

IBM is great, but it ain't got horse sense

ALTHOUGH THEY CAN'T WALK into the polls and vote, computers have taken on a very important role in politics. In fact, many people are concerned about the possible influence that the machines may have on the real voters.

Because of the perverse delight that people take in "beating" a machine, it is doubtful whether the computers' projections will become a self-fulfilling prophecy in politics. It is unlikely that voters will let electronic predictions influence their voting, with a bandwagon result.

The popular endorsement of absentee Henry Cabot Lodge in the New Hampshire primary is one instance of voter independence. In California, the computers came up with the correct answer, but they did not indicate the closeness of the outcome.

As a means of analysis, the computer is invaluable. Not only politics, but the academic world has embraced the computer. Courses in statistics and computer analysis are no longer limited to mathematics and management.

Overemphasis on computers, however, may overshadow another invaluable quality — insight.

The academic world has a responsibility to develop insight in students, as well as the ability to command the computers' wonders. Whenever people are a variable in a study, whether it is a primary or a sociological survey, statistics alone cannot tell the entire story, particularly in predictions.

A good dose of insight — i.e. horse sense — is still valuable.

Better late than never

WHEN SCRANTON ANNOUNCED his candidacy Friday, he admitted that he was faced with an uphill drive. There are only 31 days left until the convention, and he has no campaign manager and no itinerary.

But his hesitations and passive "availability" put the moderate and liberal Republicans in an awkward position.

They want to stop Goldwater, but since Rockefeller has been written off as a candidate, the only alternative now is Scranton.

If the moderates and liberals don't agree with Scranton's beliefs, they can't complain too much. At least now there is a semblance of a choice.

Collision tests inaccurate with big vs. little cars

THE STATE POLICE OF CONNECTICUT, early in June, presided over a series of staged collisions between large American cars and small foreign cars, to determine which group suffers more in a head-on crash. As anyone who studies high school physics would predict, the little cars were knocked for a loop.

Curiously, though, no one apparently thought to pile a couple of the big jobs into each other — that really produces a dramatic heap of metal. Perhaps a clue to why that test was skipped can be found in the post-impact observations of Police Commissioner Leo J. Mulcahy, who said candidly, "We want to create buyer resistance to small cars."

That, certainly, is one way that the lesson can be drawn from the staged accidents, and we may be sure that Detroit will spread the word. (As it happens, the tests took place in happy coincidence with the announcement of the industry's plans for 1965. According to a Wall Street Journal story of June 2, almost every new car will be bigger than its predecessor.)

An equally persuasive moral to be drawn, however, is that the highway juggernauts are a menace and should be so labeled and treated.

For example, cars larger, heavier and more powerful than the present standard compact could be obliged by law to display danger flags in the manner of explosive trucks, keep to the truck lane on all major highways and be restricted to a speed 10 miles an hour below the maximum.

U.S. ready to move to Asian showdown

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

The U.S. is preparing for a major confrontation with Communist China in Southeast Asia very similar to the one the U.S. faced with Russia over Cuba.

Combat-ready air and naval forces are being alerted in the Pacific in preparation for a sea and air quarantine of North Viet Nam to keep new Communist forces and arms out of South Viet Nam and Laos.

While the zero hour for putting the military sanctions into effect is still to be set by President Johnson, more than 150 ships and 350 planes are in strategic locations awaiting orders from the White House.

Designed to halt the immediate advance of Communist forces in Laos and North Viet Nam, the new military pressure has the political objective of clearing the way for the neutralization of these nations and the entry of Communist "huns into the United States."

That's the inside report of a access to all National Security Council papers on Laos and North Viet Nam, who has carefully analyzed the thinking of the foreign and defense advisers guiding President Johnson in his decision-making in the present crisis.

According to this official's private report, Secretary of State Rusk, Defense Secretary McNamara and presidential assistant McGeorge Bundy have convinced the President that a "controlled" confrontation could have beneficial results for the U.S. without greatly increasing the risk of war.

Once the Red Chinese come eyeball to eyeball with the overwhelming might of U.S. military power, these officials argue, Peking will be forced to make satellite North Viet Nam ease its military pressures in Laos and South Viet Nam. They contend that Peking has neither the air nor sea power to contest the U.S.

Even more important, according to their argument, the confrontation could create an atmosphere between Washington and Peking similar to that existing with Moscow — especially if the U.S. should offer the Chinese Communist surplus farm commodities.

To prepare the American people for the confrontation, administration officials under the direction of Bundy and Bromley Smith, executive secretary of the National Security Council, will leak out stories of the U.S. military buildup in the "troubled Southeast Asia area."

(The New York publisher was called in by Bundy and briefed on how U.S. jet bombers were being assembled in the Philippine Islands at Clark Air Force Base, and crews being trained to destroy targets in Communist Viet Nam.

While no direct mention of the coming quarantine was made, the publisher was told that the twinjet B-57s were considered ideal for low-level raids against supply depots, small troop concentrations, bridges and naval craft.

All are likely targets, he was informed, if the U.S. is forced to attack the Communist sanctuary of North Viet Nam to cut off supplies to the Communist Viet Cong and Pathet Lao forces fighting in Laos and South Viet Nam.

As during the Cuban confrontation, Secretaries McNamara and Rusk are putting a tight clamp on the news to be given out on military encounters during the present crisis.

Under their guidelines, all military reports must be screened by persons designated by them before the information is released. This is part of their "control response" program.

For example, in the downing of two U.S. planes over Laos, McNamara and Rusk forbade the release of pictures taken of the Communist anti-aircraft installations the day before the first Navy reconnaissance plane was hit.

They censored the pictures on the ground that once the date of the photographs was learned by newsmen, they would ask embarrassing questions on why the Navy pilots were not permitted to destroy the guns before they had to fly over that area again.

According to reliable Navy sources, no action could be taken against the radar-controlled anti-aircraft guns until specific permission was granted in Washington. This policy of tying the arms of U.S. pilots is still in effect, despite published stories to the contrary.

Adlai Stevenson, U.S. Ambassador to the UN, has prepared a secret policy paper for President Johnson contending that the Geneva Agreement of 1955 provides for the neutralization of South Viet Nam. After studying the paper last week, the President called Stevenson at 2:30 a.m., getting him out of bed, to discuss the document.

Significantly, two days later, Stevenson delivered a little-noticed speech before the Women's National Democratic Club indicating that the U.S. favors neutralization in both Laos and South Viet Nam.

French sources at the United Nations are predicting the admission of Red China after the admission of Red China after the November elections. Secretary General U Thant is scheduled to make the "arrangements" when he flies to Moscow next month to discuss Red Chinese membership with Premier Khrushchev.

'Loneliness of L.D.R.' has good dramatic foundation

By RAY PRESTON
Iowan Reviewer

The Drama is indeed a magnificent old trump. No matter how bumpily you handle her, it appears impossible to ruin the whole affair. So, if there's any good at all, anywhere, in the Old Drama, it'll pop to the surface and may make the whole thing seem worthwhile.

Thus conditioned, "The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner" is worth consideration. Incidentally, one reason for going to see this picture "blind" is borne out by the fact that this old, old movie once won the Annual Dignat Title Award.

This unbeatable title comes out of the pale short story by Alan Sillitoe, a pale writer who has the fire (guts) and correct information to eventually do all sorts of things. In the field of literature, that is. But not with us and the Grand Drama, not without help, anyway.

The scenario is something else, and there's no reason a short story writer should be able to do it. And where, in this case, would fledgling Sillitoe be likely to go for help? Yes indeed, one more into the breach, your friend and mine, the director and Master of Bungie, Tony "Academy Award" Richardson.

Despite this error, which results in everything about the film being handled with unmitigated insensitivity, a certain effectiveness in the concern for Colin Smith and his "war" in unable to be entirely blocked. This is probably caused by a combination of that greatness in Sillitoe's writing and the acting of Tom Courtenay. By all rights it should have been a stunning film. The real production has the faintest thread-like reflection of its potential power.

In this sense the "Runner" is a tease. Smith seems so important, but you can't see him clearly or strongly enough to understand him sufficiently. This is the same problem the Establishment has with character Smith, but Sillitoe doesn't want us to have this problem with Courtenay.

The Bungler has obscured the action to this tedious degree so that the audience receives just the titillation of a vague sensation of what is really happening.

Almost all the credit for what power the film retains from Sillitoe belongs to Tom Courtenay's perfect acting of the leading role.

Courtenay takes the hard way and brings the vitality of Smith's rebellious mind across with a subliminally underplayed performance which could march under Marlon Brando's arch-supports.

I found only two things (except a third: his finish of the race) which give the game away that something is happening inside Courtenay's shell: 1) the awareness and mounting perception of his eyes which darts from deep within the wrinkled adolescent mask; 2) his inordinate difficulty in being heard or understood when communication is attempted with the Establishment. This is accurately the fundamental position of all "Smiths."

Naturally the meat of the script is in the boy's running and the end of the final race. Here is the place to crack your audience. It is all there, explicitly, in the short story. It is the artistic brilliance of Sillitoe's ideas. To take the camera and follow the running boy, to be with him, closely, with all the implication rife in the person all alone, out in front, and a loser, is a magnificent opportunity.

Bungler does it mostly with extreme long shots. Just perfect, it puts us in the grandstand with the enemy so we can observe antipathetically. Add to this, while we're out running through nature's paths, the sound track that blares the best in latest jazz. I thought for all the world I was in the best joint in Soho.

As near as I can figure it, the film which was used most for ideas was "The 400 Blows." This includes the frozen shot at the end. Truffaut uses the fear and final desperation of a small child, who have obsolete gas masks.

Some European films have a grainy quality because of the low production budget. Our man goes out and buys cheap film stock to insert periodically for the art of the thing.

The hand-held camera is employed in some films because it effectively represents certain sensations. In the case at hand it effectively conveys the sensation of a drunken man on a crippled ocean liner in the North Atlantic, in November.

Tony Richardson is the Roger Vadim of the British isles.

How to avoid all problems—outlaw what you don't like

By JON VAN
An Arizona minister is currently circulating a petition to initiate a constitutional amendment through the November elections which would prohibit public school teachers in that state giving their students information about Darwin's theory of evolution. We were discussing this with a friend who is enrolled in the public school system and who believes that amendments similar to the one proposed in Arizona should be adopted in Iowa.

"First we should pass a law which would put an end to teaching algebra," he told us. "Now that evolution stuff isn't so hard, but algebra — there's a real stumper. We ought to get rid of it."

We pointed out that the minister was not opposed to the difficulties of learning the evolutionary theories as much as he was against the ideas themselves.

"Now how can you say that?" he asked us. "If he is against the idea, then why doesn't he pass a law against evolution itself, instead of just passing a law against teaching it?"

As we tried to think of an answer, our friend continued asking questions.

"That doesn't sound like a bad idea, does it? I mean we could just pass a law against Algebra altogether — then we wouldn't have to worry about it at all," he smiled happily.

"But if you made Algebra illegal," we observed, "you couldn't have any of the forms of higher mathematics and you couldn't solve any of the technical problems we deal with today."

"That may be true," he said, "but you're looking at it in the wrong way. Think how we could solve a lot of other problems. Why, just by amending a few of the basic laws of mathematics, we could completely eliminate the National Debt. Think big, man think big."

"You do have a point there," we agreed, somewhat content.

"I'll say I do," he seemed pleased. "And we don't have to stop with mathematics or evolution either. We can bring any issue to a vote of the people and let them decide. You take English. Now nobody likes to study in English, do they? We'll just pass a law and make everybody speak American — then they won't have to fiddle with English."

"Do you have any other ideas?" we questioned our young friend.

"Oh several," he replied. "But I'm not ready to tell them all until I get to be older. I plan to get a job with the Government and put them into practice."

"What phase of Government work would you like to enter," we asked.

"Well, I'd like to begin with foreign relations," he said. "I think they have a great deal in common with me over here. I'm especially happy about the way our policy with Red China has been conducted."

Gov. Scranton: 'I Am a Candidate For The Presidency'

TEXT OF SCRANTON'S SPEECH
In the tide of history, a political party can afford almost any adversary except to lose the bold spirit that gave it birth.

Our libraries and our archives are filled with the dry bones of the Federalists and the Whigs, and a score of others who met their moment of truth, but did not seize it. Today the nation — and indeed the world — waits to see if another proud political banner will falter, grow limp, and collapse in the dust. "Has the Republican Party," our fellow citizens ask, "outlived its usefulness?"

And we Republicans ask, can we pretend, even to ourselves, that it is possible for us to stand with one foot in the 20th century and the other in the 19th?

Can we afford to pretend that all is well, when all is not? Can we in good conscience turn our backs on the century-old progressive history of our party?

You and I know we cannot. I believe that as members of a Party more than 100 years old we have no right to sell out to the modern expediencies of the easy answer, the fast draw, the quick solution.

I know we have an obligation clearly brought by our forefathers to remind ourselves and to remind America that our first national Administration, under Lincoln, was elected because it was responsible — because it was creative — because it was imaginative.

— Responsible for human liberty — its preservation on the North American continent and its inspiration around the world.

— Responsible for giving every American a fair chance at a share of the good life.

— Responsible for underlining the injunctions of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence: to put solid-flesh on the noble words that all men are created equal.

Those responsibilities — for the liberty of all citizens, for the economic growth of a great nation, for equal opportunities — those are the responsibilities which our Party was born to bear — and which we have proudly borne.

Within those responsibilities is the bold spirit we dare not lose. We were born to save the nation from destroying itself from within. Our mission today can be no less. I say that the true spirit of the Republican Party today stands equally dedicated to preserving this nation from the dry-rot of phony liberalism or the slow death of blind reaction.

I say that the time has come for us to stand fast against both those who would compromise us into slavery and those who would lead us there in a burst of irresponsible flames.

Lincoln led our party because he had faith in the common sense of the American people, and I think that we had better get about the business of keeping faith with Lincoln.

For his work is not yet done. The work of Theodore Roosevelt is not yet done. The work of Robert Taft and of Dwight Eisenhower is not yet done.

We have the solemn duty to get on with the task. We have the solemn duty to drive fear from the heart of America.

Let us be done with the fear of our system spread by the bumbling promoters of boom or bust in the opposition Party.

And let us be done with the fear spread by the small-minded in our Party who hint that America has not enough prosperity to go around.

Let us be done with the fear of the black man and the fear of the white man. . . . And let us have the courage to say that there are those in each party who wish to trade on both.

Let us be done with the irrational fear that man has too much liberty, and let us build an even greater nation on the theory that America is blessed by God to stand forever as the guardian of freedom.

For to defy those fears our Party was born, and to defy those fears I am a Republican. . . . And I think that's why most of you are too.

That is what the Republican Party is all about. The minute we forget it, is the minute we shall begin to die.

We shall not let that happen. The Republican Party will endure. . . . It will prosper. . . . It will prevail. The Republican Party will prevail because it will build upon the principles to which Americans have always pledged their heartfelt allegiance.

We shall prevail because we shall have the common sense to guard our beliefs with solid political muscle.

Our Party is not about to forget that the first great act of a great American President is to get elected.

Nor are we about to forget our candidates for the United States Senate, for the House of Representatives, for the governors' chairs, for the state legislatures and for the local offices.

Lincoln would cry out in pain if he sold out our principles, but he would laugh out with scorn if we threw away an election.

Mr. Lincoln saved the Union, but he used his sagacity as a political leader to do it.

As a political leader he would applaud the quality of candidates on every level of government with which our party is blessed this year.

And caring a great deal about the unity of the Republican Party — which he knew was built from the precinct up — Mr. Lincoln might remind us today not to throw away those fine candidates.

He knew — as all of you know — that in a Presidential year the candidate at the top of the ticket can help those below. . . . or he can doom them to undeserved defeat.

Therefore, any political party which seriously undertakes to lead the Government of this nation — not only in Washington, but also in the state capitals, in the courthouses, in the city halls — such a great party will not rightly throw away the top places on its ticket.

Choosing the top of the ticket is well under way in our party.

There are those who are so afraid of a free choice in San Francisco that they pretend the selection is already completed.

With more than half of the delegates not yet committed, they tell us to surrender the dignity of our Party, the respect of our fellow citizens, and all hope of a Republican victory in the fall.

I stand before you today to challenge that view.

I for one believe that our Party will not make its decision until the final roll call has been completed four weeks from now.

I say that we are going to San Francisco to hold a convention, not a coronation — and I hope you agree that we are not going there to hold a wake.

We will convene there in four weeks time to select the man who best squares with the enduring principles of the Republican Party. . . . not to embrace a cause which has no roots in American history.

We will convene there to select the man who can lead the whole ticket to victory up and down this nation. . . . not to embrace a cause which has written off most of America and has been written off by the rest.

We will leave San Francisco a united Party. . . . but united behind our traditional principles, not behind some weird parody on our beliefs.

In short, the Republican challenge in San Francisco is to plan our nation's practical business, and to embrace her moral challenge. But, there is a danger. A stand must be made, but the hour is late.

We have waited dangerously long to call upon our party's conscience, upon its wisdom, upon its will.

For too many months we have been slow to act, but fast to say that it could not happen to us. . . . not to our Party.

I share responsibility with others of our leaders who until now have failed to act. I frankly express my admiration for those who earlier entered the lists, with energy and dedication.

Now, surely, all of us must confront reality.

It is about to happen to our Party.

The Republican Party is in danger. And some say our country may be, too.

We could send down to defeat good men and good women who stand ready to carry our banner in the several states.

We could take the responsibility, the reason, the Lincoln, the heart and the soul. . . . all of these things we could take out of our Party.

We will do so if we let an exclusion-minded minority dominate our platform and choose our candidates.

But, we have a choice.

And that is why I have come here today.

I have come here to offer our Party a choice. I reject the echo we have thus far been handed. The echo of fear, of reaction. . . . the echo from the never-never land that puts our nation on the road backward to a lesser place in the world of free men.

I come here to announce I am a candidate for the Presidency of the United States.

I offer leadership. Leadership for the good fight. The good fight to bring us victory in November.

The good fight to put America in the first place throughout the world.

The good fight to strip away worn-out formulas dragged out once again by the other Party in a futile effort to lead America in a home.

Let this be clearly understood: I am not entering this crusade for the privilege of presiding over a whipped minority.

We shall be satisfied with nothing less than a tremendous victory in November. And then in the years ahead we can build our Party once again into the majority in America.

I need your help. I need the help of every Republican. We are reading no one out of our Party. We welcome every hand and every heart that believes in the true Republican cause.

That's why I say to you with every bit of feeling at my command: help me gain our Party's nomination, and I will lead our Party to victory.

Stand with me in the cause of freedom.

Stand with me for the integrity of our Party and the security of our nation. . . .

Stand with me as free men, free women, free Republicans, free Americans.

Stand with me because our cause is right. And because it is right, we shall prevail.

"Do you have any other ideas?" we questioned our young friend.

"Oh several," he replied. "But I'm not ready to tell them all until I get to be older. I plan to get a job with the Government and put them into practice."

"What phase of Government work would you like to enter," we asked.

"Well, I'd like to begin with foreign relations," he said. "I think they have a great deal in common with me over here. I'm especially happy about the way our policy with Red China has been conducted."

U.S. Can Clinch Wightman Cup In Play Today

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., and Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., rallied after losing opening sets for singles victories which gave U.S. women tennis players a 2-1 lead over Britain Friday in the Wightman Cup competition.

Miss Moffitt and her partner, Carole Caldwell of Santa Monica, Calif., folded in the final set of the doubles which Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones and Deirdre Catt won 6-3, 4-6, 6-0 for the line British point.

THE UNITED STATES can clinch the trophy for the fourth straight year by winning two of the final four matches today which include three singles and one doubles.

Miss Richey, 21-year-old daughter of a Texas tennis pro, started the United States off on the right foot by beating Deirdre Catt 4-6, 6-4, 7-5 in a two-hour baseline duel on Wimbledon's center court.

Then Miss Moffitt, America's No. 1 player, made it 2-0 by whipping Britain's top woman ace, Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Today, Miss Richey plays Mrs. Jones, a dogged left-hander who is a veteran member of the British team, and Miss Moffitt takes on the steady Miss Catt.

ANOTHER singles match involves Miss Caldwell and Elizabeth Starkie, the British captain.

In the doubles, which could decide the issue as the last match of the day, it's Miss Richey and the team captain, Mrs. Donna Fales of New York against Miss Starkie and Angela Mortimer, former Wimbledon champion.

Riddle To Quit Grid Squad, Concentrate on Cage Game

DES MOINES (AP)—Fred Riddle, who tied a passing record as an SUI quarterback last fall, has decided to give up football and concentrate on basketball next year.

The 197-pound pre-medical student won letters in both sports as a sophomore and a junior. He will be a senior next fall.

Riddle's decision was disclosed by Ralph Miller, new Hawkeye basketball coach, in an interview Friday.

"Riddle asked me some time ago what his chances were in basketball next year," Miller said. "I told him they were as good as anyone else's. I know he is used to the pressing defense I use because he played that way in high school at Colinsville, Ill."

Miller said Riddle did not play much basketball last season "but he had a pretty good year as a sophomore, I understand."

Riddle was a starting quarterback on the football team at the start of the 1963 season, and he tossed five touchdown passes to equal a Big Ten mark in the 37-26 conquest of Indiana.

But as the Hawkeyes faltered, Riddle lost the starting assignment to sophomore Gary Snook who is expected to be the No. 1 quarterback again in the fall.

"It is almost impossible to play both football and basketball anymore," Miller said. "Riddle apparently decided he would have a better chance to make the basketball team if he did not play football."

Riddle completed 40 of 91 passes for 501 yards and seven touchdowns last fall. He appeared in only 12 basketball games and scored 31 points.

Miller said pre-season basketball practice is held while the football season is still on and football players are away behind when they report for basketball.

"However, I understand that Larry Lust of Newton plans to play both football and basketball as a freshman next year," Miller said. "They tell me he is an outstanding athlete in both sports."

Lust was a quarterback on the Newton High School football team and was the playmaker on the Newton teams that won the 1963 and '64 state high school basketball championships.

Miller told the luncheon gathering the Hawkeyes plan to play some afternoon games at home next season to attract more out-of-state fans.

He said two or three games will be played in the afternoon and pointed out that the Interstate Highway from Des Moines to Iowa City is scheduled for completion this fall.

"It will be an easy drive from Des Moines to Iowa City," Miller said. "Afternoon games will give the fans a chance to see Iowa play and get home early."

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP)—A 17-year-old youth bobbed into the Olympic picture at 10,000 meters by winning the grueling event in 29:37.6 in the U.S. Track and Field Federation meet Friday.

It was a duel between young Gerry Lindgren, a 118-pound high school student from Spokane, Wash., and John Macy of Houston, who is twice Gary's age.

Lindgren's time was under the qualifying standard of 29:40 for U.S. Olympic hopefuls.

It was the first time Lindgren had tried the long race.

Griffith Keeps Welter Title Against Cuban

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Emile Griffith retained his world welter-weight championship Friday night over Luis Rodriguez in 15 furious rounds. Again it was a split decision between the two long-time rivals.

As tension mounted and the action reached the pace, the 25-year-old Griffith from New York held off the challenge by Rodriguez. Griffith weighed 146 pounds. The 26-year-old Rodriguez, a refugee from Cuba now living in Miami, weighed 146 1/2.

Griffith, who lost and regained the title from Rodriguez in two fights last year in New York, leaped high in the air in joy when the decision was announced. Gloom settled over the corner of his rival.

The votes:
Referee Harry Krause—who was almost as busy as the fighters separating them in their torrid infighting—scored it 69-67 for Griffith.

Judge John Romero had it 70-68 for Griffith.
The dissenting vote came from judge David Zenoff, who had it 71-70 for Rodriguez.

The Associated Press had it 72-68 for Griffith in the nationally televised bout.

There were no knockdowns in this, the fourth meeting between the pair since 1961. The only apparent damage was a slit which Griffith opened over the Cuban's right eye in the second round.

The wound was patched and didn't bother Luis for the remainder of the fight.
Griffith opened the action before some 4,000 fans in the Las Vegas Convention Center with a solid lead right to the jaw in the first few seconds.

But there was no running by Rodriguez, as Griffith had repeatedly accused him of doing in their past encounters.

Round after round it was a bruising contest, several times highlighted as the two slugged it out toe to toe.

The turning point may well have been in the third round when Rodriguez, who had been warned once, landed a low blow for the second time and was penalized a valuable one point.

Iowa Club Leads Meet At Corvallis

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP)—The Iowa Track Club took a commanding lead Friday in women's events in the U.S. Track and Field Federation meet here.

The Iowa team had 68 points to 33 for the Texas Track Club. No one else was even close.

In the men's events, Steve Goldston of Iowa finished sixth in the 200 meters run for the Hawks only point.

The Iowa girls did not take first in the 80, 200 and 400 meters but captured most other places and dominated the preliminaries.

Linda Ramus of Fenton-Sentral, Linda Schram of Minilla and Carol Winston of Cardinal-Eldon took second places in these events.

Gayle Hopkins of Davenport, now at Arizona, won the broad jump with a lead of 25 feet 5 1/2 inches.

Iowa girls who placed in the running events were Debbie Kirkey of Manilla; Betty Lundblad of Prairie-Gowrie, Sylvia Hanson of Eldon Valley, Cheryl Ingram of Sioux Rapids and Andrea Goodman of Belle Plaine.

Dubuque Netman Wins NCAA Test

GREENCASTLE, Ind. (AP)—Southern Illinois' Bob Sprengelmeyer, of Dubuque, and top-seeded Gary Johnson of Los Angeles State, won their way Friday to the championship round of the NCAA College Division tennis tournament.

They will meet Saturday afternoon for the singles title.
Sprengelmeyer defeated Dennis Benneema of Wheaton 6-2, 6-1 in the quarter-finals, then took a 4-6, 6-1, 6-1 decision from Francisco Castilo of Southern Illinois in the semi-finals.

Roy Sprengelmeyer, Bob's brother, was defeated in the quarter-finals by Yeomans, 6-3, 6-2.

John Peters, 16, of Muscatine, left, runner-up in Iowa Junior Boys Golf Championship flight, and Jim Carney, 15, of Centerville, the new champion, look over the trophies presented to them Friday by SUI Athletic Director Forest Evashev. ## Lema Leads Buick Open On 9 Birdies

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP)—Galery favorite Tony Lema knocked in nine birdies—six of them in a row—as he shot a six-under-par 66 for a 135 total and the halfway lead in the 72-hole Buick Open Friday.

Lema jokingly called his round "uninteresting because it was so consistent." More than 2,500 saw him putting for birdies on nearly every hole.

His big trouble came on the 13th where he pushed his second wood shot into a creek and wound up with a bogie six. To show how little that bothered him, he came right back with a birdie on the 14th.

Lema's accurate hitting gave him a three-stroke lead over Mason Rudolph, who moved into second place with a 70 for a 138 total.

Lema had eight one-putt greens—seven of them for birdies—but fell short of the PGA record of eight consecutive birdies set by Bob Goalby at St. Petersburg in 1961.

Dow Finsterwald turned in his second straight 70 for a four-under-par 140 total and third place. Phil Rodgers, the first round leader with 67, settled for a 74 Friday as the high winds bothered him.

The field of 145 will be cut to 90 for today's third round and to 60 and ties for the 18-hole final on Sunday.

Cubs Top Pirates As Amalfitano Hits 1st Grand Slam

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe Amalfitano belted the first grand slam homer of his career in a unique six-run sixth inning which swept the Chicago Cubs to a 7-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday.

The Cubs got only two hits in the big inning, in which Pittsburgh's Bob Veale, allowing only a first-inning scratch single over five innings, blew coolly apart.

Veale started the sixth by mowing down his 14th straight Cub on his eighth strikeout. But he gave Bob Buhl his first walk and then walked Jimmy Stewart.

Lou Brock fled for the second out, moving Buhl to third. League-leading hitter Billy Williams singled Buhl across and Stewart to second.

A walk to Ron Santo filled the bases. With Ernie Banks at bat, Veale uncorked a wild pitch, scoring Stewart.
That brought in Roy Face, who intentionally walked Banks, again filling the bases.
Up came Amalfitano, who slammed Face's first pitch into the left field stands for his grand slammer. The Cubs got only four hits in the game.

15-Year-Old Wins Junior Golf Meet

Jim Carney, 15, is a young man whose rise in junior golf can be termed spectacular.

A year ago, Carney made his first appearance in the Iowa Junior Boys Golf tournament and won the sixth flight.

Friday morning, the Centerville youngster whipped John Peters of Muscatine, 3 and 2, to become what is believed to be the youngest competitor to ever win the title. Carney has just completed his sophomore year in high school.

Carney, who outweighed his 16-year-old opponent by about 40 pounds, consistently outdrove Peters from 40 to 50 yards on almost every hole.

The end came on the 16th hole of their match when Peters missed a two-foot putt after Carney matched par.

Peters bogeyed the first hole and stayed one down until fourth when Carney flubbed a 10-foot putt.

Peters took his only lead of the match on No. 5 when Carney had a bogey.

Carney sank a 25-foot putt on No. 8 to pull even and went ahead to stay on the 9th hole as Peters missed a putt for a bogey 5.

Gary Hufford of Sioux City defeated Cal Werner of Davenport 6 and 5 to win the consolation title.

Pascal 1st In American To Win 9

WASHINGTON (AP)—Minnesota's Camilo Pascual became the American League's first nine-game winner of 1964 Friday night, posting his 10th consecutive victory against Washington as the Twins whipped the Senators 5-3.

Pascual, bringing his record to 9-2, also evened his major league career mark with 122 victories against the same number of losses.

Shortstop Zoilo Versalles led the Minnesota attack with a triple, double and two singles.

The Twins pecked away at loser Al Koch and his successor. Versalles contributed to run-scoring innings with a triple in the fourth and a double in the seventh. The Senators scored their first run in the eighth when Don Blasingame singled and eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Dick Phillips. Two more runs came in during a ninth inning uprising helped along by a passed ball by Minnesota catcher Earl Battey that let a run score. Blasingame singled in the other run.

Liston Charged With Speeding

GLENDALE, Colo. (AP)—Charles (Sonny) Liston, 30, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, was arrested for speeding in this Denver suburb earlier this week, it was disclosed Friday.

City Manager John Elwell said Liston, who lives in Denver, was arrested by a patrolman for going 53 miles per hour in a 35-mile zone shortly after 9 p.m. Monday.

Elwell said Liston has until June 16 to pay $16 for the ticket without a court appearance. Glendale Municipal Judge Donald L. Dill said the probable fine if Liston were found guilty in a court appearance would be the same.

Mets Push Phils Out of NL Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Joe Christopher drove in three runs, two on his fifth homer, and sparked two big New York up-risings that beat Philadelphia 11-3 Friday night, the Mets' first victory over the Phils this season.

Right-hander Tracy Stallard went the distance for the Mets, picking up his fourth victory in 11 decisions. The loss went to Dennis Bennett, the Phillie starter now 7-4.

The loss dropped the Phils out of the National League lead.

Win 2nd Tilt As Ford Hurls 4-Hit Shutout

NEW YORK (AP)—Masterful Whitley Ford won his eighth straight game with a four-hitter as the New York Yankees blanked the American League-leading Chicago White Sox 3-0 and completed a sweep of their twin-night doubleheader Friday. The Yankees won the opener 6-1.

The double victory gave the third-place Yankees a four-game winning streak and moved them three games back of the White Sox, who hadn't previously lost a doubleheader this season. Ford, who hasn't lost since opening day, didn't let a runner reach third. He walked two and struck out five in gaining his fifth shutout.

Joel Horlen allowed the Yankees only one hit until the sixth when Phil Linz doubled and came home on Tony Kubek's home run into the right field stands.

Bobby Richardson, then reached first on Hansen's bobble and scored on Mickey Mantle's double to left.

In the first game, Roger Maris and Joe Pepitone drove in two runs each in a five-run sixth leading the Yankees to a 6-1 victory.

Bobby Richardson, the Yankees' scrappy second baseman, lashed the 1,000th hit of his 10-year career in the inning, a single to left that Floyd Robinson dropped in trying to make a shoestring catch.

Mickey Mantle followed with a single that scored Tony Kubek, who had doubled, and broke a 1-1 tie. Maris drove in Richardson and Mantle with a single. Pepitone later slammed a two-run homer into the lower right field stands.

Steve Hamilton, making his first start as a Yankee, won his fourth game without a defeat in the opener, scattering nine hits.
