Dr. King, 17 Others Jailed; More Violence in Florida

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. landed in jail Thursday for trying to desegregate a restaurant and within a few hours a state judge ordered the County Grand Jury to investigate racial turmoil in St. Augustine.

King's arrest with a group of 17 followers came after the second night march by integrationists brought violence from a white mob downtown. About 20 persons have been injured, either by beating or by rocks hurled from the mob.

Circuit Judge Howell Mellon signed an order summoning the Grand Jury into special session today at the request of State Atty. Dan Warren of Daytona Beach.

Warren said he had conferred twice Thursday with Gov. Farris Bryant. In his request for the order, Warren said the investigation was necessary "to explore ways and means needed to be taken to protect the general health and welfare of the county."

Asked if he would seek any indictments as a result of the violence, Warren said, "The purpose is fact-finding." The jury last year made an inquiry, criticized Negro leaders and the Ku Klux Klan but returned no indictment.

Before King was arrested, a stocky white man shoved some of the integrationists at the motel restaurant doorway.

"GET OUT of the way," said the man, pushing the Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy and another Negro against King in the narrow doorway of the restaurant at Monson Motor Lodge.

"We can't serve you here," Brock told King. "This is private property. I'll have to ask you to leave."

"We'll just remain here," King said. Then, for 10 minutes he and Brock carried on a somewhat strained but polite exchange about segregation.

Iowa Republicans voting against the bill were Reps. James Bromwell, H. R. Gross, Charles B. Hooven, Ben Jensen and John Kyl.

451 Ask Ban On High-Rise City Apartments

A petition filed with the Iowa City Council has renewed demands for a change in the high rise apartments ordinance being considered by the council.

The petition, filed Thursday, bears 451 signatures, according to J. W. Howe, 1635 Ridge Road. The petition reads:

"The undersigned residents or property holders of Iowa City earnestly request that the proposed ordinance providing for the erection of high-rise apartment houses in R3, C2 and CB zones be amended . . . to protect property values which are presently safe-guarded by the three-story limitation on the height of apartment buildings."

"The council is respectfully requested to refer the ordinance back to the Planning and Zoning Commission for the inclusion of provisions for a graduated increase in permissible building heights with distance from an R1 or R2 boundary."

Opponents have previously argued the new ordinance would allow high-rise buildings next to R2 and R1 zones — single-family and duplex areas. At the last council meeting the council was urged to create a buffer zone between the R2 and R1 zones and the high-rise areas.

The proposed new ordinance is scheduled for third reading and voting at Tuesday's Council meeting.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller vowed Thursday to fight on as a presidential hopeful, after New York's big delegation to the Republican National Convention formally endorsed his bid for the White House.

Only one dissenting vote — cast by a supporter of Arizona's Sen. Barry Goldwater — was recorded at the closed meeting of the delegation.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A source close to the commission investigating the assassination of President Kennedy confirmed Thursday that Marina Oswald was questioned about a report that her late husband threatened to kill former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

But he declined to say what answers the widow of Lee Harvey Oswald gave when questioned about this report and a companion one that she had blocked any attempt on Nixon's life by locking her husband in his room.

Maryland Delegates Expect Word Today

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton will announce today he will seek the Republican nomination for President, sources close to him reported Thursday night.

The sources said the governor will tell the Maryland Republican convention this afternoon that he will go into the fight for the nomination until the issue is settled.

The move would put Scranton, 46, in direct opposition to U.S. Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), who holds a commanding lead in the battle for delegates at the GOP National Convention in San Francisco next month.

Scranton was described as deeply disturbed that leadership within the moderate wing of the Republican party has faltered.

THE SOURCES indicated that Scranton will tell the Maryland organization that he feels there must be what he will describe as responsible leadership within the GOP.

Earlier this week, the Pennsylvania governor, in the second year of his first term, was virtually ruled out as a prospect for the nomination, almost clearing the way for Goldwater.

The situation developed after a meeting last Saturday with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, at which Eisenhower urged Scranton to make himself "more available."

SCRANTON last Sunday in a national television appearance from the governor's conference at Cleveland made a declaration of availability, but apparently had planned to go further at the time until Eisenhower reportedly suggested that he not participate in any stop-Goldwater movement.

The development is a reversal of Scranton's previous position that he is not a candidate, but would accept a "sincere and honest draft." He had maintained this position all along up until Thursday night.

Last Sunday, Scranton said he would be available if the majority of the delegates at the GOP convention wanted him, but that he would not go around campaigning for the nomination.

THE SOURCES indicated that a key factor that influenced Scranton's decision was Goldwater's vote Wednesday against ending the filibuster on civil rights. Scranton has been an outspoken advocate of civil rights and has said in several major political addresses that the GOP cannot sacrifice any civil rights position to gain some temporary support from the South.

Scranton's expected announcement as an active candidate would put him in a field against other announced candidates that include Goldwater, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Maine Sen. Margaret Chase Smith and former Minnesota Gov. Harold E. Stassen.

The governor's office was a bee-hive of activity Thursday night. Scranton, however, was meeting with his aides at the executive mansion at Indiantown Gap.

SCRANTON is chairman of the 64-man Pennsylvania delegation to the Republican National Convention in San Francisco on July 13 and has previously urged the delegates to go there without any commitment.

He accepted the role of favorite candidate to keep the delegation united and from scattering votes. But three members of the delegation have said they will cast their votes for Goldwater on the first ballot. The others are sticking with Scranton.

Leaders Optimistic—

Fears Lessen for Cyprus Showdown

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkish leaders radiated optimism Thursday that a military showdown over Cyprus can be avoided with Greece, after talking with U.S. Undersecretary of State George W. Ball.

"We are on the way to find a solution," Premier Ismet Inonu told reporters shortly after Ball left for Washington. "The allies have made and are making efforts to resolve the question between Greece and Turkey."

PRESIDENT JOHNSON sent Ball on a flying visit to Athens and Ankara after Greece and Turkey, allies with the United States in the United States in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, appeared to be about to come to blows over Cyprus.

There was a jarring note, however, at the end of Ball's mission. Greece asserted three Turkish jet fighter planes flew low over the Greek island of Rhodes, sending the population into a panic.

A Turkish communique said Ball, whose Government has refused to take sides in the dangerous dispute, told Turkish officials:

"THE GOVERNMENT of the United States believes that any solution to the Cyprus question must be in the interest of Turkey and Greece, and the United States also believes that a solution must be found in the shortest time possible."

Ball returned to Washington Thursday and told newsmen that the threat of major conflict still exists on Cyprus and will continue until there is a final settlement.

But Ball added his conviction that both Turkish and Greek lead-

'Ladies Beware' Cautions VA

The Veteran's Administration Hospital here has cautioned Iowa City housewives against house-to-house salesmen who imply they represent the VA.

Telephone and door-to-door callers who make this implication and attempt to solicit funds or sell products are acting without permission or authority, according to Dr. J. Gordon Spendlove, director of the hospital. He issued several calls from housewives who were approached by such salesmen.

"The VA does not endorse any product, project or commercial endeavor for the profit of individuals, organizations or corporations, he said.

He recommended that housewives check salesmen's identities with the Chamber of Commerce or Better Business Bureau before admitting them to their homes.

Nationwide Memorials Pay Tribute to Evers

NEW YORK — Today, which is the anniversary of the ambush murder of Mississippi Field Secretary Medgar W. Evers, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will be conducting memorial services in more than 1,000 communities throughout the United States.

In conjunction with the memorial for Evers, the NAACP has also launched a short, intense drive to solicit 100,000 new Medgar Evers Memorial Memberships, and contributions to the Medgar Evers Memorial Fund.

Senate Votes Down Efforts To Amend Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, with its bipartisan leadership in firm control of the voting, beat down by solid margins Thursday a succession of efforts to make major changes in the civil rights bill.

The only amendments approved — with the leadership's acquiescence — were described generally as clarifying. Several were accepted by voice votes.

THE RAPID-FIRE voting was punctuated by only brief flurries of oratory — with senators ratiocating their words mostly in seconds and occasionally in sparing minutes. Each senator is limited to a total of one hour of talk on the bill and all amendments under the historic closure clamped down Wednesday to end the Dixie filibuster.

The only amendments approved — with the leadership's acquiescence — were described generally as clarifying. Several were accepted by voice votes.

THE RAPID-FIRE voting was punctuated by only brief flurries of oratory — with senators ratiocating their words mostly in seconds

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-N.C.), who offered one amendment after another, guarded his time by saying nothing about some of them before they were voted on.

Amendments rejected as the Senate drove toward expected final action on the bill next week, included these:

• 68 to 21 by Ervin to nullify the entire public accommodations title.

• 47 to 34 by Ervin to knock out the attorney general's broad authority to intervene in civil rights suits brought by individuals.

• 51 to 35 by Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.), to make the exemption in the public accommodations section apply to rooming houses with 10 rooms or less — instead of five rooms or less, as the bill now provides.

• 56 to 25 by Ervin to eliminate authority for the attorney general to make agreements with states to certify that they are in compliance with the literacy test for voting under the act.

• 66 to 24 by Sen. Russell B. Long (D-La.), to repeal the 1962 housing order by the late President John F. Kennedy under which homes financed with FHA insurance or VA guarantees in the future must be sold on a nondiscriminatory basis.

• 51 to 31 by Ervin to strike out a section of the bill which permits a defendant to appeal from a federal district court order sending a civil rights case back to a state court.

• 72 to 20 by Ervin to set up a broad range of property owner's rights which the federal government would be forbidden to abridge. These included "the right of privacy," "the right to choose his own friends," "the right to occupy and dispose of property without governmental interference in accordance with the dictates of his conscience," "the right to determine the acceptability and desirability of any prospective buyer or tenant of his property."

• 63 to 28, by Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla.), to ban discrimination in employment because of age.

On a 48 to 33 roll call the Senate refused to uphold a ruling by Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.), who was presiding, that an amendment offered by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), was germane to the civil rights bill.

Rains Come To Iowa City

After three weeks of dust, Iowa City was treated to summer showers Thursday night.

According to radio station KXIC's weather records, the last measurable rainfall was .51 inches on May 23, just 20 days ago. Total precipitation for May was 2.19 inches.

A year ago, total precipitation for May was 2.40 inches, or just slightly higher than last month's total.

June, 1963, was almost without rain, the total amounting to a mere .03 inches. Last night's rain, however, which had amounted to .20 inches by 7:30 p.m. saves us from repeating that low record.

Escapee May Be in Area

An Anamosa Men's Reformatory prisoner escaped from officials Thursday near the entrance to the SUU Children's Hospital. The escapee is identified as Ronald H. Brown, 23, Lake Station, Mich., who is serving a term for car theft in Jackson County in 1963.

Brown was here for a medical examination. He is believed to have escaped in a 1959 blue Chevrolet, license number 8-9249. The car, registered to John J. McCoy, Boone, was reported missing from the entrance to the Children's Hospital at the time of Brown's escape.

Iowa City Police received a report from a woman who thought she saw the missing car going east on Rochester Avenue about 3:30 p.m. Police say the woman matched all but the last digit of the McCoy license plate. No other report of the missing man has been made.

Brown escaped wearing blue denim pants. He is described as 5 feet, 11 inches tall, 170 pounds, with sandy hair.

It helps to know the Attorne General

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

If you are a world-known actress in distress in a foreign land, it's mighty helpful to have Attorney General Robert Kennedy take a personal interest in your welfare.

As head of the Justice Department, he is in a powerful position to solve problems with a dispatch and thoroughness that a veteran diplomat can't equal. That was the good fortune of movie star and songstress Judy Garland, who recently made global headlines with a stormy performance in Australia followed shortly thereafter by a "critical illness" in Hong Kong.

In a number of cables between the British crown colony and the Justice Department, through the accommodating auspices and facilities of the State Department, the young attorney general manifested much concern over Miss Garland's widely-publicized plight.

Through his direct intervention, the way was cleared for the immediate arrival of her doctor and manager.

U.S. Consul General Edward Rice kept Kennedy fully informed of Miss Garland's condition. In one cable he reported he had personally delivered to the hospitalized actress the attorney general's warm message of concern.

Even Rice's cables to Secretary of State Rusk regarding Miss Garland were marked "Pass to Attorney General."

Aides of Kennedy say he was introduced to the singer by his brother-in-law and sister, Peter and Patricia Lawford. Lawford is a movie actor and they reside in Hollywood. Through them Kennedy and his wife have become acquainted with numerous stage and screen performers.

White protesters blur the issue too much

THE OUTBURSTS OF RACIAL VIOLENCE during the recent anti-segregation marches in St. Augustine were not unusual, but the choice of victims is rather unique. The attackers singled out the white marchers for abuse.

Those who actively resist the integration movements seem to resent most those of "their own" who cross the line. Perhaps it complicates the issue too much for them.

Republican nominee does make a difference

IT WAS A DEMOCRAT WHO SAID IT, but too many Republicans seem to agree. At a Democratic meeting the other night, Mayor Wagner of New York forecast a sweeping victory for President Johnson in the fall. Then he reportedly said he did not think "it makes much difference" which Presidential candidate the Republicans nominate.

From the narrow point of view of victory in November, this may or may not be true. But for the health of the Republican Party—and, indeed, of the two-party system—it is false. It makes a very great difference which Presidential candidate the Republicans nominate.

So far only two major candidates have avowedly sought the job. Gov. Rockefeller's defeat in California was extremely slim, but he seems to be written off as a candidate. By the same token, Goldwater's California victory was slim, but the bandwagon seems to be rolling for him.

Whatever Goldwater's qualifications for the Presidency, the polls have never shown the majority of rank-and-file Republicans in favor of him. Yet few Republican leaders seem ready to unite in opposition to him.

Former President Eisenhower, who has always preferred not to deal in personalities, has carried this practice to the extreme of outlining the qualifications for a candidate without naming names.

His reported conversation with Scranton—and subsequent phone call—left his position unclear. Afterwards Scranton reaffirmed his "availability" but continued to refuse to seek the job.

At the governor's conference in Cleveland there have been rumblings of discontent over Goldwater's nomination. But hardly anyone, at least publicly, is doing much about it.

The motives require scrutiny. Is Goldwater being cynically sacrificed in a year when no Republican can win anyway? Is his success honestly swaying the previously disaffected to his side? Or do Republicans, like Mayor Wagner, think it does not make much difference?

This is a time for rank-and-file Republicans, as well as their leaders, to make themselves heard. Perhaps, like Governors Scranton and Romney, according to reports, they would like to know more clearly where Goldwater stands on major issues. Yet surely by now he has said and written enough for them to find out.

Perhaps they feel, as has been suggested, the Senator will be compelled or persuaded to run on a more moderate platform than he has led them to believe. To do this, however, would undercut the purpose of his campaign for those who have given him his success so far.

The answer is not so much for Goldwater to alter his beliefs, but for the Republican Party to decide whether he represents its beliefs.

In narrow terms, the answer could affect the many Republicans seeking state office who will have to decide whether to associate themselves with the national standard bearer. In broader terms, the answer could change the direction of the Party with a result that the voting in November would determine.

"Shake hands—this is a time for unity."

AAUP says universities must protect students' legal rights

University authorities have an obligation to protect the legal rights of students who encounter off-campus police difficulties while defending their "political rights."

This directive is part of a recent statement submitted by a committee of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), under the chairmanship of Phillip Monypenny, professor of political science at the University of Illinois.

The statement, which will be published with slight modification in the next AAUP journal, deals with faculty responsibility for student academic freedom.

It will be submitted in final form next spring when its passage would make it national AAUP policy.

The statement also makes it clear that the educational institution should punish only the violations of its rules accompanying the student's civil violation, without considering the degree of the civil offense.

Outlining the steps to be followed in reaching a decision on an institutional penalty, the statement says that offenses and penalties should be known to students in advance through publication, and should be as clearly defined as possible.

Search of student residences would be appropriately authorized, and students discovered in violation of institutional regulations should be informed of their rights under both the civil and the institutional regulations.

A student should be notified in writing of the charges against him, the report says, and his status within the school should not be altered until final action is taken. The formality of the hearing should fit the seriousness of the crime with a hearing board of selected faculty members and student members, if requested, provided for an offense which may expose the student to serious penalties.

The statement also defines faculty responsibility in the areas of freedom of student organizations and student government.

The report says that all organizations should be non-discriminatory, and should be free to express their views without penalty.

Referring to speaker policy, the report states that control of the use of campus facilities by student organizations should not be used as a censorship device.

However, the report continues, announcements should make it clear that the speaker does not necessarily represent the views of the entire faculty, the student body or the administration.

The report calls for a "fully representative student government." Such a government should be elected by the entire student body and should have a well-defined means of participating in the formulation of regulations affecting student conduct. It should also be able to express its opinion on school policy and matters of student interest.

Publication of free administration control is another important means of guaranteeing student freedom, according to the report.

Another faculty responsibility for the student within the institution is to insure non-discrimination by the school in all areas. Institutions which limit enrollment because of religious convictions should make those convictions known, the report said.

The report also covers three areas of the professor's responsibility as a teacher: protection of the student to insure freedom of expression, against unjust grading and evaluation and against improper or harmful disclosure.

In all the areas covered in its report, the AAUP committee gives actions and procedures it feels are within the realm of faculty members and which are essential to the "freedom of inquiry and expression" which are "essential attributes of a community of scholars."

Monypenny, whose committee was responsible for the first draft of the statement, said he hoped its adoption would "stimulate local chapters of the AAUP to look at their own campuses and take whatever action they can to bring them up to the suggested standard."

Letters Policy

Readers are invited to express opinions in Letters to the Editor. All letters must include handwritten signatures, addresses and should be typewritten and double-spaced. We reserve the right to shorten letters.

This little-known aspect of the Attorney General's life will be highlighted in a book to be published next month. One chapter will deal with the late Marilyn Monroe.

Kennedy's efforts in behalf of Miss Garland are not the first time he has used his official influence to help a theatrical personality.

The attorney general went to bat for British actor Richard Burton when his entry into the U.S. was challenged on the ground of his premarital relations with his current wife, Elizabeth Taylor. Representative Michael Feighan, (D-Ohio), chairman of the House Judiciary subcommittee on immigration, demanded Burton be barred. The Immigration Service was prepared to do that, but was overruled by Kennedy, who held the Briton was admissible because the State Department had approved his visa.

Pierre Salinger, who emerged the winner in a four-way race for the California Democratic senatorial nomination, is telling friends his election campaign will cost more than $1 million.

The portly former White House press secretary also is saying he is more worried about the deep split in the Democratic party than his Republican opponent.

According to Salinger, he doesn't expect too much trouble licking George Murphy, the GOP nominee, if Governor "Pat" Brown and other powerful Democrats who opposed Salinger will throw their full weight behind him. He clearly has strong misgivings about that.

"If they don't give me all-out backing," Salinger told the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, "I'll be in real trouble."

One of his biggest problems in getting this much-needed inner party support is coming to a workable understanding with Governor Brown on federal patronage—which has been largely in his hands since President Johnson took office. Brown's ties with the White House are close and strong.

Several weeks before the senatorial primary, the President personally designated Brown as "state coordinator" for the fall election.

This backstage move was a direct brush-off of Assembly Speaker Jesse ("Big Boss") Unruh, who played a key role in engineering Salinger's last-minute senatorial candidacy and his grandiose ambitions to be top ruler of California Democrats. Unruh has close ties to Attorney General Robert Kennedy. They had a lengthy conference during Kennedy's visit in Los Angeles this week to deliver a speech.

In an effort to come to terms with Brown, Salinger made an unannounced trip to Cleveland, where Brown was attending the annual Governors' Conference.

A special communications system, including an elaborate television set-up, is being installed in the White House to enable the President and his lieutenants to be in constant touch with the Democratic national convention in Atlantic City in late August. Under present plans, he will not appear at the convention until after he has been nominated.

With the Republican nomination virtually assured for Senator Barry Goldwater, White House insiders have started deliberating the selection of top Democratic convention officials—chairman of the Platform Committee, the keynoter and permanent chairman.

Another secret serviceman has suddenly been switched from the White House detail to a lesser assignment. Secret Service insiders attribute this departure to a "mistake" made by the agent in having a "friendly" drink with the wife of a member of the White House staff. The agent is now hunting counterfeiter.

Sam Houston Johnson, brother of the President, is living in Austin with a sister. Sam is telling friends he is eschewing the limelight while his brother is in the White House. When his brother was vice president, Sam resided in the capital and was readily accessible to newsmen.

Where Goldwater stands on issues— from farm problem to fraternities

As Barry Goldwater comes closer to clinching the Republican Presidential nomination, the question of what exactly are the Senator's beliefs becomes more frequent.

In its April 21 issue, Look magazine published a number of Goldwater's statements, collected from his speeches and press announcements.

The Senator was presented with the quotations and asked whether he still believed in the ideas. He refused to comment on them, saying it would take too much time to amplify and justify them.

One of the Goldwater aides commented on the Senator's belief, qualifying a few of the quotes, but said that he could not argue with any of the quotes below.

NUCLEAR WAR: "Someday I am convinced, there will either be a war or we'll be subjugated without war... real nuclear war... I don't see how it can be avoided—perhaps, five, ten years from now. When you have a world with half the people who want freedom, sometime they'll fight for it." (Interview with Irwin Ross, New York 90, Macfadden edition, 1961.)

"A craven fear of death is entering the American consciousness; so much that many recently felt that honoring the chief despot himself (Khrushchev) was the price we had to pay to avoid nuclear destruction." (The Conscience of a Conservative, page 90, Mcfadden edition, 1961.)

TACTICAL NUCLEAR WEAPONS: "I'd drop a low-yield atomic bomb on the Chinese supply lines in North Vietnam, or maybe shell 'em with the Seventh Fleet." (Newsweek, May 20, 1963.)

"A low-yield atomic bomb could have been used in Laos to 'defoliate the rain forests.' (Los Angeles Times, November 15, 1961.)

DISARMAMENT: "A dangerous exercise in complete and total futility." (Speech Wings Club, New York, November 12, 1962.)

Q—"Would you under no circumstances negotiate with the Communists on disarmament?" A—"No. Anybody, I think, would be a fool to close the door on negotiations for anything. But until the Soviets show some indications that they want to disarm and are willing to disarm at the same tempo that we would be asked to disarm, then I don't think negotiations are possible." (Meet the Press, NBC-TV, January 5, 1964.)

SUMMIT CONFERENCES: "The only summit meeting that can succeed is one that does not take place." (Why Not Victory?, page 45, Macfadden edition, 1963.)

WORLD OPINION: "I don't give a tinker's dam what the rest of the world thinks about the United States, as long as we keep strong militarily." (Congressional Record, September 23, 1963.)

"... The United States (should) begin acting like... a world power and quit groveling... to inferior people who like to come to New York..." (Speech, NAM, New York, December 8, 1960.)

UNITED NATIONS: "Frankly, I think the fact that it's proven to be unworkable is grounds enough for us to quit wasting our money on it..." Would Goldwater, as president, favor getting out of the U.N.? "I would, at this bet, having seen what the United Nations cannot do, I would have to suggest it." (Interview with Hy Gardner, WOR-TV, New York City, May 12, 1963.)

"Governor Rockefeller... says that I've advocated getting out of the United Nations, and I can't recall ever having said that, and I wish he'd point out where I had it he has the information. I don't think that we could live in the United Nations with the charter having been ignored if Red China is allowed." (Meet the Press, January 5, 1964.)

VISIT OF REDS: "If it were Mr. Tito, he would not be welcome in any White House I was presiding over. Neither would any other Communist leader in this world." (Reply to question, Women's National Press Club, Washington, D.C., October 31, 1963.)

SOVIET RECOGNITION: "I have always favored withdrawing recognition from Russia." (U.S. News & World Report interview, September 2, 1963.)

"There would be some qualifications on that. I would use the effort as a bargaining effort with the Soviet Union to try to get some things accomplished..." Supposing, for example, that we could change the governments of the Iron Curtains to the choice of the people. This I would say would be worth keeping recognition of Russia for. It would become a bargaining tool." (Meet the Press, January 5, 1964.)

FOREIGN AID: "I think one of the most important decisions that could be made would be for the Congress to stop foreign economic aid..." (Speech, NAM, New York, December 8, 1960.)

"If we have to live with foreign aid—and I don't think we do have to live with foreign economic aid—I think it should be used as a 'rifle,' aimed at specific areas where we can gain an advantage over 'the Russians.'" (U.S. News & World Report interview, September 2, 1963.)

THE NEGRO: "The 1954 Supreme Court school desegregation decision is not necessarily the supreme law of the land." (New York Times, November 13, 1961.)

"It may be just or wise or expedient for Negro children to attend the same schools as white children, but they do not have a civil right to do so which is protected by the Federal Government Constitution or which is enforceable by the Federal Government." (U.S. News & World Report, July 15, 1963.)

"We have no right to tell the Southern states what they must do about school integration and segregation." (CBS Reports, March 8, 1962.)

"I do not think any decision of the Supreme Court is necessarily the law of the land... I think some decisions, given in the form of edicts, certainly would be the law of the land. But the one on school desegregation was not in the form of an edict." (New York Times Magazine, Nov. 24, 1963.)

TAXES: "The graduated tax is a confiscatory tax. Its effect and to a large extent its aim, is to bring down all men to a common level... We are all equal in the eyes of God, but we are equal in no other respect. Artificial devices for enforcing equality among men must be rejected..." (The Conscience of a Conservative, page 64.)

Q—"You've been quoted as saying that a graduated tax is a confiscatory tax. Is that your view?" A—"I don't think I'd put it that way. But I think it has been destructive of initiative..." (U.S. News & World Report, Sept. 2, 1963.)

TVA: "If I were president, I would make serious overtures to get this (TVA) sold..." (Answer to question, Women's National Press Club, Oct. 31, 1963.)

FARM PROBLEM: "Doing something about it means—and there can be no equivocation here—prompt and final termination of the farm subsidy program." (The Conscience of a Conservative, page 43.)

"There is no more reason to help inefficient farmers than to help inefficient merchants, professional men and football players." (Speech, UCLA, Nov. 13, 1961.)

SEN. JOSEPH MCCARTHY: "And I know you will join with me in thanking God that while Joe lived he made a contribution that will forever redound to the credit of the people of Wisconsin and to your Republican organization." (Speech, Wisconsin Republican Convention, June 8, 1957.)

CUBA: "We should aid anyone who wants to go in there and let Castro have it—overtly or covertly—and we ought to do all this in conjunction with the Organization of American States. If we did all of this, I think we could avoid an invasion." (Time, June 14, 1963.)

'Why' of

By MARILYN HOLMES
Staff Writer

"School's out!!!... No more studies, no more books, no more teachers' dirty looks!"

Why does Johnny feel this toward his teacher? How can he help to understand the relationship between his teacher and himself?

The answers to these questions are among those being sought by 35 elementary and secondary teachers from Iowa City and Rapid schools participating in the Preventive Psychiatry Program under the direction of Dr. Ralph H. Ojemann, SU1 professor of child behavior and development.

These teachers employ the "approach" to behavior classroom, which stresses an understanding of the student in his behavior.

IF A PUPIL has behaved in an undesirable manner, the teacher tries to dig out the reasons for the behavior through observation. The teacher may then confer with the pupil to get at the cause of the behavior.

CAUSAL teachers try to help their pupils how situations in the social environment come about. The feelings are of the involved in these situations, what effect the method can have on the feelings, and how others. Stress is placed on needs people are trying to satisfy by acting in a certain way, what might happen if they had differently.

The causal approach is based on the idea that teachers and pupils may guide children more effectively to less emotional conflict can help them understand the factors underlying human behavior.

FOR EXAMPLE, if a child has learned that over-aggressive behavior is often motivated by a feeling of inadequacy, and learned something about how feelings of inadequacy develop, how they can be overcome, would have something to help interpret his own over-aggressive behavior or his own feelings of inadequacy," Dr. Ojemann says.

In the summer workshop, teachers are provided for a training program in which they investigate and study the causal approach and its use in the classroom. These teachers spend week attending lectures and discussion sessions, which are followed by two weeks of independent research and content material.

THIS YEAR'S workshop are June 8-26, and meet from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily in the Sacred Room of the Union. Speakers have included Dr. Arthur L. Jenkins, SU1 professor of psychology.

'Why' of Behavior Sought

Why does Johnny feel this way toward his teacher? How can he be helped to understand the relationship between his teacher and himself?

The answers to these questions are among those being sought by 35 elementary and secondary teachers from Iowa City and Cedar Rapids schools participating in the Preventive Psychiatry Research Program under the direction of Dr. Ralph H. Ojemann, SUI professor of child behavior and development.

Stress is placed on what needs people are trying to satisfy by acting in a certain way and what might happen if they had acted differently.

The causal approach is based on the idea that teachers and parents may guide children more effectively to less emotional conflict if they can help them understand the factors underlying human behavior.

FOR EXAMPLE, if a child learned that over-aggressive behavior is often motivated by a feeling of inadequacy, and "if he learned something about how feelings of inadequacy develop and how they can be overcome, he would have something to help him interpret his own over-aggressive behavior or his own feelings of inadequacy," Dr. Ojemann said.

These teachers spend a week attending lectures and discussion sessions, which is followed by two weeks of independent study in research and content materials.

Are Teachers Human?

Mrs. Ruth Ballantyne, 5th grade teacher at Iowa City Horace Mann Elementary School, and two pupils look at causal program materials and discuss the relationship between a teacher and her pupils.

psychiatry, who discussed factors leading to emotional disturbances; Mrs. Elizabeth J. Forell, of the SUI reading clinic, on emotional problems involved in reading difficulties; and Dr. Donald Lee Carr, of the SUI College of Education, who will speak today on the exceptional child.

Teachers who attend the workshop are assigned to coordinators from the Preventive Psychiatry staff who work with them throughout the year and hold a series of teachers' meetings for primary, intermediate, and secondary levels.

The primary level includes the kindergarten group through the third grade, the intermediate level includes the fourth through the sixth grades, and the secondary level includes grades seven through twelve.

COORDINATORS include Mrs. Fritzen H. Dykstra, primary level; Mrs. Shirley Kremenak, intermediate level; and Mrs. Audrey Griffith, secondary level; all of the SUI Institute of Child Behavior and Development.

Each summer the teachers work with their coordinators in preparing teaching materials to be integrated into the existing curriculum and continue to revise these materials throughout the year, prior to publication.

"We thus obtain a group of classrooms for our laboratory, each equipped with a causally-oriented teacher and appropriate curricular content," Dr. Ojemann said.

RESEARCH experiments held in the teacher's classroom with the permission of the school principal aid in determining effective methods of teaching behavioral material. Projects for the past school year have introduced experiments to find out what children can understand about specific gravity at the kindergarten level and about probability at the third grade level. Researchers also want to see if they can improve the child's understanding of the teacher's role as a guide in learning.

As a result of the causal approach to learning, perhaps when school is out next year, the relationship between Johnny and his teacher will be such that we'll hear:

"Aw gee whiz, school's out!"

Braves Knock Giants Out of 1st

Mathews Drives In 4 To Power 6-5 Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Eddie Mathews drove in four runs, three with a bases-loaded double in the eighth inning, powering Milwaukee to a 6-5 victory over San Francisco Thursday despite the Giants' three-run rally in the ninth.

The loss knocked the Giants out of first place in the National League, putting them seven percentage points behind Philadelphia. The Giants tried to pull it out in the ninth against Tony Cloninger, third baseman, but Jim Hart singled and Jim Davenport walked before pinch hitter Duke Snider doubled for one run. After Del Crandall grounded out, Jesus Alou singled home Davenport and Snider.

Power, Green Traded In Three-Team Deal

ST. PAUL—MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The Minnesota Twins put sentiment aside Thursday and cut loose two of the fans' favorites in a three-team swap for more bench strength. The Twins dealt fancy-fielding first baseman Vic Power and little-used outfielder Lenny Green in the five-player trade with Cleveland and Los Angeles. Minnesota acquired infielders Jerry Kindall and Frank Kostro.

er. Cloninger, however, then got Harvey Kuenn to hit into a double play. Felipe Alou's home run off Ken MacKenzie in the ninth turned out to be the winning run.

The Braves scored three runs in the eighth when Kuenn lost Mathews' soft fly ball to right field in the sun. Mathews also knocked in a run in the seventh with a sacrifice fly.

Warren Spahn and Jack Sanford battled on scoreless terms through six innings with Sanford allowing the Braves only two hits.

Spahn was driven from the mound in the eighth after giving a home run to Kuenn and walking Willie McCovey.

Afternoon Cage Games Hope To Attract Out-of-State Fans

DES MOINES (AP)—The Iowa basketball team hopes to attract more out-of-state fans by playing some Saturday afternoon games next season, Coach Ralph Miller said Thursday.

"We plan to play two or three afternoon games so more people from Des Moines and other cities will be able to get to Iowa City," Miller told a luncheon meeting of the Des Moines Rotary Club.

"With the interstate highway scheduled for completion it will be an easy drive from Des Moines to Iowa City," Miller said.

"Afternoon games will give the fans a chance to see Iowa play and still get home early."

Miller who has hired this spring to replace Sharm Schuerman as head coach of the Hawkeyes, said Iowa will field "a good representative club next year that will be interesting to watch."

The veteran Wichita coach said he is fortunate in having several players who will be juniors next year "which gives me a solid nucleus for the next year's team."

"The team will be young, but the boys have shown me they have a desire to play and a desire to win. You can't ask any more than that."

Miller said he planned to install at Iowa the system he used at Wichita, which brought him a winning season in all but one of his 13 years there.

"We will use a full-court pressing defense and fast-break when we can," Miller said. "They say some of the Iowa players aren't too fast, but watching them in films on defense they seem to have plenty of speed."

"And if they are fast on defense I see no reason why they should be slow on offense," Miller added.

Jackson Wins 8th, Defeats Mets, 6-3

NEW YORK (AP)—Ron Santo drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a single Thursday as Larry Jackson won his eighth game for the Chicago Cubs, beating the New York Mets 6-3.

Jim Stewart, the Cubs' rookie second baseman, singled the first two times up against loser Bill Wakefield and was hit by a pitch in the fifth before his two-game streak was snapped at six straight hits. Carl Willey, Wakefield's relief man, made Stewart fly out in the seventh.

Santo's eighth homer of the year came in the first after Stewart singled and was forced by Lou Brock.

Championship Contenders

John Peters of Muscatine, left, and Jim Carney of Centerville, will tee off at 8 this morning across SUI's South Finkbine course for the final 18 holes to decide the championship of the Iowa Junior Boys Golf Tournament. Peters defeated Drew Demerest of Spencer, 3 and 1, and Carney defeated Mark Mark Yingling of Ottumwa, 2 and 1, to gain the finals.

Carney, Peters Gain Junior Final

Jim Carney of Centerville and John Peters of Muscatine scored semi-final victories Thursday and will battle for the Iowa Junior Boys Golf championship Friday.

Carney defeated Drew Demerest of Spencer 3 and 1 in the semifinals after outting Ty Borman of Council Bluffs in the morning quarter-finals, 5-3.

Peters sidelined Mark Yingling of Ottumwa in the afternoon round, 2 and 1, after scoring a morning victory over Don Sall of Iowa Falls, 6 and 5.

Carney, 15, is playing in his second tournament. He did not qualify for the championship flight a year ago.

Peters, 16, also is in his second state meet. He was beaten in the second round of the 1963 tournament.

Demerest a 6 and 5 victor over Fred Grawe of Waverly in the quarter-finals, ran into putting trouble against Carney in the semifinals. He three-putted the 14th hole to give Carney a three-hole lead, and after winning the 15th and salving the 16th Demerest three-putted the 17th to bow out.

Peters took an early lead over Yingling and birdied the 16th hole for his winning margin. Play ended when they halved the 17th.

Yingling had upset 1963 runner-up Bill O'Connor of Atlantic in the quarter-finals, 4 and 3.

The championship match between Carney and Peters will be played over 18 holes, starting at 8 a.m.

A's Replace Eddie Lopat With McGaha

CLEVELAND (AP)—Ed Lopat got the gate Thursday as field manager of the Kansas City Athletics, perennial second division team in the American League.

General Manager Pat Friday said the job would be filled by Mel McGaha, former manager of the Cleveland Indians who joined the A's last season as a coach.

Lopat took the news calmly and indicated the firing did not come as a complete surprise.

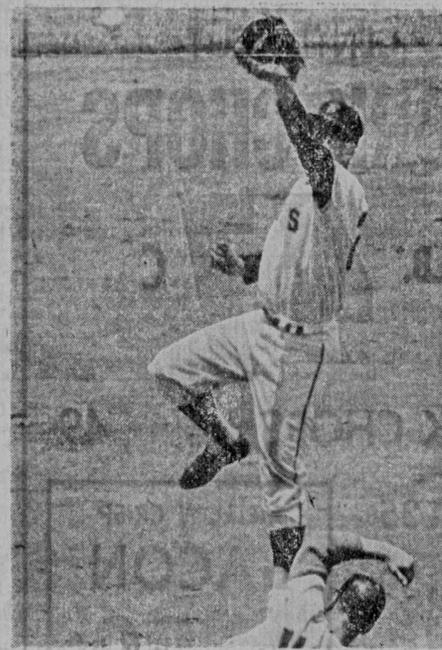

"When Friday told me they were letting me go, he said they felt it was necessary to make a change to jack up the team," he said. "Well, I'll tell you this. The only way they are going to jack up this team is to add about four or five good ball players."

There was no comment from Charles O. Finley, the owner.

Lopat, whose contract runs through the 1965 season, said he had been offered a job as special consultant to work with the young pitchers on the club, but did not plan to take it.

He said he was going home to Hillsdale, N.J., rest and take it easy and "let them pay on the balance of my contract."

McGaha, who never made the major leagues as a player, joined the club last season as a coach at first base. Before that he had managed 3 minor league clubs.

Mantle Hits 2 Homers As Yankees Win, 8-4

BOSTON (AP)—Mickey Mantle regained his home run touch swinging left-handed Thursday night, hit his ninth and 10th of the season and powered the New York Yankees to an 8-4 victory over Boston.

Roger Maris also homered for the Yankees, hitting No. 10, while Ed Bressoud and Felix Mantilla connected for the Red Sox.

Mantle entered the game hitting .177 left-handed against .568 while swinging right. Both homers were hit against right-hander Bill Monbouquette, a 20-game winner last season who lost his sixth against only two victories.

"Backed by the Yankees' heavy hitting, Jim Bouton continued his mastery over the Red Sox. Bouton is now 4-5 on the season and 6-1 against Boston lifetime.

 LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Ernie Griffith, the only man to win the world welterweight championship three times, goes into the ring tonight the underdog against ex-champion Luis Rodriguez.

The 26-year-old Rodriguez remained an 8-5 favorite Thursday to regain the title in their 15-round encounter in the Las Vegas Convention Center.

The match will be nationally televised by ABC, starting at 8 p.m. (CDT).

The Braves scored three runs in the eighth when Kuenn hit Mathews' soft fly ball to right field in the sun. Mathews also knocked in a run in the seventh with a sacrifice fly.

Warren Spahn and Jack Sanford battled on scoreless terms through six innings with Sanford allowing the Braves only two hits.

Managers, Laverne Noyes Estate, and Old Gold Development funds.

Lora Mathis, Washington; Jeffrey Maugulies, Sioux Falls, S.D.; Karen Sigvardt, Fort Edwards, Wis.; and Michael Townsend, Davenport. Freshmen Merit Scholarships and Old Gold Spanish Contest Awards of $100 each have been awarded to Melanie Moyer, Marion, and Gary Stewart, Cedar Rapids.

Airlift Guards to Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A force of 1,297 Army National Guardsmen — the largest contingent ever to come to Alaska for training — will be airlifted here this weekend from Minnesota.

The men are members of the 1st Brigade, 47th Infantry Division, Minnesota National Guard.

The guardsmen will be in Alaska two weeks, receiving training at the Army's mountain and glacier training area at nearby Eklutna and on the Ft. Richardson training range.

he said, "we have a number of students who have experience on school papers, but little formal training. The question was whether those students should be in advanced or beginning sections. We just had to guess and then make changes as necessary."

"One other problem we had," he continued, "was with the swimming party we had planned for Tuesday night. The heating system for the pool at the Field House is being rebuilt and the water was just too cold for swimming. Unfortunately, we didn't know about this in time to schedule another event. As a result, the workshop had a night to themselves."

The major productions of the week-long workshop are the Hawketee, the tabloid, and the Workshopper, the mimeographed newspaper.

The Workshopper has been published each year since the first workshop in 1952. The Hawketee was first published during last year's workshop.

The students do all the writing, advertisement design, photography and other art work for the two newspapers. They edit copy, do the layout and read stencils and proofs prior to publication.

Friday night at the closing banquet, the students will hear a talk by Howard Hoffmaster, wire editor of the Ottumwa Courier.

Hoffmaster, past president of the Iowa Associated Press Telegraph Editors Association and past chairman of the continuing study for Iowa wire news operation, is a former high school science teacher turned journalist. In addition to his duties as wire editor for the Courier, he is in charge of the Courier's weekly "Teen Page."

Society Needs Education for All Levels

CHICAGO — SUI President Virgil M. Hancher set forth here Thursday morning the key requirements for a system of education that will serve an open society — the kind of society for which Americans strive.

Speaking at commencement exercises at the University of Illinois Medical Center in Chicago, President Hancher declared that education in an open society must be accessible, must be adapted to various levels of competence, must be related to the needs of society, and must be lifelong.

EDUCATION SHOULD either be free or should be offered at such a cost as to bring it within the means of every citizen, for to argue that the student should pay the full cost of his education is to argue for the creation of an elite, Hancher declared.

"Successful men tend to look with satisfaction upon their achievements; and, regrettably, many a man who owes his success in life to the opportunities provided him by the free educational system of the United States now believes that he got to his present position by his own, unaided efforts. Yet if he were to be stripped of all the increments which society itself has provided, he would stand at least half-naked before the world," he said.

HE URGED A system of education for this country — from kindergarten through the post-doctoral programs — adapted to every level of competence found in our society, which respects every level of competence and the institutions serving each level, and which respects every person who is developing himself to the highest level of his competence.

"We must develop in students the competence for independent work, the habit of independent thought and reflection, a dissatisfaction with the present state of their knowledge, and a persistent desire to increase it," he concluded.

Spending Boost Result of Recent Income Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both businessmen and consumers have increased their spending since the income tax cut went into effect, government reports have said.

Businessmen have raised their sights another notch and are betting even more heavily on future economic growth.

A Commerce Department survey in February showed businessmen planned to increase their expenditures 10 per cent over last year and this was hailed as a reliable indicator of still better times ahead.

The department said its May survey showed that business spending this year is now programmed at 12 per cent above 1963.

Meanwhile, the Census Bureau's report on retail sales in May showed a 1.5 per cent increase above April. And the total was 7 per cent higher than May, 1963.

This twin result — increases in business and consumer spending to pep up the economy and reduce unemployment — was exactly what government economists hoped for after passage of the income tax-cut bill.

Sioux City Man Pleads Guilty to Wife Assault

SIoux CITY (AP) — Alex James Clemens, 30, pleaded guilty Thursday to a charge of assault with intent to murder in the April 12 shooting of his estranged wife.

Judge M. E. Rawlings deferred sentencing.

Clemens' wife, Mrs. Shirley Wells Clemens, was shot six times and critically wounded as she was delivering two of her three children to Sunday morning choir practice at a Sioux City church. She has since been released from the hospital.

After the shooting, Clemens fled on foot, then allegedly forced a motorist to drive him into Nebraska, where he surrendered to a state trooper at Belden.

Clemens has undergone psychiatric examination since his arrest. Action is pending on a kidnapping charge against him.

First Mennonite Church To Hold Bible School

A non-denominational Bible school will be held at the First Mennonite Church, June 15 through 28, for children who will be in kindergarten this fall through those who have just completed the eighth grade.
