Barry Laces Accusations Into Speech

Candidate Assails Federal Growth As 'Cancerous'

PRESCOTT, Ariz. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater launched his Republican presidential campaign Thursday with gibes at President Johnson and a promise to abolish the draft while keeping the peace. A crowd that packed the tree-shaded Yavapai County courthouse plaza cheered his 45-minute speech again and again.

Goldwater laced it with slaps at the President, at the Democratic vice-presidential nominee, Hubert H. Humphrey and at U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson.

Goldwater keyed his bid for the White House from the same platform on which he launched his 1962 and 1963 campaigns for the Senate — the courthouse steps in his family's Arizona home town.

He vowed as president to stop the "cancerous growth of the Federal Government" and strive for "a thriving and compassionate economy."

He accused the President of using the draft for "social and political aims." And he challenged Johnson to go to work "to restore proper respect for law and order in this land — and not just prior to election day."

Sheriff Al Ayars estimated the turnout at 4,000 to 6,000. That fell short of the crowd Prescott authorities had expected in advance.

Goldwater accused Stevenson of encouraging "even more abuse of the law" in a speech at Colby College earlier this year.

He quoted Stevenson as saying, "Even a jail sentence is no longer a dishonor but a proud achievement in the struggle for civil and human rights."

He said the two-time Democratic presidential nominee "should know better."

"If he believes that maybe we ought to replace him with — oh, Jimmy Hoffa or someone like that," Goldwater said of the Stevenson speech.

Goldwater shared the kickoff platform with the GOP vice-presidential nominee, William E. Miller, GOP National Chairman Dean Burch and Arizona party leaders.

Goldwater said he had been told he and Miller made up the weakest team Republicans could put together.

"Many people in the East think this is the end of things," he said. But he quoted an account that said Abraham Lincoln was the weakest candidate the party could have picked in 1860 — and that the Eastern wing did not like the choice.

The crowd hooted, then cheered, when he read on to a passage calling Stephen A. Douglas a master politician of the broad center.

"My opponent occupies the broad left," he said, "and he's working like the devil to get back in the center."

Goldwater said he doesn't pretend to be another Lincoln — but there's sure a similarity between 1860 and 1964. And like Lincoln," he said, "Bill Miller and I are going to win."

Miller, leading off, took aim on Johnson's handling of the war in South Viet Nam.

"I tell you that just like Korea this war in South Viet Nam will never, never be solved until we have a Republican in the White House," Miller declared.

He called Goldwater a "giant of a man" and forecast a Republican victory in November.

Goldwater said Johnson "late in this election year" has turned his attention to the problems of the unemployed. Johnson, he said, has created "an artificial prosperity, a prosperity resting on shaky, artificial props that spell serious trouble in the future of our economy."

Goldwater said Miller doesn't believe as "the vice-presidents of the Americans for Democratic Action believe" that the Constitution is outmoded. That was a reference to Sen. Humphrey, the Democratic nominee for vice president.

Goldwater said Miller is "dedicated."

Kennedy Quits LBJ Cabinet For Campaign

Atty. Gen. Receives Democrats Blessings In Senate Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy resigned from the nation's chief law enforcer — Thursday to seek a new political career as lawmaker in the Senate.

Johnson said his regret was tempered by satisfaction that Kennedy intended to stay in government service. "You will soon be back in Washington where I can again call upon your judgment and counsel," he said.

In resigning the role given him three and one-half years ago by his brother, the late President John F. Kennedy, the 38-year-old attorney general the first to quit of the Kennedy Cabinet inherited by Johnson.

He said in his letter to Johnson that it would not be "compatible" to continue as attorney general while campaigning for the Senate seat from New York.

Kennedy, who votes in Massachusetts and lives in Virginia, faces a stiff campaign as the Democratic candidate against incumbent Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, renominated by the Republicans.

At an impromptu news conference in the White House driveway after he had seen the President, Kennedy said his resignation was effective at the close of business Thursday.

Newsmen asked about reports that Kennedy wanted the Senate seat as a possible stepping stone to the presidency. Kennedy replied: "I think there's somebody there."

Then he said that his objective was to be elected senator — and to do a good job in that office.

Kennedy also was asked if he would campaign for Johnson outside of New York State. He said, "No, I don't think that that's what's needed."

The President understands, Kennedy said, that he — Kennedy — would have his hands full trying to win in New York. Kennedy said he and Johnson would campaign side by side in that state.

A former law professor, Nicholas deB. Katzenbach, 42, will be acting attorney general. He was a deputy attorney general, strongly recommended by Kennedy.

Johnson Signs Conservation Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, describing himself as a lover of "the great American outdoors," signed two major bills Thursday which he said open "another historic era" in conservation of this country's wildlife and natural resources.

Johnson took the opportunity to praise Congress — whose good he has been courting — for demonstrating what he called forward-looking leadership.

Signed into law at a White House rose garden ceremony were bills: ● Creating a national wilderness preservation system of 9.2 million acres of federal forest land, most of it in the West.

● Authorizing a $2-billion fund to buy land and water recreation areas, mainly in the East, over 10 years.

They are, Johnson declared, "some of the most far-reaching conservation measures that a far sighted nation has ever coped with."

Khrushchev Will Visit W. Germany

BONN, Germany (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev has decided to make an unprecedented visit to Bonn for a meeting with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, the government said Thursday.

No dates have been set for the visit but it is expected to take place after the U.S. Presidential election.

Officials said that Khrushchev and Erhard are going to discuss all outstanding political problems, including Berlin and the division of Germany. These are the sorest points between the two World War II enemies.

The West German Foreign Ministry warned: "Nobody expects a basic change in German-Soviet relations from the visit."

ITS STATEMENT said West Germany can show a gain by convincing Khrushchev that the people here desire peace but are determined to bring about German reunification.

The basic aim of Bonn policy is to get back East Germany, now a separate Communist state, and re-establish the national capital in Berlin. The Soviet Union has steadfastly refused to allow any change.

Bonn also is deeply interested in increasing trade with the Communist bloc and gaining back some of its old influence in Eastern Europe.

Erhard's government promised that the United States and other Western allies will be kept informed on its dealings with Khrushchev. After World War I, Germany made a separate agreement with the Soviet Union at Rapallo.

Fears linger that something like this might happen again.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON said earlier this year he had nothing against an Erhard-Khrushchev meeting.

There has been only one previous confrontation between the heads of government of West Germany and the Soviet Union. That was in 1955, when Chancellor Konrad Adenauer went to Moscow. He negotiated the return of German prisoners of war and establishment of diplomatic relations between the two nations.

Cancer Research Hopes A Vaccine Can Halt Virus

MAYWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Government and industrial cancer researchers, voicing new confidence of prospects of a major breakthrough in pinpointing the cause of leukemia, reported Thursday they have already begun to lay the groundwork for developing a possible vaccine against the disease.

At the same time they disclosed developments of a vaccine against leukemia in mice which they said could provide the first practical model for the production of a human vaccine if, as is now considered possible, current research leads to the development of a human vaccine.

One of the scientists, Dr. W. Ray Bryan of the National Cancer Institute, asserted there is growing evidence that at least some human leukemia and related diseases are caused by viruses.

And he declared that government and industry scientists have launched a new program, using mouse leukemia viruses, with this objective: to develop mass-production methods for large quantities of the mouse virus.

along with those who are.

THE HEALTH provisions include hospitalization, nursing home care, out-patient diagnostic services and home health visits. The health amendment passed the Senate by a 49-44 vote Wednesday, the first time such a plan had been approved by either branch of Congress.

Some 20 million persons now receiving Social Security payments — retirement, survivor and disability checks — would receive increases under the bill.

The basic increase in individual retirement benefits would be $7 a month, setting a new monthly scale of $47 to $134.

According to House rules there are several ways the bill might be handled there, but it is generally expected it eventually will go to a Senate-House conference to work out some kind of compromise.

The bill is expected to reach the House on Tuesday and a request is to be made Wednesday to send it to conference.

Commission Proposes Housing Law Booklet

John Huntley, assistant professor of English, will be asked by the Iowa City Human Relations Commission to prepare a handbook for local landlords explaining their rights and obligations under the fair housing ordinance passed here recently.

The commission, at its meeting Thursday night, decided to approach Huntley after a letter from him was read in which he suggested a program for educating landlords on all the provisions of the housing ordinance.

In his letter, Huntley, who made no mention of handbook as such, said he thought the educational program could be carried out by a series of open town meetings or by dramatizations of hypothetical landlord-prospective tenant situations.

However, after a lengthy discussion of the letter the commission members agreed that a handbook would be the best means of explaining the ordinance to the landlords.

Father L. D. Soens, commission chairman, then said he would contact Huntley as soon as possible about having one compiled.

IN ANOTHER action related to SUU, the seven-member commission agreed to seek to place human relations brochures in the Student Affairs and Married Students Housing offices.

THE COMMISSION first discussed having the literature passed out during registration but one of the members recalled what he used to do with registration handouts and the idea was rejected.

The commission also discussed setting up a procedure for accepting complaints from persons alleging discrimination but decided to wait until a complaint had actually been received before making a move.

At the suggestion of commission member Mrs. Anthony Costantino it was decided to make available a simplified statement of complaint procedures in order to avoid any confusion which might arise from a reading of the ordinance itself.

MRS. COSTANTINO was appointed to write this simplified statement. It is to be available at the Iowa City Civic Center and will contain the names and phone numbers of the commission members.

Commission member Mrs. Helen Lemme reported that she had received replies from "a majority" of the 600 local merchants contacted in connection with the Equal Opportunities Project but that very few businesses have yet displayed the project stickers.

The purpose of the project is to get merchants to avow that they practice no discrimination in the hiring of employees or the serving of customers.

SOENS ALSO expressed regret over the small number of stickers being displayed. "I don't think I've seen more than a handful," he said.

Commission member Simeon Strauss said it seemed to him "that a good retail merchant would be missing a bet if he didn't display the sticker, if he wants business from every ethnic group."

Strauss, Mrs. Lemme and commission members Richard Sidwell and Mrs. John Kenney will meet Tuesday at Mrs. Lemme's home to analyze the replies to the equal opportunities questionnaires.

whether the measure will be enacted into law this session.

The bill, as passed by the Senate, would increase Social Security benefits by about $3 billion, split about evenly between health care and bigger cash benefits. It would boost taxes for the system by about $3.5 billion to about $20 billion a year in 1965.

The health benefits in the bill would cover about 18 million persons over 65. Persons not under Social Security would be eligible

NEW YORK (AP) — Juan Marichal, making only his second start since July 29, pitched a four-hitter, leading San Francisco to a 4-0 triumph over the New York Mets Wednesday night.

Marichal, who had been bothered by a back ailment, struck out nine and didn't walk a batter in posting his 11th victory against six defeats.

Marichal figured in the Giants' first run in the third inning. Jose Pagan led off the inning with a single, raced to third on Marichal's single and scored on a sacrifice fly by Matty Alou.

Closing the nuclear turtle gap

GREAT ADVANCES in technology are often the result of the union of hitherto unconnected ideas. An opportunity of this sort appears to present itself in a recent proposal by Stanley W. Burriss of Lockheed, who has been general manager of the Polaris missile program since its beginnings in 1957.

At a meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronauts, Burriss suggested that we should not be satisfied with pointing megaton explosives at the Russians from nuclear-powered submarines.

Burriss wants to go all the way down to the ocean floor, where he envisions a crawling submarine — he likens it to a turtle — which will be better protected against nuclear depth charges.

With a few hundred such devices patrolling the ocean bottom, the free world will be secure — at least until the Russians come crawling alongside.

But the Russians will almost certainly close the turtle gap, and for that reason, the bottom crawler must be regarded as no more than a makeshift. We must prepare for combat, not merely in Gray's dark unfathomed caves of ocean (which bear the gem of purest ray serene) but in regions far below.

Nor is this the visionary scheme which it appears to be at first blush. Actually, the means to burrow beneath the bottom of the sea are practically at hand.

Everybody has heard of Project Mohole, the goal of which is to drill into the earth's interior to learn more of the structure and origin of our planet.

Well, now. Put yourself in the place of a typical congressman, ever watchful that the taxpayer should get his money's worth. Naturally this guardian of the public treasury asks: What's all this about the age and origin of this here planet, which is only partly ours?

The Russians, the Cubans, the Chinese — these are the jokers we should be worrying about!

The conclusion is obvious — Mohole must be given a military objective. And since Mr. Burriss is already getting us down to the bottom of the ocean, the rest should be easy.

Link up the present silly-scheme Mohole with the Polaris concept, and you have a real breakthrough.

A little imagination and a few billion dollars could produce a completely new realm for warfare. With nuclear weapons in outer and inner space, in the atmosphere, on, in and beneath the ocean, we can at least convince those Reds that we really mean business.

The proper response

MEAT IMPORTS aren't the only ones causing problems to American businessmen.

The steel industry know all about the press of foreign competition. This was acknowledged in a report, just released, that charted progress of steel production in 1963.

John P. Roche, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, noted that steel import production of 109.3 million tons exceeded the levels of each of the three preceding years by about 10 per cent.

It surpassed 100 million tons for the first time since 1957 and barring an auto strike, promises to reach 120 million tons in 1964.

This is an impressive gain.

It was offset somewhat, Roche noted, by the 5.5 million tons of steel mill products shipped into the United States from foreign plants. This represented an increase of one-third over 1962.

At the same time, U.S. mills exported 2.2 million tons — an increase of 8 per cent — but still only half the annual export volume of the 1955-57 period.

What is the steel industry's reaction?

"The industry can look back at its 1963 performance with some degree of satisfaction, but with no complacency," said Roche.

He urged continuing technological advances to counter-act foreign gains, but not a word about asking Congress to cut back imports.

This kind of a response should be heard more often in a nation dedicated to "build a better mousetrap" on private initiative.

Mrs. Luce's blackmail backfires in N.Y.

By DORIS FLEESON

NEW YORK — Big, rich New York has watched its politics sink into lassitude for more than a decade. Now the inevitable has happened. The plum is ripe for picking, and in both parties ambitious politicians are reaching greedily for it. The established orders are on the defensive, required to justify themselves and offer fresh hopes, not fears.

FLEESON

Republicans are dealing with the threat of a Goldwater party which in tone and content differs vastly from the ideas of the men who began taking the state away from the Democrats during the '40s. Weary of defeats and deficits Democrats are holding out their arms to Robert Kennedy of Massachusetts and offering themselves as an oblation to victory.

Republicans held the first state convention and their present leaders showed courage and viability.

NEW YORK, for the short run at least, remains a bastion of moderate Republicanism. Its elected spokesmen man the guns; its lines into the financial, business and intellectual communities of the state are intact. It is still besieged. From every county come reports that Goldwater Republicans are starting to practice the infiltration tactics which the senator's grey eminence, Stephen Shadegg, recommends in his new book on how to win campaigns.

But they have not pierced the inner walls and have not wrung concessions from candidates or the party organization. Sen. Kenneth Keating will run as an independent Republican with the blessing of the organization, and Goldwater electors will appear on the Republican ballot only.

IN THE END, TOO, the Goldwater managers were forced to recognize that the price of Clare Boothe Luce's power play in the state was too high. Mrs. Luce withdrew her candidacy for the Conservative party nomination for senator just before the convention met.

She had remained unmoved by press descriptions of its as political blackmail designed to force Keating support of the Goldwater-Miller ticket.

Sleeping sickness difficult to control

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In view of confirmed outbreaks of encephalitis in Texas and Florida, and the appearance of encephalitis-like illness in Illinois and Arizona, the American Medical Association is releasing the following background information. It has been updated to include the latest available medical information on disease outbreaks.)

CHICAGO — Viral encephalitis, already posing an epidemic threat in Houston, Tex., may also stage late-summer outbreaks elsewhere in the nation, public health officials have warned.

Confirmed cases of the disease — commonly known as sleeping sickness or brain fever — have been reported in Florida as well as Texas; and suspected cases have been found in Illinois and Arizona.

In addition, the virus has been discovered in certain Florida mosquitoes and horses. The importance of this is that the disease is often spread from animal to man by insect bites and stings.

IN FACT, insect-borne encephalitis (not to be confused with encephalitis associated with infectious diseases, such as mumps and measles) is strictly speaking a disease of birds and small mammals rather than man, according to Raymond L. White, M.D., director of Environmental Medicine and Medical Services for the American Medical Association.

"Its transmission to man is, in a sense, an accident," he said. The insects known to transport viral encephalitis generally disdain humans as hosts. But in their short-sighted world they mistake identities and man sometimes gets stung.

Accident or not, encephalitis is serious. The reaction is often severe and the percentage of fatalities among those stricken can range from two to 75 per cent, depending upon which type of encephalitis virus is the infectious agent.

IN ADDITION, some victims of encephalitis are left paralyzed, encephalitic or mentally affected.

ENCEPHALITIS is actually a family of diseases that attacks the central nervous system, explained Dr. White. It is characterized by its sudden onset, high fever, headache and dizziness. Within a day or two drowsiness or stupor overcomes the victim and he often develops a stiff neck, becomes mentally confused and has speech difficulties. In severe cases convulsions and coma may develop. There is no specific treatment.

Insect-borne encephalitis can be found in one form or another in many sections of the world. Three types are known in the United States — Western equine, Eastern equine and St. Louis.

The St. Louis type, identified with the Texas outbreak, gets its name from the epidemic it spread in and around that city in 1933 and again in 1937.

The disease ranges through the lower Ohio Valley, all the states west of the Mississippi, as well as Florida. It is much more likely to attack older people and the mortality rate increases steadily with age.

Those over 40 and persons with high blood pressure and arteriosclerosis appear to be particularly endangered by the disease.

WESTERN EQUINE, as the name implies, was first thought to be spread by horses. But it later developed that horses, like men, are accidental victims.

This form of encephalitis is most prevalent in the Western two-thirds of the nation, but has appeared in several Eastern states as well.

It attacks individuals in all age groups, and although considered the mildest form of infectious encephalitis in the United States, it kills about one victim in ten. Children less than one year old are frequently left impaired or retarded by the disease.

Eastern equine, at one time mistakenly blamed on horses, predominates among children. One study showed that about two-thirds of its victims are under two. It is by far the most serious of the three types and is often fatal.

Among young survivors the after effects are often severe. Fortunately, the disease is rather infrequent and seems to be restricted to certain areas along the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts. The highest number of outbreaks is usually in September.

THE VIRUSES of encephalitis, once introduced into the body, work their havoc on the spinal cord and brain. They disrupt or destroy nerve cells and frequently damage small blood vessels supplying the brain.

The amount of damage inflicted depends to a large extent upon the type of virus, age and certain physical factors. Dr. Albert B. Sabin, who developed a vaccine against one type of the disease for our troops serving in the Far East, said susceptibility to encephalitis may have something to do with heredity — whether or not the virus finds an inherent chemical combination that helps it multiply within a person's body. It is also possible, he said, that susceptibility may be greater because of a weakness or the presence of other disease germs in a particular person's nervous system.

There is much about encephalitis that is still unknown, although it has been getting attention from medical researchers since about 1930. For instance, while mosquitoes get most of the blame for spreading the disease, it may well be that other insects are also implicated — mites, lice, ticks, etc.

In the 1933 St. Louis epidemic chickens were found to be heavily infested with the virus. This had led to demonstrations that chicken mites could well have been responsible for helping spread the infection. Laboratory experiments have shown that dog ticks can carry the disease also, but no parallel has been found in nature.

JUST AS IMPORTANT as determining what insects can transport encephalitis is finding the disease reservoir — the place where the insect picks up the virus. Birds, both wild and domestic, may be the chief source. The virus has been discovered in species ranging from song sparrows to turkeys.

It is significant that the dozen or so breeds of mosquitoes known to be able to transmit encephalitis like to feed on this feathered population. Also, the fact that encephalitis fails to produce any severe symptoms among birds indicates that they and the virus may have become adaptable to each other.

Birds may not be the only natural reservoir, however. Evidence of the virus has also been found in domestic farm animals, rodents and other forms of wild life. It's even possible that sometimes the disease may be directly transferred from one human to another by the mosquito, as is the case in malaria.

This mode of transmission is probably rare, if it actually does

Glamorous opera star

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures

NEW YORK — When Anna Moffo, with her Rockette-type figure and photographer's-model face, appears on the operatic stage, writers contrast her glamor to the stereotypical soprano who shakes the stage and shatters the chandelier, and men who don't even like opera pay attention.

Miss Moffo is flattered, she says, but she doesn't consider pulchritude a great advantage — or any advantage at all — for an operatic career.

"I think it is a handicap, not weighing 300 pounds. People are much more sympathetic to someone unattractive if she has a nice voice.

"I DON'T THINK I'm as pretty as some people seem to think. But I have to go out and prove to people I'm there to sing and not just walk by.

"I like to make records. Then I'm judged on just the voice." Appraising her voice, the singer says it is a very high soprano and it has become heavier. "I don't think it is yet at its peak, judging from how much it changes each year. I hear by first records — they are good and people like them, but they are nothing like I think I'm doing now."

Miss Moffo, born in Philadelphia less than 30 years ago, is one of the many American singers who first was acclaimed in Europe.

After she was graduated from Curtis Institute of Music, she went to Europe for further study on a Fulbright grant. She made her debut — live and televised — in Milan, in 1956, in "Madama Butterfly."

"I HAD a very curious beginning," she says. "I never had the opportunity of encephalitis. My debut was on TV and everybody knew who I was after that. I would take whatever came along, within reason."

Now she appears at the greatest opera houses of the world, gives short concert tours built around the time she is in a country for operatic appearance, makes a great many records and this summer sang in Hollywood, Philadelphia, Chicago and Milwaukee before taking a month's vacation.

"It has become the custom now," she says, "for every theater to book more and more ahead. I do as much of the booking as I can myself and I've gotten a bit choosy in my old age."

Miss Moffo also gets offers for other than operatic roles. She has turned down all Broadway parts so far but has made four movies in Italy, where she lives with her husband, director Mario Lanfranchi.

SHE HAS a Saturday night hour and a half show on Italian television. "The Anna Moffo Show" — isn't that a jazzy title? she laughs. "But actually it is. Show is a foreign word."

"It's kind of like 'The Dinah Shore Show.' I do things with guests and by myself. There's a big operatic scene every week. And we just started a spot for spirituals every week. American groups have been coming over and the Italians just love these songs."

"And we condense things like 'West Side Story' and 'The Merry Widow' into half an hour or 15 minutes. We did 'Porgy and Bess.' I did everything — I went from carding to funerals to dope addiction in 20 minutes. It all hung together musically very well."

She records eight or 10 television shows at once, Miss Moffo says, then files off to sing more opera.

SHE DOESN'T have a favorite opera, but does prefer the Italian repertoire. She likes to sing opera in the language in which it was written. And she likes to know the language in which she sings.

Miss Moffo learned Italian from her parents and started studying French in high school. About French opera she says, "Many were written for the Opera Comique, with spoken dialogue, and require practically perfect French."

"The right pronunciation is important; it brings the right color to the word. You can sing any language phonetically but it will always miss that certain inflection. That is why I think really good French interpreters are hard to find."

Miss Moffo says she has always been a lucky person but she made up for it last February while in London for "Rigoletto" at the Royal Opera House. After two weeks of fog, a bad cold and one mishap after another, she fainted mid-duet on the stage. Reports circulated that she was pregnant.

It wasn't true, the soprano says, but she does want to have a family. And what about operatic appearances booked solid for the next two years? She smiles, "I'd cancel."

But two can play at that game, and George L. Hinman and Mrs. Keith McHugh, Republican National committeemen who are closely allied to Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, obliged.

THEY THREATENED that the state GOP might withdraw its support of Goldwater and Miller entirely if Mrs. Luce led a bolt against Keating, particularly as she is co-chairman of the senator's national Citizens for Goldwater-Miller Committee.

The Goldwater people don't much care what happens to Keating but dreaded having Mrs. Luce saddled with the blame for party disunity.

They believe she can help them in the citizens committee effort which they need much worse than they do a Keating defeat. Even so, Mrs. Luce has not gained any new friends for Goldwater in New York.

More significant, Rockefeller in his Luce extremity proved up to the task of inspiring such latent sources of strength as former Gov. Thomas Dewey and Herbert Brownell to come to the aid of the party. Mrs. Luce has made the regulars stronger, not weaker, than they were after San Francisco.

Hughes Says Demo Team Holds Promise

AVOCA — Gov. Harlan Hughes, making a campaign stop in southwest Iowa, described Democratic Presidential ticket Thursday night as the promise of a better future for Iowa's economy.

His schedule for the day included a speech at a press conference, a second year term called for coffee sessions in Corning, Clarinda and ney, a luncheon meeting in Ford and a 7th District Democratic dinner here.

In his prepared remarks Hughes said Iowa's economic future depends upon a powerful two-pronged effort to strengthen the economic position of the farmer on the hand and to sustain Iowa's current unprecedented pace of industrial growth on the other.

He said "President Johnson is not a big city man. He has a real understanding of the problems of the farmer."

"In Sen. Humphrey we have a powerful spokesman for Midwestern agriculture who knows our problems at first hand."

"The problem... is to show depressed farm prices — especially for livestock — without impairing other vital aspects of our agricultural economy."

"The answer is not suicide. It is to throw a depressed economy on a free market. It is to ride the horse of farm sides off in all directions. answer is to take decisive action about our immediate problems. The Johnson administration, and chart a sound and sensible program for the long-range future."

Turning to the industrial economy, Hughes said "Iowa's new industrial starts are running at four times ahead of what were two years ago... it's not the time to turn back. It is the time to move ahead. Stronger resolve than ever."

"Hurrah for the — uh — elephant with the tusks 'on top of his head."

Bursting the bubble of gum monopoly

(From The Christian Science Monitor)

MONOPOLY BOTHERS US, whatever the field, but it bothers us less acutely in the bubble-gum industry than in just about any other we can think of.

A man in our office has children who collect the baseball picture cards that come with a certain brand of bubble gum. He says he feels kind of anti-American but he cannot get worked up about the monopoly in these cards that has been found by an examiner for the Federal Trade Commission.

In fact this father says, with a shudder, that he agrees with the company spokesman who is reported to have claimed that to confuse children with differing series of trading cards would bring anarchy to the baseball card market.

Perhaps the company's methods of sewing up baseball players on exclusive contracts are too much for the would-be competition. We are quite willing to leave to the FTC a final decision on its examiner's findings.

What haunts us is the face of our colleague, as he says: "It's not the cards, it's the bubbles, it's the bubbles, it's the BUBBLES."

No Milk Now: So

DES MOINES — The president of the National Farmers' organization said Thursday night a decision on whether to withhold milk from the market will be made until "there are more volvements in our meat hot action."

Oren Lee Staley said at Corning that there has been no real discussion on whether to add milk to holding action on livestock Thursday was in its third week.

"Any decision on milk will be made later," Staley said. It has been repeated speculation that dairy production states that NFO planned to keep milk off market to boost prices.

No Milk Holding Decision Now: Says NFO President

DES MOINES (AP) — The president of the National Farmers Organization said Thursday night that a decision on whether to withhold milk from the market will not be made until "there are more developments in our meat holding action."

Oren Lee Staley said at Corning that there has been no real discussion on whether to add milk to the holding action on livestock which Thursday was in its third week.

"Any decision on milk will be made later," Staley said. There has been repeated speculation in dairy production states that the NFO planned to keep milk off the market to boost prices.

The holding action showed little effect on the major livestock markets in the Midwest Thursday, although hop prices climbed about 25 cents a hundredweight.

Hog receipts at the 12 major markets totaled 47,500, compared with 39,764 a week ago and 67,059 a year ago. Prices were steady for slaughter steers with cattle receipts at the 12 markets totaling 29,100, compared with 21,237 a week ago and 25,133 a year ago.

Staley said 18 regional meetings of NFO officials were being completed tonight. He said national officials met with local officers to describe the progress of the holding action so far "and to tell them this is the time to make the supreme effort."

Staley, noting that markets will be closed on Monday because of Labor Day, said "I think that next week will really show what a holding action can do."

There were more scattered reports of violence Thursday, with a Wisconsin trucker reporting three men fired nine shots into two of his trucks Wednesday night.

At Owosso, Mich., state police were called out to the Owosso Stockyards where they said NFO members were picketing and keeping livestock trucks out of the market. No violence was reported.

A farmer driving to the Evansville, Ind., stockyards reported the rear wheels of his truck were struck by two shotgun blasts.

GOP Officials Fray Action Of Synhorst

DES MOINES (AP) — Republican state officials were feuding Thursday over Secretary of State Melvin Synhorst's action in placing the names of the Democratic presidential candidates on the Nov. 3 ballot.

Synhorst said he took the action on his own after the Democrats failed to meet the Monday deadline in certifying the presidential candidates.

Synhorst said he acted on his own because the attorney general's office was "not keen" about giving him an opinion on the matter. Solicitor General W. N. (Bill) Bump said Thursday, "We told the secretary that an opinion regarding the filing time deadline was not necessary because the statute was clear."

Bump said in a statement that Synhorst then "publicly announced" he was seeking an opinion on whether there was any legal way he could put the names on the ballot.

We have not heard further from him, nor has he been advised about this by our office," Bump said.

Synhorst, a Republican, said he has received numerous telephone calls praising him for his action. Republican State Chairman Robert Ray and Republican Secretary of Agriculture L. B. Liddy criticized Synhorst for placing the names on the ballot on his own initiative.

Synhorst also said he sees no need for a court test of his decision.

Hughes Says Demo Team Holds Promise

AVOCA (AP) — Gov. Harold Hughes, making a campaign swing into southwest Iowa, described the Democratic presidential ticket Thursday night as the promise of better things for Iowa's economy.

His schedule for the day as he pressed his bid for a second two-year term called for coffee sessions in Corning, Clarinda and Sidney, a luncheon meeting in Bedford and a 7th District Democratic dinner here.

In his prepared remarks Hughes said Iowa's economic future depends upon a powerful two-pronged effort to strengthen the economic position of the farmer on the one hand and to sustain Iowa's current, unprecedented pace of industrial growth on the other.

He said "President Johnson is not a big city man. He has some real understanding of the problems of the farmer . . ."

"In Sen. Humphrey we have a powerful spokesman for Midwest agriculture who knows our problems at first hand.

"The problem . . . is to shore up depressed farm prices — especially for livestock — without impairing other vital aspects of our agricultural economy.

"The answer is not suicide — not to throw a depressed farm economy on a free market. Nor is it to ride the horse of farm subsidies off in all directions. The answer is to take decisive action about our immediate problems, as the Johnson administration is doing, and chart a sound and sensible program for the long-range future.

"Turning to the industrial economy, Hughes said "Iowa's new industrial starts are running almost four times ahead of what they were two years ago . . . this is not the time to turn back. It is the time to move ahead with stronger resolve than ever."

'Rescuer' Hauled Away

Police hustle a bearded man, identified as Gino Foreman, away from the hearing room of the House Committee on Un-American Activities after a witness was attacked today. The witness, Morton Slater of New York City, was testifying. Police grabbed the attacker, wearing the armband of the Nazi Party and identified as Lon Dunaway of Arlington, Va., and hustled him out of the House Office Building. Foreman was grabbed by police as he went to Slater's defense.

Adamson Hospitalized In Greeley

William L. Adamson, director of the SUI Scottish Highlanders, has been hospitalized since Aug. 24 in Greeley, Colo., for treatment of ulcers, The Daily Iowan learned Thursday.

Adamson, who will be 57 in November, was stricken while vacationing in Colorado with his wife and daughter.

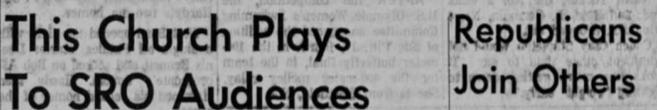

Reached by telephone at the Weld County General Hospital in Greeley, the Highlanders director said he and his family will return to Iowa by plane Friday and expect to arrive at Cedar Rapids at about 6 p.m.

He will then be driven to Iowa City and will check in at the University Hospital for further treatment, he said.

Adamson, who described his ailment as "just some ulcers," said he will return to work shortly. "I'm anxious to get back and get started," he said.

Fiery Final Result

A four engine super constellation deliberately crashed Thursday at an airport north of Phoenix in the interest of aviation safety is shown in the top photo as it crashed into a 150-foot hill after its wheels and wings had been sheared off. In the bottom photo the craft, carrying lifesize dummies and equipment to record effects on the craft's normal equipment, comes to rest on the side of the hill. One of the plane's engines can be seen rolling toward the plane's tail section. The craft broke into three pieces.

This Church Plays To SRO Audiences

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The pews are full again in the old sanctuary of the Woodland Park Presbyterian church, but it's the presbytery, not the preacher, who are packing them in.

The remodeled sanctuary has become the home of a church-sponsored community theater group called La Pensee Players.

"When people think of a church play, they usually think of something in which the actors wear their own clothes with a bathrobe over them," says Allan Clark, the church's administrator.

Not so La Pensee Players. The company started off in August with a vigorous production of "J.B." Archibald MacLeish's modern version of the Book of Job.

Plans for the future range from plays on Biblical themes to Shakespeare, Shaw and musical comedy.

The major impetus for the group came from Clark and his wife, Willy, a drama instructor at Shoreline Junior College, who is the troupe's director.

The sanctuary had been vacant for seven years, except for an occasional Sunday morning class, since the congregation built a new church adjacent to it.

An extension was built onto the choir loft to make a stage, the pews were rearranged and the stained-glass memorial windows were papered over. The result is a theater seating a little more than 100 persons. It was filled for most of the opening performances.

While the group sponsored by the church, tryouts are open to everyone and only eight of the 26 in the cast of "J.B." were members of the church.

The modern-day Job and his wife were played by Roman Catholics. An Episcopal minister, the Rev. Eugene Harshman, was a member of the stage crew and contributed kneeling pads, no longer needed by his own church, as seat cushions for the pews. A high school drama director who belongs to a nearby Lutheran church loaned his homemade stage lighting equipment.

Why does a church sponsor a theater?

A brochure announcing the formation of the troupe asked the question, and answered: "Because the church is interested in truth, all truth. The church must come to understand those ideas which are not a part of her, and without which her own experience is incomplete."

Republicans Join Others To Back LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 20 business and financial leaders, most of them long-time Republicans, met at the White House on Thursday and formed a committee to back President Johnson and his running mate, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

The list of organizing sponsors of the group, named the National Independent Committee for President Johnson and Sen. Humphrey, was studied with prominent names, some of them closely associated with the administration of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Heading the list was Robert B. Anderson, who was secretary of the treasury under Eisenhower. Anderson is an old Texas friend of Johnson's.

Others included: Carter L. Burgess, chairman of American Machine & Foundry Co., who was an assistant secretary of defense under Eisenhower, and Marion B. Folsom, a director of Eastman Kodak Co., who was Eisenhower's secretary of health, education and welfare.

HUAC Calm Broken As 'Nazi' Intervenes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The quiet of a House committee hearing on student travel to Cuba was shattered Thursday when a man wearing the armband of the American Nazi party leaped onto the witness table.

The man started swinging at Morton B. Slater, 21, of New York, one of the students who was starting to testify. It brought an outburst of shouting from the man on the table and by Slater's fellow students in the room.

Police and U.S. marshals quickly knocked the man to the floor and hustled him out of the House Office Building.

Until then the hearing by the House Committee on Un-American Activities had been quiet, in sharp contrast to uproarious hearings of a year ago when the first student group to go to Cuba was quizzed.

Police identified the man as Lon L. Dunaway, 28, of Arlington, Va. A second person who apparently had gone to Slater's defense also was removed from the room. The bearded individual was identified by friends as Gino Foreman. Rep. Richard H. Ichord (D-Mo.), who was presiding, adjourned the hearing immediately after the disturbance.

The committee spent most of the day questioning Yvonne Bond, 24, of Oakland, Calif., about who had enlisted her help in organizing a visit by a group of students to Cuba without State Department approval.

She told the committee: "I do not want to be a rat or fink on any of my friends. I consider this very important."

Ichord told her that "the fact that you don't want to be a rat or a fink is not sufficient grounds" to refuse to answer a question.

While Miss Bond freely admitted she had taken the trip to Cuba, that she is a member of the Progressive Labor movement, that she believes in Marxist-Leninist communism, she took the 5th Amendment again and again when asked about the financing of the trip or other persons on the trip or in the Progressive Movement.

He said "the shadow of scandal" falls now across the White House — "scandal extending from the ballot box to the safe deposit box."

The crowd cheered his charge.

"When, oh when," he asked, "will people learn that only strong men and strong nations keep the peace?"

He accused Johnson of cutting the nation's deterrent strength and challenged the President to deny it.

Goldwater was cheered long and loud when he declared Johnson does not understand Communism's threat to the peace.

"No one, including the President of the United States, can afford to ignore it," he said.

The Arizona senator said when he talks of Republicans he includes "the discerning Democrat whose stomach is full."

Republicans, he said, have proved they understand the Communist threat.

Dealing with civil rights disorders, Goldwater said no man "can in deep conscience advocate lawlessness in seeking redress of a grievance."

"When men will seek political advantage by turning their eyes away from riots and violence, we can well understand why lawlessness grows even while we pass more laws," he said.

"The campaign we launch today is dedicated to peace, through preparedness, progress through freedom, purpose through constitutional order."

"I do not intend to be a wartime president," Goldwater said.

"The Republican party is the peace party."

He charged that Johnson's leadership represents:

- "The way of the regimented society, with a number for every man, woman and child.
- "The way of mobs in the street, restrained only by the plea that they wait until after election time to ignite violence once again;
- "The way of unilateral disarmament and appeasement in foreign affairs."

Goldwater accused Johnson of using "the outmoded and unfair military draft system for social schemes" as well as military objectives.

"Republicans will end the draft altogether, and as soon as possible. That I promise you," Goldwater said.

Housewife Trades Dustmop, Dishpan In—For Crane

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — It's no harder for Mary Lynn Totten to lift 10 tons than it is to heft 150 pounds.

But that's because she's a crane operator.

"And she's a darn good operator, too," her husband, Isco Totten, owner of General Fabricating & Welding Co., said Thursday.

"It isn't hard to run a crane," Mrs. Totten — clad in blouse, shorts, bobby sox and hard hat — said during a pause in her work on a new building here.

"There are only four hand levers, three foot brakes and one hand brake. It's no more trouble to lift 10 tons than 150 pounds."

To prove her point, she dropped the hook at the end of the 50-foot crane beam to within six inches of a girder, hoisted it, and snaked it into place as deftly as if she were icing a cake.

She has been running the crane since March, when Totten discovered he had underbid a tank-assembly job in Kansas and found he couldn't afford to pay another salary. He taught her to run the machine and interpret his hand signals.

BRIAN GETS RED BID— LONDON (AP) — Two British firms, Imperial Chemical Industries and Simon-Carves Ltd., have won a $12.6-million contract to build a polythene plant for Red China's National Technical Import Corp.

Dean Williams Stresses Contrast In Rotary Talk

Dean E. Williams, director of the SUI Speech and Hearing Clinic, contrasted "normal" and "abnormal" for members of the Iowa City Rotary Club Thursday.

We tend to worship the "normal" yet we don't ask ourselves what is average, Williams said. Although we are interested in having "normal" children, we should remember that the student who gets an "A" is a course is socially "normal," he said.

"Any child can be normal if we measure his own potential." If a "handicapped" child is excused from responsibility, however, it is likely he won't reach his own potential, Williams said.

The "handicapped" should be encouraged, Williams said, to think: "Give me the strength to do the things I can do, the wisdom to know what I can't do and the courage to recognize what I can and can't do."

Attempt To Launch OGO Postponed 24 Hours For Equipment Trouble

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Trouble with ground support equipment Thursday night forced a 24-hour postponement of an attempt to launch America's largest scientific satellite, a spacecraft named OGO.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration rescheduled the launching of the Atlas-Agena booster rocket for a favorable 45-minute period starting at 8:23 p.m. EST Friday.

An announcement said that, during the countdown, problems developed with a high-pressure compressor associated with the hold-down and release arms of the launching system.

Packed inside OGO, which stands for Orbiting Geophysical Observatory, were 20 experiments to measure radiation, micrometeorites, magnetic fields and other space phenomena.

Full-Pad Practice Today for Hawks

Extreme heat and humidity caused Coach Jerry Burns to pass up a full gear practice in favor of shorts and shoulder pads for Wednesday's drills.

Despite the excessive heat that forced three players to the sidelines, Coach Burns complimented the squad on a good, spirited session and sent them to the showers without the usual wind spritz.

The afternoon drill was cut by 15 minutes because of heat. COACH BURNS said the team would be in full pads today, regardless of the weather. A limited contact drill, stressing passing will be conducted today.

Following Wednesday's drills, coach Burns praised the overall condition of the ball club and said the team will be in top physical shape for the season's opener against Idaho, Sept. 26.

Bob Le Zotte, No. 2 offensive flanker back was switched Wednesday to defensive right halfback. LE ZOTTE, a 181-pound senior from Royal Oak, Mich., was out

Detroit Lions Drop Larry Ferguson From Their Squad

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. — The Detroit Lions reduced their roster to the required 43 players Thursday by releasing second year halfback Larry Ferguson and rookie defensive end John Miller.

Ferguson, who captained the Iowa team two years ago, was the Lions' fourth draft choice. He underwent surgery on his knee after suffering an injury midway through last season.

Miller played collegiate ball at Idaho State.

The Lions also announced that back Hugh McElhenny, recently released as a free agent by the New York Giants, has reported to camp for a tryout.

Backstroke Sets Record In N.Y. Trials

NEW YORK — Thompson Mann, a U. of North Carolina graduate from Chesapeake, Va., smashed the world record for the 100-meter backstroke Thursday with a time of one minute flat in winning the final of the event in the U.S. Olympic swimming trials.

The 22-year-old, 6-foot-1, 165-pounder eclipsed the mark of 1:00.9 shared by Americans Tom Stock and Richard McGeach and equalled by Mann in the morning heats. Stock, of the Indianapolis A.C., failed to qualify.

FOUR EVENTS were run off on the sixth and final day of the swimming trials. In all four, those swimmers who already had made the Olympic team in other events, were not eligible to compete. The team qualifiers Thursday will be used in the relays in the Tokyo games.

Bill Craig, 19, a Southern California junior from Glendale, Calif., came on strong in the final 50 and captured the men's 100-meter breaststroke in 1:09.7.

Jeanne Collier, a petite 18-year-old from Phoenix, Sue Gossick, a 16-year-old blonde from Los Angeles, and Lesley Bush, 16, of Princeton, N.J., surprised by taking the first three places after seven of the 10 dives in the women's 3-meter springboard.

Pokey Watson, 14-year-old ninth-grader from Santa Clara, bettered the oft-beaten listed American record of 1:01.3 in winning the women's 100-meter freestyle final in 1:01.2. The first five made to the Olympic team for the relays.

Ed Townsend, 20, a Yale senior from Santa Clara, won the men's 200-meter freestyle as the first four were added to the Olympic team for the 800-meter freestyle relay. Townsend was timed in 2:00.9.

AFTER the competition, the U.S. Olympic Women's Swimming Committee announced the addition of Sue Pitt, 17, fourth in the 100-meter butterfly final, to the team for the 400-meter medley relay, which is from Westfield, N.J.

AMES — Two more players quit the Iowa State football team Thursday, reducing the squad to only 44 players. Norm Tucker, the No. 2 weak end, and Ross St. Germain, No. 4 wingback dropped out.

Coach Clay Stapleton would not comment other than to say "It looks like we're getting down to fighting 'weight' early."

Perry singled home Tom Haller with one run after two were out in the fourth inning after successive doubles by Duke Snider and Haller had brought the first Giant score off Jack Fisher. In the sixth, Haller beat out a bunt, took third on Jim Davenport's double and scored on Perry's fly.

Orioles Blast Twins, 4-1, Lead League by Full Game

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL — Jackie Brandt lashed a three-run double with two out in the seventh inning Thursday propelling the Baltimore Orioles to a 4-1 triumph over Minnesota.

The victory opened a full-game lead for the Orioles over the idle Chicago White Sox in the American League race.

Brandt's blow up the left-center field alley on a 3-2 pitch came on Luis Aparicio's single, a fielder's choice, Brooks Robinson's double and an intentional walk to Charlie Lau.

Victim of the blast, Camilo Pascual, was thrown out of the game following Brandt's hit by plate umpire Larry Napp. Pascual protested vehemently that Brandt should have been called out on a third strike when the count was 2-2. He thought he had gotten a good portion of the inside corner with a fastball.

Pascual, in his most demonstrative outburst in any game he ever pitched here, had to be forcibly restrained by Twins catcher Ron Henry after his banishment.

Pascual retired the first 12 Oriole batters in order before Brooks Robinson led off the fifth by whacking his 24th homer into the left field bleachers.

Minnesota scored its lone run off rookie Wally Bunker, now 14-4, in the fourth on singles by Harmon Killebrew and Jimmie Hall, an intentional walk and Henry's ground out.

JESUS ALOU OUT OF ACTION — NEW YORK — Jesus Alou, of the San Francisco Giants outfielder who suffered a serious ankle wound when spiked in a rundown play Wednesday night, definitely is through for the season.

Alou underwent exploratory surgery Thursday to determine the damage to his left ankle. Seventy-five stitches were required to close the cut, and a cast was put on the leg.

NEW YORK — The new manager of the San Francisco Giants is scheduled to be Charley Fox, who is almost completely unknown outside the organization.

For currently is managing the Tacoma team in the Pacific Coast League, the top farm club of the Giants.

The Giants have shrouded the name of the man who will succeed Alvin Dark as manager of the Giants in complete secrecy. Dark, of course, is being replaced after seven years as a player and four as manager of the Giants.

Poor Quality In Albion

ALBION — Officials of the Iowa Highway Commission Friday walked the entire route of a 12-mile relocation of U.S. Highway near Albion to investigate charges that there was "substandard workmanship" on the nearly completed project.

State Highway Chairman Harold J. Bradley Jr. of Des Moines said that apparently some corrective measures will be made but to what extent we will not know until further examination has been made. Further tests will have to be run.

Bradley said the Jensen Company is one of the most reliable construction firms with which he has worked.

"WE WALKED the whole route," Bradley said. "It would appear to have some corrective measures to be made but to what extent we will not know until further examination has been made. Further tests will have to be run."

Bradley said the Jensen Company is one of the most reliable construction firms with which he has worked.

Minoso Appointed As White Sox Coach

CHICAGO — The Chicago White Sox appointed Minnie Minoso as a coach Thursday as Commissioner Ford Frick deliberated over a "faulty rule" under which he vetoed the Sox' purchase of the veteran outfielder from their Indianapolis farm club.

Sox General Manager Ed Short said he had three telephone discussions with Frick during the day concerning the commissioner's squelching of the purchase Tuesday of the 41-year-old Minoso from the Pacific Coast League team.

Frick said Wednesday night the Sox, in releasing Minoso six weeks ago and then buying him back Tuesday, were guilty of "covering up" in order to add another player while keeping Minoso in the weeds.

THE SOX subsequently kept Minoso, who played 10 of his 14 big league seasons with them, from suiting up for Wednesday night's Sox-Detroit game.
