Councilmen Favor Fast Time for City

Iowan Poll Shows 3-2 Council Split

Burger, Nesmith, Maas Favor Speedup; Yocum Hubbard Are Opposed

By DALLAS MURPHY Staff Writer

Members of the Iowa City Council voiced approval of the adoption of Daylight Saving Time here by a 3-2 margin Wednesday in an informal survey made by The Daily Iowan.

Mayor Richard Burger and Councilmen James Nesmith and William Maas said they favor the plan, while Councilmen Max Yocum and William Hubbard expressed disapproval.

CITY ATTORNEY Jay Honohan has been directed to prepare a resolution for the adoption of Daylight Saving Time in Iowa City for the summer months, Mayor Burger said Wednesday.

The resolution is expected to be considered by the Council Tuesday at its regular meeting. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Civic Center.

The trend toward fast time during the summer months has gained steam across the state this week, particularly in eastern Iowa, with its adoption in Waterloo, Cedar Rapids, Independence, Cedar Falls, Maquoketa and Manchester.

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME is also making a breakthrough in western Iowa, which has been a traditional opponent. The Sioux City Council will consider the program at its April 27 meeting. Sioux City has not had Daylight Saving Time since World War I.

The eastern part of the state, especially major river cities such as Davenport, Keokuk, Burlington and Dubuque have already voted in favor of daylight time.

Mayor Burger said this is partially why he personally favors switching to fast time.

"WE USUALLY follow Cedar Rapids in this," he said.

Hubbard and Yocum agree that adopting Daylight Saving Time will only make a worse mess out of a mess that already exists.

The councilmen were referring to the fact that Iowa cities presently have a local option regarding fast time. As a result, the eastern portion of the state is spotted with communities which have fast time alternating with those which do not.

In some instances, a city adopts daylight time while the rural areas surrounding it remain on standard time. The farmers, generally the chief opponents of the plan, work by the sun but are forced to trade in towns on daylight time.

"I'm FOR IT personally," Hubbard said, "but on a statewide basis, or not at all."

Yocum said he feels Iowa should not mess around with the clocks at all, unless it's on a statewide level.

Nesmith said, "With nearly all the surrounding towns having Daylight Savings Time, we probably should have it too. It kind of leaves us here all alone."

Nesmith has voted for daylight time in past years when it was before the council for consideration.

HUBBARD SAID he anticipates the introduction of a Daylight Saving Time bill in the next session of the State Legislature. "Actually,

Professor Johnson Makes 'Good Recovery'

Wendell Johnson, professor of speech pathology, is making a "good recovery" from fatigue and heart strain which resulted in his admission to University Hospitals two weeks ago, Ken Koopman, coordinator of medical center relations, said Wednesday night.

Johnson is in good condition and will be released soon, said Koopman. He explained that Johnson returned to Iowa City "extremely tired" after an extended trip to the East Coast. Koopman said he did not know if Johnson had suffered an actual heart attack.

Massacre Loyalists—

Viet Cong Scores Stunning Victory

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Military leaders assessed Wednesday the grim results of a three-day battle in Viet Nam's deep south set off by a deliberate Communist massacre of Government sympathizers at Kien Long, a district capital.

"A stunning Communist political victory" was the judgment of one American observer in that bleeding, grief-stricken region.

U.S. advisers said nearly 300 Government soldiers had been killed or wounded — the heaviest toll of a single engagement in the war. They said civilian casualties may exceed 200. The bodies of 50 or 60 guerrillas were counted.

Of the Government's supporting forces, a U.S. helicopter crewman was killed in a previously reported incident. He was hit by ground fire Sunday. A dozen other Americans were wounded.

These contributed to a rising rate of American battle casualties — 32 killed, 292 wounded and 2 missing in the first 3½ months of 1964 as compared with a total of 503 killed, wounded and missing through all 12 months of last year.

The Government mounted its drive after the Communists moved out of a base Sunday in the forest of U Minh, along the Gulf of Siam, and overran Kien Long, which is on a section of the Ca Mau peninsula, long their stamping ground.

The raiders publicly disemboweled the district chief. They slew his young son. They broke the arms and legs of the chief's wife and then killed her with a shot in the head. They slew other Government sympathizers, then headed back into the countryside.

Goldwater Continues Military Tiff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater kept the Pentagon dispute over U.S. military might rolling Wednesday by accusing President Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara of "letting our power lag and slide."

"Unless the defense policies of this Administration are changed, the Arizona Republican said, "we will face a deterrent gap through which the full force of advanced Soviet weapons may be felt."

GOLDWATER'S Charge, at a Presidential primary campaign rally in Long Beach, Calif., came in the wake of McNamara and Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force chief of staff, locking horns over the nation's military standing.

Rights Views To Be Aired

By MARILYN HOLMES Staff Writer

The University Human Rights Committee will try to help the SU1 academic community become aware of human rights problems, both local and nationally, during their Conference on Human Rights April 23-25.

The conference will provide a central gathering point for the airing of issues involved in the area of human rights.

The featured speaker at the conference will be Bayard Rustin, a national civil rights leader and the organizer of the March on Washington, D.C., last summer. He is also the tactician of the New York City school boycott. Rustin will speak at 8 p.m. April 24 in Macbride Auditorium on "America's Crisis in Civil Rights."

ALAN B. SPITZER, professor of history and coordinator of the conference, said it is important that everyone in Iowa City and the University community recognize that they share a role in the national responsibility for civil rights problems.

"WITHIN THE LAST year, this community has moved from apathy in the realm of bialer pieties," Spitzer said. "We have a long way to go, and will be helped by hearing what people who are directly and totally involved have to say. Personally, I hope that the civil rights activities carried on outside the University will be reinforced as a result of this conference."

Highlights of the conference will include panel discussions on SU1 and the Southern Universities Exchange Program, tactics of the civil rights movement, patterns of community discrimination, and rights of opportunities in employment.

John Lewis, national chairman of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, will participate in the panel discussion at 3:30 p.m. April 24.

So far $200, donated recently by a mother of a member of SARE-Friends of SNCC and a Cedar Rapids business man, has been placed in the fund.

Raymond Rohrbaugh, G. Iowa City, reported that two groups of students will go to Greenwood, Miss., after final examinations to continue work on the book cataloging project which was begun during spring vacation. About 15 students have signed up to go, Rohrbaugh said.

It was also announced that SARE-Friends of SNCC will sponsor a "protest poetry reading" in May featuring Adrian Mitchell, an English poet and instructor in the Writer's Workshop, and a jazz group.

Riesel Sees Labor Party's New Power

By MARY ANNE JOHNSON Staff Writer

Victor Riesel, noted labor columnist, stressed that the labor movement of today will be the governing party of tomorrow and labor leaders of today will be the prime ministers of tomorrow.

He then exemplified his statement by citing various countries throughout Africa and Europe where labor parties have gained political control.

In Rhodesia and Nyasaland a leader of the railroad workers gained power. The Kenya Federation of Labor is powerful with its five thousand workers. Riesel predicted that the next prime minister from this country will be from this party.

Riesel also cited Brazil as an example of labor control. Goulart was head of a labor party.

Riesel departed from his speech with an incident that occurred while he was in Zanzibar, the spice island. He was taking a tour of the island with his wife and a college professor who both had fallen asleep. The driver, noting that Riesel was the only one awake stopped the car. Next Riesel caught a branch of clove which had been thrown to him. Despite his sight loss he was able to enjoy the tour by smelling the aroma.

In a similar fashion, his sight loss has not deterred him from his fight against racketeering and corruption in labor.

He stressed that the way the nation goes will depend upon the unions. But, he said, the greatest threat to the U.S. is the underworld.

Riesel sees labor as closer to President Johnson than to any other president in the past. For the first time labor leaders were invited to the White House, Riesel said. "The unions will back him up in the next election," Riesel predicted.

Unions are not only strong politically but financially and industrially as well. "Their pension fund amounts to $66 billion and they were strong enough to stop the steel industry for 116 days."

"You must never commit any one man to walk alone at night again," Riesel said.

English Professor Tells of Mapping Linguistic Atlas

"Left-handed? Southpaw? Bad hand? I wonder what your word for it is," said Harold Orton, recently-retired professor of English at the University of Leeds, England.

Orton, editor of the "Linguistic Atlas of England," said Wednesday night he and his collaborator Eugen Dieth, decided to compile an atlas during a vacation in 1946, with the goal of making a linguistic atlas of England and Scotland in mind.

"A LINGUISTIC atlas," he explained, "maps the linguistic features of an area." It also lists the various pronunciations of words, he added.

Dieth was to do the area maps and Orton was to list the words and phonetic pronunciations of them.

They were able to begin the fieldwork in 1950 and complete it 11 years later. During the course of their work they obtained over 400,000 responses to their questionnaire.

THEY INTERVIEWED natives, who were 60-years-old or older in communities of 500-600 population. They confined themselves to predominantly rural areas.

At the end of the interviews in each locality, the fieldworkers recorded some of the subjects and photographed the area.

"We couldn't store all of the tapes," Orton said. As a result, they were sent to the British Broadcasting Company (BBC). The BBC selected portions of the tapes it wanted for its own use and made duplicates for the linguistic study.

He said they are now available for use by schools or individuals.

Orton will speak again tonight to a language colloquium at 8 p.m. in 221A Schaeffer Hall.

Red Chinese Buildup Reported at Border

HONG KONG (AP) — Red China has sent substantial troop reinforcements to Sinkiang and has cleared and fortified a belt 20 miles deep along hundreds of miles of the disputed border with the Soviet Union. White Russian refugees said Wednesday.

The refugees from the remote region of northwest China reported the two feuding giants of world communism are waging a propaganda war across the border and tension runs high.

THEY GAVE THIS picture: Soviet broadcasts boast that some Sinkiang border areas eventually will be incorporated into the Soviet Union. The Chinese denounced Premier Khrushchev, calling him "a good friend of the Americans" and who deceived China by backing down on his promises of Soviet aid.

There were 125 White Russians in the party that reached Hong Kong after 12 days on buses and trains.

They came from near Kuldja were Moslem minorities revolted and were bloodily suppressed on May 29, 1962.

THEY GAVE THIS account of events leading up to the bloodshed in Kuldja;

Soviet consular and military representatives in Kuldja had worked for years on the Moslems indoctrinating them and urging they go to the Soviet Union.

A flood of Moslems began to cross into the Soviet Union in 1960. There were rumors in Kuldja that 500,000 to 600,000 crossed.

Blame Machines, Collectors—

Supply of Coins Short for Banks

Iowa City banks and banks throughout the nation are faced with a day-to-day shortage of coins.

Maurice E. Taylor, auditor of the Iowa State Bank and Trust Company, said it is hard to keep up with each day's demand.

The shortage is greatest in pennies, nickels and dimes, Clark Houghton, president of the First National Bank, said.

The two banks receive the money from local parking meters on alternate weeks and this money is almost enough to cover the shortage of coins, Taylor said. Both banks have to ration coins when merchants or collectors go to the money for large quantities of hard money.

MOST BANKS blame coin collectors and an increased use of coin machines for the shortage. "Millions of vending machines, juke boxes and laundromat washing machines have large quantities of coins in them every day even if they are emptied regularly," Taylor pointed out.

According to an Associated Press poll, many bankers have made special arrangements with vending machine firms and churches to obtain coins. Houghton said the First National Bank gets its silver from the Federal Reserve banks, but it too, is faced with the shortage. The Iowa State Bank often tries to get coins from other banks, but "they don't have any either," Taylor said.

Most bankers say the shortage has become acute in the past few months, and some say it has been a problem for several years, the AP reports. The Iowa State Bank noticed the usual shortage at Christmas time, Taylor said. It was expected to ease up but it hasn't, he added. Houghton said the shortage first became evident last summer. It became acute last fall.

ALMOST ALL those interviewed in the AP poll mentioned the coin craze — the urge to stash away coins of recent vintage in hope that they may be worth a great deal as collector's items someday, or that the price of silver will take a terrific jump and increase their intrinsic value. Many bankers think recent publicity about the problem has led to more hoarding.

Coin production was 3.6 billion pieces in the 1962 fiscal year. The total will be about 4.1 billion in the year which ends June 30, 1964, and this will rise to 4.9 billion next year if Congress approves money for additional equipment, and no silver dollars are minted.

Uneven distribution may make the shortage appear worse than it is, the AP says. Pennies are scarce in one area while quarters and dimes are in tight supply in another. Several cities in the South-east and Honolulu report they have no problem, according to the AP poll.

THERE ARE some long-range factors which may ease the coin shortage. A proposed new mint at Philadelphia could pump an additional six billion coins a year into the supply, but it would take three years to put it into production after Congress appropriated the money.

President Johnson Says No Rail Settlement Yet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson reported "no settlement yet" Wednesday in the railroad labor crisis. But the President said he still hopes for agreement before a nationwide strike threat resumes next week.

Johnson said labor and management negotiators in five days of emergency White House bargaining talks "have narrowed the area of differences on some of the issues."

But, he reported: "There is settlement yet and there can be no settlement until all issues are disposed of."

led to the rioting of Kuldja.

"The refugees said the Moslems were angered because Chinese authorities refused to give them exit permits.

The Moslems massed before Chinese government headquarters, then poured through the gates, smashed windows, ransacked offices, and looted government stores of bread and wine.

"They were angry because the government had fed them corn while officials ate bread and drank wine," one White Russian said.

Mr. K. Raps Mao's Revolution

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev says Red China now preaches world revolution because Mao Tze-tung and other leaders bungled in trying to solve problems at home.

It was the first time, diplomats said, that Khrushchev had made an open attack on Mao personally.

Peking's policies "have created serious difficulties for the world communist movement and placed it on the verge of a split," he told a Polish-Soviet friendship meeting Wednesday in the Kremlin.

The meeting was an encouraging one for the premier, Vladislav Gomułka, the visiting Polish party leader, announced cautious support for the Soviet call for a world Communist showdown meeting on Red China. While backing Moscow, Poland has been reported cool toward a showdown meeting, fearing an irreparable division of world communism.

His voice rising to a shout, Gomułka ridiculed the Chinese for calling the West "a paper tiger."

He declared no "imperialist" country is ripe for revolution, as Peking contends, "least of all the United States."

In his address, Khrushchev scoffed at Red Chinese aspirations for leadership of world communism. He said the Chinese would like to "become the leaders and mentors of the revolutionary movement in Asia, Africa and Latin America," but could offer only revolution instead of economic progress.

"They say we are the revisionists," Khrushchev said. "But I ask, what do their people want — war or rice? I think they want rice."

The Soviet premier, who will be 70 Friday, obviously was feeling good. Leaving his prepared text, he seemed to enjoy scoffing at the Chinese, sometimes pretending to quote them in an artificial voice, sometimes jabbing his finger at the applauding audience to emphasize a point.

Khrushchev said that the Chinese leaders "are trying to discredit the struggle of the Socialist countries and their Communist parties to advance their economies and raise the living standards of the people."

He declared the Chinese ideologically needed "a resolute rebuff."

Until recently the Chinese stressed the importance of economic progress to prove the superiority of communism over free enterprise, Khrushchev continued.

The Ralph McGill column—

A lack of faith in America's system

By RALPH MCGILL

Horace Greeley, an editor of the Civil War period, is recalled chiefly for having said, "Go West, young man, go West," and for his continuous efforts to create and direct Abraham Lincoln's policies. Lincoln had no animus for him, but in August of 1864, worn out by Greeley's demands, he told the cabinet: "Greeley is an old shoe . . . good for nothing now, whatever he had been . . . a shoe gets too old the stitches pull out. . . ." (Reported by Gideon Welles, of Hartford, for many years a distinguished public figure, editor and member of the Lincoln cabinet, in his published diary.)

After a century the name appears again in a story from Brooklyn. The great-grandson of the Civil War editor made news as a spokesman for the John Birch Society. In a speech Dr. Horace Greeley:

1. Said we are losing the Cold War "because our leaders either lack the guts to use their power or are plain traitors."
2. Suggested that Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy planted a "tree of treason" in Panama.
3. Accused Secretary of State Dean Rusk and columnist Walter Lippmann of "cackling senilely over each surrender."
4. Condemned the "half-baked and semi-cannibal" nations of the underdeveloped area of the world.
5. Said schools now teach "sex" and prepare children for integration "instead of Armageddon."

At this point, the reporter said, Dr. Greeley referred to the Birch Society as an educational organization and said, "We make no wild and no unsubstantiated charges." Of those who attack the Birch Society, he said, most are "actually Communists and the rest Communist dupes." (The founder of the Birch Society, it may be remembered, declared President Eisenhower a Communist. Dr. Greeley suggested that politicians supporting civil rights are helping "the ends of their Communist masters.")

As for politics, Dr. Greeley suggested he favored Senator Goldwater over all others who would be president.

It is good that this latest spokesman for the extreme right explains that the society makes "no wild charges." We are still reluctant, however, to accept the founder's charges against former President Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles, and others of equal prominence and service to their country. It is a bit difficult, too, to accept as non-wild the suggestion that our leaders may be so narrowly delineated as lacking guts or as being plain traitors because the Cold War hasn't been, or isn't yet, won.

One of the greatest puzzles is the seeming irrational fear that possesses the ultra-right political wing in this country. In some persons encountered, it appears to be the product of some sort of neurosis. (The latest fantasy is a scurrilous slander of Henry Cabot Lodge as being soft on communism.)

There is no valid reason to fear the Communists will take over America. The Federal Bureau of Investigation has done, and is doing, an excellent job of surveillance, exposure and capture of subversive agents.

It is recommended that we be informed and aware of Communist tactics, propaganda and attempts to infiltrate legitimate organizations and causes. This is being done very well, indeed. One of the surprises has been that the massive and often spontaneously organized civil right demonstrations have contained as few left-list or Communist personalities as they have. J. Edgar Hoover, the esteemed head of the FBI, has said that it is wrong to say the Negro drive for rights is a Communist movement. That the communists always seek to attach themselves to mass movements is, and has been, a part of Mr. Hoover's warning.

That any organization should regard our leaders as lacking guts or being traitors; that suggestions should be made that Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Dulles were Communist tools, and that President Eisenhower and Kennedy planted a tree of treason in Panama or anywhere else, are examples not merely of unreasonable fears, but of something else much more serious — a lack of faith in this country's political leadership and its system of government. Daylight time is best solution

THE CEDAR RAPIDS City Council voted Wednesday to go on Daylight Saving Time beginning at 2 a.m. April 26. The decision by Cedar Rapids is expected to produce a snowball effect on fast time among Eastern Iowa cities including Iowa City.

City Manager Carsten Leikvold has already stated that he expects Iowa City to go on daylight time if Cedar Rapids did so. University Heights and, probably, Coralville would follow Iowa City.

There are many pros and cons to daylight time, but there seems to be no alternative for Iowa City but to follow Cedar Rapids. Business connections between the two cities, which are considerable, would be practically impossible if Iowa City remained on standard time.

The most encouraging part of the possibility of Iowa City going on daylight time is that the messy time situation of last summer will be eliminated. Last summer Iowa City was divided into at least three time zones within the city — the University operated on a 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. schedule, the city offices on a 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. schedule and most of the business houses on the regular 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. schedule.

Of course the time situation will never be resolved completely until the state or — better yet — the nation goes on daylight time. But these are things that will have to be worked out in the future. Presently we will have to put up with the best solution — Iowa City adopting daylight time.

—Gary Spurgeon

Just another thing to put up with

TSK, TSK. Driving too fast. And sipping beer. President Johnson did it down home in Texas, and from all the space it has gotten in news stories, and the ponderous commentary it has drawn from learned columnists, you would think it a matter of some note.

But that is the way things go and ever have gone, with Presidents and kings. He has his image, and if he doesn't think of it constantly the court gossips will.

President Kennedy caught it because there were twist parties at the White House and because someone fell into a swimming pool at his sister-in-law's house. President Eisenhower's love of golf, to say nothing of this syntax inexplicably became great issues. So did the simple fact that Harry Truman liked to relax with old friends over poker and a bottle of bourbon.

When things of human interest happen, reporters ought to report them. And when, as President Johnson did, the President gets angry, that is understandable, too. But the whole incident is as trivial as the ones the other Presidents put up with.

Three cheers for discrimination

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Last week actor Peter Lawford and his wife Pat, sister of the late President Kennedy, were turned down in their efforts to buy a New York apartment. It seems that all prospective tenants for this particular apartment house are screened by a Board of Tenants. One member of the board, Francis Masters, turned down the application, although the other four members of the board said they had no objection to the Lawfords' moving in.

Mr. Masters' excuse for blackballing the couple and their four children was that Mr. Lawford was an actor and Mrs. Lawford was a Democrat.

Since the story appeared, Mr. Masters has received a great deal of criticism for his stand. We think it's time somebody came to his defense.

Everyone knows what kind of people actors are. They stay up late at night, they have parties, they get their names in the gossip columns, and people are always asking for their autographs. Very few of them go to church and they have wild orgies around their swimming pools, and if you pick up any movie fan magazine you'll realize they are driven, tormented people. No God-fearing family would want them living in the same apartment house.

Mr. Masters had every right to object to Mr. Lawford's moving into his building. You let one actor in and pretty soon other actors want to get in and real estate values go down and the neighborhood goes to hell. Just look what happened to Beverly Hills and Bel-Air when they allowed actors to live there.

But we believe that Mr. Masters might have made an exception in Mr. Lawford's case if it weren't for the second problem, and that was the fact that Mrs. Lawford was a Democrat. No apartment house in New York could stand having a family composed of an actor and a Democrat at the same time.

There is no need to go over the type of tenants Democrats make. They never throw out their garbage, their kids are always yelling and screaming, they get in fights with Republican children, they hold meetings in their apartments for medicare and civil rights, and you never know what kind of visitors you're liable to meet in the elevator. We know of one apartment house that had Democrats living there, and one day a Republican tenant saw Adlai Stevenson, Arthur Schlesinger and Walter Reuther — all going in at the same time.

The trouble with Democrats, as everyone knows, is that they keep to themselves. Even if you offer to be friends with them, they reject you. Their interests are different and they don't want to mix with you anymore than you don't want to mix with them. It's one thing to have integration of the races, but it's another to have integration of people who belong to a different political party.

One of the reasons there is no provision in the Fair Housing Law guaranteeing rights for people of Democratic conviction is that Democrats can't assimilate with people of other backgrounds.

In every case where it has been tried, the crime rate in the neighborhood has gone up and the apartment houses have gone to ruin.

Mr. Masters knows this better than anybody. Instead of criticizing him, people should say to themselves, "Would you want your children to play with children who have an actor for a father and a mother who is a Democrat?"

Letters—

Church-goers may doze, but a reporter? Really!

To the Editor: I have heard of people sleeping through a sermon in a church, but not of many reporters dozing off during a discussion. Your staff writer, Marilyn Holmes did just that while reporting a discussion on foreign students and SUJ at the Unitarian Church last Sunday.

First, she suggested that I am opposed to organized association of national groups. This is my position stated in reverse. I am only against any one group in its daily life in the U.S.A. shutting itself off from the local community life. Second, she represented me correctly when she reported that an international organization can alleviate this clamorishness but it did not imply that such an organization on this campus is meeting its responsibilities. In fact, I pointed out areas where the organization on our campus is not meeting the needs of foreign visitors.

I trust this will help clarify my position.

Here's a time suggestion

To the Editor: I have been following with some interest the daylight time controversy. I have seen editorials, heard "paid political announcements" on the radio, and even read "crack pot" letters. Therefore, I thought that I would write one.

About twenty thousand people in Cedar Rapids favor Daylight Time. However, among those who are against it are such eminent authorities as Donald Duck and Mickey Mouse. In view of the division of opinion and the political nature of the controversy, why not compromise? I think that we should go on Daylight Time on odd numbered dates and on Standard Time on even-numbered dates. The University policy can enforce this suggestion.

We can all help by giving

It was ironic that the Ohio floods, the Alaskan earthquake, the California tidal waves and the tornadoes that struck hard in Texas before dipping down more lightly in Kansas, Missouri and Iowa, took place during the traditional March-April Red Cross campaign for funds in non-federated areas.

Most Red Cross chapters in the nation now raise their money through federated drives — such as the United Good Neighbors campaign in Linn County — but many smaller chapters still conduct their drives in the traditional Red Cross month of March. April usually is needed for "clean up" purposes because goals are seldom met in March.

We can all help with our contributions.

The chancellor system—

One boss would help

The suggestion has been made that the knitting of the three major state institutions of learning in Iowa under one over-all chancellor would be a progressive step. The finest example of such an arrangement is in the state of California, where one president directs the entire system of state colleges and universities. It has prevented unnecessary duplication of facilities, and has given a definite direction to higher academic learning on the West Coast. Iowa could profit from this kind of educational system.

Having competition between the state schools for personnel and having each school bid against the other at every legislative session for a share of the tax dollars is not a good way to get the highest quality of education in our state, or to recruit the best in teaching and administrative personnel. Our neighboring state to the north, Minnesota, has a coordinated system between their various teachers' colleges and the university, and they have a better educational blueprint for the future than do the Iowa schools. There also seems to be a more progressive attitude toward education.

OUTSIDE of sentiment and "school tie" esprit de corps, there is little reason for maintaining SCI, ISU and SUJ as separate entities in the state. There was a time in years past when SCI was limited to turning out teaching personnel; ISU emphasized agriculture and engineering; and SUJ concentrated on liberal arts, and the fields of law, medicine, commerce, dentistry, journalism and other professional fields.

Times have changed. Liberal arts courses and instruction on a broad basis are available at all three state schools. Increased enrollment problems have demanded a more efficient use of educational facilities at all of the institutions. Dormitories are being built as fast as the concrete can be borrowed and paid back through direct charges made to the students, or to go one step further, to their parents.

The cost of receiving a college education is increasing so rapidly that deserving Iowa youngsters in the future may not be able to attend. The tax exemption suggested at the national government level for parents of youngsters in college would have been a great help, but the lawmakers thought it would take too deep a cut in the revenue intake.

AS COMPARED with neighboring industrialized states, thousands of Iowans must send their children to college. And the major part of that cost is the living away from home. Every major city in the United States has a college or university within the city which residents of that area can attend, with the youngsters living at home. This is fine for the people living in the cities. But for the rural students who need the educational advantages, it means that extra sacrifice has to be made to send that boy or girl to college.

Any step which would add to the economy and efficiency of operation, and the elimination of duplicate facilities at our state schools, would be of benefit to all of the people of the state. One over-all president and director would help us get more education al value for our tax dollar. Twenty-five years ago you could attend a professional college at the University of Iowa for less than $700 a year for everything. This cost now has increased more than 300 per cent. Incomes in Iowa have NOT increased proportionately. This is why advanced education is taking such a large bite out of the Iowans' pockets. It is also why this is a good time to examine our educational structure, to improve its quality and availability.

"Well," said the friend, "when I get a toothache I go to my wife; she puts her arms around me and caresses and comforts me and the ache goes away."

Bunning spent nine years in the American League with Detroit.

Nicklaus Listed As Favorite In Match

HOUSTON (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, with a good two-year Houston record behind him, was a strong favorite Wednesday over defending champion Bob Charles as 108 pros and 10 amateurs prepared for today's opening round in the Houston Golf Classic.

Charles, the New Zealand left-hander, set a Classic record 269 while making his first Houston appearance a year ago, but rates behind Nicklaus.

Nicklaus has played here only twice but finished in a second-place tie in 1962 at 273 and took fourth last year with a 273.

The 7,223-yard, par 35-36-71 Sharpstown Country Club course is the tourney's new home after an 11-year stay at the shorter Memorial Municipal Park.

Other contenders include Dave Marr, a Houston native, Paul Harvey, Dow Finsterwald and Australia's Bruce Devlin.

Thursday's starting field does not include such stars as Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Tony Lema and Julius Boros.

Kubek's Remarks About unionism Labeled 'ill advise'

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Judge Robert Cannon, adviser to the Major League Baseball Players' Association, said Wednesday that Tony Kubek's remarks about players' interests in pay television being introduced on the West Coast July 1 were "unfortunate."

The Yankee shortstop was quoted Tuesday as saying that "we ought to get a piece of extra money from pay television since we are the performers who make the show go. We are now closer to a ball players' union than we've ever been before."

Emphasizing that he was speaking only as an individual, Cannon said he felt the "threat of a union" was ill advised.

Petersen Leads Hawks in Hitting

By CURT SYLVESTER
 Staff Writer

Jay Petersen broke into the Iowa baseball starting lineup last year as a hard-hitting third baseman. He hit .289 as a sophomore and is off to an even more impressive start this season batting .333 with nine runs batted in after 11 games.

However, in the Hawks' first five games played here, Petersen's defensive play has been nearly as impressive as his hitting. He hit a peak for the young season in the three games against Western Illinois last weekend. In Friday's game, with the score tied and the bases loaded in the eighth inning, "Pete" made a diving stab of a liner down the third base line and kicked the bag for the final out.

In the double-header Saturday, he again played flawlessly. His best efforts of the day came with one out and a Western Illinois base runner on second. A bouncing drive off the bat of Western's Don Runge took a bad hop and was headed toward left field when Petersen grabbed the ball with his bare hand and fired it to Duke Lee for the out. The next man on the Leatherneck team lined a grass-cutter which Petersen handled perfectly, throwing him out at first.

Although he played shortstop while he was in high school at Clinton, Jay says he is content playing third base under the guidance of Coaches Dick Schultz and Otto Vogel. He is hesitant to say which position is most difficult to play.

"You don't have time to think at third, though," he said. "There isn't time to estimate the speed of the ball, you just have to make the play." For this reason, he said a third-sacker has to crouch more than the other infielders.

Petersen's ability, both defensively and offensively, is not incidental. His dad gave him a glove when he was "four or five" years old and he has been working on defense since then. His hitting prowess is the result of natural ability and serious study of the art of hitting.

"I've read everything Hornsby ever said about hitting," he said. He has also studied the methods used by hitters such as Ty Cobb and Paul and Lloyd Waner.

Petersen studies his own batting problems and is constantly trying to learn and improve. During practice and before he steps up to the plate he analyzes the pitchers and tries to anticipate any problems he might have to adjust his style accordingly. "When I go up to hit," he said, "I'm a complete blank. I go entirely on reflex."

Jay's scholarly endeavors do not end when he leaves the diamond. Now in his junior year, Petersen is completing the requirements for a degree in political science and hopes to begin taking journalism courses next year. After graduation he hopes to get a job with the State Department or write for magazines such as the National Geographic. During high school at St. Mary's of Clinton, he was a member of the National Honor Society and president of the student council.

Although interested in government or magazine work, Petersen has an undying love for baseball and if the chance should come he would like to try professional baseball first.

Hawks Have Routine Drill

Iowa's Hawkeyes concentrated on the two platoon system, running offensive and defensive drills in their eighth session of spring practice Monday.

After a brief warm-up going through the stations of the "Winning Edge," practice stressed basic fundamental plays and assignments of offense and defense.

Practice concluded with a 15-minute live scrimmage which the offense won on the last play, 11-9. Both platoons can score in the scrimmage as points are scored on the basis of various things including yardage, completed passes, intercepted passes and holding on fourth down.

The team ran relays before retiring with the members of the winning relay team being rewarded by exemption from "Winning Edge" drills today.

Regional Heart Group Reaches Half Its Goal

The Cedar Valley Division of the Iowa Heart Association has reached approximately 50 per cent of its goal for the 1964 Iowa Heart Fund Campaign.

John J. Zachar Jr., president of the Division, announced the results of the audit of funds received up to April 3 which showed a total of $28,568.38. Because there are many returns not yet in for audit, Zachar said that it will be six weeks before a complete audit can be made of all the funds received.

Cedar and Washington counties have achieved their goals and have reached a new high in funds received for the Heart Association. Other counties included in the Cedar Valley Division are Benton, Iowa, Johnson, Jones, Linn and Louisa.

 Baby Boom
 This Coming Year

By TOM GERDIS
 Staff Writer

This is the year of the baby boom, the year when the first large crop of post-war babies are due to apply to colleges and universities for admission in the fall of 1964.

The babies are applying even beyond expectations. A survey of 60 schools conducted by the Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges shows that applications for fall admission in early March were running 32 per cent higher than last year. At 174 state colleges the increase was about a third higher than last year.

BUT STATE institutions also have gone beyond expectations in preparing for the boom. They will be able to absorb at least 16 per cent more freshmen.

This does not mean, however, that each state university or land-grant college can admit 16 per cent more freshmen this fall than it did last fall. Institutional differences vary from the ten schools which are unable to admit any more freshmen than they did last year, to those schools which can absorb only a small increase, to those which said they could admit all who applied. SUI can admit 6 per cent more than it did last September.

ENROLLMENT AT SUI is expected to jump 800 students — to 13,700. Dr. Donald Rhoades, Director of Admissions and Registrar, said the rise in tuition to begin next

SUI Hosts 5-Week Geriatrics Talks

By SHELLEY PETERSON Staff Writer

In response to a growing need for competent administrators in institutions for the care of the aged and chronically ill, a five-week course in nursing and retirement home administration will be offered at SUI beginning Thursday.

The course, the second in a three year program, is offered by the SUI Institute of Gerontology in cooperation with the Division of Gerontology and Chronic Diseases of the Iowa State Department of Health, the Iowa Nursing Home Association, and eight departments of SUI.

The SUI participating departments are the College of Education, the College of Nursing, the Division of Extension and University Services, the Hospital and Health Administration, the Departments of Home Economics, Nutrition and Physical Education for Women and the School of Social Work.

The purpose of the course is to improve the care given to nursing home patients or guests by increasing efficiency in the handling of administrative problems. It will cover six basic aspects of nursing and retirement home administration.

THESE aspects are under the general headings of problems involved in the initiation and establishment of a nursing home project, efficiency in business management, caring for patients or guests, food service and nutrition, recreation, rehabilitation and group procedures, and the improvement of administrative leadership.

These subjects will be covered in 40 hours of instruction given in sessions on Thursday afternoons and evenings, and Friday mornings over the five-week period, ending May 15.

The teaching staff includes authorities from various parts of the United States who specialize in geriatric medicine, nursing, nutrition and home administration. Also, authorities from several hospitals and other health facilities will participate.

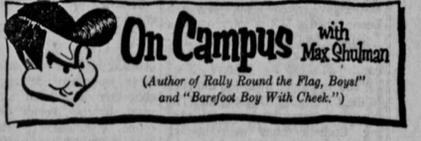

There is no tuition charge for the course because it is financed by the Iowa State Department of Health, with supporting funds from the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

NO ACADEMIC credit is given, but a certificate is awarded to participants.

This year's session will begin Thursday at 1 p.m. in the Pentacrest Room of the Union. Welcome addresses will be given by Dr. Gerhard Hartman, the Superintendent of SUI Hospitals and professor and director of the Graduate Program in Hospital and Health Administration at SUI, and by Dr. W. W. Morris, director of the SUI Institute of Gerontology. Orientation will be given by Dr. H. Lee Jacobs, assistant professor of gerontology, the course coordinator.

Speakers will deal with the first of the six areas of study, the problems involved in the initiation and establishment of a nursing home or retirement home project.

THIRTY-EIGHT present and prospective administrators are enrolled in this year's course. Over 100 people will be trained in the three year program.

WELL-KNOWN FAMOUS PEOPLE: No. 1

This is the first in a series of 48 million columns examining the careers of men who have significantly altered the world we live in. We begin today with Max Planck.

Max Planck (or The Pearl of the Pacific, as he is often called) gave to modern physics the law known as Planck's Constant. Many people when they first hear of this law, throw up their hands and exclaim, "Golly whiskers, this is too deep for little old me!"

(Incidentally, speaking of whiskers, I cannot help but mention Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades. Personna is the blade for people who can't shave after every meal. It shaves you closely, cleanly, and more frequently than any other stainless steel blade on the market. The makers of Personna have publicly declared—and do here repeat—that if Personna Blades don't give you more luxury shaves than any other stainless steel blade, they will buy you whatever blade you think is better. Could anything be more fair? I, for one, think not.)

Max Planck, as we know, are the floating colonies of one-celled animals on which fishes feed. Planckton, in their turn, feed upon one-half celled animals called krill (named, incidentally, after Dr. Morris Krill who invented the house cat). Krill, in their turn, feed upon peanut butter sandwiches mostly—or, when they are in season, cheeseburgers.

But I digress. Back to Max Planck who, it must be said, showed no indication of his scientific genius as a youngster. In fact, for the first six years of his life he did not speak at all except to pound his spoon on his bowl and shout "More gruel!"

Imagine, then, the surprise of his parents when on his seventh birthday little Max suddenly cried, "Papa! Mama! Something is wrong with the Second Law of Thermodynamics!" So astonished were the elder Plancks that they rushed out and dug the Kiel Canal.

Meanwhile Max, constructing a crude Petrie dish out of two small pieces of petrie and his gruel bowl, began to experiment with thermodynamics. By dinner time he had discovered Planck's Constant. Hungry but happy, he rushed to Heidelberg University to announce his findings. He arrived, unfortunately, during the Erich von Stroheim Sesquicentennial, and everyone was so busy dancing and duelling that young Planck could find nobody to listen to him. The festival, however, ended after two years and Planck was finally able to report his discovery.

Well sir, the rest is history. Einstein gaily cried, "E equals me squared!" Edison invented Marconi. Eli Whitney invented Georgia Tech, and Michelangelo invented the ceiling. This later became known as the Humboldt Current.

Mr. Shulman is, of course, joking, but the makers of Personna Blades are not: if, after trying our blades, you think there's another stainless steel blade that gives you more luxury shaves, return the unused Personnas to Box 500, Staunton, Va., and we'll buy you a pack of any blade you think is better.

But I digress. We were speaking of Planck's Constant, which is not, as many think, difficult to understand. It simply states that matter sometimes behaves like waves, and waves sometimes behave like matter. To give you a homely illustration, pick up your pencil and wave it. Your pencil, you will surely agree, is matter—yet look at the little rascal wave! Or take flags. Or Ann-Margret.

Planck's Constant, uncomplicated as it is, nevertheless provided science with the key that unlocked the atom, made space travel possible, and conquered denture slippage. Honors were heaped upon Mr. Planck (or The City of Brotherly Love, as he is familiarly known as). He was awarded the Nobel Prize, the Little Brown Jug, and Disneyland. But the honor that pleased Mr. Planck most was that plankton were named after him.

Former Peace Corpsman Slams Work in Africa

Supervisors Charged with 'No Policy'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Peace Corps volunteer has sharply criticized administration of the Peace Corps and said, "Corps policy seems to me to have no policy."

He also attacked his supervisors for doing little but making "occasional ostentatious tours through the jungle area" of Sierra Leone, the West African country where he served as a teacher and coach.

The former volunteer, Gerald M. Davis of Portland, Maine, said Peace Corps administrators wrongly concentrated the corps program on education there instead of on needed health and welfare work.

THE VIEWS OF Davis were placed in Wednesday's "Congressional Record" by Rep. Stanley R. Tupper, (R-Maine), an enthusiastic Peace Corps supporter who said, "This young man is highly intelligent, very popular, respected in his community, and certainly his observations deserve attention."

A Peace Corps spokesman, who was asked about the comments, said Davis was "an unsatisfied volunteer who came home of his own choice," and had made similar statements last spring.

"WE EXPECT CRITICISM," the spokesman said. "We looked into what Davis had to say and made some changes, but the majority of the volunteers who had served in Sierra Leone don't agree with Davis."

In particular, he said, most Peace Corpsmen there think the emphasis on education is necessary before other things can be accomplished.

DAVIS DESCRIBED one incident at the government school in Sierra Leone when a fellow volunteer was judging a foot race between a Moslem African and a Christian African.

"The volunteer awarded the race to the Christian," Davis said. "The Moslems immediately began rioting. Catholic nuns were stoned. African Christian schoolgirls were beaten. The majority of Africans believed the white-skinned Peace Corps volunteer had, with malice and forethought, awarded the contest to the Christian Sierra Leonian."

High School Drama Meet Here Friday

More than 400 high school drama students and 40 instructors have registered in advance to attend the fifth annual High School Drama Conference to be held at SUI's University Theatre Friday.

This is more than twice the number at last year's conference. "Performances To Believe In" will be the theme of the 1964 conference, which is sponsored by the SUI Department of Speech and Dramatic Art and the SUI Division of Extension and University Services.

SUI professor David Thayer is serving as secretary to the general committee for the sessions. Prof. A. S. Gillette, director of the University Theatre, is chairman of the general committee.

Planned to explore elements in production which make performances seem believable, the conference will open with an address at 9:30 a.m. Friday titled "Making Make-Believe Believable."

The speaker will be Dr. Majorie Dycke, chairman of the drama department of New York City High School of Performing Arts. Dr. Dycke is a past president of the American Educational Theatre Association, having preceded Prof. Gillette in this post.

At 10:50 a.m., John Terfloth, assistant professor of dramatic art and director of SUI's current production of "Oedipus Rex," will address the group on the problems of staging the tragedy, and the solutions chosen by SUI.

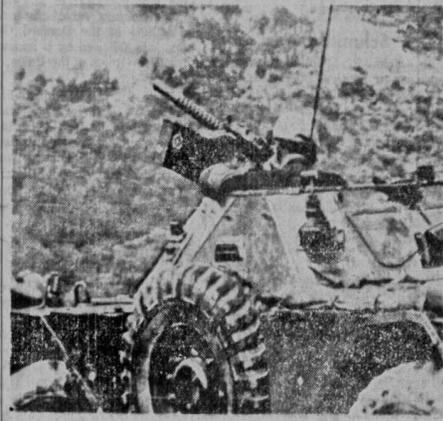

The rest of the day will be devoted to four one-hour workshop sessions, with each student attending workshops in which he has expressed special interest. Among these workshops are sessions on character delineation, stage movement, lighting, scenic design, and sound, conducted by staff members of the University Theatre.

At 8 p.m. Friday evening, the students will see the University Theatre production of "Oedipus Rex."

SUI Music Professor To Leave for New Post
Philip T. Bezanson, SUI professor of music Wednesday night said he has accepted a position as head of the Department of Music at the University of Massachusetts.

Prof. Bezanson said he is making the move because of the challenge in the department at the Massachusetts school. The department there, he said, is young but growing and offers many opportunities.

He said he would assume his new position September 1.

U.N. Troops Open Fire

A Canadian sergeant, member of the U.N. peace-keeping troops fighting the Turkish Cypriots, is shown as he fired on a Turkish gun position from his armored car in Cyprus Wednesday. The U.N. troops came under fire and shot back in several incidents of the warfare between Greeks and Turkish Cypriots.

U.N. Troops Fire Back on Cypriots

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — U.N. peace-keeping troops came under fire and shot back Wednesday in several sporadic incidents of the warfare between Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

The day's disorders were reported to have left five persons wounded. Turkish official sources said four of their followers were hit. A Greek woman was injured in Nicosia.

The Greek-dominated Cyprus government accused Turkish Cypriots of deliberately attacking civilians, police and U.N. soldiers "to frustrate efforts of the peace-keeping force" and give Turkey an excuse for armed intervention to partition the island.

It called on the Ankara government to honor the U.N. Security Council resolution for a solution of the crisis.

The most serious clash came when a Canadian patrol of three armored cars was fired on from a Turkish fortified position in the Kyrenia Mountains north of Nicosia.

Maj. Patrick Tremblay, in charge of the patrol, ordered two of his cars to return the fire.

2 Profs Go To Europe For Meetings
Two SUI professors will participate in agricultural, health, and safety meetings in Europe this month and the first part of May.

L. W. Knapp, assistant professor of agricultural medicine, has been invited to serve as the United States representative at a meeting of Experts on Safety and Health in Agriculture, sponsored by the International Labor Office (ILO) in Geneva, Switzerland, April 20 to May 2.

Dr. Franklin Top, head of the Department of Preventive Medicine and Environmental Health, will participate in the Second International Congress of Agricultural Medicine at Bad Kreuznach, Germany, May 4 through May 9. Dr. Top is vice-president of the Congress.

Objectives of the meeting will be to prepare a code of practice on safety and health in agriculture, examine a handbook designed to illustrate and supplement the code, and consider ILO activities in the field of occupational safety and health in agriculture and make recommendations for future action.

Following the Geneva meeting, Knapp will meet Dr. Top at the agricultural medicine congress in Germany.

FLAMEY BAUER — Tom K. Bauer, fire reporter, came to the rescue of the Iowan City Desk early Wednesday evening, by snatching a fire in the waste basket. His honorable deed was accomplished with the aid of an overly powerful drinking fountain spout.

Barry's First Victory Seen As Blessing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater's Illinois primary victory bore all the earmarks of a mixed blessing for him.

The Arizona senator, the front-runner in the scramble for GOP Presidential nominating delegates, got 64 per cent of Presidential preference votes and picked up most of 48 convention delegates in Tuesday's primary.

This boosted his first-ballot total to around 150. And he seems assured of support from 10 more Illinois delegates to be chosen later.

BUT THE PRIMARY also saw the nomination of Charles H. Percy 44, a political protégé of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, as the Republican candidate for governor.

His opponent, State Treasurer William Scott, had called Percy a liberal. Percy's nomination could mean that Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, the Senate's Republican leader, will head the Illinois delegation. Neither Percy nor Dirksen is classed generally as an enthusiastic supporter of Goldwater.

THIS CONCEIVABLY could make the Illinois delegation, one of the largest backing the Arizona senator, subject to raiding tactics if a convention stalemate develops.

Percy, who will be influential within the delegation as a potential governor, is expected to give attention to any suggestions Eisenhower may make about the party nominee. And the word has spread widely that the former President doesn't want Goldwater.

AMONG THE DISAPPOINTING aspects for Goldwater of the Illinois results was that he fell 11 points behind the 74 per cent of the vote of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio polled in 1952.

The failure of more than 150,000 Republicans who voted in the governor's race to make a selection in the Presidential preference contest also seemed to indicate some substantial disinterest.

I think two bills should be introduced — one for Daylight Saving Time first, and if that fails, one against it. At least that way the whole state would be required to have a uniform summer time," he said.

Lawrence T. Wade, president of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, said Wednesday that the Chamber voted recently in favor of daylight time providing Cedar Rapids adopted it. With the Cedar Rapids decision Wednesday in favor of fast time, the chamber is on record as approving daylight time.

THE LAST YEAR Iowa City had daylight time, 1961, the council was flooded with protests against it. Iowa City's first attempt at daylight time was made in 1954. The city abandoned the plan after two months instead of the scheduled three.

Cedar Rapids also tried daylight time in 1954 and abandoned it in mid-summer. It had not voted for Daylight Saving Time since that year until Wednesday.

POLL SCHEDULED — Census interviews will visit a sampling of Iowa City homes next week, gathering facts on unemployment and employment.

Former Governor Indicted in Illinois

CHICAGO (AP) — In a surprise post-primary election action, a former Republican governor of Illinois was accused Wednesday of a $46,676 personal income tax evasion.

He is William G. Stratton, 50, former boy wonder of Illinois politics who has been living the life of a gentleman farmer and stockman since his defeat in 1960 for a third term as governor.

The Democrat who defeated him, Gov. Otto Kerner, said the federal grand jury action against Stratton would hurt the Republican party at the Illinois polls in November.

THE GRAND JURY, which has been investigating Stratton's accounts since last year, voted the indictment April 9, but ordered it suppressed until Wednesday morning. Edward Hanrahan, U.S. district attorney, said the indictment was kept a secret to insure orderly conduct of Tuesday's primary voting.

William A. Barnett, Stratton's attorney, issued the following statement in behalf of the former governor: "My affairs have been under investigation for several years by the Internal Revenue Service. Agents have come to see me many times. I have talked to them completely and fully. I have never denied them access to my records and have always answered their questions honestly and completely."

"THERE MAY BE some technical differences of opinion between my counsel and the internal revenue agents, but with respect to the charge that is made against me in the indictment, I do not believe I have done anything wrong whatsoever."

Stratton served as governor from 1952, when Adlai E. Stevenson dropped his Democratic campaign for re-election to seek the presidency, until 1960.

The indictment covered the last four years of Stratton's tenure but gave no hint of the possible source of more than $93,500 in income it accused him of concealing.

If convicted, Stratton could be given a maximum punishment of 20 years in prison and a $40,000 fine.

LBJ Doesn't Smoke; Just Chews Cigaretets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, a nonsmoker for nearly nine years, occasionally surprises people by dangling an unlit cigarette from his mouth.

Johnson's most recent public appearance with a cigarette, at the annual dinner of the White House Press Photographers Association earlier this month, sparked a rumor that he was smoking again.

George Reedy, White House press secretary, said Wednesday that Johnson has not smoked a single cigarette since his 1955 heart attack. But Reedy said the President occasionally picks up a cigarette and chews on it, without ever touching a match to it.

Motorists Warned Of Paint Trucks

Iowa motorists were reminded Wednesday that State Highway Commission crews will begin painting center and no-passing lines on 9,000 miles of primary highways and extensions this week.

The Commission said its paint trucks will be moving at only 10 miles per hour.

The Commission also urged drivers to heed halting flagmen who will be handing out alert notices at the beginning of segments being painted. Motorists were asked not to cross newly-painted lines in areas where red wooden blocks are still in place. The red blocks indicate wet paint which would be damaged if crossed by cars.

More than 170,000 gallons of paint will be used on the project before July 1, the expected completion date.

Commission Announces 'No Alaska Job Offers'

According to the Commission, many persons rushed to Alaska seeking jobs that do not exist. Those persons are now being cared for by volunteer relief agencies.

Local help is more than sufficient in cleanup activities and Alaska has more than a surplus of construction workers according to the Alaska Department of Labor.

Iowa City Man Named Iowa Farm Manager of 1964

An Iowa City man was named Iowa Farm Manager of the Year at a banquet in Ames Wednesday night.

Carl Frederick, 30, Route 5, received the annual award sponsored by the Agricultural Business Club of Iowa State University. He was selected from a field of 35 outstanding Iowa farm managers nominated by county extension directors, district extension economists and vocational agriculture instructors.

Frederick, father of four, operates a 520-acre farm on a livestock-share lease. Following conservation practices, he raised 350 acres of corn while using a 5-year rotation plan last year. One of the individuals who nominated him for the award said Frederick "probably has come close to raising a bushel of corn a minute for time-in-field."

His livestock operation last year amounted to 1,400 hogs raised, 190 head of cattle fed and 25 stock cows kept. He has a year-round marketing schedule and sells his hogs before they reach six months of age.

Frederick is president of the Johnson County Swine Producers.

Highway Patrol A D

By JOE LIPPINCOTT Staff Writer

Five men patrol nearly 1,100 miles of roads outside the incorporated limits of cities and towns in Johnson County almost 24 hours daily, seven days a week. They are the Johnson County detail of the Iowa Highway Patrol.

These five, like the 295 other highway patrolmen in the state, are a devoted group. These men work an average of 55 hours per week, patrolling the roads during all seasons of the year. Their pay is low, about $2 an hour for the average patrolman.

Yes, they tell you they could use more money. But these men seem to be primarily concerned with acquiring additional manpower for the force.

DURING the Governor's mid-term budget hearing in February, State Safety Commissioner William F. Suespel, former Iowa City attorney, said, "The Iowa Highway Patrol is about 100 men light." Suespel told The Daily Iowan his department now is making a study to determine exactly how much more manpower is needed, and how much more will be needed in the next two years. This study will be presented to the 1965 Legislature for possible action.

It costs the state of Iowa approximately $10,000 per year to pay and equip a highway patrolman. The annual Highway Patrol appropriation totals $3,091,420.

EACH MAN receives a new car every 12 to 18 months, and also is supplied with all uniforms and a handgun. In addition, most patrolmen carry their own rifles or shotguns.

When a patrolman is allotted a car, it is his responsibility to maintain the car at peak operating performance. He takes care of it as though it were his own. Highway patrolmen take much pride in their cars. Their lives sometimes depend on it.

Working conditions for highway patrolmen are somewhat less than ideal. These men do not work from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Instead, they are on duty 10 hours a day, an average of 3 1/2 days a week, and change from day shift to nighttime duty every two weeks. They often work Sundays and holidays. They can be called for extra duty at any time.

HIGHWAY patrolmen in Johnson County average more than 200 miles of driving per 10-hour shift. They almost always ride alone. They have a lot of ground to cover and this method has proved most efficient. Sheriffs and deputies supplement patrol duties in most counties.

Showers and thunderstorms are in store for the entire state tonight and winds will be shifting as cold air moves across the state from the northwest.

Two Boys Bitten By Rabbit Here

Iowa City and campus policemen were called to Hawkeye Apartments Thursday afternoon after a resident reported that two small children had been bitten by a rabbit.

Iowa City Patrolman Robert Vera said the animal was captured and taken to the State Hygiene Laboratory for a rabies test. Campus Police Lieutenant Oscar Graham said the mothers of the boys, Mrs. John Dillon and Mrs. Andrew Paesani, were told to see a physician immediately.

According to Dr. Franklin H. Top, head of the SUI Department of Preventive Medicine and Environmental Health, the youngsters will have to undergo a series of vaccinations if the rabies test on the rabbit is positive. The series of shots, he added, consists of 14 vaccinations for 14 days.
