

Final Exit

Silhouetted in the doorway of Old Capitol, symbol of the University, retiring President Virgil M. Hancher, himself a symbol of SUI, leaves his office for the last time Tuesday after a day of telegrams and farewells. Hancher left his office keys on the president's desk for the new occupant, Dr. Howard R. Bowen, who assumes the position today.

An Era Closes as President Hancher Retires

Office 101 in Old Capitol was strangely bare and still at 5 p.m. Tuesday. On the desk lay a small envelope on which was written: "Office key — longest; house (front door) — middle; garage key — shortest." Inside were three keys.

His last day in office began shortly after 8:30 a.m. as President Hancher alighted from his automobile on Clinton Street and walked briskly along the east approach to Old Capitol. It ended in late afternoon as he said goodbye to his office staff.

His relationship with the University began in 1914, shortly after he was graduated from high school at Rolfe.

LBJ Orders 300 Sailors To Join Hunt

Neighboring County Is Combed as Search Continues for Workers

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) — Another 300 sailors under White House orders joined the hunt for three missing civil rights workers Tuesday, as the nine-day-old search spread into a second Mississippi county.

As the ranks of sailors swelled to 400, the White House said President Johnson was determined to employ whatever Federal manpower might be needed.

Mrs. Michael Schwerner, 22, New York, wife of one of the missing men, made a personal appeal to the President Monday for 5,000 men to help search. She said the President told her he couldn't send that many.

Missing with Schwerner, 22, are Andrew Goodman, 20, another white New Yorker, and James Chaney, 22, a Negro from nearby Meridian. They vanished here June 21 after posting a $20 bond for speeding.

The search Tuesday was concentrated in a hilly area just across the Neshoba County line in adjoining Newton County.

The highway patrol went back to house-to-house door knocking in hopes of turning up information overlooked in an earlier canvass.

Voter Registration Delayed by SNCC in S.W. Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Plans to send volunteer civil rights workers into southwest Mississippi have been temporarily postponed because of possible danger, a civil rights leader announced Tuesday.

Robert Moses, co-ordinator of the summer education and voter registration program for Negroes, told a news conference people in that part of the state were "heavily armed with automatic weapons and hand grenades."

"As we understand it, there's a place in Natchez that's a depot for arms for the Klan," Moses said.

In answer to questions, Moses declined to reveal the source of his information about the alleged arms depot or whether the arms had been seen.

Moses is a leader in the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

5 Bodies Found, 17 Said Killed in Plane Collision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force Tuesday declared dead 17 officers and airmen who were aboard two planes which collided south of Bermuda Monday. The 17 previously had been carried as missing.

Only five bodies have been recovered, according to reports received at Air Force headquarters here.

Adoula Resigns—Congo Government Falls Hours After U.N. Leaves

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The Congo lost its United Nations shield and its Government Tuesday on the fourth anniversary of independence — four years stained by bloodshed and plagued by rebellion.

President Joseph Kasavubu announced the resignation of Premier Cyrille Adoula and his government three hours after the last 143 U.N. soldiers flew from the Congo.

As bickering political leaders groped for national reconciliation, there was wide speculation that Moise Tshombe, political foe of Adoula, may be named the next premier. It was this departing U.N. force that defeated Tshombe's secessionist government in Katanga Province in 1963.

SOME DIPLOMATS, however, expected Kasavubu to ask Adoula to head a provisional government until new elections are held.

Despite a spreading leftist revolt in the eastern Congo, Adoula's government had not asked the U.N. force to remain.

In New York, Secretary-General U Thant said the United Nations still had tasks in the Congo — "by far the largest of all U.N. technical assistance operations."

HE SAID political reconciliation and the retraining of the Congo's relatively weak army are two major conditions for maintaining peace in the former Belgian Congo, but the task of maintaining law and order now is up to the Congolese.

Not a single Congolese official went to the airport to pay his respects to the departing 85 Nigerian and 58 Canadian U.N. soldiers, the rear guard of a force that once numbered 20,000.

It was through their efforts that Adoula's government was able to establish its authority over Katanga, the richest province in the Congo and a pillar of the country's economy.

Shakespeare Wrote on Many Levels

Verisimilitude — the likeness of truth — was the focal point of Prof. Curt Zimansky's lecture on "Dramatic Illusion in Shakespeare," at Shambaugh Auditorium Tuesday night. His talk was part of the Shakespeare-Marlowe-Galileo Quadracentennial on campus.

Zimansky likened Shakespeare's plays to anamorphic paintings popular during the Renaissance, in which the picture changes as one walks past, and to pictures like El Greco's "View of Toledo," where there are several planes of reality.

Two examples he cited of this were the play in "Hamlet," which is made unreal through its crude, antiquated style, and Pyramus and Thisbe in "Midsummer Night's Dream," where the actors worry, not about being unreal, but about becoming too real.

The Renaissance, Zimansky said, was less imaginative than the preceding period in that it judged both paintings and plays by their likeness to reality.

Congress Debate Delays Action on Student Loans

By MIRIAM TOMASEK Staff Writer

The delay of Congress in appropriating money for the National Defense Education Act (NDEA) is causing concern in the SUI Office of Student Financial Aid.

Dr. Charles M. Mason, director of Student Financial Aid at SUI, fears his office may not be able to notify all students who have applied for loans for the 1964-65 school year whether the loans have been granted. This might delay planning for the fall semester by many students.

According to Dr. Mason, Congress has been tied up with the Civil Rights Bill and has not assigned appropriations for the recently amended aid bill.

Mason said, "The problem has been in the awkward timing of Congress in notifying the University of appropriations. We may not know until July or August."

He said students often plan their schooling around financial aid. They can apply for NDEA loans from March 1 to June 1. The university would like to notify them near the start of the summer about their loans.

"We would like to know by April how much money will be available," Mason said. "We usually know in late June. About four years ago we were notified on the second day of September."

The NDEA, passed by Congress in 1958, provided loan money averaging approximately $60 for all students in colleges and universities. However, no institution could receive more than $250,000.

Tax Legislation Rushed Through Before Midnight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both House and Senate passed legislation Tuesday extending some excise taxes another year. The legislation was rushed to President Johnson just seven hours before the taxes would have expired at midnight. The revenue loss would have been $1.9 billion.

The House passed the bill on a voice vote soon after it convened at midnight, and the Senate voted its approval on a 75-10 roll-call vote Tuesday afternoon.

Johnson signed the measure a couple hours later, keeping the taxes in effect.

The rates extended, originally applied during the Korean War, are on liquor, wine, beer, cigarettes, automobiles, auto parts and accessories, local telephone service and airline tickets.

This swift approval was virtually assured Monday after Senate-House conferees eliminated a Senate amendment that would have cut taxes on furs, cosmetics, jewelry and other items, reducing federal revenues $507 million.

Tickets Still Available For Summer Theatre

Tickets are still available for all performances of the SUI Summer Repertory Theatre except July 10, 17, and 18. The four plays will be presented in nightly rotation Monday through Saturday nights from July 6 until July 28.

Tickets cost $1.50 or, to students, are available upon presentation of student ID and summer registration certificate. They may be obtained from the ticket desk in the East Lobby of the Union weekdays from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. until noon. Tickets may also be reserved by calling ext. 4432.

Thinks General's View Will Sway Convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Cabot Lodge strongly indicated after a 45-minute conference with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower Tuesday that he expects the former president to speak out on the GOP presidential nomination before the party convention opens.

Lodge told a news conference on the steps of a wing of Walter Reed Hospital that he thinks what Eisenhower has to say will have an influence on the Republican convention.

THE FORMER AMBASSADOR to South Viet Nam said Eisenhower plans to go to San Francisco for the convention on July 12 and may make his views known before then on his preference for the nomination.

Asked whether he had asked Eisenhower to endorse the candidacy of Pennsylvania's Gov. William W. Scranton, Lodge replied that reporters would have to speculate on that point.

Questioned about their political discussion, Lodge said: "I CAN'T give any details but events will show his attitude. We are going to have to let time disclose his position."

Asked whether a July 12 statement would be soon enough to influence the convention's choice of a nominee, Lodge replied: "He always has influence in a Republican convention."

Lodge went on to say that an Eisenhower announcement, linked with a whole lot of other things might be very effective. He said by this he meant intensive work by people in Scranton's camp.

A REPORTER wanted to know if there had been any suggestion from Eisenhower that Lodge might make a good candidate.

Lodge said there was no discussion of this kind, adding that it was "not a thing worth getting into."

Later Lodge told newsmen he thought his popularity was due to the fact that he hadn't been saying anything on the controversial issues of the day because he was prevented from doing so when he was in a diplomatic status.

"You lose your popularity when you open your mouth," he observed with a grin. Lodge said he gave Eisenhower a rundown on the situation in South Viet Nam and in Laos.

LODGE AND EISENHOWER met in the presidential suite on the third floor of the hospital, where they talked alone for a while.

Eisenhower was driven here from Gettysburg Pa., for the meeting, and Gen. Leonard B. Heaton, hospital commandant, said Eisenhower would spend Tuesday night for a checkup on the effect of the anticoagulant drugs he has been taking since he was president.

Earlier Tuesday Lodge charted a trip westward to help Scranton win the nomination and exuded confidence the governor will win after Lodge and others get through buttonholing delegates across the country.

2 Killed, 18 Missing In Oil Rig Explosion

MORGAN CITY, La. (AP) — A $6-million floating oil rig collapsed and sank under a terrifying explosion and fire 72 miles off the Louisiana coast Tuesday, leaving 20 men feared dead.

Two bodies from the pre-dawn blast were recovered and an intensive air-sea search found no signs of 18 others who were missing.

ANOTHER 25 persons, including two men in a boat alongside the barge, survived and were air-lifted to this coastal fishing town. Many were burned.

The skeleton of the barge and rig settled to the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico in a depth of 180 feet.

Jack Bates of Reading and Bates Offshore Drilling Co., said the 18 missing men "are probably still aboard the Baker" at the bottom of the sea. Divers will probe the wreckage.

The C. P. Baker, a twin-hull barge, had 43 persons aboard when the explosion occurred.

"There was fire everywhere," said L. C. Franks, a survivor. "If hell is any worse, I don't want to go there."

Half the men were caught sound asleep when the rush of gas belled from beneath the sea and burst into flame, ignited by a spark.

Franks, from Winnfield, La., was one of those sleeping on the "C. P. Baker" when tragedy struck about 3:30 a.m.

"THE EXPLOSION rocked the entire craft," he said from the hospital here. "I didn't know where the fire was. It was on the water and everywhere else."

Mrs. J. Bowman, Houma, La., rushed to the hospital to discover both her husband and son, John and Jim Bowman had survived. She exclaimed: "I am so lucky to get them both back after such a terrible explosion."

Survivors said the drill hit a shallow high pressure pocket of gas at the 684-foot level. The gas began seeping up into the rig.

Integration Groups Call Truce for Two Week Period

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — A two-week truce in civil rights demonstrations was called Tuesday while a bi-racial committee looks for a way to end St. Augustine's racial problems.

The action puts a temporary end to three weeks of massive demonstrations against segregation that have repeatedly ended in violence.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., who has spearheaded the integration push, said he is stopping the demonstrations to show good faith.

Neither the Rev. Mr. King nor Gov. Farris Bryant, who announced first that a four-man committee had been selected, would identify the members, apparently to shield them from threats by segregationists.

King returned to St. Augustine late Tuesday after a few days out of town and submitted to arrest on six charges.

Four warrants sworn out by Fred Brinkhoff Jr., county juvenile counselor, charged King with contributing to the delinquency of a minor by having juveniles on probation march in demonstrations.

Two other warrants charging conspiracy to break the peace were sworn out by James Brock, owner of the Monson Motor Lodge, scene of many racial demonstrations.

House Expects To Pass Civil Rights Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sweeping civil rights bill of 1964 cleared its last real barrier in Congress Tuesday night.

All that remains before sending the bill to President Johnson's desk is for the House as a whole to approve the Senate amendments to the measure. This is expected Thursday under a procedure that limits debate to one hour.

"That same procedure drew sharp cries of "railroading" and "rape of the constitutional and legislative process" from Southern opponents during a daylong hearing before the House Rules Committee, which sent the bill to the floor by a 10-5 vote.

Illinois Delegation Gives Goldwater 48-0 Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater won a 48 to 0 shutout over Gov. William W. Scranton Tuesday in a poll of the key Illinois delegation to the Republican National Convention.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, chairman of the 58-member Illinois delegation, said the group conducted a poll showing 48 for Goldwater, 8 uncommitted, and 2 who did not participate in the voting.

Topless Suits Taboo Here

The topless swim suit is doomed in Iowa City — as far as the local merchants of women's clothes and the Iowa City and Campus police are concerned.

The Iowa City stores reporting they were not stocking the suit were Penny's, Richey's, Aldens, Younkers, Frankels, Moe Whitebook's, Wolf's, Willards, Sears Roebuck and Co., and Selferts.

Don Winner, manager of Younkers said he had unofficially heard that the Des Moines store had bought a model of the suit, but he did not believe the Iowa City store would ever have one.

The general opinion of the merchants was that the suit was an extreme fad which would soon die out.

Dwayne E. Kittelson, assistant manager of Penneys, said the suit might be bought for back-yard sun bathing.

Mrs. Gyda Richey said she did not believe it would sell very much even for sun bathing.

None of these stores reported any serious requests for the topless swim suit.

Mrs. Laurine M. Fischer, head of Alden's sports wear department said a few curiosity seekers have asked to see one.

"Quite often," Mrs. Fischer said, "men who come in with their wives have asked to see it."

Winner said many of the stores in this area served the majority of the people and would stock what the people wanted. "We certainly have not been overwhelmed with requests," he said.

A patrolman for the Iowa City Police Department, Robert A. Vevera, said that a woman wearing the suit would be arrested for disorderly conduct.

"Naturally," he continued, "there would be two officers making the arrest."

When asked why two officers, he replied, "We do not arrest any women when we are alone, even with their tops on."

Vevera said a woman sun bathing on private property would be warned if the police had received a complaint. If she continued, he said, the police would have whoever made the complaint file a charge.

The campus police said their first move would be getting the girl out of sight.

After that, according to John H. Hanna, Chief of the Campus Police, they would probably notify the dean of students or call the university attorney.

Hanna said the officer making the arrest could ask a woman to help him accompany the girl who was wearing the suit back to the station.

"Personally," Hanna said, "I would hope the girls who are intelligent enough to attend college would be intelligent enough not to wear the suit."

Who should set limits on budget proposals?

Our tabloid counterpart in Ames — the Iowa State Daily — has accused SUI administrators of changing the ground rules for asking the State Board of Regents for funds in the 1965-67 biennium.

The charge comes from a difference in askings of the two schools for strengthening academic programs — mostly through new faculty positions.

This disagreement over the requests," says an editorial in the Ames paper, "appears to be centered around the question of whether the schools should ask for an ultimate in the way of needs or whether their requests should reflect needs in relation to the realities of state resources."

Iowa State's President James Hilton told the Regents at their June meeting on the SUI campus that the whole approach to setting the askings had been changed.

At the same meeting SUI President Virgil Hancher denied the charge. He pointed to a brief case, saying it was full of other needed improvements.

Indeed, the SUI needs not requested almost equal the $6 million actually requested. In other words, SUI officials slashed in half the money department heads say they really need to expand their existing programs.

At first glance figures do support the Iowa State Daily. SUI asked $6 million to strengthen programs (the Regents cut it to $4.7 million); Iowa State asked $500,000. But this is only half the picture.

Iowa State officials asked $4.6 million for enrollment increases, compared to just under $3 million for SUI. The Ames school requested $200,000 more than SUI for non-academic salaries.

Put the total budgets together; Ames is requesting $3 million more for the two-year period. SUI's tentative askings for the 1965-67 biennium total $59,902,902; ISU's, $63,389,015.

The Iowa State Daily also overlooks the fact SUI has been getting less from Iowa State for strengthening programs. The big SUI request for 1965-67 is designed to make up the difference.

SUI had not changed its philosophy. The Regents instruct the schools to ask what they need. The President of the University must determine his school's needs. Logically so — who else is in a better position to know?

If the Regents decide the needs cannot or need not be filled, they may cut the askings. But the job of slashing proposed budgets should fall in the hands of the Regents; they know best the overall picture for the three state-supported schools of higher learning.

Mr. Hilton apparently decided to do the budget cutting for the Regents. Consequently, the Board got a distorted picture, and had to grant him permission to prepare an addition to the Iowa State budget.

But the Iowa State Daily doesn't stop here: If the Universities ask excessive amounts, say the ISU paper, the Legislature will be forced to cut the budget requests. (Both schools get three-fourths of their money from State appropriations; the remainder comes from tuition and other sources.)

Says the Ames editorial, "It seems there would be a greater chance for error if the Iowa Legislature is required to do it, rather than the educators who know more what they actually need and what they can get along without for the present."

The assumption is wrong. Legislators can view the state overall financial needs. Legislators alone can compare the needs of higher education with highways, law enforcement, state parks, tax revenues, etc.

Even if the Legislators cut the requests, chaos won't hit the Iowa's higher education. The Legislature appropriates lump sums; each University is free to adjust its budget to meet the differences between needs and appropriation.

SUI officials have not changed their policies; they have continued to prepare a picture of the basic needs of the University. If anyone has changed policy it is Mr. Hilton, who apparently assumed he, not the Regents, should do the budget cutting.

Immigration bill eliminates quotas

By DORIS FLESON
Almost unnoticed, another major piece of legislation proposed by President Kennedy but long stymied in Congress is beginning to move through the legislative obstacle course with the personal guidance of President Johnson. It is a new immigration law.

Presidential intervention on behalf of the measure has significance not only for the rest of the world, which interprets United States immigration laws in terms of how much it closes off this country and which nations are discriminated against, but for important domestic political reasons as well.

The so-called nationality groups in the U.S. have long sought to get the present statute revised. Their political strength is indicated by the fact that in 24 states over 15 per cent of the population is made up of first- and second-generation immigrants, including New York with over 38 per cent, Connecticut 39 per cent, New Jersey 35 per cent, and California, Minnesota, Illinois and Michigan each with 25 per cent.

The major change, which has long been sought and now has President Johnson's personal backing, would be to end the national-origin quotas that Congress adopted in 1924, closing this country's historic open-door policy. The door was slammed even tighter in the controversial McCarran-Walter act of 1952.

The basic policy changes were recommended last July by President Kennedy, and implementing legislation was introduced by Congressman Emanuel Celler of New York. It would place immigration on a first-come-first-serve basis within preference categories based on having special skills or close relatives in the U.S.

As President Johnson commented when he endorsed the proposal in his State of the Union Message, U.S. law would no longer be based primarily on the question "In what country were you born?" but on "What can you do for your country?"

Despite Kennedy's and Johnson's outspoken support, the Celler bill got nowhere until late last week when the President flew to Cleveland and took along one of that city's Democratic congressmen, Mike Feighan, who is chairman of the subcommittee that had bottled up the measure and has long been one of its bitterest critics.

Feighan was not even willing to hold hearings on it until he got the scare of his political life in the recent Ohio primary from a 34-year-old Democratic rival of Czech descent who made an issue of his opponent's handling of the measure.

After that Feighan quickly called hearings on the legislation but continued his vendetta against both it and Celler personally, and gave every indication it would never be reported out.

Last week, however, President Johnson moved in on Feighan on the plane trip back from Cleveland and finally was assured that the bill will not be buried in the subcommittee. What kind of a mangle job will first be done is still not clear in the heated hearings continuing this week.

President Johnson's quiet but firm hand behind the scenes was also apparent in the unexpected announcement a few days ago by Sen. James Eastland that the Senate Judiciary Committee will hold hearings on the legislation later this week.

An unfortunate irony is that the only member of the subcommittee strongly for the bill is Sen. Edward Kennedy, who was scheduled before his plane crash to preside over the meetings. He will now be replaced by either Eastland or Samuel Ervin.

Despite the setback, the magic Johnson touch with Congress still seems to be working its will and has kindled hope that he may yet get the legislative branch to revise present U.S. immigration policies.

Lorre as child killer—

'M' film portrays psycho's dilemma

By DAVE WIDMER
Iowan Reviewer

Fritz Lang's 1931 film "M" places an incredulous public and the Berlin underworld in common cause against a child killer whose presence attracts such police vigilance as to paralyze vice. As the child killer, Peter Lorre established himself as an international star.

DECISIVE CUTTING contrasts a complacent society with the "Murderer Among Us," as an irate tenement mother shouts to quiet her children, followed by a cut to her daughter bouncing a ball against Lorre's reward poster, as the killer's shadow engulfs the poster and the little girl.

The conviction of an unknown violence is instilled by symbols rather than overt action. The child's ball rolls idly, her toy balloon flounders in some wires and escapes upward. The mother's emptiness is reinforced by a view of the vacant tenement basement, where white scraps of laundry are airily suspended.

AS NEWSBOYS hawk the ninth murder, Lorre wanders the streets, whistling. While street conversation speculates on his identity, Lorre, unbelievably amused, mugs vampire expressions in his mirror.

Old imperial-type gentlemen are shown exaggeratedly flabbergasted, and hyper-vigilant pedestrians nab a bespectacled clerk fond talking to a child and bustle him off with comic dispatch.

"We are doing all we can," the police insist as detectives exercise feline meticulousity and bureaucratic trivia. A police raid on a rathskeller chagrins both patrons and the proprietor, bringing high indignance from the gang boss. "An outsider is ruining our racket."

SO THE UNDERWORLD joins the pursuit with greater fervor than the authorities, and criminals and society are united in goal and outrage. The gang boss speaks for the populace: "He's making life unbearable — the beast has no right to exist." Lorre is now something of an estranged and helpless hero, ignobly pursued by criminals and a public whose courage is not commanding.

Lorre meanwhile calmly windowshops and agonizes with himself, wistfully following the passage of a young girl. While buying a nation for a child, his whistle is recognized by the hind vendor, and an alert street worker marks Lorre's back with the "M." The child helpfully tries to erase the mark.

CAPTURED BY the city's criminals, Lorre is taken to a deserted brewery for trial. Covering before the doll-shaped toy balloon of his blind accuser, his plea for police protection is laughed down — "You want to be turned over to the police so you can plead insanity and be pardoned."

Lorre's position: "You're criminals because you want to be — I can't help myself . . . I don't want to kill. But I must." The killer finds common feeling neither in society nor among his fellow outcasts.

THE ONLY SYMPATHETIC figure is his defense counsel. What may have been a sincere polemic for humane rehabilitation is now so hackneyed as to approach a parody of the original intent, for the defense solely counsels, "This man is sick — He needs a doctor."

As the incensed criminals spring upon him, the police enter and the roles immediately return to convention. Lorre is taken "in the name of the people."

"M" is a story of profound violence, yet the violence is driven home not by scenes of mayhem — Lorre's switchblade cuts only an orange before the camera — but by showing confused public reaction. The staccato guttural rumbles, sparsely interpreted by sometimes legible subtitles, evoke the impotent panic of the man in the street, and demonstrate how much may be communicated without intelligible dialogue. The plot's principal use of sound was the murderer's incriminating whistling.

PANTOMIMIC ASPECTS, such as Lorre groveling before his accusers, build melodrama if not realism, and the caricatures of respectable citizens and authorities are often so stylized as to be funny.

The abrupt ending is disturbing, but not necessarily intellectually arresting. A bereaved mother asks the court, "And if they kill him, will that bring our babies back?" However, after Lorre's convincing portrayal of the psychopath's dilemma, the expressed question is nearly superfluous.

(From the Winnipeg Tribune)

The saddest figure in public life today is that of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

By one of those quirks of timing which serve to heighten the irony of a situation, the public has seen the general recently both as a triumphant man of history and as an aging and fumbling ex-politician.

UNFORTUNATELY, the former president the latter by 20 years.

In many newspapers in the United States, there appeared simultaneously a serialized version of Eisenhower's recollections of the great D-Day assault on Normandy, and accounts of his recent activities in connection with the leadership of the Republican party.

It is impossible to square one image with the other, and even difficult to believe they both belong to the same man. There is the first Eisenhower, shouldering all alone the enormous decision about launching the invasion, despite the chancy weather and with lives of thousands in his hands.

THEN THERE is the second Eisenhower, the Eisenhower of 1964, revealed as a man able to make up his mind about almost nothing at all.

His behavior was in large measure responsible for making the Republican party look laughable in its attempts to heal up the gaping wounds created by the emergence of Barry Goldwater as a strong contender for the party leadership.

IT WAS Eisenhower who turned a last-minute effort to get a moderate candidate to oppose Goldwater into a farce. First he urged Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton to run, and then reversed his position and advised Scranton to stay out.

All of this was fully chronicled for public consumption, including the fact that Eisenhower changed his mind after his former treasury secretary, George Humphrey, a Goldwater backer, had spoken to him.

EISENHOWER is no great admirer of Barry Goldwater, but he has been obsessed by the notion that he should do nothing which might in any way cause divisions inside the party which he once led and of which he remains its most revered figure.

Thus, despite many efforts to persuade him otherwise, he remained aloof with airy statements that there were many able men available for the job.

Eisenhower undoubtedly has been sincere in his effort to keep the party from serious ruptures, but he compromised his own neutrality by such faint-hearted forays into the realm of partisanship as occurred in Scranton's case.

They have shown Eisenhower's feelings clearly enough, but in such a way that any useful effect his views might have had in helping Scranton were entirely lost.

ON THE whole, the nation's press has dealt kindly with the former president's inept maneuvering, because he remains one of the country's great heroes and still can claim the unbounded affection of millions of his countrymen.

It used to be said that if the Republicans couldn't agree on a candidate and could get a third term legalized, they could always be sure of winning with Ike. After the latest fiasco, that is no longer certain, because the general came out looking merely pathetic.

Non-Communism cards protect Barry's foes

By ART BUCHWALD

On the basis of the mail we've been receiving lately, anyone who says anything against Barry Goldwater is either a "Commie" or a "Communist Dupe." The Goldwater supporters are very ardent about their candidate and the speere of Communism hangs over all who oppose the Junior Senator from Arizona.

WHILE THERE is a lot of truth in what the Goldwater people say, and the majority of the people who are against him are probably Communist or Democrats, as well as liberal Republicans, there are still a few people in the United States who have never had anything to do with the Communist party and who do not go along with the Senator's philosophy. These people should be protected against the Communist smear.

We think we have the solution. BETWEEN NOW and the election, anyone who feels strongly against Sen. Goldwater should apply for a "Certificate of Non-Communism" which he could carry around in his pockets. This certificate would certify that although he is going to vote against Barry Goldwater he is not now nor ever have been a member of the Communist party, nor is his knowledge is he a dupe of any foreign power or philosophy which would advocate the overthrow of our government by force.

Who would issue these certificates? We think the F.B.I. should be the agency in charge of clearing all Goldwater opposition.

IF SOMEONE is against Sen. Goldwater he would write to J.

Edgar Hoover requesting a certificate.

Mr. Hoover or one of his agents would run a check on the person, investigating his background, talking to his employer and friends, and interviewing his school teachers.

If it is discovered that the person is a registered Democrat (tantamount to being a Communist dupe, according to many Goldwater supporters) he would be asked to take a lie-detector test. He would be questioned on his feelings towards social security, the TVA, civil rights, the United Nations, Medicare and foreign aid, and if it was found he supported any of these his certificate would be withheld.

"THE CERTIFICATE of Non-Communism" would be free and the cost of the investigations would be borne by the taxpayers. But it would be worth the cost to find out the people who are against Barry Goldwater because of his political convictions, and those who are against him because they are members of the Communist party.

We feel that without the certificates there will be so much bitterness and name-calling during the next few months that the nation will never be able to recover from it.

THOSE FEW who are against Barry Goldwater because of what he believes in having nothing to fear. It is those millions who oppose him because they secretly support Khrushchev and Castro, who will finally be exposed for what they really are.

We wish there were some easier way of proving our loyalty to the United States, but if our mail is typical, the Goldwater supporters won't accept anything less.

Turk, Greek Leaders Meet With French

PARIS (AP) — Two determined old men brought an ancient quarrel to Paris seeking counsel for ways to end the bloody Greek-Turkish conflict over Cyprus.

Turkey's 80-year-old Premier Ismet Inonu arrived Tuesday to personally explain his country's point of view in the smoldering crisis to high French leaders, including President Charles de Gaulle.

Georges Papandreu, 76-year-old premier of Greece, declared shortly before Inonu's arrival that his country would welcome the moral influence of France to ease the Cyprus dispute. He stressed that he had not sought direct French intervention, nor had France offered to intervene directly.

Papandreu met Monday with De Gaulle and Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville. Inonu will see De Gaulle on Wednesday at about the hour that Papandreu departs for Athens.

THE VETERAN GREEK and Turkish leaders emphatically ruled out chances for a face-to-face meeting.

De Gaulle has not disclosed any plan he may have in mind for helping to solve the crisis.

Responsible French sources indicated, however, that any request for De Gaulle to act in helping to solve it would be regarded in "a friendly fashion."

Inonu and Papandreu exposed their views in separate meetings last week to President Johnson in Washington and to U.N. officials in New York.

THE TURKISH PREMIER also met in London with Britain's Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home. Papandreu explained that he received an invitation to confer with Douglas-Home too late to change plans for his return to Athens. He said he might travel to London later to see the British leader.

Inonu insisted that Turkey has the right of armed intervention in Cyprus to protect the rights of the island's Turkish minority.

Papandreu denied that any such right exists and repeated that it could set off war between Greece and Turkey, both members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Typhoon Winnie roared in Monday night with 60-mile winds and rose in fury with 90-mile gusts early Tuesday. It had been expected to pass north of the capital, as typhoons usually do. Instead it veered south and the eye of the storm passed directly over Manila.

COMMUNICATIONS were out with the provincial area of central Luzon, and the full extent of casualties and damage could not be learned.

However, the big U.S. Clark Air Force Base 50 miles northwest of Manila said the main storm passed south of there and 50-mile fringe winds did little damage.

All the dead so far reported perished in the flood waters of the flooded city areas. Many were crushed by falling trees and utility poles.

AT SUBURBAN Nichols Field, 15 Philippine transport planes were badly damaged when they were tossed about.

All international domestic flights still were grounded. The Manila airport's control tower was shattered by the violent gusts.

The typhoon was the first to hit Manila directly since 1947. That one was not so severe.

New Trouble Develops In Space Shot

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The trouble-plagued Atlas-Centaur space rocket solved one of its major problems Tuesday but acquired a new one when the second-stage engines shut down prematurely and ruined an orbital attempt.

Instead of streaking into orbit as planned, the spent Centaur stage plummeted into the Atlantic Ocean 2,706 miles east-southeast of Cape Kennedy. The stage burned for only 253 of the intended 380 seconds and reached a speed of 11,425 miles an hour, far short of the desired 17,400.

The high-energy rocket is being developed to launch unmanned Project Surveyor spacecraft to the moon next year to measure the lunar landscape and to search for possible astronaut landing areas.

Further delay could hinder seriously the gathering of this data in support of the Apollo man-to-the-moon project. Two of the rocket's three flights have failed.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration claimed some success for Tuesday's launching, noting that two major objectives were achieved.

These were the ejection of four second-stage insulation panels and the restart of the Centaur engine boost pumps.

Stratton Charges Indictment Bias

CHICAGO (AP) — William G. Stratton, former Republican governor of Illinois, declared Tuesday the Federal grand jury that accused him of income tax evasion was politically prejudiced.

The indictment charged Stratton with having evaded $46,676 in taxes on $93,595 of unreported income.

The indictment was returned the week before the Illinois primary in April but was suppressed until after the voting. Stratton's charges of prejudice was contained in a motion challenging the indictment. The trial has been set for the fall term of court.

The motion declared that the grand jury was not drawn from a representative cross section of the court district but from Chicago and areas in Cook County that are primarily Democratic.

Hundreds of cars and buses were stalled in flooded city areas. Many were crushed by falling trees and utility poles.

Scholarships Available For Study in Britain

Twenty-four Marshall Scholarships, to enable American students to study in British universities and earn a degree, are being offered by the British Government. The program was established in 1953 as an expression of British gratitude for Marshall Plan aid.

The awards are open to American graduate students, men or women, who are under the age of 28. (In exceptional circumstances, applications will be considered from students up to the age of 28.) Students must be citizens of the United States and graduates of an accredited college or university in the United States.

THE SCHOLARSHIPS cover two years at any university in the United Kingdom (England, Scotland, Wales, and Northern Ireland), and may be renewed for a third year. Marshall Scholars are required to take a degree at a British university and to spend a reasonable proportion of their vacations in the United Kingdom.

The value of the scholarship is approximately $2,240 per year, including travel to and from Britain, tuition fees, book allowance, and a living allowance of $1,400 per year. In certain cases a marriage allowance is also made.

Tiny Church Here Seats Four Persons, Built in One Month

One of the "world's smallest" churches stands in an Iowa City man's back yard. John Kobes, 520 S. Governor St., a retired motel manager, built the church in one month for $200.

The church, which can seat a congregation of four in individual pews, required only two yards of sand, 27 sacks of cement, a yard of ready-mix concrete and about 20,000 small rocks.

A 100-year-old Bible on the altar, stained glass windows and a bell in the steeple, are all part of the church. The bell was the hardest to find, Kobes said. He finally decided to make a wooden one. Kobes' neighbor, State Sen. D. C. Nolan, saw the wooden bell, remembered he had a real one in his attic and donated it.

A little waterfall keeps the pond in front of the church fresh for the 125 bluegills (member of bass family) that live there. Kobes said he eventually plans to build a bridge across the pond.

Mr. K Urges Neutrality For Norway

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev said Tuesday night the Soviet Union would like to see Norway and Denmark pull out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and join Finland and Sweden in a Nordic zone of neutrality.

"We think it would be a contribution toward peace in the north if Norway and Denmark were not bound by military obligations towards states which have nothing to do with this area," the visiting Russian leader said.

In a speech to the politically independent Norwegian Institute of Foreign Affairs, Khrushchev declared: "We think that the participation of such countries as Norway and Denmark in the military plans of the West has been created through a mere set of circumstances."

Then, while insisting that he actually was not offering advice to the Norwegian government and Parliament, Khrushchev made his plea for a Baltic neutral zone. There has been no evidence that in their talks with Khrushchev during his Scandinavian tour the governments of Denmark and Norway have waived.

Battle Seen in NW Iowa Nominating Convention

SPENCER (AP) — A wide-open battle is expected Wednesday when 549 delegates from 18 northwest Iowa counties meet to choose the Republican candidate for Congress in the 6th District.

Six men are seeking the nomination at the district convention, but there is speculation that if delegates can't agree on the first several ballots they may ask U.S. Rep. Charles Hoeven to seek a 12th term.

HOEVEN, 68, of Alton, announced this spring that he was retiring. His decision touched off a brisk struggle for the GOP nomination in the June 1 primary election.

But none of the seven candidates received the required 35 per cent of the total votes, and the district convention was called to name the candidate.

RULES TO BE proposed at the start of the convention call for delegates to vote on the first seven ballots only for those men who sought the nomination in the primary.

If the convention is still deadlocked after seven ballots, the rules would allow delegates to throw their support to others, such as Hoeven.

Hoeven reportedly is quite willing to accept the nomination and run against Stanley L. Greigg of Sioux City, the Democratic candidate, in the general election in November.

ing to accept the nomination and run against Stanley L. Greigg of Sioux City, the Democratic candidate, in the general election in November.

NOMINATION WILL require 275 votes. Lee D. Wallin of Sioux City carries the biggest pledged vote into the convention.

The 131 delegates from Woodbury County are committed to vote for Wallin until he releases them.

Ironically, one of the Woodbury delegates is Lee Smith, 44, of Correctionville, one of the six contenders for the nomination.

SMITH RAN last in the primary election with 1,067 votes. The top vote-getter was Dwayne L. Merry, 33, of Storm Lake, a Buena Vista College professor who drew 6,279 votes.

The convention will open at 10 a.m. in the Spencer High School auditorium, with Atty. Gen. Ewan Hultman, the Republican candidate for governor giving the keynote speech.

Hoeven is not scheduled to attend the convention, but on hand will be Ed Campbell of Battle Creek, nominated after 96 ballots in 1928, the last time the northwest Iowa congressional candidate was picked at convention.

Two Sisters Save Drowning Keokuk Boy

KEOKUK (AP) — Two sisters received medals and permanent passes to the Keokuk municipal swimming pool Tuesday for their part in saving an 8-year-old boy from drowning.

The awards were made by the City Council to Mary Jo Rooney, 13, and her sister, Janet, 12, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rooney of Keokuk.

They were credited with saving the life of Mark Swainderman at the municipal pool June 8.

The two girls found Mark on the bottom of the pool.

Modern Plays On Trial Before SUI

By PEGGY MYERS
Staff Writer

Four little-known plays planned for the SUI Summer Repertory. Theatre this summer "represent a measure of faith in the creativity and value of a contemporary theatre which is more often damned than praised," said Larry D. Clark, managing director of the repertory company.

Summer repertory was an innovation here four years ago. Until then, four plays had been performed one at a time with rehearsal periods in between.

"The history of repertory at Iowa has been a history of success," Clark said.

THE FIRST SEASON was staff with some doubts. The best expected to wait a few summers to see if the program would work, but the first season sold out in a week and extra performances had to be arranged. The past two summers have also sold out immediately.

Several different programs were considered for this summer, including plays from several periods of American theater and plays by different kinds of playwrights, Clark said. This program was chosen, he continued, "because it best supplements the regular repertory."

(According to Dr. David Thayer, assistant professor of dramatic arts, plays for the regular season are chosen from the several periods: Greek, Medieval, Elizabethan, Restoration, etc., and various countries so that in four years a student at SUI can see representative samples of all sorts of plays.)

"DINNY AND THE WITCHES," a fantasy by William Gibson, was produced off-Broadway in the 1959-60 season. According to a dramatic arts department publication,

Aged Allowances To Be Increased Effective August 1

The 60 Johnson County residents on the Old Age Assistance rolls will get an increase in their monthly allowances. The State Board of Social Welfare said increases in the basic allowances for those getting nursing or custodial home care will become effective August 1.

Johnson County has about 45 Old Age Assistance recipients receiving nursing home care. Their allowances will be increased to $100 from $96 a month. The 15 persons receiving custodial care in Johnson County will get their allowances increased to $92 from $90 a month.

Other Old Age Assistance recipients may get their rent or personal allowances increased after the Board completes some special studies on current living costs.

The young people are studying in areas of speech including dramatic art, discussion and debate, and radio and television.

Sessions include study of acting, costuming, and makeup. Study in radio and television features production and performance in SUI's Television Center and WSUI radio.

The Iowa City students are Margaret Alexander, Mary E. Forell, William D. Keettel, Linda Knott, Marcia J. Maynard, Edmund M. Oppenheimer and Phyllis A. Saltzman.

Frank and Nancy Bruce, graduate students in journalism, prepare their News Photography I assignments for Thursday. Mr. Bruce has two Bachelors and one Masters degree and is currently enrolled in two courses with his wife. Mrs. Bruce is working on her Masters degree.

What is there about college training that attracts a man who already holds two bachelor's degrees and a master's?

According to Frank M. Bruce, G. Bedford, the additional training is essential for a teacher.

"It isn't totally unwise for me to return to school this summer. I have a master's degree in Education Administration and two bachelor's degrees, and I've taught English and journalism in college. I already have nine graduate hours in English; now I'll have seven in journalism."

BRUCE TAUGHT freshman English at Kansas State College, Pittsburg, for one year, and went to Fort Scott Junior College, Kansas, where he taught English and journalism for two years.

He received his B.A. degree in journalism from the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, in 1936 and his B.S. degree in English from Northeastern State College, Tahlequah, Okla., in 1942. He earned his master's degree in Administrative Education from Kansas State College, Pittsburg, in 1948.

During his undergraduate summers, Bruce worked for his brother who was construction superintendent at Boulder Dam, Las Vegas, Nev.

AFTER STARTING his teaching career in 1938, Bruce taught and coached Mickey Mantle in basketball from 1944 to 1946. He later wrote an article, "Mickey Mantle, My Basketball Whiz Kid," which appeared in This Week magazine.

Two years ago, he had a Coe Fellowship in American Studies. Bruce owned and published The Southwestern, a weekly newspaper, in Joplin, Mo., where he exposed widespread juvenile delinquency in the city. He discovered users of marijuana at a Joplin high school, and used his findings as the basis for a book, "Study of Juvenile Delinquency," still unpublished.

Bruce's expose was followed by the suicide of a prominent Joplin doctor who was implicated in the ensuing investigations of delinquency in the city.

"I RODE with Wyatt Earp," the result of an interview with Earp's nephew, won Bruce the $2500 First Person Award of Reader's Digest magazine in December, 1958.

But Bruce is not alone at SUI this summer: his wife, Nancy, came along. She is also a news-editorial journalism major, working toward the master of arts degree.

Mrs. Bruce received her B.A. degree from Texas Technological College, Lubbock, in journalism, and swore she'd never return to college. At her husband's suggestion, however, she came to SUI this summer because she thought she might like to teach at the college level also.

"If you're going to teach, you can get better jobs with a master's, especially if you have experience along with it," Bruce said.

MR. AND MRS. Bruce met at the University of Minnesota the summer of 1961, when they both had Newspaper Fund Fellowships, and were married one year later. They like teaching together, and now teach at Bedford High School; he, English and speech, she, English and journalism.

"We usually end up helping each other," Mrs. Bruce said. "I help him with dramatics, and he helps me with the school paper and yearbook."

Mrs. Bruce's Lubbock high school paper, The Westerner, was judged tops in the nation in its enrollment category by the American Newspaper Publishers Association in 1960-61, and was named "Pace-maker" for the year.

For several years, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce had been consistent prize winners of journalistic honors, and were invited to speak at the National Scholastic Press Association convention in Chicago two years in a row.

THEY ARE now taking News Photography I and Practical News Editing. In addition, Mrs. Bruce is taking Research Methods in Mass Communications and Practical Reporting.

The Bruces travel around each summer and either publish or work on weekly newspapers. Since they are in the same field, they tend to be intensely competitive and enjoy trying to outdo each other. They once took a picture of some ears of corn that had grown from 800-year-old seeds, sent it with a short story to the Kansas City Star, and were paid $22 for it.

Mr. Bruce has also taught special courses in speed and comprehensive reading at educational levels ranging from seventh grade to the adult group.

The couple returns to Bedford every two weeks so he can keep an eye on his vegetable garden.

He is also a camera bug.

HE IS STILL quite interested in writing, and hopes to sell his book soon. He has plans for two more books, however. He said he has sold just enough articles to keep him encouraged. He has sold several feature stories to the Kansas City Star.

Besides putting out the school newspaper and yearbook, Mrs. Bruce likes to read. Mr. Bruce said "She'd rather read than wash dishes."

MRS. BRUCE said that she used to worry about other people's impressions of her and tended to be quite conservative toward everything. In spring 1963, however, her husband talked her into bleaching her hair. She was a brunette at the time and was horrified at his suggestion. After six weeks she finally gave in, and her hair is now a becoming shade of blonde.

Perhaps Mrs. Bruce is moving away from her conservatism; still it took six months beginning last fall, for her husband to persuade her to return to school this summer.

Twins Use Singles To Defeat Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Minnesota's Twins abandoned the long ball for some key singles Tuesday and snapped Baltimore's winning string at seven games 3-1 behind the strong pitching of Gerry Arrigo.

Arrigo, fresh from a one-hitter against Chicago, allowed only five hits and struck out seven before he wilted in the brutal 96-degree heat and was relieved by Al Worthington in the eighth.

Minnesota, probably the most feared long-ball club in the majors, jags its runs on some wildness by Baltimore starter Steve Barber and singles by Bob Allison and Jimmie Hall.

The Orioles got their only run on a sixth inning double by Boog Powell, an infield out and Brooks Robinson's infield out.

Ron Hunt beat out a single to shortstop of Perry in the first inning and John Stephenson singled to left with one out in the third. From that point, Perry retired 19 consecutive batters before George Altman walked and Joe Christopher doubled in the ninth.

The Mets hit only six balls to the outfield in the entire game as the lanky young right-hander extended his record to 6-3 and dropped his earned run average to 1.65.

Yankees Sweep 2 from Angels

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Maris' 13th home run gave the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory in the nightcap and a sweep of a two-night doubleheader against the Los Angeles Angels Tuesday night.

Maris, who had five hits in the two games, connected in the sixth inning after Joe Adcock's two-run shot in the top half of the inning had tied the score at 2-2.

The Yankees scored a run in the second on singles by Maris, Joe Pepitone and Hector Lopez and added another in the fifth on Johnny Blanchard's double and Clete Boyer's single.

Then Adcock tied it with his ninth homer, ending a 23-inning scoreless skunk for the Angels. Al Downing, who went the distance, picked up the victory, his third in five decisions. He stranded two runners in each of the last two innings, with a brilliant catch by shortstop Clete Boyer ending the game.

The double victory moved the second-place Yankees three games back of American League leader Baltimore which lost to Minnesota

2 Americans In Contention At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean Moffitt pulled her erratic game together at a vital point Tuesday, scored a smashing triumph on the famed center court and bolted into the semifinals of the Wimbledon tennis championships.

The Long Beach, Calif., girl, whose play had been spotty and unimpressive through the first eight days of the tourney, stormed over her old Wightman Cup foe, England's Ann Haydon Jones, 6-3, 6-3 and joined Chuck McKinley as the only surviving Americans in these All-England championships.

McKinley and Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., top-seeded here and the U.S. champions, were upset in the quarter-finals of doubles by New Zealand's Ian Crookenden and Lew Gerrard.

Little Nancy Richey of Dallas ranked No. 3 in the U.S. and seeded fifth here, was eliminated by Australia's Lesley Turner 6-3, 6-4 in a quarter-final match, setting up these pairings for Thursday's women's singles round of four:

Miss Moffitt against the girl who beat her in the title game a year ago, Australia's top-seeded Margaret Smith; and Miss Turner vs. Brazil's poker-faced veteran internationalist, Maria Bueno.

McKinley, the defending men's champion from San Antonio, advanced Monday.

BOSTON (AP) — The American League bypassed sluggers in favor of high-average singles hitters Tuesday as it completed the squad that will seek to protect its razor-thin edge over the Nationals in the 35th All-Star Game.

House Debate Begins on Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The annual House debate on foreign aid appropriation opened Tuesday with the irrepressible Rep. Otto Passman, (D-La.), repressed, for the moment, on the sidelines.

Passman, in fact, was not even in the chamber as Rep. J. Vaughan Gary, (D-Va.), took his place as floor manager of the $3.3-billion bill.

But he stepped down from this job when the subcommittee and the full committee refused—for the first time in foreign aid history—to go along with his proposed cuts.

The full committee, headed by a new chairman, Rep. George H. Mahon (D-Tex.), cut the Johnson administration request for $3.5 billion by only $200 million.

Casual or outdoor furniture will work very well for the first living room and is in style indoors at present, Dr. Smith notes. Later, you can fit it into a recreation

Mrs. Klusmann's letter, dated June 17, was made available Tuesday after she stood in a Pentagon conference room and accepted the Distinguished Flying Cross for her husband.

She listened as Adm. Claude V. Ricketts, vice chief of naval operations, read a citation praising Klusmann's "extraordinary heroism and achievement."

Prof Spiker Editing Child Psych Series

A new series of publications titled "Advances in Child Development and Behavior" is being edited by Professor Charles C. Spiker, director of the SUI Institute of Child Behavior and Development, and Professor Lewis P. Lipsitt, of the Psychology Department at Brown University.

Offering critical review articles which will integrate and summarize important research developments in child psychology, the series is being published by the Academic Press of New York and London.

Volume II of the series will be off the press in January, 1965. SUIowans among authors of chapters for Volume I, which was published last December, are Dr. Spiker; Dr. Lipsitt; Professors Howard V. Meredith and Gordon N. Cantor, both of the SUI faculty; Professor David S. Palermo, now of the Pennsylvania State University; and Professor Hayne W. Reese, of the State University of New York at Buffalo.

The publishers have asked leading researchers in biological sciences and some of the behavioral sciences to edit the volumes in their area, in turn calling on outstanding scientists to summarize research findings in the specific field in which they have specialized.

Noted Doctor To Lecture Here July 7

Dr. Peter D. Comanduras, formerly secretary-general of MEDICO and assistant executive director of CARE, will present a lecture at SUI July 7 on the international medical program which he and the late Dr. Tom Dooley founded.

On two tours around the world in behalf of MEDICO and CARE, Dr. Comanduras investigated sites for new projects for MEDICO and surveyed all American overseas medical projects, including those sponsored by governmental, religious, and non-sectarian agencies and independent doctors.

Dr. Comanduras reported that he found three factors common to almost every nation he visited. Infectious diseases which have been almost eliminated or controlled in the West are still prevalent in Asia and Africa. The average villager no longer feels resignation toward substandard living conditions, but believes he can share in the minimal necessities which we take for granted in the West.

Finally, he found that the practice of medicine in countries of these continents can have a far-reaching effect in the world-wide struggle for the minds of men. "These villagers will respond to those who show them genuine sympathy and recognition," he observes. "We are looked to, not so much for a solution to their problems, but for the mere recognition that these problems must be fought."

Now on the board of MEDICO, Dr. Comanduras has resumed practice as a specialist in internal medicine in Washington.
