

Senate To Provide Kate Daum Seat

By JON VAN
Staff Writer

Kate Daum dormitory's claims to a seat on the Student Senate may precipitate a complete reassessment of voting procedures in electing student senators.

Senate Pres. Wally Snyder, L1, Belle Plaine, introduced a constitutional amendment at Tuesday's senate meeting which would provide the new dorm unit with a seat on the senate. Elizabeth Goeldner, A4, Sigourney, attended the meeting as a nonvoting senator from the dorm.

Merle Wood, A4, Cedar Rapids, asked Miss Goeldner how she had been elected. She said three candidates had been selected by a screening board and submitted to popular election in the dorm.

WOOD OBJECTED to this, saying that the senate should be on record as favoring popular election of all student senators. He said it should not accept representatives who were "screened."

Snyder said he believes the important question is to provide the 600 coeds in the dorm with senate representation.

"I agree with this point," said Wood, "and I will vote to set the representative, but I don't think the senate should be on record as favoring elections which are not completely popular."

Gene Olsen, vice president of the senate, said that housing units are allowed to select senators as they choose under the present constitution.

Wood then said any representative body has the right to determine the qualifications for its membership.

THE RESOLUTION was referred to the Senate Political Affairs Committee which will hold a public hearing on the matter at 2:30 p.m. Friday in the senate office.

In other business, the senate approved a resolution creating a senior commission on civic affairs. Dick Mundy, A3, Manchester, was appointed commissioner.

The purpose of the commission will be to serve as a liaison between the student body and the city government.

Mundy told The Iowan he has three projects planned now. These include a student service corps which could be used for public works in the city, a study of ob-

AID Dance Needs 225 Male Bodies

Project AID's upcoming computer dance is faced with a critical manpower shortage.

According to Frank Patton, project commissioner, some 225 more male bodies will be needed if every body is to have a partner on dance night Nov. 7. Patton made the estimate after last night's testing session for men.

Two more test sessions will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. on Thursday and Friday in East Hall, he said. The room number will be announced in Thursday's Daily Iowan.

In an effort to correct the male-female imbalance, Patton said, ticket salesgirls will canvass the fraternity houses and men's dormitories on Wednesday and Thursday nights. Tickets will also be on sale until Friday in the senate office with the Voskhod.

DEVELOPMENT of more powerful and perfect rockets was called by the Russians a prime factor in the exploit that sent Komarov scientists Konstantin Feokristov and Dr. Boris Yegorov around the earth 16 times.

Although a balance of the sexes has not yet been achieved for the dance, Patton reported at Tuesday's Student Senate meeting that the books are balancing nicely.

He said that a profit of about $2,000 has already been received for Project AID as a result of ticket sales.

"We expect over 2,000 students will attend, making it one of the biggest dances ever held at the Union," he said.

Hillcrest Association President Resigns

Bob Hobart, A4, Centerville, resigned as president of the Hillcrest Association at a meeting of the Hillcrest Council Tuesday.

Hobart said he believes a person unable to devote enough time to do a job properly should not attempt to undertake that job. He is carrying 19 hours of class work.

Barry Accused of Exploiting Race

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — A national Episcopal convention issued a strong statement Tuesday absolving the Jews of Jesus Christ's death, instead blaming humanity in general.

They also accused the Republican presidential candidate and his running mate of a "transparent exploitation of racism among white citizens."

The bishops were among 726 Episcopalians who charged the Republican presidential nominee Sen. Barry Goldwater, of Arizona, and the GOP vice-presidential candidate with racism.

"WE ARE profoundly disturbed by the transparent exploitation of racism among white citizens by Sen. Barry Goldwater and Congressman William Miller," said the statement released at a news conference on the third day of the convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

"It — anti-Semitism — has often sought religious justification in the events springing from the Crucifixion of Jesus," the statement said. "Anti-Semitism is a direct contradiction of Christian doctrine."

"THE CHARGE of decide-God-killing — against the Jews is a tragic misunderstanding of the inner significance of the Crucifixion. To be sure, Jesus was crucified by some Roman soldiers

"The poison of anti-Semitism has causes of a political, national, psychological, social and economic nature," said the statement issued in

Goldwater Attacks Johnson For Full-Time Campaigning

Truman Falls, Receives Cuts, Fractured Ribs

Former President, 80,
Listed in Satisfactory
Condition Today

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Harry S. Truman fell into a bathtub at his home in Independence Tuesday and suffered cuts over his right eye and eyelid from his shattered eye-glasses and two fractured ribs.

The 80-year-old former President was taken by ambulance to Research Hospital about 4 p.m. and given emergency treatment.

At 7:30, the hospital issued this statement: "While getting into the bathtub, Mr. Truman slipped on the bath mat and fell forward on his right side. He sustained a severe laceration over the right eye. His eyeglasses were broken, and several pieces of glass had multiple lacerations on the right eyelid.

The former president also suffered multiple contusions about the right eyebrow and forehead.

"In falling he struck his chest on the side of the tub, fracturing two ribs.

"His condition is satisfactory, and he is resting easily.

"His stay in the hospital is indefinite, as he had been due for his regular six-month checkup for some time.

While the formal statement said he was getting into the tub, the informal version was that Truman still was in his underclothes and may have been turning on the water.

Bill Wittman, director of public relations for the hospital, said Truman was in good spirits, cheerful and joking.

Mrs. Truman was brought to the hospital from a bridge party.

Truman had been in his office at the Truman Library in Independence earlier in the day, and members of his staff said he appeared to be feeling well. He returned after lunch to sign papers and clean up other office work before going home.

Isbell Aims For Florida

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Isbell slashed across western Cuba Tuesday and aimed her damaging winds and torrential rains at Florida's lower west coast and the keys.

Hurricane warnings flew over Dry Tortugas, a group of tiny islands west of Key West. A hurricane watch, already in effect from Key West northward to Tampa Bay, was extended through the entire Florida keys to Kay Largo, 56 miles south of Miami.

Apparently Isbell was barely off hurricane intensity — 74 miles per hour — as she battered extreme western Cuba, but the Weather Bureau said it should increase slightly in size today.

The eventual path of the hurricane across southern Florida could not be predicted at this time but added hurricane warnings were expected to be extended today.

The mayor stressed that the city officials could not urge the citizens at the instigation of some Jews.

But this cannot be construed as imputing corporate guilt to every Jew in Jesus' day — much less the Jewish people in subsequent generations."

The strong statement marked the first time, observers said, that a single denomination had issued such a statement regarding the Jews' blame in Christ's death. However, the World Council of Churches issued a similar statement, and the Roman Catholic Vatican Ecumenical Council is considering such a resolution.

MORE THAN 700 Episcopalians, including 10 bishops, were attending the convention.

Goldwater, of Arizona, is an Episcopalian. Miller, of New York, the GOP vice-presidential nominee, is a Roman Catholic.

William A. Stringfellow, a white New York attorney and author, released the statement. Stringfellow, a prominent Episcopalian layman, said Episcopalians from 41 states had signed the document.

Wednesday's highs are to be from around 70 east to the lower and middle 70s west. Patchy fog is expected over the eastern part of the state again Wednesday night. Little weather change was predicted for Thursday.

Des Moines Visit Attracts Thousands

Stumping the Midwest that traditionally has been counted a swinging attack on the political campaign of his Democratic foe.

"BECAUSE of his full-time politicking," Goldwater said, "we now have a part-time president when we are faced with full-time and full-scale problems."

Goldwater renewed a demand Johnson agree to a televised debate, saying "it could be taped, so as to avoid the possibility of Mr. Johnson making a mistake that might jeopardize national security."

"IT COULD be done at a time and place of his choosing, so as to permit him to spend more time at his desk."

The Republican Presidential nominee called "marvelous" Tuesday the crowd that turned out to greet him.

Goldwater Gets Advice On Farm Aid

By MIKE BOOS
Staff Writer

DES MOINES — Sen. Barry Goldwater's return visit to Iowa Tuesday, although more farm-oriented than his previous stop at Mason City, was labeled by officials here as merely a trial run for a possible major farm speech Friday at Sioux Falls, S.D.

Meeting with farm-belt representatives in a closed session at the Des Moines Airport, the Arizona senator reportedly listened to the groups recommendations and promised, if elected, not to throw out immediately present subsidy programs.

IN A STATEMENT following the meeting, Goldwater warned that "farming must not become a political football," and said one of the purposes for the meeting was to assure farm leaders that he had no intention of making it one.

"Present programs, we all agree, are a failure," he added. "Even so, they cannot be suddenly yanked out from under our farm families until better solutions are found."

He reiterated his promise that if elected he will appoint a secretary of agriculture who "knows something about farming by having successfully farmed on his own."

"A CITY-TRAINED lawyer, out of a job as governor, who is given a cabinet post as a political plum," he asserted, "is never going to solve the farm problem."

In his earlier visit to Iowa about three weeks ago, Goldwater declined to discuss farming.

At that time he was presented with an ear of corn. He commented that it was the biggest one he had ever seen and it was obvious he could not tell Iowans anything about farming.

A conference report was presented to Goldwater which he plans to study before his farm speech.

Police Chief Vear Douglas estimated the crowd, many of them youngsters excused from school to see the presidential nominee, at between 40,000 and 45,000. He put it at 7,500 at the airport, about 15,000 along the route of the motorcade downtown, and around 20,000 at the speaking site.

GOLDWATER's plane landed in sunny, 63-degree weather at 2 p.m. He came to Des Moines primarily to attend a meeting of farm leaders who were working out a way for him to present his agricultural program.

Climbing onto his plane to leave for Milwaukee after his downtown speech, Goldwater told reporters: "I would say this is the biggest crowd, in percentage of population, that we have had."

"IT WAS A marvelous crowd. I think I'll stay here to campaign."

Republican state leaders also expressed satisfaction at the number of people who turned out, considering that the schedule was changed three times in three days.

They said if it hadn't been for the schedule changes the crowd would have been much larger. The originally planned motorcade and downtown speech were canceled on Sunday, but were reinstated Monday afternoon.

The Young Conservatives will speak in favor of the Goldwater-Miller ticket at the Student Senate mock election rally Thursday.

The group will not make a statement in support of any other candidate running on the Conservative ticket, according to Ron Zobel, A1, Oelwein, president of the Young Conservatives.

The Daily Iowan reported Tuesday that the Young Conservatives would also support the bid of Robert Dilley, Conservative candidate for governor.

"We support Goldwater and Miller by consensus of the group," Zobel said. "We are working with the Republicans to elect Republican candidates to all other offices from the pre-cinct up."

The rally will be held at 4 p.m. Thursday on the Union Terrace. In case of rain, the rally will be held in the new Chemistry Auditorium.

The SUI Young Republicans and Young Democrats will speak in favor of their party candidates for national and state offices.

On annexation

"The second thing we must do, if we are to build a great city, is communicate. There must be communication between the departments and the various boards and commissions of the city. There must be communication between the adjacent cities, the schools, the County, the University and the state. Above all, there must be communication between the officials of Iowa City and its citizens. If there is communication, then there will be cooperation and coordination. We cannot build a great city by being little islands unto ourselves or building little empires and power structures. The city itself should be the dynamic unit and to achieve this, there must be communication."

Carsten Leikyold, Iowa City City Manager, included this opinion on the importance of communication in a letter he submitted to the City Council concerning annexation.

The proposed annexation, which will be voted on by Iowa City residents in the general election Nov. 3, will add another 5.64 square miles to Iowa City, bringing the total land area to 15.38 square miles.

Some of the legal factors concerning the annexation are that only Iowa City residents may vote on the proposal. If this vote is affirmative, the district court makes the final decision on whether the area shall be annexed. The city must show that it is able to serve the annexed area with all city services.

The first annexation proposal this year, which proposed a larger area for annexation, was defeated in the June 21 election.

One of the conjectured reasons for the defeat of the first proposal was that there was incomplete information concerning the details of the annexation, and no organized campaign by those who advocated annexation.

The City Council has undertaken an "educational campaign" to avoid such a repetition this time around. Council members are scheduling speaking engagements with any organization that wishes to learn more about the annexation proposal. Printed material and a map of the proposed annexation are also available.

The primary reason for the annexation is so that Iowa City will be able to grow in a logical and orderly fashion, able to accommodate the increase in population.

The annexation will mean that sewer and water facilities can be extended efficiently, arterial street systems can be developed to provide smooth flow of traffic, recreational facilities can be developed and the situation will not exist where areas are surrounded but not part of the city.

It would be ostrich-like to think that if Iowa City does not annex now, the city can annex later at its leisure. Coralville has recently made an annexation and other municipalities are interested in annexation for their own benefit.

In these last three weeks before the Nov. 3 election, The Daily Iowan will aid in the communication of details and implications of the annexation proposal. These 5.64 square miles are of vital concern to the expansion of the University, as well as Iowa City.

The organization

STUDENT SENATORS representing town men and women are attempting to organize their constituencies so that they may present a united front in solving many off-campus problems.

The purpose of such organization, as Wood has described it, would be to fight exorbitant rents and substandard housing conditions. Other problems of this type would be handled by such an organization as they appeared.

Past attempts to organize town residents have failed; it is difficult to get these nearly 6,000 students together.

Many students living off-campus do not wish organization. They shun dormitory associations, fraternity life and organized schedules on purpose.

There is no question but what an off-campus organization of sorts might do some good; there is a big question whether or not such organization is possible.

Buchwald dreams interview with GOP candidate Miller

By ART BUCHWALD

We never thought it would happen, but we had a dream interview with Congressman Bill Miller, who is now running for Vice-President on the Republican ticket.

We had just closed our eyes and started to dream about making a killing in the paper felt business when Mr. Miller appeared.

"Is there anything I can do for you?" he asked.

"Well, as long as you're here," we said. "I'd like to ask you a few questions. How do you think the campaign is going?"

"Quite well. I believe all the candidates are sticking to the issues and you don't have all the name-calling that usually goes with a Presidential campaign."

"Then you believe personal attacks on your opponents should be avoided?"

"AT ALL COSTS," Mr. Miller replied.

"I told Mr. Goldwater when I accepted the nomination that I would not participate in any character assassination or vilification of my opponents, and if he wanted this type of campaign he would have to get himself another boy."

"Did Mr. Goldwater agree?"

"Yes, he did. He told me he'd do the gut-fighting and I could stick with the issues."

"Why haven't you attacked President Johnson's relationship with Bobby Baker?"

"FIRST OF ALL, I don't believe in guilt by association. After all, Mr. Johnson can't be responsible for all the people that worked for him. Second, if I did attack Mr. Johnson the Democrats might bring up the fact that I was a director of the Lockport Felt Company while I was defending the felt interests in Congress. This would cause me to bring up the TFX scandal and then the Democrats would bring up something else and pretty soon you'd have a mud-slinging match which Mr. Goldwater and I have been trying to avoid."

"What about Billie Sol Estes?"

"Nobody's perfect."

"Aren't you going to even attack President Johnson about his television interests in Austin, Texas?"

"I DON'T THINK President Johnson's business interests should be debated anymore than the fact that my law partner happens to be on my Congressional payroll. The people aren't interested in this sort of thing, and I don't believe honesty in government should be a campaign issue."

"What is your political philosophy?"

"My political philosophy is based on my love of my fellowmen. I may be running against Sen. Hubert Humphrey for Vice President, but I respect his point of view and feel he has as much right to his opinions as I have to mine."

"Did you call him a left wing radical Socialist?"

"Nobody's perfect."

"MR. MILLER, my dream is almost up, but I would like to ask you if you had to campaign all over again, would you do anything differently?"

"I might have become a little rougher in my language," he replied. "I have been criticized by some of my colleagues for not being a gut-fighter, and while I really don't know how to fight dirty, perhaps I would have taken a crack at it."

"One more question. About the Lockport Felt Company?"

Mr. Miller replied, "Nobody's perfect."

Thanks to Highlanders

To the Editor:

The Iowa-Indiana football game will be long remembered for many reasons. The Hawkeyes played well in patches and sufficiently well at other times to come away with a 21-20 win. Indiana lost in a very unfortunate manner but the Hoosiers can take consolation in the fact that they played a superb game.

But for us who were present in Bloomington, another pleasant memory of that game is the wonderful performance of the Scottish Highlanders. These girls not only put on an excellent show but their cheering during the game was undoubtedly a great source of encouragement to the Hawkeye squad. In fact, all through the game, these pretty lassies matched the Indiana supporters yell for yell and cheer for cheer, both in volume and feeling.

So, to Darlene Brady and her clan, we offer a very sincere vote of thanks.

Political spectrum—

YR president discusses Hultman's candidacy

By NEAL RAINS

President, Young Republicans

Attorney-General: Evan Hultman has been waging a dynamic campaign for the governorship. Hultman's tax program calls for the elimination of the monies and credits tax, the head tax on breeder livestock, and the personal property tax on household goods. These taxes are regressive and cost the state nearly as much to collect as they are worth.

The annual increase in revenue resulting from the state's economic growth will more than offset the revenue lost by the abolition of these taxes. Hultman has also advocated a complete long range overhaul of the Iowa tax system.

This specific plan stands in sharp contrast to Harold Hughes' evasive tax position. Although he has promised to submit a comprehensive tax program to the public, as of yet the governor has failed to do so.

The Iowa highway death toll has become a tragic scandal. To aid in alleviating this problem, "Curly" Hultman has proposed an accelerated program of road building to be financed by a long term bond issue. This plan will provide the immediate results dictated by the gravity of the problem, yet the cost will be spread over a fifteen year period. Hughes' plan of financing roads by increased gasoline taxes fails to provide rapid enough construction to meet the state's needs.

The Democratic record on education in Iowa has been a sorry one indeed. The Hughes budget requests cut the amount devoted to the state institutions of higher learning by three million dollars. Fortunately, the Republican Legislature restored these cuts. In contrast, Hultman has offered a program of greatly increased state aid to public schools, to vocational and technical training programs, and to higher education.

The other race to which I would like to call your attention is the battle for the First Congressional District seat. Congressman Fred Schwengel, during his ten years in Washington, has proven himself to be a dedicated, hard-working representative of his constituents. Yet despite his admirable record, he has been subjected to a vicious campaign during which his opponent has shown little regard for facts.

Although Schwengel voted on 94 per cent of the roll calls taken during the last session of Congress, versus an average of 84 per cent for all congressmen, his attendance record has been at least as good as that of his opponent. Yet, is this inherently bad? There once was a period in our history when almost everyone was a farmer. People have been moving out of farming ever since. I would think that the freedoms gained by the remaining farmers—the freedom to grow what they want, where they want, in as much quantity as they want—would more than compensate for the migration from farms.

I hope President Johnson's stand on this issue is an indication of a reversal of his past evasiveness. Perhaps we will all soon know what is actually happening in areas such as the Tonkin Gulf where we must now wait until Navyman Jimmy Kress writes his mother in Dubuque, Iowa.

Reader argues for Goldwater stand on farm subsidy issue

To the Editor:

Last week was indeed a memorable week in the presidential campaign. President Johnson chose it as the proper time to openly state his position on an issue. It is about time!

Fortunately, the farm subsidy issue strikes at the heart of the principal difference between the two candidates—limited government control opposed by expanded government control or in this instance, freedom versus regulation of private enterprise.

Under the guise of regulating interstate commerce, the federal government attempted to alleviate the problem of low farm incomes. Not only does the problem still persist, but we also have the new problems of production controls, huge surpluses of crops, high consumer prices, and larger tax bills to support this socialistic waste.

TO EQUIP the problem, the government sought to curb over-production by the soil bank, and acreage retirement programs. True to form, these measures were no more successful than other Big Government cure-alls. Must these theories of subsidizing non-production permeate all areas of the "Great Society" so vitally concern with economic growth?

Rather than perpetuate what cannot be confused with a healthy economic situation, I emphatically concur with Sen. Goldwater in his assertion that the farm subsidies must be slowly reduced to allow prices to settle at a level determined by supply and demand.

As a temporary measure, a direct grant to farmers could be resorted to while prices are adjusting to their natural level. This measure alone would save government consumers, and taxpayers money while maintaining reasonable farm incomes during the transition period. Eventually, the less efficient farmers will be forced to move into more lucrative enterprises.

Yet, is this inherently bad? There once was a period in our history when almost everyone was a farmer. People have been moving out of farming ever since. I would think that the freedoms gained by the remaining farmers—the freedom to grow what they want, where they want, in as much quantity as they want—would more than compensate for the migration from farms.

I hope President Johnson's stand on this issue is an indication of a reversal of his past evasiveness. Perhaps we will all soon know what is actually happening in areas such as the Tonkin Gulf where we must now wait until Navyman Jimmy Kress writes his mother in Dubuque, Iowa.

Peace Corps trip to Africa marked by delays, boredom

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Herb Grunwald, a 1964 graduate of SUI, is a Peace Corps volunteer in Sierra Leone, where he is helping edit the local Peace Corps newspaper. In this article, Grunwald describes the trip to Sierra Leone.)

I woke up shortly before my alarm clock was due to go off. Outside it was still night.

At six, after swallowing two bitter tasting anti-malaria pills with a glass of Squirt, my parents and I left our house and drove to the Sacramento Municipal Airport. My luggage was weighed in—exactly 45 pounds, no overweight to pay.

It was cold in the airport lobby that Sunday morning, Sept. 6. My nine days of home leave were over. I had finished my visiting, saying "I'll see you in two years." There was nothing to do now except wait for the 7 o'clock plane from San Francisco. At 7:10 it arrived and I said goodbye to my parents. I was on my way.

After landing at Kennedy International, I quickly found a cab, put my bags in and was driven to Pan American terminal, a circular structure that looked like a gigantic glass mushroom. The fare was 45 cents and the taxi driver complained bitterly over the short distance, the small fare.

Congressman Schwengel's opponent has also charged him with backing a "crippled amendment" to the Vocational Training Act. The amendment in question was to prohibit discrimination on the basis of race or creed in the application of the bill. Schwengel may be proud of his vote on this amendment, which was supported by twenty-five Democratic liberals, as well as House Republicans.

The people of Iowa and the First District can be proud of the campaigns being waged by Evan Hultman and Fred Schwengel. Both of these men deserve your support in the coming election.

Gemini Model Is Monument For Space-Age Homecoming

By STEVE deWOLF
Staff Writer

As Homecoming nears, a construction which may well resemble one of Frank Lloyd Wright's architectural creations will begin to take shape on the west approach to Old Capitol.

Although the structure will not be a Wright original, it may be something even more modern — a 1,500-pound model of the two-man Gemini space capsule.

Sponsored and built mainly by the Associated Students of Engineering and Theta Tau, professional engineering fraternity, the Homecoming monument is as traditional at SUI Homecomings as frantic cheering at the Saturday football game and the return of alumni.

The 1964 monument, 50th in the 53-year history of University Homecomings, will have as its theme, "Education: Pathway to Exploration."

Work on the Gemini spacecraft model has been in progress in the Mechanical Engineering Laboratory since Sept. 20. John Schwob, E4, Iowa City, chairman of the Homecoming monument subcommittee, estimated that the building of the monument is 75 per cent complete at present.

"One reason for using the Gemini space capsule as our model," Schwob explained, "is that we thought our building of it would coincide with the building and launching of the real Gemini at Cape Kennedy. But things didn't work out that way."

The originator of the space capsule model idea was Gerald Burns, E4, Mount Pleasant. Burns won the $25 top prize in a contest sponsored last May by the Homecoming Committee for the best design for the Homecoming monument.

Barring any major mishaps in construction or in moving it to its intended location, the monument will be erected and operating Oct. 22.

So far, about 800 man-hours of work have gone into the building of the monument. Before it is finished and erected, more than 150 engineering and other students will have put in about 1,200 man-hours on the project, Schwob said.

The space capsule is being built in three hollow, cone-shaped sections, which will be fastened together in the finished product. The building materials are two by fours and "Easy Curve," a pressed paper material similar to heavy cardboard.

The base of the monument is a separate project, but will be constructed with the same materials.

The budget for the monument is $350.

"Our building materials lack strength and may cause us some problems in taking the monument outside, moving it and setting it up," Schwob said. "We will probably have to use a crane."

Nevertheless, when the space capsule is finished, it will be no small engineering accomplishment, according to Schwob. The 28-foot high capsule will be mounted at an angle on an oblong base 30 feet in length and 20 feet wide. The capsule will revolve on a 20-foot, motor-driven shaft.

The entire monument will be almost 35 feet high. The capsule is 1/2 times the size of the actual Gemini spacecraft.

Colors for the monument will be blue, white and gold. The two smaller upper sections of the capsule will be painted a metallic blue-gray and the larger bottom section will be white.

The 4-foot high oblong base will be the same shade of blue as the two top sections of the capsule, with the monument's theme painted in gold around the edge. A group of women from Kate Daum House in Burge Hall will help with the painting.

The final touch to the monument will be the mounting of two paper mache Herky the Hawkeye mascot Gemini spacecraft. In keeping with the theme, one Herky will wear an astronaut's suit and the other a cap and gown.

Members of the Engineering Wives Club have been working with Ann Stephens, A3, Davenport, on the Herbies.

A tradition of burning the monument Saturday night whether the Hawkeye football team wins or loses will continue this year.

But students with ideas of burning or wrecking the monument before the proper time will be thwarted by security measures planned by the Engineering students. Guards will be on duty at the site Oct. 22-24.

"Several years ago," Schwob said, "some students soaked the monument with gasoline and then someone shot a flaming arrow at it. After that we decided to post guards."

As with many other Homecoming activities, the monument project required much planning. The Homecoming monument subcommittee, composed of Schwob, John Boden, E4, Iowa City; Fred Barth, E4, Dubuque; Ronald Upham, E4, West Union; Ronald Bartels, E4, Oxford Junction; Bruce Bailey, E4, Washington; and William Koellner, E4, Davenport, met weekly during the summer to discuss plans and ideas for the monument.

Freeman:

Farm Incomes Held Steady

WEST UNION (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman Tuesday urged farmers to take note of report which held that government subsidies kept farm incomes from falling 50 per cent in the last three years.

Freeman spoke at the 16th annual Iowa State Mechanical Corn Picking Contest, held on a farm near this northeastern Iowa community.

He referred to a report released Sunday by three members of the Senate Agriculture Committee as a document of committee.

The report concluded that in the last three years agricultural price supports added $6 billion a year to farmers' net incomes.

Freeman said the study "reinforces and confirms" seven independent studies conducted earlier by leading agricultural economists at land grant colleges and universities, including Iowa State University.

"Those farmers having any doubt about Sen. Barry Goldwater's 'no programs farm program' should read this report," Freeman said, adding:

This bi-partisan study also found that in addition to the disastrous cut in net farm income, farmers also would have experienced losses of several billion dollars a year in farm real estate values, rather than increases averaging $5 billion a year."

Freeman said that in 1963 "Sen. Goldwater's termination of farm programs" would mean a loss of $1.5 billion to Midwest farmers, including $422,000,000 in Iowa, or an average of $2,286 per Iowa farm.

In contrast, Freeman said, President Johnson has pledged his administration to a full-scale program for Rural America based on commodity programs for farmers, community programs for communities that depend on farm prosperity and consumer programs "to help create an expanding market."

Earlier, Democratic Gov. Harold Hughes and his Republican opponent, Atty. Gen. Evan Hultman, traded charges of inaction on farm problems.

More Parking

Iowa City's new parking lot will be open for use during SUI Homecoming, according to Public Works Director Lawrence Madden.

It is expected to be open by Oct. 21.

Cement work on the project should be completed by Thursday and other work should be finished before the Homecoming weekend.

Madden said.

SUI Game on Hughes' Tour

Gov. Harold E. Hughes will be in Iowa City for SUI's Homecoming.

The Governor will conclude a six-day tour of Iowa when he arrives in Iowa City by helicopter Oct. 24. He is scheduled to land at the baseball field southeast of the football stadium.

Hughes said he chose a helicopter for the campaign because it will enable him to make more stops in a short period of time.

U.S. Takes Second Gold Medal; Field, Track Events Start Today

TOKYO (AP) — The premier track events started their run at the Tokyo Olympic Games today after Princeton's Jed Graef won America's second gold medal and Dawn Fraser of Australia completed an unprecedented triple in another record-shattering day for the swimmers.

THERE WAS a threat of rain as track and field began an eight-day run — and a threat that the United States might be shut out of the opening men's events because of the ankle injury that still hobbed the 10,000-meter ace, 18-year-old Gerry Lindgren.

The U.S. request for a reconsideration of Monday's 100-meter freestyle final, won by Don Schollander of Oswego Lake, Ore., was made by Dr. Harold Henning, manager of the U.S. team.

Graef, a towering 6-foot-6, 200-pounder from Verona, N.J., led a 1-2 American sweep in the men's 200-meter backstroke with a world record clocking of 2:10.3, followed by Gary Dilley of Huntington, Ind., in 2:10.5, and Bob Bennett of Long Beach, Calif., in 2:13.1.

That came minutes after Miss Fraser, an old lady of swimming at 27 when most of the world's best are in their teens or early 20's, flashed home just before Sharon Stouder of Glendora, Calif., in the 100-meter freestyle with an Olympic record time of 59.5.

MISS STOUDER, joining Miss Fraser as the only women in the world to break the 60-second barrier, finished in 59.9 while Kathy Ellis of Indianapolis, Ind., grabbed the bronze medal with a 1:00.8 clocking.

The five medals in swimming gave the United States two gold medals, five silver and three bronze in three days of competition.

Russia added only one medal for a total of four as Vladimir Kapilov finished second to Poland's Waledmar Basanowski in the lightweight weight-lifting competition. Basanowski set a world and Olympic record by lifting a total of 951.5 pounds in the only other final on the schedule.

THE U.S. ENTRY, Tony Garry of York, Pa., finished well back in fourth place with a lift of 907.50.

U.S. swimmers, meanwhile, continued their advance in other events, pushing the maximum three qualifiers into the semifinals and finals of more while the men's 400-meter freestyle relay set an Olympic record with a 3:38.8 clocking in a heat.

THERE WERE, however, two setbacks.

The International Swimming Federation turned down an American request to give a third-place tie and the accompanying bronze medal to Gary Ilman of San Jose, Calif., and Lindgren's injury remained serious on the eve of his bid for America's first distance gold medal since 1908.

The U.S. request for a reconsideration of Monday's 100-meter freestyle final, won by Don Schollander of Oswego Lake, Ore., was made by Dr. Harold Henning, manager of the U.S. team.

HENNING'S protest was based on the fact that Germany's Hans-Joachim Klein was awarded third place over Ilman although the placing judges split, 4-4.

Lindgren was a growing concern in the American camp as the track portion of the Games neared its opening with finals nearing in the 10,000, men's javelin throw and women's broad jump. Four other gold medals were to be awarded in swimming and one in middleweight weightlifting, where the United States had no entry.

Frank Gorman of New York was leading a U.S. sweep in the springboard diving after seven of the 10 events with 105.99 points. Larry Andreason of Los Alamitos, Calif., was second with 100.31 and Ken Sitzberger of River Forest, Ill., third with 98.66.

IN THE WOMEN'S 100-meter backstroke, Cathy Ferguson of Berkeley, Calif., led an advance into the finals with a 108.8 clocking. Ginny Duenkel, West Orange, N.J., made it in 1:08.9 and Nina Harmer of Philadelphia, Pa., in 1:09.8.

Carl Robie of Drexel Hill, Pa., Dick Roth of Atherton, Calif., and Roy Saari of El Segundo, Calif., previously had qualified for the 400-individual medley final.

Chet Jastremski of Toledo, Ohio, was the fastest American qualifier for the semifinals of the 200-meter breaststroke, which will wind up later in the week. He was timed in 2:30.5. Wayne Anderson of Santa Clara, Calif., was clocked in 2:31.5 and Tom Tretheney of Pittsburgh in 2:33.4.

Teen-ager swimmers Kathy Ellis and Donna de Varona took turns lowering the Olympic 100 meter butterfly record today while three U.S. dash men ran through a light drizzle and into the second round of the 100-meter dash trials at the start of track competition in the Tokyo Games.

Miss Ellis, 17-year-old Indianapolis schoolgirl who took a bronze medal in the 100 meter freestyle finals Tuesday, lowered the Olympic butterfly record to 1:07.8 in winning her first heat in the trials.

THE MARK stood just a couple of minutes. Miss De Varona, another 17-year-old from Santa Clara, Calif., took her heat in 1:10.5 as the Yankee girls continued to dominate the swimming competition.

The record-breaking efforts were expectable. In 11 swimming events competed in four days, either in trials or finals, Olympic records have been broken in all.

The U.S., of course, has won nine of its 10 medals in swimming and diving.

THE U.S. sprinters meanwhile, attempting to regain lost Olympic prestige in the event long considered an American stronghold, had little trouble making it into the second round of the 100 meters though all had relatively modest times.

Bulky Bob Hayes, the Florida A&M star, rated the world's fastest human, first was announced as winning his heat in 10.2 seconds, but the time later was changed to 10.4. No official explanation was given for the change in time.

Hayes, who has done the 100 yard dash in 9.1, pulled away about halfway down the track and finished easily up. Stubby Mel Pender, an Army sergeant from Atlanta, was second in his heat at 10.5 and Trenton Jackson, from Rochester, N.Y., won his in the same time.

ON OTHER FRONTS: The U.S. basketball team, continued to romp along, blasting little Uruguay 83-28 for its fourth victory of the Games and 42nd since the sport was added to the Olympics. Russia kept pace with its fourth straight, an 83-63 triumph over Puerto Rico.

IN ROWING, the United States sent its third and fourth boats into the finals. The Vesper shell beat Japan and Korea in the repechage, or second-chance heat, while the four-oars without coxswain also advanced by winning in the repechage.

THERE WERE, however, two setbacks.

The International Swimming Federation turned down an American request to give a third-place tie and the accompanying bronze medal to Gary Ilman of San Jose, Calif., and Lindgren's injury remained serious on the eve of his bid for America's first distance gold medal since 1908.

The four-oar crew is made up of Geoff Picard, Lafayette, Calif.; Dick Lyon, Glendale, Calif., and Ted Mittel and Ted Nash, both of Seattle, Wash.

THE TWO BOXERS — featherweight Brown of Cincinnati and light middleweight Gibson of Spokane, Wash., both advanced with impressive victories. Gibson scored a technical knockout over Thailand's Yot Thiancharoen in 57 seconds of the second round.

The United States also was in a contending position in the modern pentathlon and yachting but the freestyle wrestlers and the fencers were running into difficulty.

The U.S. team was second to Russia in the five-event pentathlon after the riding, fencing and shooting phases. Dave Kirkwood of Los Angeles was fifth in the individual standings. Jim Moore of Erie, Pa., ninth, and Paul Pesthy, New Brunswick, N.J., 15th.

In yachting, U.S. sailors were second in Dragon and Finn classes, third in the 5.5-meter, fourth in the Flying Dutchman and sixth in the Star class.

THREE WRESTLERS continued to advance — bantamweight Dave Auble of Ithaca, N.Y.; middleweight Dan Brand of Oakland, Calif., and light heavyweight Jerry Conine of Tacoma, Wash., who drew a bye.

But featherweight Bobby Douglas of Bridgeport, Ohio, lost one of his matches and three others were eliminated. Heavyweight Larry Kristoff of Carbondale, Ill.; flyweight E. Gray Simons of Norfolk, Va., and lightweight Greg Ruth of Bethlehem, Pa.

IN FENCING, none of the three Americans in the foil division reached the final. Albert Axelrod of Scarsdale, N.Y., lasted the longest but was eliminated along with Ed Richards of Brookline, Mass., and Herb Cohen of Brooklyn, N.Y.

The United States split two volleyball games, the men defeating the Netherlands 3-0 while the women lost to Romania by the same score. The men's water polo team lost to the Netherlands 6-4.

Simmons vs. Bouton Today In Showdown at St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Curt Simmons, a 35-year-old left-hander, will try to nail down the World Series for the St. Louis Cardinals today and young Jim Bouton will do his best to keep the New York Yankees alive as the scene shifts to Busch Stadium for the sixth game.

Manager Yogi Berra said Bouton definitely would be his starter in the sixth game. Whitey Ford, still handicapped by a tender right heel, worked out with the club but did not do any throwing. Berra said Ford might try to warm up Wednesday night and could pitch the seventh game Thursday, if there is one.

However, if the Series goes down to the wire, it is expected that Berra would fall back on rookie Mel Stottlemyre, with Ford available for relief.

THE CARDINALS are now 13 to 10 favorites to win the sixth game and the Series.

Kane sent the Cardinals through an early afternoon workout at Busch Stadium while the town still buzzed about the wild reception that 10,000 fans gave the club Monday night at the airport.

"We're in very good shape now," said Keane. "We're ahead 3-2 and ready with our pitching no matter what happens. I am not sure what I would do if we go to a seventh game. It might be Bob Gibson back again or it might be Roger Craig or Ray Sadecki. It all depends on the sixth game. I won't use Gibson today but Craig will be in the bullpen."

KEANE was as puzzled as Cardinal fans about the weak hitting of Bill White, who had only one hit in 19 at bats and had a .053 average.

"I sort of figure White will break out of it here at home," said the manager.

"I don't think the park makes too much difference," Keane added. "It is easier for the Yankees to hit home runs here and it is easier for us to hit the ball out in this park because of the short right field. Yankee Stadium is a tough park to hit in because of the shadows and the great distances in center field."

District Schools To Close For Teaching Conference

The Iowa City Community School District, including Penn Elementary and Coralville Schools, will dismiss students from classes Friday.

Schools will be closed so teachers can attend the Iowa State Teachers Convention in Des Moines Thursday and Friday, according to Buford W. Garner, superintendent of the Iowa City Community School District.

Classes will be dismissed at the usual time Thursday and will resume at the usual time Monday morning, he said.

"Così fan Tutti," means "That's the way they are." The plot involves two sisters, Fiordiligi and Dorabella, who are tested by their soldier-lovers.

On the advice of a philosopher, the soldiers return disguised as Spaniards to see how faithful the women are to them.

Dorothy Coulter and June McCarthy will discuss the qualifications, work, and methods of application. In addition, he will explain the Foreign Service Examinations held in May and December each year.

Since his appointment to the State Department in 1947, McCarthy has served as vice consul in Peiping and Tientsin, China, and as a public affairs officer in Hong Kong; Bangkok, Thailand; and Taipei, Formosa.

McCarthy will discuss the qualifications, work, and methods of application. In addition, he will explain the Foreign Service Examinations held in May and December each year.

Members of the SUI Opera Workshop, who are sponsoring the performance will assist by supplying the lighting, stage hands, ushers and publicity.

Before Young Republicans—*Schwengel Defends RecordBy MIKE ELLIOT
Staff Writer

Republican Congressman Fred Schwengel charged his Democratic opponent John Schmidhauser with spreading inaccurate information about his voting record in Congress in an address before the Young Republicans Tuesday night.

He also accused the Johnson Administration of "failing miserably" in the past year.

"My opponent has campaigned long and hard, but my opponent, more than any other man I have faced, has used false information about my record," Schwengel said.

"Schmidhauser has a fine reputation and it is a shame he is blemishing it by his present tactics," Schwengel said. He used Schmidhauser's criticism of his record on civil rights as the principal example of Schmidhauser's tactics.

"Nothing amazes me more than to picture me against civil rights," he said. Schwengel said that Schmidhauser accused him of trying to "bottle up" the civil rights bill in the House Rules Committee. "Nothing could be more untrue," he said.

He also claimed Schmidhauser was incorrect when the Democratic candidate said he has never been the author of any piece of legislation. He cited the sabbatical leave bill as proof. Schwengel also dismissed the charge of poor attendance in Congress.

The Congressman, speaking before an audience of about 35 people in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol, attacked the fiscal, farm and foreign policies of the present administration and said the only way to prevent further failure would be to elect a Republican Congress.

He criticized the tax cut bill as a premature measure.

"What is needed is a tax reform, so we can close the loop-hole in the present tax laws," he said. "These must be dealt with first, then we can have a meaningful tax cut," he continued.

"It's hard to vote against a tax cut, but I did so, at some political danger to myself," he added.

Moving on to farm policy, Schwengel said, "The Midwest farm problem continually gets worse." He said Johnson even admitted that we have not done everything we could to solve it.

Schwengel charged that the only things the Democrats can give to farmers are "promises, promises and more promises."

Schwengel then said that in the present Congress, "panuts get more consideration than corn-hog farmers" in agricultural policy debate. He suggested a conservation program to take land out of production as a possible farm policy proposal.

Schwengel agreed with Johnson's statement that the United States has 120 different foreign policies, but he did not accept this as the proper means of conducting foreign policy. "We need one basic policy which will publicize the basic freedoms of the American people," he said.

He said Americans in turn, need a better understanding of foreign people. His sabbatical leave program is a means to improve a mutual understanding of people of different countries, he explained.

Congressman Schwengel arrived in Iowa City at 8 a.m. Tuesday and met briefly with SUI President Howard R. Bowen and with Prof. James Van Allen. He traveled to Solon in the afternoon.

Senate Group Reports Delay in Case-Disposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — It can take more than five years of costly litigation to settle a case before some federal regulatory agencies, a Senate study group reported Tuesday.

The group's chairman, Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Mo.), pictures the situation as getting worse. He called for legislation to streamline and speed up the administrative process lest it become an "impossible quagmire of backlog and delays."

Regulatory agencies are those watchdog bodies which license activity and enforce rules of interstate commerce in a variety of fields including transportation, communications, commerce, health and government contracts.

Long and his Senate subcommittee on administrative practices and procedures assessed no blame or criticism of any agencies or individuals for the time-consuming red tape they want to cut.

Rather, the senators advocated legislation to streamline and speed up procedures under which the agencies must function.

In fact, they said, the agencies have been increasing their output of settled cases but the backlog of unfinished business nevertheless continues to grow by the year because the burden of new cases filed has risen even faster.

The survey covered fiscal year 1963 which ended June 30, 1963. It counted 31,141 cases still pending when that fiscal year ended, compared with 24,407 at the end of fiscal 1961 and 29,909 at the end of fiscal 1962.

The report listed 81,468 cases closed out in fiscal 1963 compared to 67,418 settled in fiscal 1961 and 78,069 in fiscal 1962.

But, it said, the combined case load of the score or more agencies had soared from 68,577 in 1961 to 83,270 in 1963.

In round numbers, Long noted, this meant a rise of 21,000 cases in the work load which dwarfed a 14,000 increase in the number of cases settled since 1961.

GAO Criticizes ARA Slowness

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administrators of a federal program to create jobs in high unemployment areas let $26 million flow into places that had recovered economically, the General Accounting Office charged in a report Tuesday.

The agency criticized by GAO, the Area Redevelopment Administration, denied it had been inordinately slow in adjusting its policies to changed economic conditions. A program of federal projects should not be turned on and off as the rate of unemployment in an area fluctuates, it said, acknowledging "administrative delay" of seven to 13 months in some cases. It said this was a reasonable period for determining an area was no longer eligible for help.

GAO made its report to Congress, in whose behalf it oversees operations of the executive branch. The program under study was set up by the Public Works Acceleration Act of 1962, authorizing $900 million to provide jobs quickly by building projects in areas of substantial and persistent unemployment.

GAO said Detroit, for example, was designated as one such area in 1961, when its unemployment rate was 11 per cent, and projects ultimately totaled $44.7 million.
