Lema had three birdies — at the 11th, 14th and 15th — and one eagle, on the fifth, where he drove to the rough and then three-putted.

Lema's birdie putt at the 18th missed the cup and stayed out. It was the first round under 70 since the tournament started. Lema did not have his favorite club, the wedge — in the bag.

"You can't hit high shots to the green in this wind," he said, "but you've got to run the ball up and down the flag."

Big Jack Nicklaus, the Ohio Gold-Bear who has won every major title but this one, had an awful time on the huge St. Andrews greens and finished with 74. It left him at 150, nine strokes back of Lema.

The field was trimmed to the 100 best scorers for today's final 36 holes, with 153 the cutoff point.

Rights Worker—

Most Negroes Want to Vote

By DENISE O'BRIEN
Staff Writer

One incident in a Mississippi town has changed the tone of its white citizens and given encouragement to its Negro citizens, according to Larry Wright, A3, Chicago, Ill.

Wright is one of several SUIowans in Mississippi working on the Summer Project to register Negroes for voting. The project is sponsored by the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee.

The incident occurred when one of the project leaders in Holly Springs, Miss., was struck with a pop bottle. The man who struck him also threatened to shoot the student with a 12-gauge shotgun and shoot up the project center in Holly Springs.

"We were just starting the voter registration," Wright said, "when the incident happened."

The student who was struck pressed charges and the man was arrested. He is now free on $1,000 bail and will go to trial. "He will probably get off," Wright said.

"The whole incident has been beneficial," Wright said. "It scared the white people. The mayor became more polite and the police didn't try to stop our registration work."

"The incident was good as far as the Negroes were concerned," Wright continued. "The young Negroes are more interested and active in our program. They are eager to do something now."

The people in Holly Springs, a town of 6,000, have a misconception of what the Summer Project workers are trying to do, Wright said. It is difficult to get in contact with them. "Some dislike us so much they won't talk with us, but others are polite."

Holly Springs is in Marshall County, Miss. The population of the county is two-fifth Negro. So far, 250 Negroes have been registered to vote, 30 of them in Holly Springs. Wright said this is a very small percentage of the total Negro population.

Funeral Services Set for Victims Of Oasis Accident

Funeral services will be held Monday for a mother and two children, victims of a car-truck accident Thursday night. Mrs. Cora Aicher, 31, Route 5, and her daughters, Jean, 13, and Linda, 8, were killed in the crash.

The accident occurred near Oasis, 8 1/2 miles northeast of Iowa City, at 9:15 p.m. Five other persons, including three other members of the Aicher family, were injured.

Other members of the Aicher family who were injured are Richard Aicher, 32, who was driving the car, a son, Stephen, 11, and a daughter, Michele, 4. They were treated at Mercy Hospital.

Robert W. Wright, 17, driver of the pickup truck, and Frederick Sutton, 27, 730 Whiting St., a passenger in the truck, were also hospitalized.

Highway Patrolmen said the Aicher car, traveling north, had just emerged at the intersection of the county roads when it collided with the westbound truck. The impact of the crash sent both cars into the ditch on the north side of the intersection.

Mrs. Aicher was pinned in the wreckage for more than an hour, according to rescuers. They used uprooted fence posts to use as levers in an effort to free her.

The deaths brought the Johnson County traffic death total to seven for 1964. The accident was the first since July 23, 1962, to take three lives at once in Johnson county.

A requiem mass will be said for Mrs. Aicher, Linda, and Jean Monday at 11 a.m. at St. Bridget's church in Nolan settlement. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery, Iowa City. The rosary will be recited at McGovern-Dwyer Funeral Home.

New State Liquor Store Set for Construction

A new $25,000 state liquor store will be open to Iowa City residents in October. The store is now being built at 402 Highland Court and will replace the present store at 219 South Linn street.

The new store at the intersection of Highland court and South Gilbert Street, will have parking space for 30 cars. The building, constructed by Franz Construction Co., will be of frame and masonry, 40 feet by 100 feet in size.

SUI To Aid In National Reading Study

Evelyn Chapman, 26-year-old Iowa City secretary who is charged with the murder of her husband, waived preliminary hearing in Iowa City Police Court Friday morning.

In proceedings that lasted about three minutes, Judge Robert W. Jansen bound her over to the Johnson County grand jury. No date has been set for the hearing.

Mrs. Chapman is charged with first degree murder in the shooting death of her 27-year-old husband, Carl. His body was discovered Monday afternoon by Iowa City police in a closet at the couple's home at 2025 G St.

Mrs. Chapman has signed a statement saying she shot her husband in the head several times last June 19th, then put the body in the closet.

Arraignment was begun Tuesday, but was continued until Friday at the request of Mrs. Chapman's attorney, Jerry Lovelace.

She appeared in court Friday wearing pink treader pants and a green collarless blouse. She said nothing as she sat with arms folded before the judge. Lovelace spoke for her.

Mrs. Chapman appeared more tired than she did earlier in the week. She wore no makeup and her hair was disarranged.

She was remanded to the custody of the sheriff and is being held in the Johnson County Jail.

No Date Set For Chapman Jury Hearing

Among the other schools selected to conduct parts of the study are Boston University, Syracuse University, Pennsylvania State University and the University of Wisconsin.

At SUI, members of the Department of Education are conducting the study in cooperation with the Cedar Rapids school system.

Louise Beltramo, associate professor of education, and Hale C. Reid, director of elementary education in the Cedar Rapids public schools, are in charge of the program.

SUI surveyors will study 350 to 400 first graders in the Cedar Rapids schools. The children are classified as late-maturing readers, or those who learn to read more slowly than average. The national study includes children at all educational, social and economic levels.

Children to be studied will be taught in groups of ten to twelve. The SUI Education Department is sending teaching materials to about 35 teachers who expect to participate in the study.

Elementary school teachers in Cedar Rapids and the Iowa City area are helping to prepare the materials and instructions for the project.

The study begins in September. When the test period ends in February, the children who received special instruction will take tests to determine their skill in reading. Results of these tests will be sent to the University of Minnesota to become part of the national study.

Seven different methods of teaching will be used with the Cedar Rapids children. The methods include contact with reading through literature, phonetics and language experience, in which the child tells a story in his own words and later sees the story in print. The other four methods will consist of combinations of the first three.

Research in methods of teaching reading has been done previously on the local level, according to Dr. Beltramo. This study will consolidate information from all parts of the United States.

"We don't say there is only one way of teaching," said Miss Beltramo. "We are looking for more effective approaches."

Permanent FBI Office Put in Miss.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said Friday he believed the three civil rights workers who vanished mysteriously in Mississippi last month are dead.

The FBI chief came to this racially troubled state to talk with Gov. Paul B. Johnson and other officials. At the same time, the FBI beefed up its forces in Mississippi.

Hoover dedicated a new FBI office after conferring nearly an hour with Johnson. The big new office was set up on a crash basis over the past 48 hours, at the direction of President Johnson.

Hoover said the search for the three civil rights workers who disappeared without a trace June 21 at Philadelphia in east-central Mississippi would continue until "the bodies are found."

President Johnson had announced in Washington earlier Friday that 50 FBI agents would be permanently assigned to the Jackson office. The FBI declined to say how many agents it previously had regularly assigned to the state.

Nothing significant has come up in the investigation since the charred station wagon used by the three was found two days after they dropped from sight.

Asked if the decision to open the new FBI offices came as a result of the fact-finding trip former CIA Director Allen W. Dulles made to Mississippi last month at the request of the President, Hoover said, "No, it was not."

"I felt one of the steps we could take would be an office in Jackson, enhancing our efficiency," Hoover said.

Escapee Recaptured, Returns to Penitentiary

FORT MADISON (AP) — A prisoner fled from the Fort Madison State Penitentiary Friday evening in a station wagon belonging to the prison and was captured at Fairfield about an hour and a half after a high speed chase.

He was identified as John Reaver, 49, sentenced from Des Moines for forgery.

Reaver, a trustee, had been assigned as a chauffeur for Warden John Bennett, authorities said. Police said he drove off in the station wagon about 6:50 p.m., and roadblocks immediately were set up in southeast Iowa. Sheriff's officials said the station wagon was spotted at Mount Pleasant and officers chased the prisoner to Fairfield before he was captured.

Soon To Be a Parking Lot

Demolition continues on buildings in the half block on College Street between Linn and Dubuque Streets, downtown Iowa City. When cleared, the area will be used for a Municipal Parking Lot for about 150 cars. Cost of the project is $550,000 and completion date has been set as September.

5 Artists, Groups Set For 1964-'65 Concerts

Five programs by international recognized artists are scheduled for the 1964-65 SUI Concert Course.

The National Swedish Chorus, a 75-voice male ensemble, will appear Oct. 9 in the first concert of the series. The chorus, under the patronage of the King of Sweden, is making a national tour, performing works ranging from Schubert and Haydn to 20th century music and Scandinavian folksongs.

On Nov. 4, guitarist John Williams will play at SUI as part of his first North American tour. A protégé of Andres Segovia, Williams has been called "one of the most heralded musicians of his generation" as a result of his recording, radio and concert performances. Williams, 21, has a large following across Europe. He made his debut in London in 1958.

A performance Dec. 2 by Adele Addison will be one of 50 concert appearances scheduled by the soprano during the coming season. Miss Addison's performances have ranged from difficult modern music such as Lukas Foss' "Time Cycle," to the motion picture soundtrack of "Porgy and Bess." She toured the Soviet Union last spring, winning great acclaim.

The eight-member Bach Aria Group will appear at SUI March 4. The group, directed by William Scheide, includes flute, cello, violin and piano, and four soloists: soprano Eileen Farrell, bass baritone Norman Farrow, tenor Jan Peerce, and alto Carol Smith.

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, whose Concert Course appearances at SUI are a 20-year tradition, will add an extra performance to their regular two appearances next season because of the popularity of the orchestra with SUI audiences. The Minneapolis Symphony will appear in two evening concerts, Apr. 27 and 28, and in an afternoon concert Apr. 28.

THE SUMMER CHORUS of The State University of Iowa will present a reading session of new music at 7 p.m. Tuesday in North Music Hall. The program was originally scheduled for Wednesday evening.

A brass ensemble will assist the chorus in a new work by Cecil Effinger, "Set of Three," which is based on poems by Thomas Hornsby Ferrell. Also included will be a reading of the "Pilgrim Psalms" by Ross Lee Finney.

Professor Daniel Moe is director of the chorus.

GREEK AND TURKISH troops have been reported to be infiltrating in small numbers into strife-torn Cyprus for the past six or eight weeks.

United States officials said Friday the reports are "fairly well substantiated" and they do not doubt that some infiltration has been going on, with a greater number of Greeks than of Turks landing on the island from small boats.

IN SOUTH VIET NAM, a U.S. Army adviser was killed Friday, two others were wounded and an American officer was wounded when a mine blew up their armored troop carrier near Duc Hoa, 15 miles west of Saigon.

He was the ninth American killed in the past two weeks. The incident sent the total of Americans killed in action to 153 since December of 1961, when the United States stepped up its support of the South Vietnamese.

Wants Deeds To Support Cuba's Words

Avoids Comments On Party Politics, Baker Investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson disclosed Friday that 50 additional FBI agents have been assigned to a racially troubled Mississippi and will work out of new headquarters in Jackson, the state capital.

Johnson, in giving this figure at his first news conference since June 23, partially lifted the secrecy that has veiled the size of the FBI contingent in Mississippi. He did not, however, give a total figure for agents in the state prior to the reinforcement, although they are believed to have numbered at least 100.

Meeting with two-dozen newsmen in the Cabinet Room, Johnson parried a series of questions about election-year politics and at one point jested about factional infighting in the Republican party.

ONE REPORTER, noting a recent statement by Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater that, as of now, no Republican could beat Johnson, asked whether the President agrees.

"I think the Republican party has enough problems with my adding to them in any way," Johnson replied, and dropped the matter there.

The President declined to give any new clues to his attitude toward Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy as a possible November running mate. He said only that he had a recommendation on that subject for delegates to the Democratic convention and expressed confidence they would nominate the best man.

JOHNSON ALSO brushed aside inquiries about this week's Senate committee report on the lengthy investigation of Bobby G. Baker, former Senate functionary and long-time friend of the President. Johnson said the report undoubtedly "will be read and thoroughly considered, and such action as the Senate feels justified will be taken."

In the foreign field, Johnson was asked for reaction to the recent conciliatory statements attributed to Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

"I am much more interested in deeds than words," said the President. He promised to "carefully watch for any actions or deeds that would carry into effect the actions that I think would be in best interest of the people of Cuba and the people of the world."

Much of the 30-minute session dealt with the state of the economy. The President said "times are good, and getting better." And he predicted bright prospects "as far as the trained eye can see into 1965."

SOMEONE ASKED about a Goldwater charge that the administration has been fiscally irresponsible. The President said he is interested in comments from authoritative sources lacking political motives. And he cited recent statements by the American Bankers Association, Henry Ford II, the National Research Bureau, and the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., which he said, tend to rebuff Goldwater's contention.

Also in the economic sphere, Johnson said both sides in current auto labor talks "do not want governmental intervention in these negotiations — nor do I." He said he is confident collective bargaining will achieve a responsible settlement which will have "a profound impact on our economic prospects at home and abroad."

THE PRESIDENT began the news conference by noting that the House, having acted on all 1965 money bills, cut appropriation requests by 3 per cent, compared with 7.4 per cent last year. He said this proves he has submitted a budget "hard to cut."

"We are going to look upon the appropriations as a ceiling — not as a mandate to spend."

He said he hopes to save money that will be returned to the Treasury a year hence.

NEWPORT, Tenn. (AP) — The reported discovery of a body 1 1/4 miles from the crash scene and failure to find any mail or baggage in the debris Friday heightened speculation concerning the crash of a United Air Lines plane with the loss of 39 lives.

The Greenville Daily Sun said the body of Dr. Robert Hall, Washington, D.C., was found that distance from the wreckage of the four-engine Viscount which slammed into the wooded foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains late Thursday.

The newspaper also said it learned of good authority that no baggage or mail were found by federal agents, National Guardsmen and others who sifted through the wreckage.

A UNITED helicopter hovered over the area, reportedly searching for baggage and seeking signs that the plane might have struck another ridge before crashing, the newspaper said.

Four bodies, in addition to that of Dr. Hall, were identified Friday. A United Air Lines spokesman said they were those of the stewardesses, Carol Lynn Berndt, Laurel, Md.; Virginia Vollmer, Alexandria, Va.; Frank J. Tosca, Avon, Mass.; and Paul Pohl, Springfield, Mass.

FEDERAL investigators, acting on reports of some witnesses that they heard an explosion before the aircraft crashed, said they were looking into the possibility of sabotage.

But George R. Baker of Washington, D.C., Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) official directing the inquiry, said, "As of now we have no reason to think there was any type of bomb aboard."

In Washington, Jack Yohe, CAB information chief, told newsmen that any talk of sabotage at this phase of the investigation would be merely speculative. He added that the board was not ruling out that or any other possibility.

MSU's traffic solution is lesson for SUI

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY has taken two steps to solve its traffic problem.

First, the University put a ban on campus driving, effective this fall, which will affect about 30,000 students. The second step, aimed at solving the transportation, was the purchase of 12 buses to be used for transportation around the campus.

The buses, which will be operated completely by the University, will shuttle students from outlying parking lots during the peak traffic times — in the morning, evening and between classes — into the campus.

The buses will also be routed through campus during other times of the day. A fee of $12 will allow an MSU student to use both the shuttle service and the campus buses for one term.

SUI might seriously consider the Michigan State University plan.

Everything indicates that the SUI traffic and parking problem will become more severe in future years. A steadily increasing enrollment, with a proportionate increase in the number of student cars, is only part of the problem.

SUI is expanding its physical facilities rapidly to meet the needs of the future, which will mean that parking areas close to campus will become necessary for building space.

A ban on student cars would be impractical, since many students choose to live in the outlying areas of town and need their cars for transportation and personal convenience.

Michigan State's plan is an equitable solution that solves the traffic problem through campus and still allows students the convenience of their cars. SUI would do well to keep the plan in mind for the future.

Free press in Hungary

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS is being defended by what might seem an unlikely protector — the Hungarian government.

Last month the Hungarian trade union newspaper, Nepszava, attacked government and industry officials who have applied pressure to have critical articles withheld. The editor wrote that it would not comply with such demands "incompatible with the morals of socialistic journalism."

The government backed the editor. The attitude of the Hungarian government indicates that whatever the type of government, freedom of the press aids in making it more efficient.

GOP Convention— Familiar political faces gone from Goldwater delegations

By DORIS FLEESON
SAN FRANCISCO — Participants in the Republican National Convention find themselves obligated to make a lot of new friends.

The old familiar faces and reliable sources seldom inhabit the Goldwater delegations which seem destined to seize power here next week. The prospect is that the turnover in party personalities will be substantial if not drastic.

One experienced spokesman for the Republican party in the South decided early that discretion was the better part of valor and did not seek his usual spot as chairman of his state delegation. Asked what his successor was like, he replied wryly that unfortunately he didn't know the gentleman.

A MIDWEST CHAIRMAN of a delegation still committed to a favorite son is taking out some insurance. He stationed himself strategically in the St. Francis Hotel lobby and asked friendly reporters to point out the Goldwater powerhouses as they came in.

It is not too hard. They are the only really happy operators here and they wear the victory air. Nothing has happened so far to impair it, and they don't intend that it shall. At this point all they want is the Presidential nomination, and they think they have it.

In pursuit of harmony, they have achieved the really remarkable feat of putting their forces under discipline. That discipline is occasionally breached by their candidate, but the ranks are subdued to a degree startling to reporters covering the pre-convention scene.

IN THE PLATFORM PANELS, where they enjoy the same apparent majority as at the convention, they are calm and even meek. They ask few if any questions. Their applause is rationed and is given mainly to the safer types of witnesses who argue for education, prayer and noble ideas.

Goldwater admirers are normally not good listeners. It often seems, in fact, that they don't listen at all. They know what they think and it isn't funny, either. Their boiling point is low as a rule, and they enjoy combat.

But they have been cued to watchful waiting and promised that victory is near. Nobody doubts that if Gov. William Scranton could breach their discipline, the results would be dramatic, but he has not so far found a way of doing it.

GOLDWATER MANAGERS have a powerful asset in the implicit faith that Goldwater supporters have in their hero. The Senator's outspokenness may have an adverse effect in some quarters, but his own people do not question it.

They think it only proves that here at last is an honest politician, and they prefer the simple honesty to the complex issue. It is quite possible that a large number of voters not committed to Goldwater are equally attracted by his frankness and somehow feel reassured by it.

UNQUESTIONABLY, it is part of his appeal, unorthodox as it is in politics. It should make the campaign interesting, and the fact that it is being largely denied to this convention by prudent advisers is one reason the pace of pre-convention proceedings is so slow and painfully dull.

—On Summer Project—

Voices from Mississippi

EDITOR'S NOTE: Comments on the Mississippi Summer Project, conducted by the Congress of Federated Organizations — COFO — have come primarily from either the students themselves or Northern reporters. Below are two articles from Southern newspapers concerning the Summer Project, printed here to add another perspective to the situation.

SUI grad tells of COFO work

(Editor's note: Carol Gross, a June graduate of SUI, is working in Carthage, Miss., on the Summer Project. She wrote this letter on the community center project she is working on there.)

July 4 — I'm here in Carthage, about 90 miles from Philadelphia, Miss., where the three missing persons were. We haven't had any real trouble here except for a Ku Klux Klan cross-burning down the road night before last, and the road was covered with huge tacks this morning.

The white community is very scared and of course very threatened and the officials are afraid that violence may break out there more they see of us — so we just lay low and do our work.

There are four old dilapidated school buildings that have not been touched for six years. The Negroes claim that they built them and own them. So the first two days we spent sweeping, scrubbing and repairing and setting up the library. About 50 men, women and children helped us. It was really great and they were so proud.

After coming out a couple of times a day, watching us and sneering, the officials informed us that it was their property and we could not use it. We brought in lawyers and found out that technically they were right.

But we have to show them how important it is to accept the downfalls and keep going. So we have decided to build our own school-house and community center.

We have talked to some of the people and they are all for it and ready to get to work and "show the white man."

But this is going to take money, that will have to come from outside somewhere. These people will work hard but they just don't have the money. Where I am staying there are seven kids, no running water, no toilet or outhouse, no telephones, not even an air-conditioner!

Next, the pamphlet claims that in October, 1961, SNCC workers went to Albany, Georgia, and became the catalytic fuse for the massive protests of the Albany movement.

As I recollect, the only place they moved was out of town. Wasn't that the "massive movement" that fizzled because no one would turn out?

"BY NOVEMBER, 1961, some sixteen students had volunteered to take out a year or more from school to work in the hardcore areas for subsistence only," echoes the pamphlet.

According to the pamphlet, SNCC was organized in 1960. My, my, am I supposed to believe that in one year only 16 students were willing to overcome?

THEM they conclude, "Change will be slow, but change must take place. SNCC will need three times our current staff — three times our current budget." They will also need three times their

Korean To Face

"The best weapon for overcoming difficulties is study in the United States is endurance."

"I was frustrated so many times when I first came to this country, but now I have confidence that I could try anything," Aija Ha, G. Seoul, Korea, said in a recent interview.

"I have undergone a big improvement," she added. Miss Ha was speaking of difficulties she faced in studying, adjusting to life in the United States, and in talking to those around her for the first six months after she arrived here. She said she was very homesick at first and cried frequently.

MISS HA said her biggest problem was language. English was required in her junior and senior high school years, and her first two years of college. Her English course covered translation and reading, but little practical training was involved.

Miss Ha had never had a trip before coming to America, not even within Korea. She said she had no intimate friends or relatives in the United States, but has made many friends during her stay here. She has found her instructors at SUI to be very helpful.

Last semester Miss Ha received the Altrusa International Foundation Scholarship for foreign women who are full-time graduate students in the United States.

Miss Ha received her B.A. in

Iowa Delegates Alternates Learn

A Daily Iowan poll of the Iowa delegates and alternates to the Republican National Convention in San Francisco, indicates Sen. Barry Goldwater leading among the delegates and Gov. William Scranton holding a slight edge among the alternates.

The survey asked these questions of the Iowa delegation: To which candidate are you leaning or committed? Should the man you favor win the Presidential nomination, whom would you prefer to see for the Vice-Presidential nomination?

Goldwater backers were asked who they would favor for the Presidential nomination if the Senator does not win the nomination; Scranton supporters were asked who they would favor if the governor does not win.

Seven of 24 delegates and 9 of 24 alternates responded to the poll. The results:

	Dele.	Alter.
Goldwater committed	2	2
Goldwater leaning	1	2
Scranton committed	—	3
Scranton leaning	—	2

Textiles Workshop
A two-week Workshop in Economic Aspects of Textiles and Clothing will open Monday at SUI.

Among the featured speakers will be Charles H. Rutledge, manager of information services for the Du Pont Company's Textile Fibers Department, Wilmington, Del.

The only workshop of its type to be offered in the country through a university this summer, the Workshop in Economic Aspects of Textiles and Clothing has been planned primarily for teachers in colleges, universities and high schools and for home economists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Adeline Hoffman, professor of home economics, is coordinating the workshop.

Social Work Course
Eighteen Iowa social workers, representing 15 counties, will begin the final course in a special program of study for social workers at SUI Monday.

The two-week course is the last in a four-course sequential program to provide knowledge of circumstances surrounding development of social and personal problems.

Those who complete the fourth course will be awarded a certificate of merit by the SUI School of Social Work.

Speech Workshop
Eleven Iowa high school students attending the 33rd annual Workshop in Speech and Dramatic Art at SUI have received awards for outstanding performances in speech contests which concluded the five-week course.

Tom Shives, Newton, received first place in oral interpretation.

Inside Washington—

Johnson and Dirksen banter About fall election battle

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT
Sen. Republican Leader Everett Dirksen, who boasts of being Senator Barry Goldwater's "political godfather" and will nominate him at the national convention next week, is still chucking over a fast one President Johnson tried to pull on him.

The Johnson Administration has agreed to foot the bill for returning some 10,000 Belgian civilian and military technicians and advisers to the Congo in a new effort to "stabilize" that strife and turmoil-racked country.

ESTIMATED COST of this still-unnounced project is between $80 and $100 million.

This heavy expenditure will be in addition to the $300 million the U.S. put into the United Nations "peace force" that was finally liquidated last week — having solved nothing. Total cost of that venture in futility was $420 million, of which the U.S. contributed approximately three-fourths.

Irony of the return of the Belgian technicians and advisers is that the U.S. was largely responsible for their ouster.

Now it's putting up the money to bring them back. Among the Congo specialists slated to return are several thousand who were forced to flee four years ago. Sending them back will cost the U.S. $5 million for their transportation and salaries.

THIS MONEY will come from funds the administration had earmarked for UN operations in the Congo this fiscal year starting July 1.

These plans are part of a back-stage agreement worked out by President Johnson and Belgian Premier Paul-Henri Spaak in a series of personal communications extending over a period of months. Also participating in these exchanges was Moise Tshombe, one-time president of Katanga Province, whom the U.S. helped force into exile.

Tshombe's return to the Congo to head a new government for the entire country is part of the Johnson-Spaak understanding.

SPAAK INSISTED on both Tshombe's going back and the U.S. putting up the money for the employment of thousands of Belgian technicians and advisers in a new effort to bring order and stability to the African country.

President Johnson bow to these demands when his top foreign affairs advisers, headed by Secretary Rusk, strongly opposed sending a large U.S. military mission to the Congo. The Joint Chiefs of Staff favored that, but the President's civilian counselors were vigorously against it as too costly and too explosive.

Korean Needs Endurance To Face U.S. Difficulties

"The best weapon for overcoming difficulties in study in the United States is endurance."
"I was frustrated so many times when I first came to this country, but now I have confidence that I could try anything," Aija Ha, G. Seoul, Korea, said in a recent interview.
"I have undergone a big improvement," she added.
Miss Ha was speaking of difficulties she faced in studying, adjusting to life in the United States, and in talking to those around her for the first six months after she arrived here. She said she was very homesick at first and cried frequently.
"Miss Ha said her biggest problem was language. English was required in her junior and senior high school years, and her first two years of college. Her English course covered translation and reading, but little practical training was involved.
"Miss Ha had never had a trip before coming to America, not even within Korea. She said she had no intimate friends or relatives in the United States, but has made many friends during her stay here. She has found her instructors at SUU to be very helpful.
Last semester Miss Ha received the Altrusa International Foundation Scholarship for foreign women who are full-time graduate students in the United States.
Miss Ha received her B.A. in music from Ewha Womans University, Seoul, Korea, in Dec. 1962. Ewha is the largest women's university in the world. She came to SUU the following fall at the suggestion of the Dean of the College of Music at Ewha, who was a former SUU student.

"RECENTLY Miss Ha gave a second recital in partial fulfillment of requirements for her M.A. Degree, which she expects to receive this August. She gave her first recital last November. Besides the two recitals, she is required to complete 30 semester hours of credit.
"Miss Ha said her favorite composers are Debussy and Beethoven. She chose to include several works by them in her recitals.
"Miss Ha started taking piano lessons when she was 10. Her favorite subjects in high school were English and piano. She hopes to get a job teaching at Ewha University when she returns home in September.
"ONE DIFFERENCE between musical emphasis in America and Korea, Miss Ha notes, is the greater emphasis on theory and music history in America. She said she would like to see a greater balance between the theoretical and practical aspects of music in Korea.
"I think we should know music background and history," she stated, "because both are very important parts of the field."
"After two years of study in this country, I feel I am just entering the gate of the world of music," Miss Ha said, "I now have a better idea of how to study for the future."

"The world of music is so broad that I feel I have only touched on it," she added.
"Miss Ha's interests also include sports and flower gardening. She has a small flower garden at home that her mother is preparing for her return. Her parents have also added a new room to their house for her homecoming.
"MISS HA learned to play the kayagum, sometimes called the Korean harp, a week before coming to the United States because she wanted to be able to show Americans what a Korean musical instrument is like. She played the 12-stringed instrument in the International Festival last year.
"Miss Ha will take her comprehensive exam July 23, and will leave 5 days later for Scranton, Pa., where she will visit friends of her father. She will return to Iowa City Aug. 4 for the University Commencement Aug. 5. She will leave immediately afterwards for San Francisco, where she will begin a two-week tour of the West Coast. She will leave for Seoul Aug. 20.
In summing up her experiences

World of Music

Aija Ha is a study in concentration as she plays a tune by Claude Debussy, one of her favorite composers. A graduate student in music, Miss Ha completed her requirements for the Master's thesis in a piano recital June 28. She gave her first recital Nov. 3.

Iowa Delegates Favor Barry; Alternates Lean To Scranton

A Daily Iowan poll of the Iowa delegates and alternates to the Republican National Convention in San Francisco, indicates Sen. Barry Goldwater leading among the delegates and Gov. William Scranton holding a slight edge among the alternates.
The survey asked these questions: To which candidate are you leaning or committed? Should the man you favor win the Presidential nomination, whom would you prefer to see for the Vice-Presidential nomination?
Goldwater backers were asked who they would favor for the Presidential nomination if the Senator does not win the nomination; Scranton supporters were asked who they would favor if the governor does not win.
Seven of 24 delegates and 9 of 24 alternates responded to the poll. The results:

Dele.	Alter.
Goldwater committed	2
Scranton committed	2
Uncommitted	4

Delegate Oscar J. Eisenbast, a Cedar Rapids lawyer, said, "At the present time I am still uncommitted and will not make up my mind until I get to San Francisco. I am very much interested in the platform and the reaction of the candidates thereto."
"Delegate John Burrows of Davenport said, "I have no second choice" for the Presidential nomination. Burrows is committed to Sen. Goldwater.
Two delegates favored William Miller, GOP chairman, for the Vice-Presidential nomination. He was the only one mentioned. No delegate indicated a second choice for the presidential nomination.
Three alternates favored Miller for the Vice-Presidential nomination. Three favored Gov. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, two favored Scranton and one favored Goldwater.
Dr. Milton Eisenhower, Richard Nixon, Scranton, Goldwater, Gov. George Romney, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Maine) were mentioned by alternates as possible presidential choices if their favorite candidate does not get the nod.

In the oratory contest, Tapscoft placed first and Shives second. Maryanne Hull, Oskaloosa, and Sandy Nickel, Keokuk, tied for third place.
In extemporaneous speaking, Craig Cutbirth, Davenport, placed first; William Keetel, Iowa City, second; and Patrick Zika, Ottumwa, third.
Robert Hobbins and Steven Tapscoft, both of West Des Moines, won first place in the debating contest. Runners-up were Arthur Smith, Des Moines, and Linda Knott, Iowa City. The teams debated "Nuclear Weapons Should be Controlled by An International Organization."
First place winners in each division received plaques or trophies. All finalists received certificates of merit.

Head Counselor At Hillcrest Dies

The head counselor at Hillcrest Dormitory, Paul Christianson, L3, died at his home in Ackley Thursday.
Christianson, 25, came to SUU in 1961, and he represented South Quad in Student Senate that year. During the 1962-63 school year he was a house counselor at Hillcrest.
Last year he was promoted to head counselor, a post he would have held for the coming school year.
Christianson had been under treatment at University Hospitals since December, 1963, but had continued his classes and dormitory job.

Leaves Sunbathing— Rights Worker Moore Finds Life a Jail of Restrictions

LAUREL, Miss. (AP) — Marcia Moore knew when she traded sunbathing and home for a summer of civil rights work in Mississippi that she might be in for trouble.
"I came last Sunday, when she was arrested on a vagrancy charge because, a companion said, she did not have her purse with her when questioned by police.
"MARCIA escaped all but one night in jail, because her conviction on the vagrancy charge the day after she was arrested brought a ten-day suspended sentence.
"But her work in the South puts her in a different kind of jail — a figurative one, with bars made of restrictions on what she wears and says, where she goes and with whom she may associate — or who will associate with her.
She is part of a battery of students working in the South this summer through the Council of Federated Organizations. Her arrest came in what she describes as a "moderate" Southern town.
"I was fairly aware that this might happen," she said in a telephone interview. "I had two friends who worked last summer in Albany, Ga., and the same thing happened to them. When it did happen to me, I was pretty sure they just wanted to question me."
SHE SAYS SHE plans to appeal her sentence Monday, the same day she starts to teach in a "freedom school" for Negro teenagers. The school, she said, is designed to make Negro young people "more politically aware, so they will ask questions about the system in Mississippi and try to improve it, and to make them want to go to college."

"Marcia dresses conservatively. At night, she sticks pretty close to the three-bedroom home of the Arthur Spinks family, in the Negro section of town, where she stays. Even in the daytime, she rarely travels alone.
"She patronizes few of Laurels' segregated facilities because, "If I can't go there with my friends, I don't want to go there and give them my money."
"LIKE MANY of her co-workers, Miss Moore devotes her efforts to registering Negro voters. Of some 450,000 Negroes eligible to vote in Mississippi, she said, only 20,000 are registered.
She and other workers provide Negroes with sample registration forms for study and practice, and "help build up their courage" to go down to the county registrar's office.
"Would-be Negro voters have been discouraged in the past, she said, by hostile clerks like the one who disqualified a prospective Negro for underlining the "Mr." on the registration form, instead of circling it.
"Marcia concedes that she and her fellow workers "probably have brought conflict to the surface" this summer. But she adds, "I feel the problems that have been created are going to be constructive" in solving civil rights problems.

City Family Open Home To Travelers

An Iowa City couple opened its home Wednesday night to a family who had been traveling through Iowa until they were involved in an automobile accident on Highway 6 one mile west of Tiffin.
"Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sullivan, 1628 Wilson St., arrived on the scene of the accident soon after the car driven by Joseph P. Ford, of Summers Point, N.J., struck another car in the rear which had stopped for a westbound truck which was turning left.
"The Ford car, a 1964 station wagon, was badly damaged in the accident, as was the car Ford hit, also a station wagon. Five members of the Ford family required hospitalization for lacerations and bruises.
"The Sullivans stopped at the accident and later visited the Ford family at University Hospitals. At that time Sullivan invited the Ford family to spend the night at the Sullivan home.
"When the six-member Ford family arrived at the Sullivan home after they were released from the hospital late Wednesday evening, neighbors were tapped for extra bedding and mattresses to provide sleeping quarters.
"The Ford family is now in Cedar Rapids waiting for their car to be fixed. They were traveling to a naval base in California to which Ford had been recently assigned.

Mathematics Specialist Named Director of Computer Center

Prof. Gerard P. Weeg and a new IBM machine have arrived at SUU. Both will be important to the operation of the University Computer Center.
"Prof. Weeg, whose specialty is computer-oriented mathematics and automation theory, is the new Computer Center director. He succeeds Prof. John P. Dolch, who is now director of research in the Computer Center.
"The machine is an IBM disk storage device, which gives the Computer Center a high program capability to match the data-processing power of the recently installed IBM 7040 computer. This device will virtually eliminate the relatively slow tape storage of data which must be put into the computer or taken out as quickly as possible when changing from one program to another.
"Prof. Weeg served as a visiting professor at Iowa State University, Ames, the past year. He was also a mathematics instructor at St. Ambrose College, Davenport, for two years and a mathematician with Remington Rand in St. Paul, Minn. From 1958 to 1963 Prof. Weeg was a member of the Michigan State University faculty.
"He received the Ph.D. degree at ISU in 1955.
"Prof. Weeg also holds an appointment as professor of mathematics at SUU. He has written 10 technical articles and one book, "Introduction to Numerical Analysis," to be published in 1965.
"PROFESSOR WEEG described the disk-storage device as similar to an automatic record changer. There are 40 plastic "records" on the machine, with 250 magnetic tracks on each side. A total of 56 million characters, or magnetic data blips, can be put onto the 40 disks.

"Disk storage will enable the Computer Center to serve many more uses, including those whose programs are relatively small and simple. Programs are the step by step series of instructions given to the computer.
"An unusual application of the disk storage machine may come later this year when the Injun Explorer satellite from SUU's Physics Department is launched. SUU, as a main data reception point, will use the computer to find the correct program to decode and interpret radio signals.
"Tentative plans call for a direct link between the satellite and the Computer Center whenever the satellite passes within range of the Iowa City station.

James Dixon To Conduct Band in Sunday Concert

James Dixon will conduct the Iowa City Community Band in its third concert of the season Sunday at 4 p.m. in College Hill Park. Dixon, conductor of the SUU Symphony Orchestra and a member of the faculty of the Department of Music, is a former associate conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra and a one-time protégé of the late Dimitri Mitropoulos.
His experience with bands, however, came primarily from his two years as director of bands at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston. Sunday's program will place a heavy emphasis on traditional band music with three Sousa marches included. In addition, there will be representative works by Ottorino Respighi and George Gershwin.
Sunday's concert by the Community Band will be given at the customary site: College Hill Park between Dodge and Johnson, Washington and College streets.
Support for the summer series of Concerts-in-the-Park is derived from the Performance Trust Fund of the recording industries under authorization from Local 450 of the American Federation of Musicians. Individual contributions, however, continue to be received and have helped to assure a full slate of concerts, enlargement of the library and occasional purchase of equipment.
Members of the band's Board of Directors are in College Hill Park for each presentation and will receive donations following any of the remaining concerts.
The Sunday afternoon program follows:
March: "Washington Post" Sousa
Five Folk Songs Elie Siegmeister
March: "Fairest of the Fair" Sousa
Overture to "Die Fledermaus" Strauss
The Appian Way from
"The Pines of Rome" Respighi
Highlights from "Porgy and Bess" Gershwin
March: "Stars and Stripes Forever" Sousa

Phils Lose to Cincinnati, 5-1; Lead over Giants Cut to 1/2

Robinson Hits 2-Run Homer To Pace Win

PHILADELPHIA — Frank Robinson hit a two-run homer and Deron Johnson drove in two runs with a homer and double, powering the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-1 victory over the National League leading Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

FRANK ROBINSON Paces Victory

The loss snapped the Phillies, five-game winning streak and trimmed their lead to one-half game over the San Francisco Giants, who defeated Chicago 10-3.

Johnson doubled home the first Cincinnati run in the second, scoring Robinson, who had walked. But the Phillies tied it in their half when Richie Allen walked and came around on singles by Roy Sievers and Ruben Amaro.

The Reds broke out ahead in the third in singles by Pete Rose and Tom Harper plus Vada Pinson's double play grounder before Johnson and Robinson supplied the clinchers.

CLEVELAND — Rookie Bob Chance rifled two homers, knocking in five runs, and lefthander Jack Kralick fired a six-hitter Friday night, giving the Cleveland Indians an 8-0 victory over the American League-leading Baltimore Orioles.

The victory, Kralick's ninth against four losses, broke a five-game Cleveland losing streak. Chance put the Indians in front in the first, whacking a Steve Barber pitch over the fence in left center. It brought in Dick Howser, who had singled.

In the third Chance poked a three-run job to the same place off Barber. Scoring in front of Chance were Howser, who had beat out a bunt, and Al Smith, who had gotten a checked-swing single.

MOLINAS TERM — NEW YORK — Jack Molinas, former college and professional basketball star, gave himself up Friday and started serving a 10- to 15-year term in the basketball fix scandals.

Venturi Forges into Lead In Round Robin Tourney

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. — National Open champion Ken Venturi fired a third round 68 and shot nine points in front Friday in the Wykagyl Round Robin golf tournament which wound up in a wild controversy.

There were violent complaints from a big portion of the 16-man field when one of the foursmen agreed to concede all putts on a hole when the pin was placed in a difficult position.

In the bizarre plus and minus tournament in which players compete head-to-head in match play foursomes, Venturi boosted his point total to plus 28, nine better than Fred Hawkins, second with plus 19.

Wysong birdied three of the last four holes at the par 35-35-70 Charters Country Club course to finish five strokes up on Jerry Steelsmith of Glendale, Calif., who had shared the first day lead with him.

The victory was worth $2,000. Palmer had a 67 Friday which tied him at 140 with Frank Boynton of Rochester, N.Y.

Houghton Pulls Major Upset In Net Meet

Steve Houghton of Iowa City pulled a major upset in the junior boys' singles division of the Iowa Clayed Tennis Tournament, being played on the SUU courts, here Friday, defeating state high school champion Mike Sprenglemeyer of Dubuque, 12-8, in the quarterfinals.

Houghton was seeded No. 1 in the boys' 16-and-under division but was unseeded in the older class. Houghton defeated Dale Le Prosvorn of Clinton 6-3, 1-6, 6-2, in the semifinal round late Friday. His opponent in the finals will be Steve Strauss, who defeated Richard Stokstad of Cedar Falls, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2, in the semifinals.

In the girls' 18 singles, Mona Schallau of Iowa City advanced to the finals by defeating Charlene Mixdorf of Waterloo, 8-6, 6-1. In the other quarterfinal test, Mary Mrziak defeated Judy Nolting, 6-4, 6-3. Both are of Waterloo.

In the quarterfinals of the girls' 16, Beth Stock of Grandy Center defeated Sharon Kennert of Dubuque, 12-2 and Sarah Sutton of Dubuque defeated Lynn Lagen of Dubuque, 12-4.

In the semifinals, Debbie Nolting of Waterloo defeated Miss Stock, 5-7, 6-2, 7-5. Miss Sutton defeated Teresa McNamara also of Dubuque, 12-9, to gain the finals.

In the first round of the men's singles, the six top-seeded players advanced through the first round, five of them as the result of byes. In the only match involving a seeded player, Danny Ellerston of Iowa City (No. 4), defeated Richard Stokstad of Cedar Falls, 12-1.

Seeded players who advanced were Bill Ball of Waterloo; Roy and Mike Sprenglemeyer of Dubuque; Arden Stokstad of Cedar Falls; and Rich Strauss of Iowa City.

GRID CARDS MOVE? — ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League are expected to announce next week that they will move to Atlanta, Sports Editor Bob Broeg of the Post-Dispatch reported Friday.

Lema Takes British Open By 5 Strokes

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland — Champagne Tony Lema, who borrowed Arnold Palmer's putter and hired his caddy, staved off a rousing challenge from Jack Nicklaus Friday and won the British Open Golf Championship by five strokes.

Lema, who said he "got down on my knees last night and asked the good Lord to give me this one," finished with a 72-hole total of 279, only one stroke off the St. Andrews record.

The two Americans wrecked the hallowed Old Course on a day when Nicklaus put it right up to Lema with fantastic scores, and Lema was equal to the task.

Nicklaus fired a course record-equaling 66 in the morning and added a four-under-par 68 in the afternoon, for 284. Never had in the Old Course been treated like that, and at one point Lema had only a one stroke lead.

Lema, a slender 30-year-old pro from San Leandro, Calif., answered with a 68 and a cool 70.

Roberto De Vicenzo of Argentina put together a 67, including six threes, in the final round for 285—one back of Nicklaus.

That gave De Vicenzo third place. Sanders, who said he had driven the ball as well as he had in his life, finally got his putter going and had a 68 on the final round for 293, 14 strokes behind Lema.

Rodgers, who lost this title in a playoff to New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles last year, finished 74-71 for 298 and Ford, former PGA and Masters winner, had 76-72 for 299.

Lema's 279 matched the third lowest score in British Open history. Arnold Palmer won it at Troon in 1962 with 276, and Kel Nagle beat out Palmer by one stroke here in 1960 with a 278.

The title was worth 1,500 pounds, or $4,200, to Lema, and probably 100 times that much in fringe benefits.

Giants Power 5 Home Runs To Blast Cubs

CHICAGO — Five homers, including Willie Mays' 26th and 27th, in a 19-hit attack swept Juan Marichal to his 12th verdict and the rampaging San Francisco Giants to a 10-3 trimming of the Chicago Cubs Friday.

The Giant assault featured terrific batting by Jesus Alou, who slammed a home run and five singles in six trips, and Orlando Cepeda, who homered, tripled, and singled in four official trips.

Mays, who has hit four homers in three straight Giant victories over the Cubs, blasted a two-run shot in the first to start the carnage in the 14-mile event.

Opposing Close By will be Count Charles, Real Good Deal, Royal Eiffel, Warrior Chief, Pelegrin, Extra Swell, Performing Art and Just Prince.

Bill Shoemaker will ride Close By, who shares the high weight of 123 pounds with Real Good Deal and Count Charles.

HOLLYWOOD DERBY — INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Rex Ellsworth's promising colt Close By seeks his third straight stakes victory at Hollywood Park today in the $100,000-added Hollywood Derby.
