

Need 'Spirit' In Residential Sections Here

Progress Seen for Parks, Streets, Sewers in City

What is the city doing to insure progress in the residential areas? Today Reporter Nandell, ends his exclusive series on urban renewal and city expansion with some answers to this question.

By BOB NANDELL
Staff Writer

As Iowa City's residential districts expand, can the city keep growth orderly and maintain adequate streets, parks and other needed facilities?

With the same spirit of cooperation as needed for uptown renewal stressed, the city government has taken a definite role by starting plans for such developments. "We are trying to keep up as we go along," comments City Manager Carsten Leikvold.

"We're not in bad shape compared to other cities," Leikvold says, noting that "there are no vast slum areas although inevitably some spots are under-par."

TO KEEP THE AGING center of the city up-to-date with the newly developing areas, he added, the city is "gradually whittling away" at a set of "master plans."

The first of these "master plans," calling for rebuilding of the city sewer system, has already been undertaken by the City Council.

A report for this first "master plan" was submitted to the city in Sept. 1963 by a Des Moines consulting firm. It provides for long range expansion as well as immediate work, with the two phases totaling an estimated $2.5 million.

The Council voted on Oct. 2 to go ahead with the program's first phase to replace and supplement existing lines and equipment. This project is estimated to cost $1.75 million, with $250,000 of federal aid to be received by the city.

The remainder of the first phase's costs will be made up by city revenue bonds.

Leikvold notes that initial construction in this program has already been scheduled for next summer. This work includes a new sewage line running parallel to the existing, overloaded line running through the business district and older residential area to the east.

LEIKVOLD emphasizes that "master plans" should also be done by other city departments "so we know where we're going." City Engineers are now working out a plan for the water system, and a street plan providing for future widening and resurfacing.

"The same should also be done for parks and playgrounds," says Leikvold, "so the recreation commission and park board are working out plans for their own also." He adds that most of the "master plans" are being worked out by the respective city departments rather than outside consulting firms.

An independent project that should aid in residential improvement is the Ralston Creek flood control project, Leikvold says. This estimated $750,000 project is designed to curb flood losses, such as those of July 1962 when a flood following an 8-inch rainfall caused an estimated $1 million damages.

Leikvold states that the creek project will enhance property values near the creek, possibly influencing owners to keep up good maintenance. "This project affects the eastern fringes of the business district too."

A MAJOR PLAN to maintain orderly growth of housing developments is a new subdivision ordinance, which, says Leikvold, is scheduled for council action Nov. 19.

The new ordinance is planned to set standardization of streets, storm sewers, and maintain quality of future housing Leikvold says. "We think a fair plan is needed to keep subdivision growth in the Iowa City area orderly."

Leikvold notes that the ordinance provides for regulation of subdivisions within a one-mile range of the city limits. "This provision is added because so many new divisions spring up which are later added to the city."

"The main upgrading of residential building is due to the forms of financing," Iowa City Building Inspector Warren Buchan points out. "Financing institutions require certain standards due to the long life of mortgages and so many problems are eliminated."

ACCORDING to Buchan, any possibility of a decaying center residential area (areas immediately adjacent to the central business district) will be lessened by possible expansion of the business district which would absorb many such areas.

"It would be cheaper for businessmen to buy up some of these older properties than land in the center of the business district," Buchan observes.

A major plan affecting existing and future business and multiple unit housing areas in Iowa City is a new fire zone ordinance. The ordinance has been drafted and is now pending before the state fire marshal in Des Moines.

The plan expands the number one, or central business district, fire zone requirements to include small shopping areas. "Laws applicable to the central business district will apply to these areas as well," Buchan said.

"This ordinance is a good thing safety-wise because it will minimize future fire losses," Buchan stresses. "Definite enforcement of this law would be used for any new buildings or alterations on existing ones."

The fire law is rated on a fire-resistance factor. The higher the fire zone, such as a number one zone, the greater is the concentration of buildings, people and potential hazards.

A number one zone, Buchan says, must have a two-hour fire resistance factor. In other words, a fire could be contained in a part of a building for a maximum of two hours, rather than spread through the whole structure. "This factor can be met by use of heavy gypsum wall boarding which costs about two cents per square foot more than regular boards."

"The law would apply especially to creation of multiple unit housing in existing buildings and new housing, Buchan says. "We think this program is for the good of the people who would inhabit these dwellings."

"This law is not intended to be discriminatory," Buchan emphasizes, "but in some cases it would appear that way if a person doing remodeling can't do it under the same standards that others have already done it. We think the new fire law is for the good of the community although it might work a hardship on those it applies to in some cases."

Representing Iowa City business interests, Chamber of Commerce Manager Keith Kafer agrees with city officials on the development of long range plans and laws.

"We definitely need such plans to keep up," Kafer says, "and these must be done in steps. The city has been wise to get master plans to keep growth orderly."

"When you look at the way the city has kept up its services such as streets, police and parks," Kafer notes, "you can see they've done a real good job in providing for good, orderly growth. As more industry enters Iowa City, these plans will increase even more in their value."

Harkins: Coup Won't Affect Viet Nam War

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Gen. Paul D. Harkins feels the coup that toppled President Ngo Dinh Diem will have little overall effect on the prosecution of the war against Communist guerrillas.

In an exclusive interview, the commander of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam said Wednesday he believed Diem had a good anti-Communist campaign with effective U.S. support before the coup, and that this pattern will continue under the new revolutionary government.

Harkins' views differ sharply from those of key generals in the junta.

Gen. Ton That Dinh said last week, for example, that the war against the Communists could never have been won under Diem.

The four-star American commander was asked if political considerations by Vietnamese field commanders hindered the war effort under the Diem regime.

"I don't think they were as serious as some people make them out to be," he said. Diem "did direct some operations. Province chiefs conducting operations had to work within his chain of command, and some operations were affected."

During the past week, Harkins has been charged in the Saigon press and by critics of the old regime with having been too close to the president's family, including his brother and adviser, Ngo Dinh Nhu.

"I was sent here by President Kennedy to support 14 million people," Harkins replied. "I knew President Diem, but I did not know Nhu at all. I talked to Nhu three or four times, but my poor French was not the equal of his excellent French."

"I have been close to the military commanders here."

'Tramp' Grid Player Gone, Says Burns

"We have tried to make this as thorough a preparation as possible without interfering with the men's studies," Iowa Head Football Coach Jerry Burns said Wednesday as he discussed the Hawkeyes' preparations for Saturday's game with Michigan.

Burns spoke in the Hillcrest Lounge at a post-dinner meeting of Hillcrest's Mott House.

"The day of the tramp football player has come and gone," said Burns. "The men now come here to get an education."

Burns spoke informally for an hour discussing both the work done by the players and that done by the scouts.

He discussed in detail the work-out schedule of the football team from film-viewing to the actual practice field workouts. The films, he said, are quite important in game preparation. From viewing the Minnesota game films and scouting reports, "we knew this was not a real good Minnesota team. We were going to wait for them to make the mistakes and then capitalize on them," he said.

Speaking on the scouting procedure, Burns reported that a scout is assigned to an opposing team three weeks before Iowa faces the team. The scout "will live with a ball club and know its inner workings" by the time Iowa is ready to face it. Some of the scouts will work on the same team for several years Burns added, citing Whitney Piro who has scouted Minnesota teams for the last 11 years.

Headwaiter's Trip Called Wonderful by McCormack

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I think it's a wonderful thing," Speaker John W. McCormack, (D-Mass.) said Wednesday of the trip to Paris at taxpayer expense by House headwaiter Ernest Petinaud.

"This is a land of opportunity," McCormack told newsmen. "He's a fine person."

Petinaud, who was back on the job in the House restaurant, traveled to Paris for a meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization parliamentarians.

Rep. Wayne Hays (D-Ohio) who headed the House delegation, said Petinaud earned his keep as a messenger for the group.

McCormack confirmed that Hays had cleared Petinaud's trip with him in advance. He made clear that he still approves in spite of the cloud of controversy.

Hays called the whole affair a "tempest in a teapot." He added, "I think it's about milked dry by now."

"Ernest cost the taxpayers $88 in counterpart funds, which can't be used otherwise, so it actually cost nothing," Hays said. "I always used a staff man before, and of course his salary would have continued, so Ernest was probably a little less expensive than a staff man would have been."

Counterpart funds are foreign currencies collected by the United States which can only be used abroad.

Hays said he paid Petinaud's expenses of $64 in London on the way back because Petinaud was not working as he was in Paris. Petinaud was on vacation from his House restaurant job.

Hays said he was misquoted by London reporters to the effect that he thought the criticism was because Petinaud is a Negro. He did not raise that issue then, but reporters did in their questioning, the congressman added.

At noon hour, stocky, amiable Petinaud was at his accustomed station, greeting congressmen at the door of the House restaurant. He had to endure a good bit of leg-pulling and kidding as members asked him for autographs.

The House group flew to Paris in an Air Force jet. Eleven congressmen made the trip, and all but three took their wives.

U.S. Soldier Hit; S. Korean Believed Killed

Reds Were Told Unit Was Coming in Area, U.N. Spokesman Says

SEOUL (Thursday) (AP) — North Korean gunfire trapped eight unarmed American and South Korean soldiers in the demilitarized zone Wednesday, wounding one American and possibly killing a South Korean, the United Nations Command said today.

Heavy Communist fire from the North Korean side of the zone forced the Americans and South Koreans to plunge into the cold Han River and hide beneath the bank for almost four hours, a U.N. spokesman said.

He said the Communists had been informed in advance that the small unit was going into that demilitarized zone on authorized business under terms of the Korean War armistice. The Americans and South Koreans were properly identified by yellow arm bands each man wore, he said.

ONE SOUTH Korean soldier, a captain, was believed dead when he was left behind by the small unit withdrawing under cover of darkness, he said.

A small boat sent to evacuate the Americans and South Koreans also was fired on and had to be abandoned.

It was recovered later when darkness fell and the Americans and South Koreans made their way south across the river, the spokesman said.

Communist attackers fired an estimated 1,000 rounds of ammunition, much of it from automatic weapons, the spokesman said. The gunfire broke out at about 1:30 p.m. and let up only when darkness fell, he said.

Survivors were numb with cold and exhaustion and were unable to carry out the South Korean captain.

Unarmed American and South Korean soldiers often go into the demilitarized zone to check the border markers dividing Communist and non-Communist sectors which were established by the Korean War armistice signed in 1953.

The U.N. spokesman located the scene about 60 miles northeast of Seoul, somewhat east of the front-line sector where three Americans were killed in a rash of Communist attacks last August.

Costly Medicare Bill Announced by GOP Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — A private study group, including three former Eisenhower administration officials, called Wednesday for a compulsory medical care program for the aged that would be more costly than proposals backed by President Kennedy.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.) at whose suggestion the committee was formed last year, said he plans to introduce a bill incorporating main features of the Social Security tax-financed plan and invited Democrats to join him.

The proposal drew immediate opposition from the American Medical Association.

Third Man In Serious Condition Here

He Shoots Self During Gun Battle Early Wednesday

DUBUQUE (AP) — Two of three ex-convicts captured after a Grinnell policeman was mortally wounded in the back have admitted that all three were involved in the shooting, authorities said Wednesday night.

Police Chief Wiley Taylor of Grinnell said that Richard Craig, 25, of Des Moines and Tom Kiernan, 23, of Booneville orally admitted being in Grinnell when Policeman Ralph Ogan, 34, was slain.

The third man, Gary Lee Wessling, 23, of Des Moines, shot himself in the head and was in serious condition at University Hospitals in Iowa City.

Ogan was shot when he stopped to question the occupants of a parked car near the Preston Clothing Store in the early morning darkness Wednesday. A front window of the store had been broken.

Taylor said that Craig had given officers the name of the man who shot Ogan, but that Kiernan had not done so. Officers did not release the name Craig gave.

Poweshiek County Sheriff William Welsh left Dubuque for Iowa City to question Wessling. They were unavailable for comment.

NO CHARGES have been filed. The three men surrendered at a farm cottage near Dubuque, 140 miles from the slaying scene. They had traded shots with a highway patrolman during a high-speed auto chase.

Gan, former Army tank driver in the Korean War and the father of three children, had been a member of the Grinnell police force for four years.

Authorities said that Wessling talked to a priest shortly before the trio decided to give up, then went into the cottage and shot himself in the head.

THE THREE MEN surrendered in the cottage home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wetter Sr. on the farm operated by Wetter's son. The trio held the elder Wetters hostage for a time before surrendering.

David Barnes, 41, a bakery truck driver, apparently was the only witness to the slaying. He told this story:

"I was across the street from the Model Lunch, half a block from where the shooting took place, and on the same side of the street.

"I heard some glass break. I looked around and saw a car pull up to the curb half a block south of me. I saw a man run and jump into the car from the sidewalk.

"Just then a police car pulled up behind the other car. I walked down the street to see what was going on.

"OGAN STEPPED to the driver's side and asked the driver to get out and show his driver's license. 'What are you boys up to?' he asked the driver.

"The guy got out of the car and while he was looking for his license, Ralph went around to the other side and told the occupants of the car to get out. The next thing I knew I heard two shots and I started running. I ran to the Model Lunch and called for help."

Barnes said two or three shots were fired at him as he ran down the street. One bullet hit him in the hip pocket, embedding itself in his wallet.

POLICE BROADCAST a description of the car, and a few hours later Highway Patrolman Virgil Stanmeyer saw a similar car on the highway near Dyersville. It outran his patrol car at speeds up to 100 miles an hour.

Later Patrolman Jack Moore exchanged shots with occupants of the fleeing car. His patrol car was damaged by bullets.

The three men then took refuge on the Wetter farm three miles northwest of Dubuque. The car, registered to Craig, was found there.

Wetter said he had just gotten out of bed about 9 a.m. after working late Tuesday night when he heard gunfire outside the house. "What an awful way to wake up."

The case against the Shaff Plan

By GARY SPURGEON Managing Editor Second of a series

The battle for legislative reapportionment is now in its final stages as the referendum on the Shaff Plan is now less than a month away.

SPURGEON

Why isn't the Shaff Plan good for the people of Iowa? There are several reasons, including: It would freeze minority control of the legislature into the Constitution.

Yet in none of the six maps drawn by the Legislative Research Bureau, at the request of the Legislators, do the 30 smallest districts contain even 50 per cent of the population.

What are the long-run prospects for minority control of the Legislature if the Shaff Plan is enacted and present population trends continue?

As noted above, the 50 smallest counties would elect a majority of House members though containing only 24 per cent of the state's 1960 population.

Even if 51 per cent of the population was guaranteed a majority of the 58 Senate seats under the Shaff Plan, which it is not, it is obvious that 50 House members representing an increasingly smaller minority of the people, would hold a veto over any legislation proposed.

What does industry stand to lose if the Shaff Plan is adopted?

It was never contemplated by the Founding Fathers that the preservation of minority rights would result in the right to rule the majority.

It follows that industry should be as much interested in making it work the way it is supposed to work as any individual or other segment.

Finally, industry long has been an advocate of stronger home rule and long has been opposed to "running to Washington" with our problems.

Should one House be based on area and one on population?

Earnest advocates of fair representation, those who have no interest in using reapportionment as a springboard to run for public office, or as a base from which to exercise special interest control over the Legislature, believe it would be far more fair to all citizens to allocate the seats of the larger House on population and those of the smaller Senate on a combination area-population factor weighted toward area.

What difference does it make whether the Senate or the House is elected on population and the other on area?

The Shaff Plan does not propose basing the seats of either chamber on area. It allocates seats on population and House seats on county units — one for each county regardless of area or population.

In any plan allocating the seats of one chamber on area and those of the other on population, it is far better that the chamber with larger membership and the shorter terms represent population because each member would represent a smaller number of constituents and in the larger chamber terms usually are for two years and expire simultaneously.

Why should the Senate be the more conservative body?

There is no reason why it should be more conservative. Occasionally, it isn't. However, there is reason to think it should be the more deliberative body because of its overlapping four-year terms.

A Senator starting a four-year term need not worry about re-election nearly as much as a Senator serving the last two years of a four-year term. And, at least, he enjoys a climate where it is possible to be more deliberative than otherwise would be the case.

Is it true that under various alternatives to the Shaff Plan, labor unions would control the Legislature?

Absolutely not. The 1960 census shows that only 38 per cent of all Iowans live in cities of more than 10,000, where most labor unions are located, while 62 per cent live in rural areas or in cities of less than 10,000, which have few unions.

Rather, any one of the alternatives that have been proposed would encourage candidates from a greater number of the state's economic segments to run for public office than presently is the case.

If the Shaff Plan is defeated, will this harm the welfare of Iowa farms, commerce and industry?

It is inconceivable that its defeat possibly could harm any segment of Iowa's society. It is more to the point to say that if it is passed, these interests, as well as those of all citizens, will be harmed, because the Shaff Plan seeks to reverse the democratic processes by freezing minority control into the Constitution.

Proponents say that even though the Shaff Plan isn't "the final answer" it is "the first step toward something better." Is that true?

It is true that it isn't the final answer but it hardly follows that it is a step toward something better. Is it permissible to ask (1) what the proponents have in mind as the second step toward something better and (2) how they expect a Shaff Plan Legislature, controlled by 24 per cent of the people, to pass something better when the present Legislature, controlled by 29 per cent of the people, would pass nothing better than the Shaff Plan?

Wouldn't we have to wait another 10 years or so to get reapportionment if the Shaff Plan is defeated?

Absolutely not. The courts already have held that the present apportionment is unfair, which means the Legislature would have to move immediately to remedy the situation if the Shaff Plan is defeated.

Next we will examine the views of the Citizens for Reapportionment, Dec. 3 — the group favoring the passage of the Shaff Plan.

The Solon Fire Department's annual fund raising dinner Tuesday night ended with a liquor raid. State and County authorities, armed with a search warrant from Iowa City Police Judge Daniel W. Boyle, made a surprise raid and confiscated 12 bottles of liquor and two glasses containing mixed drinks.

State Liquor Control Agent Larry High, Iowa City, Johnson County Sheriff Albert J. Murphy, and Deputy Sheriff Donald L. Wilson went to the Solon Fire Department basement shortly after 10 p.m. where 300 people were attending the dinner party. Many of them left before officers arrived.

Charges were filed against George Chaloupka and William Wood, both of Solon, who were tending bar.

Experts Here Today for EEC Discussion

More than 150 Iowans are meeting at SUI today and Friday to discuss political and trade implications of the European Common Market.

Meeting with the local residents are four U. S. experts in international economics and politics, and several members of the SUI faculty who are specialists in Soviet affairs and the United Nations.

Today's program will include talks by Peter T. Jones, deputy U. S. Secretary of Commerce, who is regarded as one of the architects of President Kennedy's Trade Expansion Act, and Eric Stein, University of Michigan law professor. Stein is adviser to the U. S. delegation to the U. N. General Assembly, counsel to the U. S. representative to the International Court of Justice, and deputy director of the Office of U. N. Political Affairs.

Also participating in the program will be Emile Benoit of Columbia University's Graduate School of Business, a consultant to the U. S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and a former attaché to the U. S. embassies in London and Vienna, and Lauren K. Soth, of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, who received the 1955 Pulitzer Prize for editorial writing. Soth is chairman of the agricultural committee of the National Planning Association.

Friday's program will include a panel discussion with Jones and Stein discussing the political implications of the Common Market with two SUI professors, George Ginsburgs, a specialist on Soviet Affairs, and Albert Y. Badre, former U. N. chief economist in the Congo.

Following the panel discussion, an open forum will be held, chaired by James N. Murray, associate professor of political science.

Says She Dated Accused Slayer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A young St. Paul mother admitted being the "other woman" in the life of murder defendant T. Eugene Thompson Wednesday but said she broke off the affair more than a year before Thompson's wife was slain.

Thompson, 35, is charged by the state with plotting the murder of his wife, Carol, 34, last March 6 for the double-pronged motive of collecting heavy insurance payments and freeing himself for "a future" with the other woman.

The witness, called by the state, was Mrs. Jacqueline Olesen, one-time secretary in Thompson's law office.

The mother of three admitted a long series of illicit meetings with the attorney.

Mrs. Olesen said she broke up the affair when Thompson wouldn't leave his wife.

Shaff Plan Backed In Optimist Talk

"If they understood the Shaff Plan, most people would support it," Paul E. McNutt, legislative committee chairman of the Johnson County Farm Bureau told the Iowa City Optimist Club at their regular meeting Wednesday.

McNutt, the club's second of three speakers on the Shaff Plan scheduled for the fall program, referred to the bill to be presented for the approval of the people in a referendum, Dec 3, as the one which would "bring to Iowa the apportionment we want."

In a question and answer period following his talk, McNutt defended the constitutionality of the Shaff Plan by saying, "It would be inconceivable that the Iowa Supreme Court would rule it unconstitutional since it is drawn up along the lines of the United States Congress. Although the states represented in Congress are sovereign units whereas the counties in Iowa would not be, this would make no difference."

The Optimist Club had heard three weeks previous by a talk against the Shaff Plan by John R. Schmidhauser, professor of political science. In his talk, Schmidhauser was mainly concerned with the legal aspect of the Shaff Plan.

Scheduled to speak at next Wednesday's noon meeting is John C. Garfield, SUI clinical psychologist and chairman of Johnson County Citizens' Committee Against the Shaff Plan, who has referred to the plan for Johnson County as a "step backward."

Garfield is scheduled to participate in a debate over the Shaff Plan with David Stanley, state representative, before the Muscatine Chamber of Commerce tonight.

County Loses Seat In Shaff Plan, Speaker Asserts

Johnson County will lose one of its seats in the State House of Representatives if the Shaff Plan goes into effect, Mrs. Elliott Full, secretary of Iowans Against the Shaff Plan, told the Coralville Optimist Club Wednesday.

"As the ninth largest county in the state we lose representation in the General Assembly," Mrs. Full said, "so we had better put a stop to that kind of progress before it gets started."

According to figures from the Iowa Tax Commission, Mrs. Full said, the 23.5 per cent of the people who will exercise veto power over state government under the Shaff Plan pay only 20 per cent of the taxes.

This same group gets back over a third of all the money paid back to local governments in various state aids, Mrs. Full said.

The Shaff Plan merely continues and insures the same minority control, Mrs. Full added. The minority decides how taxes are levied and then how they are to be spent.

Company Buys Land in City For Factory

The Sheller Manufacturing Corp. of Detroit has purchased a 21.2 acre site from Business Development, Inc. and plans to have a modern urethane foam production plant completed here next summer.

J. A. Mullen, president of the corporation, said that construction of the building is expected to be started later this month. The site is located near the Proctor and Gamble Plant on Highway 6.

Business Development, Inc. is a group of Iowa City civic leaders that was formed to encourage new industry in the area. City officials, Chamber of Commerce officials, utility company executives and the Iowa State Industrial Development Commission worked with this group in the negotiations for the new plant.

The new factory will initially hire 75 people, half of them women. Mullen said the vast majority will be local people.

Robert D. Schaeffer has been appointed general manager of the new plant. Schaeffer is at present the assistant general manager of the Dryden-Keokuk division at Keokuk. He will move to Iowa City in the near future.

The flag on Old Capitol flew at half mast Wednesday in memory of Karl Kinnick, West Branch.

Funeral services for Kinnick, SUI graduate student who shot himself Tuesday, will be Saturday at 1 p. m. at Trinity Episcopal Church here.

TEACHERS NOT WANTED — NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — U.S. Peace Corps teachers being sent to East Africa to ease a teacher shortage will not be welcomed in Kenya at the present time, Teachers Union Chief Stephen J. Jioni said Wednesday.

Former FBI Man to Speak at SUI

A former member of the FBI, W. Cleon Skousen, will speak on "Communism and Methods of Combating It" Wednesday in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol at 8 p. m. Skousen's public lecture will include material from his book, "The Naked Communist," and unpublished material he has accumulated as a professional investigator.

Besides his work with the FBI, Skousen has been Chief of Police in Salt Lake City and a faculty member of Brigham Young University. The Iowa Conservatives are sponsoring the talk.

Latta Turns Down Slippery Rock; Comes to Iowa

Neville Island, Pa., can be found on a clear day about 60 miles from Slippery Rock and about 700 miles from Iowa City. Fortunately for Iowa, George Latta had a kindling desire to play Big Ten football and decided to take the long trip west.

Craig Nourse Out for Year

Craig Nourse, Iowa's No. 3 half-back from Flint, Mich., will be out for the remainder of the season, it was learned Wednesday. Nourse, a sophomore speedster, sustained a knee injury in Monday's scrimmage against the freshmen. He will be replaced in the three-deep lineup by sophomore Terry Ferry from Boone.

The Hawkeyes worked against Michigan plays and concluded with a defensive scrimmage in Wednesday's two hour practice session. The cold weather forced the team inside before they could hold an offensive scrimmage.

Commenting on this week's practices, Coach Jerry Burns said, "The cold weather has hampered our practices. We're behind schedule and I hope we get a break in the weather Thursday."

Grimsley Picks Texas; Duke To Topple Navy

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK — The two top college football teams, Texas and Navy, both run into old bugaboos this weekend. Texas plays TCU, a team that three times in recent years has knocked the Longhorns off the No. 1 perch. Navy tackles a Duke eleven it hasn't beaten in nine years.

There's a 50-50 chance that the jinx will prevail. One of the high-placed favorites figures to lose. The trick is to guess which one. We say Texas will bang through another while Navy, pointing to the Army game, trips its big toe.

TEXAS 20, TCU 0: The Longhorns have been playing them close to the vest. They take no chances in this one and go all out.

DUKE 23, NAVY 14: Duke's Bill Murray has Navy's number just as Wayne Hardin has the key to Army's secrets. A good battle with Jay Wilkinson, Bud's boy, outshining Roger Staubach.

PITTSBURGH 14, ARMY 10: The West Pointers would need a super effort to pull out this game.

PRINCETON 29, YALE 7: Cosmo Iacavazzi goes back into orbit for the bounce-back Tigers.

WASHINGTON 25, UCLA 0: The Huskies finally have found a wheel-horse in Bill Douglas.

ALABAMA 14, GEORGIA TECH 0: Bear Bryant's boys have been building up steam a year to settle this account. There's danger of over-eagerness.

OKLAHOMA 21, MISSOURI 7: The Sooners get tougher as the prospects of a bowl bid get closer.

MICHIGAN STATE 22, NOTRE DAME 12: Has the fire really gone out of the Fighting Irish? This game may tell.

SOUTHERN METHODIST 13, ARKANSAS 7: The Razorbacks slightly favored here, but we like the Mustangs at home.

STANFORD 20, WASHINGTON STATE 15: A couple of Pacific Coast door-mats seeking to salvage a consolation victory.

After Hiring New Coach—

Yogi: I'm Running the Yankee Club

Mississippi Leads Nation In Defense

NEW YORK (AP) — Mississippi's football team has been among the nation's defense leaders almost every year during the past decade. This season is no exception.

The latest figures compiled by the NCAA Service Bureau and released Wednesday show that Ole Miss leads in total defense, rushing defense and defense against scoring. Texas Western has moved into the top spot in pass defense.

In total defense, Mississippi holds a commanding edge. The Rebels have allowed an average of only 121.6 yards a game while runner-up Southern Mississippi's average is 149.5. Harvard is third with 164.9 followed by Memphis State, 165.6.

THE RUSHING defense lead changed hands for the third straight week as Ole Miss moved in front with 64.1 average and Michigan State dropped to second with 66.4. They are followed by Dartmouth 74.4 and Army 83.8.

MISSISSIPPI'S advantage in scoring defense is much greater than in rushing. The Rebels have allowed the opposition 3.3 points a game in seven outings while Memphis State is second with 5.8. Mississippi has only two games remaining to play, against Tennessee and Mississippi State.

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra, nattily attired in a dark blue business suit, appeared comfortably seated in a big mahogany chair in the swank Yankee offices Wednesday.

It was his first press conference since his nomination as manager of the American League champions some three weeks ago. The Yankees had signed Jimmy Gleeson, a comparative nonentity in major league baseball, as their fourth coach. He joined holdovers Frank Crosetti, Johnny Sain and Jim Hogan.

Berra, puffing at a cigarette, was explaining why he had hired the 51-year-old Gleeson, a run-of-the-mill outfielder with Cleveland, Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati in the late 1930's and early 1940's.

"He's a hustler and a hard worker," Yogi said. "He was my coach when I was in the Navy. He also managed several Yankee farm teams in the minors, and he handled a lot of guys now on the Yankee team. Guys like Tommy Tresh, Phil Linz, Joe Pepitone, Jim Bouton and Al Downing.

"Yeah, Gleeson is my own pick. If I couldn't pick my own choices, I wouldn't have taken the job."

Gleeson will be the first base coach, the same job Berra had last year. Yogi will manage from the bench.

"Yeah," he said, "you can run the club better from the bench. And I'm gonna be running the club. Nobody else. Just like Ralph Houk did when he was manager."

"Ralph and I had a talk after I got the job and he became general manager. 'You're the boss, he told me. 'No matter what happens, I don't intend to interfere. If you ever want me for anything, fine. If you don't, it'll be all right, too.'"

"I intend to run the club my way, but if I ever feel I need advice, I'll ask him. Why not? It's no shame to listen. But I'll make the final decision. You can bet on that."

Wins AFL Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Lance Alworth is called Bambi because of his deer-like speed. After he caught 13 passes Sunday in Boston they were calling him "the greatest," "fantastic" and "the best I've ever seen."

Alworth earned recognition as The Associated Press' Player of The Week in the American Football League.

Ten Firms Here For Interviews With Students

Representatives from ten companies located in leading business and industrial areas of the country will interview SU juniors and graduate students next week.

Many of these companies are also interested in seeing June and August graduates. The Placement Office encourages these early interviews because they provide better job knowledge before the heavy spring recruiting season.

The companies that will be represented are Dow Chemical, Midland, Mich.; Bankers Life Co., Des Moines; Maytag, Newton; Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, Mich.; Quaker Oats, Chicago; Caterpillar Tractor, Peoria, Ill.; Northwestern Bell, Des Moines; Western Electric, Omaha, Neb.; AT&T, White Plains, N. Y.; and Republic Steel, Chicago.

These companies will be seeking applicants in the following areas: accounting, advertising, data processing, finance, industrial management, insurance, law, market research, mathematics, merchandising, office management, personnel, production, public relations, purchasing, sales, sales promotion, chemistry, physics, statistics, technical writing, traffic, home economics, marketing, investment and quality control.

The companies are also looking for MBA graduates in technical marketing, accounting and finance.

Kiwanis Sponsors Talent Contest

"Stars of Tomorrow," a talent contest sponsored by the Iowa City Kiwanis Club, will be presented Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Ivar P. Opstad Auditorium at Iowa City High School.

Prize money of over $200 will be awarded to three senior high school, three junior high school, and three elementary school students.

A special feature of the program will be a violin solo by Bill Preucil, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Preucil, 1319 Muscatine Ave.

Pacing the Floor—

New Arrival Due At Fire House

By TOM ASSENS Staff Writer

The Iowa City Fire Department is awaiting a new addition to its family next week, and the announcements of the new arrival are being made ready.

The new member of the family is a $24,000 red and chrome fire truck. The truck is a 1,000 gallon, triple combination pumper.

Vernal J. Shimon, Iowa City Fire Chief, said that this means that the truck will pump 1,000 gallons of water per minute through four 2½ inch hoses. Triple combination is fireman lingo for hose, nozzles, and ladders.

You won't see any firemen hanging onto the back of this truck while putting on their coats; they will all be inside. The five-man crew can all fit into the enclosed cab, and the firemen are happy that they won't have to ride back to the station, soaking wet, exposed to 10 degree weather.

The cab can also be tipped forward for easy access to the engine.

There will be a 300 gallon water tank on the truck for putting out small fires, such as burning leaves. This tank will be used in combination with booster lines, which are hoses much like garden hoses, except that they can withstand more pressure.

A smoke ejector and two oxygen masks will be used for fires burning in small areas, such as the inside rooms of buildings. The smoke ejector is similar to a portable fan, and is operated by the truck's self-contained electrical system.

Besides the usual nozzles, hoses, and wrenches, the pumper will carry one roof ladder and one extension ladder to round out its equipment.

Shimon said that the truck, made by American-La France, is being shipped by rail from Elmira, New York, and should arrive in about one week.

Shimon said that an inspector from the Iowa Inspection Bureau will supervise a three hour test of the truck when it arrives. The Iowa Inspection Bureau must approve all new fire equipment in Iowa, Shimon said.

The test will be held at the Coralville Power Plant, where the new truck must pump 1,000 gallons of water per minute for three hours, under 150 pound, 200 pound and 250 pound pressures.

Before and after the test of the pumping capacity, Iowa City firemen and a manufacturer's representative will check the remaining equipment, such as the hoses, the engine, and lights.

Then five firemen will take the truck on the road for a spin. Actually, they will be testing the truck for pulling capacity, pick-up, and hill-climbing ability.

"That truck will weigh an awful lot," Shimon said, "so I don't expect to do any hot-rodging. We just want to be sure we can get to fires as quickly and safely as possible."

If the new truck is then approved by the city manager and City Council, Iowa Citizens will have a good chance to see it often. Shimon said the truck would go into service immediately and would probably answer all of the alarms for a while, so that the firemen can become familiar with it.

The truck will be all-purpose, Shimon said, and is equipped to put out almost all minor fires, or larger fires when used in combination with other trucks.

This is the first new fire truck the fire department has received in six years. Shimon said that he started planning for the truck almost 10 months ago. This spring the city council called for bids and approved the purchase.

The new truck should put the fire department "in pretty good shape for pumping," Shimon said. Iowa City probably compares favorably with cities of similar size in fire equipment. However, Shimon said that there are no uniform measurements of performance.

The sad part of the story concerns the only member of the fire department who will be unhappy when the new truck arrives. That member is another fire truck.

The unhappy truck, 31 years old, may be forced into retirement. As Shimon said, "Things just start to wear out, and some parts can't be replaced or repaired."

No one has decided what will be done, if anything, with the old truck. It may stay to watch its young rival answer all the calls, it may be sold, or it could be given to the youngsters.

About three years ago, Shimon said, another old truck was given to the Park Board as an unusual piece of playground equipment.

The fire department doesn't have the heart or authority to decide the fate of its old friend. Shimon said that the weary veteran will have to turn its tired headlights toward the city government.

City Council Given Outstanding Service Award

A certificate in recognition of outstanding achievement was presented Tuesday to the Iowa City City Council, by the SU Committee on Human Rights.

The award, made in connection with a lecture by Peter Sussman, assistant staff director of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, was for "most outstanding achievement in promoting human relations and the protection of human rights in the community during 1963."

By establishing a municipal commission on human relations, the award states, the City Council signified its desire to assure the full benefits of the community to all persons regardless of race, color, creed or national origin.

Mayor Fred Doderer accepted the certificate on behalf of the City Council. The municipal commission on human relations was established in September. Members include the Reverend Lawrence D. Soens, chairman; Mrs. Anthony Costantino, Emil G. Trott, Simeon Strauss, Mrs. Ailyn Lemme, Mrs. John Kenney and Richard Sidwell.

The University Committee on Human Rights is headed by Willard Boyd, professor of Law.

Soviet Film Show In Classic Series

"Alexander Nevsky," directed by Sergei Eisenstein with the musical score by Prokofiev, will be shown on Saturday at 8 p. m. in Macbride Auditorium.

A portrayal of Medieval Warfare, this film is widely recognized as an all-time classic. Prokofiev's score of the 1938 U.S.S.R. production has been subsequently recorded as the "Alexander Nevsky Cantata."

This is the fourth of six film classics to be presented by the Student Art Guild, usually on Friday nights. Tickets for the remaining three films can be purchased at the door immediately before the showing or at the Art Building.

ROTC Bill Gains Support

Pay raises for all advanced Army and Air Force ROTC cadets at SUI and across the country is contained in a bill nearing approval by the House Armed Services Committee.

The pay raise would increase the present pay to $27 a month to $50 a month.

Col. Brooks W. Booker, Jr., professor of Air Science at SUI, explained that the committee also plans to recommend that AFROTC graduates be provided with equal uniform allowances whether they take regular or reserve commissions. Distinguished military students who take regular commissions in the Air Force do not get a uniform allowance now, he said.

The House subcommittee is making other sharp revision in the AFROTC program. The measure would emphasize the continuation of the present four year program for Air Force ROTC but would allow for a two-year program as well.

French Duo Sets Concert For Macbride Auditorium

Jean-Pierre Rampal, flutist, and Robert Veyron-Lacroix, pianist and harpsichordist, will appear in Macbride Auditorium Friday evening at 8. The concert will open the second year of musical sponsorship by the Iowa City Friends of Music.

The French duo was formed in 1946 and had its American debut at the Library of Congress in 1958, after which the Washington Evening Star wrote "The magic of Rampal seems to be unique. His virtuosity simply cannot be indicated in words, and Mr. Veyron-Lacroix is, in every respect, a worthy partner."

After their New York debut the following year the Herald Tribune called their performance "utterly dazzling" and the New York Times said "As a flutist, Mr. Rampal is about unbeatable. This was aristocratic music-making in which the ideas of composer and performer fused into an unforgettable performance."

The artists' tours have since led them to most of the leading American cities as well as to many of Europe's best-known music festivals. They have also appeared separately as soloists with many orchestras and in recordings for Westminster, Haydn Society, London and Columbia.

Friday's program is divided between two periods. The first half, devoted to music of the 18th century, will feature works by Telemann, Couperin and Bach for flute and harpsichord. In these selections Mr. Veyron-Lacroix will perform on the University's recently acquired De Blaise harpsichord.

The second half of the program includes three 20th century works: a set of "Incantations" for solo flute by the French composer Andre Jolivet; a sonata for flute and piano by another countryman, Francis Poulenc; and a suite of Hungarian peasant songs for flute and piano by Bela Bartok.

Season subscriptions or single admission tickets are available at Eble Music Company, West Music Company, and Campus Record Shop, or at the door of Macbride Auditorium before the concert.

113 Exempted
From Rhetoric

A total of 113 SUI freshmen have been exempted from all or part of the required rhetoric course.

Students excused from the program are required to place in the upper one-fourth of the SUI freshman class on the American College Tests, and to pass writing and speech examinations given by the University.

The rhetoric program, required of all graduates who have not been exempted, provides instruction in the fundamentals of writing, speech and reading.

Sibley: Each Generation Seeks Model

"As soon as one utopia is measurably attained, each generation must theorize anew for a model," said Dr. Mulford Sibley in his lecture "Institutions of a Peaceful Utopia" Wednesday.

Dr. Donald Johnson introduced Sibley, a political science professor at the University of Minnesota and a visiting professor at Stanford and Cornell, as "the leading authority in political pacifism."

Dr. Sibley began with five assumptions concerning violence: (1) Violence is the product of human frustration, which could be limited by institutions; (2) Much violent conflict is the product of "alienation" caused by technology and division of labor; (3) The "gap" between the expectations and realizations of underdeveloped nations holds potential for violence; (4) While Western nationalism declines, African and Asian nationalism becomes increasingly militant; (5) The world lacks adequate machinery to translate violent conflict into non-violent conflict.

Sibley then outlined the political organization of a utopian republic as revealed by a "curious manuscript." The republic, Sitalta (Atlantis spelled backwards) strived "to secure as wide an expression of human personality" as possible in an orderly world.

Sibley summarized the principles for political coordination at the world level, as described by the manuscript: (1) That which can be performed at a lower level of government should be accomplished there; (2) Local units of government are governed by consensus, rather than by vote, thus avoiding "coercion of the minority"; (3) Political leaders are rotated in offices regularly; (4) In autumn and spring all leaders are hung in effigy, in commemoration of the "Great Revolution."

IOWA
"CANDIDE" NOW PLAYING AT THE IOWA THEATRE
Jean-Pierre Cassel Is Star of Film French Originally Declared "Unsuitable for Export"
"Candide," a modern-day motion picture departure from Voltaire's classic satirical novel, is now playing its first engagement at the IOWA THEATRE (your fine arts theatre). Jean-Pierre Cassel, last season's "Five Day Lover," stars in the title role of the Twentieth Century optimist.
Deemed "unsuitable for export" by the French Commission on Film Control when it was produced in 1960, this caustically comic survey of the cultural and political characteristics of contemporary civilization has only recently been released for overseas exhibition. Its controversial content concerns such inflammable material as the cold war, race relations, missiles, colonialism and profiteering as seen through the eyes of a naive young Frenchman on his humorously adventurous journey through Germany, the United States, the Soviet Union, Latin America, Switzerland, Indonesia and, of course, France.
Norbert Carbonnaux conceived, wrote and directed "Candide," which features Pierre Brasseur as Pangloss, pundit of optimism, and beautiful Israeli newcomer Dahlia Lavi as Candide's adorable and adaptable sweetheart, Cune-gonde. Nadia Gray, Michel Simon and Albert Simonin (who collaborated with Carbonnaux on the screenplay) head the supporting cast.
