoining column.

In editorials preceding the event, we challenged some of the groups who worked to make it possible. The Miss SUI Pageant, the Pep Club — and even the value of Homecoming itself — were all questioned.

We hope we didn't come out sounding like party poopers. We think we didn't. An editorial's function is to give constructive criticism, and that's what we try to write. We are especially happy when someone takes the criticism to heart and tries to improve — which was the case with the Pep Club.

But an editorial should also give praise when it is deserved. A lot of people worked a lot of hours to produce the Homecoming spectacular this year. And some hustling Hawks did a good job on the football field to make the weekend enjoyable.

So thanks, Homecoming workers. It was fun.

Library: for study or love-games?

IT APPEARS THAT the library has, for some students, taken the place of the Iowa Memorial Union and, in several instances, the privacy of Lovers Lane.

Although it is heart-warming to see and hear examples of friendship and affection as students hold bull sessions, assist each other with memorization drills, or prove to all bystanders that they are in love, the library does not seem quite the right setting for these activities.

Bull sessions are more in place in a smoke-filled room, restaurant, or tavern. Verbal memorization drills fit in better in a dormitory room, fraternity house, or sorority house. And really, shelves of books just do not provide the right romantic setting for love-games.

The library was, after all, intended as a functional building, in spite of the architectural efforts to avoid the forbidding atmosphere of many libraries. Even the second floor lounge is functional; it offers a place for tobacco fiends to smoke while studying.

Perhaps, then, we should remember the intended function of the library — to provide an aesthetically pleasant yet functional place for serious study — and hold our bull sessions, verbal study drills, and our love-games in settings more appropriate to the occasion.

Like man, I mean really coeducational!

AT THE UNIVERSITY of Washington they have built a new co-educational dormitory. Like most dorms of this type it has a very marked division between the men's side and the women's side. But, aha! Because of an unbalanced enrollment fifty men have temporarily been moved into the north side of the dorm with the girls.

The coeds now live above the first floor and 50 male type Washington students. "We are just one big happy family," says one of the second floor coeds.

"Spirits have never been higher," says the president of the male first floor.

Hmmm... wonder whose applications they will be taking for the Burge Annex when it is completed?

'Hey, guess what — people from China have been escaping to MY country!'

Impact of Chinese attack on Indian politics

(Biswanath Shaw of Cuttack, India is a graduate student at SUI working on his master's degree in journalism.)
By BISWANATH SHAW
 Written for The Daily Iowan

The peace of the snow-capped Himalayas was shattered by the roar of guns and cannons Oct. 20 last year when about 30,000 Chinese troops launched an attack on the North Eastern Frontier Agency (NEFA) and Ladakh regions of the Indian Union. They continued their aggression until Nov. 21, when they announced a unilateral cease-fire and began withdrawing forces from the Indian territory, Dec. 1, 1962.

Since gaining her independence in 1947, India had been wedded to a policy of non-alignment, peaceful and friendly relations with all countries based on the "Panchasila" or "Five Principles" advocated by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru. She concentrated all her efforts, attention and resources on the development of the country and was not prepared to face an attack from any country.

The sudden, unprovoked and large-scale attack on her northern frontier put India in a very disadvantageous situation. The Chinese aggression, despite its strain on the Indian economy and threat to her sovereignty and peace, has been characterized by many national leaders as a "blessing in disguise" as it helped the nation forge unprecedented national unity.

IN VIEW OF the growing aggressiveness on the part of the Chinese government, the Government of India had started taking certain measures for the reorganization of the defense of India's northern borders. A separate Army Corps for the eastern sector of the northern borders was created; defense production was stepped up; recruitment for the defense forces went on in a large scale; military training was made compulsory for all men and women in the universities and the defense forces were better equipped than before with the help of the friendly countries like the United States and Great Britain.

At the same time, development projects not involving large amounts of foreign exchange and not affecting defense preparation were continued as usual. Both agricultural and industrial production was stepped up in view of national defense. The entire Indian people stood behind the Government in the defense of their country.

INDIA IS A COUNTRY of "unity in diversity." But during the post independence period she had to experience the conflict and clash among the people guided by narrow feelings of regionalism, communalism (bitter religious and caste feeling) and linguistic fanaticism, which threatened the unity of the Indian Union. The problem became so serious that a national integration council was set up by the Union Government with representatives of all shades of opinion to consider the problems and suggest measures for infusing emotional integration in the mass.

Chinese aggression at that critical moment worked like a miracle. The people forgot their differences in view of the imminent danger of the Chinese aggression and stood solidly behind the Government as soon as the prime minister's call to the nation was broadcast Oct. 22, 1962, just after China's massive attack on India.

The Indian National Congress, the ruling party in India, has undergone notable organizational changes since the Chinese aggression. The first change, effected at the government level, was the withdrawal of V. Krishna Menon, defense minister, from the central cabinet immediately after the Chinese aggression.

There has been a great change, both in Congress organization and government, according to the "Kamaraj Plan." The plan authorized the prime minister to decide who were to be relieved from office in order to devote themselves fully for the organization of the national congress. The party suffered from internal strife both at the state and central levels.

THE RESIGNATION of six union ministers including Finance Minister Morarji Desai and Food and Agriculture Minister S. K. Patil were accepted. This definitely made Nehru's position in the government more stable. It is still unknown what the future will bring, but it is admitted that Nehru has acted decisively and dramatically and the face of Indian politics has been changed overnight.

The other Indian political parties, also, are not free from the effect of Chinese aggression. The Indian Communists were divided on the Sino-Indian issue and suffered the greatest loss in their own constituencies during the post aggression period. The other major political parties such as the Swatantra and the Praja Socialist were divided on the Indian foreign policy though they offered their unqualified support to the Government to resist Chinese aggression.

INDIA AND United States, the world's two greatest democracies, have had friendly relations since India's independence. But at times India's foreign policy was misunderstood or misrepresented and her equally friendly relations with both the Communist and non-Communist peoples generated suspicions regarding the actual role of India in the international affairs.

The Chinese aggression is not only a threat to India's sovereignty, but a threat to democracy as a whole, which is so precious and dear to the American people. The United States, as the pioneer of democratic ideas, came forward to help India at this critical moment, which made the bond of friendship between the two nations stronger.

India has learned a Great lesson from the Chinese aggression. She has realized the necessity of making herself militarily strong enough to preserve her sovereignty. The nation is determined to resist aggression.

For discriminating audience— Concert opening a success

By MICHAEL FLING
 Iowan Music Critic
 (Mr. Fling is a graduate student in music at SUI.)

From the opening chords of Beethoven's Egmont overture to the dramatic closing of Bartok's Second Violin Concerto, it was obvious to the capacity crowd gathered in the Iowa Memorial Union Wednesday evening that this year's concert season will be no disappointment. James Dixon led the SUI Symphony with featured violinist John Ferrell in a program which successively transported, charmed and enthralled the auditors.

Beethoven's Egmont overture, the first selection of the evening, is more often heard in the concert hall than in its original setting with Goethe's drama and the remaining nine incidental pieces. For this reason it is perhaps fortunate that the composer deliberately excluded from the overture all thought of the details of the play, and confined himself to the underlying spiritual forces from which the drama arose. The alternately hopeful and defiant thematic dialogue increases in tension to culminate in a blaze of tonal glory and jubilation which expresses the heroic ideal particularly well.

THE OVERTURE served favorably to demonstrate the marked improvement in several sections of the orchestra, particularly the upper strings, from previous seasons. The tone was notably fuller, and intonation was reasonably precise, with the exception of one or two of the more exposed phrases.

The ensuing selection, Schumann's Third Symphony ("Rhenish"), is the most original and the most symphonic of the composer's endeavors in that form, for it is only here that he succeeded in conceiving an opening allegro that is capable of development. But unhappily the symphony as a whole does not live up to the initial prognosis. A certain sameness pervades the entire work. In addition, Schumann's forte as an orchestrator is here exhibited at its worst. His scoring of the "Rhenish" is an affair of conservative routine, filled with unnecessary doublings and babbling busy-work. Working under such hardships as these, Mr. Dixon and the orchestra are to be commended for their ability to throw some light into the thick, almost impenetrable mass of sound. The second and fifth movements had their pleasing moments. The fourth movement (if we may accept the word of Schumann's biographer that it depicts an occasion at the Cologne Cathedral), is a stirring bit of ecclesiastical polyphony. One was reminded of Schelling's definition of architecture as frozen music. The illusion was shattered only by a decidedly flat final chord.

FOLLOWING THE INTERMISSION the concert concluded with the piece de resistance, Bartok's Second Violin Concerto, performed by John Ferrell, associate professor of music.

Unfortunately this concerto does not stem from Bartok's ripest period. The composer's use of intense rhythms, lyrical themes and tantalizing special effects (e.g. quarter-tones, snapped pizzicato, playing with the wood of the bow) might hopefully be expected to add up to a sensationally effective whole; but this is not the case. The romantic character of the work does give it a certain appeal, but it lacks integration and logical development, and simply refuses to "go."

Little blame for this immobility can be attributed to Wednesday evening's performance. Ferrell succeeded admirably in dashing off the fast runs and in untying the Gordian knot of double-stop passages, and his projection was lessened only slightly by the inability to extricate his eyes from the score. The orchestra gave delicate yet full support without covering, the sounds from the wind sections being especially fine. The combined efforts of soloist and accompaniment were well received and enthusiastically applauded.

In short: SUI's discriminating audiences can be thankful for an outstanding orchestra, excellent violinists — and Beethoven.

Napoleon's marriage bed sold for $10,640

LONDON (AP) A mahogany marriage bed made for Napoleon Bonaparte was sold at auction Thursday for $10,640.

In a session of brisk bidding at Sotheby's, art auctioneers, the bed was knocked down to Mrs. O. Alber of Switzerland. It was part of a sale of treasures in the collection of the late Rene Friebourg of New York.

The bed was made in 1810 for Napoleon's marriage to Marie-Louise, daughter of an Austrian emperor.

Total sales of works from the Friebourg collection have so far realized $2.93 million.

One wonders about the political sophistication of the SUI student — it's beginning to look like John Niemeyer could run on a laundry ticket and win.

An SUI official raps the ad for Calvin Kenfield's article on SUI in "Holiday" magazine. The ad talks of high-living students, parties, and bourbon bottles. Isn't it more like high tuition, crowded taverns, and beer bottles??

Miss SUI and Court Stress 'Being Yourself' for Beauty

By DALLAS MURPHY
Staff Writer

Miss SUI, our symbol of all that is charmingly feminine, was crowned last weekend as reigning monarch of SUI's 52nd Homecoming festivities.

The final selection of our queen, Joeth Mannebach, A3, Glenview, Ill., was made from a field of five lovely coeds, each of whom symbolizes the ideal in campus fashion and grooming.

What are the ingredients that go into the making of a campus queen? To answer that question and many others, Miss SUI and her court have agreed to reveal a few of their beauty secrets.

Maryann Ruud, A3, Rock Island, Ill., lovely representative of Gamma Phi Beta, claims that the key to true beauty is to "just be yourself."

Although she considers this inner beauty to be of prime importance, Maryann also points out the need for a neat, well-groomed look in make-up, clothing, and hair styles.

Maryann's wardrobe, reflects her admiration for neatness and detail, and she professes a love for mohair sweaters, loafers, knee-high socks, and suede accents.

"I'm tired of black cocktail dresses, and I love bright colors," she relates. "Although only extremely attractive girls can wear truly daring styles, color can add a great deal to a dress with simple lines."

Linda Nyquist, N3, Rockford, Ill., greatly stresses simplicity and a natural look in grooming.

A casual skirt, blouse, cardigan, socks, and loafers are frequently Linda's classroom attire on those days when she isn't required to wear her nursing uniform. Of the present fads, her favorites are stretch pants, bulky sweaters, and culottes, and she likes her skirt lengths at mid-knee.

Conventionally tailored, unfitted sheaths are Linda's favorites for dress occasions, although she prefers casual affairs. Relying very little on accessories, she does have one favorite, however, which she calls her "diamond on a tear drop" necklace.

"There are many things a girl can do to increase her beauty," states Linda, who was sponsored by Kappa Alpha Theta, "but the chief source is her own character."

Nancy Brown, A2, Chicago, who was sponsored in the Miss SUI Pageant by her sorority Pi Beta Phi, is a charming, vivacious young lady whose personality is reflected in her grooming techniques.

Professing a tendency toward casualness in dress whenever possible, Nancy wears blouses, skirts, sweaters, and knee socks to classes. She rarely wears dresses or nylons to class because "then I feel that there is something left that I can do if I want to look extra good."

For dress occasions, Nancy's advice is to remember where you are going and dress accordingly. Although she prefers basic, simple styles that aren't easily outdated, she recommends that black be saved for later years. "This is the time of our lives when we can best wear bright colors to express our personalities and our way of life," she explains.

To present an attractive appearance at all times, Nancy suggests that cleanliness, neatness, and personal care are the greatest assets any girl can have.

"An appearance of naturalness" is what Elsie Andrews, A4, Marion, Westlaw's representative, terms the most essential element in beauty.

"The simpler your clothing is, the safer you are" is the conclusion that Elsie has reached during her four years at SUI. Although she likes colorful clothing to a certain degree, she professes a dislike for some of the color combinations that are considered chic today.

"Many girls build their wardrobes around two or three basic colors that are flattering to them. I feel that this is probably the key to a good wardrobe. Knowing what flatters you."

Shifts and skimmers are items which Elsie says she is "wild about," but she adds that, though she would like a kilt, she doesn't presently own one.

Joeth Mannebach, Miss SUI 1963, offers this grooming advice: "From the minute that you begin dressing for any occasion, the most important thing to remember is that you are you."

An avid lover of A-line skirts, Joeth, a Chi Omega member, calls them the most comfortable and, at the same time, the most flattering skirts available. "And they are so versatile," she adds, pointing out that the same skirt can be easily alternated with different sweaters and blouses to produce an entirely different effect.

"I always liked a cranberry color until it became so popular. Now I won't buy anything that color simply because it's such a fad," says Miss SUI emphatically. She also tells of a plaid blast jacket that she purchased some time ago. It was one of her favorite articles of clothing until the market became flooded with purses, skirts, blouses, and Bermuda shorts all in that same plaid. "Now I can't stand to look at it," she remarks, revealing herself as anything but a fad-follower.

"If something looks good on me, if it really hits me in the eye, then I'll buy it — not because it's a fad, but because it looks good on me."

Having what she describes as "conservatively wild" taste, Joeth likes plain lines that can be dressed up with a simple accessory, but which are, at the same time, unusual in color or design.

"Don't let yourself get into a color rut," warns Joeth. "A good wardrobe is built around basics that can be dressed up or down by the addition of simple accessories."

"And," she emphasizes, "don't forget to take that one last look in the mirror to check your gloves, hem, and buttons."

Real beauty, in the opinion of Miss SUI, is "an understanding, a compassion for your fellow man. Maybe you would call it old-fashioned charity. But if you have this one bit of love inside, no matter how you look physically, you will be truly beautiful."

Use stock as the liquid in curry sauce and then finish off with a little — just a few tablespoons — of undiluted evaporated milk. The curry powder will mask the evaporated milk flavor.

Like apple or prune stuffing with roast duck? It's good, too, when placed between two sides of pork spareribs that are to be baked. Skewer the sides of the spareribs together so the stuffing will stay in place.

Ever use bacon drippings instead of other fat in cornbread? When you cook the bacon be sure to do so over very low heat so the drippings will stay white. Refrigerate the bacon fat, covered, until baking time.

Baltimore Grand Jury Begins Boxing Probe

BALTIMORE (AP) — A grand jury investigation of the death of Baltimore boxer Ernie Knox started Thursday on the basis of a medical examiner's report the body weighed only 153 pounds, 25 less than listed for the heavyweight fight Monday night.

Knox was knocked out in the ninth round of the bout by Wayne Bethea of New York, whose weight was recorded officially as 205.

Jack Cohen, executive secretary of the Maryland Athletic Commission, supervisory agency of boxing, was summoned along with records by the grand jury.

Dr. Charles S. Petty, assistant medical examiner, issued the report that prompted William J. O'Donald, city prosecutor, to have a grand jury inquiry.

"We decided we'd better show the grand jury what we have so far and let it decide if further action is necessary," O'Donald said. The body of Knox was sent to the city morgue after his death Wednesday morning in Provident Hospital.

"All you had to do was look at the body to see it didn't weigh 178 pounds," Dr. Petty said. "It is inescapable that the guy just didn't weigh that much."

He said to make certain, the body was weighed three times and in between the scale was checked

Better than Last Year—

No. 2 Wisconsin Boasts Speed, Depth, Experience

By TOM MATTAUSCH
Staff Writer

"Wisconsin has to be an improved team over last season," commented Hawkeye End Coach and scout Whitey Piro. "This season's team is composed basically of last year's personnel."

Defending Big 10 champion, No. 2 ranked Wisconsin, will face Iowa Saturday in Iowa Stadium. Both teams are undefeated in the conference, 1-0. Iowa's over-all season record is 2-0-1 after the Hawks tied their season opener with Washington State and defeated Washington and Indiana. The Badgers boast a 3-0 mark with victories over Western Michigan, Notre Dame and Purdue.

According to Piro, the Hawks will be in contention for a victory, but they will have to make a supreme effort, eliminate mistakes and play near-perfect football.

The problem of replacing the Badgers' outstanding quarterback Ron Vander Kelen and All-American end Pat Richter has been solved by the presence of Harold Brandt and Jim Jones.

"Brandt is better than Vander Kelen was at this time last season," said Piro who scouted Wisconsin's 38-20 win over Purdue last Saturday. "And Jones is faster and more versatile than Richter. He is highly specialized, catches both long and short passes, and seems to be one of the best ends in the Midwest."

The Badgers have no major weaknesses. Their team is solid and experienced (the only man on the line is sophomore Ray Marcin playing right guard and line backer).

Wisconsin's fullbacks, Carl Silvestri and Ralph Kurek, are also versatile. They can run wide and equally as well up the middle. "On the basis of Silvestri's performance against Purdue," said Piro, "he should start this Saturday."

Left halfback Lou Holland is another threat to the Hawks. Leading the conference in punt returns and scoring in 1962, the 180-pound senior can run the hundred in :09.5.

The key word of the Badger defense is "specialization."

"Wisconsin is highly specialized," stated Piro. "They have good depth using men like Billy Smith, Jim Purnell and Ron Leafbald, who is one of the better defensive left ends in the Midwest. Smith was also impressive on a 55-yard pass interception return against Purdue.

Koufax Wins Earned Run Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Left-hander Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers, posting a 1.88 average — the lowest in the National league in 20 years — captured the NL's earned run title for the second straight season in 1963.

Figures compiled by the Associated Press also showed that rookie Gary Peters of the Chicago White Sox, another left-hander, won the American League championship with a 2.33 mark. Peters is the first AL rookie to finish on top in the ERA competition since Cleveland's Gene Bearden in 1948.

Koufax, a 25-game winner, allowed only 65 earned runs in 311 innings and pitched 11 shutouts — the big league high. He led in 1962 with a 2.54 ERA. The Dodgers' ace is also the first National League pitcher to win two consecutive ERA titles since Bucky Walters of Cincinnati in 1939-40.

Koufax' 1963 average was the lowest in the NL since 1943, when Howie Pollet of St. Louis, another lefty, finished with 1.75. Hal Newhouser of the Detroit Tigers paced the American in 1945 with 1.81.

Peters yielded 63 earned runs in 243 innings while winning 19 games and losing 8. He had four shutouts.

Dick Ellsworth of the Chicago Cubs was the National League runner-up with a 2.10 average. The young southpaw won 22 and lost

10. Juan Pizarro of the White Sox finished second in the American League with 2.39.

Burns: Hawks May Surprise A Few People

"If we play at or near our potential we might surprise a few people Saturday," Coach Jerry Burns said Thursday after the Hawkeyes had completed a two-hour drill in sweat clothes.

Iowa ran through a kicking drill and then worked on polishing its offense and defense. Burns termed the team effort and spirit this week "good."

Asked if the first team would be able to play most of the game, Burns said, "No, not against a team with the specialists and depth Wisconsin has. We must have fresh men on the field to combat Wisconsin's depth."

Badgers Polish Plays

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin reviewed plays in a brief workout and then went indoors to see movies of Iowa in action Thursday in preparation for Saturday's Big Ten meeting with the Hawkeyes at Iowa City.

Coach Milt Bruhn named a 38-player squad for the Iowa trip. Safetyman Ron Frain, who brused a shoulder against Purdue last week, will remain at home.

Four players who did not make the trip to Notre Dame three weeks ago were promoted to the traveling squad. They were end Joe Jensen, guard Ernie Von Heimburg, center Bob Monk and quarterback Arnie Quaerna.

The Badgers will loosen up in a light drill Friday before flying to their game headquarters in Cedar Rapids.

Radatz Is Best A.L. Sophomore

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Radatz, the big relief specialist who won 15 games and appeared in 68 for the seventh-place Boston Red Sox, was named the American League's outstanding sophomore for 1963 in the annual Associated Press Poll Thursday.

Radatz, nicknamed the Monster because of his size — 6-6 and 235 pounds — and powerful pitching, collected 15 votes in the balloting by baseball writers.

Radatz was followed by four New York Yankees — pitcher Jim Bouton, 11 votes; first baseman Joe Pepitone, 9; outfielder Tom Tresh, 8 and pitcher Al Downing, 3. Jim Fregosi, the Los Angeles Angels' shortstop, was named on two ballots.

Radatz, in addition to his 15 victories against six losses, saved 17 games and struck out 162 in 132 2-3 innings. The 26-year-old strong-boy from Royal Oak, Mich. had a 9-6 record as a rookie.

are you happy?

Happiness is hard to pin down. People look for it in every direction, but it's basically spiritual. You discover that the only real happiness comes from God — and from learning to live in obedience to His love. There's a one-hour public lecture coming on this theme by Roy J. Linnig of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship. It's titled "The Science of Happiness." You're invited to come and listen.

Miami Meets Georgia's Strong Passing Attack

MIAMI (AP) — Miami's football team has proved it can stop a running attack. But the Hurricanes have yet to prove they can handle a good passer.

They will face one Friday night when Georgia's Larry Rakestraw opens fire in the Orange Bowl. Rakestraw leads the Southeastern Conference in passing.

Steve Tensi of Florida State whipped Miami with passes in the first game of the season. Since then, three running teams — Purdue, Tulane and LSU — have managed to score only three points among them against Miami's rugged ground defense.

If Coach Andy Gustafson hasn't improved his pass defense since the Florida State game, Rakestraw could have a big night. But he may need plenty of points to keep on top of Miami's quarterback, George Mira.

Against LSU last week, Mira returned to the form that made him

All-America last season, but penalties and fumbles of his passes handicapped him.

The Miami-Georgia game is the only major feature on the college schedule tonight, but there will be plenty of action on the Saturday program when Texas defends its newly-won top national rating against Arkansas at Little Rock.

Wisconsin plays at Iowa in an important Big 10 Conference game, while Ohio State goes out of the league to tackle Southern California at Los Angeles.

Pittsburgh, which ranks third behind Texas and Wisconsin in this week's Associated Press poll, is at West Virginia, and Mississippi plays at Tulane.

Other top games include Kansas at Oklahoma, Minnesota at Illinois, Auburn at Georgia Tech, Alabama vs. Tennessee at Birmingham, Navy and VMI in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk, Va. and Miami of Ohio at Northwestern.

W.C. Peterson Wins NCCP Adviser Award

Wilbur C. Peterson, SUI associate professor of journalism, has been named 1963 distinguished yearbook advisor by the National Council of College Publications Advisers.

Prof. Peterson, adviser to the Hawkeye, will receive a plaque during ceremonies in New York Saturday citing him for "Outstanding service to student publications at the University of Iowa and to the nation's student press."

As adviser of the SUI yearbook he has encouraged flexibility and individual initiative in student staff members. The Hawkeye editions have reflected his philosophy of encouraging students to make careful advance plans.

Before he began teaching at SUI in 1951 he was an associate editor and later editor and co-publisher of the Marshall, Minn., Messenger. He earlier served as a Sunday reporter for the New York Times.

Prof. Peterson received a B. A. degree from Columbia University and a master's degree from Florida State University.

His teaching at SUI is concerned primarily with newspaper management. He has had a number of booklets and articles published in trade and scholarship journals. His most recent publication, "Helps for Newspaper Correspondents," has already been circulated to more than 22,000 correspondents.

His special assignments at SUI include serving as head of the Bureau of Media Service, circulation adviser for The Daily Iowan and chairman of the Iowa Short Course on Newspaper Circulation.

Prof. Peterson won the National Editorial Association's general excellence contest four times, received the Minnesota State Fair Gold Cup for service to agriculture and has been named Annenberg Lecturer at the Annenberg School of Communications, University of Pennsylvania.

The National Council of College Publications Advisers has its headquarters at SUI's School of Journalism. Dr. A. M. Sanderson, SUI journalism instructor, is executive secretary of NCCPA.

The group is holding its annual convention in conjunction with the Associated Collegiate Press this weekend in New York. The NCCPA will award distinguished service plaques to Paul S. Swenson, executive director of the Newspaper Fund; Dr. Joseph M. Murphy, director of the Columbia Scholastic Press Assn., and Edward E. McDonald, grand executive secretary-treasurer of Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary collegiate journalism fraternity.

Short Kills Lights On Airport Strip; Stops Air Traffic

A short in the landing light system at the Iowa City Airport has halted all night commercial traffic.

Ozark Airlines flight 123 from Chicago and Clinton has gone to Cedar Rapids since Tuesday night and will continue to do so until the landing lights can be replaced.

Flares are now being used but they are not up to commercial air specifications. Private craft can land.

Airport employees cannot find the cause of the short. Students desiring to fly Ozark are requested to call the airport to make arrangements for transportation to Cedar Rapids.

Wheat Deal Discussed on SUI 'Spotlight'

Is the United States reacting to Russia's wheat request as Pavlov's dogs responded to the bell?

This question was discussed Thursday afternoon in the Pentacrest Room during the Spotlight Series entitled, "Should the United States Feed Russia?"

Panel members were Patrick L. Alston, professor of history; H. W. Saunders, professor of sociology; and George W. Forrell, professor of religion.

Dr. Alston, who studied at the University of Leningrad in 1958 and recently received an Old Gold grant to continue his study of Russian history, believes the Russians are behaviorists, those who believe in controlling people by conditioning their reflexes.

"The Russians have the U.S. baffled, which is just what they want," Alston contended.

He said they were trying to confuse us by first, signing the test ban treaty, then turning right around and stopping our convoys at the Autobahn.

After years of this type of contradiction, Alston feels Russia now has the U.S. conditioned to respond to its moves and the Kennedy-sanctioned wheat deal is just another example. They asked for wheat, and we responded by consenting to sell it to them. Alston also pointed out the dissension among views in the U. S.

On the other hand, he said, in Russia there is a variety of opinion but once the party line is established, everyone follows.

Alston pointed out at the beginning of the discussion that the panel members were not debating the wheat decision itself for the decision had already been made.

The next Spotlight Series will be held Oct. 31 with the topic to be announced.

Negro Movement Receives Setback, Leader Declares

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., a leader in the direct action movement against segregation, said Thursday the summer's demonstrations produced some resentment among white Northerners and brought a temporary setback to his movement.

"Demonstrations in such cities as New York and Chicago aroused the ire of many persons in the North," King said in a telephone interview from Detroit.

Campus Notes

Angel Flight

Application forms are available for Angel Flight women's organization of the Arnold Air Society, at the Office of Student Affairs. They must be turned in by Tuesday.

All sophomore, junior, senior and transfer women with a 2.0 grade point average are eligible to apply.

The group was organized at SUI last year. Members serve as hostesses at U.S. Air Force functions and as gray nurses in the transportation area of University Hospitals. They also have held a car wash and style show.

Home Economics Meet

Five faculty members and seven students in the Home Economics department are attending the fall meeting of the Iowa Home Economics Association today in Des Moines.

SUI Home Economics Department faculty attending include Professor F. Eugenia Whitehead, chairman of the department; and Professor Adeline Hoffman, Margaret Osborn, Margaret Keyes, and Elinor O'Connor.

Grahame Scholarships

Winners of the first Grahame Scholarships in Art to be given at SUI are Harriet Wagner, G. Carlisle, Pa.; Rosemary Smith, G. Great Neck, Long Island, N. Y.; and Maxine Hafford, G. Bowsman River, Manitoba, Canada.

The Paula Patton Grahame Scholarship Fund will provide tuition scholarships annually for several students in the SUI Art Department.

The scholarships were established by Mr. and Mrs. Orville F. Grahame of Worcester, Mass., both SUI graduates. He is a native of Palo, and she, of Clearfield. The Grahames also set up the Orville Francis Grahame Scholarship Fund to provide scholarships for students in the SUI College of Law.

Play Set Today

Two one-act plays will be presented at 3:30 p.m. today in the Studio Playhouse, Old Armory. Plays are "Five Miles Down Four-Mile Road" by Jackson Lee Ragdale and "The Maids" by Jean Genet. Admission is free.

Brothers Four

All reserved seat tickets for the Oct. 24 Brothers Four concert have been sold. Some general admission tickets still are available at the Union Information Desk.

The concert is sponsored by the SUI Central Party Committee, and will be presented in the Union's Main Lounge at 8 p.m.

Camera Club To Meet

University Camera Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Pentacrest Room of the Union. Members are asked to bring two to four monochrome prints or color slides in story sequence.

Newman Club

The Social Committee of Newman Club will meet Sunday after a 6 p.m. dinner at the Catholic Student Center. They will plan a hobo party.

Krapf To Speak

Christus House will feature Gerhard Krapf at its program at 6 p.m. Sunday. Krapf, associate professor of music at SUI and university organist, will speak on church music. His presentation and the discussion to follow will deal with the meaning of music for Christian worship. A 75 cent supper at 5:30 p.m. will precede the program.

Chamber Music Awards

Winner of the 1963 Chamber Music Award of $100 for an original composition for string quartet is Dr. James B. Peterson of Omaha. A native of Omaha, he received his Ph.D. in music theory and composition from SUI. He is head of the music department at the University of Omaha.

The chamber music competition was open to persons living in the upper Midwest.

Health Meeting

A Health Careers Conference for high school students will be held at the medical center today.

Members of Health Career Clubs from schools in six surrounding counties and four 11th or 12th grade students from each school will attend. The Woman's Auxiliary of the Johnson County Medical Society and SUI are sponsoring the event.

Coordinators of the conference are Woodrow Morris, associate dean for student affairs in the College of Medicine, and Mrs. Wayne Tegler, chairman of the auxiliary's health careers committee.

OSU Students Cheat

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A student poll of cheating at Ohio State University showed so much cribbing on exams that it amazed even the poll-takers.

Forty-two per cent of the 1,800 students replying to a questionnaire admitted cheating, and 79 per cent said they had seen classmates engaged in obvious cheating.

"It sound kind of sweeping, but I think it's pretty accurate," said Carol L. Davis, an education senior appointed to an investigating committee.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: ERNIE NIPPER

There are nearly 15,000 pay telephones in Chicago's Loop. It is Ernie Nipper's job to see that the revenue from these busy phones is systematically collected. Ernie (B.A., 1956; M.A., 1959) is a Public Telephone Collection Manager with Illinois Bell in Chicago.

To accomplish this immense task, Ernie has a staff of 10 collectors. He supervises their training and sets up procedures for them to follow to best accomplish the collections.

Before his promotion, Ernie was a Manager in Hyde Park and supervised employees in a 195,000-customer exchange. His work there quickly convinced his management that he could handle the tougher job he has now.

Ernie Nipper, like many young men, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

Local Farmers Will Back Shaff Plan

Johnson County Farm Bureau President Bruce Adams of Solon Wednesday evening called for the "unstinting effort" of every bureau member to accomplish the passage of the Shaff plan of reapportionment in the December 3 election.

He said, "On the state level, the Farm Bureau is again staking its reputation and existence on the belief that the Iowa farmer, while rapidly dwindling to a numerical minority, deserves the protection in a re-apportioned legislature that the Shaff plan can provide."

In other business, the bureau adopted 14 policy resolutions for recommendation for adoption by the national organization.

The resolutions included: Favoring price supports but only at a protective level; reducing federal spending, balancing the budget, and then possibly reducing income taxes; favoring restricting imports of meats, especially from countries discriminating against the U.S. on tariffs.

State Charges Butterfat Cut

Charges against the Home Town Dairy of Iowa City for distributing dairy products with less than the minimum butterfat requirements are to be filed soon, the Iowa Department of Agriculture has announced.

The local firm will be the fifth state dairy named for prosecution by the department in recent weeks. Twenty-one others have been placed on probation.

Penalties for violating the butterfat requirement, a misdemeanor, is $10 to $100 fine or up to 30 days in jail, on conviction.

The other firms to be prosecuted are Sanitary Farms Dairy, Cedar Rapids; Sealtest Foods, Peoria, Ill.; Sweet Clover Dairy, Clear Lake, and Sealtest Foods, Kansas City, Mo.
